"SALUTEM in Christo." Notwithstanding the advised care taken in the last convocation, amongst the rest, of these two chapters following of the constitutions then made, and by hir most excellent majestie confirmed, "Ut beneficiati in suis beneficiis curatis hospitalitatem exerceant;" the other, "Ut decani et canonici in ecclesiis cathedralibus suis vicibus conciones habeant;" yet are there daily complaints made, that some beneficed men having prebends in cathedral churches, do take longer scope by colour thereof of absence from their cured benefices, then by the said constitutions is allotted them; and that some others, who would seem to live at their prebends, do neglect their duty both of preaching, and attendance on their other divine functions there. For preventing of these, and the like insinuations (whereof we may happely ere long hear more) I doe hearby pray and require your lordship, that you will together with your dean advise upon every particular branche of each of the abovenamed chapters, and enform yourself, whether anie prebendarie of your church do breake anie parte of these two titles, whereunto he is either in respect of his cured benefice, or of his prebend tied; and so to reforme the offenders therein, with all convenient speede, as that I may, before the feast of All Saints next ensuing, receive under your lordships hand a true certificate, as well of any breach of the said constitutions, as of your lordships due reformation of it. Wherein nothing doubting of your lordships care, I bid you hartilie farewell. From my palace in Canterbury this sixth day of August M.DC.I.

The archbishop of Canterbury's letter with articles touching the ecclesiastical courts.
Ibid. fol. 135. a.

"SALUTEM in Christo." Your lordship hath by experience now found, how the not reforming of the inconveniences, crept into ecclesiastical inferior courtes, specified in my letters sent unto you in April last, hath bred that effect, which was then feared; even the multitudes of complaints made against them in this last parliament, which had they not been prevented with good circumspection, and hope promised of careful reformation hereafter of those abuses and grievances of the subjecte in the inferior courtes, there might perhaps have ensued the taking awaie of the whole, or most of those courtes, which caused me at our last assembly in convocation to admonish my brethren there present, and those deanes, archdeacons, and other clerks of the convocation, who then attended, to have a more careful and vigilant heede to the observing of the constitutions made in the former convocation, and confirmed by hir most excellent majesty; and more particularly to redresse these enormities following, so much complained of in the parliament house, as impugning our own late care in making the former constitutions, which had they ben well observed, these enormities had been all redressed.

I. The inconveniences which do arise by proceeding of ordinaries "ex officio mero" without either due presentment, or lawfull inquisition preceding.

II. The over frequent, and often keeping of courtes used by commissaries and officials, to the vexing of the subject, and especially churchwardens with weekly attendance, causinge their leaving other businesse to attend some courte or other.

III. The common snatching by prevention, used betwixt commissaries and officials in matters of correction, whereby neither do the churchwardens know where to present, nor the subject is suffered quietlie to answer his offence in any one courte, he is so distracted by being cited to two or three courtes at once.

IV. The vexing and charging the country with quarter bills, an abuse but lately crept into those courtes, directly against law, and very burdensome to the subject.

V. The infinite multitudes of apparitors and pettie somners, hanging upon each courte, two or three of them at once, most commonly feasting upon the subject for every trifling offence, to make worke to their courtes.

VI. The admission of curates, hand over head, by officials and commissaries in the countrie, without the busshops knowledge of them, and without receiving due testimony of their conversation, as by the constitution is required in the ordering of ministers; as also the breach of that parte of the constitution "De beneficiorum pluralitate cohibenda," which requireth, that no curate shall serve under a double beneficed man, but such an one, as for his sufficiency to preach, and for the competency of his stipend, shall be approved by myself, or his busshop diocesan; the ordinary fees of admission of such curates being notwithstanding ing reserved to those courtes, where they are granted.

VII. The scandal which groweth by commutation of penances, more rieff than before the late constitutions were made, without the bushops privity, warrant, or consent.

VIII. And lastly, The graunting licenses of marriages by archdeacons, and their officialls, and other exercising peculiar jurisdiction, who are no wayes by law to be saide "exercere episcopalem jurisdictionem de jure," neither was it anie waies intended at the making of these constitutions, and expresly by her majestie signified, that no bushops officer, other than his chancellor, shoulde grant anie license in any diocesse.

These being the grievances most noted, and both in parliament, and otherwise complained of, to be heavie for the subject to undergoe, and I did require at your lordships hands a reformation of them within your diocess at the end of the convocation; foe I doe hereby pray and require you, that you will set down such observations to your ecclesiastical officers, whereby all these abovenamed inconveniences may be avoyded, as the grievances springing of the undue observing of the former constitutions. And if any officer under you shall either impugne, or not truly performe the redressing of all these disorders, in manner as you shall prescribe them, he shall assuredlie know, that I had rather with severity reform him, than bear those ordinary complaints, which in the end may turne to the scandall of our jurisdiction ecclesiastical. And so not doubting, but that you will have due care of the premises, I commend your lordship to God. From Lambeth 7th of January, M.D.CI.

"SALUTEM in Christo." Your lordship cannot be ignorant of the great and manifold blessing and benefits, which we have received from God, since it pleased him to advance hir majesty to this crown; first, by directing her royal heart to establish and maintain true religion amongst us; then, by defending hir sacred person against many and divers secrett plotts and cruell designments; thirdly by protecting this whole realm from intended invasions of the king of Spaine, to the great admiration almost of all the world; and at this tyme by frustrating this king of Spaine of his intended invasion and conquest of the kingdom of Ireland; that thereby he might make his entrance the more easy for the subduing of this realm. To which intent likewise he combined with the pope, and of late sent greate forces into that kingdom to the aid and assistance of the rebells there, which fortified themselves in three places besides Kynsale, with resolution never to have departed that kingdome, till they had subdued it to their maister the king of Spaine. Nevertheless, through God's great goodness and mercies, they are subdued, and forced to become intercessors that they might depart, and leave that enterprife, and have surrendered and yeilded up all the places, wherein before they had fortified themselves. Moreover, the forces of both the traytors Tyrone, and Odonell are vanquished; Tyrone, into the north parte of Ireland, and Odonell, into Spain: for which great goodness of almighty God, in frustrating of these and divers other plots and enterprises against her majestie and hir kingdom, and specially against the true religion, which we professe, devised as well by the late king of Spaine, as by this his son that now reigneth, who hath vowed to follow his fathers steps; wherein we can never be sufficiently thankful. And theefore your lordship shall doe well, and it is hir majesties pleasure, to take order within your dioces, that the preachers, in their sermons shall notifie to their parishioners these admirable workes of God, and his exceeding great mercies multiplied upon us, and move them to render thanks unto God for the same, and to pray for the continuance thereof. And so with my heartie commendations I commit your lordship to the tuition of almighty God. From Lambeth the 25. of January, M.D.C.I.

AFTER my hartie commendations to your lordship. I have thought good upon some special occasions me thereto moving, to pray and require your lordship, that presently after receipt hereof, you do send letters, aswell to all your archdeacons, as to all severall commissaries within your diocesse, willing and requiring them, in my name to send for every parson, vicar, or curate within their severall jurisdictions, and as secretly and particularly, as they can, to receive of them in writing their severall answers to every one of these points following; and that the said archdeacons and commissaries, so soone as they shall have received the said answers in writing from the severall ministers, do presently transmit them in autentique forme unto you, to be presentlie sente from your lordship to me: wherein I must put your lordship in remembrance, that you had need to give some touch unto your archdeacons and other commissaries, that if they thought of it, how much these things, which I desire to be informed in, may concern their severall jurisdictions, they would have more care particularly to inform themselves, by all meanes, of every such matter required of them; and speedily return certificate of them. The matters I now desire to be advertised of, with all convenient speed, are these:

I. The certein number of those that do receive the communion in everie severall parish.

II. The certein number of every man recusant inhabiting in every severall parish within their severall jurisdictions, without specifying their particular names; and likewise the certein number of every woman recusant, distincte from the man, in manner as afore.

III. The like inquirie to be observed also, aswell what the certein number is of every man as afore, who doth not receive the communion, on, as also the certain number of every woman in each severall parish, who doth not receive the communion, without specifying their names.

IV. The particular name of every double beneficed man in your diocese, who holdeth two benefices with cure, his degree of schole, and qualification, the names of the severall benefices with cure, which he so holdeth, how many miles distant each of the benefices, which he holdeth, is from the other, and as neer as you can; the valuation of them in the kinges bookes.

V. How many severall impropriations there be within your diocese, whether they be endued with vicaridges, or served by curates; if with vicaridges, what everie of those severall vicaridges is valued at, so neere as you can inform yourself, in the kinges bookes; yf by curates, what the ordinarie stipend is that the proprietarie payeth for the maintenance of the curate.

VI. The names of every personage within your diocese, which is endued with a vicaridge; what the said personage is valued in the kinges bookes, and what the vicaridge is valued in the kinges bookes, and what the vicaridge is valued at.

VII. Who is patrone to everie severall benefice within your diocese, so neere as your records of institution can give direction. And thus praying your lordship to be verie carefull in the premises, I committe you to the protection of almightie God. From Lambhith this last of June, M.DC.III.

JAMES, Rex.

RIGHT trusty and well beloved, we greet you well. The zeal, that religion might be well planted in this realm, and all other our dominions, hath caused us to enter into consideration of all means, that might best serve to the furtherance hereof. Wherein finding that no one thing is a greater impediment, than want of competent living to maintain learned men in such places of our kingdom, where the ordinary benefit of the vicarages doth not suffice, and the parsonages are impropriate, and in laymens hands, we have found, that there could not be a readier way to supply that defect, than if those impropriations of tithes might be converted again to the right use, for which they were at present instituted; wherein by God's grace we have a purpose to do in such of them as now are, or shall be in our hands, whatsoever our state may well bear. By which example of ours we presume to induce all others, possessed of the like, to imitate us, as far as with their ability they may. In the mean time we have considered, that to give beginning to so good a work, none were more fit, than the colleges in the universities, who being so eminent members of our state, and having divers of them many such impropriations, and some of them also a desire, as we are informed, to provide for such persons out of such livings, as shall fall within their powers to dispose, their example should have great efficacy into all good men in this sort to advance the glory of Christ's gospel. And because there may occur in the performance hereof some such particular difficulties, as are unknown to us, we have thought good, before we entred further into it, to recommend this matter to your consideration, requiring you, our chancellor, and in your absence the vicechancellor, and heads of houses to assemble yourselves, and such discreet men of all the colleges, as you shall think meet for such a consultation, and to propose that matter amongst you, and to consider and set down some speedy course, how upon the expiration of the years in being of any lease of tithes or glebe impropriate, the same may afterwards be so devised, as ecclesiastical persons bred in the houses, to whom the same do belong respectively, may be maintained, and enabled to execute their functions, and yet the college provided of such things as are necessary for maintaining the same: whereof we have no intention to wish any prejudice, knowing well how fit it is, that they be supported by all good means whatsoever. Of which your deliberation and resolution we do require you to advertise us with as convenient speed as you may, both by writing under your hands, and by some discreet persons to be sent to us, or our council, to make report of your doings therein. Reg. III. Whitgift fol. 195. b.

"SALUTEM in Christo." Yesterday night I received letters from the lords of his majesty's privy council, the copy whereof I send inclosed to your lordship, praying and requiring you, according to the accustomed manner in such cases, to cause the contents thereof to be made known to the rest of the bishops within this province; whereof divers are now remaining in and about London. Touching the manner of celebrating that day, I would be glad to have conference with your lordship, and some others of the bishops now present; but in the mean time, and for the speedier dispatch of your letters, I think it fit the same order be observed in this action, as was used upon the 17th of November, in our late sovereign's time; with especial charge, that in every particular church there be a sermon and service, with a declaration of the great blessing of God for his majesty's deliverance from that danger, with hearty prayers to God for the continuance of his goodness towards him and us, and to the like effect. And so not doubting, but that you will perform this duty with all convenient speed, I commit you to the tuition of almighty God. From Croydon "decimo quarto Julii," M.DC.III.

The council's letter to the archbishop of Canterbury about celebrating the 5th of August yearly. Ibid. fol. 151. a.

AFTER our very hearty commendations to your lordship. As it pleased God many ways to bless our sovereign lord the king, before his coming to this kingdom, and when he was possessed only of the realm of Scotland (whereby it appeareth that the divine providence reserved him for the happy government of this state, and (as it is not to be doubted) for the perpetual establishment of peace and tranquillity amongst us) so, forasmuch as by his succession to this crown we are now made partakers of the same blessings, and of the benefit thereof proceeding equally with his subjects of the Scottish nation, it is very meet, that in equal degree and measure with them, we should in all respects shew our gladness, and thankful acknowledgement of God's goodness, and our love to his majesty: among which said blessings there could not be any of greater note, or of more happiness unto us, than the preservation and delivery of his majesty from the traitorous and detestable attempt of the earle Gowrie, his brother, and other complices against his majesty's life and person. For which inestimable benefits, forasmuch as his majesty's said subjects of Scotland have declared, and do still continue their joy and thankfulness, by solemnizing and celebrating the day of his majesty's said delivery, and for that cause, by a special act and perpetual statute made by the three estates of that kingdom (in a parliament holden at Edinburgh in the month of November, M.DC.) have ordained, that the memory of the said day (being the 5th day of August) the year aforesaid, should be yearly solemnized by public assembly, prayer, and thanksgiving to God in all parish churches throughout that realm, by cessation from work and labour, and by all good and lawfull means and signs of gladness, whereby God might be glorified, and the joy for so happy a delivery continued in the memory of all posterity; and sithence this especial cause of joy is now become common to all the subjects of this realm, and of the rest of his majesty's dominions, who had been deprived of the present comfort, and of all future happiness, conceived and hoped for, by the establishment of his majesty's sacred person in the right of this kingdom, if God in his mercy had not prevented that most wicked and horrible mischief; we therefore, unto whom as the said cause of joy and gladness jointly with the rest of his majesty's subjects, so the direction for any certain rule and order therein to be observed, doth more properly appertain, not doubting but you, and all other his loving subjects, will readily apprehend this occasion to acknowledge their own happiness, do pray and require your lordship to cause to be published, and made known in the parish churches throughout all the dioceses in your province, the said occasion of joy and thankfulness for his majesty's delivery, the order and course that was taken heretofore, and is continued by his subjects of the Scottish nation, as is afore mentioned; and in like sort to prescribe the same rule and order of solemnizing and celebrating yearly the day aforesaid, of God's mercy and our happiness in the preservation of his majesty, by public assembly, thanksgiving, and prayer in the parish churches, and in special commemoration of his majesty's said delivery, by cessation from work and labour for that day, and by such other lawful signs and demonstrations of joy and gladness for the same, as may declare our thankfulness thankfulness to God, and dutiful love to his majesty. The form and manner of which thanksgiving, how it may be best conceived, and delivered publickly in the churches, we refer to your lordship's judgment and wisdom. And so we bid your lordship right heartily well to fare. From the court at Windsor the 12th of July, M.DC.III.

A proclamation concerning such as seditiously seek reformation in church matters.

As we have ever from our infancy had manifold proofs of God's great goodness towards us in his protecting of us from many dangers of our person, very nearly threatening us, and none more notorious than his happy conducting us in the late case of our succession to this crown, which contrary to most mens expectation we have received with more quiet and concurrency of good will of our people (otherwise perhaps of different dispositions) than ever in like accident hath been seen; so do we think, that the memory of his benefits ought to be a continual sollicitation to us to shew ourselves thankful to his divine majesty whereinssoever opportunity shall be offered us to do him service, but especially in things concerning his honour and service, and the furtherance of the gospel, which is the duty most befitting royal authority. Wherefore after our entry into this kingdom, when we had received information of the state thereof at the decease of the queen our sister of famous memory, although we found the whole body thereof in general by the wisdom of herself, and care of those, who had the administration thereof under her, in such good state of health, as did greatly commend their wisdoms, as well in the politic part of it, as also in the ecclesiastical, whereof since we have understood the form and frame, we are persuaded that both the constitution and doctrine thereof is agreeable to God's word, and near to the condition of the primitive church; yet forasmuch as experience doth shew daily, that the church militant is never so well constituted in any form of policy, but that the imperfections of men, who have the exercise thereof, do with time though insensibly, bring in some corruptions; as also for that informations were daily brought unto us by divers, that some things used in this church were both scandalous to many seeming zealous, and gave advantage to the adversaries; we conceived that no subject could be so fit for us to shew our thankfulness to God, as upon serious examination of the state of this church, to redeem it from such scandals, as both by the one side and the other were laid upon it. For our instruction wherein, we appointed a meeting to be had before ourself and our council, of divers of the bishops and other learned men, the first day of the next month, by whose information and advice we might govern our proceeding therein, if we found cause of amendment. But by reason of the sickness reigning in many places of our kingdom, the unreasonable time of the year for travel, and the incommodity of the place of our abode for such an assembly, we were constrained to defer it till after Christmas. At which consultation we shall both more particularly understand the state of the church, and receive thereby light to judge, whether there be indeed any such enormities, as are pretended, and know how to proceed to the redress. But this our godly purpose we find hath been misconstrued by some mens spirits, whose heat tendeth rather to combustion than reformation, as appeareth by the courses they have taken; some using public invectives against the state ecclesiastical here established, some contemning their authority and the processes of their courts, some gathering subscriptions of multitudes of vulgar persons to supplications to be exhibited to us, to crave that reformation, which if there be cause to make, is more in our heart than in theirs. All which courses, it is apparent to all men, are unlawful, and do favour of tumult, sedition, and violence, and not of such a christian modesty, as becometh those, who for piety's sake only desire redress of things they think to be amiss, and cannot but be the occasions of dissentious partialities, and perhaps of greater inconveniences among our people.

For preventing whereof, we have thought it necessary to make public declaration to all our subjects, that as we have reason to think the estate of the church here established, and the degrees and orders of ministers governing the same, to be agreeable to the word of God and the form of the primitive church, having found the same blessed in the reign of the late queen with great increase of the gospel, and with a most happy and long peace in the politic state, which two things, the true service of God, and happiness of the state, do commonly concur together; so are we not ignorant, that time may have brought in some corruptions, which may deserve a review and amendment, which if by the assembly intended by us we shall find to be so in deed, we will therein proceed according to the laws and customs of this realm by advice of our council, or in our high court of parliament, or by convocation of our clergy, as we shall find reason to lead us; not not doubting, but that in such an orderly proceeding we shall have the prelates and others of our clergy no less willing, and far more able to afford us their duty and service, than any other, whose zeal goeth so fast before their discretion. Upon which our princely care, our pleasure is, that all our subjects do repose themselves, and leave to our conscience, that which to us only appertaineth, avoiding all unlawful and factious manner of proceeding; for that hereafter if any shall either by gathering the subscriptions of multitudes to supplications, by contemptuous behaviour of any authority by the laws resting in ecclesiastical persons, by open invectives and indecent speeches either in the pulpit or otherwise, or by disobedience to the processes proceeding from their jurisdiction, give us cause to think, that he hath a more unquiet spirit, than becometh any private person to have toward public authority, we will make it appear by their chastisement, how far such a manner of proceeding is displeasing to us, and that we find that these reformers under pretended zeal affect novelty, and so confusion in all estates, whereas our purpose and resolution ever was, and now is to preserve the estate as well ecclesiastical as politic in such form, as we have found it established by the laws here, reforming only the abuses, which we shall apparently find proved, and that also to do by such mature advice and deliberation, as we have above mentioned. Wherefore we admonish all men hereby to take warning, as they will answer the contrary at their peril. Given under our hand at Wilton the 24th day of October, of our reign of England, France, and Ireland the first, and of Scotland the thirtieth and seventh year, anno Domini M.DC.III.

The archbishop of Canterbury's letter for contribution to be made for the city of Geneva. Reg. III. Whitgift fol. 152. a.

"SALUTEM in Christo." I have received letters from his most excellent majesty, the tenor whereof followeth: Most reverend father in God, and right trusty and right well beloved counsellor, we greet you well. The city of Geneva of famous memory, for the zeal the inhabitants have ever had to religion, and for harbouring of many persecuted for the same, as well of other nations, as of this of England in time past, hath of late been put to great charges, by extraordinary occasions happened to them more than they are able to defray, and cannot preserve themselves from some imminent danger, except they be relieved by those their friends, who for community of religion ought to hold the dangers threatening of people so well affected to be their own cause; of which sort hoping that there be in this our realm a great number, who being informed of their cause, and of our good will, that they should be relieved, will readily contribute towards the same such benevolence, as God shall put in their hearts to do; we have thought good to signify unto you, that we understand by their agent sent unto us, of their extremity, and how willing we are by way of benevolence they may be relieved; and to require you to direct your letters, in our name, to the several bishops of your province, signifying the same to them; and that our pleasure is, they shall give order to the parsons, vicars, curates, and other incumbents of the several parishes in their dioceses, to make known so much to their parishioners at their assemblies on Sundays and holidays, and how much it shall be to the commendation of their zeal and our good liking, that in this case they shew themselves liberal and forward, and to accompany the same with such good exhortations, as they shall think meet to excite the peoples devotion, to extend itself toward a city deserving so well of the common cause of religion. And for the receipt of such monies, as shall be contributed, the said bishop shall appoint the churchwardens and sidemen of each parish, with the privity of the incumbents, to take care thereof, and at every months end to deliver the same to the archdeacon, or some other person of note or trust, by the diocesan to be appointed, who shall see the same safely conveyed unto him, and from the said diocesan, the same to be conveyed unto your grace, within some reasonable time, to be by you appointed, after he shall have received it. And when the mony, or any part thereof shall be sent to your hands, you shall acquaint us or our council with it, and by their advice deliver it to the agent of Geneva, or such other, as they shall appoint to receive it here, and make it over to them. The said collection we think meet to begin within one month after the date of these our letters, and to continue for the space of one year. Given under our signet at our city of Winchester the eighth day of October, in the first year of our reign of England, France, and Ireland, and of Scotland the seven and thirtieth. The contents of which his majesty's said letters I doubt not but that you will perform accordingly; the intent and purpose being so charitable and christian, and for relief of a city which maintains the gospel, and for professing thereof endureth these troubles. This collection your lordship must give order to your archdeacons and other your officers, who are by his majesty's letters to receive the same monthly of the churchwardens, that they do send it unto you within such convenient time, as that I may receive it at your lordship's hands at the end of every third month from the date hereof: provided always, that there be no deduction of charges made by by any of your officers or apparitors, out of any of these collections. And so with my very hearty commendations I commit you to the protection of the Almighty. From Croydon

JACOB. I. I.

Concilium Hamtoniense. Extract. ex Will. Barlow conference of Hampton court.

REX Jacobus ad summum in Anglia imperium evectus, ut ecclesiae Scoticae doctrinam et disciplinam Anglicanae conformem redderet, ad aulam suam Hamtoniensem accersivit Johannem Whitgift, archiepiscopum Cantuariensem, Richardum Bancroft, Londinensem, Tobiam Matthews, Dunelmensem, Thomam Bilson, Wintonensem, Gervasium Babington, Wigornensem, Antonium Rudd, Menevensem, Antonium Watson, Cicestrensem, Henricum Robinson, Carliolensem, et Thomam Dove, Petriburgensem episcopos; item decanum sacelli regii, Thomam Ravis, decanum aedis Christi Oxon. Richardum Eedes, Wigornensem, Lancelot Andrews, Westmonasteriensem, Johannem Overall, Paulinum, Wilhelmum Barlow, Cestrensem, Aegidium Thompson, Windsoresensem, et Johannem Gourden, Salisburiensem decanos; necnon doctorem Field, et doctorem King, archidiaconum Nottinghamensem. Quibus se adjunxerunt quatuor ab ecclesia Scotica legati, doctor Reynoldes, doctor Sparkes, magister Knewstubs, et mag. Chaderton; ut argumentis in utramque partem coram prolatis quid de iis statuendum esset, rex cognosceret, ac discrimen fidei sive religionis eorum sua auctoritate dirimeret. Convenerunt ergo die 14. mensis Januarii, ubi rex episcopis et nonnullis decanis seorsim ad se vocatis causam conventus enarrabat: "Beginning with a most grave and princely declaration of his general drift in calling this assembly no novel device, but according to the example of all christian princes, who in the commencement of their reign, usually take the first course for the establishing of the church, both for doctrine and policy, to which the very heathens themselves had relation in their proverb, "a Jove principium:" and particularly in this land king Henry the eighth, toward the end of his reign; after him king Edward the sixth, who altered more, after him queen Mary, who reversed all; and the last queen of famous memory, who settled it as now it standeth: wherein, he said, that he was happier than they, in this, because they were fain to alter all things they found established, but he saw yet, no cause so much to alter and change any thing, as to confirm that, which he found well settled already, which state, as it seemed, so affected his royal heart, that it pleased him both to enter into a gratulation to almighty God, for bringing him into the promised land, where religion was purely professed, where he sat among grave, learned, and reverend men; not as before elsewhere, a king without state, without honour, without order; where beardless boys would brave him to his face: and to assure us, that he called not this assembly for any innovation, acknowledging the government ecclesiastical, as now it is, to have been approved by manifold blessings from God himself, both for the increase of the gospel, and with a most happy and glorious peace. Yet because nothing could be so absolutely ordered, but something might be added afterward thereunto, and in any state, as in the body of man, corruptions might insensibly grow, either through time or persons; and in that he had received many complaints since his first entrance into the kingdom, especially through the dissensions in the church, of many disorders, as he heard, and much disobedience to the laws, with a great falling away to popery: his purpose therefore was, like a good physician, to examine and try the complaints, and fully to remove the occasions thereof, if they prove scandalous, or to cure them, if they were dangerous, or, if but frivolous, yet to take knowledge of them, thereby to cast a sop into Cerberus his mouth, that he may never bark again; his meaning being, as he pleased to profess, to give factious spirits no occasion hereby of boasting or glory: for which cause he had called the bishops in, severally by themselves, not to be confronted by the contrary opponents, that if any thing should be found meet to be redressed, it might be done without any visible alteration."

Finita hac oratione rex episcopos, et decanos ab aliis hujus concilii membris segregatos, interrogabat de confirmationis nomine et usu; de absolutionis forma; de baptismo privatim conferendo; de excommunicationis modo et objectis; ac de mittendis idoneis et eruditis ecclesiae ministris in Hiberniam. Haec omnia postquam archiepiscopus Cantuar. et episcopi solidis eruditisque argumentis explicassent, rex 16. Januarii diem assignabat exhibitioni responsionum ad quaestiones supradictas in scriptis, et ad audiendum opponentium querelas.

Die illo adveniente, omnes supranominati episcopi, decani, et alii cum quinque (mag. Patricius Galloway, Perthanae ecclesiae in Scotia minister, prioribus quatuor sese associaverat) opponentibus in praesentiam regis admittebantur. Rex concilii occasionem et necessitatem iis exponebat, dicens: "That a conference was meet to be had by every king, at his first entrance to the crown, not to innovate the government presently established, which by long experience he had found accompanied with so singular blessings of God forty five years, as that no church upon the face of the earth more flourished than this of England; but first to settle an uniform order through the whole church. Secondly, to plant unity for the suppression of papists, and enemies to religion. Thirdly, to amend abuses, as natural to bodies politic and to corrupt man, as the shadow to the body; which once being entered, hold on as a wheel his motion once set going. And because many grievous complaints had been made to him, since his first entrance into the land, he thought it best to send for some, whom his majesty understood to be the most grave, learned, and modest of the aggrieved sort, whom being there present, he was now ready to hear at large, what they could object or say; and so willed them to begin.

Tunc praemissa gratulatione, doctor Reynoldes cuncta, quae ipsis in ecclesia Anglicana displicebant, quorumque reformationem petebant, sub quatuor capitibus comprehendebat: I. "That the doctrine of the church might be preserved in purity, according to God's word. II. That good pastors might be planted in all churches to preach the same. III. That the church government might be sincerely administered according to God's word. IV. That the book of common prayer might be fitted to more increase of piety." Inter alia articulum ecclesiae Anglicanae xvi, xxiii, xxv, et xxxvii, enucleatius explicari desiderabat; id quod episcopus Londinensis et decanus Paulinus omnium cum applausu egregie praestiterunt. Postea idem Reynoldes triginta novem articulis fidei, hanc propositionem adjungi optabat "intentionem ministri non esse de essentia sacramenti." Cui rex quamoptime respondit. Conquereretur porro de brevitate catechismi in libris precum communium, de prophanatione Sabbati, de versione biblicorum in lingua vernacula, notando nonnulla loca male versa, ac de libris seditione repletis publice apparentibus. Proponebat et alia de praeficiendis ministris idoneis ac eruditis cuilibet parochiae: ad quae rex respondit: "That he had consulted with his bishops about that, whom he found willing and ready to second him in it; inveighing herein against the negligence and carelessness, which he heard of many in this land; but as "subita evacuatio" was "periculosa," so "subita mutatio." Therefore this matter was not for a present resolution, because to appoint to every parish a sufficient minister were impossible, the universities would not afford them. Again he had found already that he had more learned men in this realm, than he had sufficient maintenance for; so that maintenance must first be provided, and then the other to be required. In the mean time ignorant ministers, if young, to be removed, if there were no hope of their amendment; if old, their death must be expected, that the next course may be better supplied. And so concluded this point with a most religious and zealous protestation of doing something daily in this case, because Jerusalem could not be built up in a day." Hac occasione episcopus Londinensis regem supplex rogabat, ut de precibus, et de hominibus a ministris ecclesiae populo praelegendis, ac de evitandis rixis et seditione in sermonibus ad populum e cathedra ecclesiastica habendis, regia sua auctoritate decerneret. Pergebant posthac Reynoldes et Knewstubs ad examen libri precum communium, cui multis de causis subscribere recusabant. I. Quia nonnulla loca in libris apocryphis S. Scripturae, quorum lectio in hoc libro iungitur, erroribus scatent. II. Quia aliquae phrasae hic occurrentes non exprimunt sensum primaevis textus Novi Testamenti. III. Quia officium baptismi interrogatoriis abundat. Ut auctoritatem libri communium precum ulterius infringere, multa contra signum crucis in baptismo objiciebantur, quae tamen rex ipse, episcopus Wintonensis, et decanus sacelli regii quam doctissime diluebant. Adferebant praeterea aliqua de abolendis superpelliceis, quorum usus in lectione precum et officiorum ecclesiae praescribatur. Disputatum fuit quoque de verbis in officio matrimonii, "with my body I thee worship;" quibus addebantur nonnulla de annulo matrimoniali; et de gratiarum actionibus precibus mulierum post puerperium. Tandem contra auctoritatem laicorum cancellariorum in ecclesiasticis censuris infligendis quaedam allegabantur; ad quae rex: "That he had already conferred with his bishops about that point, and that such order should be taken therein, as was convenient, willing him in the mean time to go to some other matter, if he had any." Ultimo summis votis expetebant, ut clerus juxta constitutiones provinciales qualibet tertia hebdomade in decanatibus ruralibus conveniret, eoque tempore prophetias exerceret, prouti ab archiepiscopo Cantuar. Grindall, et aliis episcopis cum consensu reginae Elizabethae praescriptum erat; et ut ea, quae ibidem deciderent haud poterant, referrentur ad visitationes archidiaconales, et abhinc ad synodum episcopalem, in qua episcopus cum presbyteris suis omnes controversias dirimeret.

Quia autem Reynoldes, in disputationibus suis mentionem injecerat suprematus regii, antequam rex finem imponeret secundae concilii diei, his verbis eum alloquebatur: "I shall speak of one matter more, yet somewhat out of order, but it skilleth not. Doctor Reynoldes, quoth the king, you have often spoken for my supremacy, and it is well; but know you any here or any elsewhere, who like of the present government ecclesiastical, that find fault or dislike my supremacy? D. Reynoldes, said, No: why then, said his majesty, I will tell you a tale. After that the religion restored by king Edward the VI. was soon overthrown by the succession of queen Mary here in England, we in Scotland felt the effect of it. Whereupon Mr. Knox, writes to the queen regent (of whom without flattery I may say, that she was a virtuous and moderate lady) telling her that she was "supreme head" of the church, and charged her, as she would answer it before God's tribunal, to take care of "Christ his Evangelil," and of suppressing the popish prelates, who withstood the same. But how long trow ye, did this continue? even so long 'till by her authority, the popish bishops were repressed; he himself and his adherents were brought in and well settled, and by these means made strong enough to undertake the matters of reformation themselves. Then lo they began to make small account of her supremacy, nor would longer rest upon her authority, but took the cause into their own hand, and according to that more light, wherewith they were illuminated, made a further reformation of religion. How they used that poor lady my mother is not unknown, and with grief I may remember it: who, because she had not been otherwise instructed, did desire only a private chapel, wherein to serve God, after her manner, with some few selected persons; but her supremacy was not sufficient to obtain it at their hands. And how they dealt with me in my minority, you all know; it was not done secretly, and though I would, I cannot conceal it. I will apply it thus." And then putting his hand to his hat his majesty said. "My lords the bishops, I may thank you, that these men do thus plead for my supremacy. They think they cannot make their party good against you, but by appealing unto it, as if you, or some that adhere unto you, were not well affected towards it. But if once ye were out, and they in place, I know what would become of my supremacy. No bishop, no king; as before I said. Neither do I thus speak at random, without ground, for I have observed since my coming into England, that some preachers before me can be content to pray for James, king of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, defender of the faith; but as for supreme governor in all causes, and over all persons as well ecclesiastical as civil, they pass that over with silence, and what cut they have been of, I after learned." Cumque nihil amplius, quod objicerent, haberent ecclesiae Scoticae legati, rex concilium ad diem Mercurii proximum, 18. sc. mensis Januarii, differebat, surgensque de solio aiebat: "If this be all, that they have to say, I shall make them conform themselves, or I will harry them out of the land, or else do worse."

Illo die amotis jussu regio ad tempus ecclesiae Scoticae membris, comparebant coram rege episcopi, decani et alii supranominati, quibus aggregabantur equites et doctores curiae de arcubus, Daniel Dunne, Thomas Crompton, Richardus Swale, Johannes Bennet, equites, et doctor Drury, ubi quid duobus praecedentibus diebus inter regem et episcopos tractatum fuit, sc. de explicatione verborum quorundam in liturgia Anglicana, de suprema commissione (high commission) ad inquirendum res ad ecclesiam spectantes, de subscriptione, de juramento ex officio, de excommunicatione, et de ordinatione ac sustentatione ministrorum in qualibet parochia a summo Angliae cancellario et thesaurario confirmabatur, et intromissis Scotiae legatis observandum tradebatur. Pauca ad ea regerebantur a Reynoldes de expressione verborum in forma matrimonii "with my body I thee worship;" quibus postquam satis aptum datum fuisset responsum, rex "shut up all with a most pithy exhortation to both sides for unity, persuading diligence in each man's place, without violence on the one party or disobedience on the other, and willed them to deal with their freinds abroad to that purpose; for his majesty feared and had some experience, that many of them were ticklish and humorous, nor that only, but labourers to pervert others to their fancies; he now saw that the exceptions against the communion book were matters of weakness; therefore if the persons reluctant be discreet, they will be won betimes, and by good persuasions; if undiscree, better they were removed: for many by their factious behaviour, were driven to be papists. Now then of their fruits he shall judge them, obedience and humility being marks of honest and good men. Those he expected of them, and by their example and persuasion of all their sort abroad; for if hereafter things being thus well ordered, they should be unquiet, neither his majesty nor the state had any cause to think well of them." His exhortationibus omnes debitam pollicebantur obedientiam. Duo tamen ex ecclesiae Scoticae legatis, unus mag. Chatterton, alter mag. Knewstubs, de superpelliceo et de forma crucis in baptismo objiciebant, ut eae ceremoniae non adeo impraesentiarum urgerentur in comitatibus Lancastriae et Suffolciae. Quorum primo rex respondebat: "That it was not his purpose, and he durst answer for the bishops, that it was not their intent presently and out of hand to enforce those things, without fatherly admonitions, conferences, and persuasions premised; but wished that it should be examined, if these men by their pains and preaching had converted any from popery, and were withal men quiet of disposition, honest of life, and diligent in their calling; if so, letters should be written to the bishop of Chester to that purpose; if not, but that they were of a turbulent and opposite spirit, both they and others of that unquiet humour should presently be enforced to a conformity." Alteri rex talia regerebat: "Sir, you shew yourself an uncharitable man. We have here taken pains, and in the end have concluded of an unity and uniformity, and you forsooth, must prefer the credits of a few private men before the general peace of the church. This is just the Scottish argument; for when any thing was there concluded, which disliked some humours, the only reason, why they would not obey, was, it stood not with their credits to yield, having so long been of the contrary opinion. I will none of that, and therefore either let them conform themselves, and that shortly, or they shall hear of it." Et hoc modo concilio huic Hamtoniensi finis imponebatur.

A proclamation commanding all Jesuits, seminaries, and other priests to depart the realm by a day appointed.

HAVING after some time spent in settling the politic affairs of this realm, of late bestowed no small labour in composing certain differences we found among our clergy about rites and ceremonies heretofore established in this church of England, and reduced the same to such an order and form, as we doubt not but every spirit, that is led only with piety and not with humour, shall be therein satisfied; it appeared unto us in the debating of those matters, that a greater contagion to our religion, than could proceed from those light differences, was imminent by persons common enemies to them both, namely the great number of priests, both seminaries and Jesuits abounding in this realm, as well of such as were here before our coming to this crown, as of such as have resorted hither since, using their functions and professions with greater liberty, than heretofore they durst have done, partly upon a vain confidence of some innovation in matters of religion to be done by us, which we never intended, nor gave any man cause to expect, and partly upon the assurance of our general pardon, granted according to the custom of our progenitors at our coronation, for offences past in the days of the late queen, which pardon many of the said priests have procured under our great seal; and holding themselves thereby free from the danger of the laws, do with great audacity exercise all offices of their profession, both saying masses, persuading our subjects from the religion established, and reconciling them to the church of Rome, and by consequence seducing them from the true persuasion, which all subjects ought to have of their duty and obedience to us. Wherefore forasmuch as by way of providence to preserve their people from being corrupted in religion, piety, and obedience, is not the least part of royal duty, we hold ourself obliged both in conscience and in wisdom, to use all good means to keep our subjects from being infected with superstitious opinions in matter of religion, which are not only pernicious to their own souls, but the ready way and means to corrupt their duty and allegiance, which cannot be any way so surely performed, as by keeping from them the ministers and instruments of that infection, which are the priests of all sorts ordained in foreign parts, by authority prohibited by the laws of this land, concerning whom therefore we have thought it fit to publish to all our subjects this open declaration of our pleasure. That where there be of priests at this present within our kingdom, be they regular, or without rule, divers sorts, some in prison, some at liberty, and of both some having obtained our pardon under our great seal, and some having no such pardon. And again some that were here before our coming into this realm, and some come hither since: for all such as are in prison we have taken order that they shall be shipped at some convenient port, and sent out of our realm as soon as possible may be, with commandment not to return again into any part of our dominions, without our licence obtained upon pain and peril of the laws being here in force against them; and for all others, who are at liberty, whether having sued out our pardon or not, which we do advertise them and all our subjects, that extending only to matters done before the death of the late queen, doth not exempt any priest from the danger of the law for his abode here since our succession to the crown above the time by the statute limited.

We do hereby will and command all manner of Jesuits, seminaries, or other priests whatsoever, having ordination from any authority by the laws of this realm prohibited, to take notice, that our pleasure is, that they do before the nineteenth day of March next ensuing the date hereof, depart forth of our realm and dominions, and that for that purpose it shall be lawful to all officers of our ports, to suffer the said priests to depart from thence into any foreign parts, between this and the said nineteenth day of March; admonishing and assuring all such Jesuites, seminaries, and priests of what sort soever, that if any of them shall be after the said nineteenth day taken within this realm or any our dominions, or departing now upon this our pleasure signified, shall hereafter return into this realm or any our dominions again, that they shall be left to the penalty of the laws, here being in force concerning them, without hope of any favour or remission from us.

Wherefore we will and command all archbishops, bishops, lieutenants, justices of peace, and all other our officers and ministers whatsoever, to be vigilant and careful after the said nineteenth day of March next, to do their duties and diligence in discovering and apprehending of all priests that shall remain here contrary to this our declaration. Which though perhaps it may seem to some to presage a greater severity towards that sort of our subjects, who differing in their profession from the religion by law established, call themselves "Catholics," than by our proceedings with them hitherto we have given cause to expect; Yet doubt we not, but that when it shall be considered with indifferent judgment, what causes have moved us to use this providence against the said Jesuits, seminaries, and priests, all men will justify us therein. For to whom is it unknown, into what peril our person was like to be drawn, and our realm unto confusion not many months since, by a conspiracy first conceived by persons of that sort, fort, who having prevailed with some, had undertaken to draw multitudes of others to assist the same by the authority of their persuasions, and motives grounded chiefly upon matter of conscience and religion: which when other princes shall duely observe, we assure ourselves they will no way conceive, that this alteration groweth from any change of disposition now more exasperate than heretofore, but out of necessary providence to prevent perils otherwise inevitable, considering that their absolute submission to foreign jurisdiction at their first taking of orders, doth leave so conditional an authority to kings over their subjects, as the same power, by which they were made, may dispense at pleasure with the straitest band of loyalty and love between a king and his people. Amongst which foreign powers, although we acknowledge ourselves personally so much beholding to the now bishop of Rome for his kind offices and private temporal carriage towards us in many things, as we shall be ever ready to requite the same towards him, as bishop in state and condition of a secular prince; yet when we consider and observe the course and claim of that see, we have no reason to imagine, that princes of our religion and profession, can expect any assurance long to continue, unless it might be assented by mediation of other princes christian, that some good course might be taken by a general council free and lawfully called; to pluck up those roots of dangers and jealousies, which arise for cause of religion, as well between princes and princes, as between them and their subjects, and to make it manifest that no state or potentate either hath, or can challenge power to dispose of earthly kingdoms or monarchies, or to dispense with subjects obedience to their natural sovereigns: in which charitable action, there is no prince living, that will be readier than we shall be, to concur even to the uttermost of our power, not only out of particular disposition to live peaceably with all states and princes of christendom, but because such a settled amity might by an union in religion be established among christian princes, as might enable us all to resist the common enemy. Given at our palace of Westminster the 2d day of February, in the first year of our reign of England, France, and Ireland, and of Scotland the seven and thirtieth.

A proclamation for the authorizing and uniformity of the book of common prayer to be used throughout the realm.

ALTHOUGH it cannot be unknown to our subjects by the former declarations we have published, what our purposes and proceedings have been in matters of religion since our coming to this crown; yet the same being now by us reduced to a settled form, we have occasion to repeat somewhat of that which hath passed; and how at our very first entry into the realm being entertained and importuned with informations of sundry ministers, complaining of the errors and imperfections of the church here, as well in matter of doctrine, as of discipline, although we had no reason to presume that things were so far amiss, as was pretended, because we had seen the kingdom under that form of religion, which by law was established in the days of the late queen, of famous memory, blessed with a peace and prosperity, both extraordinary and of many years continuance (a strong evidence that God was therewith well pleased) yet because the importunity of the complainers was great, their affirmations vehement, and the zeal, wherewith the same did seem to be accompanied, very specious; we were moved thereby to make it our occasion to discharge that duty, which is the chiefest of all kingly duties, that is, to settle the affairs of religion and the service of God before their own, which while we were in hand to do, as the contagion of the sickness reigning in our city of London, and other places would permit an assembly of persons meet for that purpose; some of those who disliked the state of religion here established, presuming more of our intents, than ever we gave them cause to do, and transported with humour, began such proceedings, as did rather raise a scandal in the church, than take offence away. For both they used forms of public serving of God not here allowed, held assemblies without authority, and did other things carrying a very apparent shew of sedition, more than of zeal; whom we restrained by a former proclamation in the month of October last, and gave intimation of the conference we intended to be had with as much speed as conveniently could be, for the ordering of those things of the church, which accordingly followed in the month of January last, at our honour of Hampton court, where before ourselves, and our privy council were assembled many of the gravest bishops and prelates of the realm, and many other learned men, as well of those that are conformable to the state of the church established, as of those that dissented; among whom, what our pains were, what our patience in hearing and replying, and what the indifferency and uprightness of our judgment in determining, we leave to the report of those, who heard the same, contenting ourselves with the sincerity of our own heart therein. But we cannot conceal, that the success of that conference was such as happeneth to many other things, which moving great expectation before they be entered into, in their issue produce small effect. For we found mighty and vehement informations supported with so weak and slender proofs, as it appeared unto us and our council, that there was no cause, why any change should have been at all in that, which was most impugned, the book of common prayer, containing the form of the public service of God here established, neither in the doctrine, which appeared to be sincere, nor in the forms and rites, which were justified out of the practice of the primitive church. Notwithstanding we thought meet, with consent of the bishops and other learned men there present, that some small things might rather be explained, than changed; not that the same might not very well have been borne, with by men, who would have made a reasonable construction of them; but for that in a matter concerning the service of God we were nice or rather jealous, that the public form thereof should be free not only from blame, but from suspicion, so as neither the common adversary should have advantage to rest ought therein contained to other sense, than the church of England intendeth, nor any troublesome or ignorant person of this church be able to take the least occasion of cavil against it: and for that purpose gave forth our commission under our great seal of England to the archbishop of Canterbury and others, according to the form, which the laws of this realm in like case prescribe to be used, to make the said explanation, and to cause the whole book of common prayer, with the same explanations, to be newly printed. Which being now done and established anew after so serious a deliberation; although we doubt not but all our subjects, both ministers and others will receive the same with such reverence as appertaineth, and conform themselves thereunto every man in that, which him concerneth; yet have we thought it necessary to make known by proclamation our authorizing of the same, and to require and enjoyn all men, as well ecclesiastical as temporal, to conform themselves unto it, and to the practice thereof, as the only public form of serving of God, established and allowed to be in this realm. And the rather, for that all the learned men, who were there present, as well of the bishops, as others, promised their conformity in the practice of it, only making suit to us, that some few might be borne with for a time.

Wherefore we require all archbishops, bishops, and all other public ministers, as well ecclesiastical, as civil, to do their duties in causing the same to be obeyed, and in punishing the offenders according to the laws of the realm heretofore established for the authorizing of the said book of common prayer. And we think it also necessary, that the said archbishops and bishops do each of them in his province and diocese take order, that every parish do procure to themselves within such time, as they shall think good to limit, one of the said books so explained. And last of all we do admonish all men, that hereafter they shall not expect nor attempt any further alteration in the common and public form of God's service, from this which is now established; for that neither will we give way to any to presume, that our own judgment having determined in a matter of this weight, shall be swayed to alteration by the frivolous suggestions of any light spirit; neither are we ignorant of the inconveniences, that do arise in government, by admitting innovation in things once settled by mature deliberation; and how necessary it is to use constancy in the upholding of the public determinations of states; for that such is the unquietness and unsteadfastness of some dispositions, affecting every year new forms of things, as, if they should be followed in their inconstancy, would make all actions of states ridiculous and contemptible: whereas the steadfast maintaining of things by good advice established, is the weal of all common wealths. Given at our palace of Westminster the fifth day of March, in the first year of our reign of England, France, and Ireland, and of Scotland the seven and thirtieth, anno Domini, M.DC.III.

Aprilis, episcopus London. nonnullos elegit episcopos ad conferendam cum oratore et aliis membris domus inferioris parlamenti super querelis coram iis propositis contra clericos, et ad enarranda coram oratore et membris domus inferioris parlamenti gravamina clericorum contra laicos. Quia autem orator ea recipere noluit, episcopus London. totum hoc negotium domui superiori parlamenti proposuit.

Haec dum agerentur, episcopus London. secundo die Maii prolocutori librum canonum perlegendum tradit, cujus examen utrique domui synodi in aliis sessionibus committit. Illo ipso die tres clerici, Egerton, Fleetwood, et Wotton, cum aliis fociis suis reformationem liturgiae Anglicanae per petitionem domui inferiori convocationis traditam expetebant. Hos episcopus London. et alii episcopi admonebant ad obedientiam et assensum praestand. liturgiae regia auctoritate stabilitae, illisque festum S. Johannis Baptistae assignabant ad consentiendum huic monitioni. Decimo octavo die mensis Maii dominus rex articulos religionis anno M.D.LXII. promulgatos, synodo mittit de novo approbandos

Vicesimo tertio die ejusdem mensis controversia de cruce in baptismo oriebatur.

Tricesimo die sequente mensis Maii "The prolocutor complains to the bishops, that he had two subpoenas serv'd upon him by Harrington and Walker, notwithstanding his privilege. The prolocutor answers, that the king was acquainted with it, and that Walker was arrested for it by a serjeant at mace, and a warrant gone for Harrington. In alia (21.) sessione "Walker, abovesaid convented before the bishops, sent to the lower house, to beg pardon of the prolocutor and house, which he did, and was dismissed pro tempore." Junii vicesimo nono "Harrington was brought upon his knees for serving a subpoena upon the prolocutor.

In vicesima quarta hujus synodi sessione (Jun. 13.) liber vocatus Limbo-matrix, multum exclamans contra ecclesiastica officia, introducebatur, qui examini et consultationibus concilii submittebatur.

Per multas deinde sessiones liber canonum approbatus et confirmatus, ex manibus synodi typographorum curae committebatur: et post varias continuationes de die in diem, convocatio haec per breve regium a decano et capitulo Cantuar. episcopi London. executioni traditum, ad 8. diem mensis Februarii, et ab hoc per aliud breve archiepiscopo Cant. directum, ad 4. diem Octobris anni sequentis prorogabatur.

Convocatio Ebor.

CLERUS provinciae Ebor. per breve regium dat. apud Westm. 31. die Januarii, anno regni 1. in ecclesia metropolitana S. Petri Ebor. convocabatur, et deinde a 20. die mensis Martii ad 3. diem Aprilis anni sequ. prorogabatur.

Ab hoc die 3. Aprilis de die in diem per varias prorogationes in 6. diem Julii continuata, per breve regium eodem datum die apud Westm. anno regni 11. ad 8. diem Februarii, et ab eo ad 4. diem Octobris anni M.DC.V. prorogabatur.

JACOB. I. 2.

Constitutiones sive canones ecclesiastici, per episcopum Londinensem, praesidem synodi pro Cantuariensi provincia, ac reliquos episcopos, et clerum ejusdem provinciae ex regia auctoritate tractati, et conclusi in ipsorum synodo inchoata Londini anno salutis millesimo sexcentesimo tertio, regnique serenissimi principis, clementissimi domini nostri Jacobi, Dei gratia Angliae, Franciae, et Hiberniae regis primo, et Scotiae tricesimo septimo; ab eadem regia maiestate deinceps approbati, ratihabiti, ac confirmati, ejusdemque auctoritate sub magno sigillo Angliae promulgati, per utramque provinciam, tam Cantuariensem quam Eboracensem diligenter observandi.

De ecclesia Anglicana.

I. Suprema in ecclesiam Anglicanam auctoritas regiae maiestati asserenda.

PROUT officii nostri ratione erga serenissimam maiestatem regiam obligamur, inprimis statuimus et ordinamus, ut archiepiscopus Cantuariensis pro tempore existens, omnes episcopi hujus provinciae, decani item, archidiaconi, rectores, vicarii, caeterique ex clero quicunque, tum ipsi fideliter custodiant ac observent, tum (quantum in ipsis est) ab aliis curent observari, et custodiri omnia et singula statuta, ac leges sancitas et constitutas, pro antiqua jurisdictione in statum ecclesiasticum hujus regni coronae restituenda, omnique extranea potestate, quae eidem repugnet, exterminanda. Porro etiam, ut omnes ecclesiasticae personae ad curam animarum constitutae, omnesque alii concionatores et theologici in quibuscunque ecclesiis praelectores (quantum ingenio, cognitione, ac doctrina valebunt) pure et sincere absque omni fuco aut dolo, singulis annis quater ad minimum publice in concionibus, aliisque homiliis, ac praelectionibus suis doceant, divulgent, enuncient, ac declarent, usurpatam omnem et peregrinam potestatem (utpote nullo jure divino nixam et fundatam) justissimis de causis sublatam esse et abolitam; et propterea nullam obedientiam aut subjectionem infra maiestatis suae regna et dominia hujusmodi extraneae potestati cuicunque ullatenus deberi: sed auctoritatem regiam infra regna sua Angliae, Scotiae, et Hiberniae, ac reliqua ipsius dominia et territoria proxime et secundum Deum primam esse et supremam, cui omnes earundem regionum tam incolae, quam indigenae fidem omnem, et obedientiam supra aliam quamcunque in terris potestatem lege divina tenentur exhibere.

II. Regii in ecclesiam Anglicanam primatus impugnatores coerciti.

Quicunque in posterum affirmabit, maiestatem regiam non habere eandem auctoritatem in causis ecclesiasticis, quam pii principes apud Judaeos, et christiani imperatores in primitiva ecclesia obtinuerunt, vel regalem ipsius in iisdem causis primatum, hujus regni coronae jamdiu vindicatum, ac legibus ejusdem regni in ea stabilitum, ullatenus laedere aut extenuare praesumpserit: excommunicetur ipso facto, non, nisi per archiepiscopum restituendus, idque postquam resipuerit, ac impios hosce errores publice revocarit.

III. Ecclesia Anglicana orthodoxa.

Quicunque in posterum affirmabit, ecclesiam Anglicanam, sub regia maiestate legibus stabilitam, non esse orthodoxam, et apostolicam ecclesiam, apostolorum videlicet doctrinam tradentem, et asruentem, excommunicetur ipso facto, non nisi per archiepiscopum restituendus, idque postquam resipuerit, ac impium hunc errorem publice revocarit.

IV. Divina cultus ratio in ecclesia Anglicana stabilita, pia et orthodoxa.

Quicunque in posterum affirmabit, liturgiae formam in ecclesia Anglicana legibus stabilitam, et in libro precum publicarum, ac administrationis sacramentorum comprehensam, corruptum, superstitiosum, aut illicitum esse Dei cultum, vel quicquam in se continere, quod Scripturarum canoni sit contrarium, excommunicetur ipso facto, non nisi per episcopum dioecesanum, vel archiepiscopum restituendus, idque postquam resipuerit, ac impium hunc errorum publice revocarit.

V. Doctrinae articuli in ecclesia Anglicana stabiliti, pii et orthodoxi.

Quicunque in posterum affirmabit, ullum ex triginta novem articulis, in quos consensum est ab archiepiscopis et episcopis utriusque provinciae, ac reliquo omni clero in synodo Londini habita anno Domini M.D.LXII. (ad tollendam utique opinionum varietatem, et consensum in causa fidei firmandum, et stabiliendam) ulla ex parte superstitiosos aut erroneos existere, vel omnino ejusmodi, ut in eorum veritatem salva conscientia subscribi nequeat, excommunicetur ipso facto, non nisi per archiepiscopum restituendus, idque postquam resipuerit, ac impios hos errores publice revocarit.

VI. Ceremoniarum in ecclesia Anglicana obtinentium usus, pius et licitus.

Quicunque in posterum affirmabit, ecclesiae Anglicanae ritus ac ceremonias legibus constitutas tutas, impias, antichristianas, aut superstitiosas esse, vel denique ejus generis, ut homines pii ac religiosi, quantumvis legitima auctoritate jussi, non possint integra conscientia eas approbare, aut observare, vel etiam (prout occasio tulerit) eisdem subscribere, excommunicetur ipso facto, nullatenus absolvendus, priusquam resipuerit, ac impios hos errores publice revocarit.

Quicumque in posterum affirmabit, ecclesiae Anglicanae sub regia maiestate regimen et disciplinam per archiepiscopos, episcopos, decanos, archidiaconos, et reliquos ad ejusdem gubernaculum constitutos, antichristianum esse, ac verbo divino contrarium, excommunicetur ipso facto, nullatenus absolvendus, priusquam resipuerit, ac impium hunc errorem publice revocarit.

Quicumque in posterum affirmabit, aut docebit, formam et ritum episcopos, presbyteros, et diaconos ordinandi, et inaugurandi quicquam in se continere, quod pugnet cum verbo divino, illosque omnes, quotquot ad eum modum episcopi, presbyteri, et diaconi ordinantur, non esse rite ordinatos, neque vel a seipsis vel ab aliis pro episcopis, presbyteris, aut diaconis habendos, priusquam ad sacra illa officia aliam ordinationem fuerint adepti: excommunicetur ipso facto, nullatenus absolvendus, priusquam resipuerit, ac impios hos errores publice revocarit.

Quicumque in posterum a sanctorum communione, qualiter in ecclesia Anglicana existet ex apostolorum regulis approbata, seipsum segregabunt, et novo fraternitatis cujusdam foedere consociati, christianos omnes, quotquot doctrinae, disciplinae, ritibus, ac ceremoniis ecclesiae Anglicanae se conformes exhibent, prophanos ducent, et indignos quibuscum in christiana professione communicent, excommunicentur ipso facto, non nisi per archiepiscopum restituendi, idque postquam resipuerint, ac impios hos errores publice revocarint.

X. Schismaticorum in ecclesia Anglicana fautores coerciti.

Quicumque in posterum affirmabunt, tum ministros illos, qui formae et modo divini cultus in ecclesia Anglicana constitutis, ac in libro publicae liturgiae praescriptis, recusant subscribere, tum eorum etiam sectatores alterius ecclesiae, quae non sit lege stabilita, nomen et titulum posse sibi merito assumere; itemque audebunt vulgo asseverare, praetensam hanc ipsorum ecclesiam jamdiu ingemuisse sub onere certorum gravaminum, sibi et membris suis supradictis impositorum per ecclesiam Anglicanam, ac decreta et sanctiones in eadem legibus stabilitas, excommunicentur ipso facto, nullatenus absolvendi, priusquam resipuerint, ac impios hos errores publice revocarint.

XI. Conventiculorum in ecclesia Anglicana propugnatores coerciti.

Quicumque in posterum affirmabit, aut tuebatur, ullos conventus, coetus, aut congregationes subditorum indigenarum infra hoc regnum existere, praeter eos, qui ex hujus regni legibus tenentur, et approbantur, qui verarum, et legitimarum ecclesiarum nomen possint sibi jure vindicare, excommunicetur, non nisi per archiepiscopum restituendus, idque postquam resipuerit, et impium hunc errorem publice revocarit.

XII. Ordinationum in conventiculis conditarum propugnatores coerciti.

Quicumque in posterum asseverabunt, licitum esse cuivis ministrorum aut laicorum ordini, vel eorum alterutris simul congregatis, canones, decreta, aut constitutiones de rebus ecclesiasticis citra regis auctoritatem condere; et eisdem regendos et gubernandos se subjiciunt, excommunicentur ipso facto, nullatenus absolvendi, priusquam resipuerint, et impios hos Anabaptisticos errores publice revocarint.

Omnes, cujuscunque conditionis aut status personae infra ecclesiam Anglicanam deinceps celebrabunt diem dominicum (vulgo diem Solis nuncupatum) caeterosque dies festivos, juxta regulam divinae voluntatis, et ecclesiae Anglicanae instituta hac in parte praescripta; nimirum in audiendo verbo Dei tam lecto, quam praedicato, in privatis publicisque precibus faciendis, in peccatis Deo confitendis, et eisdem emendandis, in charitate cum proximis (sicubi laesa fuerit) reconcilianda, in sacra communione corporis et sanguinis dominici frequentanda, in pauperibus juvandis, et aegrotis visitandis, piam omnem ac sobriam conversationem interim adhibentes.

XIV. Liturgiae publicae praescriptus canon diebus sacris observandus.

Liturgia publica distincte, et debita cum reverentia legetur, vel canetur in illis diebus, et eorum vigiliis, qui in libro precum publicarum sacri ac festivi designantur, horisque eorundem congruis, et usitatis, atque in eo potissimum ecclesiae cujusque loco, qui episcopo dioecesano, vel loci ordinario (ratione vel amplitudinis vel angustiae) commodissimus, ac ad populi aedificationem maxime opportunus videbitur. Singuli etiam ministri studiose observabunt instituta, ritus, et ceremonias omnes, quae in dicto libro praescribuntur, tam in sacris scripturis ris legendis, ac precibus recitandis, quam in administrandis sacramentis, absque ulla five materiae five formae additione, aut diminutione, respectu vel concionis, vel alterius causae cujuscunque.

XV. Litania diebus Mercurii et Veneris recitanda.

Litania a rectoribus, vicariis, ministris, five curatis in cathedralibus, collegiatis, et parochialibus ecclesiis ac capellis omnibus, eorumque loco aliquo conveniente pro arbitratu episcopi dioecesani, vel loci ordinarii recitabitur vel canetur illis temporibus, et sub ea forma, quae in libro publicae liturgiae praestituitur; ac (ut restrictius loquamur) singulis diebus Mercurii et Veneris (etiam si non fuerint festivi) minister ad horas divinis precibus consuetas in ecclesia aut capella praesto erit, ac populo per sonitum campanae convocato, litaniam in dicto libro praescriptam recitabit; cui singuli patrefamilias, qui praesertim infra dimidium milliare ab ecclesia habitant, vel ipsi debebunt interesse, vel unum saltem de familia sua mittere idoneum, qui ministro inter precandum assistat.

In omnibus utriusque academiae collegiis et aulis per integram liturgiam et sacrae coenae administrationem debite, et absque omni aut omissione, aut innovatione observari volumus ordinem, formam, ac ceremonias omnes, prout in dicto publicae liturgiae libro praescriptae inveniuntur.

In omnibus utriusque academiae collegiis et aulis praefecti ac socii, caeterique scholares et studiosi in ecclesiis et capellis suis per singulos dies dominicos et festivos, eorumque vigilias tempore divinorum superpelliciis (juxta ecclesiae Anglicanae mores ac instituta) utentur; quotquot vero gradum aliquem susceperint, caputia suo cujusque gradui competentia superpelliciis suis superinduent.

Cum divina peraguntur, vel eorum pars quaelibet, aequum est, ut condigna omnis reverentia adhibeatur: sic enim monet apostoli praeceptum illud, "Omnia decenter, et secundum ordinem fiant." Cui decentiae, atque ordini regulas hasce nostras sequentes consentaneas esse judicamus. Nullus in ecclesia vel capella inter rem divinam caput suum operiet, nisi ex causa infirmitatis, quo casu pileolo, aut rica utendum censemus. Omnes cujuscunque status aut conditionis personae humiliter in genua se inclinabunt, dum generalis confessio, litania, et reliquae preces recitantur; cum autem fidei symbolum recensetur, stabunt erecto corpore, juxta regulas in libro publicae liturgiae in eam par-tem praefinitas. Similiter etiam nomen Domini Jesu, quoties inter divinum cultum inciderit, congrua ac humili reverentia ab universis tum praesentibus excipietur, prout haecenus fieri consuevit; ut per externas hasce ceremonias et gestus testatam faciant internam ipsorum humilitatem, christianam constantiam, et debitam agnitionem, quod Dominus Jesus Christus, verus et aeternus Dei filius, unicus est mundi salvator, in quo solo omnes, misericordiae, gratiae, ac promissiones homini a Deo indultae, tam in praesentem vitam, quam futuram, integrae et in totum comprehenduntur. Nullus porro, cujuscunque tandem sexus, aetatis, aut conditionis fuerit, in ecclesia tempore divini cultus in aliud quicquam intendet, quam ut quiete auscultans audiat, observet, ac intelligat, quod a ministro legitur, praedicatur, aut administratur; eique confessionem, orationem dominicam, et symbolum recitanti, clara voce subserviat, aliaque in publicis precibus responsa subjiciat, quae in libro communis liturgiae praecipuntur. Nullus denique preces vel concionem ambulando, aut garriendo, seu alio quovismodo interpellabit, vel ex ecclesia ante easdem peractas, absque iusta, aut probabili causa egredietur.

Oeconomi ecclesiarum, et inquisitores five assistentes personas otiosas non patientur in coemeterio, vel ecclesiae porticu tempore divini cultus aut concionis desidere, sed eos vel ecclesiam ingredi compellent, vel abscedere.

XX. Panis et vinum in sacrae coenae usum paranda.

Parochiarum omnium oeconomi (consulto hac in parte ministro) curabunt idoneam, pro numero communicantium, panis filiginei, vinique boni ac salubris quantitatem, in tempus sacrae coenae praestitutum, sumptibus parochianorum comparari; vinumque illud ad mensam Domini afferri in oenophoro nitido, et mundo, eoque ex stanno, si non ex metallo praestantiore.

XXI. Coenae trina perceptio quotannis indicta.

In omnibus hujus regni ecclesiis parochialibus, ac capellis, in quibus sacramenta sunt administranda, coenam dominicam a rectore, vicario, vel ministro toties, iisque temporibus celebrari volumus, ut parochiani singuli quotannis ter ad minimum (nominatim vero in festo Paschatis) sicut in libro publicae liturgiae jubentur, possint sacramentum illud percipere. Provisio semper, ut minister quilibet sacram illam coenam administraturus, ipse semper primus communice. Insuper siquid panis aut vini inter coenae administrationem afferri contigerit, illud ad sacramenti usum vetamus adhiberi, priusquam, eodem in mensa Domini appposito, institutionis verba fuerint recitata. Porro etiam ordinamus, ut administrans panem et vinum singulis communicantibus separatim et per vices distribuat.

Cum laicorum quisque ad sacrae coenae communionem ter quotannis obligetur, multique nihilominus vix semel communicent; ministris omnibus praeceptum volumus, ut quotiescunque sacramentum illud celebrare voluerint, parochianis suis solenniter in ecclesia inter preces matutinas, idque praecedente die dominico (quo melius veniant praeparati) id denunciare non omittant; quas utique monitiones parochiani vicissim suscipere, ac eisdem parere sub periculo et poena legis tenebuntur.

In omnibus utriusque academiae collegiis et aulis praefecti et focii, qui praesertim pupillos habent, sedulo prospicient, ut ipsorum pupilli omnes, et reliqui, qui inter eos agunt, universi recte et pie educantur, ac in articulis religionis penitus instituantur, publicamque liturgiam et conciones diligenter frequentent, quinetiam sacram coenam jugiter percipiant, quam primo quoque vel secundo cujuslibet mensis die dominico in eisdem collegiis et aulis administrandam decernimus; volumusque ut singuli eorundem praefecti, focii, scholares, reliquique studiosi, ac officarii, et illorum quilibet famuli ac ministri unoquoque anno quater ad minimum ejusdem sint participes, idque in genua reverenter (ut par est) inclinati, juxta ritum in libro publicae liturgiae ea in parte praestitutum.

Per cathedrales omnes et collegiatas ecclesias sacram coenam in festis solennibus administrari volumus, nonnunquam per episcopum, siquidem praefens extiterit, nonnunquam vero per decanum, quandoque etiam per canonicum vel praebendarium (ministrum ibidem maxime eminentem) eundemque decente cappa amictum, ac adjutum ab evangelii et epistolae lectoribus, juxta admonitiones in septimo Elizabethae promulgatas, idque iis horis, et cum illa prorsus limitatione, quae in libro publicae liturgiae praefiniuntur. Provisio semper, ut nulla ejusmodi limitatio admittatur, cujusvis tandem interpretationis praetextu, quominus singuli decani, guardiani, magistri, sive praefecti cathedralis cujusque et collegiatae ecclesiae, et cuncti etiam earundem praebendarii, canonici, vicarii, minores canonici, cantores, reliquique de ecclesiae gremio universi, si non frequentius, saltem quater omni anno sacramentum percipiant.

XXV. Superpelliciorum et epomidum usus, coena non administrata, in ecclesiis cathedralibus indictus.

In cathedralibus et collegiatis ecclesiis, cessante coena dominica, satis erit tempore divi-norum superpelliciis duntaxat uti; nisi quod ecclesiarum collegiatarum decani, magistri, et praefecti, itemque canonici, ac praebendarii (dummodo graduati) cum superpelliciis caputia gradibus suis respective congrua inter rem divinam gerere tenebuntur.

Nullus ministrorum ex grege aut cura sua quemquam ad sacrae coenae communionem ullo pacto admittet, qui manifeste notus erit in infami peccato impenitenter vivere, nec qui cum proximis suis malitiose et aperte contenderit, nisi reconciliatio intercesserit; neque etiam ecclesiarum oeconomos aut assistentes ullos, qui cum juramentum susceperint pro omnibus iis delictis notoriis, de quibus particulatim iussu erunt infra suas respective parochias inquirere, bis quolibet anno ad ordinarium suum deferendis, non verenter tamen, spreta juramenti sui religione (cujus alioqui fidelis executio potissima ratio existit, per quam publica peccata, et scandala rescindi possint, et coerceri) etiam volentes et scientes in perjurii crimen perditae, ac nefarie incurrere, dum vel negligunt, vel recusant ex praedictis criminibus, et delictis notoriis aliqua detegere, quae sciunt infra parochias suas esse perpetrata, vel congregationem saltem insigniter gravare, ac offendere; licet iidem vel a vicinis, vel a ministro, vel etiam ab ipso ordinario admoniti subinde fuerint, ut conscientias suas, dicta crimina praesentando, exonerarent, neque se vellent in horrendum illud perjurii scelus ausu tam nefario praecipitare.

Ministri, cum coenam Domini administrant, neminem scienter ejusdem facient participem, qui in genua non fuerit inclinatus, sub poena suspensionis. Simili etiam poena prohibemus, ne alicui eandem distribuant, qui publicae liturgiae (juxta ecclesiae Anglicanae instituta) recusat interesse; vel qui librum publicarum precum ac sacramenta administrandi, ritusve et ceremonias quaslibet in eodem praescriptas, aut quicquam sive in articulis, qui in synodo, Anno M.D.LXII. conclusi sunt, sive in libro de ordinatione presbyterorum, et episcoporum comprehensum frequenter et notorie calumniatur; vel qui majestatis suae supremam in causis ecclesiasticis auctoritatem ullo dicto audet convellere, aut laedere; nisi singuli taliter delinquentes coram ministro, praesentibus una oeconomicis, delicti sui poenitentiam professi, viva voce prius sponderint, si nesciant scribere, se deinceps in eo genere nequaquam peccaturos, vel, si norint scribere, sub chirographo suo idem promiserint: quod eorum chirographum minister accipiens, ad episcopum dioecesanum, vel loci ordinarium quamprimum transmittet. Provisio semper, quod ministrorum quilibet, qui a sacra coena aliquem arcebit (prout in praesente, vel in superiore canone constitutum habetur) ad partis querelam, vel ordinarii re-

quisitionem, talis facti sui rationem dicto ordinario reddet, atque ejusdem in ea parte beneplacito et mandato acquiescet.

OEconomi et inquisitores, sive assistentes (non minus quam ministri) attente observabunt, num omnes et singuli ex parochia sua toties ad sacrae coenae communionem annuatim accedant, quoties hujus legibus ac regni, nostris etiam constitutionibus jubentur: ac ulterius numqui extranei frequentius et usitatus a parochiis alienis ad ecclesiam suam conveniant; eosque (siqui erunt) ministro suo indicabunt, ne forte ad mensam Domini inter caeteros recipiantur; quod ii omnimodo prohibebunt, dictosque extraneos ad proprias parochiae suae ecclesias ac ministros dimittent, ut illic cum vicinis suis una communent.

Parentes liberorum suorum baptismati interesse non impellentur, neque eisdem etiam permittetur, pro propriis infantibus ad sacrum fontem susceptorum loco respondere. Praeterea nulli susceptori, aut susceptrici licitum erit, aliis verbis in respondendo uti, quam quae in libro publicae liturgiae hanc in partem sunt praescripta; nec quisquam ad officium susceptoris vel susceptricis pro parvulis baptizandis, vel confirmandis admittetur, qui coenae dominicae particeps nondum extiterit.

Dolemus, praeclarissimum majestatis suae studium et laborem in colloquio ad aulam Hamptoniensem circa signum crucis in baptismo (inter alia plurima) susceptum, non meliores effectus apud multos consecutum, quin adhuc in eo haereatur, ejusque in baptismo usus tantopere impugnetur. Itaque quo melius constare possit legitima hujus ceremoniae ratio, simulque ut omnis scrupulus deinceps amoveatur, qui hominum vere religiosorum conscientias perturbare quoquo modo possit, nos in hac causa inclutissimi regis nostri vestigiis insistentes, ut qui scripturae auctoritate, et primitivae ecclesiae exemplo in eadem ducitur, regulas ac observationes hasce nostris sinceris omnibus ecclesiae Anglicanae membris commendamus.

Primo observandum est, quod etiamsi Judaei, ac Ethnici apostolos reliquosque christianos irrideret, quod eum praedicarent, in eumque crederent, qui crucis morte esset affectus; tantum tamen aberat, ut vel apostoli, vel reliqui christiani crucis opprobrio seipsos passi sint a professione sua deterreri, ut in eadem exultandi potius, et gloriandi animos inde fumerent.

Imo Spiritus Sanctus per apostolorum ora ipsum crucis nomen (Judaeis utique invisum) usque adeo honoravit, ut non modo Christum ipsum crucifixum sub eodem comprehenderet, sed et mortis ac passionis Christi vires, effectus, ac merita, una cum solatiis, fructibus ac promissis universis, quae nos ex eisdem aut percipimus, aut in futurum expectamus.

Secundo, honor ac dignitas crucis nomini acquisita, etiam et signo crucis, vel ipsa apostolorum aetate (neque enim contrarium ostendi potest) existimationem peperit honorificam; adeo ut christiani haud multo post in cunctis actionibus suis eodem uti coeperint, eo ipso palam et aperte testatum facientes (etiam ad stuporem Judaeorum) se minime sibi pudori ducere, quod illum agnoscerent pro Domino et salvatore suo, qui crucis mortem pro ipsis pertulisset. Atque hoc crucis signum non modo ipsi, idque cum ostentatione quadam solebant adhibere, quoties Judaeis passim occurrerent; sed et liberos suos, cum baptismatis aqua abluerentur, eodem signari faciebant, ut eos per crucis symbolum illius servitio dedicarent, cujus in baptismo collata in ipsos beneficia, crucis nomine essent repraesentata; atque adeo hujus signi in baptismo usus in primaeva ecclesia receptus est unanimi consensu, maximoque omnium tam Graecorum, quam Latinorum applausu. Quo quidem seculo si quis huic signo se opposuisset, declaratus proculdubio fuisset pro hoste ac inimico nominis crucis, et proinde meritorum Christi, quorum illi tessera et signum adeo displiceret. Denique hujus signi usum continuum et generalem extitisse, ex multis patrum testimoniis perspicue declaratur.

Tertio fatendum est, crucis signum decursu temporis in ecclesia Romana graves abusus pertulisse, praesertim postquam eam papismi labes ac corruptela semel pervaserat. Caeterum rei abusus legitimum ejusdem usum nequaquam tollit. Imo tantum aberat, ut ecclesia Anglicana ab Italiae, Galliae, Hispaniae, Germaniae, aliisve similibus ecclesiis voluerit per omnia recedere, quicquid eas sciret tenere, aut observare, ut (quod ecclesiae Anglicanae apologia profitetur) ceremonias illas cum reverentia susciperet, quas citra ecclesiae incommodum, ac hominum sobriorum offensionem retineri posse senserat; et in iis tantum articulis a praedictis ecclesiis dissentiret, in quibus eaedam ipsae tum a pristina sua integritate prius desciverant, tum etiam ab ecclesiis apostolicis, a quibus primum sunt profeminatae. Quo quidem respectu, inter alias magnae vetustatis ceremonias, etiam et crucis in baptismo signum in ecclesia Anglicana est retentum, idque ex judicio et praxi venerabilium illorum patrum, magnorumque inprimis theologorum, qui regnante Edovardo sexto, in eadem claruerunt; quorum alii deinceps ob verae fidei professionem martyrium constanter pertulerunt, alii reginae Mariae temporibus exulantes, ac sub initium regni serenissimae reginae nuper defunctae in Angliam reversi, pro hoc signo semper steterunt, ejusque usum exemplo, ac praxi sua perpetuo commendarunt. Atque hoc ecclesiae nostrae judicium et praxis comprobata sunt tum per censuram, quae de libro publicae liturgiae tempore Edovardi sexti ferebatur, tum etiam per confessionum harmoniam recentioribus annis publicatam; quoniam

nimirum hujus signi in baptismo usus in ecclesia Anglicana congruis omnibus ac idoneis cautelis et exceptionibus contra papisticam superstitionem atque errorem munitus semper fuit, prout in ejusmodi casibus fieri convenit.

Primo enim ecclesia Anglicana jam inde a papismo abolito semper sensit ac docuit, et hodie etiam sentit ac docet, signum crucis in baptismo adhibitum de ipsius sacramenti substantia haudquaquam existere. Nam ut primum minister infantem immergens in aquam, vel ejusdem faciei aquam inspergens, haec verba recitaverit, Baptizo te in nomine Patris, et Filii, et Spiritus Sancti: infans continuo plenum et perfectum baptismi sacramentum consequitur, adeo ut signum crucis post adhibitum, ad baptismi virtutem aut perfectionem nihil adjiciat, nec idem omisum, de ejus efficacia, aut substantia quicquam detrahat.

Secundo palam est in libro publicae liturgiae, infantem, postquam baptismum susceperit (crucis utique signo nondum superveniente) in Christi gregem ac ecclesiam, tanquam perfectum ejus membrum receptum esse ipsius adeo baptismi virtute, non autem potestate aliqua, quae signo crucis affingitur. Ita ut propter ipsam crucis memoriam, quae apud omnes vere in Christum credentes plurimi semper fuit, et re-liquas etiam ob causas supradictas, ecclesia Anglicana ejus signum in baptizando usque retinendum censuerit, secuta nimirum ea in re primitivas et apostolicas ecclesias, atque hunc characterem pro licita externa ceremonia reputans et symbolo honorifico, per quod infans illius obsequio, qui crucis mortem subiit, in perpetuum votus esset et mancipatus; id quod ex verbis in libro publicae liturgiae expressis, facillime potest perspicui.

Postremo, quum usus signi hujus in baptismo in ecclesia Anglicana purgatus sit ab omni papistica superstitione ac errore, et in primariam institutionem vindicatus; nos freti orthodoxis iis doctrinae regulis de rebus mediis et adiaphoris, quas divino canoni, ac patrum antiquorum concordia sententiae judicamus esse, consentaneas, privati cujusque, tum ministri, tum alterius personae cujuscunque, statuimus esse verum ejusdem usum, publica auctoritate praescriptum, reverenter amplecti ac recipere; praesertim cum intelligant res, alioqui medias ac indifferentes, naturam suam aliquo modo mutare, postquam sub legitimi magistratus edictum, vel interdictum venerint, neque pro cujusque libitu praeter legem omittendas esse, cum praeciuntur, nec cum prohibentur, observandas.

Cum prisca sanctorum patrum auctoritas, apostolorum exemplo freta, in solenni ministrorum ordinatione preces ac jejunia celebranda praeceperit; iisdemque adeo precum et jejuniorum officiis stata quaedam tempora ex professo decreverit, in quibus duntaxat sacri ordines essent conferendi; nos sanctum et pium illorum institutum colentes, volumus et statuimus, ut nulli in posterum presbyteri aut diaconi ordinentur, nisi in diebus dominicis immediate sequentibus jejunia quatuor temporum, vulgo Septimanas Cinerum, ad preces et jejunia (idque hunc ipsum in usum) antiquitus institutas, atque in ecclesia Anglicana hodie continuatas. Quod utique fieri volumus in ecclesia cathedrali, vel parochiali, ubi episcopus commoratur, ac tempore divinorum, assistente non solum archidiacono, sed et decano, et duobus ad minus praebendariis, aut (illis legitime detentis) quatuor illis gravioribus personis, quae magistri artium ad minimum extiterint, et pro publicis concionatoribus legitime approbatae.

Cum ex patrum antiquorum sententia, et primitivae ecclesiae praxi diaconi officium ad ministerii dignitatem gradus quidam sit constitutus; statuimus et ordinamus, ut nullus deinceps episcopus aliquam cujusvis conditionis personam (quibuscunque tandem animi dotibus commendatam) uno et eodem die diaconum et presbyterum constituat; quin ut ritus ea in parte praescriptus in libro de episcopis, presbyteris, et diaconis ordinandis, et inaugurandis, stricte observetur; non quo diaconos omnes presbyterii aditu per annum integrum prohibeamus, cum tamen episcopus justam ejus admittendi causam alioqui invenerit, verum ut cum quatuor tempora diaconorum et presbyterorum ordinationi in singulos annos sint decreta, aliquid saltem spatii detur, ad periculum de singulis faciendum, quales in officio diaconi se exhibuerint, priusquam in ordinem presbyterorum suscipiantur.

Multis jam olim patrum decretis cautum est, ne quem liceret diaconum, vel presbyterum ordinari, nisi quem constaret, certum aliquem et designatum muneris sui exercendi locum per id tempus obtinere; quorum nos auctoritatem secuti, statuimus et ordinamus, ne quis deinceps in sacros ordines admittatur, nisi qui eodem tempore praesentationem sui ipsius ad promotionem aliquam ecclesiasticam infra dioecesin illius episcopi, a quo manuum impositionem petit, tunc vacantem exhibuerit; vel verum et indubitatum certificatorium attulerit, sive de ecclesia aliqua infra dioecesin seu jurisdictionem dicti episcopi, cujus cura fungi possit, sive de loco diaconi vel presbyteri in cathedrali aut collegiata aliqua ecclesia, infra eandem dioecesin vacante, in quo functionem suam exerceat; vel nisi fidem fecerit, se esse actu socium, aut jura socii obtinere, vel designatum esse conductitium sive capellanum in aliquo collegio Cantabrigienfi aut Oxoniensi, vel etiam ad magistri gradum ante quinquennium proventum, suis ibidem sumptibus degere; vel nisi ab episcopo ipsum ordinante, in beneficium sive ad exercendam aliquam curam, tunc etiam vacantem, bre-vi post sit admittendus. Si quis vero episcopus in sacros ordines quemquam asciverit, qui praedictorum aliquo titulo non sit praeditus, tunc omnia illi necessaria eatenus subministrabit, donec eidem de aliqua ecclesia prospexerit. Quod si facere recusaverit, per archiepiscopum, uno praeterea episcopo assidente, ab ordinatione diaconorum et presbyterorum per integrum annum suspendetur.

Nullus episcopus in sacros ordines quemquam de caetero cooptabit, qui non ex sua ipsius dioecesi fuerit, nisi vel ex altera nostratium academiarum prodierit; vel nisi literas, quas vocant dimissorias, attulerit ab episcopo, de cujus jurisdictione existit; et, si diaconus fieri expetit, vicesimum tertium, si presbyter, vicesimum quartum aetatis suae annum jam compleverit, ac etiam in altera dictarum academiarum gradum aliquem scholasticum susceperit; vel saltem nisi rationem fidei suae, juxta articulos religionis in synodo episcoporum et cleri ann. M.D.LXII. approbatos, Latino sermone reddere possit, et eandem scripturae testimoniis corroborare; ac ulterius de vita sua laudabili, et morum integritate literas testimoniales exhibuerit sub sigillo alicujus collegii Cantabrigiensis aut Oxoniensis, ubi antea moram fecerit, vel cert trium aut quatuor gravium ministrorum, una cum subscriptione et testimonio aliorum probabilium et fide dignorum hominum, quibus ejusdem vita et mores per proximum triennium fuerint explorati.

Episcopus, priusquam cuilibet ordinando manus imponat, diligenti eum examine excutiet ac explorabit, praesentibus eisdem ministris, quos velit in impositione manuum sibi assistere. Quod si episcopus legitime impeditus praedicto examini vacare nequeat, illud tamen a praefatis ministris sollicitè fieri procurabit. Provisò semper, ut qui episcopo in dicta examinatione, et manuum impositione adesse debeant, de ipsius cathedrali ecclesia existant (siquidem eorum facultas dabitur) alioqui tres ad minus idonei concionatores ex eadem dioecesi adsciscantur. Quod si quis episcopus vel suffraganeus in sacros ordines quempiam sine praedictis qualitatibus, aut justo (ut supra) examine cooptarit, per provinciae suae archiepiscopum ea de re certiore factum, assidente uno alio episcopo, ab omni ordines conferendi potestate in integrum biennium secludetur.

Nemo ad sacros ordines, vel ecclesiasticum aliquod beneficium per institutionem aut collationem, vel ad concionatoris, praelectoris, aut catechistae munus exercendum sive in alterutra academia, sive in cathedrali vel collegiata aliqua ecclesia, sive in urbe aut oppido mercatorio, sive in parochiali ecclesia vel capella, vel aliò denique hujus regni loco deinceps admittetur, nisi prius vel ab archiepiscopo, vel episcopo ejus dioeceseos, in qua est victurus, vel ab altera academiarum licentiam et facultatem earundem subscriptionibus, et sigillis munitam impetraverit, tribusque sequentibus articulis, modo et forma a nobis praefinitis, subscripserit.

I. Quod majestas regia secundum Deum unicus est et supremus gubernator hujus regni, omniumque aliorum ipsius dominiorum ac territoriorum, tam in omnibus spiritualibus sive ecclesiasticis rebus aut causis, quam in secularibus; et quod nullus extraneus princeps, vel persona, nec ullus praelatus, status, aut dominatus habet aut habere debet ullam jurisdictionem, potestatem, superioritatem, praeminentiam, vel auctoritatem ecclesiasticam sive spirituales infra majestatis suae dicta regna, dominia, et territoria.

II. Quod liber publicae liturgiae, et episcopos, presbyteros, et diaconos ordinandi et consecrandi, nihil in se contineat, quod verbo Dei sit contrarium, quodque eodem taliter uti liceat; et quod ipse in publicis precibus, et sacramentis administrandis illam prorsus formam, quae in dicto libro praescribitur, et non aliam sit observaturus.

III. Quod libro de religionis articulis, in quos consensus est ab archiepiscopis, et episcopis utriusque provinciae, ac reliquo omni clero in synodo Londinensi an. M.D.LXII. omnino comprobatur; et quod omnes ac singulos articulos in eodem contentos, qui triginta novem, citra ratificationem, numerantur, verbo Dei consentaneos esse agnoscit.

Hisce tribus articulis qui volet subscribere, ad vitandam omnem ambiguitatem, hac verborum formula, nomine et cognomine suo expressis, in subscribendo utetur: "Ego N. N. tribus his praefixis articulis, omnibusque in eisdem contentis, lubens et ex animo subscribo." Quod si quis episcopus aliquem ordinaverit, admisserit, vel facultate, aut licentia, ut superius dictum est, ulla donaverit, nisi prius sub modo et forma praestitutis subscripserit; is a collatione ordinum, et licentiarum ad concionandum per anni spatium submovebitur. Academias vero, si quid hac in parte deliquerint, juris ultioni, et regiae censurae relinquimus.

Si quis concionandi, legendi, praelegendi, vel catechizandi legitima alioqui potestate praeditus (ut supra) in ullam dioecesin ibidem commoraturus devenerit, is ad hujusmodi munera exercenda, vel ad sacramenta celebranda, aut quamlibet ecclesiasticam functionem illic obeundam nullatenus admittetur, a quocunque tandem dictam potestatem acceperit, nisi prius coram episcopo ejusdem dioeceseos, in qua munerum praefatorum aliquo fungi debeat, in supradictos articulos per manus suae subscriptionem consenserit.

Siquis minister, postquam praefatis articulis subscripserit, liturgiae formula, vel ritibus et ceremoniis quibuscunque in libro precum publicarum indictis, uti deinceps omiserit, suspensionis poena coerceatur, ac nisi post mensem se emendarit ac submiserit, excommunicetur; quodsi per alium adhuc mensem in contumacia permanferit, a ministerio sacro amoveatur.

Nullus episcopus ministrum quemvis ab alio episcopo ordinatum, in beneficium aliquod de caetero instituet, nisi qui literas ordinationis suae eidem ostenderit, et de morum honestate, vitaeque probabili congruum testimonium, episcopo id postulante, exhibuerit; ac nisi debite examinatus, ministerio suo dignus inventus fuerit.

Ad detestabile simoniae peccatum coercendum (quoniam spiritualium, et ecclesiasticarum functionum, officiorum, promotionum, dignitatum, et beneficiorum nundinatio in Dei conspectu odiosa est, et execranda) statuimus et ordinamus, ut archiepiscopus, omnesque et singuli episcopi, atque alii, quibuscunque jus competit admittendi, instituendi, conferendi, consecrandi, vel electionem confirmandi cujusvis archiepiscopi, episcopi, vel alterius personae ad ecclesiasticam aliquam functionem, dignitatem, promotionem, titulum, officium, jurisdictionem, locum, aut beneficium cum cura, vel sine cura, vel ad ecclesiasticum ullum munus quodcunque, ante omnem ejusmodi institutionem, collationem, consecrationem, vel confirmationem electionis respective faciendam, unumquemque deinceps admittendum, instituendum, conferendum, inaugurandum, aut confirmandum in vel ad archiepiscopatum, episcopatum, vel aliam spiritualesive ecclesiasticam functionem, dignitatem, promotionem, titulum, officium, jurisdictionem, locum, aut beneficium cum cura, vel sine cura, vel ad ecclesiasticum ullum munus quodcunque, praesenti juramento oneret (quod utique per omnes, quorum intererit, in propriis personis, et non per procuratorem erit praestandum) sub modo et forma sequentibus: "Ego N. N. juro, me nullam simoniacam solutionem, stipulationem, vel promissum directe aut indirecte per me, vel per alium quemlibet (me conficio, aut consentiente) cuivis personae vel personis quibuscunque fecisse, pro vel de procuratione, vel acquisitione ecclesiasticae hujus dignitatis, loci, promotionis, officii, vel beneficii (exprimendo respective et nominatim locum illum, in quem admittendus, instituendus, conferendus, installandus, aut confirmandus erit) neque deinceps ullam ejusmodi solutionem, stipulationem, vel promissum absque mea notitia aut consensu factum, quovis tempore praestitutum. Ita me Deus adjuvet per Christum Jesum.

Nemini in posterum facultas five dispensatio concedetur de pluribus beneficiis curatis simul retinendis, nisi tali duntaxat, qui pro eruditione sua dignior, et ad officium suum plenius praestandum habilis et idoneus censebitur; nimirum qui ad gradum magisterii ad minus in altera nostratium academiarum promotus fuerit, publicusque ac idoneus concionator, idemque legitime approbatus extiterit. Proviso semper, ut sufficienti cautione obstrictus teneatur, de personali sua residentia in singulis beneficiis per bonam anni cujusquam partem faciendam; ac ut ejusmodi beneficia non amplius triginta milliarum spatio abinvicem distent; et denique, ut in eo beneficio, in quo non residebit, concionatorem rite approbatum retineat, qui populum utiliter docere ac informare possit.

Quilibet decanus, praefectus, guardianus, vel rector primarius cujusquam ecclesiae cathedralis, vel collegiatae nonaginta dies ad minus in singulis annis conjunctim vel divisim in dicta cathedrali, vel collegiata ecclesia residebit, verbi divini praedicationi incumbens, et hospitalitatem interim exercens; nisi alias gravibus et urgentibus causis, iisque per episcopum dioecesanum, approbandis detentus fuerit, vel legitima aliqua ratione aliter dispensatus. Quamdiu autem illic moram fecerit, ipse cum reliquis pariter canonicis, vel praebendariis residentibus invigilabunt, ut ecclesiae suae statuta, et laudabiles consuetudines (modo verbo Dei, et praerogativae regiae non repugnent) necnon universa hujus regni statuta ad ecclesiasticum ordinem spectantia, quae in suo robore adhuc perdurant, omnesque aliae constitutiones regia auctoritate hactenus editae et stabilitae, et si quae per episcopum dioecesanum, juxta statuta et consuetudines ejusdem ecclesiae, ac leges ecclesiasticas hujus regni, in visitatione sua legitime praescribentur, inviolate custodiantur; ac ut minores canonici, vicarii chorales, aliique ecclesiae suae ministri ad sacrarum literarum studium compellantur, et eorum unusquisque Novum Testamentum non solum sermone vernaculo, sed et Latino penes se habeat.

Cujusque ecclesiae cathedralis decanus, praefectus, guardianus, vel rector principalis, ac praebendarii, item et canonici non modo in ejusmodi ecclesiis suis, idque in propriis personis, toties concionabuntur, quoties lege, statuto, ordinatione, et consuetudine ad id tenentur; sed in aliis etiam ecclesiis ejusdem dioeceseos, in qua resident, ac in iis praecipue locis, unde vel ipsi, vel ipsorum ecclesiae vectigal aliquod, five fructus annuos percipiunt. Quodsi ipsi vel aegritudine, vel justa aliqua causa impediti abfuerint, abfuerint, tum concionatores sufficienti auctoritate approbatos sua vice substituent, quales episcopus dioecesanus ad concionandum in ecclesia cathedrali idoneos judicabit. Secus si quis vices suas, prout dictum est, supplere quoquomodo omiserit, per episcopum, vel eos, ad quos ejus ecclesiae jurisdictio pertinebit, pro delicti merito, punietur.

XLIV. Praebendarii beneficiati ad congruam in beneficiis suis residentiam tenentur.

Nullus ecclesiae cathedralis aut collegiatae praebendarius, vel canonicus, qui unum vel plura beneficia curata obtinet, nec in sua ecclesia cathedrali aut collegiata residentiarius existit, a beneficiis suis curatis (praetextu praebendae suae) ultra tempus unius mensis aliquo anno aberit, nisi ex urgente causa, et pro certo tempore per episcopum dioecesanum approbandis. Qui autem ex dictis canonicis et praebendariis per ecclesiae suae cathedralis aut collegiatae ordinationes ad necessariam in eisdem residentiam, tenentur, ii inter se anni tempora ita partientur, pro residentia in dictis ecclesiis facienda, ut semper eorum aliqui personaliter illic resideant; omnesque, quotquot in praesenti sunt, aut de caetero futuri sunt residentiarii in ulla cathedrali aut collegiata ecclesia, post exactum residentiae suae terminum, per statuta localia, aut consuetudinem ecclesiae suae definitum, ad beneficia sua, vel unum ex iis, aut saltem ad aliam aliquam curam, in qua ipsorum praesentia lege requiritur, quamprimum convolabunt, ut debitis illic officiis perfungantur, juxta leges in ea parte constitutas, quas episcopus dioecesanus curabit executioni mandari.

Singuli beneficiati in beneficiis suis residentes, dummodo sint legitima auctoritate ad concionandum admissi, per singulos dies dominicos, justo impedimento cessante, in ecclesiis aut capellis suis, vel vicinarum aliqua ministro concionatore destituta (ubi maxime facultas datur) concionem ad populum habebunt unam, in qua sobrie, et sincere verbum veritatis dividunt in Dei gloriam, et salutarem populi aedificationem.

XLVI. Beneficiati non concionatores vicariam concionatoris operam jubentur singulis mensibus adhibere.

Omnis beneficiatus ad concionandum non admissus, concionem singulis mensibus unam ad minus in ecclesia sibi credita, per concionatorem legitime approbatum, haberi procurabit, si tamen beneficii valor ordinarii judicio id ferre posse videbitur; omni autem die dominico, cum in ipsius ecclesia deficiet concio, dictus beneficiatus aliquam ex homiliis, publica auctoritate praescriptis aut praescribendis, per se vel certe per curatum suum recitabit.

Quilibet beneficiatus, cui propter necessitatem officii alias incumbentis dispensatio de non residendo in beneficio suo per hujus regni leges est indulta, per curatum, qui concionator sit idoneus, et sufficienti auctoritate approbatus, curae suae prospiciet, modo beneficii valor non repugnet. Caeterum qui duobus simul beneficiis perfruitur, is in illo beneficio, in quo ipse non residet, concionatorem legitimum retinebit, nisi ipsum constiterit in utroque jugiter concionari.

Nulli curato aut ministro permittetur ullibi curae animarum inservire, nisi prius per episcopum dioecesanum, vel loci ordinarium episcopali jurisdictione praeditum examinatus ac admissus fuerit, ejusque rei testimonium manu episcopi et sigillo consignatum obtinuerit; habito semper respectu tum ad curae ipsius magnitudinem, tum ad personae admittendae habilitatem. Quinetiam dicti curati et ministri, siquando ex una dioecesi in alteram transferint, nequaquam ad curam ullam exercendam admittentur, nisi episcopi ejus dioeceseos, unde advenierint, vel loci ordinarii (ut supra) literis testimonialibus de ipsorum honesta conversatione, sufficientia, et conformitate ad ecclesiasticas regni Anglicani leges muniti accesserint. Nec vero eorum cuilibet licitum erit, pluribus, uam uni ecclesiae aut capellae uno eodemque die ministrare, nisi forsan capella illa ecclesiae parochialis membrum existat, aut eidem unita, vel nisi ecclesia aut capella, cui taliter inserviet, judicio episcopi vel ordinarii (ut supra) curato alendo non suffecerit.

Nullus cujuscunque conditionis minister, non prius per episcopum dioecesanum examinatus et approbatus, aut pro sufficiente et idoneo concionatore, ut praedictum est, licentiatus, in sua ipsius cura vel alibi locum aliquem scripturae, aut doctrinae; sacrae exponere praesumat; sed solum apte et distincte sine glossis aut additamentis legere studebit homilias publica auctoritate haecenus editas, aut de caetero edendas, in verae fidei confirmationem, et populi instructionem atque aedificationem,

L. Conciatores adventitii absque legitima missione ad concionandum non admittendi.

Minister, oeconomi, alique ecclesiae officarii neminem patientur in suis ecclesiis aut capellis concionari, nisi qui licentiis suis ad praedicandum exhibitis, justa auctoritate (ut supra) in eam partem muniti comperientur.

LI. Advenae concionatores, nisi autentico testimonio commendati, ad concionandum in ecclesiis cathedralibus non admittendi.

Decani, praefecti, et residentiarii cathedralis et collegiatae ecclesiae cujuscunque nemini extraneo in suis ecclesiis concionandi potestatem facient, nisi qui ejusdem provinciae archiepiscopi scopi, aut episcopi dioecesani, vel alterutrius academiae approbatione suffultus venerit. Quod si quem contigerit in concione sua dogma aliquod in populum disseminare vel novum vel minus consonum verbo divino, ullive ex religionis articulis in synodo anno M.D.LXII. approbatis, aut etiam libro precum publicarum; decani aut residentiarii quam poterunt mature per literas suas, eorum manu subscriptas, qui dictam concionem audierint, episcopo dioecesano id intimabunt, quo is, quod ipsi videbitur, de eo statuat.

LII. Concionatorum advenarum nomina in librum referenda.

Ut episcopo (causa id postulante) constare possit, tum quae conciones in singulis ecclesiis suae dioeceseos habeantur, tum qui sine legitima auctoritate concionari praesumant; oeconomi ecclesiarum, eorumque assistentes librum quendam comparabunt, in quo unusquisque concionator, qui ad ipsorum ecclesiam aliunde accesserit, nomen suum inscribet, adjecto etiam die, in quo concionem ibidem habuerit, ac episcopi nomine, a quo concionandi potestatem acceperit.

Si quis concionator doctrinam ullam, ab alio concionatore in eadem vel vicina aliqua ecclesia traditam, particulariter aut nominatim ex professo impugnare, et pro concione refellere attentabit; priusquam episcopum dioecesanum, de ea certiore fecerit, et ejusdem mandatum acceperit, quam eo in casu rationem sequi debeat, cum alioqui ex publicis ejusmodi oppositionibus multum scandali et perturbationis populo oriri possit; oeconomi vel pars laesa absque omni mora dicto episcopo illud significabunt, neque praefatum concionatorem patientur illum locum, quo semel abusus sit, deinceps occupare, nisi sancte receperit se ab omni ejusmodi contentionis materia in ecclesia temperaturum, donec episcopus de ea re ulterius statuerit: qui item quamprimum commode poterit in ea taliter procedet, ut parti laesae in eadem ecclesia, in qua oblatum est scandalum, publice satisfiat. Proviso semper, ut si altera pars appellationem interposuerit, eidem concionandi officium, pendente lite, sit interdictum.

Si quis per archiepiscopum, aut episcopum ullum, vel alterutram academiam in praeteritum ad concionandum admissus, quovis deinceps tempore recusaverit legibus, institutis, et ritibus ecclesiasticis infra regnum Anglicanum stabilitis seipsum conformem reddere, eundem per episcopum dioecesanum, vel loci ordinarium quamprimum admoneri volumus, ut eorundem usui et debitae observationi se submittat. Quod si, tali admonitione praemissa, infra mensem se minime reformarit, ejusdem facultatem sive licentiam ad concionandum eo ipso irritam esse et pro nulla habendam decernimus.

Omnes concionatores et ministri in aditu cujusque suae concionis, lectionis, et homiliae populum hortabuntur, ut secum in precibus concurrat in hunc aut similem modum, idque (quantum licet) summaria brevitate: Precamini pro Christi sancta ecclesia catholica, id est, pro universo coetu christiani populi per orbem terrarum diffusi ac disseminati, specialiter vero pro ecclesiis Angliae, Scotiae, et Hiberniae; et in his praecipue pro excellentissima regia maiestate, clementissimo domino nostro Jacobo, Dei gratia Angliae, Scotiae, Franciae, et Hiberniae rege, fidei defensore, et super omnes personas in omnibus causis, tam ecclesiasticis, quam civilibus, infra regna et dominia sua supremo gubernatore. Precamini etiam pro serenissima regina Anna, nobilissimo principe Henrico, reliquaue regia sobole illustrissima. Precamini etiam pro ministris divini verbi, et sacramentorum, tam archiepiscopis et episcopis, quam caeteris pastoribus et curatis. Precamini etiam pro honoratissimis regiae maiestatis consiliariis, ac proceribus, et magistratibus hujus regni universis; ut hi omnes et singuli in sua quisque vocatione, ad Dei gloriam, populi aedificationem, et rectam administrationem officii suis diligenter, et fideliter perfungantur, memores reddendae olim rationis, cum ad Christi tribunal sistentur judicandi. Precamini etiam pro populo et plebe hujus regni universa, ut in vera fide, et sancto timore Dei, in humili erga regem obedientia, et fraterna erga seinvicem charitate vitam suam instituant. Postremo gratias et laudes Deo reddamus pro illis omnibus, qui in fide Christi ex hac vita excesserunt; humiliter Deo supplicantes, ut per illius gratiam vitam nostram ad pium eorum exemplar dirigamus, ut ita tandem hac mortali vita defuncti, resurgamus cum illis in die Jesu Christi ad caelestem gloriam, et vitam aeternam: semper cum oratione dominica concludentes.

Omnis minister in beneficio curato constitutus, licet praedicationi potissimum vacet, et curatum sub se retineat, qui reliqua ecclesiae officia ipsius vice exequatur; similiter etiam quilibet concionator stipendiarius, qui praelegendi, catechizandi, aut concionandi munus in aliqua ecclesia vel capella exercet, liturgiam publice recitabit duobus ad minus cujusque anni diebus dominicis, ad horas tum matutini, tum vespertini temporis consuetas et usitatas, atque ea in ecclesia, in qua beneficiatus est, vel praelectoris, catechistae, aut concionatoris munere fungitur; toties item sacramenta baptismi (si qui erunt baptizandi) et coenae dominicae quotannis ministrabit, modo et forma omnibusque iis ritibus et ceremoniis observatis, quae in libro publicae liturgiae in ea parte praescribuntur. Qui secus fecerit, si beneficio dotatus est (ut supra) poenam suspensionis incurret; stipendiarius vero, sive is lectoris, five catechistae, five demum concionatoris nomine censetur, per episcopum dioecesanum a munere submoveatur, donec se conformem praebuerit, ad omnia praefata officia sub modo et forma supradictis rite perficienda.

Cum multi a falsis doctoribus in errorem inducti, liberos suos nisi per ministrum concionatorem nolint baptizari, eodemque respectu ad sacram coenam, nisi per talem administratam, recusent accedere, ac si illorum sacramentorum virtus et efficacia a ministri in concionando facultate penderet; cum tamen integra tum baptismi, tum sacrae coenae doctrina, quae ad sacramentorum eorundem administrationem desideratur, in libro publicae liturgiae tam plene, et integre sit expressa, ut eidem nihil addi possit, quod solidum sit et necessarium; omnibus tali errore deceptis mandamus et praecipimus, ut protervam hanc ipforum pertinaciam de caetero deponant, ac ecclesiae institutis hac in parte obsequantur; cum quoad eorundem sacramentorum efficaciam nihil interfit, utrum a ministro non concionatore, an secus administrantur. Quod si qui deinceps hac in re deliquerint, parochiaeque suae ecclesias eo intuitu declinantes, in alienis vel sacram coenam susceperint, vel liberos, baptizari fecerint, neque mandato hoc nostro admoniti ab errore suo et illicita hac ratione destiterint; ad loci ordinarium per ministrum, oeconomicos, et inquisitores, vel assistentes parochiae suae deferantur, talibus censuris ecclesiasticis per eum castigandi, quales adeo obstinatae pervicaciae merito debentur: id est, si contumaces permanferint, primo suspensionis; si ultra mensem deinceps perseverarint, excommunicationis poena coerceantur. Pari ratione si quis rector, vicarius, vel curatus, post praesentium canonum promulgationem, quamlibet personam, quae non sit de sua ecclesia vel parochia, ad sacrae coenae communionem recipere, vel ex talium liberis aliquem baptizare praesumpserit, eosdem hac ratione in errore suo confirmans, is suspensionis poena eo ipso obstrictum se intelligat, a qua nequaquam absolvetur, priusquam sancte promiserit, se hac in parte de caetero nullatenus offensurum.

Ministrorum quilibet, dum vel publicas preces recitat, vel sacramenta administrat, aliove ecclesiae ritus peragit, decente et congruo superpellicio eoque manicato induetur, quod communibus parochianorum impensis comparabitur. Si qua autem controversia super ejusdem materia vel competente decentia oriatur, ordinarii discretio eandem terminabit. Quotquot vero ex ministris gradum aliquem in academia susceperint, ii inter sacra peragenda superpelliciiis suis adjicient et caputia, singulorum gradibus convenientia, quorum tamen usum ministris minime graduatis sub poena suspensionis interdiximus. Nihilominus et huic ministrorum classi loco caputiorum liripipia permittimus ex nigro

LIX. Catechizandi diligentia ministris injuncta.

Quilibet rector, vicarius, et curatus singulis diebus dominicis et festivis ante preces vespertinas, ad semihorae spatium vel amplius, juventutem, et plebem rudiores suae parochiae examinabit, et instituet in decalogo, symbolo apostolico, et oratione dominica; eosque diligenter audiet, instruet, et erudiet in catechismo, qui extat in libro precum publicarum: omnesque patres, et matresfamilias jubeunt liberos, ac famulos suos, qui dictum catechismum nondum tenent, tempore constituto ecclesiam adire, ut ministro diligenter et humiliter auscultent et obtemperent, donec eundem perdidicerint. Quod si quis minister in hoc officio negligens fuerit et remissus, re ad episcopum vel loci ordinarium delata, et debite intimata, primum acriter corripatur; si hic se submittens, deinceps tamen in eadem re volens deliquerit, suspensionis sententiam incurrat; si tertio offenderit, quandoquidem exigua spes restat illum hac in parte reformandi, excommunicationis censura, donec se correxerit, obstrictus usque teneatur. Simili modo si qui parentes, patres aut matresfamiliarum, vel eorum liberi, apprenticii, famulive officio suo hac in re defuerint; illi quidem non compellendo suos, ut veniant; hi vero, ne discant, recusando, per ordinarium suum, modo adulti sint, suspensione plectantur; et si per mensem sic perstiterint, excommunicentur.

LX. Confirmationis solennitas in trienniali episcoporum visitatione celebranda.

Cum solennis, antiqua, et laudabilis in ecclesia Dei consuetudo fuerit, ab ipsis usque apostolorum temporibus observata, ut episcopi quique parvulis baptizatis, et in catechismo christiana religionis instructis manus imponentes, super illis orarent ac benedicerent, quod vulgo confirmatio nominatur; cumque in trienniali episcoporum visitatione mos sanctissimi istius operis peragendi in ecclesia per multas aetates obtinuerit; volumus et ordinamus, ut quilibet episcopus vel ejus suffraganeus in consueta visitatione sua morem et ritum illum in propria persona diligenter observet; quod si tertio demum anno aliqua infirmitate impeditus visitationem suam personaliter obire nequeat, at saltem illud confirmationis munus illo proximo anno, prout commode poterit, nequaquam omittet.

Unusquisque minister curam habens animarum, quo melius instituta et ritus ad confirmationem spectantes, qui in libro publicae liturgiae praescripti habentur, debite possint conservari, diligenter providebit, ne ulli ad manuum impositionem episcopo sistantur, nisi qui fidei suae rationem norint reddere, juxta catechismum in libro praedicto contentum. Cumque episcopus huic officio celebrando tempus aliquod certum praefixerit, minister sedulam dabit operam, ut quam queat plurimos ad hoc instruat, ac inducat coram episcopo confirmandos comparare.

LXII. Ministri sine bannis rite indictis, vel legitime dispensatis matrimonium celebrare prohibiti.

Nullus minister, sub poena suspensionis per triennium ipso facto incurrendae, matrimonium inter ullas personas celebrabit, absque facultate seu licentia ab aliquo eorum, qui in hisce constitutionibus nostris inferius designantur, indulta et concessa; nisi banna matrimonialia per tres dies dominicos separatim fuerint denunciata, idque publice in ecclesiis parochialibus aut capellis, ubi partes praedictae commorantur, ac tempore divinorum, prout in libro publicae liturgiae habetur. Neque ullus minister, sub poena simili, inter quolibet personas, quantumvis ejusmodi facultatem seu indulgentiam habentes, quocunque praetextu matrimonium solennizabit vel tempore aliquo incongruo, sed duntaxat intra horas octavam et duodecimam antemeridianas; vel in loco privato, sed in ecclesiis tantummodo vel capellis, ubi partium altera commoratur, idque similiter tempore precum publicarum; vel omnino (etiamsi trina bannorum indictio praecesserit, nec ulla proinde dispensatio requiratur) priusquam parentes aut gubernatores contrahentium, si vicesimum primum aetatis suae annum non compleverint, consensum suum vel personaliter, vel per testimonium luculentum dicto ministro significarint.

LXIII. Ministri in locis exemptis sine bannorum iusta inductione, vel dispensatione legitima matrimonium celebrare prohibiti.

Quilibet minister, qui contra, atque in constitutionibus hisce nostris cautum est, inter personas quascunque matrimonium celebrabit, sub praetextu cujuslibet immunitatis, quae certis ecclesiis ac capellis arrogatur, per loci ordinarium, in quo sic offensum erit, triennali suspensione punietur; si quis autem minister ex loco, ubi sic deliquerit, ante latam contra ipsum suspensionis sententiam, se transtulerit; tunc per episcopum dioecesanum, vel ordinarium loci, in quo residet (ab altero ordinario, cujus jurisdictioni se subduxit, ea de re sub ipsius manu et sigillo certior factum) eadem omnino censura ferietur.

Rectores, vicarii, et curati omnes in sua cuiusque ecclesia singulis diebus dominicis, ad tempus in libro publicae liturgiae praestitutum, populo denunciabunt, si qui dies festivi, et vigiliae in sequentem septimanam sint institutae. Quodsi quis deinceps hac in re volens offenderit, et per ordinarium suum semel admonitus, officium illud secundo omiserit, debita juris animadversione puniatur, donec huic constitutioni adimplendae se submiserit.

LXV. Recusantes et excommunicati a ministris solenniter denunciandi.

Ordinarii locorum, infra suas respective jurisdictiones, solcite providebunt, ut tam excommunicati ex eo, quod divinis precibus infra hoc regnum Angliae publica auctoritate stabilitis, interesse pertinaciter recusaverint, quam ii etiam, praecipue qui melioris notae et conditionis extiterint, legitimaque excommunicationis sententia propter insignem contumaciam, vel graviora aliqua crimina obstricti fuerint, nisi infra tres continuos menses post latam excommunicationis sententiam se emendaverint, et absolutionis gratiam fuerint consecuti, singulis ex mensibus sequentibus publice in ecclesia tum parochiali, tum etiam cathedrali dioeceseos, in qua habitant, die aliquo dominico, ac tempore divinorum pro excommunicatis per ministrum denuncientur; quo reliqui et ab eorum communione declinent, et procliviores reddantur ad breve de excommunicato capiendo procurandum, quo illos ad officium et debitam obedientiam reducant. Quinetiam registrarum cujuslibet curiae ecclesiasticae de praemissis omnibus et singulis, quolibet anno infra festa S. Michaelis, et natalis Domini, archiepiscopum hujus provinciae in scriptis facient certiorum.

Quilibet minister, cui concionandi facultas est, si quem papisticum recusantem, vel recusantes infra suam parochiam habuerit, dummodo per episcopum idoneus judicetur, sedulam illis subinde operam dabit, ut, si fieri possit, errantes in viam veritatis reducat. Quodsi is vel non concionator, vel non talis existat, tum concionatoris idonei operam subsidiariam, siquidem poterit, in eum finem procurabit. Quodsi non datur, episcopo dioecesano illud significabit, cujus erit non modo vicino alicui concionatori aut concionatoribus id laboris imponere, sed et ipsum (quantum per arduas occupationes licuerit) summo studio contendere, ut docendo, persuadendo, modisque blandis et benignis omnibus tum dictos recusantes, tum omnes infra suam dioecesin sic affectos a suis erroribus deducat.

In omni parochia cum aliquis ex morbo decumbens, in periculo mortis videtur constitutus, minister ea de re certior factus eundem visitabit, nisi exploratum sit, vel probabiliter suspectum, morbum esse contagiosum, ut animam ejus in hoc adverso ipsius statu saluari doctrina, et consolatione erigat, idque sub forma in libro publicae liturgiae concepta; si non sit concionator, alias prout ipsi maxime videbitur expedire. Morte vero jam ingruente, aliqua campana pulsabitur, neque minister supremo officio suo hac in parte deerit. Cum autem expiraverit, si utique expirare eum contingat, campana per breve tantummodo spatium utrinque pulsabitur: quod idem tam ante, quam post sepulturam observandum decernimus.

Nullus minister aut renuet, aut detrectabit infantem ullum, qui die quovis dominico aut festivo ad ipsum in ecclesiam baptizandus adducetur, juxta ritum in libro precum publicarum editum editum baptizare; vel defunctum aliquem, qui in ecclesiam vel coemeterium inhumandi causa deferetur, data prius ejus rei notitia competente, sub modo et forma in dicto libro praefinitis sepelire. Quodsi hunc vel illum baptizare, aut sepulturae tradere recusaverit (nisi forte defunctus denunciatus fuerit majoris excommunicationis vinculo propter grave aliquod et infigne crimen obstrictus, neque de ejus poenitentia testari quisquam potuerit) a ministerio suo per episcopum dioecesanum trimestri spatio secludetur.

LXIX. Ministri baptismum in articulo necessitatis differre vetiti.

Si quis minister de infirmitate, aut mortis periculo, infanti cuilibet infra suam parochiam nondum baptizato imminente, debite et citra fraudem commonefactus, et ad locum, ubi dictus infans existet, ejus baptizandi causa rogatus accedere, vel plane recusaverit, vel per contumaciam, aut latam negligentiam tempus ita produxerit, ut cum tempestive posset dictum locum adiisse, et infantem praefatum baptizasse, is tamen ejusdem culpa expers baptismi moriatur; dictus minister trimestri suspensioni subiacebit, neque absolutionis gratiam consequetur, antequam coram loci ordinario culpam praeteritam agnoscens, pro caetero polliceatur, se in hoc genere scienter nequaquam peccaturum. Proviso semper, ut in illis parochiis, in quibus curatus, aut substitutus extiterit, praesens constitutio non ad ipsum rectorem aut vicarium, sed ad dictum curatum vel substitutum illic praesentem extendatur.

LXX. Ministri baptizatorum, nubentium, et sepultorum registrum conservare jussi.

In omni hujus regni ecclesia parochiali et capella liber ex pergamento parochianorum sumptibus comparabitur, in quo conscribi volumus diem et annum cujusque baptismatis, matrimonii, et sepulturae, quae infra eandem parochiam contigerint, ex quo lex in eam partem primum lata est, quatenus veterum registorum copia haberi potest, praecipue vero ab initio regni serenissimae reginae nuper defunctae. Ad quem librum tutius asservandum oeconomi (communibus parochianorum impensis) cistam crassam et firmam curabunt confici, cum tribus seris et clavibus, quarum una penes ministrum, reliquae duae penes oeconomos separatim custodientur; ita ut nec ministro liceat sine oeconomis, neque oeconomis, nisi ministro adhibito, librum praedictum de cista promere. Singulis vero in posterum diebus dominicis, statim post finitas matutinas vel vespertinas preces, minister et oeconomi librum illum membranaceum de cista praedicta fument, ac minister in praesentia oeconomorum in eodem inscribet omnium personarum nomina, quotquot praecedente hebdomade infra eandem parochiam baptizatae (adjectis item parentum nominibus, et cognominibus) vel matrimonio conjunctae, vel sepultae fuerint; singulorum etiam die et anno specificatis, quo facto dictum librum in cistam, ut prius, recondent: ac minister et oeconomi singulis ejusdem ilibri paginis, postquam inscriptionibus ejusmodi impletae fuerint nomina sua subscribent. Porro oeconomi semel omni anno, idque infra terminum unius mensis post beatae virginis Annunciationem, ad episcopum dioecesanum vel ejus cancellarium transmittent verum registrum sive scripturam eorum omnium nomina continentem, qui infra suam parochiam anno proxime elapso, et addictum Annunciationis diem terminante, vel baptizati, vel nupti, vel scripturae traditi fuerint; die ac mense, quibus singula gesta sunt, figillatim adscriptis, cum ipsius etiam ministri, ac oeconomorum subscriptionibus, ut illud in ejusdem episcopi archivis possit fideliter custodiri; quod registrum sive certificatorium absque feodo recipietur. Quodsi minister aut oeconomi in praemissorum executione remissiores fuerint, tum episcopo vel ejus cancellario licebit eosdem convenire, et contra eos tanquam nostrarum constitutionum contemptores procedere.

Nullus minister in cujusquam privatis aedibus vel concionabitur, vel sacramenta administrabit, nisi tempore necessitatis, cum quis vel per imbecillitatem ecclesiam adire non valens, vel morbo gravi et periculoso conflictatus, sacrosancti fieri particeps sacramenti expetiverit; sub poena suspensionis pro delicto primo, et excommunicationis pro secundo. Proviso, illas aedes hic pro privatis cenferi, in quibus nulla existit capella consecrata, ac legibus hujus regni ecclesiasticis approbata. Proviso etiam, sub poenis supradictis, ne quis capellanus vel concionem habeat, vel sacram communionem alibi administret, quam in capellis aedium praedictarum; idque raro admodum faciat in diebus dominicis et festivis, ut domini et magistri illarum aedium cum suis familiis in ecclesiis suis parochialibus alias convenire possint, ibidemque una vice ad minus singulis annis communicare.

Nullus minister aut ministri, nisi mandatum et licentiam episcopi dioecesani prius impetraverint, ipsius manu et sigillo communitam, solennia ulla jejunia sive publice, sive in privatis aedibus indicent, aut celebrabunt, vel etiam eisdem scienter intererunt (exceptis iis, quae aut jam legibus instituta sunt, aut publica auctoritate in posterum instituentur) sub poena suspensionis pro delicto primo, excommunicationis pro secundo, et depositionis pro tertio. Nec quisquam minister praesumet, absque licentia (ut dictum est) impetrata, condicere, aut celebrare ullos conventus pro concionibus, quae vulgo exercitia, aut prophetiae nonnullis nuncupantur, in oppidis mercatoriis, aut alio quovis loco, sub poenis supradictis; nec sine simili licentia tentabit sub quolibet praetextu sive possessionis, sive obsessionis, per jejunium et preces daemonia seu spiritus malos ejicere, atque expellere, sub

Quoniam conventicula et clandestina presbyterorum et ministrorum conciliabula ecclesiae, in qua vixerint, incolumitati perniciose merito semper sunt existimata; statuimus et ordinamus, ut nulli deinceps presbyteri, five verbi divini ministri, vel alii quicumque in privatis ullis aedibus, vel alio quovis loco seorsim conveniant, consilium capturi de quavis re, aut ratione per ipsos vel ipsorum suasu ac consilio per alios ineunda, quae ad doctrinae in ecclesia Anglicana stabilitae, vel libri publicae liturgiae praejudicium, aut derogationem ullatenus spectare possit, sub poena excommunicationis ipso facto subeundae.

Verae, antiquae, ac florentes Christi ecclesiae cum semper inprimis studerent, ut ipsorum praelati et clerici tam in externo honore, quam interna reverentia propter ministerii sui dignitatem haberentur, consultum putarunt ut iidem, congrui et decentis alicujus habitus certa et praescripta forma utentes, in omnibus locis, et conventibus tam intra, quam extra ecclesiam a populo discerni possent, ac internosci, ut ea ratione honorem, et existimationem specialibus omnipotentis Dei nunciis et ministris debitam consequerentur. Nos ergo venerandum illorum judicium, veteremque ecclesiae Anglicanae consuetudinem secuti, omnino nobis pollicentes fore, ut a factiosis quibusdam affectata in vestitu novitas progressu temporis evanescat; statuimus et ordinamus, ut omnes archiepiscopi et episcopi consuetum ordinum suorum habitum non intermittant. Similiterque ut omnes decani, collegiorum praefecti, archidiaconi, et praebendarii cathedralis et collegiatae cujusque ecclesiae (modo in sacris ordinibus constituti) doctores in theologia, jure civili, et medicina, baccarii in theologia, magistri artium, et baccarii in jure civili, siquidem ecclesiasticum aliquod beneficium obtinent, togis cum collaribus erectis manicisque ad manum contractioribus, vel laxioribus, prout in academiis usitatum est, una cum capitiis, vel liripipiis ex serico, et pileis quadratis de more utantur: et ut alii omnes ministri ad idem munus admissi, vel admittendi, praedicto vestitus genere (exceptis tantum liripipiis) consuetim induantur. Pari ratione ulterius decernimus, ut ecclesiastici omnes superius nominati in itinere usitatus gerant pallia cum manicis indutis, quae vulgo presbyterorum pallia appellantur, sine fimbriis, limbis, fibulis oblongis, aut scissuris. Nullus item, in quocunque ordine ecclesiastico positus, pileolo ullo lineo acupicto utetur, sed simplice tantum ex nigro serico, tramo serico, aut holoserico. In qua vestitus forma, particulatim a nobis hic descripta, non id agimus, ut ullam vestibus ipsis sanctimoniam aut praecipuam dignitatem tribuamus, sed ut gravitas, decorum, atque ordo (uti diximus) per omnia conserventur. Caeterum in privatis ipsorum domiciliis, ac musaeis decentis cujuslibet et scholastici vestitus usum, modo ne scissuris aut puncturis variegati, dictis personis ecclesiasticis permittimus; proviso, uti ne in publicum nisi * promissis vestibus induti prodeant, nec tibialia gerant colorata. Tenuioribus vero five beneficiatis five curatis, qui talarium togarum sumptibus non sufficiunt, liberum erit togis uti curtioribus, ad formam praedictam comparatis.

Ministri oenopolia, aut cauponas, nisi propter congruas ipsorum necessitates, non frequentabunt, nec in iis cibum capient, aut bibent. Nec vero sordidae alicui aut illiberali operae assuescent, nec potationibus, et crapulae se dedit, tempusve interdiu, vel noctu otiose transigent in alea, chartis pictis, tesseriis, aliisque ludis illicitis exercitati; sed horis omnibus opportunis vel scripturis legendis, aut audiendis incumbant, vel alii cuiuspiam studio aut exercitio laudabili vacabunt, ea semper facientes, quae ad probitatem et virtutem spectant, seduloque operam dantes, ut ecclesiam Dei promoveant, memores nimirum, debere se reliquis omnibus vitae innocentia praelucere, populoque universo ad vitam recte, et pie instituendam, exemplo esse; sub poena sanctionum ecclesiasticarum, quas pro delicti qualitate severius illis infligendas praecipimus.

Nullus in diaconi aut presbyteri ordinem semel admissus, quovis deinceps tempore ab eodem volens recedet, nec in vitae suae instituto pro laico se geret, sub poena excommunicationis; eorumque omnium nomina, si qui vocationem suam taliter abjicient, per oeconomos parochiarum, in quibus habitant, ad episcopum dioecesanum, vel loci ordinarium episcopali jurisdictione praeditum deferentur.

De paedagogis five ludimagistris.

LXXVII. Publice vel privatim injussu ordinarii docere prohibitum.

Nemo five in schola aliqua publica, five in privatis aedibus pueros docebit aut erudiet, nisi qui ab episcopo dioecesano vel loci ordinario licentiam ejusdem manu et sigillo roboratam obtinuerit; quique tum propter eruditionem, et dexteram in docendo facultatem, tum etiam propter morum gravitatem, et integritatem, ac verum sinceram religionis intellectum aptus et idoneus reperietur; et denique qui primo et tertio articulis supra memoratis integris, ac secundi duobus prioribus membris subscripserit.

In omni ecclesia parochiali, vel capella, in qua curatus extiterit, qui in magisterii aut baccalareatus gradu constitutus, vel alias habilis ad docendum fit, et ad augenda victus sui subsidia, puerosque in principiis rectae fidei instituendos, operam munusque illud docendi lubens velit suscipere; statuimus et ordinamus, ut nulla facultas sive licentia ad pueros illius parochiae, in qua talis curatus existet, erudiendos cuivis nisi dicto curato per loci ordinarium concedatur. Proviso semper, quod praesens constitutio ad parochiam aliquam vel capellam, in oppidis ruralibus sitam, in qua schola publica fundata fuerit, minime pertinebit; quo casu consentaneum ducimus, licentiam ad grammaticam ibidem docendam nemini concedi, praeterquam publicae illius scholae magistro.

Ludimagistri omnes pueros suos catechismum vel ampliorem, vel breviorum publica auctori-

De ecclesiis, et rebus ecclesiasticis.

Ecclesiarum et capellarum omnium oeconomi et inquisitores librum publicarum precum, nuper in paucis explanatum ex auctoritate regia, juxta leges et majestatis suae hac in parte praerogativam, sumptibus parochianorum comparabunt, idque, quantum commodum poterunt, mature et celeriter, ita ut terminum duorum mensium ad summum post constitutiones hasce promulgatas nequaquam excedant. Et si quae ecclesiae, vel Bibliis amplissimi voluminis, vel homiliarum libris publica auctoritate approbatis adhuc carebunt, praefati oeconomi similiter efficient, ut dicti libri parochianorum impensis infra tempus idoneum coemantur.

Prout cautum est prisca quadam constitutione, hodie in quibusdam partibus neglectius habita, statuimus et ordinamus, ut in omni ecclesia et capella, ubi baptismus administrari consuevit, baptisterium ex lapide in loco antiquitus usitato statuatur; in quo duntaxat ministris licebit infantes publice baptizare.

Cum nobis minime dubium existat, quin omnibus hujus regni ecclesiis prospectum sit de mensis congruis et decentibus ad coenae dominicae celebrationem; statuimus et ordinamus, ut eadem mensae convenienter et decore conserventur, et subinde reficiantur, ac tempore divini cultus operiantur tapete ex serico, sive ex alia materia, quae per loci ordinarium, sicubi de ea quaestio oriatur, congrua et decora judicabitur; ipso autem administrationis tempore tate haftenus editum Latine, aut Anglice pro captu puerorum edocebunt; ac quoties infra parochiam, in qua docent, concionem aliquam sacro quolibet et festivo die haberi contigerit, discipulos suos adducent ad ecclesiam, in qua dicta concio fiet, curabuntque, ut ibidem quiete et modeste se contineant, eosque inde reverbos tempore aliquo congruo sigillatim ad examen revocabunt, quid ex dicta concione didicerint. Aliis autem diebus, talibus sententiis ex sacra scriptura haustis eosdem instruent ac instituent, quales ad eorum mentes pietate imbuendas maxime utiles, et idoneae videbuntur. Dicti etiam ludimagistri grammaticam auctoritate Henrici octavi editam, et deinceps Edwardi sexti, et reginae Elizabethae felicissimae memoriae temporibus continuatam, et non aliam praelegent aut docebunt. Quodsi quis paedagogus post factam (ut supra) subscriptionem, et licentiam sive facultatem obtentam, in quolibet praemissorum deliquerit, et contra aliquid, cui pridem subscripserat, dicere, scribere, aut docere compertus fuerit, si interposita ordinarii admonitione se non correxerit, a docendi munere de caetero submoveatur.

panno lineo mundo, prout tali mensae convenit, vestiantur, suoque certo loco consistent, nisi cum sacramentum erit administrandum, quo quidem tempore in ecclesia, vel ejusdem cancelli ita constituentur, ut tum minister inter precandum et administrandum commodius possit a communicantibus exaudiri, tum communicantes etiam convenientius et majore numero a ministro sacramentum percipere. Insuper statutum et decretum sit, ut decalogus pingatur in orientali cujusque ecclesiae et capellae parte, unde a populo commodissime cerni et legi possit, ac aliae selectae scripturarum sententiae in earundem parietibus passim in locis opportunis describantur. Similiter etiam ut sedes congrua ministro construatur, in qua divinas preces recitet; atque haec omnia parochianorum sumptibus perficiantur.

Ecclesiarum oeconomi, et inquisitores in suis respective ecclesiis pulpitu conveniens et decorum communibus parochianorum impensis fieri providebunt, quod in ecclesiae loco idoneo pro arbitrato ordinarii, si quid ambigi de eo contigerit, constituatur, in divini verbi praedicationem decenter ibidem asservandum.

Ecclesiarum oeconomi, ac inquisitores infra tres menses post harum constitutionum promulgationem, sumptibus parochianorum comparabunt, nisi forsan jam comparatam habeant, cistam validam et firmam cum fissura in suprema parte ejusdem, et tribus clavibus, quarum una a rectore, vicario, vel curato, reliquae duae ab oeconomis pro tempore existentibus separatim ratim custodientur. Quae cista disponetur in locum maxime opportunum, ad parochianorum eleemosynas pro pauperibus ejusdem ecclesiae excipiendas. Quinetiam rectores, vicarii, et curati non cessabunt parochianos suos invitare, hortari, et jugiter incitare, tum vero praecipue cum testamenta sua conficiunt, ut huic cistae pro ipsorum facultatibus largiantur; eisdem insinuando, quod cum hactenus multas opes, praeter Dei mandatum, in supersticiosos usus studiose impenderint, multo propensiores esse debeant, hoc praesertim tempore, ad egenos et pauperes sublevandos; cum non ignorent, misericordiam in pauperes sacrificium Deo gratum et acceptum esse, et quicquid in eorum subsidium et levamen datur, Christo dari, Christumque ejusmodi dona in eam partem accipere, ut illa sit benigne remuneraturus. Quas eleemosynas et pias populi largitiones per singulos annos, vel tres menses, aut saepius (pro causarum vel temporum conditione) custodes clavium, praesente maxima parochianorum parte, vel sex illorum praecipuis, de cista proferent, ut inter vicinos suos maxime indigentes vere et fideliter possint distribui.

LXXXV. Ecclesiae sartae tectae conservandae.

Ecclesiarum oeconomi, et inquisitores diligenter prospicient, ut ecclesiae suae probe et congrue reparentur, et sic perpetuo constodiantur, ut fenestrae bene vitratae; ac pavimenta plana et aequabilia existant, adeoque omnia honeste et decore in eisdem ferventur, absque pulvere, aut ullo coeni aut sordium genere, quod ingratum, aut indecorum esse possit, pro ut domo Dei inprimis convenit, et in homilia quadam hujus argumenti praecipitur. Pari diligentia providebunt, ut coemeteria debite reparata, munita, et septa custodiantur sive muris, sive vacerris, sive palis (pro loci consuetudine) eorum impensis, ad quos jure pertinebit. Inprimis vero curabunt, ut in omnibus populi ad rem divinam conventibus pax et quies religiose conserventur, omnesque quotquot excommunicationis vinculo publice et notorie sunt innodati, ab ecclesiae liminibus arceantur.

Omnis decanus, decanus et capitulum, archi-

LXXXIX. Oeconomorum electio, et rerum ecclesiasticarum procuratio.

Omnes ecclesiarum oeconomi, sive inquisitores parochianorum et ministri sui unito consensu, siquidem id fieri possit, eligentur. Qui si in tali electione dissenserint, tum ministro licebit unum eligere, parochianis alterum, nec quicumque pro oeconomo habendus erit, nisi quem ejusmodi consensus sive conjunctus, sive divisus elegerit; neque iidem etiam in officio suo ultra annum, nisi de integro ad modum praedictum electi permanebunt. Omnesque oecodiaconus, aut alius quilibet, cui visitationes ecclesiasticas obeundi jus et potestas ex compositione, lege, aut praescriptione competit, unoquoque triennio ecclesias omnes suae jurisdictioni subjectas semel perlustrabit, vel saltem perlustrari faciet; et singulis annis infra eundem terminum regiis commissariis pro causis ecclesiasticis subinde denunciabit, quos defectus reparatione indigentes in dictis ecclesiis, aut earum aliqua compererit, apposisis eorum nominibus et cognominibus, qui in singulis sint culpabiles. Qua informatione accepta, praedictos commissarios rogamus, ut ejusmodi personas coram se citatas, talis cujusque ordinarii, qui informationes praefatas fecerit, justis et legitimis decretis parere compellant.

Archiepiscopus, et episcopi omnes in sua quisque dioecesi (quantum in ipsis erit) efficient, ut justum inventarium, sive terrarium omnium glebarum, quas vocant, fundorum, pratorum, hortorum, pomariorum, aedium, peculiorum, utensilium, tenementorum; et portionum, decimarum, extra suas parochias positarum, quae ad rectoriam, vicariam, vel ruralem quamlibet praebendam noscuntur spectare, per singulas parochias ex inspectione proborum hominum per episcopum designandorum, quorum minister unus erit, in scriptis redigatur, ac in suis archivis ad perpetuam rei memoriam asservetur.

Ecclesiarum oeconomi, et inquisitores, vel assistentes nequaquam patientur ludos scenicos, convivias, epulas, coenas solennes, invitationes publicas, symposia, curias seculares, visus franci plegii, juratas laicas, lustrationes militum, vel proanum ullum usum sive ritum in ecclesiis, capellis, aut coemeteriis suis fieri, aut celebrari; neque etiam campanas superstitione pulsari in illis festivitatibus, aut earum vigiliis, quae in libro publicae liturgiae sunt antiquatae, vel alio quovis tempore, nisi ex causa idonea tam per ipsos, quam per ministrum approbata.

nomi ad dicti anni terminum vel saltem infra ejusdem termini mensem unum pecuniae tum acceptae tum expensae, sive in reparationes, sive in alios quoscunque ecclesiae usus veram et particularem rationem ministro et parochianis reddent; quinetiam officio suo abeuntes, parochianis cedent quicquid pecuniae aut alterius rei cujusunque ad ecclesiam sive parochiam jure pertinentis, in ipsorum manibus residuum supererit, ut per eos in succedentium oeconomorum custodiam per billam indentatam transferatur.

XC. Inquisitorum sive assistentium electio, eorumque cum oeconomis officii communitas.

Ecclesiarum omnium oeconomi, sive inquisitores, adhibitis in singulis parochiis duobus, tribus, aut etiam pluribus discretis hominibus, qui per ministrum, e oeconomos, siquidem inter eos convenire poterit, alias per loci ordinarium pro assistentibus eligentur, sedulo invigilabunt, ut parochiani omnes ecclesias suas diebus dominicis et festivis debite frequentent, atque in iisdem per integrum tempus rei sacrae perdurent;

De ostiariis sive clericis parochialibus.

XCI. Clericos parochiales eligendi jus ministro cedit.

Nullus in parochialis clerici, quem vocant, locum vacantem infra civitatem Londinensem, vel alibi infra provinciam Cantuariensem eligetur, nisi per rectorem aut vicarium, vel defectu rectoris aut vicarii, per ejusdem ecclesiae ministrum pro tempore existentem; quam electionem dictus rector, vicarius, aut minister subsequente die dominico tempore divinorum paro-quo item tempore neminem in ecclesia ejusdemve porticu aut coemeterio deambulare, vel otari, aut garrere patientur; si quos autem compererint remissius aut negligentius ecclesiam adire, nulla magna aut ardua absentiae suae causa constante, eosdem serio admonebunt, et, nisi debite admoniti se emendaverint, ad loci ordinarium deferent. Horum autem oeconomorum, et inquisitorum, vel assistentium annuam electionem in paschali hebdomade celebrandam decernimus.

chianis suis denunciabit. Omnis autem ejusmodi clericus parochialis annos ad minus viginti natus erit, et de vita probabili, ac idonea legendi, scribendi, et cantandi, quoad ejus fieri potest, scientia dicto eligenti cognitus. Idemque clerici taliter electi stipendia sua antiquitus consueta, absque dolo aut diminutione, vel ab oeconomis, ad tempora haec usitata, vel ex propria collectione percipient, juxta parochiae cujusque ritum, ac consuetudinem maxime inveteratam.

De curiis ecclesiasticis ad archiepiscopi jurisdictionem spectantibus.

Cum multi haecenus per apparitores curiarum tum inferiorum, tum praerogativae archiepiscopalis graviter distracti et varie vocati et compulsi fuerint super probatione testamentorum, et administrationis bonorum in causa intestati petitione, variisque inde laboribus, molestiis, et expensis superflue gravati fuerint, et fatigati; statuimus et ordinamus, ut omnis cancellarius, commissarius, officialis, aut alius quicumque jurisdictionem ecclesiasticam exercens, singulos ad curiam suam super testamenti probatione vel administrationis bonorum negotio citatos, aut etiam ultro advenientes primo et ante omnia juramento oneret, num sciant, vel speciali aliqua causa permoti firmiter credant, defunctum, de cujus testamento, vel bonis agitur, bona aliqua, aut debita idonea in alia quavis dioecesi, vel dioecesibus, aut in peculiari alia jurisdictione infra eandem provinciam sita, quam in qua obiit, usque ad valorem quinque librarum, tempore vitae et mortis suae habuisse. Et si talis citatus, vel sponte accedens super juramento suo affirmaverit, se scire vel (ut praefertur) firmiter credere, quod ejusmodi defunctus bona, vel idonea debita in alia aliqua dioecesi, vel dioecesibus, vel in peculiari aliqua jurisdictione infra eandem provinciam, ad valorem praedictum habuerit, eademque peculiariter expresse, ac declaraverit; tum statim eum dimittet, nec vel testamentum talis defuncti probare, vel administrationem bonorum sic ab intestato decedentis concedere, neque alias expensas, quam pro citatione debitas, vel etiam pro aliis processibus contra eundem super ipsius ulteriore forsitan contumacia adhibitis, ab eo exigere praesumet, sed hoc negotium ad praerogativam archiepiscopalem ejusdem provinciae spectare aperte, diserteque profitebitur; quin etiam partem ipsam monebit et hortabitur, ut apud judicem dictae praerogativae testamentum illud probet, vel administrationem talium bonorum petat, et coram ipso ejusmodi probationem sive administrationem, sigillo curiae praerogativarum munitam, infra quadraginta dies continuos exhibeat. Quod si quis cancellarius, commissarius, officialis vel alius ecclesiasticam jurisdictionem exercens, vel eorum registrarius aliquis contrafecerit; ab executione officii sui ipso facto suspensum se noverit, nullatenus absolvendum, donec omnes pecuniarum summas, contra tenorem praemissorum per dictam partem expensas, eidem restituerit; talisque sive testamenti probatio, sive administrationis concessio quaecunque ipso jure pro nulla habeatur. Registrarius etiam cujusque judicis inferioris apparitorem curiae praerogativae, semel duntaxat singulis mensibus ad se venientem, sine omni difficultate certiore reddet; quos executores vel administrationem petentes judex suus infra mensem proxime tum praecedentem, ob incompetentiam suae in hac parte jurisdictionis, ad curiam praerogativae dimiserit; idque sub poena menstruae suspensionis ab exercitio officii pro singulis ejusmodi delictis. Proviso semper, quod praesens constitutio, vel aliquid in eadem contentum, compositioni ulli, quae inter archiepiscopum, et episcopum quemvis, vel alium ordinarium intercesserit, nequaquam praejudicabit; nec etiam judici cuivis inferiori, qui ullam testamenti probationem, vel bonorum administrationem alicui tam ex dicta inferiore curia, quam ex curia praerogativae sponte et consulto eandem petenti concesserit. Proviso itidem dem, quodsi quem in itinere mori contingat, bona illa, quae tunc temporis penes se habuerit, testamentum ipsiusvel bonorum administrationem curiae praerogativarum nequaquam subjicient.

Statuimus insuper et ordinamus, ne quis iudex praerogativae archiepiscopalis ad praemissorum aliquod quemlibet ex officio citet, aut citari faciat, nisi eidem prius constiterit, defunctum tempore vitae et mortis suae bona vel catalla in aliqua alia dioecesi vel dioecesibus, vel etiam peculiari jurisdictione, infra eandem provinciam sita, quam in qua fato cessit, ad summam quinque librarum ad minus habuisse. Nam qui minorem aliquam summam hoc casu habet, eundem bona notabilia non habere, per praesentes decernimus et declaramus. Proviso, quod haec clausula, in hac, et in praecedente constitutione expressa, ad illas dioeceses nullatenus extendatur, in quibus ex compositione vel consuetudine bona notabilia maiore summa definiuntur. Quodsi quis iudex praerogativae, aut ejus deputatus, vel eorundem registrarius, aut apparitor aliquem secus, quam ut praemissum est, citaverit, aut citari vel moneri ad curiam suam fecerit, eundem expensas parti sic citatae vel monitae refundere volumus, et acta ejusdem ipso jure vacua, et pro nullis habenda pronunciamus. Quas expensas si vel iudex, vel registrarius, vel apparitor taliter rependere detrectaverit, ab executione officii sui, donec illud praestiterit, suspendetur.

Neque decanus de arcubus, neque officialis consistorii archiepiscopalis, neque iudex audientiae posthac nomine vel suo, vel archiepiscopi Cantuariensis, siue ex officio, siue ad instantiam partis originaliter citabit, monebit, aut quomodo compellet, vel citari, moneri, aut compelli faciet aliquem, qui particularem dicti archiepiscopi dioecesis, vel peculiare ejusdem jurisdictiones non inhabitat, ad comparandum coram ipsis vel ipsorum aliquo, super causa vel re quacunque ad cognitionem ecclesiasticam pertinente, absque dioecesani sui licentia prius impetrata, extra casus speciales in statuto, anno XXIII. Henr. VIII. cap. 9. diserte exemptos, et reservatos. Quodsi quis dictorum iudicum contrafecerit, is pro singulis ejusmodi delictis ab officii sui exercitio per tres menses suspendetur.

Tamet si pristinae constitutiones ecclesiae Anglicanae duorum mensium tempus episcopis indulserint, infra quod de sufficientia et qualitate cujusque ministri, qui ipsi praesentatus esset, in beneficium aliquod instituendus, inquirere et plenius informari posset; nos tamen quibusdam incommodis occurrere volentes, spatium illud bimestre ad terminum viginti et octo dierum per praesentes contrahimus, et abbreviamus. Cujus contractionis intuitu statuimus et ordinamus, ut nulla duplex querela ex curia ulla archiepiscopi ad instantiam ministri cujusque concedatur, nisi prius jurejurando fidem fecerit, quod praefatus terminus viginti et octo dierum ad minus effluxerit, ex quo dictam sui ipsius praesentationem episcopo exhibuerit, et episcopus se taliter praesentatum instituere recusaverit, vel nisi cautionem fidejussoriam sufficientem interposuerit, se assertionem illam veram esse legitime probaturum sub poena suspensionis semestris ab officii sui exercitio singulis talem actionem siue duplicem querelam concedentibus, per archiepiscopum toties quoties denuncianda, ac etiam nullitatis ad omnem juris effectum cujusque duplicis querelae sic indebitae procuratae. Proviso semper, quod infra praedictum tempus viginti et octo dierum episcopus alium nullatenus instituet, in praedictum partis ita praesentatae, idque sub poena nullitatis.

Ut episcoporum jurisdictiones illaefae (quantum fieri potest) conserventur, ac ut hujus regni subditis melius consulatur, ne frivolis aut injustis litibus de caetero fatigentur, ordinatum et provisum est, quod nulla deinceps inhibitio, ex quacunque curia archiepiscopi Cantuariensis ad instantiam partis emanabit, siue subscriptione advocati ibidem exercentis, id quod gratis et absque feodo aut salario ab eodem fiet; nisi forte is, qui causam consecutus fuerit, pro ipsius in eadem consilio aliquod ei ultro erogaverit. Pari ratione decretum sit, ne ad instantiam alicujus partis ulla emanet inhibitio ab episcopo, aut ejus cancellario contra archidiaconum, vel quemvis alium ecclesiastica jurisdictione utentem, absque advocati (ut praefertur) subscriptione. Quodsi forsitan in curia alicujus episcopi nullus extiterit advocatus, tunc subscriptio procuratoris ibidem exercentis sufficiet.

Statutum insuper et decretum sit, ut nulli deinceps inhibitio concedatur, per occasionem alicujus decreti interlocutorii, aut in quacunque causa correctionis, nisi sub forma praecedente; et ulterius, quod ante emanationem istiusmodi inhibitionis ipsa appellatio, aut verum ejusdem exemplar, juramento super ejusdem veritate praestito, judici aut ejus legitimo deputato exhibeatur, unde et de qualitate delicti, et causa gravaminis judici praedicto ante inhibitionem emissam summatim possit constare. Porro quilibet appellans aut ejus legitimus procurator, ante inhibitionem in causa correctionis obtentam, judici aut suo deputato ostendet verum transcriptum siue copiam actorum, unde se gravatum queritur, et a quibus appellat; aut juramentum suscipiet, se diligentiam loco et tempore opportunis praestitisse pro eisdem comparandis, nec potuisse tamen a registrario in partibus aut ejus deputatis, oblato salario, eadem adipisci.

Si quis vero iudex, aut registrarius inhibitionem quamlibet (sic ut praefertur) contra formam praedictam sigillari procuraverit, aut permiserit, ab executione officii sui per tres menses suspendatur; si vero procurator aliquis, aut quivis alius de ipsius mandato contra tenorem praemissorum in aliquo deliquerit inhibitiones sive conficiendo, sive emittendo, praemissis non observatis, ab exercitio muneris sui praedicti per annum integrum, sine spe veniae aut restitutionis, amoveatur.

Quoniam legis auxilium frustra implorat, qui in legem committit; cautum sit, et provisum, ut sicubi iudex ecclesiasticus adversus refractarios, factiosos, ac ceremoniarum contemptores, ob non servatos ecclesiae Anglicanae ritus, vel ob precum publicarum contemptum, judicialiter processerit; nullus iudex "ad quem" eorum appellationes admittat, nisi pars appellans, appellationis protocollo dicto iudici per ipsum exhibito, in propria persona receperit, se omnes ecclesiae Anglicanae ritus ac ceremonias, et formam publicae liturgiae praescriptam bona fide observaturum, ac etiam nisi tribus articulis superius a nobis specificatis subscripserit.

Nemo matrimonium contrahat intra gradus divino jure prohibitos, ac expressos in tabula quadam ex auctoritate publica anno Domini M.D.LXIII. edita; omniaque matrimonia taliter contracta, incesta et illegitima judicabuntur, et et proinde, ut ab initio vacua, sive nulla, dissolvantur, partesque ita conjunctae per juris processum separabuntur. Tabulam autem praedictam in singulis ecclesiis parochianorum sumptibus publice proponi, atque affigi volumus.

C. Minores 21. annis absque parentum consensu matrimonium contrahere prohibiti.

Nullis liberis, qui vicesimum primum aetatis suae annum nondum compleverint, absque consensu parentum, aut, defunctis parentibus, tutorum sive gubernatorum suorum, conjugia, sive sponsalia licebit contrahere.

CI. Facultates pro bannis matrimonialibus omittendis, per quos, et quibus sint concedendae.

Nulla in posterum facultas sive indulgentia, pro matrimonio absque trina bannorum denunciatione juxta librum publicae liturgiae inter quoslibet celebrando, per quamvis personam jurisdictionem ecclesiasticam exercentem, vel privilegia ulla ecclesiae suae nomine sibi vendicantem, nisi tantum per eos, qui episcopalem auctoritatem obtinent, vel per commissarium ad facultates, vel sede plena, per archiepiscopi, et episcoporum vicarios generales, aut sede vacante, per custodes spiritualitatis, vel ordinarios episcopalem jurisdictionem de jure exercentes, et non per alios concedetur; idque duntaxat illustris, ac clarae conditionis hominibus, suae respective jurisdictioni subditis, interposita etiam idonea

CII. In facultatibus pro bannorum omissione concedendis cautio interponenda, et sub quibus conditionibus.

Dicta cautio conditiones hasce complectetur. Primo, quod tempore ejusdem dispensationis concedendae nullum existit impedimentum ratione praecontractus, consanguinitatis, affinitatis, vel alterius causae cujuscunque de jure prohibita, quod dicto matrimonio occurrere, aut obstare possit. Secundo, quod nulla controversia, lis, seu querela mota sit vel pendeat in aliqua curia coram ullo iudice ecclesiastico super aliquo contractu vel matrimonio alterutrius dictarum partium cum alia quavis persona. Tertio, quod parentum, modo sint in vivis, vel alias tutorum sive gubernatorum suorum expressum consensum hac in parte obtinuerunt. Postremo, quod dictum matrimonium in ecclesia parochiali, vel capella, ubi contrahentium alter commoratur, et non alias, idque publice in facie ecclesiae inter horas octavam et duodecimam curabunt solemnizari.

Ut omnis deinceps fraus et dolus in obtinendis ejusmodi facultatibus evitetur; statuimus insuper et ordinamus, quod ante obtentam facultatem pro matrimonio absque bannis celebrando, iudici constabit de expresso consensu parentum, vel parentis, eorum altero defuncto, aut tutorum vel tutoris, per juramentum duorum fide dignorum testium, quorum unus vel iudici ipsi, vel alii cuiuspiam bonae existimationis tum praesenti, ac eidem etiam iudici cognito, pro tali innotescet. Et ulterius, ut alter contrahentium juramentum subeat, se credere, nullum legitimum impedimentum ratione praecontractus, consanguinitatis, affinitatis, vel alterius causae cujuscunque de jure prohibita obstare, nullamque litem aut controversiam in foro aliquo ecclesiastico, motam esse, quominus dictum matrimonium, juxta tenorem ejusdem facultatis, ad effectum procedat.

CIV. Parentum consensus viduis contrahentibus remissus.

Quod si uterque contrahentium in viduitate constitutus pro bannis omittendis dispensationem petierit, tunc clausulam praedictam, per quam parentum consensus requiritur, licebit praetermitti, ita tamen ut parochiae, in quibus utraque pars commoratur, in dispensatione exprimantur, atque illa parochia nominatim designetur, in qua ejusmodi matrimonium sit postea celebrandum. Siquis vero commissarius ad facultates, vic. generalis, aut dictorum ordinariorum aliquis in praemissis, aut quolibet praemissorum deliquerit, is pro singulis ejusmodi delictis ab executione officii sui per spatium semestris submoveatur, et licentia sive indulgentia hujusmodi viribus vacua, et pro ulla ad omnem juris effectum habebitur, ac si omnino non fuisset concessa; partesque ejusdem virtute in matrimonio conjunctae poenis illis subjacebunt, quae in nuptias

CV. Pro conjugio dirimendo nuda partium confessio non audienda.

Quoniam matrimoniales causae inter graves semper habitae fuerint, et propterea majorem cautelam desiderant; siquando in judiciis veniant disceptandae, praesertim cum matrimonio in ecclesia debite solemnizatum, quovis nomine separari, vel nullum pronunciari postulatur; stricte mandamus et praecipimus, ut in omnibus divortiorum et nullitatis matrimonii processibus circumspicte et deliberate procedatur, ac quantum fieri poterit, rei veritas testium depositionibus aliisque probationibus legitimis eruatur, nec soli extrajudiciali, aut judiciali et juratae partium confessioni fides habeatur.

Nullae in posterum sententiae vel separationis a thoro et mensa, vel nullitatis matrimonii praetensi ferantur, nisi publice, ac pro tribunali, et de scientia ac consensu vel archiepiscopi infra provinciam suam, vel episcopi infra propriam dioecesim, decani de arcubus, judicis audientiae Cantuariensis, aut vicariorum generalium, aliorumve officialium principalium, vel sede va-

CIX. Peccata et scandala notoria in curiis ecclesiasticis denuncianda.

Si qui per manifestum adulterium, stuprum, incestum, ebrietatem, jurandi consuetudinem, lenocinium, foederationem, vel aliam quamcunque vitae turpitudinem aut nequitiam fratres suos offenderint; ecclesiarum oeconomi, et inquisitores, sive assistentes in proximis praesentationibus suis ad ordinarios omnium et singulorum ejusmodi delinquentium nomina fideliter deferant, ut legum severitate pro meritis possint castigari. Tales autem notorii delinquentes ad sacram coenam, donec mores in melius commutarent, nequaquam admittentur.

CX. Schismatici in curiis detegendi.

Si oeconomi ecclesiarum, et inquisitores, sive assistentes de aliquo infra suam parochiam vel alibi resciverint, qui vel verbo Dei legendo, aut sincere praedicando, vel constitutionum praesentium executioni obstare conabitur, vel etiam usurpatae ulli et extraneae potestati, hujus regni legibus jamdiu merito repudiatas, atque abolitae, favebit atque adhaerebit; vel dogma aliquod papisticum ac erroneum astruet, aut tuebitur; dicti oeconomi, et inquisitores sive assistentes episcopo dioecesano, vel loci ordinario eundem detegant, et indicabunt, ut poenis et censuris per ecclesiasticas sanctiones irrogatis coerceatur.

CXI. Precum divinarum perturbatores in curiis detegendi.

In omnibus episcoporum et archidiaconorum visitationibus oeconomi, et inquisitores sive assi-cante, custodum spiritualitatis, aut aliorum ordinariarum, quibus de jure competit, in suis respective jurisdictionibus, ac curiis, atque inter suae jurisdictionis subditos tantum.

In sententiis, quando ad separationem thori et mensae tantum interponuntur, monitio, et prohibitio in ipso contextu sententiae latae fiet, ut a partibus abinvicem dissociatis caste vivatur, nec ad alias nuptias, alterutra vivente, convoleatur. Denique quo postremum illud firmitus observetur, sententia separationis non ante pronunciabitur, quam qui eam postulabunt, idoneam cautionem interposuerint, se contra dictam monitionem et prohibitionem nihil commissuros.

Quodsi quis iudex sententiam separationis, seu divortii tulerit, et praemissa omnia non praestiterit, per annum integrum ab executione officii sui per archiepiscopum, vel episcopum dioecesanum suspendetur. Et sententia separationis, contra formam praedictam lata, pro nulla ad omnem juris effectum habebitur, ac si omnino lata non fuisset.

stentes eorum omnium nomina vere et personalter praesentabunt, qui incivilter aut immodeste in ecclesia se gesserint, vel intempestiva campanarum pulsatione, obambulatione, garritu, aut alio quovis strepitu concionatorem, vel ministrum interpellaverint.

CXII. Puberes in festo Paschatis non communicantes in curiis detegendi.

Ecclesiarum parochialium, et capellarum ministri, oeconomi, inquisitores, sive assistentes quolibet anno infra quadraginta dies post festum Paschatis episcopo, vel cancellario suo exhibebunt nomina et cognomina omnium utriusque sexus de sua parochia, qui majores sedecim annis ad sacrosanctam communionem Paschate tum praecedente non accesserint.

Quoniam saepenumero contingit, ecclesiae oeconomos, et inquisitores sive assistentes aliosque e laicis, quibus id officii, munerisque incumbit, ut per admonitiones, reprehensiones, et delationes ad ordinarios peccatum et impietatem coerceant, partim prae timore potentiorum, partim prae incuria in hoc officio praestando remissiores esse, quam par est, si horum temporum licentiam consideremus; statuimus et ordinamus, ut licitum deinceps sit singulis lectoribus ac vicariis, aut (ipsis legitime absentibus) eorum curatis, et substitutis, cum ecclesiae oeconomis et assistentibus, reliquisque supra nominatis, in criminibus ad tempora inferius praestituta detegendis, operas suas conjungere; siquidem dicti oeconomi et assistentes crimina et culpas culpas enormes in suis parochiis notorias deferre voluerint. Quodsi ii facere detrectaverint, tum licebit singulis rectoribus et vicariis, aut (illis ut supra absentibus) eorum curatis ac substitutis, omnia ejusmodi crimina, de quibus dicti officarii habent inquirere, aut alia quaecunque ipsis (utpote quibus praecipua cura peccati infra suas parochias coercendi incumbit) corrigenda videbuntur, temporibus constitutis, vel alias, ubi commodum judicaverint, ad ordinarios suos deferre et praesentare. Proviso semper, quodsi quis peccata sua occultiora alicui ministro privatim confiteatur, conscientiam suam exonerando, quo ab illo spirituales consolationem, et levamen percipiat, eum hac nostra constitutione nullatenus teneri volumus; quin potius stricte illi praecipimus, ne ejusmodi aliquod crimen aut delictum fidei ac taciturnitati suae taliter commissum cuivis personae aliquando retegat, nisi sit ex eo genere criminum, quorum occultatio ex legibus hujus regni sit capitalis: qui contrafecerit, eo ipso irregularis esto.

Rectores, vicarii, vel curati omnes quolibet anno solícite inquirent, quot papistici recusantes viri, mulieres, vel pueri ultra tredecim annos nati, quot etiam papisticae religioni tectius addicti, qui licet in ecclesia se praesentes fiant, sacramenti tamen participes fieri recusant, infra suas respective parochias commorentur, sive ut hospites, sive ut inquilini, eorumque omnium nomina vera, siquidem ea poterunt exquirere, vel alias, quae pro tempore usurpant, debita semper inter absolute et ex parte recusantes distinctione servata, in scriptum referent, eademque quatenus norunt, creduntque sic distincta, et sua manu descripta, ante festum Nativitatis ordinariis suis fideliter exhibebunt, idque sub poena suspensionis per eosdem ordinarios infligenda; atque sic deinceps singulis annis sequentibus, sub simili poena ante festum S. Johannis Baptistae. Insuper tenebuntur omnes ordinarii, cancellarii, commissarii, archidiaconi, officiales, caeterique ecclesiastica jurisdictione fungentes, quibus supradictae detectiones exhibitae fuerint, easdem infra mensem unum, postquam illas receperint, episcopo suo respective tradere, sub poena suspensionis semestris ab omni muneris sui executione, per episcopum, quoties hac in parte defecerint, irroganda; qui et ipse easdem infra sex septimanas archiepiscopo curabit offerri, per eundem infra alias sex septimanas, postquam ipse receperit, regiae majestati praesentandas.

Quum ad correctionem criminum et hominum criminorum ecclesiarum oekonomi, inquisitores, sive assistentes, aliiquid id genus officarii ecclesiastici jurejurando obstringantur, quemadmodum et ministri nostra monitione tenentur tam ipsa crimina et culpas a dictis criminosis perpetratas, quam etiam publicam famam de iisdem sparsam et disseminatam deferre, et praesentare, unde saepe odium illis, et invidia, quandoque etiam molestia per dictos fontes eorumve amicos conflatur; monemus et hortamur omnes judices tam ecclesiasticos, quam seculares, quatenus tremendum summi judicis tribunal respiciunt, et reverentur, ne admittant in suis curiis ullam querelam, actionem, litis intemperationem, aut prosecutionem contra ullos ecclesiarum oekonomos, aut inquisitores, sive assistentes, aliosve officarios ecclesiasticos, qui ejusmodi detectiones exhibuerint, nec contra ministrum aliquem, quamcunque demum personam vel culpam detulerit; quum omnes ejusmodi delationes ad impietatis audaciam cohibendam spectent, quumque tam ex regulis charitatis, quam recti regiminis praesumendum sit, eos, quicquid hac in re fecerint, non odii aut malevolentiae causa, sed fidei suae liberandae conscientia fecisse.

Nullius parochiae oekonomi, vel inquisitores, sive assistentes, accusationes, aut detectiones suas cogentur judici cuiquam ecclesiastico praesentare saepius, quam singulis annis semel, in iis utique locis, ubi non consueverunt plures exhiberi, aut bis in dioecesi vel loco quocunque, nisi in episcopi visitatione. Pro quibus parochiae cujusque praesentationibus registrarius cuiuslibet curiae, in qua exhibenda sunt, supra quatuor denarios in uno anno non recipiet, sub poena menstruae suspensionis a muneris sui exercitio pro singulis ejusmodi delictis. Proviso semper liberum fore cuique ministro, oeconomis, et assistentibus, quoties et quando videbitur pro causarum conditione delinquentes deferre et accusare; similiterque cuivis pie affecto, vel etiam judici cuilibet ecclesiastico, super notitia sibi facta de enormi aliquo crimine infra suam jurisdictionem perpetrato, ministrum, oekonomos, aut assistentes licebit admonere, quatenus gloriam Dei respiciunt, et correctionem peccati, ut tale crimen publice detegant, dum tamen justam ejus detegendi causam invenerint, ut ista ratione mature puniri ac corrigi possit. Proviso etiam, ut pro spontaneis hisce praesentationibus nullum feodum aut salarium sub poena praedicta recipiatur.

Nullus ecclesiae oekonomus, aut inquisitor, sive assistens ad comparandum coram ecclesiastico iudice quocunque extra tempus vel tempora praestituta citabitur, quod delictum aliquod in sua parochia commissum, et ecclesiasticis censuris obnoxium aliis temporibus deferre recusaverit; neque eorum quilibet post detectiones suas statim temporibus exhibitae, earum occasione deinceps in jus trahetur, nisi ex certis et manifestis indiciis constiterit, eum volentem et scientem omisisse detectionem notorii alicujus criminis aut criminum, quae vel commissae fuisse noverit, vel ignorare saltem non potuerit, publica fama eadem laborare; vel nisi forte justa causa causa emerferit, eosdem pro detectionum priorum explanatione in curiam compellendi; quo casu, voluntariae scilicet omissionis, ordinarii contra eosdem taliter procedent, quemadmodum in causis spontanei perjurii in curiis ecclesiasticis commissi, haecenus lege cautum et provisum est.

Oeconomi, et inquisitores, vel assistentes non prius officio suo soluti deinceps intelligentur, quam ipsorum successores juramentum suum susceperint, id quod prima post festum Paschatis septimana, vel aliqua statim sequente, pro arbitrio ordinarii, fieri volumus. Quod tempus dicto juramento assignatum, alterum semper erit ex duobus illis anni cujusque temporibus, in quibus omnium parochiarum ministri, oeconomi, et assistentes suis respective ordinariis exhibebunt illorum criminum detectiones, quae citra proximas praesentationes in suis parochiis admissa esse compererint. Quod officium praedicti oeconomi perficient, antequam recens electi oeconomi et assistentes juramentum suum praestent, neque illis ullatenus permittetur, dictas praeteritorum criminum detectiones in novitios hosce rejicere, qui munus suum vix dum ingressi, eorundem ignari esse praesumuntur; sub poena sanctionum in eos constitutarum, qui conscientias et juramenta sua ad hunc modum audebunt eludere.

Quo melius illis incommodis occurratur, quae ex detectionum schedulis sive billis, quas vocant, propere et festinanter confectis, in ipsis videlicet diebus visitationum, et synodorum, haecenus constat evenisse; statutum est et decretum, ut quilibet cancellarius, archidiaconus, commissarius, officialis, alique jus dicentes ecclesiasticum, ad tempus oeconomorum juramento praestando consuetum, itemque archiepiscopus et episcopi omnes, quoties visitationes suas indicunt, parochiarum omnium oeconomis, et inquisitoribus, sive assistentibus, aut eorum aliquibus tradant aut tradi curent libros articulorum, de quibus eosdem velint detectiones suas anno insequente ad statuta tempora exhibendas instituere; in quo item libro apponetur forma juramenti, quo statim ante singulas ejusmodi praesentationes sint onerandi; ut spatio sufficienti dato ad examinandam, et perpendendam tum juramenti sui qualitatem, tum etiam articulorum, quibus ipsorum detectiones niti debeant, deliberate et cum fide easdem domi suae formare possint, ad conscientias suas, jurisjurandi religione jam obstrictas, uti probos et pios decet, liberandas.

Nullus episcopus, cancellarius, archidiaconus, officialis, aut alius quilibet judex ecclesiasticus citationes ullas generales, quae vulgo "Quorum nomina" dicuntur, ex curia sua emanare patietur; nisi partium citandarum nomina per registrarium, vel ejus deputatum diserte sub eisdem exprimantur; eademque citationes, cum nominibus sic inscriptis, judicis vel ejus surrogati subscriptione et sigillo munitae exeant.

In partibus iis, ubi episcopus et archidiaconus sive ex praescriptione, sive ex compositione ad diversa unius et ejusdem anni tempora visitationes suas obire consueverunt; ne majestatis suae subditi in pluribus curiis ecclesiasticis super uno et eodem crimine, non sine gravi ipsorum molestia, postulentur, statuimus et ordinamus, ut quilibet archidiaconus, vel ejus officialis infra unum mensem, post peractam eo anno visitationem, et praesentationes acceptas, episcopum vel ejus cancellarium sub sua manu et sigillo instruat ac informet de nominibus et delictis eorum omnium, qui in visitatione sua fuerint detecti et praesentati, quo is super ulla causa, aut crimine ad archidiaconum prius delata, aliquem convenire deinceps absteat. Pari ratione decernimus, ut cancellarius, infra idem tempus post finitam episcopi visitationem, et detectiones receptas, eorum fontium nomina et delicta, quos in proxima ipsius visitatione praesentari contigerit, sua subscriptione et sigillo verificata, ad archidiaconum, vel ejus officialem, in praedictum finem, transmittat. Quod si dicti officarii vel seinvicem, sicut praefertur, instituere ac informare omiserint, vel post factam ejusmodi informationem, personas aut culpas in aliena visitatione detectas et praesentatas, attigerint, tunc eorum quilibet sic delinquens ab omni jurisdictionis suae exercitio per episcopum dioecesanum eatenus suspendetur, donec expensas omnes per hanc molestiam susceptas personae gravatae restituerit.

Quotiescunque in curia aliqua ecclesiastica, ad quemlibet hujus provinciae episcopum spectante, contra ministrum accusatio instituetur, cancellarius, commissarius, officialis, vel quivis alius ecclesiasticam jurisdictionem obtinens, cujus intererit, causam omnem per processum, aliasque vias et modos adversus eum expediet, ejusque in non comparendo contumaciam primo suspensionis, eandem vero continuatam excommunicationis poena ulciscetur. Sin autem debite comparens legitimo juris processui se submiserit, tunc, ubi causae maturitas sententiam postularit, si forte delicti meritum vel deprivationem vel depositionem a sacris ordinibus ex decreto juris exigat; nullam ejusmodi sententiam per quamlibet personam pronunciari volumus, praeterquam per episcopum, adhibitis ipsius cancellario, et decano, si commode id fieri potest, et aliquot praebendariis, si prope ecclesiam cathedralem dicta curia teneatur, vel archidiacono, modo ejus facultas detur, aliisque duobus ad minus gravibus ministris, ac eisdem concionatoribus,

Nullus cancellarius, commissarius, archidiaconus, officialis, aut alius quilibet ecclesiasticam jurisdictionem exercens, actum aliquod judiciale expediet, sive contentiosae, sive voluntariae jurisdictionis, nisi adhibito ordinario ejusdem curiae registrario, vel ejus legitimo deputato; aut si is vel ii nolint aut nequea nt interesse, tum aliis personis authenticis, quae eadem acta conscribant aut expediant, sub poena suspensionis ipso facto subeundae.

Nullus cancellarius, commissarius, archidiaconus, officialis, aut alius quilibet jurisdictione utens ecclesiastica, plura, quam unum duntaxat sigillum citra episcopi consensum habebit, pro omnibus, quaecunque in ipsius officium inciderint, sigillandis. Quod quidem sigillum custodietur semper aut penes ipsum, aut penes illius substitutum legitimum, ejus vice jus dicentem, necnon infra ipsius jurisdictionem, vel saltem in urbe aut oppido ejusdem comitatus principali commorantem. Hoc sigillum titulum ejus jurisdictionis continebit, quam quisque praedictorum judicum, aut deputatorum exercet.

Omnes cancellarii, commissarii, archidiaconi, officiales, caeterique judices ecclesiastici curias suas de mandato vel consensu episcopi dioecesanum in talibus locis instituent, qui ad eos, quos in eisdem comparere oportet, excipiendos idonei, et ad laborem itineris minuendum maxime commodi videbuntur. Similiter etiam curias suas intra horas competentes inchoabunt ac dissolvent, ita ut quisque, quantum fieri potest, mature et tempestive domum suam possit repetere.

Cum decani, archidiaconi, praebendarii, rectores, vicarii, alique ecclesiastica jurisdictione fungentes, omnium infra suas respective jurisdictiones defunctorum testamenta probandi immunitatem sibi vendicent, neque tamen cognitos ullos aut certos habeant registrarios, vel locum publicum registrarum suorum tutae custodiae deputatum; unde saepius evenerit, testamenta, jura, et legata quamplurima per dictorum judicum mortem, aut mutationem perire ac intercidere, in maximum subitorum praejudicium ac dispendium; statuimus et ordinamus, ut singuli peculiarem ejusmodi jurisdictionem possidentes ac exercentes, semel quotannis referant in publicum archivum episcopi dioecesanum, vel decani et capituli, infra cujus ditionem peculiares illae jurisdictiones extiterint, omnia testamenta originalia per ipsos infra peculiares suas jurisdictiones respective eo anno probata; vel verum saltem eorundem exemplar per dictum judicem peculiarem, ejusque notarium examina um, subscriptum, et consignatum. Quod si quis judicum praedictorum in eo deliquerit, is per episcopum dioecesanum, vel decanum et capitulum, ad quos illa jurisdictio respective pertinebit, omni peculiaris jurisdictionis exercitio eousque privabitur, quoad hanc nostram constitutionem debite adimpleverit.

Nullus in posterum ad officium cancellarii, commissarii, aut officialis admittetur ad jurisdictionem quamlibet ecclesiasticam exercendam, nisi qui vicesimum sextum ad minus aetatis suae annum compleverit, et qui in jure civili et canonico eruditus existat, sitque ad minimum magister artium, aut in jure bacalareus, ac in praxi et causis forensibus laudabiliter exercitatus, necnon recte affectus, et religioni studiose deditus, de cujus vita et moribus nullus sinister fermo audiatur; ac insuper nisi priusquam talis cujusque officii functionem, aut exercitium adeat, in supremam regis auctoritatem in causis ecclesiasticis coram episcopo, vel publice in curia juraverit; ac religionis articulos in synodo, Anno M.D.LXII, communiter conclusos, subscriptione sua comprobaverit; et etiam juratus receperit se integre et ex aequo, pro capto suo, jus redditurum, absque omni intuitu vel gratiae, vel mercedis; quorum utique juramentorum, ac subscriptionis per registrarium tum praesentem actum conscribetur. Haud secus omnes cancellarii, commissarii, officiales, registrarii, alique quotquot jurisdictionis, sive ministerii ecclesiafici locum aliquem in praesenti possident, aut exercent, citra festum Nativitatis proxime venturum, coram archiepiscopo, aut episcopo, vel etiam in aperta curia, sub quo, et in qua muneribus suis funguntur, eadem juramenta subire, et, prout superius dictum est, subscribere tenebuntur. Quod si facere recusaverint, a munerum suorum executione eousque suspendentur, quoad juramenta praemissa, et subscriptionem, ut supra, praestiterint.

Nullus cancellarius, commissarius, archidiaconus, officialis, aut alius quicunque ecclesiastica jurisdictione praeditus, aliquem ad curiam sui absentis loco tenendum quovis tempore deputabit, nisi qui gravis minister fuerit, idemque graduatus; vel pro concionatore publico legitime receptus, ac prope ejusmodi consistoria beneficiatus; vel qui in legibus bacalareus, aut in artibus magister ad minimum extiterit, ac in jure civili et canonico scientiam habuerit competentem, et de verae religionis studio, sobriusque ac honesto vitae cultu fuerit commendatus; sub poena suspensionis ab executione officiorum pro singulis delictis spatium trium mensium toties,

prorsus censurae, modo et forma praemissis, subiacebit.

De Procuratoribus.

CXXIX. Procuratores, nisi de partis mandato autentico, causas attingere prohibiti.

Nullus deinceps in aliqua causa procurabit, nisi ab ipso litigante apud acta curiae fuerit constitutus, vel in ipso litis ingressu illius vero et sufficienti procuratorio fulciatur. Sufficiens vocamus, quod autentico aliquo sigillo munitur, approbatione item, aut saltem ratihabitione constituentis eodem accedente. Ejusmodi vero procuratoria omnia quamprimum confici volumus, et a procuratoribus exhiberi, ac in publicis ejusdem curiae scriniis per registrarium salva custodiri. Qui ex registrariis vel procuratoribus secus in istorum aliquo fecerit, bimestri suspensione ab exercitio officii sui, absque omni spe relaxationis, aut restitutionis, ferietur.

Ad minuendas et consopandas lites, ac litigantium querelas tollendas, qui procuratorum incuria ac negligentia, vel etiam inscitia multoties causa cadunt; necnon ad incrementum bonarum literarum, jurisque civilis et canonici propagationem; juxta laudabiles consuetudines in curiis archiepiscopi Cantuariensis hactenus observatas, statuimus et ordinamus, ut nullus procurator ibidem exercens absque advocati alicujus consilio quamlibet causam suscipiat, ac per duos dies juridicos retineat, sub poena suspensionis annuae ab officii sui executione; nec iudici potestas erit, absque expresso archiepiscopi mandato et auctoritate, hujus poenae gratiam ullatenus faciendi.

Non admittet aliquis iudex in curiis archiepiscopi praedictis libellum, aut aliam quamlibet materiam, sine consilio et subscriptione alicujus advocati ad exercendum ibidem admissi; neque vero procuratoribus licebit in causa concludere, nisi de notitia advocati in eadem causa adhiberi et salariati. Si quis vero procurator contrafecerit, aut fieri procuraverit; vel etiam advocatum quocunque praetextu suo fraudaverit stipendio aut salario, vel in avvocato consulendo, quid in causa fieri expediat, negligentior fuerit; eidem suspensionem semestrem a muneris sui executione, sine spe veniae interim consequendae decernimus.

Cum in testamentorum probationibus, administrationumque bonorum ab intestato decedentium petitionibus, juramentum per procuratores curiarum in animam constituentis praestitum, multis patere incommodis sit perspectum; cautum deinceps esse volumus, ut quilibet executor, vel bonorum defuncti administrationem petens, iudicem in hac parte ordinarium, vel ejus surrogatum personaliter adeat, et juramentum usitatum per se, et non per procuratorem aliquem praestet. Si tamen vel valetudinis, vel aetatis incommodo, vel alia causa legitima impeditus in propria persona iudicem adire nequeat; permittimus, ut, fide super impedimenti veritate per excusatorem fide dignum prius facta, iudex gravi alicui viro ecclesiastico partis habitationi vicino commissionem concedat, per quem juramentum usitatum dicto executori vel administrationem petenti, vice sua ministrandi eidem viro ecclesiastico potestatem tradat, eumque roget, ut quid in praemissis fecerit, per nuncium fidelem se postea certiores reddat. Provisio semper, quod nullus iudex, vel registrarius, pro ejusmodi commissione scribenda, concipienda, aut sigillanda, ultra summam sex solidorum et octo denariorum quoquomodo accipiet; cujus dimidium iudici, et dimidium ejusdem curiae registrario cedit.

Quoniam experientia compertum est, procuratorum vociferationes, et clamores in curiis archiepiscopi non modo iudicibus et advocatis molestiam et offensionem parere; sed et astantibus causam contemptus et calumniae adversus curiam ipsam praebere; quo melius dignitati iudicis consulatur, causaeque facilius et commodius tractentur, et expediantur, mandamus et praecipimus, ut procuratores in curiis praedictis praecipue in id intendant, ut juxta consilium advocatorum acta per registrarium bona fide conscribantur, ut ab omni strepitu, et verborum contentione abstineant, et modeste se gerant, ac loquentibus iudicibus aut advocatis, vel eorum aliquo, protinus conticescant, sub poena silentii imponendi per duos terminos inde sequentes. Et si eorum aliquis pluries deliquerit, neque debita interposita admonitione se emendaverit, a praedicti muneris exercitio in perpetuum arceatur.

Si quis registrarius, vel ipsius assignatus aut deputatus qualiscunque certificatoria receperit sine consensu iudicis, quem pro tribunali sedere contigerit; vel sponte omiserit praeconizari fa-

cere quemlibet citatum aut assignatum ad comparandum die aliquo juridico; aut testes in diem a iudice praestitutum examinandos indebite distulerit; aut iudiciali et legitima monitioni iudicis non paruerit; aut si neglexerit citationes et decreta ante proximum diem iudicum dicum exequenda, et per nuncios speciales emittenda transcribere; aut non curaverit testamenta omnia infra tempus idoneum in registrum conscribi; vel si quid falsum et ex se commentum, ac non per judicem pronunciatum, tanquam judicis decretum in acta retulerit; aut in transmissione processuum ad judicem, "ad quem" aliquid falsi inseruerit, aut quicquam sive dolo malo, sive lata negligentia omiserit; aut munera in favorem alterutrius partis in causis instantiae, vel promotis ex officio acceperit; aut alterutri partium litigantium a consiliis directe vel indirecte fuerit; aut in executione officii sui aliud malitiose aut subdole fecerit, unde judex ecclesiasticus, aut ejus jurisdictio possit infamari; volumus et ordinamus, eundem registrarium, aut ejus assignatum et deputatum in praemissis, aut eorum aliquo delinquentem a suo munere ac officio, per inum, duos, tres, aut plures menses, pro delicti ratione, per episcopum dioecesanum suspendi; publicumque aliquem notarium per episcopum deputari, qui, durante ejusmodi poena, omnia dicti registrarii officium contingentia exequatur.

CXXXV. Feodorum, quae juris ecclesiastici administris debentur, census debet esse statarius.

Nullus episcopus, suffraganeus, cancellarius, commissarius, archidiaconus, officialis, aut alius ecclesiasticam jurisdictionem quamcunque exercens, nec ullus cujuslibet curiae ecclesiasticae registrarius, vel administrator quicunque dictis officiariis vel curiis subserviens, pro qualibet causa in illorum curiis promota, alia aut majora feoda sive salaria deinceps recipiet, quam ea, quae anno M.D.XCVII. reverendissimo patri D. Johanni, nuper Cantuariensi archiepiscopo, certificata, et ab eodem rata sunt, et approbata. Quodsi quis judex aut registrarius, vel eorum minister aliquis contrafecerit, pro singulis ejusmodi delictis per sex menses officii sui exercitio privabitur. Proviso semper, quodsi dubium aliquod de talium feodorum, aut eorum cujuslibet certa summa oriri contigerit, tum ea feoda pro legitimis judicabuntur, quae per archiepiscopum Cantuariensem pro tempore existentem sub manus suae subscriptione erunt approbata, nisi statuta hujus regni hactenus edita in particulari aliquo casu alia expresse praestiterint. Proviso etiam, quod nihil salarii aut pecuniae recipietur, vel per archiepiscopum, vel per episcopum, aut suffraganeum ullum directe aut indirecte pro quolibet in sacros ordines suscipiendo; nec quod aliqua persona vel personae eisdem archiepiscopo, episcopo, vel suffraganeo subservientes, pro membrana, scriptione, cera, sigillatione, vel alia quavis causa hoc negotium contingente, supra decem solidos percipient, sub poenis hac in parte lege constitutis.

CXXXVI. Statarius feodorum census in tabulas relatus, publice in consistoriis et archivis proponendus.

Statuimus porro et ordinamus, ut cujusque judicis ecclesiastici registrarius tabulas binas, in quibus certae singulorum feodorum summae separatim exprimentur, publice figi curet et proponi; unam in consistorio, vel loco consueto, ubi dicta curia teneri solet; alteram in suo archivo; utramque in loco ita congruo, ut quilibet, cujus intererit, ejusdem inspiciendae, et legendae, vel etiam transcribendae liberam habeat facultatem: quod ante festum Nativitatis proxime futurum perfici volumus. Quodsi quis registrarius dictas tabulas juxta tenorem praemissorum publice figendas non curaverit, ab executione officii sui eoque suspendetur, quoad praemissa, modo et forma specificatis, perfecit; easque tabulas semel fixas si quando vel auferet, vel in fraudem hujus constitutionis ex loco, in quo primum positae erant, removeri, vel quovis pacto occultari patietur; tunc pro singulis ejusmodi delictis ab exercitio muneris sui per semestrem spatium suspendetur.

Cum non minima sit visitationis causa et effectus, ut episcopus, archidiaconus, aut alius visitans de statu, sufficientia, et facultatibus cleri, et aliorum visitandorum perfectiorem aliquam notitiam consequantur, aequum duximus, ut quilibet rector, vicarius, curatus, ludimagister, et alius quicunque licentiatas literas ordinum, institutionis, et inductionis, itemque dispensationes, licentias, et facultates suas quascunque in visitatione prima illius episcopi, vel in proxima post ejus admissionem exhibeat, per dictum visitantem approbandas, aut, si justa fuerit causa, rejiciendas; et si approbatae fuerint, per registrarium, uti moris est, consignandas; quodque feoda in visitationibus intuitu praemissorum consueta solvi, semel duntaxat tempore alicujus episcopi integra persolvantur; in reliquis vero ejusdem visitationibus, quamdiu in ea sede permanserit, dictorum feodorum dimidium tantum exigatur.

CXXXVIII. Apparitorum excessus coerciti.

Quoniam excessibus et gravaminibus, quae per apparitores inferri dicuntur, remedium cupimus adhibere opportunum; censemus apparitorum multitudinem, quantum fieri poterit, restringendam. Statuimus ergo et ordinamus, nullatenus licitum fore episcopis vel archidiaconis, eorumve vicariis seu officialibus, aliisque inferioribus ordinariis deputare et habere plures apparitores, jurisdictionibus suis respective in-servientes, quam ante triginta annos praeteritos vel ipsi, vel ipsorum praedecessores habere consueverunt; qui omnes per se suum fideliter exequantur officium, nec per nuncios aut substitutos, quocunque quaesito colore, sua vice mandatorum executiones demandent, aut permittant, nisi ex causa a loci ordinario prius cognita et approbata; neque vero promotorum officii, vel denunciatorum personas omnino sustinebunt, feodave ampliora vel majora, quam quae his constitutionibus superius statuuntur, ullatenus nus exigit. Quodsi vel plures, quam superius est expressum, deputati extiterint, vel illorum aliqui praemissa violaverint; deputantes, si episcopi sint, per superiorem moniti supernumerarios dimittant; si ordinarii episcopis inferiores, ab executione officii suspendantur, donec hujusmodi deputatos amoverint: deputati autem ipsi ab apparitorum officio amoveantur perpetuo, et si amoti non desistant, tanquam contumaces, canonicis censuris coerceantur; proviso semper, quodsi archiepiscopus Cantuariensis experientia compertum habuerit, apparitorum numerum in aliqua dioecesi redundare, tum omnem ejusmodi redundantiam dicto archiepiscopo relinquimus, pro ipsius beneplacito minuendam.

CXXXIX. Synodus nationalis ecclesia repraesentativa.

Quisquis de caetero affirmabit, sacrosanctam hujus nationis synodum in Christi nomine, ac de regis mandato congregatam, non esse repraesentative veram ecclesiam Anglicanam, excommunicetur; nequaquam absolvendus, priusquam resipuerit, et impium hunc errorem publice revocarit.

CXL. Synodi acta tam absentes, quam praesentes obligant.

Quisquis de caetero affirmabit, nullos five clericos five laicos, qui in eadem sacra synodo personaliter non convenerint, ejusdem decretis, ecclesiasticas causas concernentibus, quantumvis ex suprema regiae majestatis auctoritate conditis, et per eandem ratihabitis, ullatenus obligari, ut quibus ipsi votum et consensum suum non prae-buerint, excommunicetur; nequaquam absolvendus, priusquam resipuerit, ac impium hunc errorem publice revocarit.

Quisquis de caetero affirmabit, dictam sacram synodum, congregatam ut supra, fuisse coetum ex talibus conflatum, qui in pios et religiosos evangelii professores conspirabant, ac proinde tum ipsos, tum ipsorum acta in canonibus five constitutionibus circa causas ecclesiasticas ex regis auctoritate, ut praedictum est, condendis ac sancendis rejici, ac contemni debere, quantumvis eadem per dictam potestatem regiam, ac supremam ejusdem auctoritatem ratihabitae, confirmatae, ac injectae sint, excommunicetur; haudquaquam absolvendus, priusquam resipuerit, ac impium hunc errorem publice revocarit.

Welwood's Memoirs p. 32.

Good doctor Abbot.

I CANNOT abstain to give you my judgment of your proceedings in your convocation, as you call it; and both as "rex in solio" and "unus gregis in ecclesia" I am doubly concerned. My title to the crown no body calls in question, but they that neither love you nor me; and you guess whom I mean. All that you and your brethren have said of a king in possession (for that word I tell you, is no worse than that you make use of in your canon) concerns not me at all; I am the next heir, and the crown is mine by all rights you can name, but that of conquest, and Mr. Solicitor has sufficiently expressed my own thoughts concerning the nature of kingship in general, and concerning the nature of it, "ut in mea persona:" and I believe you were all of his opinion; at least none of you said ought contrary to it, at the time he spake to you from me. But you know all of you, as I think, that my reason of calling you together, was to give your judgments how far a christian, and a protestant king may concur to assist his neighbours, to shake off their obedience to their once sovereign, upon the account of oppression, tyranny, or what else you like to name it. In the late queen's time this kingdom was very free in assisting the Hollanders both with arms and advice. And none of your coat ever told me, that any scrupled about it in her reign. Upon my coming to England you may know that it came from some of yourselves to raise scruples about this matter. And albeit I have often told my mind concerning "jus regium in subditos," as in May last in the Star-chamber, upon the occasion of Hales his pamphlet, yet I never took any notice of these scruples, till the affairs of Spain and Holland forc'd me to it. All my neighbours call on me to concur in the treaty between Holland and Spain; and the honour of the nation will not suffer the Hollanders to be abandoned, especially after so much money and men spent in their quarrel. Therefore I was of the mind to call my clergy together, to satisfy not so much me, as the world about us, of the justness of my owning the Hollanders at this time. This I needed not have done, and you have forced me to say, I wish I had not. You have dipped too deep in what all kings reserve among the "arcana imperii." And whatever aversion you may profess against God's being the author of sin, you have stumbled upon the threshold of that opinion, in saying upon the matter, that even tyranny is God's authority, and should be reverenc'd as such. If the king of Spain should return to claim his old pontifical right to my kingdom, you leave me to seek for others to fight for it; for you tell us upon the matter before hand, his authority is God's authority, if he prevail.

"Thus far the secretary's hand, as I take it; the rest follows in the king's own hand:" Mr. Doctor. I have no time to express my mind farther in this thorny business, I shall give you my orders about it by Mr. Solicitor, and until then meddle no more in it, for they are edge tools, or rather like that weapon, that's said to cut with the one edge, and cure with the other: I commit you to God's protection, good Doctor Abbot, and rest

A proclamation enjoining conformity to the form of the service of God established.

THE care, which we have had, and pains, which we have taken to settle the affairs of this church of England in an uniformity as well of doctrine, as of government, both of them agreeable to the word of God, the doctrine of the primitive church, and the laws heretofore established for those matters in this realm, may sufficiently appear by our former actions. For no sooner did the infection of the plague, reigning immediately after our entry into this kingdom, give us leave to have any assembly, but we held at our honour of Hampton court for that purpose a conference between some principal bishops and deans of this church, and such other learned men as understood or favoured the opinions of those that seek alteration, before ourself and our council. Of which conference the issue was, that no well grounded matter appeared to us or our said council, why the state of the church here by law established, should in any material point be altered. Nor did those that before had seemed to affect such alteration, when they heard the contrary arguments, greatly insist upon it, but seemed to be satisfied themselves, and to undertake within reasonable time to satisfy all others that were misled with opinion, that there was any just cause of alteration. Whereupon we published by our proclamation what had been the issue of that conference, hoping that when the same should be made known, all reasonable men would have rested satisfied with that which had been done, and not have moved further trouble or speech of matters, whereof so solemn and advised determination had been made. Notwithstanding at the late assembly of our parliament there wanted not many, that renewed with no little earnestness the questions before determined, and many more as well about the book of Common prayer, as other matters of church government, and importuned us for our assent to many alterations therein; but yet with such success, as when they had heard both our own speeches made unto them at sundry times, shewing the reasons of our former proceedings in those matters, and likewise had had conference with some bishops and other lords of the upper house about the same, they desisted from further prosecution thereof; finding that of all things that might any way tend to the furtherance of religion, and establishment of a ministry fit for the same, we had before with the advice of our council had such consideration, as the present state of things would bear, and taken order how the same should be prosecuted by such means, as might be used without any public disturbance or innovation: and so the end of all their motions and overtures falling out to be none other in substance, than was before at the conference at Hampton court, that is, that no apparent or grounded reason was shewed, why either the book of Common prayer, or the church discipline here by law established, should be changed (which were unreasonable) considering that particular and personal abuses are remediable otherwise, than by making general alterations; we have thought good once again to give notice thereof to all our subjects by public declaration, who we doubt not but will receive great satisfaction, when they shall understand that after so much impugning, there appeareth no cause, why the form of the service of God, wherein they have been nourished so many years, should be changed; and consequently to admonish them all in general to conform themselves thereunto, without listening to the troublesome spirits of some persons, who never receive contentment, either in civil or ecclesiastical matters, but in their own fantasies, especially of certain ministers, who underpretended zeal of reformation, are the chief authors of divisions, and sects among our people. Of many of which, we hope that now, when they shall see that such things, as they have proposed for alteration, prove upon trial so weakly grounded, as deserve not admittance, they will out of their own judgment conform themselves to better advice, and not omit the principal and substantial parts of their duties, for shadows and semblances of zeal, but rather bend their strength with our intent to join in one end, that is the establishing of the gospel, and recovering of our people seduced out of the hands of the common adversaries of our religion, which shall never be well performed but by an uniformity of our endeavours therein. But if our hope herein fail us, we must advertise them, that our duty towards God requireth at our hands, that what untractable men do not perform upon admonition, they must be compelled unto by authority, whereof the supreme power resting in our hands, by God's ordinance, we are bound to use the same in nothing more, than in preservation of the churches tranquillity, which by God's grace we are fully purposed to do. And yet by advice of our council, and opinion of the bishops, although our former proclamations both before the conference and since, since, ought to be a sufficient warning and admonition to all men, who are within the danger of them, we have thought good to give time to all ministers disobedient to the orders of the church, and to ecclesiastical authority here by law established, and who for such disobedience, either in the days of the queen our sister of famous memory deceased, or since our reign have incurred any censures of the church, or penalties of laws, until the last of November now next ensuing, to bethink themselves of the course they will hold therein.

In which mean time both they may resolve either to conform themselves to the church of England, and obey the same; or else to dispose of themselves and their families some other ways, as to them shall seem meet: and the bishops and others whom it concerneth, provide meet persons to be substitutes in the place of those, who shall willfully abandon their charges upon so slight causes, assuring them, that after that day, we shall not fail to do that, which princely providence requireth at our hands; that is, to put in execution all ways and means that may take from among our people all grounds and occasions of sects, divisions and unquietness: whereof as we wish there may never be occasion given us to make proof, but that this our admonition may have equal force in all men's hearts, to work an universal conformity; so we do require all archbishops, bishops and other ecclesiastical persons, to do their utmost endeavours by conferences, arguments, persuasions, and by all other ways of love and gentleness to reclaim all that be in the ministry, to the obedience of our church laws: for which purpose only we have enlarged the time formerly prefixed for their remove or reformation, to the end that if it be possible, that uniformity, which we desire, may be wrought by clemency, and by weight of reason, and not by rigour of law. And the like advertisement do we give to all civil magistrates, gentlemen, and others of understanding, as well abroad in the counties, as in cities and towns, requiring them also, not in any sort to support, favour, or countenance any such factious ministers in their obstinacy; of whose endeavours we doubt not, but so good success may follow, as this our admonition, with their endeavours, may prevent the use of any other means to retain our people in their due obedience to us, and in unity of mind, to the service of almighty God.

Given at our manor of Otlands the 16th day of July, in the second year of our reign of England, France, and Ireland, and of Scotland the seven and thirtieth, anno Domini M.DC.IV.

The kings letter to the bishop of London about translating the Bible. Reg. III. Whitgift fol. 155.

AFTER my hearty commendations unto your lordship. I have received letters from his most excellent majesty, the tenor whereof followeth: Right trusty and well-beloved, we greet you well. Whereas we have appointed certain learned men, to the number of four and fifty, for the translating of the Bible, and that in this number, divers of them have either no ecclesiastical preferment at all, or else so very small, as the same is far unmeet for men of their deserts, and yet we of ourself in any convenient time cannot well remedy it; therefore we do hereby require you, that presently you write in our name as well to the archbishop of York, as to the rest of the bishops of the province of Cant. signifying unto them, that we do will, and straightly charge every one of them, as also the other bishops of the province of York, as they tender our good favour towards them, that (all excuses set apart) when any prebend or parsonage, being rated in our book of taxations, the prebend to twenty pound at the least, and the parsonage to the like sum and upwards, shall next upon any occasion happen to be void, and to be either of their patronage and gift, or the like parsonage so void to be of the patronage and gift of any person whatsoever, they do make stay thereof, and admit none unto it, untill certifying us of the avoidance of it, and of the name of the patron (if it be not of their own gift) we may commend for the same some such of the learned men, as we shall think fit to be preferred unto it; not doubting of the bishops readiness to satisfy us herein, or that any of the laity, when we shall in time move them to so good and religious an act, will be unwilling to give us the like due contentment and satisfaction; we ourselves having taken the same order for such prebends and benefices as shall be void in our gift. What we write to you of others, you must apply it to yourself, as also not forget to move the said archbishop and all the bishops, with their deans and chapters of both provinces, as touching the other point to be imparted otherwise by you unto them. Furthermore we require you, to move all our bishops to inform themselves of all such learned men within their several dioceses, as having especial skill in the Hebrew and Greek tongues, have taken pains, in their private studies of the Scriptures, for the clearing of any obscurities either in the Hebrew or in the Greek, or touching any difficulties or mistakings in the former English translation, which we have now commanded to be thoroughly viewed and amended, and thereupon to write unto them earnestly charging them, and signifying our pleasure therein, that they send such their observations either to Mr. Lively, our Hebrew reader in Cambridge, or to Dr. Harding, our Hebrew reader in Oxford, or to Dr. Andrews, dean of Westminster, to be imparted to the rest of their several companies;

panies; that so our said intended translation may have the help and furtherance of all our principal learned men within this our kingdom. Given under our signet at our palace of Westm. the two and twentieth of July, in the second year of our reign of England, France, and Ireland, and of Scotland xxxvii. Your lordship may see, how careful his majesty is for the providing of livings for these learned men; I doubt not therefore, but your lordship will have a due regard of his majesty's request herein, as it is fit and meet, and that you will take such order both with your chancellor, register, and such your lordship's officers, who shall have intelligence of the premises, as also with the dean and chapter of your cathedral church, whom his majesty likewise requireth to be put in mind of his pleasure herein, not forgetting the latter part of his majesty's letter, touching the informing of yourself of the fittest linguists within your diocese for to perform, and speedily to return that, which his majesty is so careful to have faithfully performed. I could wish your lordship, would, for my discharge, return me in some few lines, the time of the receipt of these letters, that I may discharge that duty, which his majesty, by these his letters, hath laid upon me: and so I bid your lordship right heartily farewell. The bishop of London's letter about the expenses in translating the Bible. Reg. III.

Whitgift fol. 156.

"SALUTEM in Christo." My very good lord, as touching that clause in his majesty's letter, which is referred to my relation, this it is: there are many, as your lordship perceiveth, who are to be employed in this translating of the Bible, and fundry of them must of necessity have their charges borne, which his majesty was very ready of his most princely disposition to have borne; but some of my lords, as things now go, did hold it inconvenient, whereupon it was left to me, to move all my brethren the bishops, and likewise every several dean and chapters, to contribute toward this work. Accordingly therefore to my duty, I heartily pray your lordship, not only to think yourself what is meet for you to give for this purpose, but likewise to acquaint your dean and chapter not only with the said clause of his majesty's letter, but likewise with the meaning of it, that they may agree upon such a sum, as they mean to contribute. I do not think that a thousand marks will finish the work, to be employed as is afore said, whereof your lordship, with your dean and chapter, having due consideration, I must require you in his majesty's name, according to his good pleasure in that behalf, that as soon as possibly you can, you send me word, what shall be expected from you and your said dean and chapter; for I am to acquaint his majesty with every man's liberality towards this most godly work. And thus not doubting of your especial care for the accomplishing of the premises, and desiring your lordship to note the date to me of your receipt of this letter, I commit your Lordship unto the tuition of the almighty God. The council's letter for proceeding against the nonconformitans of the clergy.

Reg. Bancroft fol. 127. a.

"SALUTEM in Christo." I have received a letter from the lords of his majesty's most honourable privy council, whereof your lordship is to take notice, the copy whereof followeth word for word: After our hearty commendations to your lordship. Forasmuch as the time is now expired, which by his majesty's late proclamation, dated the sixteenth day of July last, was prescribed and limited to all those of the clergy, for the conforming of themselves unto the laws and orders of the church government established within this realm, that have heretofore, under a pretended zeal of reformation, but indeed of a factious desire of innovation, refused to yield their obedience and conformity thereunto; by means whereof, all such as persist in that wilful disobedience are subject to the penalty of deprivation from their benefices, and other church livings, of deposition from their ministry, and other censures of the church, which were as well at all times heretofore, as presently, in vigor and force; although his majesty maketh no doubt, but that your lordship throughout your province, and the rest of the bishops, every one in his own diocese, will have regard to the execution of the said laws and constitutions in such sort, as is meet and necessary for the uniformity of the church church discipline; nevertheless such is the great care and zeal of his most excellent majesty, for a due proceeding to be had in a matter of so great consequence, as this is, of redressing and reforming all offensive and scandalous divisions in the church, as also to remove an illgrounded opinion and conceit, wherewith, as it seemeth, divers have nourished and flattered their own disobedience, presuming on a further enlargement of time and toleration, than hath been granted or is intended by his majesty; as we cannot omit both to assist your own readiness with our advice and concurrence of judgment, and that which is much more, to give you knowledge of the expectation his majesty hath of your proceedings herein. For although it be much more agreeable to his most gracious mind and clemency, to heal and cure such distemperatures by lenity and gentleness, than by severity; as hath well appeared by the conferences that his majesty heretofore hath ordained to be had in his own presence, by the course of advice and persuasion, that he hath prescribed to be holden by those, that are of chief place and authority in the church, and lastly by giving time and respite, more than once, unto such persons either misled or unresolved, to conform themselves upon better advisement; nevertheless his majesty is well pleased to have it known, that he is as far from alteration of his purpose to work an uniformity, as they are importunate in their unjust desire of innovation, and expecteth that from henceforth, without delay, where advice prevaieth not, authority shall compel, and that the laws shall be put in execution, where admonition taketh not effect; the penalty whereof they that will incur, must impute it unto their own obstinacy, being guilty of disobedience to his majesty, of uncharitableness unto any cure or charge that they have, and in dutifulness might hold, and to themselves for any grievance, or loss that they shall sustain; but as it is necessary, where unity is to be effected there men of unquiet and factious spirit should not have place; so because by the removing and displacing of them, opportunity and advantage may be taken by men of a corrupt mind and disposition (having the patronage and donation of some of the benefices so made void) to prefer ignorant and insufficient men into their places; his majesty therefore hath commanded us, in his name, to require you all, to take this especial charge upon you, that whosoever shall present any person to be admitted, not only in the rooms of any that shall be deprived, but in all others, your lordship shall duly inform yourself of the party's learning and integrity and to be as well answerable for his sufficiency to instruct his people, as to be conformable to his laws; a matter wherein the dependency upon the judgment of inferior officers hath brought great inconveniences, and whereof more especial care would now be had, seeing divers turbulent persons have mixed their complaints with this affirmation, that the names of good and understanding ministers shall now be supplied with idle drones and dumb images; which great enormity, as his majesty himself should abhor more than any other, so he doubteth not but your lordship, and the rest, will be most careful to extirpate all scandal and peril of any such effects of his religious care and wise directions, of which we need to use no further enlargement. What we have written in the premises to your lordship, his majesty requireth you forthwith to impart by your letters to all the bishops of your province, charging them, as they will answer the contrary at their perils, to omit no occasion, diligence, and care, for the due execution of this charge and duty thus committed and commanded, in his majesty's name, unto them: and so we bid your lordship very hartily farewell. From Whitehall the tenth of December, M.DC.IV. Your very loving friends T. Ellesmere, can. T. Dorset, Lenox, Nottingham, Suffolk, Northumberland, E. Worcester, H. Northampton, Cranborne, E. Zouche, W. Knollys, E. Wotton, Jo. Stanhope, Jo. Herbert. Your lordship having perused this letter, cannot but greatly rejoice at his majesty's constant resolution, and most honourable inclination of their lordships; and I doubt not but you will with all care, faith, and diligence accomplish the effect thereof. I have furthermore sent you herewith, not without some direction, the manner of such proceedings with the obstinate of the ministry, as I think fit to be generally observed by your lordship, and the rest of our brethren; for it will much further the service committed unto us, if we concur together in that course. And so with my very hearty commendations, I commit your lordship unto the tuition of almighty God. At Lambeth the 22^d of December, M.DC.IV.

Of such disobedient ministers some are already placed in the church, some are not; touching the second sort not placed, I doubt not, but that you will strictly observe the 36th and 37th canons made the last convocation, so as none of them be admitted hereafter to execute any ecclesiastical function without subscription, according to the tenor of the said canons: for the others already placed, as aforesaid, they are of two kinds, and might both of them, having heretofore subscribed, be (as revolvers from the same) by an ordinary course of justice, deposed from the ministry; the one offereth and promiseth conformity, but is as yet unwilling again to subscribe; the other in his obstinacy will be induced to yield to neither. Touching such as will be contented to observe the orders and ceremonies prescribed in the communion book, and fully to conform themselves accordingly to the use of their ministry; forasmuch as the near affinity between conformity and subscription doth give apparent hope, that being men of sincerity, they will in a short time frame themselves to a more constant course, and subscribe to that again, which they by their practice testify not to be repugnant to the word of God, your lordship may (an act being made to remain upon record of such their offer and promise) respite their subscription for some short time; advertising me of the names of every such person, with all convenient speed, that thereupon such further order may be taken, as shall be thought expedient in that behalf. Concerning those that utterly refuse both conformity and subscription, they are either curates, or stipendary preachers, commonly called lecturers, or men beneficed; for the two first, the interest they have in their places is only by license from their ordinary, and they are no longer to enjoy them "nisi quamdiu se bene gesserint", so as upon such their refusal, your lordship is to suspend them "ab officio;" which is in effect a deprivation to them, and consequently by the law they are not to be restored, until they shall both conform themselves and subscribe. As touching the third sort, for that it would not much trouble them, nor work the conformity that is desired, to put them to silence, if they might enjoy their benefices, because I suppose they have been heretofore particularly admonished by your lordship, but especially by his majesty's proclamation, dated the 16. of July, M.DC.IV. either to conform themselves to the church, and obey the same, or else dispose of themselves and their families some other way, as being men unfit, for their obstinacy and contempt, to occupy such places, they are in another sort to be proceeded with; for in refusing to conform themselves to the use of the communion book, or in derogating or depraving any thing therein contained, or any part thereof, they fall within the compass of divers laws, and particularly of the statute "primo Elizabethae" entituled "An act for uniformity" etc. and so are subject to deprivation. I wish your lordship diligently to peruse the said act, being printed with the communion book, and for your better satisfaction herein, do advertise you, that the lord chief justice, and Mr. attorney general being conferred with, are very resolute, that you may lawfully, by virtue thereof, so proceed against such obstinate persons. The form, which is to be used in their deprivation, your chancellor very well knoweth; only let me put you in mind of the CXXII^d canon, that your lordship in your own person pronounce the sentence; and if any by you so deprived, shall appeal to me, I will be careful to execute the 98th constitution for stay thereof, until the party shall subscribe: not doubting but that his majesty, if there be cause, will take the like order for the delegates. Furthermore, if any of the said disordered persons shall willingly transgress any of the first twelve canons, or of the three last, let the penalty therein mentioned, be duly and respectively inflicted upon them. I have not hitherto greatly liked of any severe course; but perceiving by certain instructions lately cast abroad, that the present opposition so lately prosecuted, doth rather proceed from a combination of sundry factious, who in the pride of their mind are loath to be foyled (as they term it) than of any religious care or true conscience; I have thought it very necessary, for the repressing of such irregular designments, earnestly to commend to your lordship the careful execution of these directions. And so with my very hearty commendations, I commit your lordship unto the tuition of the Almighty. At Lambeth the 22. of December, M.DC.IV.

"SALUTEM in Christo." I have written to your lordship before concerning your proceeding with your factious ministers, and that you should not desist by depriving one, two, or three at once, untill you have purged your diocese of them; now I am to signify unto you, that his most excellent majesty hath, with the admiration of all that heard him, most fully, rarely, and resolutely declared himself (as often heretofore) touching such courses, as he wisheth should be held with popish recusants, being most desirous to rid his kingdom as well of these pestiferous adversaries, as of the former; to which purpose he hath dealt very thoroughly and privily both with the lords of his right honourable privy council, and with his judges; expecting likewise that we, who are bishops, should not be negligent in discharging of our duties, so far as lieth in us, for the furthering and effecting of so royal and so religious a design.

designment. As therefore my place requireth, and not without due and careful deliberation, I do commend to your good lordship (as I also have done to the rest of our brethren) these particular points following to be thoroughly by you observed: first, your lordship is not to depend altogether upon the cxivth canon, expecting still the minister's diligence in presenting of recusants, but to use your own best endeavour, by the labour and means of all your officers and friends, to inform yourself as well of the number, as of the qualities of them; and the same to certify unto me with all convenient speed; secondly, because order and discretion in all proceedings are principally to be observed, (whereof without my advice, your lordship will be sufficiently mindful) and for that there being differences in the dispositions of the said popish recusants, and cannot all of them be reformed together, your lordship is to take notice by all the means before expressed, first, of all the recusants in your diocess, who they be, that are the most busy in seeking to seduce others either abroad, or at home to their own families, by bringing up their children in popery, and refusing to entertain any to serve them, especially in places of trust, that are not recusants; secondly, of all such persons of any note, who are become recusants, since his majesty's coming into England, and of them that are the most insolent, as the manner of those usually is, who are newly seduced; thirdly, these three observations thus premised, your lordship is to procure, as much as in you lieth, that for the faithful accomplishment of the lxvith canon, no pains may be spared in conferring with the said recusants, especially with the two sorts beforementioned, who are the heads and leaders of the rest, that thereby (if it be possible) they may be reduced from their errors, and no sweet or kind means omitted for the recovering of them to the truth; fourthly, in this conference you are to do your best for the reclaiming of those, that are already excommunicated in their private parishes, with whom (if such travail will nothing prevail) because it is either obstinately rejected, or wilfully contemned; then let them be publickly denounced in your cathedral church, for excommunicate persons, without any forbearance or partiality, according to the lxv. canon, if happily such a notorious punishment may be a means to bring them to repentance; fifthly, if you have in your diocess sundry of the first sort, of the said busy and seducing recusants, not yet excommunicated (with whom conference will prevail no more, than with the former beforementioned) then call two or three of the chiefest of them (for dignity, place, and perverseness, such as are heads and leaders of the rest) forthwith by your ordinary authority; and if either they will not appear, after sufficient admonition to be carefully executed, so as they may not plead any probable ignorance, or appearing, shall obstinately refuse to go to church (as our phrase is) let them be "in scriptis" excommunicated, and after forty days certified unto the chancery. This direction, touching the said first sort, will serve for the second, such as are of latter years revolted; sixthly, of those that before stood excommunicated, and so have been publickly denounced according to the said canon, if there be amongst them any of the said two sorts, then let two or three of the principallest of them, as is aforesaid, that have stood excommunicated forty days, be presently certified unto the said court. And for your better encouragement herein, if you shall advertise me of any such certificate, I will use my uttermost endeavour to procure the writ "De excommunicato capiendo," and take such order as that the same shall be faithfully and speedily served; that so they, who have not learned how to use their former liberty, may be better instructed by chastisement in prison. Your lordship knoweth, that the people are commonly carried away by gentlemen recusants, landlords, and some other ringleaders of that sort, so as the winning or punishing of one or two of them is a reclaiming, or kind of bridling of many, that do depend upon them; which hath induced me to prescribe to your lordship by the directions precedent such a moderation and course, as I think fit to be generally pursued; hoping that when they, who have been seduced under pretence of toleration, or I know not what vain imagined thing, shall hereby find that such disobedient persons are no longer to be borne with, but that the laws, made in that behalf, are carefully to be executed, they will be better advised, and reform themselves; and that the rest of such simple people will be more heedful hereafter, that they be not misled and carried away by lewd persuasions of any person whatsoever; lastly, we that are bishops, being all of us (as is supposed) justices of the peace, it is much marvelled, that so many priests and Jesuits range about in our diocesses, without any impeachment or regard almost had of them; we ourselves seldom or never seeking after them; it is said, that our remissness therein doth discourage the rest of the justices of peace from taking such pains in that behalf, as heretofore they have been accustomed, and that they would be as ready as they were to join with us in that service, if they might see our willingness thereunto, either by effecting something ourselves, or by our intelligence (having all the ministers of our diocese at our commandment) would give them our best directions, where those impostors might be met with, and apprehended. These things, I fear, may justly be objected against some of us; and I am driven now and then into some straits, how to excuse such our security; I do therefore very heartily pray your lordship, to think thereof, not that I have any cause to suspect you to be one of the number (if I shall speak properly) but rather to inform you, what is expected at our hands, that with better discouragement we may therein discharge our duties. And thus not doubting, but that your lordship will have due regard both of this last point, and likewise of all the premises, and letting you understand, that I keep the copy of this this my letter, that if any of our brethren shall neglect them, or any part of them, I may have the same for my discharge, and every one of us be driven to bear his own burthen; I commit your lordship, with my hearty commendations, unto the tuition of almighty God. From Lambeth the twelfth of March, M.DC.IV.

Your lordship's very loving freind and brother,

R. CANTUAR.

Postscript: After I had written this letter, I received, upon occasion, this direction from his majesty, that when your lordship depriveth any of your factious ministers for their obstinacy, you shall take such order with the next incumbent, as that the party so deprived may have two or three months liberty to remain still in the parsonage or vicarage house, if he have no other of his own; that so he may have that time to provide for himself, and not be thrust out into the streets upon a sudden.

The archbishop of Canterbury's letter touching double benefices. Reg. Bancroft fol. 131. b.

"SALUTEM in Christo." His majesty hath commanded me to procure, with all convenient speed, a true and exact relation of the names of all such persons, as do hold at this present two or more ecclesiastical preferments, whether they be with cure or without cure; I do therefore very heartily pray your lordship, and withal require you in his majesty's name, to send unto me, as soon as possible you can, the several names of every one within your dioecese, who is so preferred, together with the names of the benefices, prebends, dignities, and donatives, whereof they are possessed. Your lordship shall find some that have but one living in your dioecese, who have notwithstanding a second living in another dioecese, and thereof I desire you also to certify me with the names of the living, where it is; your lordship's chancellor, your archdeacons, and your register can presently (I hope) give you full notice of the premises, or if they cannot, you must send for them out of hand, and command them in his majesty's name, forthwith to inform themselves therein, that so from your lordship I may, with all convenient speed, have notice thereof. In your lordships relation to be sent unto me, I wish this order to be observed; First, Set down your dean, with the names of all his several preferments, the dioeceses where they lie, and the distance of miles betwixt such benefices, as he holdeth with cure; and so in order downwards, your archdeacons, your doctors of divinity, your batchelors of divinity, your masters and batchelors of arts, your civil lawyers, with their degrees, and those that have no degree at all, with their several livings, if they have above one of any nature whatsoever (being ecclesiastical preferments) with their names and distances, as is beforementioned. Your lordship shall find no difficulty in the performance of this, which is required, saving as touching those in your charge, that have livings elsewhere; and yet you shall easily overcome it by the diligence of your officers. It would be a long and a tedious work first for your lordship, and so every of our brethren the bishops, to advertise me of every one, who hath any ecclesiastical living, and then for me by reading of them altogether to observe, who hath two, three, etc. and besides displeasing to his majesty, who expecteth a more speedy certificate, which I do again mention, the rather to quicken your lordship's industry and pains in this a more speedy course. Again, I know not how it cometh to pass, but his majesty is informed, that such as have divers ecclesiastical livings, are very negligent not only in forbearing themselves to preach at any of them, or at least in preaching

ing very seldom, but likewise in supplying their own absence with very insufficient curates, either no preachers at all, or men very meanly qualified, and yet by means licensed to preach of purpose to stop that gap. I would your lordship had been present, and heard his majesty discourse thereof, and what grief he conceiveth, that men whom he so greatly favour-eth, and whose estates he so much endeavour-eth to maintain and support, should so greatly forget themselves, and neglect his majesty's most princely and religious desire, there being no one thing in the world which he more wisheth from his heart, than that his people should be instructed in the fear of God, and that they, who are possessed of divers livings, according to their former deserts, and for the countenancing of their degrees (having so many enemies that repine and bark at such their preferments) should discharge their duties with all faithfulness, to the comfort of their own consciences, and the preventing of all such exceptions; but the issue was this, that I should write to all the bishops of both provinces, and charge them in his majesty's name, that as they tender his most princely favour towards them, and as they will answer the contrary at their perils, presently they endeavour by all means to inform themselves, as well concerning the preaching of such, that have two benefices in their own persons, as also the sufficiency of their curates, and that they admonish such as they find any way defective in either, speedily to reform the same. How this general direction touched your lordship, you in your wisdom do very well perceive, and I doubt not but that you will accomplish the same for your part of it, according to his majesty's expectation; and that your lordship may be the better furnished with arguments, besides those, which are before mentioned, to persuade such of your clergy as you shall find to be within the compass of his majesty's said reprehension, to amend with all speed that which is amiss; there are two formerly resolved upon, in his most royal judgment and princely determination, which you are to acquaint them with, as there shall be cause: First, their dispensations (if no present amendment ensue) are to be called in question, and secondly, if any of them have any insufficient curates, and will not upon your lordship's admonition presently procure better, to your lordship's contentment, such as you yourself will answer for; then it is his majesty's pleasure, that you write unto me thereof, and that I and other my brethren, by virtue of his majesty's commission for causes ecclesiastical, calling every such person before us, who will not conform himself accordingly, shall out of hand appoint such a stipend, out of his living, as shall be fit to maintain an able and sufficient curate, to supply his absence and negligence, whilst the validity of his dispensation shall be in discussing. I trust (the late canons considered) that his majesty hath received more sharp informations, than will fall out upon your lordship's trial to be true, but his remembrance of the late session of parliament, and his desire to have all calumniators prevented in the next, which ensueth, do make his majesty exceeding earnest in these points; and therefore his further commandment is, that you shall not only inform yourself, and do as is aforesaid, but likewise write unto me in the mean time, to be imparted to his majesty, concerning the truth of the said information, which hath begotten and brought forth these his most princely cogitations and directions. And thus hoping that when we of the clergy are refined, there will some course be taken for such as have all the best ecclesiastical livings in the land, named impropriations, and yet make no conscience in suffering them to be served with very simple curates, God knoweth, such as will be content in effect to serve the same (as the disdainful speech of many runneth) for ten groats a year and a canvas dublet; I commit your lordship to the tuition of almighty God. The archbishop of Canterbury's mandate and commission for the visitation of the diocese of Bath and Wells. Reg. Bancroft fol. 181. b.

"SALUTEM in Christo." Mr. Doctor James, I have made choice of you to be a commissioner in this my visitation within the diocese of Bath and Wells, wherein there be divers things of weight to be considered, the burthen whereof I must specially lay upon you. For albeit I doubt not, but the rest of my commissioners will be ready to join with you, as occasion shall be offered, yet I must look for an accompt of these things at your hands alone, being specially appointed for the ordering and censuring of such misdemeanors, as shall be presented unto you, according to the tenor of my commission; and therefore, as I do desire, that you should have care to see all the canons and constitutions published by his majesty's authority to be carefully and diligently observed; so in particular, I do require you to see that the 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, the 59 and the 74 canons be truly and thorowly put in execution, all of them, concerning the increase of the preaching of the word of God; the catechising and instructing of the younger sort in the principles and grounds of christian religion; the sober and discreet carriage of the ministers and preachers; and the means to meet with and prevent that so much spoken against non-residency, the defects whereof you know have been been often, and so violently complained of in parliament. And therefore I must desire, that these things which are now so well ordered and settled by authority, may with all diligence be put in execution, and so I doubt not but it will give full satisfaction to all men of moderate and reasonable affections; and if you and others, whom it concerneth, will do that herein which is fit, I shall be the better able to answer for us all in parliament, when occasion shall be offered.

Further you know that there hath been many complaints against the taking of greater fees in ecclesiastical courts, than were fit, against the number of apparitors, and the offensive proceeding of office by inferior officers and their deputies; all which being now ordered by special constitutions, I do require you diligently to enquire of the offenders against any of them, and especially to foresee that no other, or greater fees be taken by any, of what quality soever, in this my visitation, than the table for your own diocese will warrant; wherein if any shall be found contemptuous or disobedient, those I would have you to make known unto myself, that their punishments may be made examples unto others. And above the rest, I would have you to look into peculiars and exempt jurisdictions, where many recusants of both sorts (as I am credibly informed) do remain, where many most ungodly and unlawful marriages are celebrated, and where many notorious and most lewd offenders are harboured and protected. I will leave the care of collecting my procurations unto yourself, or to such as you shall appoint thereunto; and lastly, tho' in my commission for the visitation I have been contented to name divers associates unto you; my meaning is not thereby to burthen the country with all their travel at once, but do leave it to your discretion, so to sort them, as that in every place where you shall sit, one or two of those ministers, whom I have therein named, and who are nearest to the places, where your sessions are kept, may accompany you. So nothing doubting of your best endeavour in this service, I bid you heartily farewell. From Lambeth the 28th day of May, M.DC.V.

Your very loving friend,

Articles for the cathedral church of Wells, to be enquired of in his grace's metropolitanical visitation, etc. Reg. Bancroft fol. 181. a.

IN PRIMIS, Whether every member of this church, at his first admission, doth swear to observe such statutes, as have been hitherto used as statutes, and not contrary to the laws of the realm of England?

II. Item, What other benefices ecclesiastical the dean, archdeacons, prebendaries, or other ecclesiastical persons of this church have, besides their rooms and places in this said church?

III. Item, How the 42, 43, and 44 chapters of the constitutions made the last convocation anno M.DC.IV. and confirmed by his majesty under the great seal of England, for the residencies of your dean and other prebendaries, as well upon their prebends, as upon their other benefices, are observed?

IV. Item, Whether the number of those that serve the quire, and all other ministers of this church, be kept full, and the quire sufficiently furnished with able singers, and daily service there sung according to the foundation of this church?

V. Item, Whether your divine service be used, and the sacraments administered in due time, and according to the book of common prayer, and by singing and note according to the statutes of this church?

VI. Item, Whether all the members of your church, especially the prebendaries and ecclesiastical persons, do use seemly garments and attires, as namely all graduates their surplice and hood for their degree of school, and other inferiors their surplice and cap, according to the canons and constitutions set forth by his majesty in the last convocation in "anno Domini" M.DC.IV.

VII. Item, Whether the prebendaries and preachers of your church do preach yearly the full number of sermons appointed by the statutes and ordinances of the said church, and the late constitutions ecclesiastical, in their own persons, or by others; and who doth most usually preach them; and how often have you sermons or lectures in the week in the cathedral church, and by whom, and what be the statutes of this church, in that behalf?

VIII. Item, whether the muniments and evidences of this church be safely kept; of what persons is the foundation of your cathedral church; namely of how many prebendaries, canons, petitcanons, vicars choral, choristers, virgers, grammar schoolmaster, and scholars, or other like; and who is bound to maintain and find them; and are they at this present full, and serve the church in their own persons, as by the law they ought to do?

IX. Item, Whether the choristers be well ordered, and the number of them furnished, and who hath the charge of catechising, and instructing of them in the principles of religion; and whether are they so brought up?

X. Item, Whether the officers of this church, namely, steward, treasurers, bursters, accomptants, and such like, do yearly make a true accompt of their receipts, and pay such money as is due to the church upon their accompts; and whether any such person be now indebted to the church, and in how much?

XI. Item,

XI. Item, Whether the cathedral church be sufficiently repaired both in the body, chancel, and all other isles and places belonging to the church; and by whose default it is unrepaired, and who ought to repair it?

XII. Item, Whether the prebendaries, and other the preachers of this church, in their sermons, do use to pray for the king's majesty, the queen, prince, and all his highness's issue; and to give unto his highness in their prayer, according to the late constitutions, his whole stile, and so do pursue the particulars in the said constitution appointed for that end to be observed?

XIII. Item, Whether there be within this church, or the precincts and limits thereof, any usurers, contrary to the statutes in that behalf made, drunkards, adulterers, fornicators, incestuous persons, simonists; open recusants of either sort, or such as neglect to repair to the church to service, or do not receive the communion thrice yearly, or are vehemently suspected of any of the crimes aforesaid, or any that be familiarly and daily conversant with recusants, or notorious papists, or harbourers and receivers of any such into their houses?

A Proclamation against certain calumnious surmises concerning the church government of Scotland.

WHEREAS we have, ever since it pleased God to establish us in the imperial crown of Great Britain, equally regarded the good of both the late kingdoms of Scotland and England, now happily united in our royal person in one monarchy, ever minding to maintain and continue the good and lawable customs and laws, whereby each of them hath been these many ages so worthily governed; nevertheless some malicious spirits, enemies to that common tranquillity so much desired by us (forgetting the many proofs both public and private, which we have given of that our gracious affection to that our native and ancient country of North-Britain, of the freedom, liberty, and privileges whereof we have at all occasions taken so special a patrociny, as the solemn assemblies of the estates of South Britain, and commissioners from the estates of both kingdoms have been eye witnesses) have not been ashamed to labour to pervert the minds of our best affected subjects; that whereas the insolent and factious carriage of some of them hath merited most severe animadversion, they would insinuate themselves in the commiseration of the multitude, by assuming unto them a glorious profession of the maintaining of the privileges and authorized discipline, intended by us (as they affirm) to be utterly overthrown by a sudden and unseasonable laying upon them at this present the rites, ceremonies, and whole ecclesiastical order established in the church of this part of our kingdom of Britain. And as we have ever carefully regarded, how convenient it is to maintain every country in that form of government, which is fittest and can best agree with the constitution thereof, and how dangerous alterations are without good advice and mature deliberation, and that even in matters of order of the church, in some small islands under our dominions, we have abstained from suffering any alteration; so doubt we not, but our good subjects will never be thus credulous contrary to the known truth, which hath ever appeared clearly in all our actions, as to be in any doubt, but as in all our proceedings we have been a patron of religion and justice (two inseparable conservers of all monarchies) so hath all our study and care ever been to retrench and reform all courses, that carried any prejudice to that integrity, whereat we have ever aimed: and as by so many good laws set forth in our government, justice hath attained to another perfection and splendor, than it had in any our predecessors times, and with painful and unpleasant business, we have in the discipline of the church taken away innumerable abuses and corruptions, which, if they had not been remedied, had brought the purity of religion in extream danger; yet we hope that none dare be so impudent as to affirm, that by our sovereign power, or absolute commandment we did the same (although we enjoyed our authority as freely as any king or monarch of the world) but as the disease of the civil body was ever cured by the advice of our three estates, so the defects of the church by the help and counsel of those who had greatest interest in them, so as the presumption of our by-gone actions in our administration, whilst we were present, the proof of our fatherly care towards this part of our kingdom since our residence here, may be sufficient to secure us against all such malicious calumniations. And however in rule of policy we cannot but judge it convenient that two estates so inseparably conjoined, should be drawn to as great conformity in all things, as the good of both may permit; and that no monarchy either in civil or ecclesiastical policy hath yet attained to that perfection, that it needs no reformation, or that infinite occasions may not arise, whereupon wise princes will foresee for the benefit of their states, just cause to alteration; yet are we and have ever been resolved, not to make any sudden or hasty change in the government of that part of our kingdom, either civil or ecclesiastical, but with grave advice and consent of our estates, and the wisest and best sort of them, whom it most properly concerns; much less to trouble them with any unnecessary alteration of indifferent and ceremonial matters, and that upon such foreseen advantages, and prevention of confusion and evil to come, as the greatest enemies of all peace;

peace, obedience to princes, and order in all governments shall not obtrude any inconvenience to the contrary. And as by God's holy assistance we have drawn that part of our kingdom out of infinite troubles, factions, and cruel barbarities, and reduced the uttermost borders and confines thereof to God's obedience and acknowledging of our laws (an estate never heard of before, since this island hath been inhabited) so by the same divine providence and our fatherly care over the whole island, we intend to transmit the same in good order, happy quietness, and flourishing policy to that posterity, wherewith God hath blessed us, and after them to the world's end; like as for the more verification of our honourable intention, and to stop the mouths of these unquiet spirits, raisers of that false scandal of alteration, we have appointed a general assembly to be holden at "Dundee" the last Tuesday of July, whereat we expect reparation of those disorders in so far as belongeth to their censure, and to be freed in time coming of all such calumnies. Given at our honour of Hampton court the 26. day of September in the third year of our reign of great Britain, France, and Ireland. Anno Domini M.DC.V.

Certain articles of abuses, which are desired to be reformed in granting of prohibitions; exhibited by Richard Bancroft, archbishop of Canterbury, in the name of the whole clergy to the lords of the privy council. Coke's II. Institut. fol. 601. seqq.

I. "HIS majesty hath power to reform abuses in prohibitions." The clergy well hoped, that they had taken a good course in seeking some redress at his majesty's hands concerning fundry abuses offered to his ecclesiastical jurisdiction, by the over frequent and undue granting of prohibitions; for both they and we supposed (all jurisdiction both ecclesiastical and temporal being annexed to the imperial crown of this realm) that his highness had been held to have had sufficient authority in himself, with the assistance of his council, to judge what is amiss in either of his said jurisdictions, and to have reformed the same accordingly; otherwise a wrong course is taken by us, if nothing may be reformed, that is now complained of, but what the temporal judges shall of themselves willingly yield unto. This is therefore the first point, which upon occasion lately offered before your lordships by some of the judges, we desire may be cleared, because we are strongly persuaded, as touching the validity of his majesty's said authority, and do hope we shall be able to justify the same, notwithstanding any thing that the judges or any other can alledge to the contrary.

II. "The forms of prohibitions prejudicial to his majesty's authority in causes ecclesiastical." Concerning the form of prohibitions, forasmuch as both the ecclesiastical and temporal jurisdictions be now united in his majesty, which were heretofore "de facto" though not "de jure" derived from several heads, we desire to be satisfied by the judges, whether, as the case now standeth, the former manner of prohibitions heretofore used importing an ecclesiastical court to be "aliud forum a foro regio," and the ecclesiastical law not to be "legem terrae," and the proceedings in those courts to be "contra coronam et dignitatem regiam," may now without offence and derogation to the king's ecclesiastical prerogative be continued, as though either the said jurisdictions remained now so distinguished and severed, as they were before, or that the laws ecclesiastical, which we put in execution, were not the king's and the realm's ecclesiastical laws, as well as the temporal laws.

III. "A fit time to be assigned for the defendant, if he will seek a prohibition." As touching the time when prohibitions are granted, it seemeth strange to us, that they are not only granted at the suit of the defendant in the ecclesiastical court after his answer, whereby he affirmeth the jurisdiction of the said court, and submitteth himself unto the same, but also after all allegations and proofs made on both sides, when the cause is fully instructed and furnished for sentence; yea after sentence, yea after two or three sentences given, and after execution of the said sentence or sentences, and when the party for his long continued disobedience is laid in prison upon the writ of "De excommunicato capiendo;" which courses, forasmuch as they are against the rules of the common law in like cases, as we take it, and do tend so greatly to the delay of justice, vexation and charge of the subject, and the disgrace and discredit of his majesty's jurisdiction ecclesiastical, the judges, as we suppose, notwithstanding their great learning in the laws, will be hardly able in defence of them to satisfy your lordships.

IV. "Prohibitions unduly awarded heretofore in all causes almost of ecclesiastical cognizance." Whereas it will be confessed, that causes concerning testaments, matrimony, benefices, churches, and divine service, with many offences against the I. II. III. IV. V. VII. IX. and X. commandments, are by the laws of this realm of ecclesiastical cognizance; yet there are few of them, wherein fundry prohibitions have not been granted, and that more ordinarily of latter times, than ever heretofore; not because we, that are ecclesiastical judges, do give greater cause of such granting of them, than before have been given, but for that the humour of the time is grown to be too eager against all ecclesiastical jurisdiction. For whereas (for example's sake) during the reign of the late queen of worthy memory, there have been 488. prohibitions, and since his majesty's time 82. sent into the court of the arches; we humbly desire your lordships, that the judges may be urged to bring forth one prohibition of ten, nay, the twentieth prohibition of all the said 48. and but 2. of the said 82. which upon due considerations with the libels in the ecclesiastical court, they shall be able to justify to have been rightly awarded: we suppose they cannot; our predecessors and we ourselves have ever been so careful not to exceed the compass and limits of the ecclesiastical jurisdiction; which if they shall refuse to attempt, or shall not be able to perform, then we refer ourselves to your lordships wisdoms, whether we have not just cause to complain, and crave restraint of this overlavish granting of prohibitions in every cause without respect. That which we have said of the prohibitions in the court of the arches, we verily persuade ourselves may be truly affirmed of all the ecclesiastical courts in England, which does so much the more aggravate this abuse.

V. "The multiplying of prohibitions in one and the same cause, the libel being not altered." Although it hath been anciently ordained by a statute, that when a consultation is once duly granted upon a prohibition made to the judge of holy church, the same judge may proceed in the cause, by virtue of that consultation, notwithstanding any other prohibition to him delivered, provided that the matter in the libel of the same cause be not engrossed, enlarged, or otherwise changed; yet notwithstanding prohibitions and consultations in one and the same cause, the libel being no ways altered according to the said statute, are lately so multiplied, as that in some one cause, as aforesaid, two, in some three, in some other six prohibitions, and so many consultations have been awarded, yea, divers are so granted out of one court. As for example, when after long suit a consultation is obtained, it is thought a sufficient cause to send out another prohibition in revocation of the said consultation, upon suggestion therein contained, that the said consultation "minus commode emanavit". By which pretty device the judges of those courts, which grant prohibitions, may, notwithstanding the said statute, upon one libel not altered, grant as many prohibitions as they list, commanding the ecclesiastical judges in his majesty's name, not to proceed in any cause, that is so divers times by them prohibited; whereby the poor plaintiffs do not know, when their consultations, procured with great charge, will hold, and so finding such and so many difficulties, are driven to go home in great grief, and to leave the causes in Westminster hall, the ecclesiastical judges not daring to hold any plea of them. Now may it please your lordships, the premises being true, we humbly desire to hear, what the judges are able to produce for the justifying of these their proceedings.

VI. "The multiplying of prohibitions in divers causes, but of the same nature after consultations formerly awarded". We suppose, that as well his majesty's ecclesiastical jurisdiction, as also very many of his poor but dutiful subjects are greatly prejudiced by the granting of divers several prohibitions and consultations in causes of one of the same nature and condition, and upon the self same suggestions. For example, in case of beating a clerk, the prohibition being granted upon this suggestion, that all pleas "de vi et armis" belong to the crown, etc. notwithstanding a consultation doth thereupon ensue; yet the very next day after, if the like suggestion be made upon the beating of another clerk, even in the same court another prohibition is awarded. As also where 570. prohibitions have been granted since the late queen's time into the court of arches, as before is mentioned, and but 113. consultations afterwards upon so many of them obtained; yet it is evident by the said consultations, that in effect all the rest of the said prohibitions ought not to have been awarded, as being grounded upon the same suggestions, whereupon consultations have been formerly granted: and so it followeth, that the causes, why consultations were awarded upon the rest of the said prohibitions, were for that either the plaintiffs in the court ecclesiastical were driven for saving of further charge to compound, to their loss, with their adversaries, or were not able to sue for them; or being able, yet through strength of opposition against them, were constrained to desist; which is an argument to us, that the temporal judges do wittingly and willingly grant prohibitions, whereupon they know beforehand, that consultations, are due: and if we mistake any thing in the premises, we desire your lordships, that the judges, for the justification of their courses, may better inform us.

VII. "New forms of consultations, not expressing the cause of the granting of them". Whereas upon the granting of consultations, the judges in times past did therein express and acknowledge the causes so remitted to be of ecclesiastical cognizance, which were precedents and judgments for the better assurance of ecclesiastical judges, that they might afterward hold plea in such cases, and the like; and were also some barr as well to the temporal judges themselves, as also to many troublesome and contentious persons from either granting or seeking prohibitions in such cases, when so it did appear unto them upon record, that consultations had been formerly granted in them; they the said temporal judges have now altered that course, and do only tell us, that they grant their consultations "certis de causis ipsos apud Westm. moventibus", not expressing the same particularly according to their ancient precedents. By means whereof the temporal judges leave themselves at liberty without prejudice, though they deny a consultation; at another time upon the same matter contentious persons are animated, finding no cause expressed, why they may not at another time seek for a prohibition in the same cause, and the ecclesiastical judges are left at large to think what they list, being no way instructed, of the nature of the cause, which which procured the consultation: the reason of which alteration in such consultations, we humbly intreat your lordships, that the judges, for our better instruction, may be required to exprefs.

VIII. "That consultations may be obtained with less charge and difficulty." The great expenses and manifold difficulties in obtaining of consultations are become very burthensome to those that seek for them; for now a days through the malice of the plaintiffs in the temporal courts, and the covetous humours of the clerks, prohibitions are so extended and enlarged, without any necessity of the matter (some one prohibition containing more words and lines, than forty prohibitions in ancient times) as by means thereof the party in the ecclesiastical court, against whom the prohibition is granted, becomes either unwilling or unable to sue for a consultation, it being now usual and ordinary, that in the consultations must be recited "in eadem verba" the whole tenour of the prohibition, be it never so long; for the which (to omit divers other fees which are very great) he must pay for a draught of it in paper 8 d. the sheet, and for the entry of it 12 d. the sheet. Furthermore the prohibition is quick and speedy; for it is ordinarily granted out of court by any one of the judges in his chamber, whereas the consultation is very slowly and hardly obtained, not without (oftentimes) costly motions in open court, pleadings, demurrers, and sundry judicial hearings of both parties, and long attendance for the space of two or three, nay sometimes of eight or nine years before it be obtained. The inconvenience of which proceedings is so intolerable, as we trust such as are to grant consultations, will by your lordships means not only do it expeditely, and moderate the said fees; but also reform the length of the said consultations, according to the forms of consultations in the register.

IX. "Prohibitions not to be granted upon frivolous suggestions". It is a prejudice and derision to both his majesty's ecclesiastical and temporal jurisdictions, that many prohibitions are granted upon trifling and frivolous suggestions, altogether unworthy to proceed from the one, or to give any hindrance or interruption to the other; as upon a suit of tithes brought by a minister against his parishioner, a prohibition flieth out upon suggestion, that in regard of a special receipt, called a cup of buttered beer, made by the great skill of the said parishioner, to cure a grievous disease called a cold, which sorely troubled the said minister, all his tithes were discharged. And likewise a woman being convicted for adultery committed with one, that suspiciously resorted to her house in the night time, the suggestion of a prohibition in this case was, that "omnia placita de nocturnis ambulationibus" belong to the king, etc. Also where a legatary sued for his legacy given in a will, the prohibition was "quia omnia placita de donis et concessionibus spectant ad forum regium, et non ad forum ecclesiasticum, dummodo non sint de testamento et matrimonio": as if a legacy were not "donatio de" or "in testamento;" with many other of like sort. The reformation of all which frivolous proceedings so chargeable notwithstanding to many poor men, and the great hindrance to justice, we humbly refer to your lordships consideration.

X. "No prohibition to be granted at his suit, the who is plaintiff, in the spiritual court." We suppose it to be no warrantable nor reasonable course, that prohibitions are granted at the suit of the plaintiff in the ecclesiastical court, who having made choice thereof, and brought his adversary there into trial, doth by all intendment of law and reason, and by the usage of all other judicial places conclude himself in that behalf; and although he cannot be presumed to hope for help in any other court by way of prohibition, yet it is very usual for every such person so proceeding only of meer malice, for vexation of the party, and to the great delay and hindrance of justice, to find favour for the obtaining of prohibitions, sometimes after two or three sentences, thereby taking advantage (as he must plead) of his own wrong, and receiving aid from that court, which by his own confession, he before did contemn; touching the equity whereof we will expect the answer of the judges.

XI. "No prohibition to be granted but upon due consideration of the libel." It is, we are persuaded, a great abuse, and one of the chief grounds of the most of the former abuses and many other, that prohibitions are granted without sight of the libel in the ecclesiastical court; yea sometimes before the libel be there exhibited, whereas by the laws and statutes of this realm, as we think, the libel (being a brief declaration of the matter in debate between the plaintiff and defendant) is appointed as the only rule and direction for the due granting of a prohibition; the reason whereof is evident, viz. upon diligent consideration of the libel it will easily appear, whether the cause belong to the temporal or ecclesiastical cognizance; as on the other side, without sight of the libel the prohibition must needs range and rove with strange and foreign suggestions, at the will and pleasure of the devisor, nothing pertinent to the matter in demand: whereupon it cometh to pass, that when the judge ecclesiastical is handling a matter of simony, a prohibition is grounded upon a suggestion, that the court trieth "placita de advocacionibus ecclesiarum et de jure patronatus." And when the libel containeth nothing but the demand of tithe wool and lamb, the prohibition surmiseth a custom of paying of tithe pigeons. So that if it may be made a matter of conscience to grant prohibitions only, where they do rightly lie, or to preserve the jurisdiction ecclesiastical, united to his majesty's crown, it cannot, we hope, but seem necessary to your lordships, that due consideration be first had of the libel in the ecclesiastical court, before any prohibition be granted.

XII. "No prohibition to be granted under pretence, that one witness cannot be received in the ecclesiastical court to ground a judgement upon" upon." There is a new devised suggestion in the temporal courts commonly received and allowed, whereby they may at their will and pleasure draw any cause whatsoever from the ecclesiastical court. For example; many prohibitions have lately come forth upon this suggestion, that the laws ecclesiastical do require two witnesses, where the common law accepteth of one; and therefore it is "contra legem terrae" for the ecclesiastical judge to insist upon two witnesses to prove his cause: upon which suggestion, although many consultations have been granted, the same being no way as yet able to warrant and maintain a prohibition; yet because we are not sure, but that either by reason of the use of it, or of some future construction it may have given to it more strength than is convenient, the same tending to the utter overthrow of all ecclesiastical jurisdiction, we most humbly desire, that by your lordships good means, the same may be ordered to be no more used.

XIII. "No good suggestion for a prohibition, that the cause is neither testamentary nor matrimonial." As the former device last mentioned endeavoureth to strike away at one blow the whole ecclesiastical jurisdiction; so there is another as usual, or rather more frequent than the former, which is content to spare us two kind of causes to deal in, viz. testamentary and matrimonial: and this device insulteth mightily in many prohibitions, commanding the ecclesiastical judge, that be the cause never so apparently of ecclesiastical cognizance, yet he shall surcease; for that is neither a cause testamentary nor matrimonial, which suggestion, as it grew at the first upon mistaking and omitting the words "de bonis et catallis," etc. as may appear by divers ancient prohibitions in the register; so it will not be denied, but that besides those two, divers and sundry other causes are notoriously known to be of ecclesiastical cognizance, and that consultations are as usually awarded, if suit in that behalf be prosecuted, notwithstanding the said suggestion, as their prohibitions are easily granted; which as an injury marching with the rest to wound poor men, protract suits, and prejudice the courts ecclesiastical, we desire that the judges will be pleased to redress.

XIV. "No prohibition upon surmise only, to be granted either out of the king's Bench or Common Pleas, but out of the Chancery only." Amongst the causes, whereby the ecclesiastical jurisdiction is oppressed with multitude of prohibitions upon surmises only, this hath a chief place, in that through encroachment, as we suppose, there are so many several courts and judges in them, that take upon them to grant the same, as in the king's Bench five, and in the Common Pleas as many, the one court oftentimes crossing the proceedings of the other; whereas we are persuaded that all such kind of prohibitions, being original writs, ought only to issue out of the Chancery, and neither out of the king's Bench, nor Common Pleas. And that this hath been the ancient practice in that behalf, appeareth by some statutes of the realm, and sundry judgments at the common law; the renewing of which practice carrieth with it an apparent shew of great benefit and conveniency both to the church and to the subject. For if prohibitions were to issue only out of one court, and from one man of such integrity, judgment, sincerity and wisdom, as we are to imagine the lord chancellor of England to be endued with, it is not likely that he would ever be induced to prejudice and pester the ecclesiastical courts with so many needless prohibitions, or after a consultation to send out in one cause, and upon one and the same libel not altered, prohibition upon prohibition, his own act remaining upon record before him to the contrary. The further consideration whereof, when upon the judges answer thereunto, it shall be more thoroughly debated, we must refer to your lordships honourable direction and wisdom.

XV. "No prohibition to be awarded under a false pretence, that the ecclesiastical judges would hold no plea for customs for tithes." Amongst many devices, whereby the cognizance of causes of tithes is drawn from ecclesiastical judges, this is one of the chiefest, viz. concerning the tryal of customs in payment of tithes, that it must be made in a temporal court; for upon a quirk and false suggestion in Edward the fourth his time, made by some serjeants, a conceit hath risen, which hath lately taken greater strength than before, that ecclesiastical judges will allow no plea of custom or prescription either "in non decimando," or "in modo decimandi;" and thereupon when contentious persons are sued in the ecclesiastical court for tithes, and do perceive, that upon good proof, judgment will be given against them, even in their own pleas, sometimes for customs, do presently (knowing their own strength with jurors in the country) flee unto Westminster hall, and there suggesting, that they pleaded custom for themselves in the ecclesiastical courts, but could not be heard, do procure thence very readily a prohibition. And albeit the said suggestion be notoriously false, yet the party prohibited may not be permitted to traverse the same in the temporal court, directly contrary to a statute made in that behalf; neither may the judge prohibited proceed without danger of an attachment, though himself do certainly know, either that no such custom was ever alledged before him, or being alledged, that he did receive the same, and all manner of proofs offered thereupon: which course seemeth the more strange unto us, because the ground thereof, laid in Edward the fourth his time, as aforesaid, was altogether untrue, and cannot with any sound reason be maintained. Divers statutes and judgments at the common law do allow the ecclesiastical courts to hold plea of such customs: all our books and general learning do therewith concur, and the ecclesiastical courts, both then and ever since even until this day, have and still admit the same, as both by our ancient and recent records it doth and may to any most manifestly nifestly appear. And besides there are some consultations to be shewed in this very point, wherein the said surmise and suggestion, that the ecclesiastical judges will hear no plea of customs, is affirmed to be insufficient in law to maintain any such prohibition; and therefore we hope, that if we shall be able, notwithstanding any thing the judges shall answer thereunto, to justify the premises, your lordships will be a means, that the abuses herein complained of, having so false a ground, may be amended.

XVI. "The customs for tithes are only to be tried in the ecclesiastical courts, and ought not to be drawn thence by prohibitions." Although some indiscreet ecclesiastical judges, either in the time of king Edward the fourth, or Edward the sixth, might against law have refused in some one cause to admit a plea of custom of tithes, to the prejudice of some person, whom he favoured, and might thereby peradventure have given occasion of some one prohibition (but whether they did so or no, the suggestion of a lawyer for his fee is no good proof) yet forasmuch as by three statutes made since that time, wherein it is ordained, viz. both that tithes should be truly paid, according to the custom, and the tryal of such payments according to custom, upon any default or opposition, should be tried in the king's ecclesiastical courts, and by the king's ecclesiastical laws, and not otherwise, or before any other judges than ecclesiastical: we most humbly desire your lordships, that if according to the said laws, we be most ready to hear any plea of customs, your lordships would be pleased, that the judges may not be permitted hereafter to grant any prohibitions upon such false surmises; or if they shall answer, that we mistake the said statutes, that then the said three statutes may be thoroughly debated before your lordships; lest under pretence of a right, which they challenge to expound these kind of statutes, the truth may be overborn, and poor ministers still left unto country tryals, there to justify the right of their tithes before unconscionable jurors in these cases.

XVII. "No prohibition to be granted, because the treble value of tithes is sued for in the ecclesiastical court." Whereas it appeareth plainly by the tenor of the statute of Edw. VI. cap. 13. that judges ecclesiastical and none other are to hear and determine all suits of tithes and other duties of the same, which are given by the said act; and that nothing else is added to former laws by that statute, but only certain penalties, for example, one of treble value: forasmuch as the said penalty, being only devised as a means to work the better payment of tithes, and for that there are no words used in the said statute to give jurisdiction to any temporal court; we hold it most apparent, that the said penalty of treble value, being a duty given in the said statute for non-payment of tithes, cannot be demanded in the temporal court but only before the ecclesiastical judges, according to the expresse words of the said statute; and the rather we are so persuaded, because it is most agreeable to all laws, and reason, that where the principal cause is to be decided, there all things incident and necessary are to be determined. Besides it was the practice of all ecclesiastical courts in this realm, immediately after the making of the said statute, and hath continued so ever since, to award treble damages (when there hath been cause) without any opposition, until about ten years past, when or about which time, notwithstanding the premises, the temporal judges began to hold plea of treble value, and do now accompt it so proper and peculiar to their jurisdictions, as by colour thereof they admit suits originally for the said penalty, and do make thereby (very absurdly) the penalty of treble value to be principal, which is indeed but the accessory, and the cognizance of tithes to be but the accessory, which in all due construction is most evident to be the principal, thereby wholly perverting the true meaning and drift of that statute; whereupon if in the spiritual court the treble value be now demanded by the libel as a duty, according to that statute, or that sentence be awarded directly and sincerely upon the said libel, presently, as contentious persons are disposed, a prohibition is granted, and some sharp words are further used, as if the ecclesiastical judges were in some further danger for holding of these kind of pleas: and therefore we most humbly desire, that if the judges shall insist in their answers upon such their straining of the said statute, your lordships will be pleased to hear the same further debated by us with them.

XVIII. "No prohibition to be awarded, where the person is stopped from carrying away of his tithes by him that setteth them forth." As the said statute of Edward the sixth, last mentioned, assigneth a penalty of treble value, if a man upon pretence of custom, which cannot be justified, shall take away his corn, before he hath set out his tithes; so also in the said statute it is provided, that if any man having set out his tithes, shall not afterwards suffer the parson to carry them away, etc. he shall pay the double value thereof so carried away, the same to be recovered in the ecclesiastical court. Howbeit the clearness of the statute in this point notwithstanding means are found to draw this cause also from the ecclesiastical court; for such as of hatred towards their ministers are disposed to vex them with suits at the common law, where they find more favour to maintain their wrangling, than they can hope for in the ecclesiastical court, will not fail to set out their tithes before witnesses, but not with any meaning or intent, that the parson shall ever carry them away; for presently thereupon they will cause their own servants to load them away to their own barns, and leave the parson, as he can to seek his remedy; which if he do attempt in the ecclesiastical court, outcometh a prohibition, suggesting that upon severance and setting forth of the tenth part from the nine, the same tenths were presently by law in the parson's possession, and being thereupon become a lay chattel, must be recovered by an action of trespass at the common law; whereas the whole pretence is grounded upon a mere perverting of the statute, which doth both ordain, that all tithes shall be set forth truly and justly without fraud and guile; and that also the parson shall not be stopped or hindered from carrying them away; neither of which conditions are observed, when the farmer doth set them forth, meaning to carry them away himself (for that is the fraudulent setting of them out) and also when accordingly he taketh them away to his own use; for thereby he stoppeth the parson to carry them away; and consequently the penalty of this offence is to be recovered in the said ecclesiastical courts, according to the words of the said statute, and not in any court temporal: wherefore we most humbly desire your lordships, that either the judges may make it apparent to your lordships, that we dislike this statute in this point, or that our ecclesiastical courts may ever hereafter be freed from such kinds of prohibitions.

XIX. "No prohibition to be granted upon any incident plea in an ecclesiastical cause." We conceive it to be great injury to his majesty's ecclesiastical jurisdiction, that prohibitions are awarded to his ecclesiastical courts upon every by, and every incident plea or matter alleged there in barr, or by way of exception, the principal cause being undoubtedly of ecclesiastical cognizance. For example. In suit for tithes in kind, if the limits of the parish, agreements, compositions and arbitraments, as also whether the minister that sueth as parson, be indeed parson or vicar, do come in debate by way of barr, although the same particulars were of temporal cognizance (as some of them we may boldly say are not) yet they were in this case examinable in the ecclesiastical court, because they are matters incident, which come not in that case finally to be sentenced and determined, but are used as a mean and furtherance for the decision of the main matter in question. And so the case standeth in other such incident pleas by way of barr; for otherwise either party in every cause might at his pleasure by pleading some matter temporal by way of exception, make any cause ecclesiastical whatsoever subject to a prohibition, which is contrary to the reason of the common law, and sundry judgments thereupon given, as we hope the judges themselves will acknowledge, and thereupon yield to have such prohibitions hereafter restrained.

XX. "That no temporal judges, under colour of authority to interpret statutes, ought, in favour of their prohibitions, to make causes ecclesiastical to be of temporal cognizance." Although of late days it hath been strongly held by some, that the interpretation of all statutes whatsoever do belong to the judges temporal, yet we suppose by certain evil effects, that this opinion is to be bounded within certain limits; for the strong conceit of it hath already brought forth this fruit, that even those very statutes, which do concern matters meerly ecclesiastical, and were made of purpose with great caution to preserve, enlarge, and strengthen the jurisdiction ecclesiastical, have been by colour thereof turned to the restraining, weakning, and utter overthrow of the same, contrary to the true intent and meaning of the said statutes. As for example. Besides the strange interpretation of the statutes before mentioned for the payment of tithes, when parties have been sued in the ecclesiastical courts in case of an incestuous marriage, a prohibition hath been awarded, suggesting under pretence of a statute in the time of king Henry VIII. that it appertaineth to the temporal courts and not to the ecclesiastical, to determine what marriages are lawful, and what are incestuous by the word of God. As also a minister being upon point of deprivation for his insufficiency in the ecclesiastical court, a prohibition was granted upon suggestion, that all pleas of the fitness, learning, and sufficiency of ministers belong only to the kings temporal courts, relying, as we suppose, upon the statute of 13. Eliz. by which kind of interpretation of statutes, if the naming, disposing or ordering of causes ecclesiastical in a statute shall make the same to be of temporal cognizance, and so abolish the jurisdiction of the ecclesiastical court, without any further circumstances or express words to warrant the same; it followeth, that forasmuch as the common book and articles of religion are established and confirmed by several acts parliament, the temporal judges may challenge to themselves an authority to end and determine all causes of faith and religion, and to send out their prohibitions, if any ecclesiastical judge shall deal or proceed in any of them: which conceit, how absurd it is, needeth no proof, and teacheth us, that when matters meerly ecclesiastical are comprised in any statute, it doth not therefore follow, that the interpretation of the said matters doth belong to the temporal judges, who by their profession, and as they are judges, are not acquainted with that kind of learning. Hereunto when we shall receive the answer of the judges, we shall be ready to justify every part of this article.

XXI. "That persons imprisoned upon the writ of "De excommunicato capiendo" are unduely delivered, and prohibitions unduely awarded for their greater security." Forasmuch as imprisonment upon the writ of "De excommunicato capiendo" is the chiefest temporal strength of ecclesiastical jurisdiction, and that by the laws of the realm none so committed for their contempt in matters of ecclesiastical cognizance, ought to be delivered, until the ecclesiastical courts were satisfied, or caution given in that behalf; we would gladly be resolved by what authority the temporal judges do cause the sheriffs to bring the said parties into their courts, and by their own discretions set them at liberty, without notice thereof first given to the ecclesiastical judges, or any satisfaction made either to the parties, at whose suit he was imprisoned, or the ecclesiastical court, where certain lawful fees fees are due. And after all this why do they likewise send out their prohibitions to the said court, commanding that all censures against the said parties shall be remitted, and that they be no more proceeded with, for the same causes in those courts. Of this our desire we hope your lordships do see sufficient cause, and will therefore procure us from the judges some reasonable answer.

XXII. "The king's authority in ecclesiastical causes is greatly impugned by prohibitions." We are not a little perplexed touching the authority of his majesty in causes ecclesiastical, in that we find the same to be so impeached by prohibitions, that it is in effect thereby almost extinguished; for it seemeth that the innovating humour is grown so rank, and that some of the temporal judges are come to be of opinion, that the commissioners appointed by his majesty for his causes ecclesiastical having committed unto them the execution of all ecclesiastical jurisdiction annexed to his majesty's imperial crown, by virtue of an act of parliament made in that behalf, and according to the tenor and effect of his majesty's letters patents, wherein they are authorized to imprison and impose fines, as they shall see cause, cannot otherwise proceed, the said act and letters patents notwithstanding, than by ecclesiastical censures only. And thereupon of latter days, whereas certain lewd persons, two for example's sake, one for notorious adultery and other intolerable contempts, and another for abusing of a bishop of this kingdom with threatening speeches and sundry railing terms no way to be endured, were thereupon fined and imprisoned by the said commissioners, till they should enter into bonds to perform further orders of the said court; the one was delivered by an "Habeas corpus" out of the king's Bench, and the other by a like writ out of the Common Pleas; and sundry other prohibitions have been likewise awarded to his majesty's said commissioners upon these suggestions; viz. that they had no authority either to fine or imprison any man; which innovating conceit being added to this that followeth, that the writ of "De excommunicato capiendo" cannot lawfully be awarded upon any certificate or "Significavit" made by the said commissioners, we find his majesty's said supreme authority in causes ecclesiastical (so largely amplified in sundry statutes) to be altogether destitute in effect of any means to uphold it, if the said proceedings by temporal judges shall be by them maintained and justified; and therefore we most humbly desire your lordships, that they may declare themselves herein, and be restrained hereafter (if there be cause found) from using the king's name in their prohibitions, to so great prejudice of his majesty's said authority, as in debating the same before your lordships will hereafter more fully appear.

XXIII. "No prohibitions to be granted under pretence to reform the manner of proceedings by the ecclesiastical laws in causes confessed to be of ecclesiastical cognizance." Notwithstanding that the ecclesiastical jurisdiction hath been much impeached heretofore through the multitude of prohibitions, yet the suggestions in them had some colour of justice, as pretending that the judges ecclesiastical dealt with temporal causes; but now, as it seemeth, they are subject to the same contrivements, whether the cause they deal in, be either ecclesiastical or temporal, in that prohibitions of late are wrested out of their own proper course, in the nature of a writ of error, or of an appeal. For whereas the true and only use of a prohibition is to restrain the judges ecclesiastical from dealing in a matter of temporal cognizance; now prohibitions are awarded upon these surmises; viz. that the libel, the articles, the sentence, and the ecclesiastical court, according to the ecclesiastical laws, are grievous and insufficient, though the matter there dealt withal be merely ecclesiastical; and by colour of such prohibitions, the temporal judges do alter and change the decrees and sentences of the judges ecclesiastical, and do moderate the expences taxed in the ecclesiastical courts, and do award consultations upon conditions. As for example; that the plaintiff in the ecclesiastical court shall accept of the one half of the costs awarded, and that the register shall lose his fees; and that the said plaintiff shall be contented with the payment of his legacy, which was the principal sued for, and adjudged due unto him at such day, as they the said temporal judges shall appoint, or else the prohibition must stand. And also where his majesty's commissioners for causes ecclesiastical, have not been accustomed to give a copy of the articles to any party before he hath answered them; and that the statute of Hen. V. touching the delivering of the libel, was not only publicly adjudged in the king's Bench not to extend to the deliverance of articles, where the party is proceeded with "ex officio," but likewise imparted to his majesty, and afterwards divulged in the Star-chamber, as a full resolution of the judges; yet within 4. or 5. months after a prohibition was awarded to the said commissioners out of the king's Bench, upon suggestion, that the party ought to have a copy of the articles, being called in question "ex officio," before he should answer them; and notwithstanding that a motion was made in full court shortly after for a consultation; yet an order was entred, that the prohibition should stand untill the said party had a copy of the said articles given him: which novel and extraordinary courses do seem very strange unto us, and are contrary not only to the whole course of his majesty's laws ecclesiastical, but also to the very maxims and judgment of the common law, and sundry statutes of this realm, as we shall be ready to justify before your lordships, if the judges shall endeavour to maintain these their proceedings.

XXIV. "That temporal judges are sworn to defend the ecclesiastical judges jurisdiction." We may not omit to signify unto your lordships, as we take it, the temporal judges are not only bound by their ancient oath, that they shall shall do nothing to the disherison of the crown, but also by a latter oath unto the king's supremacy, wherein they do swear; that to their power they will assist and defend all jurisdictions, privileges, preeminences, and authorities united and annexed to the imperial crown of this realm; in which words the ecclesiastical jurisdiction is specially aimed at; so that whereas they do oftentimes insist upon their oath, for doing of justice in temporal causes, and do seldom make mention of the second oath taken by them for the defence of the ecclesiastical jurisdiction, with the rights and immunities belonging to the church; we think, that they ought to weigh their said oaths better together, and not so far to extend the one, as that it should in any sort prejudice the other. The due consideration whereof (which we most instantly desire) would put them in mind, any suggestion to the contrary notwithstanding, to be as careful not to do any thing that may prejudice the lawful proceedings of the ecclesiastical judges in ecclesiastical causes, as they are circumspect not to suffer any impeachment or blemish of their own jurisdictions and proceedings in causes temporal.

An act for a public thanksgiving to almighty God every year on the fifth day of November.

FORASMUCH as almighty God hath in all ages shewed his power and mercy in the miraculous and gracious deliverance of his church, and in the protection of religious kings and states; and that no nation of the earth hath been blessed with greater benefits than this kingdom now enjoyeth, having the true and free profession of the gospel under our most gracious sovereign lord king James, the most great, learned and religious king that ever reigned therein, enriched with a most hopeful and plentiful progeny, proceeding out of his royal loins, promising continuance of this happiness and profession to all posterity. The which many malignant and devilish papists, Jesuits, and seminary priests, much envying and fearing, conspired most horribly, when the king's most excellent majesty, the queen, the prince, and all the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons should have been assembled in the upper house of parliament, upon the fifth day of November, in the year of our Lord M.DC.V. suddenly to have blown up the said whole house with gunpowder: an invention so inhuman, barbarous, and cruel, as the like was never before heard of, and was (as some of the principal conspirators thereof confess) purposely devised and concluded to be done in the said house, that where sundry necessary and religious laws for preservation of the church and state were made, which they falsely and slanderously term cruel laws enacted against them and their religion, both place and persons should be all destroyed and blown up at once; which would have turned to the utter ruin of this whole kingdom, had it not pleased almighty God, by inspiring the kings most excellent majesty with a divine spirit, to interpret some dark phrases of a letter shewed to his majesty above and beyond all ordinary construction, thereby miraculously discovering this hidden treason not many hours before the appointed time for the execution thereof. Therefore the kings most excellent majesty, the lords spiritual and temporal, and all his majesty's faithful and loving subjects do most justly acknowledge this great and infinite blessing, to have proceeded merely from God his great mercy, and to his most holy name do ascribe all honour, glory, and praise. And to the end this unfeigned thankfulness may never be forgotten, but be had in a perpetual remembrance, that all ages to come may yield praises to his divine majesty for the same, and have in memory this joyful day of deliverance;

Be it therefore enacted by the king's most excellent majesty, the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that all and singular ministers in every cathedral and parish church, or other usual place for common prayer within this realm of England and the dominions of the same, shall always upon the fifth day of November say morning prayer, and give unto almighty God thanks for this most happy deliverance; and that all and every person and persons inhabiting within this realm of England and the dominions of the same, shall always upon that day day diligently and faithfully resort to the parish church or chapel accustomed, or to some usual church or chapel, where the said morning prayer, preaching, or other service of God shall be used, and then and there to abide orderly and soberly during the time of the said prayers, preaching, or other service of God there to be used and ministered.

And because all and every person may be put in mind of his duty, and be then better prepared to the said holy service, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that every minister shall give warning to his parishioners publickly in the church at morning prayer, the Sunday before every such fifth day of November, for the due observation of the said day; and after morning prayer or preaching upon the said fifth day of November, they read publickly distinctly, and plainly this present act.

Reg. Angliae

The oath of allegiance as established by act of parliament.

I A. B. do truly and sincerely acknowledge, profess, testify, and declare in my conscience before God and the world, that our sovereign lord king James is lawful and rightful king of this realm, and of all other his majesty's dominions and countries; and that the pope neither of himself, nor by any authority of the church or see of Rome, or by any other means with any other hath any power or authority to depose the king, or to dispose of any of his majesty's kingdoms or dominions, or to authorise any foreign prince to invade or annoy him, or his countries, or to discharge any of his subjects of their allegiance and obedience to his majesty, or to give licence, or leave to any of them to bear arms, raise tumults, or to offer any violence or hurt to his majesty's royal person, state, or government, or to any of his majesty's subjects within his majesty's dominions.

II. Also I do swear from my heart, that notwithstanding any declaration or sentence of excommunication or deprivation made or granted, or to be made or granted by the pope or his successors, or by any authority derived, or pretended to be derived from him or his see, against the said king, his heirs or successors, or any absolution of the said subjects from their obedience; I will bear faith and true allegiance to his majesty, his heirs and successors, and him and them will defend to the utmost of my power against all conspiracies and attempts whatsoever, which shall be made against his or their persons, their crown and dignity, by reason or colour of any such sentence or declaration, or otherwise; and will do my best endeavour to disclose and make known unto his majesty, his heirs and successors, all treasons and traitorous conspiracies, which I shall know or hear of, to be against him or any of them.

III. And I do further swear, that I do from my heart abhor, detest, and abjure, as impious and heretical, this damnable doctrine and position; that princes, which be excommunicated or deprived by the pope, may be deposed or murdered by their subjects, or any other whatsoever.

IV. And I do believe, and in my conscience am resolved, that neither the pope, nor any other person whatsoever hath power to absolve me of this oath, or any part thereof, which I acknowledge by good and full authority to be lawfully ministered unto me, and do renounce all pardons and dispensations to the contrary.

V. And these things I do plainly and sincerely acknowledge and swear, according to these express words by me spoken, and according to the plain and common sense and understanding of the same words, without any equivocation, or mental evasion, or secret reservation whatsoever. And I do make this recognition and acknowledgment heartily, willingly, and truly, upon the true faith of a christian, so help me God.

CONCILIUM hoc virtute brevis regii archiepiscopo Ebor. directi a 4. die mensis Octobris ad 9. mensis Novembris, et ab illo die in 3. diem Decembris continuatum fuit. Archiepiscopo Eborum mortuo, rex aliud breve custodibus spiritualitatis archiepiscopatus mittit, dat. 22. die Januarii, intimans illis diversas concilii prorogationes, archiepiscopo vivente, factas, et mandans debitam executionem omnium eorum, quae virtute brevis exequenda jubentur. Custodes et capitulum Ebor. 4. die mensis Februarii comparentes in ecclesia metropolitana B. Petri Ebor. Johannem Bristolensem episcopum, decanum hujus ecclesiae, in praesidem five praesidentem convocationis elegerunt, eandem electionem domino regi debite significandam decernentes, cum requisitione et supplicatione pro ejus regio consensu eidem electioni adhibendo, et pro literis suis regiis commissionalibus ad ulterius in eadem convocatione pro bono dictae provinciae Ebor. tractand. concludend. et finiend.

Hoc facto, concilium ad 10. deinde ad 19. tum ad 21. mensis Februarii dies; postea ad 5. mensis Martii continuabatur. Eo die Willelmus Goodwin, cancellarius et canonicus residentiarius, hujus ecclesiae et episcoporum Dunelm. et Carliol. procurator, in prolocutorem synodi provincialis eligebatur. Deinde literae regiae patentes, praelatis et clero prov. Ebor. licentiam canones condendi concedentes, legebantur, quae hujus erant tenoris:

"James, by the grace of God king of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, defender of the faith, etc. to all men, to whom these presents shall come, greeting. Whereas in and by one act of parliament, made in the five and twentieth year of the reign of king Henry the

VIII. reciting, that whereas the king's humble and obedient subjects, the clergy of the realm of England, had not only acknowledged, according to the truth, that the convocations of the same clergy were, always had been, and ought to be assembled by the king's writ, but also, submitting themselves to the king's majesty, had promised in "verbo sacerdotii," that they would never from thenceforth presume to attempt, alledge, or put in ure, or enact, promulge, or execute any new canons, constitutions, ordinances provincial, or other, or by whatsoever other name they should be called in the convocation, unless the king's most royal assent and licence might to them be had to make, promulge, and execute the same; and that the said king did give his most royal assent and authority in that behalf. It was therefore enacted by the authority of the said parliament according to the said submission and petition of the said clergy, amongst other things, that they, nor any of them from thenceforth should enact, promulge, or execute any such canons, constitutions, or ordinances provincial, by whatsoever name or names they might be called in the convocations in time coming, which always should be assembled by authority of the king's writ, unless the said clergy might have the king's most royal assent and licence to make, promulge, and execute such canons, constitutions, ordinances provincial or synodal, upon pain of every one of the said clergy, doing contrary to the said act, and being thereof convict, to suffer imprisonment and make fine of the king's will. And further by the said act is provided, that no canons, constitutions, and ordinances should be made or put in execution within this realm by authority authority of the convocations of the clergy, contrary or repugnant to the king's prerogative royal, or the customs, laws, or statutes of this realm, any thing contained in the said act to the contrary thereof notwithstanding; and lastly it is also provided by the said act, that such canons, constitutions, ordinances, and synodals provincial, which then were already made, and which then were not contrary or repugnant to the laws, statutes, and customs of this realm, nor to the damage or hurt of the king's prerogative royal, should then still be used and executed, as they were before the making of the said act, until such time as they should be viewed, searched or otherwise ordered, or determined by the persons mentioned in the said act, or the more part of them, according to the tenor, form, and effect of the said act, as by the said act amongst divers other things more fully and at large it doth and may appear. Know ye, that we for divers urgent and weighty causes and considerations us thereunto specially moving, of our special grace, certain knowledge, and meer motion, by virtue of our prerogative royal, and supreme authority in causes ecclesiastical, have given and granted, and by these presents do give and grant full, free, and lawful liberty, licence, power, and authority unto the reverend father in God John, bishop of Bristol, and dean of our metropolitical church of St. Peter in our city of York, president of this present convocation for the province of York for this present parliament now assembled, and to the rest of the bishops of the same province, and to all deans of cathedral churches, archdeacons, chapters, and colleges, and the whole clergy of every several diocese within the said province, that they the said bishop of Bristol, president of the said convocation, and the rest of the said bishops of the same province, or the greater number of them, whereof the said president of the said convocation to be one, and the rest of the clergy of this present convocation within the said province of York, or the greater number of them, shall and may from time to time, during this present parliament confer, treat, debate, consider, consult, and agree of and upon such canons, orders, ordinances, and constitutions, as the said bishop of Bristol, president of the said convocation, and the rest of the said bishops of the said province, or the greater number of them, whereof the said president of the said convocation to be one, and the rest of the clergy of this present convocation, within the said province of York or the greater number of them shall think necessary, fit and convenient for the honour and service of almighty God, the good and quiet of the church, and the better government thereof, to be from time to time observed, performed, fulfilled, and kept as well by the archbishops of York, the bishops and their successors, and the rest of the whole clergy of the said province of York in their several callings, offices, functions, ministries, degrees, and administrations, as also by all and every dean of the arches, and other judge of the said archbishop's courts, guardians of spiritualties, chancellors, deans and chapters, archdeacons, commissaries, officials, registers, and all and every other ecclesiastical officers, and their inferior ministers whatsoever, of the same province of York, in their and every of their distinct courts, and in the order, manner, and form of their and every of their proceedings, and by all other persons within this realm, as far as lawfully being members of the church it may concern them; and further to confer, treat, debate, consider, consult, and agree of and upon such other points, matters, causes, and things, as we from time to time shall deliver or cause to be delivered unto the said bishop of Bristol, president of the said convocation, in writing under our sign manual, or privy signet, to be debated, considered, consulted, and agreed upon; the said statute or any other statute, act of parliament, proclamation, provision or restraint heretofore had, made, provided, or set forth, or the vacancy of the see of York, or any other cause, matter, or thing whatsoever to the contrary notwithstanding. And we do also by these presents give and grant unto the said bishop of Bristol, president of the said convocation, and to the rest of the bishops of the said province of York, and unto all deans of cathedral churches, archdeacons, chapters, and colleges, and the whole clergy of every several diocese within the said province full, free, and lawful liberty, licence, power, and authority, that they the said bishop of Bristol, president of the said convocation, and the rest of the said bishops of the same province, or the greater number of them, whereof the said president of the said convocation to be one, and the rest of the clergy of this present convocation within the said province of York, or the greater number of them, all and every the said canons, orders, ordinances, constitutions, matters, causes, and things so by them from time to time conferred, treated, debated, considered, consulted, and agreed upon, shall and may set down in writing, in such form as heretofore hath been accustomed; and the same so set down in writing to exhibit and deliver, or cause to be exhibited and delivered unto us, to the end that we upon mature consideration by us to be taken thereupon, may allow, approve, confirm, and ratify, or otherwise disallow, annihilate, and make void such and so many of the said canons, orders, ordinances, constitutions, matters, causes, and things so to be by force of these presents considered, consulted, and agreed upon, as we shall think fit, requisite, and convenient. Provided always that the said canons, orders, ordinances, constitutions, matters, and things, or any of them so to be considered, consulted, or agreed upon as aforesaid, be not contrary or repugnant to the doctrine, orders, and ceremonies of the church of England already established. Provided also, and our express will, pleasure and commandment is, that the said canons, orders, ordinances, constitutions, matters, causes, and things, or any of them so to be by force of these presents considered, consulted, or agreed upon, shall not be of any force force, effect, or validity in the law, but only such and so many of them, and after such time, as we by our letters patents under our great seal of England shall allow, approve, and confirm the same; any thing before in these presents contained to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding. In witness whereof we have caused these our letters to be made patents. Witness ourself at Westminster the 18th day of February, in the third year of our reign of England, France, and Ireland, and of Scotland the nine and thirtieth,

His peractis, synodus provincialis in diem 7. et ab hoc in 19. mensis Martii continuabatur. Quo die et diebus praeteritis in domo capitulari ecclesiae metropolitanae B. Petri Ebor. per Will. Goodwin, S. T. P. prolocutorem, publice lectis omnibus et singulis canonibus five constitutionibus ecclesiasticis, de quibus tractatum, conclusum, et consensus est, per reverendum in Christo patrem et dom. dom. Richardum, prov. div. London. episcopum, praesidentem convocationis provinciae Cant. et caeteros episcopos et clerum ejusdem provinciae de licentia speciali serenissimi domini nostri regis A. D. M.DC.III. et postea per literas regias patentes publicatis, confirmatis, et observari mandatis, atque mature jam et antea examinatis et ponderatis, idem reverendus pater episcopus, et caeteri ejusdem convocationis, tunc comparentes, unanimis eorum consensu et assensu, praefatas constitutiones ecclesiasticas ratificarunt et firmiter observari in et per totam hanc provinciam Ebor. mandarunt, prout per eorum decretum seu certificatorium tunc etiam publice perlectum latius constat et apparet, et cui nomine et cognomine eorum subscripserunt. Cujus verus tenor sequitur, et est talis :

Whereas we the president and clergy of the convocation of the province of York, authorized by his majesty's commission in this behalf, have diligently viewed, and deliberately examined the constitutions and canons ecclesiastical, and every of them treated, concluded, and agreed upon by the reverend father in God Richard, by God's providence late bishop of London, president of the convocation of the province of Canterbury, and the rest of the bishops and clergy of the same province, by his majesty's licence in their synod begun at London anno Domini M.DC.III. and since that published, for the due observation thereof, by his majesty's authority under the great seal of England, and by his majesty's said authority commanded to be diligently observed by all his subjects of this realm of England within both provinces of Canterbury and York in all points, wherein they do or may concern every or any of them. We his majesty's loyal subjects, furthering, as much as in us lieth, the honour and service of almighty God, the peace of God's church, and better government of the same, and finding the said constitutions and canons very fit and requisite for the good of the church to be observed within and throughout all the province of York (yielding in all points respectively to the archbishop of York, to every bishop of the province of York, and to his or their chancellors and commissaries, and others having ecclesiastical jurisdiction within the said province, such and the same authority, as by force of the said canons and constitutions was, and is severally attributed to the archbishop of Canterbury, to the bishops, and to others exercising ecclesiastical jurisdiction in that province) do thereby decree and ordain, that all and singular the said constitutions and canons ecclesiastical, and the contents of them, and every of them, be for ever hereafter of full power, force and authority within this province of York, and be accounted and numbered among the constitutions and canons of the province of York; and that they, and every of them, be from henceforth truly and diligently observed, executed, and equally kept by all and singular persons, not only of the clergy, but of the laity, within the province of York, so far forth as it doth, or may concern them, and every, or any of them in their several functions, degrees, and states, upon the perils and penalties therein expressed, and other censures ecclesiastical to be inflicted upon all and every of the transgressors thereof, according to the measure and quality of their offence. In testimony whereof we ourselves, and for the whole clergy within the province of York lawfully assembled and deputed in this behalf, have willingly and "ex animo" subscribed in this schedule of parchment annexed, to the canons and constitutions; humbly praying the king's most excellent majesty graciously to accept our most humble duty and service therein, and to give his highness's royal assent to the same.

Persons present at this act.

The reverend father in God John, bishop of Bristol, president of the convocation.

Mr. Dr. Goodwin prolocutor thereof, proctor for the bishop of Durham and Carlisle, and for the chapter of this church.

Mr. Banks another proctor for the same chapter.

Mr. Harwood and Mr. Belwood, proctors for the clergy of the jurisdiction of the dean and chapter of the church

Mr. Parkinson for Richmond, etc.

Mr. Dr. Colmer, Mr. William Morton, and Mr. Ribank, parties for them of the church and diocese of Durham.

Mr. Whittle, proctor for them of the church and diocese of Chester.

Mr. Lowther and Mr. Maplet, proctors for them of the church and diocese of Carlisle.

And Mr. Archdeacon Remington, Mr. Lindley, Mr. Nobson, and Mr. Nelson, proctors for them of Southwell church and Nottingham archdeaconry.

Synodus provinciae Cantuar. Ex MS. Mil. Smith apud episc. Tho. Assaven.

SYNODUS provinciae Cantuar. ad secundum diem Aprilis continuata, sub initium hujus anni vix aliquid praeter suspensionem et absolutionem non comparentium tractavit; inter hos D. Tooker, decanus Lichfeld. et M. Robotham eam a synodo obtinuerunt; inter illos doctor Stern, suffraganeus episcopus Colcestrensis, ab officio suspensus est.

Vicesimo octavo die mensis Maii "the prolocutor desires the archbishop, that whereas by reason of the long continuance of the convocation, the clerks of the convocation had been at extraordinary expences, that a competent sum might be allowed by the parsons and vicars over and above the usual and accustomed allowance towards their great charges. The archbishops and bishops thereupon order, that for the first session they should have the old and ordinary allowance, and for the other sessions after, the moiety of the first old allowance." His ita gestis, convocatio ad 19. mensis Novembris sequentis prorogabatur.

Interea inferior convocationis domus libellum supplicem regi offerebat, de tollendis prohibitionibus, ut seq.

Petition of the lower house of convocation to his majesty against prohibitions.

Most humbly beseeching your most excellent majesty, your most faithful subjects, the clergy of your lower house of convocation, for themselves and the rest of their brethren in the ministry; that, whereas they have been very much of late years defrauded of their tithes, and debarred from obtaining their right due unto them by your excellent laws of this church, through prohibitions procur'd by those, which wrong them out of your majesty's temporal courts, to your suppliants great hindrance, molestation, and utter impoverishing in time, if remedy be not provided; besides the stopping of justice, occasion of perjury, and further wrong, and overthrow of your ecclesiastical jurisdiction, as though it were an unjust usurpation of foreign power against your majesty and crown, and not the due execution of your majesty's own rightful power and just jurisdiction in causes ecclesiastical: it may please your most excellent majesty, upon due notice given, and in tender consideration of our grievances herein, to take some speedy order for the help and relief of the same in such manner, as to your highness's wisdom, piety, and clemency shall seem just, fit, and convenient.

And your majesty's suppliants shall evermore (as they are bound) with all due thankfulness pray unto God for your majesty's long and happy life, and prosperous reign.

Duo inprimis post hanc prorogationem in synodo proponebantur; primum sessione III. Novemb. 21. "The archbishop tells the lower house, that the king had consented to put a restraint upon prohibitions."

Secundum sessione xi. Februarii 18. "The archbishop declares to both houses the king's pleasure for singing and organ service in cathedrals."

Deinde per varias prorogationes virtute brevis regii convocatio continuata fuit usque ad Februarii diem decimum, anno M.DC.IX.

Synodus provinciae Ebor. Ex reg. Ebor.

SYNODUS provinc. Ebor. die Mercurii 9. die mensis Aprilis, M.DC.VI. in ecclesia metropolitana B. Postea virtute brevis regii dat. 28. Maii directi episcopo Bristol. custodi spiritualitatis archiepiscopatus Ebor. synodus provinciae hujus ad

19. diem mensis Novembris prorogabatur. Antequam autem dies ille ingrueret, aliud breve regium dat. 14. Novemb. directum Tobiae Matthews, archiepiscopo Ebor. emanavit, prorogationes synodorum provinciae hujus tam tempore Matthaei Hutton, archiepiscopi, quam custodem spiritualitatis enarrans, ac novo archiepiscopo mandans juxta vim et formam ultimi brevis regii in synodo procedere. Ea post varias deinde prorogationes per literas regias patentes dat. 2. die Martii ad 10. diem Aprilis, M.DC.VII. continuata est.

Bulla papae Pauli quinti contra sacramentum fidelitatis. Ex Foulis Romish Treasons lib. X. cap. III.

DILECTI filii, salutem et apostolicam benedictionem. Magno animi moerore nos semper affecerunt tribulationes et calamitates, quas pro retinenda catholica fide jugiter sustinistis, sed cum intelligamus omnia hoc tempore magis exacerbari, afflictio nostra mirum in modum aucta est, etc. Non potestis absque evidentissima gravissimaque divini honoris injuria obligare vos juramento, quod similiter maximo cum cordis nostri dolore audivimus propositum vobis fuisse praestandum infra scripti tenoris, videlicet:

Quae cum ita sint, vobis ex verbis ipsis perspicuum esse debet, quod hujusmodi juramentum salva fide catholica et salute animarum vestrarum praestari non potest, cum multa contineat quae fidei et saluti aperte adversantur.

Propterea admonemus vos, ut ab hoc atque similibus juramentis praestandis omnino caveatis; quod quidem eo acrius exigimus a vobis, quia experti vestrae fidei constantiam, quae tanquam aurum in fornace perpetuae tribulationis igne probata est. Pro comperto habemus, vos alacri animo subdituros esse quaecunque atrociora tormenta, ac mortem denique ipsam constanter appetituros potius, quam Dei majestatem ulla in re laedatis, etc.

Bulla papae Pauli quinti contra sacramentum fidelitatis. Ex Foulis Romish treasons lib. X. cap. 3.

DELECTI filii, salutem et apostolicam benedictionem. Renunciatum est nobis, reperiri nonnullos apud vos, qui cum satis declaraverimus per literas nostras anno superiore et 10. calend. Octobris in forma brevis datas, vos tuta conscientia praestare non posse juramentum, quod a vobis tunc exigebatur, et praeterea stricte praeceperimus ne ullo modo illud praestaretis; nunc dicere audent hujusmodi, literas de prohibitione juramenti non ex animi nostri sententia nostraque propria voluntate scriptas fuisse, sed potius aliorum intuitu atque industria, eaque de causa iidem persuadere nituntur, mandata nostra dictis literis non esse attendenda.

Perturbavit sane nos hic nuncius, eoque magis, quia experti obedientiam vestram, filii nostri unice dilecti, qui ut hinc sanctae sedi obedieritis, opes, facultates, dignitatem, libertatem, vitam denique ipsam pie et generose nihili fecistis, nunquam suspicati essemus potuisse vocari apud vos in dubium fidem literarumstrarum apostolicarum, ut hoc praetextu vos ex mandatis nostris eximeretis.

Verum agnoscimus versutiem atque fraudem adversarii humanae salutis, eisque potius, quam vestrae voluntati tribuimus hanc renitentiam. Eapropter iterum ad vos scribere decrevimus, ac denuo vobis significare literas nostras apostolicas anno praeterito 10. calend. Octob. datas de prohibitione juramenti, non solum motu proprio, et ex certa nostra scientia, verum etiam post longam et gravem deliberationem de omnibus, quae in illis continentur, adhibitam, fuisse scriptas, et ob id teneri vos illas omnino observare, omni interpretatione secus suadente rejecta.

Haec autem est mera, pura, integraque voluntas nostra, qui de vestra salute solliciti semper cogitamus ea, quae magis vobis expediunt. Et ut cogitationes et consilia nostra illuminetis, a quo christiano gregi custodiendo nostra fuit praeposita humilitas indefinenter oramus; quem etiam jugiter precamur, ut in vobis filiis nostris summopere dilectis fidem, constantiam, mutuamque inter vos charitatem et pacem augeat, quibus omnibus cum omni charitatis affectu peramanter benedicimus. The rules to be obſerved in the tranſlation of the Bible.

I. The ordinary Bible read in the church, commonly called "the biſhop's Bible," to be followed, and as little altered, as the truth of the original will permit.

II. The names of the prophets, and the holy writers, with the other names of the text to be retained, as nigh as may be, accordingly as they were vulgarly uſed.

III. The old eccleſiaſtical words to be kept, videlicet, the word "Church" not to be tranſlated "Congregation," etc.

IV. When a word hath divers ſignifications, that to be kept, which has been moſt commonly uſed by moſt of the ancient fathers, being agreeable to the propriety of the place, and the analogy of the faith.

V. That the diviſion of the chapters be altered either not at all, or as little as may be, if neceſſity ſo require.

VI. No marginal notes at all to be affixed, but only for the explanation of the Hebrew or Greek words, which cannot without ſome circumlocution ſo briefly and fitly be expreſſed in the text.

VII. Such quotations of places to be marginally ſet down, as ſhall ſerve for the fit reference of one ſcripture to another.

VIII. Every particular man of each company to take the ſame chapter or chapters, and having tranſlated or amended them ſeverally by himſelf, where he thinketh good, all to meet together, confer what they have done, and agree for their parts, what ſhall ſtand.

IX. As any one company hath diſpatched any one book in this manner, they ſhall ſend it to the reſt to be conſidered of ſeriously and judiciously; for his majeſty is very careful in this point.

X. If any company upon the review of the book ſo ſent, doubt or differ upon any place, to ſend them word thereof, note the place, and withal ſend the reaſons; to which if they conſent not, the difference to be compounded at the general meeting, which is to be of the chief perſons of each company, at the end of the work.

XI. When any place of ſpecial obſcurity is doubted of, letters to be directed by authority to to send to any learned man in the land for his judgment of such a place.

XII. Letters to be sent from every bishop to the rest of his clergy, admonishing them of this translation in hand, and to move and charge as many as be skilful in the tongues, and have taken pains in that kind, to send his particular observations to the company either at Westminster, Cambridge, or Oxford.

XIII. The directors in each company to be the dean of Westminster and Chester for that place, and the king's professors in the Hebrew or Greek in either university.

These translations Tindall, to be used, when they agree better with the text, than the bishops Bible; videlicet } Matthews, Coverdales, Whitchurches, Geneva.

XV. Besides the said directors before mentioned, three or four of the most ancient and grave divines in either of the universities, not employed in translating, to be assigned by the vice-chancellor, upon conference with the rest of the heads, to be overseers of the translations as well Hebrew as Greek, for the better observation of the fourth rule above specified.

King James's letter to the bishop of London about the repair of St. Paul's church.
Rushworth's Collect. ii. vol. p. 90. and Frankl. Annal. p. 388.

JAMES, Rex.

RIGHT reverend father in God, right trusty and well beloved, we greet you well. The desire we have to remove the scandal that hath long lien upon our city of London especially, but in a manner upon the whole realm, for the neglect of the repairing of the steeple of St. Paul's church, moved us to quicken them by our letters to think upon some means, how the same might be taken in hand, and to offer of our own bounty to contribute liberally towards it; by occasion whereof we have been informed, that the whole body of the church is not only in decay, but in some danger of ruin in some parts thereof, if the same be not in time prevented, which grieved us not a little, that in a time of peace and plenty, which this realm hath of late years enjoyed, and in the flourishing estate of the church, so much neglect should be used by those, to whose care it appertaineth to preserve in their estate and decency such monuments, as though they be not of the essence of religion, yet never were neglected, but with blemish and disgrace as well to the ministers, as to the religion itself, to the use whereof they are dedicated, and do not leave unattainted the honour and zeal of those princes, in whose time such error happen, because it is no small part of their charge to have an eye to the preservation, as in general of all public monuments, so especially of those, that have been designed to the honour and service of God; from the sense whereof it ariseth that at this time we summon the duties of you, whom it concerneth, and require you to enter into present consideration, how the decays of that church may be forthwith repaired, and the same restored not only to strength and safety, but to such decency, as is comely for so worthy and famous a monument of the piety of our ancestors. For it is not unknown to us, that among the possessions, which appertain to that see, there be lands especially appropriated to the fabric of the church, which if they had been continually employed to that use, those decays would not have got so far; notwithstanding if the former neglects have made the decay greater than the yearly revenue of those lands can repair, we shall be willing to give furtherance to any other means of supply, which shall be presented unto us. But because we would not have their ruins to run on, but some speedy cause to be taken for the redress thereof, and to the end we may understand what the state of the structures of that church is; we require you to cause the same to be viewed by skilful persons, and a survey to be made in writing of all the decays thereof, and what the charge of the reparation may amount unto, and likewise a certificate to be made to us of such possessions of the church, as be appropriated to the fabric thereof, and what yearly rent they be of, that we may see how the means do stand in proportion of the charge, and what will be requisite for supply; all which to be presented to us at our return and settling at our winter abode, and assuring yourself, that we will not fail to call for an account thereof. Given under our signet at Tuddington the 24th of July, in the sixth year of our reign of Great Britain, France, and Ireland.

The council's letter to the archbishop of Canterbury about arms to be provided by the clergy. Reg. Bancroft fol. 154. b.

"SALUTEM in Christo." Understanding of some particular points not fully extended in a late letter written by the lords of his majesty's most honourable privy council to the lieutenants and commissioners of musters in the several counties, touching a view to be taken of the clergies forces among the rest, I have according to my duty obtained from their lordships a more full explication of their lordships meaning in that point, the copy whereof ensueth:

To our very good lord, the lord archbishop of Cant. After our right hearty commendations to your lordship; whereas in the letters of late written from us, by his majesty's commandment, for a general view and muster to be taken at this time of all the forces of this realm both of horse and foot, we gave order amongst other directions to the lieutenants and commissioners of musters in the several counties, that such of the clergy as have been heretofore appointed to find arms, and others of them that are meet in like sort to be charged, might be ordered to cause the same to be shewed at these musters; forasmuch as some question hath sithence been moved, as your lordship knoweth, of the manner and order meet to be observed of the clergy in this service of musters, and by that occasion we have been desired to deliver our direction more particularly in that behalf; we do therefore hereby signify unto your lordship, that we think it meet, that you do forthwith direct your letters to the bishops of the several dioceses within the province of Cant. requiring them to inform themselves of all such clergymen, in their several bishopricks, as well non-residents as others, as are fit to be charged with the finding of horse, arms, or other furnitures, and thereupon to rate and cause them to be rated according to their abilities for that service; which being done, it shall suffice that the bishops do only send unto the lieutenants of those counties in their dioceses, or in such counties, where there are no lieutenants to the commissioners of the musters due and orderly certificates, containing as well the names of such ecclesiastical persons, as they have rated, as also the several provisions of horse, arms, and furnitures, that the said clergymen be appointed to have in readiness; whereupon order may be taken for a view and muster to be had of them, either with the rest of the forces of the county, or apart by themselves, as shall be thought most expedient for his majesty's service, and without any unnecessary charge or trouble of the said clergymen, herein we pray your lordship to give direction accordingly. And so wish you right heartily well to fare. From Hampton court the 19. of September, M.DC.VIII.

Your lordships very loving friends, etc.

Your lordship hereby fully understandeth their lordships pleasure, what course is to be held in this business, with their lordships said directions, I pray you be careful to see speedily accomplished in such sort, as that his majesty may thereby receive good satisfaction; whereof not doubting, I commit your lordship to the tuition of almighty God. At Lambeth the 21. of September, M.DC.VIII.

Your lordship's loving brother,

Orders enjoined by the lord archbishop of Cant. in his metropolitical visitation of the diocese of Winchester, to be observed by the warden and scholars of St. Mary college of Oxford near Winchester, anno M.DC.VIII. Reg. Bancroft fol. 220. b.

IN PRIMIS, That no timber trees growing in the woods or upon the lands of the college, be given to any whatsoever upon any occasion, nor that any of the said timber trees be sold, but upon very extraordinary and urgent occasions, and then not without the consent of the more part of the fellows, unless it be for the necessary reparations of the college-houses; to be allowed by the warden, at the motion of the rider or one of the burfers.

II. Item, That the fellow, which rideth the progress with the warden, be not only made privy to all the fines raised upon the grants of copyholds, but give his consent, for the time that he is a rider, to the pitching of the fines assessed either by the warden, or the steward, and that neither the steward, nor he, who occupieth that place, shall by any means without the warden and the rider of the progress, rate or appoint any fines for copyhold lands, to the use of the college, or any other; also that an extract of the grants of copyholds, and of fines raised thereon, shall yearly be made, that at the time of supervision they may be presented and delivered to the warden and supervisors of New college in Oxford, if they shall think good to call for them, that so it may appear what sincere dealing there is for the profit of the college.

III. Item, That the warden's allowance for his his diet be continued according to the rate lately agreed upon in writing by the warden, subwarden, and fellows, and this to be allowed to the warden, as well in his absence as in his presence, because he is contented with a lesser rate than formerly he hath had, and now requireth no allowance for festival and gaudy days; saving that when he lyeth abroad upon the charge and expence of the college, the proportion and allowance made unto him at home, shall be but according to the rate and number of those, who remain at home upon the college allowance.

IV. Item, That the diet and allowance for the fellows be according to the proportion lately agreed upon in writing by the warden, subwarden, and fellows, and so to continue, unless it shall appear, that the house is not able to bear the charge thereof, and then to be ordered by the consent of the warden, subwarden, and major part of the fellows; and that the diet of the fellows shall not be taken, but only in the college hall, except it be in time of sickness to be taken in their chambers, by the allowance of the warden, or in his absence, of the subwarden, and that no bread and beer be carried out of the college either into any of the fellows private houses, or to any other place.

V. Item, That no three of consanguinity or affinity with the warden or any other of the fellows, shall hereafter be permitted to be fellows of that house together, and that no two of any such consanguinity or affinity be chosen, or suffered to be officers in any one year: consanguinity in this place being not meant to be farther extended, than to cousin germans, nor affinity farther than to the same proportion of degree.

VI. Item, That the store of the college in lead, glass, stone, timber, and such like necessities for building be not taken or employed by the warden or any other member of that house, without the consent of the three officers or the most part of the fellows, and that by no means they be employed to any private use out of the said college; except they be first bought and paid for by the party, that will so use them.

VII. Item, That neither the warden nor any fellow of that house, make any new additions, alterations, or buildings at the college charge, to those, that are already set up in the college, without consent of the most part of the fellows.

VIII. Item, That the park called Stoke park, be not alienated, leased, or applied to any private man's use, but that the wood and all other profits rising from the same, be converted to the public good of the house; and that it shall not be lawful for the occupier of that park to till or convert any part of that park to his private use, but such as shall be allotted by the warden and more part of the fellows, to be continued or altered, as they shall find cause: and at every audite it shall be straightly examined by those, who take the accompts, whether the best profit be made for the college, or no; and that the said accompts so examined shall be ready to be shewed to the supervisors, if they will call for them.

IX. Item, That the college horses maintained in the said park, and likewise kept in the college stable, be not employed to any private man's use, neither shall the warden put any other horses of his own, or his friends, into the said park, saving such as are allowed unto him by the college, neither shall any fellow, or other person belonging to that college, put any horse of his own, or of any other into the said park, upon any pretence whatsoever.

X. Item, That the wardens of both colleges and all the other electors yearly do not singly and for themselves, name any scholar to be chosen into that college, or to be sped from thence unto New college in Oxford, but that they jointly concur for the electing of those which are most worthy, and that no man shall repute, or as far as in him lieth, give cause, that other men repute this or that place, which is to be filled, to be the private place, nomination, election, or designment of any one elector, but to be the joint and public choice and election of the whole number, or at least of the greatest part of them.

XI. Item, That no schoolmaster, usher, chaplain, clerk, choirister, or servant of that college be elected or accepted into the same for any money or reward, directly or indirectly, and that neither usher nor schoolmaster be admitted into that college, before they have subscribed to the articles mentioned in the 77th canon, and that neither the schoolmaster, usher, or any fellow of that house at any time extort, challenge, or insert into his accompts, or any ways take or receive any sum of money, for chamber rent, or for being tutor to any of the scholars within, or without the college.

XII. Item, That neither the warden, nor any officer, or fellow of that house obtrude on the college their bad or unclean wheat, and barley made into malt, growing at their parsonages, for such prizes as pleaseth themselves, to the hurt of the rest of the fellows, and scholars there, as well in their diet as in their expences; and that it shall not be lawful for any servant of that house, be he baker or brewer, or any other, to accept and receive to the college use any such corn, without the oversight and allowance of the warden, subwarden, and bursters for the time being, and the price first agreed upon by them.

XIII. Item, That the warden journeying to London, and abiding there about the business of the college, as well the causes of his going, as his expences for the time, be duly considered by those, unto whom by statute it appertaineth; who are carefully to look, that no superfluous burthen be laid upon the college.

XIV. Item, That no grant of land, house, or of any other inheritance of the said college, nor any weighty cause, which may prejudice or indanger that house, be concluded without the deliberate and express consent of the greater part of all the fellows of the said college, collegiately assembled; and that nothing be sealed ed with the common seal of that college, but in the presence of all such as are at that time fellows of the college.

XV. Item, That no man shall receive any part of the college rents, but such as are appointed thereto by the statutes of that college, and that the rents so received shall presently be locked up in the common chest, and not taken thence, but by the consent of those whom the founder hath appointed for that purpose; and that no bargain for wheat, malt, or any other victuals or provisions shall be taken upon trust to the use of the college, at any other prices, than shall be first agreed upon by the warden, subwarden, and bursers, and that whosoever shall be sent or trusted to make provisions in gross for the college (other than for the week's expences) upon his return, or within two days after any such bargain made, shall yield a true accompt thereof unto the said warden, subwarden, and bursers, or to so many of them as be then at home.

XVI. Item, That before all elections of fellows and officers, a sufficient time and public or personal warning be given to all the fellows, that they may assemble to the said election, and that no man be accounted or admitted, as lawfully elected to any fellowship or office in that college, without the consent of the warden, and the greater part of those, which at that time are fellows of the said college.

XVII. Item, That the common servants of the college, as the bakers, brewers and butlers, be not entertained with the wardens liveries or wages, but that they be obedient and subject to the subwardens and bursers check and correction, when they do amiss, as other the college servants should be, and are.

XVIII. Item, That the supervisors do yearly come to the election on the Monday night, and depart on the Friday morning next following, and that no fellow of the college at the election time do bring in any strangers to meals.

XIX. Item, That the fellows, when they go out of town, shall signify the same unto the warden, as for other reasons, so also that in the mean time commons may be spared, to the behoof of the college.

XX. Item, That for so much as the commoners ought not, by the statute, to be burthened to the college, they shall every one of them hereafter pay for their commons four shillings by the week, in the same manner, that the former weekly sums for their commons were paid.

XXI. Item, That the accompts for every quarter be duly cast up; and especially that the accompts for Michaelmas quarter be ended and perfected before the beginning of the audit.

XXII. Item, That the bursers, upon the ending of their accompts, shall pay and satisfy all things due to the college, or put in sufficient caution within one month to do the same, or to lose all benefit, which they should reap in and of the college, till all things be satisfied.

XXIII. Item, That the cook do monthly yield an accompt of his vessels, and the bursers yearly bring in their inventory, and so also the warden to do for those things that be within his charge.

XXIV. Item, That each fellow, while it is their course to celebrate divine service, shall lie within the college, and for the week of their course, be every day present at morning prayer at six of the clock, and so to give good example and encouragement unto other for frequenting the same.

JACOB. I. 6.

Orders enjoined by the most reverend the lord archbishop of Cant. in his metropolitanical visitation anno M.DC.VIII. to be observed by the dean and chapter of the cathedral church of Canterbury. Reg. Bancroft fol. 226. b.

I. THAT the epistle and gospel be every Sunday and holy day read, according to the book of Common Prayer, in some convenient place near the communion table, and in copes.

II. That upon solemn feast days the sermon be made before the communion, the moveable pulpit being placed either in the presbytery or quire, and every afternoon of such days, there be a sermon for the city in the ordinary place.

III. That the almsmen do attend daily at the church, and that those, who do altogether discontinue, be paid no wages, till they have given a reason of that their discontinuance; that such among them as are either notorious drunkards, or infamous livers, and are likewise negligent at divine service, be severely admonished, and if thereupon they be not reformed, that then they also have no wages paid them.

IV. That the poor singing men, especially such as are cunning, diligent, and inoffensive, having but mean stipends, may have, for their better encouragement and sustenance, some more sufficient allowance appointed them, at the discretion of the dean and chapter, and that they certify, what they will allow them.

V. That the choristers be not admitted upon their masters allowance, but that the dean do appoint them to be examined and approved by some others of the quire, and that their said master do not take of them a year's wages at their first entrance.

VI. That the said master, under pretence of going to the grammar or writing school, do not suffer any of his scholars to be absent in the afternoons, without the privy and special licence of the dean; and that for playing days he doth observe the order, which is set down for the grammar school.

VII. That

VII. That the register, or chapter clerk, be sworn, as are other members and officers of the church, with addition "de secretis capituli non revelandis."

VIII. That the usual stock of the church be duly kept in the officer's hands, and that accompt be accordingly given of it at every audit.

IX. That the particular bills of expences be written in a book, and that at the audit, every prebendary present and at home, be called to the view of the accompt and the examination of the particular bills of expences, and that after the accompt made and audit ended, the said book of particular expences be left in the dean's custody.

X. That none dwelling within the church do keep swine, or other cattel, to run at large in any of the common courts.

XI. That such houses as have been heretofore daytime shops, be demised, as formerly they have been, and that none be suffered, married persons or widdow-women especially, to inhabit and lodge in them.

XII. That the wall, allowed Mr. archdeacon in the Coventgarden, be no further extended than to the end of Dr. Hovenday's stable, and that no more of that garden be taken in, than doth range with the said wall, and shall be for the ease of several tenants, they being at the charge to build up, and continue on the like wall, in all respects, to the archdeacons; provided that in the said wall no door be made into the church by any tenant or inhabitant now or hereafter, except the same shall be first allowed by the dean and chapter, and though so allowed, yet, upon inconvenience found, no longer to be suffered, than shall be with the liking of the dean, the lord archbishop being made acquainted with that inconvenience, and approving the same.

XIII. That great care be had for the preservation of all the church woods, that none be sold but by the consent of the dean and chapter, being first surveyed by the dean, or one appointed by him, and by the officer for the time being.

XIV. That especial regard be had in allotting of wood for private use, no prebendary to have yearly above three acres; and those to be spent within his house; except the archdeacon who is charged with greater hospitality than the rest, he to have five acres, and the dean six acres.

XV. That no timber trees be felled in any of the church woods, but by the consent of the dean and chapter, and that by the appointment and setting out of the officer for the time being and of the dean, or one assigned by him.

XVI. That such timber trees as are yearly brought in for the service of the church, be taken by no prebendary, tho' an officer, nor employed to any private use, except the same shall be first allowed by the dean and treasurer; and that the store of the church in lead, lath, stone, brick, lime, and other necessities for building, be likewise not taken upon any private occasion, but by the said consent.

XVII. That the keeper of the store be a sworn officer, and at every audit do give in the particulars of his accompts, as other officers do.

XVIII. That no addition to private houses, or alteration or building be made within or about the church, but by the consent of the dean and chapter, and that no officer do the same about his own house in the year of his office.

XIX. That the archdeacon of Cant. have place in the quire next the dean and vicedean, likewise at all meetings within and without the church, and that the prebendaries, though they be no doctors, have precedence of the doctors, both in the quire, preaching place, and at other meetings within the church.

In witness hereof we have hereunto put our archiepiscopal seal, given at our manor of Lambeth the fourth day of January, in the year of our Lord God, after the computation of the church of England, M.DC.VIII. and of our translation the fifth.

An act for the better furnishing the court of convocation with members fit for so high and necessary an assembly. Out of a MS. in Sir Simon D'ew's library containing grievances relating to several matters in church and state laid before the parliament M.DC.X. [Mr. Turner of the Temple said to be the deviser of these notes.]

FORASMUCH as the lawful assemblies of the clergy of this realm by the king's writ in the court commonly called the Convocation, is well observed not only to be warranted by the word of God, and the example of the primitive church, to be of most worthy service and use for the ordering of matters touching the institution of the soul, and divine knowledge, for the reformation of conscience, and for the direction of the clergy in the execution of their duties, in the administration of the word to the edification of the people with the more profit and fruit in their particular congregations, and consequently most necessary that the members of the said court chosen to holy service should be of the worthiest persons both for life and doctrine; be it therefore enacted, that from henceforth no ecclesiastical person shall be chosen and sent to the said court of convocation, as a member of the said court, to treat of matters belonging to the jurisdiction thereof, but such as shall be resident upon their cures, and shew their honest and true care over their congregations by their weekly labour amongst them in the due administration of the word. And that no person whatsoever be from henceforth allowed to have any voice in the choice or election of any person to be of the court or assembly, but such as then shall be resident also as aforesaid, and weekly exercising their ministry in their cures.

A proclamation for the due execution of all former laws against recusants, giving them a day to repair to their own dwellings, and not afterwards to come to the court, or within ten miles of London without special licence; and for disarming them as the law requireth. And withal that all priests and Jesuites shall depart the land by a day, no more to return into the realm; and for the ministring of the oath of allegiance according to the law.

THOUGH the principal care that a religious and wise king ought to have, should be for the maintenance and propagation by all godly, lawful, and honest means, of the true catholic and christian religion, and to that effect as he must plant good seed with the one hand, so to displant and root out with the other, as far as he can, the cockle and tares of heresy, that do ordinarily grow up amongst the Lord's wheat; yet hath our nature been ever so inclined to clemency, especially we have ever been so loth to shed blood in any case that might have any relation to conscience (though but of a deceived and disguised conscience) as notwithstanding the care and zeal that we have ever carried for the maintenance and propagation of this our ancient and true catholic religion, which we profess, yet hath our said natural clemency ever withholden us from putting the law to that due execution against popish priests and recusants, which their evil deserts at divers times towards us, and their insolent and proud carriage, especially of late, did justly deserve at our hands.

But not that their evil behaviour at home, manifested first by the priests treason immediately after our entry into this kingdom, and next at the horrible powder treason, the unnatural cruelty whereof is never to be forgotten, joined to this horrible and lamentable accident abroad, we mean the devilish and unnatural murder of the late French king our dearest brother, hath so stirred up the hearts of our loving people represented by the houses and body of parliament, as both the houses thereof have joined in making an humble petition to us to be more wakeful than heretofore we have been, upon the courses and steps of the papists. And to this effect, that we would be pleased to put in due execution hereafter without any longer conveniency the good and wholesome laws of this realm made against them, the most part whereof were made before our entry into this kingdom, and so were we at our coronation sworn to the maintenance of them: we have just reason according to their humble desire, to be more careful than heretofore we have been in seeing our said laws put in due execution. For since in this case, our conscience, in regard to religion, our honour, in regard there is nothing craved, but the execution of our laws, our safety, and not only of us but of all our posterity, in regard to the papists bloody doctrine, that make martyrs and saints of such as kill their own kings, the anointed of God; so as we now see to our horror their detestable doctrine, so oft put in practice, and so that butcherly theoric and practice so linked together, that a sinful or wicked man can by no means so well redeem his soul from eternal damnation, as by murdering a king that is either an heretic by their interpretation, or a fautor of heretics: these three motives we say, so justly grounded upon conscience, honour, and safety, together that the motion hereof hath moved from our people, cannot but stir up that princely and provident care in us, which every religious, just, and wise king ought to have upon such respects and considerations.

And therefore being informed, that at this time especially, there is a greater resort made of recusants to this our city of London, than hath been at any time heretofore, notwithstanding that by the laws of our realm they ought all to be confined, and remain within five miles of their dwelling places; it is our express will and pleasure to discharge like as by these presents we do discharge, all by-past licences granted unto them for their repairing hither. And although this time of parliament, and the creation of our eldest son be so unfit and dangerous a time for their abode here, as hereupon our parliament hath humbly moved us, that they might all be sent home and discharged this city, before the creation of our said dearest son; yet have we thought good to retain so much of our accustomed clemency, weighing so little any of their malicious plots, or the hazard thereof during that time in comparison of our said clemency, as in consideration of such important business as they may have concerning their particular estates in the next term, we are contented to give them time untill the last day of June, which is after the end of the next term; betwixt and which time, they are to repair again to their own dwelling houses and places of confining, according to the law, not presuming at any time hereafter, to repair to this our city and chamber of London, or to our court, or to the court of our dearest wife the queen, or of the prince our dear son wheresoever, or within ten miles of London, without special licence had thereunto, under pain of the severe execution of our laws upon the contravenors, and of highest contempt against our authority joined thereunto.

And we are likewise pleased upon the said humble petition of our said loving subjects assembled in parliament, straightly to charge and command our justices of peace in all parts of this our realm, that according to our laws in that behalf, they do take from all popish recusants convicted, all such armour, gunpowder, and ammunition of any kind, as any of them hath either in their own hands, or in the hands of any other for them, and see the same safely kept, and disposed according to the law; leaving them for their necessary defence of their house and persons, so much as by the laws is prescribed; wherein as our said justices have been hitherto too remiss, so if we shall find this our express commandment neglected, or not diligently executed, as is fit, and as the importance thereof doth require, we will make them know by severe punishment, what it is to be careless of our royal commandments in cases of this nature.

And because that priests and Jesuits do more abundantly swarm as well throughout our whole kingdom, as within our city of London, than ever they did heretofore, not only coming daily home in flocks, to the high contempt of our authority and laws, but even a number of those particular persons amongst them, who after they have been kept in prisons and convicted by our laws, yet were out of our clemency, put forth of the country again upon condition not to return, have notwithstanding presumed to return again into this country, in high contempt of our great clemency and favour extended towards them, thereby as it were, seeking and begging at our hands their own just punishment; we have therefore thought good, for staying the like abuses and inconveniences in time to come, to give from henceforth free passage and course to all such laws as are now in force, and ought to be put in execution against such offenders. And yet being ever willing to mix some part of our clemency with the rigour of the law, notwithstanding that in the first year, and afterwards in the fourth year of our reign, we did by two several gracious proclamations give a certain day to all priests and Jesuits, for transporting themselves out of our dominions between and the said day, at that time intimating all rigour unto them, that should thereafter return within our kingdom; yet are we content notwithstanding their contempt of this former grace twice before offered unto them, yet to renew the same now again this third time: and do therefore by these presents declare and publish, that it shall be lawful for all manner of Jesuits, seminaries, and other priests whatsoever now in this kingdom, as well those whom we shall vouchsafe to deliver out of prison, as those that are not yet apprehended, freely and safely to depart forth of our realm, so as they make their repair unto any of our ports between the day of the date of this proclamation, and the fourth day of July next, for the same purpose there to transport themselves with the first opportunity into any foreign parts; admonishing and assuring all such Jesuits, seminaries, and priests of what sort soever, departing upon this our pleasure signified, as also all other that have been heretofore released by our gracious favour in the same condition, that if any of them shall hereafter return into this our realm again, that their blood shall then be upon their own heads, and upon those that shall send them, seeing that by so doing they shall not only incur the danger of our laws, but also a high and treble contempt of our gracious favour and clemency now extended towards them.

ignorance of our laws, that all Jesuits and priests of what order soever, and their senders, may hereby be admonished to beware any further to tempt our mercy, in presuming to repair any more within this our kingdom, in regard of their known peril, and of the care that we are resolved to have for preserving of our good subjects from their danger of body and soul, since their errand can be no other here, but only for diverting of our good subjects hearts from their due obedience both to God and us.

And lastly, because the horror and detestation of the powder treason in the minds of our parliament bred amongst other things, that oath of allegiance to be taken by our subjects, so highly impugned by the pope and his followers, as we are enforced by our own pen to take in hand the maintenance of our cause for that oath, which howsoever odious it was to the pope, yet was it only devised as an act of great favour and clemency towards so many of our subjects, who though blinded with the superstition of popery, yet carried a dutiful heart towards our obedience; for hereby was there a separation and distinction made between that sort of papists and the other pernicious sort, that couple together that damnable doctrine and detestable practice before mentioned; therefore in consideration that the said oath serveth to make so true and merciful a distinction between these two sorts of papists, as is already said, we cannot but hold it most convenient for the weal of all our good subjects, and discovery of bad people, that greater care shall be used hereafter in the general ministration of this oath to all our subjects, than hath been heretofore used.

And therefore it is our express will and pleasure, and accordingly we do hereby straightly charge and command all and singular our bishops, justices of assise, justices of peace, and all other our officers, whom it may concern, to minister the same to all such persons, and in all such cases, as by the law they are enabled, knowing that the meaning of the law was not only to authorize them to do it when they would, and to forbear it at their pleasure, but to require it at their hands, as a necessary duty committed to them, and imposed upon them, as persons of chief and principal trust under us, for the good and safety of us and our state. Given at our palace of Whitehall the second day of June, in the eighth year of our reign of great Britain, France, and Ireland, anno Domini M.DC.X.

The archbishop of Canterbury's letter about pluralities and other matters relating to the church. Reg. Bancroft fol. 172. b.

SALUTEM in Christo." That which I should have signified to your lordship at your being here, had we met together, I am now to impart unto you in this sort. Upon the grievances exhibited unto his majesty by the lower house of parliament, he hath been pleased to undertake much on our behalf, and to lay a great burthen upon me, which I am not otherwise able to bear, but by the assistance of your lordship and others our brethren the bishops. These are therefore, in discharge of mine own duty, very heartily to pray and require your lordship, that you forthwith inform yourself, how many ministers have two benefices within your diocese, and whether every one of them hath a preaching minister to supply his absence where he doth not reside himself, according to the XLI. and XLVII. constitutions; and if herein you find any want, send presently for the parties, and charge them by virtue of the said canons, and in his majesty's name, as they will avoid his displeasure, that without any delay they supply that defect. Perhaps some may give unto your lordship froward answers, and either refuse or delay to give you satisfaction herein; which if they do, I require you, in his majesty's name, to suspend them for their contempt, and to certify me thereof presently, that I may give order to stay all inhibitions in that case. If any such person keep the benefice in his own hands, whereupon he doth not reside, then I would have you to sequester the fruits of it, and to allow out of them a reasonable portion for a curate that is a preacher. If a pluralist, having one benefice in your lordship's diocese, be resident in another, then you to call him by process; if he be a delinquent herein, I heartily desire your lordship to use your best diligence in this matter, to the end that notice thereof may be had throughout your diocese before the next session of parliament; and fail not to write unto me before that time what you have done therein, and upon any wilfulness shewed to your lordship, or other impediment, whereby you cannot prevail with some party, let me presently be informed of his name, and I will send for him myself. Secondly, you are to inform me of the names and degrees of all those that have two benefices within your diocese, or but one in your diocese and another in another diocese. Thirdly, it is his majesty's straight charge, that you require all your prebendaries to be resident upon their benefices, and there to preach every Sunday, according to the tenor of two canons made in that behalf; and taking the course beforementioned, write unto me the names of such as shall refuse to obey you herein. Fourthly, you must be careful and diligent in the administering of the oath of allegiance, according to the trust reposed in you by the statute made this session, which I pray you procure forthwith, as soon as the same, together with the rest shall be printed: they are now in the press. Fifthly your lordship is to use the best means and help you can, by the assistance of all your officers, that his majesty may receive from you, to be delivered unto him by me, the number of all recusants men and women within your diocese, in as exact a manner as you can possibly procure it, and this not only to be done this vacation, but every year hereafter: it is his majesty's direct commandment. Sixthly, you are to give order to your officers, to use their best endeavours and diligence, that all recusants in every parish may be presented unto them, and then take some pains yourself to see, that they be all truly certified to the judges and justices in their sessions and assises, to the end they may be there indicted and convicted; and when your lordship doth make your certificate, as is aforesaid, write to the judges and justices, as having received direction therein from me; then they will be careful for the indicting and conviction of such, as shall be presented unto them; letting them know, that if I may be certified of any slackness herein of them, I will assuredly acquaint his majesty with it. I have heard that when recusants are presented, there is some negligence in setting down their true names, whereby they oftentimes escape from being proceeded with; I pray your lordship give your best directions for the prevention hereof. If any gentleman, who keepeth any recusants in his house, shall refuse to deliver to the churchwardens, or to any, whom your lordship shall send unto him, the true names of them; write unto me thereof, and I will cause him to be sent for by the lords of his majesty's privy council. Seventhly, until by the means aforesaid, that all recusants within your diocese shall be convicted, take such order in any wise with them, as that they may be all excommunicated, and accordingly denounced in your cathedral church, and send me the names of all that shall be so denounced, with their qualities, callings, and abilities, that I may make such use thereof, as shall be fit for the good of the church. Eightly, I will be bold as of myself straightly to charge you, that forasmuch as our excommunications of recusants are utterly by them contemned, and for that they find more favour, than I would wish, to the increasing of their obstinacy, you do forthwith give your order, if you list in my name, to all the ministers of your diocese, that they do not bury neither in the church nor the churchyard, nor suffer to be buried, as much as in them lieth, any popish recusants, that die excommunicated. We that are bishops, have much to answer before God for our slackness hitherto in this point; the law therein being our warrant. Ninthly, I must likewise charge you to examine very narrowly the proceedings of your chancellors, commissaries, archdeacons, and officials; for whilst we repose so much trust in them as we do, and they intend little, I mean especially chancellors, commissaries, and officials, but their own profit, many true complaints and mischiefs do indeed thereof ensue. If in your lordship's care to reform these kinds of abuses, you find any chancellors, commissaries, or officials stubborn and disobedient, write unto me thereof, for we may no longer, to our utter discredit, leave these abuses unreformed, and I am well assured, that wherein we shall want ability, his majesty will yield unto us sufficient strength. Tenthly, it being more than notorious, that many parsons and vicars, and especially such as have two benefices, do suffer their houses to run into decay, where they do not reside themselves; it is his majesty's pleasure, that you take present care in that behalf, by appointing all your underofficers to look upon presentments already made of such defects, and otherwise, by all ways and means to inform yourself, and thereupon to call the parties offending herein before you, and to take such order as that either they themselves shall presently repair their houses, or else do you sequester their livings, allotting a fit portion for them to live upon, and causing the rest to be so employed; for besides that such neglecting of their houses doth argue too much greediness, and is a great scandal to the best affected in their parish, it is very injurious to their successors. Eleventhly, there have been many constitutions formerly made concerning the apparel of ministers, but never was their pride in that respect so great as now it is, from the dean to every curate, nothing being left that way to distinguish a bishop from any of them; you shall find deans usually either in their velvet, damask, or sattin cassocks, with their silk netherstocks; nay some archdeacons and inferiour ministers, having two benefices, are likewise for the most part so attired; to omit that their wives, in the cost and vanity of their apparel, do exceed as much and more, which is one principal motive why there is such exclamation against double beneficed men, and such as beside their two benefices have some other preferment "fine cura". What to move your lordship in this behalf I well know not, but as any so attired shall come before you, let him know particularly, and in my name, that they do greatly forget themselves in these so chargeable vanities, many of them having more care, to their own scorn, so to garnish themselves and their wives, than to furnish their studies with such books, as might enable them the better to discharge their duties, as well for the confirmation of the truth, as for the refuting of all their opposites and adversaries. Assuredly if at our next session, your lordship, and so the rest of my brethren shall not be able to inform me, that upon this my letter and admonition there is some hope, that these abuses will be redressed, I will be an humble suitor unto his majesty, that some straight order, by his direction, may be taken in that behalf, for that this so chargeable a vanity should not be still continued; whilst many other men endure great want, it is very intolerable; seeing that by such their bravery in apparel, they do procure no manner of credit unto themselves, but rather, upon my knowledge, great envy and heartburning against their calling and estates. These and some other abuses being oft objected unto me, do oftentimes plunge me, as being always ready to cover and excuse our imperfections of the clergy; but I must be forced to leave them, if they will not be content to be advised by me. Twelfthly, I have been content, that all bishop Jewel's works should be printed together in one volume, to the end that every parish in England might have one of them. In the late queen's time of worthy memory, every parish was driven to buy "Erasmus's Paraphrase upon the New Testament," and the said bishops "Reply against Harding;" one of the said books delivering plainly to every man's understanding the true sense and meaning of the whole New Testament, and the other containing a very notable and learned confutation of all the principal points almost of popery; and therefore forasmuch as the same true causes, which moved her late majesty to impose the said books upon every parish, do remain still in force, there being more recusants now than at that time; I have thought it my duty very heartily to intreat your lordship, so to deal with the chancellor, commissary, archdeacons, and officials, as by their means, and your own, with the rest of the preachers and ministers of your diocese, they may induce their parishioners to be willing, every parish to buy one of the works of bishop Jewel; and I am so far persuaded of your lordship's ability to prevail with your clergy herein, as I did likewise in as hearty manner desire you to send for as many of the said books ready bound unto Mr. Norton, as there are parishes in your diocese, that hereby the said parishes may have those books near at hand, which will the better encourage them to buy them. What you shall be content to do herein, I know his majesty will take in very good part, being ever of his most princely goodness ready to like and approve of that, which may tend to the instruction and benefit of his loving subjects; and besides, you shall bind me very much hereby unto you, in that I gave encouragement to the printing of the said works in one volume, to the end, that the whole realm might in that sort be furnished with them; and for the prices of them I will take order that they shall be reasonable. Lastly, his majesty is not well pleased with the negligence generally of almost all the bishops in England, touching the collections prescribed heretofore by his majesty, for the building of the church and chapels of Arthure in Cumberland; and therefore I pray you in any wise call your officers before you, and take a strict accompt of them; first, how many collections have been made, and where the money remaineth; for I am persuaded that in many dioceses, much doth rest in the collectors hands. Besides, there be sundry dioceses wherein there hath been no collection at all, and in some not past one or two. Let me receive your lordship's particular letter to be shewed to his majesty, how his pleasure and directions touching this collection, have been accomplished in your particular diocese, after you have informed yourself of the premisses, and done the best you can in this matter. I must tell your lordship, that I am to send to his majesty, by his commandment, a copy of this letter, and that I keep likewise a copy of it my self, to the end, that both his majesty may know what I have done, and I be able to justify myself for the discharge of mine own duty, and so leave the blame and burthen upon them, who shall through their negligence deserve it; and so with my hearty commendations and prayer I commit your lordship to the tuition of almighty God. A letter for Contributions toward the prince's library. Reg. Bancroft fol. 174. a.

THE prince is earnestly affected to have such a library, as is fit for his highness, whereof I having notice, did hold it very convenient, that the abler sort of the clergy, as well as we that are bishops, should give unto his highness some books towards the furnishing of the said library; and because they shall not be able to know what books the prince doth want, deal with the abler sort of double beneficed men in my name, to send up unto me every one of them five pound a piece to be bestowed for them upon such books as I shall know are meet, having the catalogue of all his books to be presented afterwards by me unto his highness in their names. I trust they will give me so much credit, offering unto them my service herein. I have not hitherto been ready to move any extraordinary charge, but in this case I hold it very convenient, that his highness being so wise, judicious, and worthy a prince, should have some little glimpse of our love and duty towards him. I did not think it fit to mention this point in my letter, as holding it convenient that no more should be acquainted with it than such men, as you mean shall contribute. Your lordship well knoweth that the prince will take it very kindly that your chancellor, and the richer sort of commissaries of yours and other dioceses should bestow some law books upon his highness; and accordingly I think fit that some of them ought to give 20 marks, some 10l. and the least 20 nobles. I therefore pray your lordship to deal with yours accordingly, and to cause them forthwith to send up the money unto me, assuring them that their names, their books, and the prices of them shall not be omitted in the general book, which is to be exhibited to his highness of the whole contribution.

Articles to be enquired of in the cathedral church of Bristol, in the metropolitical visitation of the most reverend father in God, George, by God's permission archbishop of Cant. and primate of all England, in the year of our Lord God M.DC.XII. Reg. I. Abbot fol. 229. a.

I. IN PRIMIS, Of what number of persons doth your cathedral church stand?

II. Item, Whether have you any laws, statutes, or ordinances in your church, and by whom the same were made?

III. Item, Whether doth every member of your church, at his first admission to the same, swear to observe such statutes and ordinances of the church, so far as they concern himself, and are not contrary to the laws of this land?

IV. Item, What other benefice or ecclesiastical preferment have the dean, archdeacon, prebendaries, and other ecclesiastical persons of the church, besides their rooms, and places in the same.

V. Item, How are the XLII. XLIII. and XLIV. canons for the residency of the dean, as well in the said cathedral church, as upon their benefices, and * in the convocation anno M.DC.IV. and confirmed by his majesty under the great seal of England, kept and observed?

VI. Item, What time of residence is every residentiary in your church bound unto? and whether do not they dispence one with another for their residency, or some time thereof every year?

VII. Item, Whether be not all the residentiaries in your church many times absent at one time, so that none is to be seen in the church there for divers weeks together, to do the service due to the church, or to keep hospitality there?

VIII. Item, Whether do they at the time of their living there according to their statutes, and the laudable customs of this church, keep hospitality there?

IX. Item, Whether there be not a general neglect among the said canons of coming to evening prayer Sundays, holydays, and other week days?

X. Item, What extraordinary leases have you past within these five years last past? and whether have you not entered into bonds and covenants to make or renew any lease hereafter, whose term is not yet expired, contrary to the true intent of the laws and statutes of this land? and what leases, covenants, and grants have been thus made, and to whom?

XI. Item, Whether your prebendaries in the time of their lying from their cathedral church, do preach upon their benefice, and keep hospitality there, as by the laws of the church and realm they are bound?

XII. Item, Whether sermons be duly had in your cathedral church upon the Sabbaths, and holydays? and how oft in the year have you the communion ministred amongst you in the cathedral church? and how often have you sermons or lectures on the week days in your cathedral church aforesaid, and by whom? and what are the statutes of your church in this behalf?

XIII. Item, How cometh it to pass, that when as the mayor and aldermen of this city were wont, to the credit of this place, to resort to your cathedral church, and there to hear divine service, now they forbear the same? and and who gave the cause of their forbearing thereof? and whether there have been any means made for the reconciliation of either corporation to the other again?

* Forte defunt: The rest of the canons made, aut quid simile.

XIV. Item

XIV. Item, Whether there be any of your whole number, that be any ways affected to the Romish religion, and thereupon frequent not divine service, nor receive the sacrament of the Lord's supper?

XV. Item, What is the number of those which are to attend in the quire, or of other officers belonging to the church? and whether be those places supplied with persons fit and sufficient for the same, and if not, by whose fault it is?

XVI. Item, Whether the choristers be well ordered, and the number of them furnished? and who hath the charge of catechising, and instructing of them in principles of religion? and whether are they so brought up?

XVII. Item, Whether is there care had for the due repairing of the cathedral church or chancel, and other isles, chapels, and edifices thereto adjoining, for stone, timber, glass, lead and iron, and all other necessities thereto, or any part thereof belonging? and if there be default, by whom it is, and who ought to repair it?

XVIII. Item, Whether the officers of your church, namely the steward, treasurers, receivers, bursters, accomptants, and such like, do yearly make a true accompt, and pay such money, as is due to the church upon their account? and whether any such person be now indebted to the church; who it is, and how much?

XIX. Item, Whether there be any of your number that are detected, or grievously suspected of any infamous crime, to the reproach of religion, or the place where they now live?

XX. Item, Whether any of the body of this church, or any other belonging to this church, be known, or vehemently suspected to have bought for money, or other reward, the room or place, which he now holdeth among you, or any other his ecclesiastical preferments?

XXI. Item, Whether the muniments and evidences of your church be safely kept and preserved from the gnawing of rats, mice, or other such vermin, and be kept dry from the injury of rain, and other such like offensive weather? and whether they be so fit and orderly disposed in your muniment house, or be so registred in your books and leigers, as that when need shall be, you may easily find out the same without much search?

XXII. Item, Whether the bishop's palaces, your own prebendary houses, and other edifices and chambers to either of them belonging, are kept in all due and necessary reparations? and if there be any notorious ruins and decays in the same, how long have the same continued, and what is the cause the same is not repaired and amended?

Convocatio praelatorum et cleri provinciae Cantuar. et Ebor. Ex MS. Mil. Smith apud episc. Tho. Assaven. et ex reg. Ebor.

CONVOCATIO praelatorum et cleri provinciae Cantuar. per breve regium ad sextum diem Aprilis in ecclesia S. Pauli London. summonita, et per undecim sessiones continuata, post electionem D. Moreton prolocutoris duo praecipue tractavit; unum sessione 4. de horrendis blasphemis cujusdam Griffin, qui excommunicatus confessusque submisit et recantavit eas; alterum sessione 9. conversionem doctoris Alabastri ab ecclesia Romana. Deinde octavo die Junii e-jusdem anni convocatio haec per breve regium ab archiepiscopo fuit dissoluta.

PRAELATI et clerus provinciae Ebor. per breve regium dat. apud Westm. 19. die Februarii, anno regni XI. ad novum concilium provinciale apud Ebor. tenendum et inchoandum 6. die Aprilis convocantur, et per aliud breve dat. 8. die Junii, anno regni XII. hoc concilium dissolvi jubetur; quod factum fuit 15. die Junii, M.DC.XIV.

Consultatio ecclesiastica et veluti synodalis determinatio quarundam ordinationum, regularum, et documentorum deservientium ecclesiae potissimum Ardmachanae. Intervenantibus et assistentibus reverendis D. D. vicariis partim generalibus partim et foraneis, et decanis ruralibus, adhibitis et selectis quibusdam theologis, et juris pontificii consultoribus, tum et diversorum ordinum regularium observantiae Cisterciensis, sancti Francisci, et societatis Jesu patribus. Inchoata in congregatione quasi provinciali habita Vadiponti per dies plures, et ibidem terminata in mense Februario, anno M.DC.XIV. Ex MS. Coll. Trin. Dublin. F. I. 113.

Ad lectorem.

VETERI verbo verissime dictum est: ingens telum necessitas: quae nobis nunc imponitur per temporis iniquitatem, ut nullum omnino remedium negligi patiatur. Absente siquidem primatu totius regni, archiepiscopo Ardmachano, quem hactenus detinuerunt Romae publica negotia, nostrae sollicitudinis esse videbatur, praesertim cum vacarent omnes suffraganeae sedes illius provinciae, quaerere viam idoneam, et capeffere quam possumus maxime consentaneam sacris canonibus, et juri et rationi accommodatam, ad gubernationem cleri et

populi catholici in ordine ad aeternam salutem. Hoc eo magis nobis debuit esse curae, quod ipse illustrissimus primas plenitudinem suae jurisdictionis nobis commiserit, qua freti admonuimus omnes vicarios generales, cum quibusdam foraneis et aliis eminentioribus de clero hujus provinciae personis, ut omnes concorditer et discrete adunati ad consultandum de statu ecclesiastico tractarent de iis rebus, quae inpraesentiarum usu venirent. Non enim immemores esse potuimus antiqui moris et consuetudinis tum cleri Romani mortuo vel relegato summo pontifice, tum etiam inferiorum ecclesiarum in secessu vel morte suorum antistitum: illum quidem ecclesiae universalis supremo quodam regimini et directionis imperio praesedis; istos vero et matricis ecclesiae magisterio imbutos, ne sede vacante omnes pessum irent, providisse. Quorum nos imitatione ducti, et tradita nobis in hac parte potestate uniformiter cum vicariis et aliis, qui convenerant, quasi provinciali coetu congregati, ordinationis quasdam regulas et constitutiones, quibus clerus catholicus et populus ei commissus juvari possit et dirigi, salvo meliori judicio et auctoritate sedis apostolicae, cujus censurae nos libenter subijcimus [ordinamus.]

Breviculum consultationis provincialis.

Prima dist. capitalis versatur circa ordinem hierarchicum et jurisdictionalem servandum in hac provincia, absente praesule et deficientibus episcopis suffraganeis, ad confusionem vitandam.

Secunda dist. capitalis versatur circa sacrorum curam, et sacramentorum debitam et uniformem administrationem.

Tertia dist. capitalis circa morum reformationem, et abusu quorundam sive novorum sive inveteratorum abolitionem.

Quarta dist. capitalis versatur circa jejuniorum, abstinentiarum, festorum ordinationem, et observationem; cui subnectitur constitutio antiqua de decimis et suppellectile ecclesiastica.

Quoniam adeo dura et difficilis est praesentium temporum conditio, ut nec stet in omnibus incommodis, nec commune ubique remedium, quod optandum esset, adhiberi possit, ut quoad fieri possibile est, ecclesiasticae disciplinae ordo confusione profligata reparetur, et imago saltem ac simulacrum legitimae hierarchiae possit adumbrari, postquam pro singulis dioecesibus hujus provinciae jam designati sunt vicarii generales seu officiales quoque pro jure et munere suo in defectu vel absentia propriorum episcoporum membris regiminis curae et jurisdictionis administratio intra proprios limites suorum districtuum. Communi consilio deprehensum est expedire, ut per eosdem vicarios generales adhibeatur delectus idonearum personarum cum sufficientia literaturae, probitatis, et prudentiae, quibus cum subordinatione ad vicarios generales imponatur cura, ac decanis ruralibus cujusque dioecesis. Sub foraneis in quolibet decanatu deputari possunt parochi, qui sacramenta administrent, juxta exigentiam populorum inibi commorantium. Hi vero parochi non tam a foraneis seu ruralibus decanis, quam ab ipsis vicariis generalibus ob majorem securitatem et cautelam delegandi erunt. Omnes autem tam vicarii generales, quam foranei et parochi advocabunt frequenter, et imitabuntur regulares et alias personas zelo et doctrina conspicuas, ad concionandum, catechizandum, opitulandum in muniis ecclesiasticis melius obeundis juxta ipsorum opportunitatem, ac locorum indigentiam iisdem cooperariis juxta suas facultates hilariter et amice in necessariis subveniant.

Curent omnes sacerdotes, ne publice vel privatim de negotiis status tractent, aut de negotiis politicae temporalis; neve ullo alio modo regiae majestati, aut aliis, qui sub eo reipublicae in temporalibus praesunt, se aliter exosos reddant, quam quae sui officii praestando nimirum spiritualia tantummodo ministeria exhibendo, relinquentes Caesari, quae Caesaris, sunt, et tum reddentes Deo, quae Dei sunt. — Curent secundo, ne se immisceant temporali gubernationi, aut regimini domus, seu familiae cujusunque secularis, seu privati hominis; nec pro eo quantumvis nobili exerceant officium oeconomi, receptoris, computistae, procuratoris, aut negotiorum gestoris; nec domibus, praediis, pascuis, nec terris ad firmam tenendis, locandis, conducendis, hypothecandis, amphyteadicandis, vel pecuniis ad interesse exponendis, neglecto ministerio sacrae vocationis suae, vacare praesumant.

Caveant tertio, ne sint negotiatores proxenetae, internuncii in tractatibus et contractibus omnino secularibus, neve instar affeculae, aut aulici, mancipii, jocularis, aut histrionis inserviant cujusunque conditionis aut eminentiae homini, quae omnia sibi non licere sciant; a quibus si non destiterint admoniti, juxta contemptus gravitatem ab ordinario puniri posse, et debere ordinamus.

Tametsi veneremur approbemus, et omnino retinendam existimemus sanctionem illam concil. Tolet. qua statuitur, ut qui contra salutem principis gentis, et patriae aliquid machinatur, ab episcopo,isque ad extremum ordinis clericorum, aut monachorum mox omnium dignitate et honore privetur, juxta laudabilis juris et praxis ecclesiae catholicae consuetudinem, quae semper detestata est proditores et impias rebellium machinationes; non possumus tamen absque evidentissima gravissimaque divini honoris injuria jura obligare nos juramento, quod vocant "De primatu regis ecclesiastico," five illud secundum nuperam illam formulam sub nomine et auctoritate Jacobi regis nostri conceptam, quae vulgo nuncupatur, "Oath of Allegiance," five secundum anteriorem formulam Henricianam, sic enim appellatur, quod a nostro rege Henrico octavo, pro dolor! fuit incepta, quae sub principibus Edwardo, Elizabetha, successive regnantibus perseveravit, diciturque "Oath of Supremacy," quod salva fide catholica et salute animarum praestari non potest; cum utrumque multa contineat, quae fidei et saluti adversentur. Itaque nec voce nec scripto, aut chirographo alterutrum admittere, sed nec fas est, nec decet futili tergiversatione fluctuantis animi dissimulare fidem et conscientiam circum illam rem, et substantiam utriusque juramenti, quasi incerti sint catholici, sit licitum necne jurare sic? cum certi omnes esse debeant illicitum esse, nec recipi oportere a catholicis, quandocunque illud illis clam vel palam jurandum proponitur ab his, qui dominandi potestatem acceperunt; quinimo clare et sine ambagibus respuere illud necesse est, quoties per dissimulationem, retractationem, vel conniventiam subtraheretur honor Dei debitus vel utilitas proximo impendenda, vel scandali probabile periculum timeretur.

Documentum quartum ejusdem continens declarationem et directionem officii subditorum circa communicationem in ritibus ad eundo templa, vel audiendo conciones haereticorum. Caetera desunt.

Articles of religion agreed upon by the archbishops, and bishops, and the rest of the clergy of Ireland in the convocation holden at Dublin in the year of our Lord God M.DC.XV. for the avoiding of diversities of opinions, and establishing of consent touching true religion.*

Of the holy scriptures, and the three Creeds.

I. THE ground of our religion, and the rule of faith, and all saving truth is the word of God, contained in the holy scripture.

II. By the name of holy scripture we understand all the canonical books of the Old and New Testament, viz.

Of the Old Testament.

The 5 books of Moses.	Esther.
Joshua.	Job.
Judges.	Psalms.
Ruth.	Proverbs.
The first and second of Samuel.	Ecclesiastes.
The first and second of Kings.	The Song of Solomon.
The first and second of Chronicles.	Isaiah.
Efra.	Jeremiah his Prophecie and Lamentation.
Nehemiah.	Ezechiel.
	The 12. less Prophets.

Of the New Testament.

The Gospels according to Matthew.	Philippians.
Mark.	Colossians.
Luke.	Thessalonians II.
John.	Timothy II.
The Acts of the Apostles.	Titus.
The Epistles of S. Paul to the Romans.	Philemon.
Corinthians II.	Hebrews.
Galatians.	The epistles of S. James.
Ephesians.	St. Peter II.
	St. John III.
	St. Jude.
	The Revelation of St. John.

All which we acknowledge to be given by the inspiration of God, and in that regard to be of most certain credit and highest authority.

III. The other books, commonly called Apocryphal, did not proceed from such inspiration; and therefore are not of sufficient authority to establish any point of doctrine, but the church doth read them as books containing many worthy things for example of life, and instruction of manners.

Such are these following,

The third book of Esdras.	Baruch, with the epistle of Jeremiah.
The fourth book of Esdras.	The Song of the three Children.
The book of Tobias.	Susanna.
The book of Judith.	Bell and the Dragon.
Additions to the book of Esther.	The Prayer of Manasse.
The book of Wisdom.	The first book of Maccabees.
The book of Jesus the Son of Sirach, called Ecclesiasticus.	The second book of Maccabees.

IV. The scriptures ought to be translated out of the original tongues into all languages, for the common use of all men; neither is any person to be discouraged from reading the Bible in in such a language as he doth understand; but seriously exhorted to read the same with great humility and reverence, as a special means to bring him to the true knowledge of God, and of his own duty.

* In these articles are comprehended, almost word for word, the nine articles agreed on at Lambeth the 20th of November, anno M.D.XCV.

V. Although there be some hard things in the scripture (especially such as have proper relation to the times, in which they were first uttered, and prophecies of things, which were afterwards to be fulfilled) yet all things necessary to be known unto everlasting salvation, are clearly delivered therein; and nothing of that kind is spoken under dark mysteries in one place, which is not in other places spoken more familiarly and plainly, to the capacity both of learned and unlearned.

VI. The holy scriptures contain all things necessary to salvation, and are able to instruct sufficiently in all points of faith that we are bound to believe, and all good duties that we are bound to practise.

VII. All and every the articles contained in the Nicene Creed, the Creed of Athanasius, and that which is commonly called the Apostles Creed, ought firmly to be received and believed; for they may be proved by most certain warrant of holy scripture.

Of faith in the holy Trinity.

VIII. There is but one living and true God everlasting, without body, parts, or passions, of infinite power, wisdom, and goodness, the maker and preserver of all things, both visible and invisible. And in unity of this Godhead, there be three persons of one and the same substance, power, and eternity; the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost.

IX. The essence of the Father doth not beget the essence of the Son; but the person of the Father begetteth the person of the Son, by communicating his whole essence to the person begotten from eternity.

The Holy Ghost proceeding from the Father and the Son, is of one substance, majesty, and glory with the Father and the Son, very and eternal God.

Of God's eternal decree and predestination.

XI. God from all eternity, did by his unchangeable counsel ordain whatsoever in time should come to pass; yet so as thereby no violence is offered to the wills of the reasonable creatures, and neither the liberty nor the contingency of the second causes is taken away, but established rather.

XII. By the same eternal counsel God hath predestinated some unto life, and reprobated some unto death; of both which there is a certain number, known only to God, which can neither be increased nor diminished.

XIII. Predestination to life, is the everlasting purpose of God, whereby, before the foundations of the world were laid, he hath constantly decreed in his secret counsel to deliver from curse and damnation those, whom he hath chosen in Christ out of mankind, and to bring them by Christ unto everlasting salvation, as vessels made to honour.

XIV. The cause moving God to predestinate unto life, is not the foreseeing of faith, or perseverance, or good works, or of any thing which is in the person predestinated, but only the good pleasure of God himself. For all things being ordained for the manifestation of his glory, and his glory being to appear both in the works of his mercy and of his justice, it seemed good to his heavenly wisdom to choose out a certain number, towards whom he would extend his undeserved mercy, leaving the rest to be spectacles of his justice.

XV. Such as are predestinated unto life, be called according unto God's purpose (his Spirit working in due season) and through grace they obey the calling, they be justified freely, they be made sons of God by adoption, they be made like the image of his only begotten son Jesus Christ, they walk religiously in good works, and at length by God's mercy they attain to everlasting felicity. But such as are not predestinated to salvation, shall finally be condemned for their sins.

XVI. The godly consideration of predestination and our election in Christ is full of sweet, pleasant, and unspeakable comfort to godly persons, and such as feel in themselves the working of the Spirit of Christ, mortifying the works of the flesh, and their earthly members, and drawing up their minds to high and heavenly things; as well because it doth greatly confirm and establish their faith of eternal salvation to be enjoyed through Christ, as because it doth fervently kindle their love towards God: and on the contrary side, for curious and carnal persons, lacking the Spirit of Christ, to have continually before their eyes the sentence of God's predestination, is very dangerous.

XVII. We must receive God's promises in such wise, as they be generally set forth unto us in holy scripture; and in our doings, that will of God is be followed, which we have expressly declared unto us in the word of God.

Of the creation and government of all things.

XVIII. In the beginning of time, when no creature had any being, God by his word alone, in the space of six days, created all things, and afterwards by his providence doth continue, propagate, and order them according to his own will.

XIX. The principal creatures are angels and men.

XX. Of angels, some continued in that holy state, wherein they were created, and are by God's grace for ever stablished therein; others fell from the same, and are reserved in chains of darkness unto the judgment of the great day.

XXI. Man being at the beginning created according to the image of God (which consisteth especially in the wisdom of his mind, and the true holiness of his free will) had the covenant of the law ingrafted in his heart; whereby God did promise unto him everlasting life, upon condition that he performed entire and perfect obedience unto his commandments, according to that measure of strength wherewith he was endued in his creation; and threatened death unto him, if he did not perform the same.

Of

Of the fall of man, original sin, and the state of man before justification.

XXII. By one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin, and so death went over all men, for as much as all have sinned.

XXIII. Original sin standeth not in the imitation of Adam (as the Pelagians dream) but is the fault and corruption of the nature of every person, that naturally is engendred and propagated from Adam: whereby it cometh to pass, that man is deprived of original righteousness, and by nature is bent unto sin. And therefore in every person born into the world, it deserveth God's wrath and damnation.

XXIV. This corruption of nature doth remain even in those that are regenerated, whereby the flesh always lusteth against the spirit, and cannot be made subject to the law of God. And howsoever for Christ's sake, there be no condemnation to such as are regenerate, and do believe; yet doth the apostle acknowledge, that in it self this concupiscence hath the nature of sin.

XXV. The condition of man after the fall of Adam is such, that he cannot turn, and prepare himself, by his own natural strength and good works, to faith, and calling upon God. Wherefore we have no power to do good works pleasing and acceptable unto God, without the grace of God preventing us, that we may have a good will, and working with us, when we have that good will.

XXVI. Works done before the grace of Christ, and the inspiration of his Spirit, are not pleasing unto God, for as much as they spring not of faith in Jesus Christ, neither do they make men meet to receive grace, or (as the school-authors say) deserve grace of congruity; yea rather, for that they are not done in such sort as God hath willed and commanded them to be done, we doubt not but they are sinful.

XXVII. All sins are not equal, but some far more heinous than others, yet the very least is of its own nature mortal, and without God's mercy, maketh the offender liable unto everlasting damnation.

XXVIII. God is not the author of sin: howbeit, he doth not only permit, but also by his providence govern and order the same, guiding it in such sort by his infinite wisdom, as it turneth to the manifestation of his own glory, and to the good of his elect.

Of Christ, the mediator of the second covenant.

XXIX. The Son, which is the Word of the Father, begotten from everlasting of the Father, the true and eternal God, of one substance with the Father, took man's nature in the womb of the blessed virgin, of her substance: so that two whole and perfect natures, that is to say, the Godhead and manhood, were inseparably joined in one person, making one Christ very God and very man.

XXX. Christ in the truth of our nature was made like unto us in all things, sin only excepted, from which he was clearly void both in his life and in his nature. He came as a lamb without spot, to take away the sins of the world by the sacrifice of himself once made, and sin (as St. John saith) was not in him. He fulfilled the law for us perfectly: for our sakes he endured most grievous torments immediately in his soul, and most painful sufferings in his body. He was crucified, and died to reconcile his Father unto us, and to be a sacrifice not only for original guilt, but also for all our actual transgressions. He was buried and descended into hell, and the third day rose from the dead, and took again his body, with flesh, bones, and all things appertaining to the perfection of man's nature; wherewith he ascended into heaven, and there sitteth at the right hand of his Father, until he return to judge all men at the last day.

Of the communicating of the grace of Christ.

XXXI. They are to be condemned, that presume to say, that every man shall be saved by the law or sect which he professeth, so that he be diligent to frame his life according to that law, and the light of nature. For holy scripture doth set out unto us only the name of Jesus Christ, whereby men must be saved.

XXXII. None can come unto Christ, unless it be given unto him, and unless the Father draw him. And all men are not so drawn by the Father, that they may come unto the Son; neither is there such a sufficient measure of grace vouchsafed unto every man, whereby he is enabled to come unto everlasting life.

XXXIII. All God's elect are in their time inseparably united unto Christ by the effectual and vital influence of the Holy Ghost, derived from him, as from the head, unto every true member of his mystical body. And being thus made one with Christ, they are truly regenerated, and made partakers of him and all his benefits.

Of justification and faith.

XXXIV. We are accounted righteous before God, only for the merit of our Lord and saviour Jesus Christ, applied by faith; and not for our own works or merits. And this righteousness, which we so receive of God's mercy and Christ's merits, embraced by faith, is taken, accepted, and allowed of God for our perfect and full justification.

XXXV. Although the justification be free unto us, yet it cometh not so freely unto us, that there is no ransom paid therefore at all. God shewed his great mercy in delivering us from our former captivity, without requiring of any ransom to be paid, or amends to be made on our parts: which thing by us had been impossible to be done. And whereas all the world was not able of themselves to pay any part towards their ransom, it pleased our heavenly Father, of his infinite mercy, without any desert of ours, to provide for us the most precious merits of his own Son, whereby our ransom might be fully paid, the law fulfilled, and his justice fully satisfied. So that Christ is now the righteousness of all them that truly believe in him. He for them paid their ran-from by his death. He for them fulfilled the law in his life, that now in him, and by him every true christian man may be called a fulfiller of the law; forasmuch as that which our infirmity was not able to effect, Christ's justice hath performed. And thus the justice and mercy of God do embrace each other. The grace of God not shutting out the justice of God in the matter of our justification; but only shutting out the justice of man (that is to say, the justice of our own works) from being any cause of deserving our justification.

XXXVI. When we say that we are justified by faith only, we do not mean, that the said justifying faith is alone in man, without true repentance, hope, charity, and the fear of God (for such a faith is dead, and cannot justify) neither do we mean, that this our act to believe in Christ, or this our faith in Christ, which is within us, doth of it self justify us, or deserve our justification unto us (for that were to account our selves to be justified by the virtue or dignity of some thing that is within our selves) but the true understanding and meaning thereof is, that although we hear God's word, and believe it, although we have faith, hope, charity, repentance, and the fear of God within us, and add never so many good works thereunto; yet we must renounce the merit of all our said virtues, of faith, hope, charity, and all our other virtues, and good deeds, which we either have done, shall do, or can do, as things that be far too weak and imperfect, and insufficient to deserve remission of our sins, and our justification: and therefore we must trust only in God's mercy, and the merits of his most dearly beloved Son, our only redeemer, saviour, and justifier Jesus Christ. Nevertheless, because faith doth directly send us to Christ for our justification, and that by faith, given us of God, we embrace the promise of God's mercy, and the remission of our sins (which thing none other of our virtues or works properly doth) therefore the scripture useth to say, that "faith without works;" and the ancient fathers of the church to the same purpose, that "only faith" doth justify us.

XXXVII. By justifying faith we understand not only the common belief of the articles of the christian religion, and a persuasion of the truth of God's word in general; but also a particular application of the gracious promises of the gospel, to the comfort of our own souls; whereby we lay hold on Christ, with all his benefits, having an earnest trust and confidence in God, that he will be merciful unto us for his only Son's sake. So that a true believer may be certain, by the assurance of faith, of the forgiveness of his sins, and of his everlasting salvation by Christ.

XXXVIII. A true lively justifying faith, and the sanctifying Spirit of God is not extinguished, nor vanisheth away in the regenerate, either finally or totally.

Of sanctification and good works.

XXXIX. All that are justified, are likewise sanctified; their faith being always accompanied with true repentance and good works.

XL. Repentance is the gift of God, whereby godly sorrow is wrought in the heart of the faithful, for offending God, their merciful Father, by their former transgressions, together with a constant resolution for the time to come to cleave unto God, and to lead a new life.

XLI. Albeit that good works, which are the fruits of faith, and follow after justification, cannot make satisfaction for our sins, and endure the severity of God's judgment; yet are they pleasing to God, and accepted of him in Christ, and do spring from a true and lively faith, which by them is to be discerned, as a tree by the fruit.

XLII. The works which God would have his people to walk in, are such as he hath commanded in his holy scripture, and not such works as men have devised out of their own brain, of a blind zeal, and devotion, without the warrant of the word of God.

XLIII. The regenerate cannot fulfil the law of God perfectly in this life: for in many things we offend all; and if we say, we have no sin, we deceive our selves, and the truth is not in us.

XLIV. Not every heinous sin, willingly committed after baptism, is sin against the Holy Ghost and unpardonable. And therefore to such as fall into sin after baptism, place for repentance is not to be denied.

XLV. Voluntary works, besides, over, and above God's commandments, which they call works of supererogation, cannot be taught without arrogancy, and impiety. For by them men do declare, that they do not only render unto God as much as they are bound to do, but that they do more for his sake, than of bounden duty is required.

Of the service of God.

XLVI. Our duty towards God is to believe in him, to fear him, and to love him with all our heart, with all our mind, and with all our soul, and with all our strength, to worship him, and to give him thanks, to put our whole trust in him, to call upon him, to honour his holy name and his word, and to serve him truly all the days of our life.

XLVII. In all our necessities we ought to have recourse unto God by prayer; assuring our selves, that whatsoever we ask of the Father in the name of his Son (our only mediator and intercessor) Christ Jesus, and according to his will, he will undoubtedly grant it.

XLVIII. We ought to prepare our hearts before we pray, and understand the things that we ask when we pray; that both our hearts and voice may together sound in the ears of God's majesty.

XLIX. When almighty God smiteth us with affliction, or some great calamity hangeth over us, or any other weighty cause so requireth; it is our duty to humble our selves in fasting, to bewail our sins with a sorrowful heart, and to addict our selves to earnest prayer, that it might please please God to turn his wrath from us, or supply us with such graces, as we greatly stand in need of.

L. Fasting is a withholding of meat, drink, and all natural food, with other outward delights, from the body, for the determined time of fasting. As for those abstinencies which are appointed by public order of our state, for eating of fish and forbearing of flesh at certain times and days appointed, they are no ways meant to be religious fasts; nor intended for the maintenance of any superstition in the choice of meats; but are grounded meerly upon politic considerations, for provision of things tending to the better preservation of the commonwealth.

LI. We must not fast with this persuasion of mind, that our fasting can bring us to heaven, or ascribe outward holiness to the work wrought. For God alloweth not our fast for the work's sake (which of it self is a thing meerly indifferent) but chiefly respecteth the heart, how it is affected therein. It is therefore requisite, that first, before all things we cleanse our hearts from sin, and then direct our fast to such ends, as God will allow to be good; that the flesh may thereby be chastised, the spirit may be more fervent in prayer, and that our fasting may be a testimony of our humble submission to God's majesty, when we acknowledge our sins unto him, and are inwardly touched with sorrowfulness of heart, bewailing the same in the affliction of our bodies.

LII. All worship devised by man's phantasy, besides or contrary to the scriptures (as wandering on pilgrimages, setting up of candles, stations, and Jubilees, Pharisaical sects, and feigned religions, praying upon beads, and such like superstition) hath not only no promise of reward in scripture, but contrarywise threatnings and maledictions.

LIII. All manner of expressing God the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost in an outward form is utterly unlawful. As also all other images devised or made by man to the use of religion.

LIV. All religious worship ought to be given to God alone; from whom all goodness, health, and grace ought to be both asked and looked for, as from the very author and giver of the same, and from none other.

LV. The name of God is to be used with all reverence and holy respect: and therefore all vain and rash swearing is utterly to be condemned. Yet notwithstanding upon lawful occasions, an oath may be given, and taken, according to the word of God, justice, judgment, and truth.

LVI. The first day of the week, which is the Lord's day, is wholly to be dedicated to the service of God: and therefore we are bound therein to rest from our common and daily business; and to bestow that leisure upon holy exercises, both public and private.

Of the civil magistrate.

LVII. The king's majesty, under God, hath the sovereign and chief power, within his realms and dominions, over all manner of persons, of what estate, either ecclesiastical or civil, soever they be; so as no other foreign power hath or ought to have any superiority over them.

LVIII. We do profess that the supreme government of all estates within the said realms and dominions, in all causes as well ecclesiastical as temporal, doth of right appertain to the king's highness. Neither do we give unto him hereby the administration of the word and sacraments, or the power of the keys; but that prerogative only, which we see to have been always given unto all godly princes in holy scripture by God himself; that is, that he should contain all estates and degrees committed to his charge by God, whether they be ecclesiastical or civil, within their duty, and restrain the stubborn and evil doers with the power of the civil sword.

LIX. The pope neither of himself, nor by any authority of the church or see of Rome, or by any other means with any other, hath any power or authority to depose the king, or dispose any of his kingdoms or dominions, or to authorize any other prince to invade or annoy him, or his countries, or to discharge any of his subjects of their allegiance and obedience to his majesty, or to give licence or leave to any of them to bear arms, raise tumult, or to offer any violence or hurt to his royal person, state, or government, or to any of his subjects within his majesty's dominions.

LX. That princes, which be excommunicated or deprived by the pope, may be deposed or murdered by their subjects, or any other whatsoever, is impious doctrine.

LXI. The laws of the realm may punish christian men with death for heinous and grievous offences.

LXII. It is lawful for christian men, at the commandment of the magistrate, to bear arms, and to serve in just wars.

Of our duty towards our neighbour.

LXIII. Our duty towards our neighbours, is to love them as our selves, and to do to all men as we would they should do to us; to honour and obey our superiors, to preserve the safety of mens persons, as also their chastity, goods and good names; to bear no malice nor hatred in our hearts; to keep our bodies in temperance, soberness, and chastity; to be true and just in all our doings; not to covet other mens goods, but labour truly to get our own living, and to do our duty in that estate of life, unto which it pleaseth God to call us.

LXIV. For the preservation of the chastity of mens persons, wedlock is commanded unto all men that stand in need thereof. Neither is there any prohibition by the word of God, but that the ministers of the church may enter into the state of matrimony; they being no where commanded by God's law, either to vow the estate of single life, or to abstain from marriage. Therefore it is lawful also for them, as well as for all other christian men, to marry at their own discretion, as they shall judge the the same to serve better to godliness.

LXV. The riches and goods of christians are not common, as touching the right, title and possession of the same, as certain Anabaptists falsely affirm. Notwithstanding every man ought of such things as he possesseth, liberally to give alms to the poor, according to his ability.

LXVI. Faith given, is to be kept, even with heretics and infidels.

LXVII. The popish doctrine of equivocation and mental reservation is most ungodly, and tendeth plainly to the subversion of all human society.

Of the church and outward ministry of the gospel.

LXVIII. There is but one catholick church (out of which there is no salvation) containing the universal company of all the saints that ever were, are, or shall be, gathered together in one body, under one head Christ Jesus; part whereof is already in heaven triumphant, part as yet militant here on earth. And because this church consisteth of all those, and those alone, which are elected by God unto salvation, and regenerated by the power of his Spirit, the number of whom is known only unto God himself; therefore it is called the catholic or universal, and the invisible church.

LXIX. But particular and visible churches, (consisting of those who make profession of the faith of Christ, and live under the outward means of salvation) be many in number: wherein the more or less sincerely according to Christ's institution the word of God is taught, the sacraments are administered, and the authority of the keys is used; the more or less pure are such churches to be accounted.

LXX. Although in the visible church the evil be ever mingled with the good, and sometimes the evil have chief authority in the ministration of the word and sacraments; yet for as much as they do not the same in their own name, but in Christ's, and minister by his commission and authority, we may use their ministry both in hearing the word, and in receiving the sacraments. Neither is the effect of Christ's ordinance taken away by their wickedness; nor the grace of God's gifts diminished from such, as by faith, and rightly do receive the sacraments ministered unto them; which are effectual, because of Christ's institution and promise, although they be ministered by evil men. Nevertheless it appertaineth to the discipline of the church, that enquiry be made of evil ministers, and that they be accused by those that have knowledge of their offences, and finally being found guilty, by just judgments be deposed.

LXXI. It is not lawful for any man to take upon him the office of public preaching or ministering the sacraments of the church, unless he be first lawfully called, and sent to execute the same. And those we ought to judge lawfully called and sent, which be chosen and called to this work by men, who have public authority given them in the church to call and send ministers into the Lord's vineyard.

LXXII. To have public prayer in the church, or to administer the sacraments in a tongue not understood of the people, is a thing plainly repugnant unto the word of God, and the custom of the primitive church.

LXXIII. That person, which by public denunciation of the church is rightly cut off from the unity of the church, and excommunicate, ought to be taken of the whole multitude of the faithful as a heathen and publican, until by repentance he be openly reconciled and received into the church by the judgment of such as have authority in that behalf.

LXXIV. God hath given power to his ministers not simply to forgive sins (which prerogative he hath reserved only to himself) but in his name to declare and pronounce unto such as truly repent, and unfeignedly believe his holy gospel, the absolution and forgiveness of sins. Neither is it God's pleasure, that his people should be tied to make a particular confession of all their known sins unto any mortal man; howsoever any person grieved in his conscience, upon any special cause, may well resort unto any godly and learned minister, to receive advice and comfort at his hands.

Of the authority of the church, general councils, and bishop of Rome.

LXXV. It is not lawful for the church to ordain any thing that is contrary to God's word, neither may it so expound one place of scripture, that it be repugnant to another. Wherefore although the church be a witness, and a keeper of holy Writ, yet as it ought not to decree any thing against the same; so besides the same, ought it not to enforce any thing to be believed upon necessity of salvation.

LXXVI. General councils may not be gathered together without the commandment and will of princes: and when they be gathered together (for as much as they be an assembly of men not always governed with the Spirit and word of God) they may err, and sometimes have erred, even in things pertaining to the rule of piety. Wherefore things ordained by them, as necessary to salvation, have neither strength nor authority, unless it may be shewed that they be taken out of holy scripture.

LXXVII. Every particular church hath authority to institute, to change, and clean to put away ceremonies and other ecclesiastical rites, as they be superfluous, or be abused; and to constitute other, making more to seemliness, to order, or edification.

LXXVIII. As the churches of Jerusalem, Alexandria, and Antioch have erred; so also the church of Rome hath erred, not only in those things which concern matter of practice and point of ceremonies, but also in matters of faith.

LXXIX. The power which the bishop of Rome now challengeth, to be supreme head of the universal church of Christ, and to be above all emperors, kings, and princes, is an usurped power, contrary to the scriptures and word of God,

God, and contrary to the example of the primitive church; and therefore is for most just causes taken away, and abolished within the king's majesty's realms and dominions.

LXXX. The bishop of Rome is so far from being the supreme head of the universal church of Christ, that his works and doctrine do plainly discover him to be that man of sin, foretold in the holy scriptures, whom the Lord shall consume with the Spirit of his mouth, and abolish with the brightness of his coming.

Of the state of the Old and New Testament.

LXXXI. In the Old Testament the commandments of the law were more largely, and the promises of Christ more sparingly and darkly propounded; shadowed with a multitude of types and figures, and so much the more generally and obscurely delivered, as the manifesting of them was further off.

LXXXII. The Old Testament is not contrary to the New: for both in the Old and New Testament everlasting life is offered to mankind by Christ, who is the only mediator between God and man, being both God and man. Wherefore they are not to be heard, which feign that the old fathers did look only for transitory promises: for they looked for all benefits of God the Father through the merits of his Son Jesus Christ, as we now do; only they believed in Christ, which should come, we in Christ already come.

LXXXIII. The New Testament is full of grace and truth, bringing joyful tidings unto mankind, that whatsoever formerly was promised of Christ, is now accomplished; and so instead of the ancient types and ceremonies, exhibiteth the things themselves, with a large and clear declaration of all the benefits of the gospel. Neither is the ministry thereof restrained any longer to one circumcised nation, but is indifferently propounded unto all people, whether they be Jews or Gentiles. So that there is now no nation which can truly complain, that they be shut forth from the communion of saints, and the liberties of the people of God.

LXXXIV. Although the law given from God by Moses, as touching ceremonies and rites be abolished, and the civil precepts thereof be not of necessity to be received in any commonwealth; yet notwithstanding, no christian man whatsoever is freed from the obedience of the commandments, which are called moral.

Of the sacraments of the New Testament.

LXXXV. The sacraments ordained by Christ, be not only badges or tokens of christian mens profession; but rather certain sure witnesses, and effectual or powerful signs of grace and God's good will towards us, by which he doth work invisibly in us, and not only quicken, but also strengthen and confirm our faith in him.

LXXXVI. There be two sacraments ordained of Christ our Lord in the gospel, that is to say, "Baptism and the Lord's supper."

LXXXVII. Those five, which by the church of Rome are called sacraments, to wit, "confirmation, penance, orders, matrimony, and extreme unction, are not to be accounted sacraments of the gospel; being such as have partly grown from corrupt imitation of the apostles, partly are states of life allowed in the scriptures; but yet have not like nature of sacraments with baptism and the Lord's supper; for that they have not any visible sign or ceremony ordained of God, together with a promise of saving grace annexed thereunto.

LXXXVIII. The sacraments were not ordained of Christ to be gazed upon, or to be carried about; but that we should duly use them. And in such only as worthily receive the same, they have a wholesome effect and operation; but they that receive them unworthily, thereby draw judgment upon themselves.

Of baptism.

LXXXIX. Baptism is not only an outward sign of our profession, and a note of difference, whereby christians are discerned from such as are no christians; but much more a sacrament of our admission into the church, sealing unto us our new birth (and consequently our justification, adoption, and sanctification) by the communion, which we have with Jesus Christ.

XC. The baptism of infants is to be retained in the church, as agreeable to the word of God.

XCI. In the administration of baptism, exorcism, oil, salt, spittle, and superstitious hallowing of the water, are for just causes abolished; and without them the sacrament is fully and perfectly administered, to all intents and purposes, agreeable to the institution of our saviour Christ.

Of the Lord's supper.

XCII. The Lord's supper is not only a sign of the mutual love, which christians ought to bear one towards another; but much more a sacrament of our preservation in the church, sealing unto us our spiritual nourishment and continual growth in Christ.

XCIII. The change of the substance of bread and wine into the substance of the body and blood of Christ, commonly called Transubstantiation, cannot be proved by holy writ; but is repugnant to plain testimonies of the scripture, overthroweth the nature of a sacrament, and hath given occasion to most gross idolatry, and manifold superstitions.

XCIV. In the outward part of the holy communion the body and blood of Christ is in a most lively manner represented; being no otherwise present with the visible elements, than things signified and sealed are present with the signs and seals, that is to say, symbolically and relatively. But in the inward and spiritual part the same body and blood is really and substantially presented unto all those, who have grace to receive the Son of God, even to all those that believe in his name. And unto such as in this manner do worthily and with faith repair unto the Lord's table, the body and blood of Christ is not only signified and offered, but also truly exhibited and communicated.

XCV. The body of Christ is given, taken, and eaten in the Lord's supper, only after an heavenly and spiritual manner; and the mean, whereby the body of Christ is thus received and eaten, is faith.

XCVI. The wicked and such as want a lively faith, although they do carnally and visibly (as St. Augustine speaketh) press with their teeth the sacrament of the body and blood of Christ; yet in no wise are they made partakers of Christ, but rather to their condemnation, do eat and drink the sign or sacrament of so great a thing.

XCVII. Both the parts of the Lord's sacrament, according to Christ's institution, and the practice of the ancient church, ought to be ministered unto all God's people; and it is plain sacrilege to rob them of the mystical cup, for whom Christ hath shed his most precious blood.

XCVIII. The sacrament of the Lord's supper was not by Christ's ordinance reserved, carried about, lifted up, or worshipped.

XCIX. The sacrifice of the mass, wherein the priest is said to offer up Christ for obtaining the remission of pain or guilt for the quick and the dead, is neither agreeable to Christ's ordinance, nor grounded upon doctrine apostolic; but contrarywise most ungodly, and most injurious to that allsufficient sacrifice of our saviour Christ, offered once for ever upon the cross, which is the only propitiation and satisfaction for all our sins.

C. Private mass, that is, the receiving of the eucharist by the priest alone, without a competent number of communicants, is contrary to the institution of Christ.

Of the state of the souls of men, after they be departed out of this life; together with the general resurrection, and the last judgment.

CI. After this life is ended, the souls of God's children be presently received into heaven, there to enjoy unspeakable comforts: the souls of the wicked are cast into hell, there to endure endless torments.

CII. The doctrine of the church of Rome, concerning limbus patrum, limbus puerorum, purgatory, prayer for the dead, pardons, adoration of images and reliques, and also invocation of saints, is vainly invented without all warrant of holy scripture, yea and is contrary unto the same.

CIII. At the end of this world, the Lord Jesus shall come in the clouds, with the glory of his Father; at which time, by the almighty power of God, the living shall be changed, and the dead shall be raised; and all shall appear both in body and soul before his judgment seat, to receive according to that which they have done in their bodies, whether good or evil.

CIV. When the last judgment is finished, Christ shall deliver up the kingdom to his Father, and God shall be all in all.

The decree of the synod.

If any minister, of what degree or quality soever he be, shall publicly teach any doctrine contrary to these articles agreed upon; if after due admonition he do not conform himself, and cease to disturb the peace of the church; let him be silenced, and deprived of all spiritual promotions he doth enjoy.

The bishop of London's orders for governing the Dutch congregations within the city of London and town of Colchester. Reg. Grindall. fol. 376. b.

JOHN, by the providence of God bishop of London, to all to whom these presents shall come, sendeth greeting in our Lord God everlasting. Know ye that of late the ministers and Dutch congregation of London and Colchester, within our jurisdiction and diocese of London, have of late exhibited unto us a petition and complaint, touching some misdemeanors of certain persons offending against the government and censure ecclesiastical of their congregations, and by indirect means forsaking both the congregations, and avoiding such censures, as are due unto them for their several misdemeanors. That whereas the king's most excellent majesty, out of his royal and religious inclination hath been pleased to extend his gracious favour towards the said congregations, as well for the continuance of their quiet residence and habitation within the said city and town, as also for the successive enjoying of their ancient and accustomed liberties in the government of those congregations among themselves, which favour they have used with moderation, and with the good liking of the state and our predecessors, during the reign of our late famous queen Elizabeth, without any just scandal or prejudice given by them against the state of the church of England; have notwithstanding their good carriage in their government oftentimes been interrupted and hindered from doing of justice by sundry licentious persons, being members of the said congregations, who upon fear that they should be censured according to their demerits, have thereupon taken occasion to cast off the yoke of ecclesiastical government of the said congregations, and have severed themselves from the said congregations, and have forthwith adjoined themselves to the parish churches, in which their several habitations were, and there offered themselves unto the participation of the blessed sacrament of the body and blood of our saviour, not having before that been any way censured by their said congregations for their misdemeanors, or made any reconciliation unto the said congregations, whom they had offended by such their misdemeanours; by which such departing of persons offending and not censured before their departure, many many notorious abuses have and do ensue. First that it was, and is an imboldening or encouragement of delinquents and others by their example in their unbridled courses for hope of escaping punishment by transferring themselves to another congregation, where haply no such censure is used, as in the Dutch congregations such offenders are censured by their government. Secondly, that it is a profanation of the holy sacrament of the Lord's supper, that those men, that have offended in the Dutch congregations, and should there be censured, should be received to the holy communion in the English congregation, before they have given some satisfaction to those congregations, and made their attonement with God for their offences. Thirdly, they make the English ministers by this means, by ministring unto them the holy communion, protectors of them, and dispensers, as it were, with their misdemeanors, which they formerly committed, whilst they were of the Dutch congregations.

In consideration of the premisses the aforesaid ministers and congregations have humbly intreated us, to set down by our authority episcopal some order and decree for repressing of such disorderly shifting from the censures of the said congregations, whereof they are members, without reconciliation, censure, or other submittance unto the said congregations, before they leave the said congregations.

We the aforesaid bishop considering duly and maturely of the said petition and other reasons declared unto us, and the great inconveniencies that would follow in the government of these congregations, if such slipping away of offenders from the same congregations should be permitted, or not repressed, have thought good by our authority episcopal, and as far as by the laws of this kingdom we may, to set down an order herein, which we do by these presents set down; viz. That no person, that now is, or hereafter shall be of the Dutch congregations, having as a member thereof offended the same congregations, so as he deserve the censure ecclesiastical of those congregations, shall depart from those congregations, before he have been either censured for his said offence, or otherwise reconciled himself unto the said congregations: and that such persons offending and betaking themselves to the English congregation, where their house and habitation stands, thereby to escape the censure of their congregations, shall not be by the minister of the parish received to the holy communion, before such time as they have been either censured by the said congregations for their said offence, or otherwise reconciled themselves to their said congregations, and thereupon made sufficient proof, or else have made their case known unto us, and thereupon have received from us and our authority order for their admission to the English congregation, if we shall so think good. And this our order we will to be published in the said Dutch congregations, as also shewed and intimated unto the ministers of each congregation in London and Colchester, where any of the Dutch congregations do dwell, that every one and all they that respectively it doth concern, may take notice of this our order, and observe the same accordingly.

In witness whereof we have caused the seal of our chancellor, which is used in this behalf, to be set to these presents. Dated the ninth day of August, in the year of our Lord God M.DC.XV. and in the fourth year of our consecration.

Qua quidem sententia five schedula lecta, dictus reverendissimus pater preces Deo optimo maximo fudit pro acceptatione operis praedict. sub forma verborum sequentium, videlicet: "O most merciful Father, heaven is thy throne and the earth is thy footstool, what house then can be built for thee? or what place is there, that thou shouldest rest in? But yet since it hath been ever thy delight to be with the sons of men, therefore in all ages of the world thy servants have separated and hallowed certain places from all prophane and common uses unto thy divine service, either by thy especial commandment, or by the inspiration of thy blessed Spirit. So Adam had his oratory in paradise; and Jacob his praying place in the fields; Moses his holy ground in the Wilderness; and the Israelites their tabernacle for thy worship in the land of Promise; until it pleased thee, at the last, to put into the heart of king Solomon, to build a temple to thine honour in Jerusalem; admirable for beauty, invaluable for riches, renowned for sanctity throughout all the world, whither the tribes of Israel did ascend three times a year, to offer sacrifices and oblations unto thee: and afterwards thy people being inflamed with the zeal of this house, added daily unto their mother church lesser synagogues in every town; by which godly examples revealed in thy word, the christian churches in their succession have made and consecrated houses unto thee, as well for the celebration of thy divine ordinances and preaching of thy heavenly word, as for the invocation of thy great name, and administration of thy holy sacraments: for the temple is the court of audience, wherein thou dost sit to hear our prayers, and it is our heaven upon earth, wherein we assemble and meet together to laud and magnify thy glorious majesty. And doth not reason and religion inforce us unto this work? for shall the sparrow have an house, and the swallow her nest; and shall not we find out an house for thee O Lord our redeemer? Shall we, which are but dust and ashes, build unto ourselves cieled and beautiful houses for our worldly affairs, yea and for our pleasures, and shall we not build and dedicate some houses for thy worship, unto thy great and fearful name, and repay, as it were, the tithes of our dwelling places back again unto thee? for all things come from thee, and we can give thee but thy own. Accept therefore, we beseech thee, most gracious Father, of this our bounden duty; and because, except thou build the house, they labour but in vain that build it; sanctify this house with thy gracious presence, which is erected unto the honour of thy service. Now therefore arise O Lord, and come into this place of rest, let thine eyes be open towards this house night and day; let thine ears be ready to hear the prayers of thy children, which they shall pour forth unto thee in this place, and let thine heart delight to dwell here perpetually; and whensoever thy servants shall make their petitions unto thee in this house either to bestow thy good graces and blessings upon them, or to remove thy heavy punishments and judgments from them, hear thou from heaven, thy dwelling place, and when thou hearest, have mercy; and grant O Lord we beseech thee, that here and elsewhere thy priests may be clothed with righteousness, and that all thy saints may rejoice in thy salvation. So that when we shall cease to pray unto thee in these earthly temples, we may at the last praise thee in thy glorious temple not made with hands, but eternal in the heavens; for thy dear Son and our blessed saviour Jesus Christ his sake, who liveth and reigneth with thee, and the Holy Ghost one God world without end. Amen." Quibus sic factis, reverendissimus pater antedictus preces Deo omnipotenti fudit pro acceptatione operis praedicti, sub hac forma verborum, videlicet: "Most merciful Father, thou hast been pleased to teach us in thy holy word, that the very bodies of thy faithful servants are not made in vain, but that living and dying they have their special uses appointed by thy self; thou hast framed them here on earth to be the workmanship of thy hands, and to found out thy glory; thou hast fashioned them unto the shape of thine own Son, that by a spiritual union they should be as bone of his bone and flesh of his flesh; thou hast made them the temples of thy Holy Ghost, that thy sacred Spirit may move and work in them those things, which by thy mercy are acceptable in thy sight; and when they are to rest with their fathers, and to return unto the earth, from whence they were taken, thou hast appointed them not for ever to remain there in corruption, but at the day of general resurrection to come forth of the graves, to be possessed with eternity, and to be crowned with immortality. We cannot therefore but take knowledge by the examples of thy patriarchs, and holy men in all ages, and by that which thy blessed word hath revealed unto us, that it is thy gracious pleasure, that when thy servants shall by thee be called out of this miserable world, their bodies should be seemly and decently committed unto christian burial, that in the bowels of the earth they may remain in hope of a joyful resurrection; and having for that purpose made choice of this place, where we now are, that it may be a receptacle for the bodies of such of our brethren and sisters, as thou dost ordain hither; we beseech thee to accept this work of ours, and mercifully to grant that we who be here present, may never forget our dissolution from the tabernacle of this flesh, but that living we may think of death, and dying we may apprehend life, to the everlasting comfort of our souls; and for those whose bodies are hereafter to be committed to this earth, so guide them with thy grace while they are here in this world, that setting thee evermore before their eyes, and accounting all things vain in comparison of their enjoying of thee their only God and saviour, they may live in thy fear, and die in thy faith, and so be made heirs of thy everlasting kingdom, through Jesus Christ our Lord and blessed redeemer. The king's letter to the archbishop of Canterbury for carrying on of Chelsea College.

Fuller's Ch. Hist. l. x. pag. 52.

WHEREAS the enemies of the gospel have ever been forward to write and publish books for confirming of erroneous doctrine, and impugning the truth, and now of late seem more careful, than before, to send daily into our realms such their writings, whereby our loving subjects, though otherwise well disposed, might be seduced, unless some remedy thereof should be provided; we, by the advice of our council, have lately granted a corporation, and given our allowance for erecting a college at Chelsea, for learned divines, to be employed to write as occasion shall require, for maintaining the religion professed in our kingdoms, and confuting the impugnors thereof; whereupon Dr. Sutcliffe, designed provost of the said college, hath now humbly signified unto us, that upon divers promises of help and assistance towards the erecting and endowing the said college, he hath at his own charge begun and well proceeded in building, as doth sufficiently appear by a good part thereof already set up in the place appointed for the same; we therefore being willing to favour and further so religious a work, will and require you to write your letters to the bishops of your province, signifying unto them in our name, that our pleasure is, they deal with the clergy and others of the diocese, to give their charitable benevolence for the perfecting of this good work so well begun; and for the better performance of our desire, we have given order to the said provost and his associates, to attend you and others whom it may appertain, and to certify us from time to time of their proceeding.

A copy of this his majesty's letter was sent to all the bishops of England, with the archbishop's additional letter, in order as followeth:

Now because it is so pious and religious a work, conducing both to God's glory and the saving of many a soul within this kingdom, I cannot but wish that all devout and well affected persons should by yourself, and the preachers in your diocese, as well publickly as otherwise, be excited to contribute in some measure to so holy an intendment, now well begun: and although these and the like monitions have been frequent in these latter times; yet let not those, whom God hath blessed with any wealth be weary of well-doing, that it may not be said, that the idolatrous and superstitious papists be more forward to advance their falsehoods, than we are to maintain God's truth.

Whatsoever is collected, I pray your lordship, may be carefully brought unto me, partly that it may pass not through any defrauding hand, and partly that his majesty may be acquainted, what is done in this behalf.

The king's directions to the universities. Heylin's life of A. B. Laud ad ann. M.DC.XVI.

JAMES Rex.

I. THAT it was his majesty's pleasure, that he would have all that take any degree in schools, to subscribe to the three articles in the XXXVIth canon.

II. That no preacher be allowed to preach in the town, but such as are every way conformable both by subscription, and every other way.

III. That all students do resort to the sermons in St. Mary's, and be restrained from going to any other church in the time of St. Mary's sermons; and that provision be made that the sermons in St. Mary's be diligently made, and performed both before noon and after noon.

IV. That the ordinary divinity act be constantly kept with three replicants.

V. That there be a greater restraint of scholars haunting town houses, especially in the night.

VI. That all scholars, both at the chapel, and at the schools, keep their scholastical habits.

VII. That young students in divinity be directed to study such books, as be most agreeable in doctrine and discipline to the church of England, and incited to bestow their times in the fathers and councils, schoolmen, histories and controversies, and not to insist so long upon compendiums and abbreviations, making them the grounds of their study in divinity.

VIII. That no man, either in pulpit or school, be suffered to maintain dogmatically any point of doctrine, that is not allowed by the church of England.

IX. That Mr. Vicechancellor and the two professors, or two of the heads of houses do at such time, as his majesty resorts into those parts, wait upon his majesty, and give his majesty a just account, how these his majesty's injunctions are observed.

X. Let no man presume, of what condition or degree soever, not to yield his obedience to these his majesty's directions, lest he incur such censures, as the statutes of this university may justly inflict upon such transgressors.

OUR will and pleasure is that from this time forward, upon all occasions, you inure yourselves to the practice of the Latin tongue, that when there is cause you may deliver your minds with more readiness and facility.

II. You shall in all points, to be debated and disputed, resolve among yourselves beforehand, what is the true state of the question, and jointly and uniformly agree thereupon.

III. If in debating of the cause before the learned men there, any thing be emergent, whereof you thought not before, you shall meet and consult thereupon again, and so resolve among yourselves jointly, what is fit to be maintained; and this to be done agreeable to the scriptures, and the doctrine of the church of England.

IV. Your advice shall be to those churches, that the ministers do not deliver in pulpit to the people those things for ordinary doctrines, which are the highest points of schools, and not fit for vulgar capacity, but disputable on both sides.

V. That they use no innovation in doctrine, but teach the same things, which were taught twenty or thirty years past in their own churches, and especially that which contradicteth not their own confessions, so long since published and known to the world.

VI. That they conform themselves to the public confessions of the neighbour reformed churches, with whom to hold good correspondence shall be no dishonour to them.

VII. That if there be any main opposition between any, who are overmuch addicted to their own opinions, your endeavour shall be, that certain positions be moderately laid down, which may tend to the mitigation of heat on both sides.

VIII. That as you principally look to God's glory, and the peace of those distracted churches, so you have an eye to our honour, who send and employ you thither, and consequently at all times consult with our ambassador there residing, who is best acquainted with the forms of those countries, understandeth well the questions and differences among them, and shall from time to time receive our princely directions, as occasion shall require.

IX. Finally, in all other things, which we cannot foresee, you shall carry yourselves with that advice, moderation, and discretion, as to persons of your quality and gravity shall appertain.

The archbishop of Canterbury's letter for an uniform manner of prayer before sermon. Reg. II. Abbot fol. 181. b.

My very good lord. His majesty finding partly in his own chapel, but much more in his progresses abroad, that those who preach before him do in their prayers use several and unfit forms, as sometimes naming king James, and nothing else, sometimes using uncertain words, in declaring him to be the defender of the faith, and the like, for being supreme governor in causes both ecclesiastical and temporal, hath commanded me to direct my letters unto the bishops of this province of Cant. to take some course for the reformation of the same; as also for the omitting to pray for archbishops and bishops according to the form laudably used in the church of England; whereunto his majesty is the rather moved, because he cannot but conceive that these disorders are frequent in market towns and country parishes, when before his own royal presence there is so strange an omission. Now because in the last canons there is a special and particular provision for the same, and a direct form set down, to the end, that there may be an uniformity in the church; I do hereby pray your lordship, and in his majesty's name require you to use all the carefulness that you can, for the accomplishing of the same, according to the canon, within your diocese, which will be easily done, if yourself shall require so much of the dean and chapter of your cathedral church, and give in charge unto your archdeacons and chancellor, that in their visitations they do strictly warn the clergy under their jurisdiction, that they at all times, and in all places, where they preach, do observe the same; letting them know, that if hereafter, out of any humour or neglect they transgress in this kind, they are like to undergo such censures ecclesiastical, or otherwise, as are fit to be inflicted upon so high a contempt. And because I do receive complaint almost out of all countries, that the churches are neither repaired, nor seemly adorned, as is fit for the house of God; I pray your lordship, that together with this other charge your subordinate officers may stir up your clergy in solemn sort in their sermons, to call upon the Augustissimum et vere βασιλικὸν δῶρον, rex serenissime, tanquam ancile quoddam caelitus delapsum, pio amplexa est affectu ancilla vestra Oxoniensis academia. Cujus enim pectus non accendat aureum hoc solis jubar? quos stimulos non imprimat perpetuum honoris pignus, et amplissimum favoris monumentum? parum abest, quin spatiosus Britanniae ambitus simul in academiam laxetur, et unanimis undequaque populus ad regis exemplum compositus, in gentem philosophorum vertatur. Agnoscunt circumstipantes reliquorum musae antesignanum hunc Phoebum, cujus radiis suas debent stricturas. Felicitatem tantam sublimi, debita tamen superbia admiratur bibliotheca, cujus fidae custodiae tam regale depositum et stupendus totius orbis thesaurus consecratur. Gloriatur universa studioforum cohors, regiam vestram majestatem in aula versari, acsi in Helicone, tam calamo quam gladio accingi, et imperii habenas literarum caduceo moderari. Desinant igitur ambulancia hominum cadavera literas despicere, quas nesciunt; quum cogitarint principem, tam multa scientem quam regentem, horarum formulas vicissitudine regiminis et scriptionis dividentem, acsi aequae jucundum in literis ac imperio sit. RIGHT reverend father in God my very good lord. I have received letters from the lords of his majesty's most honourable privy council in behalf of the poor strangers, who by

to your lordship, that by reason of the present troubles in France many strangers in that place professing the same religion with us, have for their conscience sake retired themselves into this kingdom; in contemplation of whose distressed estate, as his majesty's pleasure is they should in general receive all kind and favourable usage, so in his princely and pious commiseration of the necessities of a great number of them, who living in a strange country, wanting both means and employment, are likely to suffer much misery, without the assistance and relief of other good christians; his majesty is pleased that their wants should be recommended unto the charity of all his subjects generally throughout this kingdom. These are therefore to pray your lordship, to direct your letters to the several bishops within your province, to take order, that in the several parish churches of every diocese his majesty's loving subjects may be moved to contribute towards the relief of the poor French protestants, refuged hither for their conscience; and that the monies collected be sent unto the bishop of the diocese, or unto such person, as he shall appoint to receive the same, which shall be afterwards returned hither, to be distributed by the direction of the ministers and elders of the French church, according to the necessities of the persons. And so very earnestly recommending this charitable work unto your lordship, we bid you very heartily farewell. From Whitehall the 19. of September, M.DC.XXI. Your good lordship's very loving friends, J. Linc. C. S. H. Maundeville, Lenox, Arundell et Surry, Pembroke, Kellie, H. Falkland, J. Brooke, Geo. Calvert, Jul. Caesar. Now because there is nothing which more agreeth with christian charity, than to be compassionate towards them, who profess the same faith and religion, and are now in distress by their fearful flight from their native country and friends; I am to move your lordship, that with tenderness of affection you take this cause to heart, and that you excite others in the bowels of Jesus Christ, by a liberal contribution to extend their commiseration unto these our brethren in this their grievous and pressing affliction; whereof not doubting but that your lordship and other devout people will have a true sense and fellowfeeling and that with all convenient speed, I leave your lordship to the Almighty. The king's letter to the archbishop of Cant. and the bishop of Lincoln about a voluntary contribution from the clergy. Reg. Abbot II. fol. 195. b.

RIGHT reverend father in God, our very good lord and brother. We have lately received from his majesty certain letters directed unto us the lord archbishop of Cant. and the lord bishop of Lincoln, lord keeper of the great seal, but referring to the rest, whose names are underwritten, the tenor whereof here ensueth: Right reverend fathers in God, right trusty and right well beloved counsellors, we greet you well. What endeavours we have used by treaty, and by all fair and amicable ways, to recover the patrimony of our children in Germany, now for the most part withholden from them by force, is not unknown unto all our loving subjects, since we were pleased to communicate unto them in parliament our whole proceedings in that business; of which treaty our hopes being at the last frustrate, we were enforced to take other resolutions, namely to recover that by the sword, which by other means we see no likelihood to compass. For which purpose we did expect, that our people would in a cause so nearly concerning our childrens interest and ours, have chearfully contributed thereunto, as indeed they did by promise and declaration to the proportion of one subsidy at their last meeting before Christmas; but the same failing to be legally perfected by the wayward divisions of some few, we are constrained in a case of so great necessity to try the dutiful affections of our subjects in another way, as our predecessors have done in former times, by propounding a voluntary contribution unto them; and knowing the faithful and loving service performed unto us by our clergy of this realm at all times upon the like urgent occasion, have thought good to make use thereof at this present, and do therefore require you to give notice thereof to all the bishops, who are not as yet departed from the city of London; and together with them, to write your letters to all the bishops of both provinces, for the speedy collecting, and receiving of the voluntary contributions of the whole clergy, towards the support of this so necessary and justifiable a warlike defence, wherein not only our crown and dignity, but the true religion also, which you and they teach and profess, is so much interested. And we do farther require, that you and the other bishops do likewise move the same to all the schoolmasters, which have licence to teach within your or their several dioceses, not doubting of either your care, or their forwardness in this so necessary a service. Given under our signet at our palace of Westm. the 14th day of January, in the nineteenth year of our reign of England, France and Ireland, and of Scotland the five and fiftieth.

Your lordship by these letters may see how far it concerneth his majesty in honour, and the realm in safety, that the patrimony of the king's children should be recovered again by force of war, since it cannot be obtained by treaty. And inasmuch as arms are not maintained but by large expence, and his majesty hath not lately received such supply as otherways was expected, it may well stand with our most bounden duty, that in this time of necessity, we of the clergy should by way of voluntary contribution testify our observance and loyal respect unto so gracious a prince. We therefore, who upon the receipt of these his majesty's letters have met together and duly considered, what was most convenient to be done, have resolved, that three shillings and ten pence in the pound is as little as we can possibly offer towards so great an enterprise; yet hoping that such as be of ability will exceed the same. You shall therefore do well by all forcible reason, drawn from the defence of religion and justice, to incite all your clergy, as well within peculiars as otherwise, as also all the lecturers and licensed schoolmasters, within your diocese, that with all readiness they do contribute unto this noble action. And whereas there be divers commendatories, dignitaries, prebendaries, and double beneficed men, that have livings in several dioceses, we hold it fit, that for every one of these within your lordship's diocese the contribution be rateable, so that the monies in such sort given, may be brought to London by the tenth day of March next, to be delivered to the hands of such receivers, as for that purpose shall be appointed. And to the end that true notice may be taken of such as are best disposed to this so good a service, we expect that your lordship send up to the lord archbishop of Cant. the several sums and names of all those, who contribute; and lastly your lordship shall do right well also, that inasmuch as the laity are like to be moved for such contribution in the country, wherein many about London already have begun and given good example, that you cause the preachers within your diocese in a grave and discreet fashion to excite the people, that when occasion shall serve, they do extend their liberalities to so christian and worthy an enterprise; wherein not doubting but your lordship will use all your best, prudent, and most careful endeavours, we leave you to the almighty. The king's letter to the archbishop of Canterbury concerning preachers and preaching.

Reg. II. Abbot fol. 199. a.

RIGHT reverend father in God, my very good lord and brother. I have received from the king's most excellent majesty a letter, the tenor whereof here ensueth: Most reverend father in God, right trusty and right intirely beloved counsellor, we greet you well. Forasmuch as the abuses and extravagancies of preachers in the pulpit have been in all times repressed in this realm by some act of council or state, with the advice and resolution of grave and learned prelates, insomuch as the very licensing of preachers had the beginning by an order of Starchamber the eighth day of July, in the nineteenth year of king Henry the eighth, our noble predecessor; and whereas at this present, divers young students by reading of late writers and ungrounded divines, do broach many times unprofitable, unsound, seditious, and dangerous doctrines, to the scandal of this church, and disquieting of the state and present government; we upon humble representations unto us of these inconveniencies by yourself, and sundry other grave and reverend prelates of this church, as also of our princely care and zeal for the extirpation of schism and discension growing from these seeds, and for the settling of a religious and peaceable government both of church and state, do by these our special letters streightly charge and command you, to use all possible care and diligence, that these limitations and cautions, herewith sent unto you, concerning preachers, be duely and strictly from henceforth observed, and put in practice by the severall bishops in their severall dioceses within your jurisdiction. And to this end, our pleasure is, that you send them forthwith severall copies of those directions, to be by them speedily sent and communicated to every parson, vicar, curate, lecturer, and minister in every cathedral or parish church, within their severall dioceses; and that you earnestly require them to imploy their utmost endeavours in the performance of this so important a business; letting them know, that we have a special eye to their proceeding, and expect a strict account thereof both from you and every of them; and these our letters shall be your sufficient warrant and discharge in this behalf. Given under our signet at our castle at Windsor the 4th day of August, in the twentieth year of our reign of England, France, and Ireland, and of Scotland the six and fiftieth.

By this you see his majesty's princely care, that men should preach Christ crucified, obedience to the higher powers, and honest and christian conversation of life, but in a regular form; and not that every young man should take unto himself an exorbitant liberty to teach, what he listeth, to the offence of his majesty, and to the disturbance and disquiet of the church, and common wealth. I can give unto your lordship no better directions for the pursuance hereof, than are prescribed to you in his majesty's letters, and the schedule herewith sent unto you; whereof I pray you to be very careful, since it is the princely pleasure of his highness to require an account both of you and me for the same. And so not doubting, but by your register or otherwise you will cause these instructions to be communicated to your clergy; I leave you to the Almighty, and remain

I. That no preacher under the degree and calling of a bishop, or dean of a cathedral or collegiate church, and they upon the king's days and set festivals, do take occasion by the expounding of any text of scripture whatsoever, to fall into any set discourse, or common place (otherwise than by opening the coherence and division of his text) which shall not be comprehended and warranted in essence, substance, effect, or natural inference within some one of the articles of religion set forth M.D.LXII. or in some of the homilies set forth by authority in the church of England, not only for a help of the nonpreaching, but withall for a pattern and a boundary, as it were, for the preaching ministers; and for their further instruction for the performance thereof, that they forthwith read over, and peruse diligently the said book of articles, and the two books of homilies.

II. That no parson, vicar, curate, or lecturer shall preach any sermon or collation hereafter upon Sundays and holidays in the afternoon, in any cathedral, or parish church throughout this kingdom, but upon some part of the catechism, or some text taken out of the Creed, Ten Commandments, or the Lord's Prayer (funeral sermons only excepted) and that those preachers be most encouraged and approved of, who spend the afternoon's exercise in the examining of children in their catechism, and in the expounding of the severall points and heads of the catechism, which is the most ancient and laudable custom of teaching in the church of England.

III. That no preacher of what title soever, under the degree of a bishop, or dean at the least, do from henceforth presume to preach in any popular auditory the deep points of predestination, election, reprobation, or of the universality, efficacy, resistibility, or irresistibility of God's grace; but leave those themes to be handled by learned men, and that moderately and modestly by way of use and application, rather than by way of positive doctrine, as being fitter for the schools and universities, than for simple auditories.

IV. That no preacher of what title or denomination soever, shall presume from henceforth in any auditory within this kingdom to declare, limit, or bound out, by way of positive doctrine, in any lecture or sermon, the power, prerogative, jurisdiction, authority, or duty of sovereign princes, or otherwise meddle with these matters of state, and the references betwixt princes and the people, than as they are instructed and presided in the homily of obedience, and in the rest of the homilies and articles of religion, set forth (as before is mentioned) by public authority; but rather confine themselves wholly to those two heads of faith and good life, which are all the subject of the ancient sermons and homilies.

V. That no preacher of what title or denomination soever, shall causelessly, and without invitation from the text, fall into bitter invectives, and indecent railing speeches against the persons of either Papists or Puritans; but modestly and gravely (when they are occasioned thereunto by the text of scripture) free both the doctrine and discipline of the church of England from the aspersions of either adversary, especially when the auditory is suspected to be tainted with the one or the other infection.

VI. Lastly, That the archbishops and bishops of the kingdom, whom his majesty hath good cause to blame for this former remissness, be more wary and choice in licensing of preachers, and revoke all grants made to any chancellor, official, or commissary to pass licences in this kingdom; and that all the lecturers throughout the kingdom (a new body severed from the ancient clergy of England, as being neither parsons, vicars, or curates) be licensed henceforth in the court of Faculties, only upon recommendation of the party from the bishop of the diocese under his hand and seal, with a "fiat" from the lord archbishop of Cant. and a confirmation under the great seal of England; and that such as transgress any one of these directions, be suspended by the bishop of the diocese, or in his default, by the lord archbishop of that province "ab officio et beneficio" for a year and a day, until his majesty by the advice of the next convocation shall prescribe some further punishment.

The archbishop of Canterbury's letter explaining the former directions.

Reg. II. Abbot fol. 200. a.

My very good lord. I doubt not but before this time you have received from me the directions of his most excellent majesty, concerning preaching and preachers; which are so graciously set down, that no godly or discreet man can otherwise than acknowledge, that they do much tend to edification, if he do not take them up upon report, but do punctually consider the tenor of the words, as they lie, and do not give an ill construction to that, which may receive a fair interpretation; notwithstanding, because some few churchmen, and many of the people have sinisterly conceived, as we here find, that these instructions do tend to the restraint of the exercise of preaching, and do in some sort abate the number of sermons, and so consequently by degrees do make a breach to ignorance and superstition; his majesty in his princely wisdom hath thought fit, that I should advertise your lordship of the grave and weighty reasons, which induced his highness to prescribe that which is done. You are therefore to know, that his majesty, being much troubled and grieved at the heart, to hear every day of so much defection from our religion, both to popery and anabaptism, or other points of separation, in some parts of this kingdom; and considering with much admiration what might be the cause thereof, especially in the reign of such a king, who doth so constantly profess himself an open adversary to the superstition of the one, and madness of the other; his princely wisdom could fall upon no one greater probability, than the lightness, affectedness, and unprofitableness of that kind of preaching which hath been of late years too much taken up in court, university, city, and country. The usual scope of very many preachers is noted to be a soaring up in points of divinity, too deep for the capacity of the people, or a mustering up of much reading, or a displaying of their own wit, or an ignorant meddling with civil matters, as well in the private of several parishes and corporations, as in the public of the kingdom, or a venting of their own distastes, or a smoothing up of those idle fancies, which in this blessed time of a long peace do boil in the brains of unadvised people; or lastly, a rude or indecent railing, not against the doctrines (which when the text shall occasion the same, is not only approved but much commended by his royal majesty) but against the persons of Papists and Puritans. Now the people bred up with this kind of teaching, and never instructed in the catechism, and fundamental grounds of religion, are for all this airy nourishment no better than "abrafae tabulae" new table books, ready to be filled up with the manuals and catechisms of the popish priests, or the papers and pamphlets of Anabaptists, Brownists, and Puritans. His majesty therefore calling to mind the saying of Tertullian, "Id verum quod primum," and remembering with what doctrine the church of England in the first and most happy reformation did drive out the one, and keep out the other from poisoning and infecting the people of

of this kingdom, doth find that the whole scope of this doctrine is contained in the articles of religion, the two books of homilies, the lesser and the greater catechism, which his majesty doth therefore recommend again in these directions, as the themes and proper subjects of all sound and edifying preaching; and so far are these directions from abating, that his majesty doth expect at our hands that it should increase the number of sermons, by renewing upon every Sunday in the afternoon, in all parish churches throughout the kingdom, that primitive and most profitable exposition of the catechism, wherewith the people, yea very children may be timely seasoned and instructed in all the heads of christian religion, the which kind of preaching (to our amendment be it spoken) is more diligently observed in all the reformed churches of Europe, than of late it hath been here in England. I find his majesty much moved with this neglect, and resolved (if we that are his bishops, do not see a reformation thereof, which I trust we shall) to recommend it to the care of the civil magistrate; so far is his highness from giving the least discouragement to solid preaching, or discreet or religious preachers. To all these I am to add his majesty's princely pleasure that both the former directions and these reasons of the same be fairly written in every register's office, to the end that every preacher, of what denomination soever, may, if he be so pleased, take out copies of either of them with his own hand "gratis," paying nothing in the name of fee or expedition; but if he do use the pains of the register or his clerks, then to pay some moderate fee to be pronounced in open court by the chancellors and commissioners of the place, taking the direction and approbation of my lords the bishops. Lastly, that from henceforward a course may be taken that every parson, vicar, curate, or lecturer do make exhibit of these his majesty's directions and the reason for the same, at the ensuing visitation of the bishops and archdeacons, paying to the register by way of fee but two pence only at the time of exhibit. And so wishing, but withal in his majesty's name requiring your lordship to have a special and extraordinary care of the premises, I leave you to the Almighty. From Croydon, September 4. M.DC.XXII.

To all true christian people, to whom these presents shall come, greeting in our Lord God everlasting. Whereas the prelates and clergy within the province of York were lately summoned by virtue of his majesty's writ to appear at the convocation holden in the chapterhouse within the cathedral and metropolitical church of St. Peter in York aforesaid upon the 13th day of February last past; and because in former times the prelates and clergy aforesaid, so called to the convocation, and their servants and families that came with them, were oftentimes arrested, molested, or disquieted; it was graciously provided for the security and quietness of the said clergy by act of parliament in the eighth year of king Henry the sixth, cap. I. that the clergy at any time after to be called to convocation by the king's writ, and their servants and families shall for ever hereafter fully use and enjoy such liberty or defence in coming, tarrying, and returning, as the great men and commons of the realm have, or are wont or ought to enjoy, which are called to the parliament; as by the said statute doth and may appear; and lastly whereas we are credibly informed that Mr. Thomas Mallory clerk, dean of the cathedral church of Chester, is at this instant much much molested by divers persons, or some one at the least, with troublesome suits of law, so that he is thereby hindered from attending his majesty's service at the convocation now at York depending; these are therefore to certify all and every one, whom these presents may any way concern, upon the earnest petition, and supplication of the said Thomas Mallory, dean of Chester aforesaid, that upon search and view of the records of the convocation now depending for the province of York aforesaid, we find that the said Thomas Mallory did appear at the convocation aforesaid upon the 13th day of February last past by his lawful proctor, and was and is a member of the said convocation, presuming that upon notice thereof, no person or persons whatsoever will attempt to sue or mo-

An act to prevent and reform profane swearing and cursing. 21 Jac. I. c. 20.

FORASMUCH as all profane swearing and cursing is forbidden by the word of God; be it therefore enacted by the authority of this present parliament, that no person or persons shall from henceforth profanely swear and curse. And that if any person or persons shall at any time or times hereafter offend herein, either in the hearing of any justice of peace of the county, or of any mayor, justice of peace, bailiff, or head officer of any city or town corporate, where such offence is or shall be committed, or shall thereof be convicted by the oaths of two witnesses, or by confession of the party, before any such justice of peace of the county, or head officer, or justice of the peace in the city or town corporate, where such offence is or shall be committed, to which end, every justice of peace, and every such head officer shall have power by this act to minister the same oath, that then every such offender shall for every time so offending, forfeit and pay to the use of the poor of that parish, where the same offence is or shall be committed, the sum of twelve pence. And it shall also be lawful for the constable, churchwardens, and overseers of the poor of that parish, by warrant from such justices of the peace, or head officer, to levy the same sum and sums of money, by distress and sale of the offender's goods, rendering to the party the overplus. And in defect of such distress, the offender, if he or she be above the age of 12. years, shall by warrant from such justice of the peace, or head officer be set in the stocks by three whole hours; but if the offender be under the age of 12. years, and shall not forthwith pay the said sum of 12. pence, then he or she by warrant of such justice of peace, or head officer shall be whipped by the constable, or by the parent or master in his presence.

II. And be it further enacted, that if any such offender shall commence any suit in law against any officer or other, for such distraining, sale of goods, whipping, or setting in the stocks, the defendant or defendants may plead the general issue, and give the special matter in evidence to the jury at the trial; and if it be found against the plaintiff, or that the plaintiff be nonsuit, the defendant or defendants shall be allowed good costs, to be taxed by the court.

III. Provided nevertheless, that every offence against this law, shall be complained of, and proved, as aforesaid, within 20 days after the offence committed.

And it is also enacted, that this act shall be read in every parish church by the minister thereof upon the Sunday after evening prayer, twice in the year.

IV. Provided, That this act shall continue until the end of the first session of the next parliament, and no longer.

The king's letter to the archbishop of Canterbury touching recusants. Reg. II. Abbot fol. 211. a.

RIGHT reverend father in God, my very good lord. I have received from the king's majesty a letter, the tenor whereof here followeth: Most reverend father in God, right trusty and well beloved counsellor, we greet you well. Whereas upon sundry weighty considerations us specially moving, we lately awarded our commission under our great seal of England, for the due and effectual putting in execution of the several laws and statutes remaining in force against popish recusants, and did cause our said commission to be publickly read in our several courts holden the last term at Reading, that all our loving subjects might take notice of our princely care, and special charge for the advancement of true religion, and suppressing of superstition and popery; we have now thought fit, out of the same care to add a farther charge to you, and all others having ecclesiastical jurisdiction under us, that no good means be neglected on your part for discovering, finding out, and apprehending of Jesuits, seminary priests, and other seducers of our children to the Romish religion, or for repressing popish recusants and delinquents of that sort, against whom you are to proceed by excommunication and other censures of the church, not omitting any other due and lawful means to bring them forth to public justice. And as our pleasure is, that due and strict proceeding be used against such as are open and profest papists, of whom our temporal laws will more easily take hold; so we do recommend to the vigilant care of you and the rest of our clergy the repressing of those, who being ill affected to the true religion here established, do keep more close and secret their ill and dangerous affections that way, and as well by their example, as by secret and underhand sleights and means, do much encourage and increase the growth of popery and superstition in sundry parts of this kingdom: and therefore we not only require, that none of them may have any manner of cover, protection, countenance, or connivance from you, or any of the rest, as you tender our royal commandment in that behalf; but that all possible diligence be used as well to unmask the false shadows and pretences of those that are obstinate, as by all good means to reclaim those, who may possibly be won to conformity: letting all men know, that we cannot think well of any, that having place and authority in the church, do permit such persons to pass with impunity, much less if they give any countenance to the emboldening of them and their adherents. And because we understand, that the number of recusants is much more increased in some dioceses, than in others, we shall impute the same to the negligence of those bishops, who have the same means and power of restraint, unless they can shew us some particular reason, by which that contagion is become greater under them, than others, and not by their defaults: and we do hereby require you to send transcripts of these our letters to all the bishops and ordinaries within your province, for the present execution of this our general direction, and also to transmit the same our letters to the lord archbishop of York, that he may take the like course within his charge and jurisdiction. Given under our signet at our castle of Windsor the 15th day of December, in the first year of our reign.

By this you see the royal and christian care which his majesty hath for the advancing of true religion within this kingdom, and the suppressing of the contrary. I doubt not but your lordship will take into serious consideration, and by your officers and ministers give execution thereunto, so that presentments be duly made, and excommunications against the obstinate be issued forth, as some few years past was accustomed; and his majesty doth expect, that, to shew your diligence and zeal herein, your lordship will soon after Easter return unto me the list and number of all recusant papists, within your diocese, which without fail I do expect. And so I leave you to the Almighty, and remain

The king's letter to the archbishop of Canterbury to excite the people to unity, and to contribute towards the support of the king of Denmark. Reg. II. Abbot fol. 218. a.

My very good lord. I have received from the king's majesty both pious and prudent instructions necessary for this time, the particulars whereof do here follow: Most reverend father in God, right trusty and right well beloved counsellor, we greet you well. We have observed that the church and the state are so near united and knit together, that tho' they may seem two bodies, yet indeed in some relation they may be accounted but as one; inasmuch as they both are made up of the same men, which are differenced only in relation to spiritual or civil ends; this nearness makes the church call in the help of the state to succour and support her, whensoever she is pressed beyond herself; and the same nearness makes the state call in for the service of the church, both to teach that duty, which her members know not, and to exhort them to it, and encourage them in that duty, which they know. It is not long since we ordered the state to serve the church, and by a timely proclamation settled the peace of it; and now the state looks for the like assistance from the church, that she and all her ministers may serve God and us, by preaching peace and unity at home, that it may be the better able to resist foreign force, uniting and multiplying against it. And to the end that they, to whom we have committed the government of the church under us, may be the better able to dispose of the present occasions, we have, with the advice of the council, thought fit to send unto you these instructions following, to be sent by you to the bishops of your province, and such others, whom it may concern, and by them and their officers directed to all the ministers throughout the several dioceses, that according to these punctually they may instruct and exhort the people to serve God and us, and labour by their prayers to divert the dangers which hang over us. The danger in which we are at this time is great; it is increased by the late blow given our good uncle the king of Denmark, who is the chief person in those parts that opposed the spreading forces of Spain; if he cannot subsist, there is little or nothing left to hinder the house of Austria from being lord and master of Germany, and that is a large and mighty territory, as should it be gotten would make an open way for Spain to do what they please in all the west parts of Christendom. For besides the great strength which Germany once possessed, would bring to them, which are too strong already, you are to consider first, how it will enable them by land, in that it will join all, or the most parts of the Spaniard's now distracted territories, and be a means for him safely and speedily to draw down forces against any other kingdom, that shall stand in his way; nor can it be thought the Low Countries can hold out longer against him, if he once become lord of the upper parts. And secondly, you are to weigh how it will advantage him by sea, and make him strong against us in our particular, which is of easy apprehension to all men: and besides, if he once get Germany, he will be able, though he had no gold from India, to supply the necessity of those wars, and to hinder all trade and traffic of the greatest staple commodities of this kingdom, cloth and wool, and so make them of little or no value. You are to know therefore, that to prevent this is the present care of the king and the state, and there is no probable way left, but by sending forces and other supplies to the said king of Denmark our dear uncle, to enable him to keep the field, that our enemies be not masters of all on the sudden. You are further to take notice, how that we and this whole state stand bound in honour and conscience to supply the present necessity of the king of Denmark; for this quarrel is more nearly ours, the recovery of the ancient inheritance of our dear sister and her children. The king of Denmark stands not so near in blood unto her as we do, yet for her and our sakes that brave and valiant king hath adventured into the field, and in that engagement hath not only hazarded his person, but as things go now, it may turn to some danger to his own kingdom and posterity, should he not receive aid and succour from us without delay; which should it happen, as God forbid, will be one of the greatest dishonours, that ever this kingdom was stained withal. Nor is danger and dishonour all the mischief that is like to follow this disaster; for if he be not presently relieved, the cause of religion is not only likely to suffer by it in some one part, as it hath already in a fearful manner in the Palatinate, but in all places, where it hath gotten any footing; so that if we supply not presently our allies and confederates in this case, it is likely to prove the extirpation of true religion, and the replanting of Romish superstition in all the neighbouring parts of Christendom; and the colonies of this state shall suffer in all places as the betrayer of that religion elsewhere, which it professeth and honoureth at home; which will be an imputation never to be washed off; and God forbid this state should suffer under it. Neither may you forget rightly to inform the people committed to your charge, that this war which now grows full of danger, was not entred upon rashly and without advice, but you are to acquaint them, that all former treaties by a peaceable way were in the latter end of our dear father of ever blessed memory dissolved as fruitless and unfit longer to be held on foot, and this by the counsel of both houses of parliament then sitting; so those two great and honourable bodies of the peers and people represented in parliament, led on this counsel and course to a war with Spain; to effect this, they desired our aid and assistance, and used us to work our said dear father to entertain this course. This upon their persuasions and promises of all assistance and supply we readily undertook and effected, and cannot now be left in that business, but with the sin and shame of all men. Sin, because aid and supply for the defence of the kingdom, and the like affairs of the state, especially such as are advised by parliamentary counsel, are due to the king from his people by all law both of God and men; and shame if they forsake the king, while he pursues their own counsel just and honourable, and which could not under God but have been successful, if he had been followed and supplied in time, as we desired and laboured for. One thing there is, which proves a great hinderance of this state, and not continued among the people without great offence against God, detriment both to church and state, and our great disservice in this this and all other business; it is the breach of unity, which is grown too great and common among all sorts of men; the danger of this goes far; for in all states it hath made way for enemies to enter. We have by all means endeavoured union, and require of you to preach it, and charity, the mother of it, frequently in the ears of the people. We know their loyal hearts, and therefore wonder the more what should cause distracted affections. If you call upon them, which is your duty, we doubt not but that God will bless them with that love to himself, to his church, and their own preservation, which alone will be able to bind up the scatterings of divided affections into strength. To this end you are to lay before them what miseries home-divisions have brought upon this and many other kingdoms, and to exhort all men to embrace it in time; the danger itself, besides all other christian and prudent motives, is offence enough, where it is duly considered, to make men join in all amity against a common, a great, and a growing enemy, and to do it in time, before any secret and cunning working of his may use one part in a division, to weaken the other; and in the last place, but first and last and all times to be insisted upon, you are to call upon God yourselves, and to incite the people to join with you in humble and hearty prayers unto God, that he will be pleased now after long afflictions of his dear people and children, to look in mercy both upon them and us, and in particular for the safety of the king of Denmark, and that army which is left him, that God would bless and prosper him against his and our enemies. Thus you are to strengthen the hearts and the hands of our loyal subjects and people in and upon God. And whereas the greatest confidence men have in God, ariseth not only from his promises, but from their experience likewise of his goodness; you must not fail often to recall to the memory of the people with thankfulness the late great experience, we have had of his goodness towards us. For the three great and usual judgments, which he darts down upon disobedient and unthankful people, are pestilence, famine, and the sword; the pestilence did never rage more in this kingdom than of late; and God was graciously pleased in mercy to hear the prayers which were made unto him, and the ceasing of the judgment was little less than a miracle. The famine threatned us this present year, and it must have followed, had God rained down his anger a little longer upon the fruits of the earth; but upon our prayers he stayed that judgment, and sent us a most blessed season and a most plentiful harvest. The sword is the thing which we are now to look to, and you must call the people to their prayers again against the enemy, that God will be pleased to send the like deliverance from this judgment also, that in the same mercy he will vouchsafe to strengthen the hands of his people, that he will sharpen their sword, but dull and turn the edge of that which is in our enemies hands; that so while some fight, others may pray for the blessing. And you are to be careful, that you fail not to direct and hearten our loving people in this and all other necessary services both of God, his church, and us, that we may have the comfort of our people's service, the state safety, the church religion, and the people the enjoying of all such blessings as follow these: and we end with doubling of this care upon you and all under you in their several places. Given at our palace at Westm. in the second year of our reign, the 21st of September M.DC.XXVI.

The care which your lordship is to use in this behalf, is, to see them made known in the worthy preachers and ministers in your diocese, and so far as your lordship may, in your own person to put these things in execution, and to call upon the clergy, which is under you, in their preaching and private conferences to stir up all sort of people, to express their zeal to God, their duty to the king, and their love unto their country, and one to another; that all good and christian courses may be taken for the preservation of the true religion both in this land, and throughout all Christendom; which not doubting but your lordship with all diligence and speed will see effected, I leave you to the Almighty, and remain

A commission to sequester archbishop Abbot from all his ecclesiastical offices and jurisdiction. Rushworth's Coll. vol. I. page 431. Frankland's Annal. p. 211.

CHARLES, by the grace of God king of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, defender of the faith, etc. to the right reverend father in God, George, lord bishop of London, and to the right reverend father in God, our trusty and well beloved counsellor, Richard, lord bishop of Durham, and to the right reverend father in God, John, lord bishop of Rochester, and John, lord bishop of Oxford, to the right reverend father in God, our right trusty and well beloved counsellor, William, lord bishop of Bath and Wells, greeting.

Whereas George, now archbishop of Canterbury, in the right of the archbishoprick, hath severall and distinct archiepiscopal, episcopal, and other spiritual and ecclesiastical powers and jurisdictions, to be exercised in the government and discipline of the church within the province of Canterbury, and in the administration of justice in causes ecclesiastical within that province, which are partly executed by himself in his own person, and partly and more generally by severall persons nominated and authorized by him, being learned in the ecclesiastical laws of this realm, in those severall places, whereunto they are deputed and appointed by the said archbishop; which severall places, as we are informed, they severally hold by severall grants for their severall lives; as namely, Sir Henry Martin, K^t. hath and holdeth by the grants of the said archbishop the offices and places of the dean of the Arches, and judge, or master of the Prerogative court, for the natural life of the said Sir Henry Martin.

Sir Charles Caesar, K^t. hath and holdeth by grants of the said archbishop the places or offices of the judge of the Audience, and master of the Faculties, for the term of the natural life of the said Sir Charles Caesar.

Sir Thomas Ridley, K^t. hath and holdeth by the grant of the said archbishop the place or office of vicar general to the said archbishop.

And Nathaniel Brent, doctor of the laws, hath and holdeth by grant of the said archbishop the office or place of commissary to the said archbishop, as of his proper and peculiar diocese of Canterbury.

And likewise the severall registers of the Arches, Prerogative, Audience, Faculties, and of the vicar general and the commissary of Cant. hold their places by grants from the said archbishop respectively.

Whereas the said archbishop in some or all of these severall places and jurisdictions doth or may sometimes assume unto his personal and proper judicature, order, or direction some particular causes, actions, or cases at his pleasure; and forasmuch as the said archbishop cannot at this present, in his own person, attend the services, which are otherwise proper for his cognizance and jurisdiction, and which as archbishop of Cant. he might and ought in his own person to have performed and executed in causes and matters ecclesiastical, in the proper function of archbishop of that province; we therefore, of our regal power, and of our princely care and providence, that nothing shall be defective in the order, discipline, government, or right of the church, have thought fit by the service of some other learned and reverend bishops, to be named by us, to supply those things which the said archbishop ought or might in the cases aforesaid to have done, but for this present cannot perform the same.

Know ye therefore, that we reposing special trust and confidence in your approved wisdoms, learning, and integrity, have nominated, authorized, and appointed, and do by these presents nominate, authorize, and appoint you the said George, lord bishop of London, Richard, lord bishop of Durham, John, lord bishop of Rochester, John, lord bishop of Oxford, and William, lord bishop of Bath and Wells, or any four, three, or two of you, to do, execute, and perform all and every those acts, matters, and things, any way touching or concerning the power, jurisdiction, or authority of the archbishop of Cant. in causes or matters ecclesiastical, as amply, fully, and effectually, to all intents and purposes, as the said archbishop himself might have done.

And we do hereby command you and every of you, to attend, perform, and execute this our royal pleasure, in and touching the premises, until we shall declare our will and pleasure to the contrary.

And we do further hereby will and command the said archbishop of Canterbury, quietly and without interruption to permit and suffer you the said George, bishop of London, Richard, bishop of Durham, John, bishop of Rochester, John, bishop of Oxford, and William, bishop of Bath and Wells, any four, three, or two of you, to execute and perform this our commission, according to our royal pleasure thereby signified.

And we do further will and command all, and every other person and persons, whom it may any way concern, in their severall places or offices, to be attendant, observant, and obedient to you, and every one of you, in the execution and performance of this our royal will and command, as they and every of them will answer the contrary at their utmost perils.

Nevertheless we do hereby declare our royal pleasure to be, that the said Sir Henry Martin, Sir Charles Caesar, Sir Thomas Ridley, and Nathaniel Brent, in their severall offices and places places aforesaid, and all other registers, officers, and ministers in the several courts, offices, and jurisdictions appertaining to the said archbishop, shall quietly and without interruption hold, use, occupy, and enjoy their said offices and places, which they now hold by the grant of the said archbishop, or any other former archbishop of Cant. in such manner and form, and with those benefits, privileges, powers, and authorities, which they now have, hold, and enjoy therein, or thereout, severally and respectively, they, and every of them, in their several places, being attendant and obedient unto you, the said George, Bishop of London, Richard, bishop of Durham, John, bishop of Rocheſter, John, biſhop of Oxford, and William, biſhop of Bath and Wells, or to any four, three, or two of you, in all things, according to the tenor of this our commiſſion, as they ſhould or ought to have been to the ſaid archbiſhop himſelf, if this commiſſion had not been had or made. In witneſs whereof, we have cauſed theſe our lettets to be made patent. Witneſs our ſelf at Weſtmiſter the ninth day of Oſtober, in the third year of our reign.

His majeſty's declaration.

BEING by God's ordinance, according to our juſt title, defender of the faith, and ſupreme governor of the church within theſe our dominions, we hold it moſt agreeable to this our kingly office, and our own religious zeal, to conſerve and maintain the church committed to our charge in unity of true religion, and in the bond of peace; and not to ſuffer unneceſſary diſputations, altercations, or queſtions to be raiſed, which may nourish faction both in the church and commonwealth. We have therefore upon mature deliberation, and with the advice of ſo many of our biſhops, as might conveniently be called together, thought fit to make this declaration following: That the articles of the church of England, which have been allowed and authorized heretofore, and which our clergy generally have ſubſcribed unto, do contain the true doctrine of the church of England agreeable to God's word; which we do therefore ratify and confirm, requiring all our loving ſubjects to continue in the uniform profeſſion thereof, and prohibiting the leaſt difference from the ſaid articles; which to that end we command to be new printed, and this our declaration to be published therewith.

That we are ſupreme governor of the church of England; and that if any difference ariſe about the external policy, concerning the injunctions, canons, or other conſtitutions whatsoever thereto belonging, the clergy in their convocation is to order and ſettle them, having firſt obtained leave under our broad ſeal ſo to do; and we approving their ſaid ordinances and conſtitutions, provided that none be made contrary to the laws and cuſtoms of the land.

That out of our princely care, that the churchmen may do the work which is proper unto them; the biſhops and clergy from time to time in convocation, upon their humble deſire ſhall have licence under our broad ſeal to deliberate of, and to do all ſuch things, as being made plain by them, and aſſented unto by us, ſhall concern the ſettled continuance of the doctrine and diſcipline of the church of England now eſtabliſhed; from which we will not endure any varying, or departing in the leaſt degree.

That for the preſent, though ſome differences have been ill raiſed, yet we take comfort this, that all clergymen within our realm have always moſt willingly ſubſcribed to the articles eſtabliſhed; which is an argument to us, that they all agree in the true uſual literal meaning of the ſaid articles, and that even in thoſe curious points, in which the preſent differences lie, men of all ſorts take the articles of the church of England to be for them; which is an argument again that none of them intend any deſertion of the articles eſtabliſhed.

That therefore in theſe both curious and unhappy differences, which have for ſo many hundred years, in different times and places, exerciſed the church of Chriſt; we will that all further curious ſearch be laid aſide, and theſe diſputes ſhut up in God's promiſes, as they be generally ſet forth to us in the holy ſcriptures, and the general meaning of the articles of the church of England according to them. And that no man hereafter ſhall either print or preach to draw the article aſide any way, but ſhall ſubmit to it in the plain and full meaning thereof; and ſhall not put his own ſenſe or comment to be the meaning of the article, but ſhall take it in the literal and grammatical ſenſe.

That if any public reader in either of our univerſities, or any head or maſter of a college, or any other perſon reſpectively in either of them ſhall affix any new ſenſe to any article, or ſhall publicly read, determine, or hold any public diſputation, or ſuffer any ſuch to be held either way in either of the univerſities or colleges reſpectively; or if any divine in the univerſities ſhall preach or print any thing either way, other than is already eſtabliſhed in convocation with our royal aſſent; he, or they the offenders, ſhall be liable to our diſpleaſure and the church's cenſure in our commiſſion eccleſiaſtical, as well as any other; and we will ſee there ſhall be due execution upon them.

A proclamation for the better ordering of those, who repair to the court for the cure of the disease called the King's Evil. W. Becket's Enquiry about the healing the King's Evil.

WHEREAS by the grace and blessing of God the kings and queens of this realm, for many ages past, have had the happiness by their sacred touch and invocation of the name of God to cure those that are afflicted with the disease called the King's Evil; and his now most excellent majesty in no less measure than any of his royal predecessors hath had good success herein; and in his most gracious and pious disposition is as ready and willing, as any king or queen of this realm ever was, in any thing to relieve the distresses and necessities of his good subjects; yet in his princely wisdom foreseeing that in this, as in all other things, order is to be observed, and fit times are necessary to be appointed for the performing this great work of charity; his most excellent majesty doth hereby publish and declare his royal will and pleasure to be; that whereas heretofore the usual times of presenting such persons to his majesty for this purpose were Easter and Whitsonide, that from henceforth the times shall be Easter and Michaelmas, as times more convenient both for the temperance of the season, and in respect of any contagion, which may happen in this near access to his majesty's sacred person; and his majesty doth accordingly will and command, that from the time of publishing this proclamation, none presume to repair to his majesty's royal court to be healed of that disease before the feast of St. Michael now next coming. April the 6th M.DC.XXX.

The ceremonies for the healing of them that be diseased with the King's Evil, as they were practised in the time of king Henry VII.

First, the king kneeling shall begin and say:

In nomine Patris, et Filii, et Spiritus Sancti, Amen.

And as he hath said that, he shall say:
Benedicite.

The chaplain kneeling before the king, having a stole about his neck, shall answer and say:

Dominus sit in corde tuo et labiis tuis, ad confitendum omnia peccata tua, in nomine Patris, et Filii, et Spiritus Sancti, Amen.

Or else to say:

Jesus nos exaudiat, in nomine Patris, et Filii, et Spiritus Sancti, Amen.

Then by and by the king shall say:

Confiteor Deo, beatæ Mariæ virgini, omnibus sanctis, et vobis, quia peccavi nimis in cogitatione, locutione, et opere mea culpa; precor sanctam Mariam, omnes sanctos Dei, et vos orare pro me.

The chaplain shall answer and say:

Misereatur vestri omnipotens Deus, et dimittat vobis omnia peccata vestra, liberet vos ab omni malo, salvet et confirmet in bono, et ad vitam perducatur aeternam, Amen.

Abolutionem et remissionem omnium peccatorum vestrorum, spatium verae poenitentiae et emendationem vitae, gratiam et consolationem Sancti Spiritus tribuat vobis omnipotens et misericors Dominus, Amen.

This done, the chaplain shall say:

Dominus vobiscum.

The king shall answer:

Et cum spiritu tuo.

The chaplain:

Sequentia sancti evangelii secundum Marcum.

The

The king shall answer:

Gloria tibi, Domine.

The chaplain shall read the gospel:

In illo tempore, recumbentibus undecim discipulis apparuit illis Jesus, et exprobravit incredulitatem eorum et duritiem cordis; quia iis, qui viderant eum resurrexisse, non crediderunt. Et dixit eis, Euntes in mundum universum praedicate evangelium omni creaturae. Qui crediderit et baptizatus fuerit, salvus erit, qui vero non crediderit, condemnabitur. Signa autem eos, qui crediderint, haec sequentur: in nomine meo daemones ejicient; linguis loquentur novis; serpentes tollent; et si mortiferum quid biberint, non eis nocebit: super aegros manus imponent et bene habebunt.

Which clause "Super aegros" etc. the chaplain repeats as long as the king is handling the sick person. And in the time of the repeating the aforesaid words "Super aegros" etc. the clerk of the closet shall kneel before the king, having the sick person upon the right hand, and the sick person shall likewise kneel before the king: and then the king shall lay his hand upon the fore of the sick person.

This done, the chaplain shall make an end of the gospel; and in the mean time the surgeon shall lead away the sick person from the king.

Et Dominus quidem Jesus, postquam locutus est eis, assumptus est in caelum, et sedet a dextris Dei. Illi autem profecti praedicaverunt ubique, Domino cooperante et sermonem confirmante sequentibus signis.

Then the chaplain shall begin to say:

Dominus vobiscum.

The king shall answer:

Et cum spiritu tuo.

The chaplain:

Initium sancti evangelii secundum Johannem.

The king shall say:

Gloria tibi Domine.

The chaplain then shall say this gospel following:

In principio erat Verbum, et Verbum erat apud Deum, et Deus erat Verbum. Hoc erat in principio apud Deum. Omnia per ipsum facta sunt, et sine ipso factum est nihil, quod factum est: in ipso vita erat, et vita erat lux hominum. Et lux in tenebris lucet, et tenebrae eam non comprehenderunt. Fuit homo missus a Deo, cui nomen erat Johannes. Hic venit in testimonium, ut testimonium perhiberet de lumine, ut omnes crederent per illum. Non erat ille lux, sed ut testimonium perhiberet de lumine. Erat lux vera, quae illuminat omnem hominem venientem in hunc mundum.

Which last clause "Erat lux vera" etc. shall still be repeated so long as the king shall be crossing the fore of the sick person with an angel noble; and the sick person to have the same angel hanged about his neck, and to wear it until he be full whole.

This done, the surgeon shall lead away the sick person as he did before, and then the chaplain shall make an end of the gospel.

In mundo erat, et mundus per ipsum factus est, et mundus eum non cognovit. In propria venit, et sui eum non receperunt. Quotquot autem receperunt eum, dedit eis potestatem filios Dei fieri, his qui credunt in nomine ejus; qui non ex sanguinibus, neque ex voluntate carnis, neque ex voluntate viri, sed ex Deo nati sunt. Et Verbum caro factum est, et habitavit in nobis; et vidimus gloriam ejus, gloriam quasi unigeniti a Patre, plenum gratiae et veritatis.

Then the chaplain shall say:

Sit nomen Domini benedictum.

The king shall answer:

Et hoc nunc et usque in seculum.

Then shall the chaplain say this collect following, praying for the sick person or persons: Domine exaudi orationem meam.

The king shall answer:

Et clamor meus ad te veniet.

Oremus.

Omnipotens sempiterne Deus, salus aeterna credentium, exaudi nos pro famulis tuis, pro quibus misericordiae tuae imploramus auxilium, ut, reddita sibi sanitate, gratiarum tibi in ecclesia tua referant actiones. Per Christum Dominum nostrum, Amen.

This prayer is to be said secretly after the sick persons are departed from the king, at his pleasure.

Dominator Domine Deus omnipotens, cujus benignitate caeci vident, surdi audiunt, muti loquuntur, claudi ambulant, leprosi mundantur, omnes infirmorum curantur languores, et a quo solo donum sanationis humano generi etiam tribuitur et tanta gratia, pro incredibili tua erga hoc regnum bonitate, regibus ejusdem concessa est, ut sola manuum illorum impositione morbus gravissimus foetidissimusque depellatur; concede propitius ut tibi propterea gratias agamus, et pro isto singulari beneficio in nos collato, non nobisipsis sed nomini tuo assidue gloriam demus, nosque sic ad pietatem semper exerceamus, ut tuam nobis donatam gratiam non solum diligenter conservare, sed indies magis magisque adaugere laboremus; et praesta ut quorumcunque corporibus, in nomine tuo, manus imposuerimus, hac tua virtute in illis operante et nobis ministrantibus, ad pristinam sanitatem restituantur, eam conservent, et pro eadem tibi, ut summo medico et omnium morborum depulsi, perpetuo nobiscum gratias agant, sicque deinceps vitam instituant, ut non corpus solum ab infirmitate, sed anima etiam a peccato omnino sanata videatur. Per Dominum nostrum Jesum Christum Filium tuum, qui tecum vivit et regnat in unitate Sancti Spiritus per omnia secula seculorum, Amen.

King Charles's letter to the archbishop of Canterbury touching the patronage of benefices. Reg. II. Abbot fol. 131. b.

CHARLES R.

MOST reverend father in God, right trusty and well beloved counsellor, we greet you well. Whereas we are certainly informed, that since the 30th year of our late queen Elizabeth many usurpations have been made upon rectories, vicarages, and other ecclesiastical promotions, the patronage whereof were the undoubted right of the crown of England, and that it is at this day frequent and usual for many, especially such as are owners of manors, rectories, or towns, to present unto parsonages, vicarages, and other ecclesiastical benefices, whereof we are right and undoubted patron, under pretence that the advowsons thereof are appendant to the said manors, rectories, and towns, albeit many of the said advowsons were never appendant to any manor, or other possession, and many of the said advowsons are expressly excepted in the letters patents, by which the said manors, rectories and towns are claimed and enjoyed, and procure their clerks to be speedily instituted and inducted thereunto, before we or our officers have knowlege, that the churches are become void; by which means it happeneth, that no presentation at all is sought for from us, but the said advowsons are wholly concealed from us, and kept by unjust usurpers: and albeit we do take notice thereof and present thereunto, yet the clerks presented by us to the same are put to such excessive charges in recovering the same, that many of them for avoiding the charge, desert both the suit and our title, whereby we have suffered much disherison, and are like daily to suffer more, unless due care be had to ordain a remedy therein, whereby we and our successors shall be disabled to prefer so many able and well deserving churchmen, as of right we ought, and much desire to do; which in the end will tend to the great prejudice of the church and true religion; all which might easily be prevented, if the institutions of the clerks of such usurpers were staid, until we or our officers had notice of the avoidance: we do therefore hereby will and require you, that upon all institutions to be made hereafter by you to any church livings, before you give such institutions at the presentation of any our subjects, you cause diligent search to be made by your registers or other officers, by whose presentation the last incumbent of the said benefice was promoted thereunto; and if by such search or otherwise you shall find or know, that he had the same as of the patronage and presentation of us, or of any other our predecessors, that then you forbear to give institution to our prejudice, and cause some of your officers to put in a legal and orderly caveat on our behalf, in stay of the said institution, and that you give speedy notice as well of the avoidance of the church, as of such your proceedings by your letters either to the lord keeper of our great seal of England, or to our attorney general, for such course to be taken for preserving of our inheritance and right, as to justice shall appertain. Nevertheless for avoiding all mistakings and misinterpretations of our true meaning herein, we do not intend hereby to prejudice or hinder the right of any our subjects by colour of any presentations made by us, or any of our predecessors, by reason of lapse, simony, outlawry, or other like title, which serveth but for that time or turn only; neither do we mean to prejudice or hinder the right of any our subjects that can produce any sufficient grant, or letters patents subsequent to the presentation of the last incumbent, whose institution and induction gave us a full possession of the patronage, from which we ought not to be removed but by petition of right, or other legal way, to which it is just, that our council learned be called. And to the intent we may take a course for the recovering and recontinuing to our crown those advowsons, which have been in times past so unjustly usurped upon; we do therefore will and require you, that you cause diligent search to be made by your registers or other officers, what rectories, vicarages, and other benefices in the said 30th year of the said late queen, or any time since, were held and enjoyed by the incumbents thereof, by or under the patronage and presentation of the said late queen, our dear father, or ourself, and have since those presentations been presented unto by others, and when, and by whom those presentations were made; and that you make certificate what you find therein to the lord keeper of our great seal of England, or to our attorney general, before the 10th day of November next, whereby we may take a course to be restored to such of the said advowsons, as are wrongfully kept from us without any letters patents, or other good right. And as it is our pleasure that you observe this course within your own diocese and peculiars; so we do hereby will and require you by your letters to take order with all the bishops and others within your province, to whom the institutions of clerks do belong, that they from time to time observe the same course in all respects, and make the like certificates for all matters within their several dioceses and jurisdictions as fully and amply, as yourself are to do within your diocese and peculiars. And of these our commandments we require you and them to have an especial care, as a matter much importing the church and us. Given under our signet at our palace of Westm. the 17th day of July, in the eighth year of our reign.

The archbishop's letter about the ministering and receiving of the sacrament in the church of Crayford in Kent. Reg. II. Abbot fol. 143. b.

GEORGE, by the providence of God archbishop of Cant. primate and metropolitan of all England, to our well beloved in Christ the parson, churchwardens, and other the parishioners and inhabitants of the parish of Crayford in the county of Kent and deanry of Shoreham, of the peculiar and immediate jurisdiction of us, and of our cathedral and metropolitical church of Christ Cant. and to all other persons whatsoever, to whom these presents shall come, or may any way concern, greeting in our Lord God everlasting. Whereas upon some difference arising among you about the decent and reverend ministering and receiving of the holy communion in the chancel of the said church of Crayford, we upon the petition of you the parson did refer the viewing of the said church, and examination of the said difference unto Sr. Nathaniel Brent, knight, our vicar general, who having viewed the said church in the presence of you the said parson, churchwardens, and some others of the said parish, hath certified us what seems to him upon the said view to be most decent and convenient for the most reverend and orderly receiving of the holy communion in the said chancel of the said church.

Now know you that upon the relation of the said Sr. Nathaniel, as also upon a mature and deliberate hearing of the parties interested in the said difference, in our manor house of Lambeth in the county of Surry upon the 21. day of May, anno Domini M.DC.XXXIII. in the presence of our said vicar general, and divers others, and also in the presence of Thomas Tane clerk, the now incumbent parson of the parish church of Crayford, and Thomas Andrewes, John Ludlowe, churchwardens, and Joseph Bingham, Thomas King, and John Kettle, parishioners of the said parish of Crayford, and others then and there present, have ordered and decreed, and by these presents do order and decree as followeth; "videlicet:" That the parishioners and inhabitants of the said parish of Crayford, and others intending hereafter to receive the holy communion there, shall repair unto the two ascents, or foot paces in the chancel before the communion table, and there mats being laid upon the said two ascents, or foot paces, to kneel upon, and mats being also laid on either side above the said steps to kneel upon (if by reason of the number of communicants it seems requisite, the two two ascents or foot paces being first filled) they shall in decent and reverend manner humbly kneeling upon their knees on the said two ascents or foot paces, receive the holy communion and sacrament of the body and blood of our Lord and saviour Jesus Christ; and after the first company hath received the same, they to return to other seats and places in the said church; and to give way for a second company to receive in like manner; and the second after they have received in like manner, to return and give way for a third company, and the third to the fourth and so successively until all the communicants there have received the holy communion in manner and form aforesaid. And we do require you the minister of Crayford aforesaid, that upon some Sundays or holydays, in the time of divine service, you do publish and declare this our order and decree to the parishioners of the said parish of Crayford; and we admonish you, the parishioners of Crayford, that upon notice of the premisses, you be obedient and conformable thereunto, as you will answer the contrary at your peril. The king's letter to the archbishop of Canterbury about his translation.

Reg. Laud fol. 207. b.

MOST reverend father in God, and right trusty and entirely beloved counsellor, we greet you well. Out of our gracious opinion of your worth and care both for the good of God's church and our service, we have given order for your translation to the see of Cant. and we think fit for the upholding of the honour and government of the said church, hereby to require you, in the form of your translation, to use all such ceremonies and offices, and to carry your self with the same state and dignity, and to assume such privileges and preeminences, as your predecessors in that see have used and enjoyed heretofore. This we expect at your hands as agreeable to the trust we repose in you. Given under our signet at our court at Denmark House this 8th day of September, in the ninth year of our reign.

The king's instructions for the most reverend father in God our right trusty and right entirely beloved counsellor William, lord archbishop of Canterbury, concerning certain orders to be observed and put in execution by the several bishops of his province, anno Domini, M.DC.XXXIII. Ex MSS. Harleynae Bibl. lib. 61. B. fol. 19. et Rymer. Foed. vol. XIX. p. 470.

I. THAT the lords the bishops respectively be commanded to their several sees, there to keep residence, excepting those which are in necessary attendance at our court.

II. That none of them reside upon his land or lease, that he hath purchased, nor on his commendam, if he hold any, but in one of his episcopal houses, and that he waste not the woods where any are left.

III. That they give charge in their triennial visitation, and at other convenient times, both by themselves and the archdeacons, that our declaration for settling all questions in difference be strictly observed by all parties.

IV. That there be a special care taken by them all, that their ordinations be solemn and not of unworthy persons.

V. That they likewise take great care concerning the lecturers, within their several dioceses, for whom we give these special directions following:

1. That in all parishes the afternoon sermons be turned into catechising, by questions and answers, where and whensoever there is not some great cause apparent to break this ancient and laudable order.

2. That every bishop take care in his diocese, that all lecturers do read divine service, according to the liturgy printed by authority, in their surplices and hoods before the lecture.

3. That where a lecture is set up in a market town, it may be read by a company of grave and orthodox divines near adjoining and of the same diocese, and that they ever preach in such seemly habits as belong to their degrees, and not in cloaks.

4. That if a corporation maintain a single lecturer, he be not suffered to preach, till he professes his willingness to take upon him a living with cure of souls within that corporation, and that he do actually take such benefice or cure, so soon as it shall be fairly procured for him.

VI. That the bishops do countenance and encourage the grave and orthodox divines of their clergy; and that they use means by some of the clergy or others to have knowledge, how both the lecturers and preachers within their several dioceses behave themselves in their sermons, that so they may take present order for any abuse accordingly.

VII. That the bishops suffer none under no blemen or men qualified by law, to keep any private chaplain in his house.

VIII. That they take special care that divine service be diligently frequented as well for prayers and catechism as sermons; and that particular notice be taken of all such as absent themselves as recusants or otherwise.

IX. That no bishop whatsoever, who by our grace and good opinion of his service shall be nominated by us to another bishoprick, shall from the day of our nomination presume to make any lease for three lives or one and twenty years, or a concurrent lease, or any ways renew any estate, or cut any wood or timber, but merely receive the rents due, and quit the place: for we think it a hateful thing, that any man's preferment to a better bishoprick should almost undo the successor. And if any shall presume to break this order, we will refuse him our royal assent, and keep him at the place, which he hath so abused.

X. That every bishop give his metropolitan a strict account yearly of their obedience to our late letters prohibiting them to change any leases from years into lives, and that they fail not to certify, if they find that the dean or dean and chapter, or any archdeacon or prebendary etc. within their several dioceses have at any time broken our command in any particular contained in the aforesaid letters.

XI. That every bishop to whom in regard of the small revenue of his bishoprick, we either have already or shall hereafter not only give power but command to receive and hold as in commendam any lease expired, or near expiring, and belonging to the see, or any ecclesiastical benefice or benefices or other promotions with cure or without, being in his or their own gift by letters given under our signet and sent to those bishops respectively, do likewise give an account yearly to his metropolitan, that he doth not put any of the aforesaid benefices or other preferment out of his commendam to give to any son, kinsman, friend, or other upon any pretence whatsoever, thereby to frustrate our gracious intention to the bishops succeeding to those several sees.

XII. That every bishop respectively do likewise in his yearly account to his metropolitan give notice of any notable alteration or other accident within his diocese, which may any ways concern either the doctrine or the discipline of the church established.

XIII. That whereas John Bancroft, doctor in divinity, and bishop of Oxford, hath very worthily at his own proper cost and charges built a house for himself and the bishops of Oxford successively by both our leave and encouragement upon the vicarage of Cudsdon near Oxford, which vicarage is in the patronage and gift of him and his successors; and whereas our further will and pleasure is, that the said house together with the vicarage aforesaid shall ever be held in commendam by the bishops of Oxford successively; that therefore the said bishop for the time being do yearly give his particular account of his holding both the house and benefice aforesaid, to the end that we and our successors may upon all occasions be put in mind of keeping that house and vicarage to the see of Oxford at all times of change, when or howsoever that bishoprick shall become vacant or void.

XIV. Lastly we command every bishop respectively to give his account in writing to his metropolitan of all these our instructions, or as many of them as may concern him, at or before the tenth day of December yearly, and likewise that you out of them make a brief of your whole province, and present it to us yearly by the second day of January following; that so we may see how the church is governed, and our commands obeyed: and hereof in any wise fail you not.

Rushw. Coll. vol. II. f. 213. Reg. Laud fol. 191. b.

"SALUTEM in Christo." My very good lord. His majesty hath been often and much troubled upon complaints, which have been made unto him by the lords and other men of quality, concerning the multitude of both unlearned and unworthy ministers, which pester the church and are always the causes of great scandal, and too often of schism and divisions therein, and some of them are forced, to the shame of themselves and their calling, for want of means, to beg for their living, and yet are daily made in great numbers, and that directly against the canon of the church, which requires that no man should be made a minister "sine titulo." For remedy of this great abuse and wrong to the church, his majesty has directed his letters to me, and by them required me to call all such bishops to me, as were then in or about the city, and after consultation with them, to send my letters to every several bishop within the province, to require obedience to the canon of the church, and his majesty's directions according to it; the tenor of which his majesty's letter followeth: Most reverend father in God, right trusty and right entirely beloved counsellor, we greet you well. There is nothing more dear to us, than the preservation of true religion, as it is now settled and established in this our kingdom, to the honour of God, and the great comfort of ourself, and our loyal people; and there can nothing more conduce to the advancement thereof, than the strict observation of such canons of the church, as concern those, that are to take orders in their several times, more especially to the keeping of that particular canon, which enjoineth, that no man be made a priest or a minister without a title: for we find that many not so qualified, do by favour or other means procure themselves to be ordained, and afterwards for want of means, wander up and down to the scandal of their calling; or to get maintenance, fall upon some courses as are most unfit for them, both by humouring their auditories, and other ways altogether unsufferable: we have therefore thought fit, and we do hereby straitly require and charge you to call such bishops to you, as are now present in or near our city of London, and to acquaint them with this our resolution; and further, that you fail not in the beginning of the next term to give notice of this our will and pleasure openly in our high commission court, and that you call into our said court every bishop respectively, that shall presume to give orders to any man, that hath not a title, and there to censure him as the canon aforesaid doth enjoin, which is to maintain the party so ordered till he give him a title, and with what other censure you in justice shall think fit. And our further will is, that nothing shall be reputed a title to enable a man for orders, but that which is so by the ancient course of the church, and the canon law, so far forth as that law is received in this our church of England. And as you must not fail in these our directions, nor in any part of them, so we expect that you give us from time to time a strict account of your proceedings in the same. Given under our signet at our palace of Westm. the nineteenth day of September, in the ninth year of our reign.

According to these letters, I am to pray and require you, that at all times of ordination you be very careful to admit none into holy orders, but such men, as for life and learning are fit, and which have a title for their maintenance, according to the laws and ancient practice of the church. And his majesty hath further commanded me to advertise your lordship, that he will not fail to call for an account of these his letters both of me and you. Thus not doubting but you will have a special care both of the good of the church, and his majesty's contentment herein, I leave you to the grace of God, and rest

An order of council for placing the communion table in St. Gregory's church.
Rushw. Coll. vol. II. f. 207.

At Whitehall November 3. M.DC.XXXIII.

THIS day was debated before his majesty, sitting in council, the question of difference, which grew about the removing the communion table in St. Gregory's church, near the cathedral church of St. Paul, from the middle of the chancel to the upper end, and there placed altarwise, in such manner as it standeth in the said cathedral, and mother church, as also in other cathedrals and in his majesty's own chapel, and as is consonant to the practice of approved antiquity; which removing and placing of it in that sort was done by order of the dean and chapter of St. Paul's, who are ordinaries thereof, as was avowed before his majesty by Dr. King, and Dr. Montford, two of the prebends there; yet some few of the parishioners, being but five in number, did complain of this act, by appeal to the court of Arches, pretending that the book of common prayer and the 82^d canon do give permission to place the communion table, where it may stand with most fitness and convenience. Now his majesty having heard a particular relation, made by the council of both parties of all the carriage and proceedings in this cause, was pleased to declare his dislike of all innovation, and receding from ancient constitutions, grounded upon just and warrantable reasons, especially in matters concerning ecclesiastical orders and governments; knowing how easily men are drawn to affect novelties, and how soon weak judgments in such cases may be overtaken and abused. And he was also pleas'd to observe, that if those few parishioners might have their wills, the difference thereby from the aforesaid cathedral mother church, by which all other churches depending thereon ought to be be guided, would be the more notorious, and give more subject of discourse and disputes, that might be spared by reason of the nearness of St. Gregory's, standing close to the wall thereof. And likewise for so much as concerns the liberty of the said common-prayer book or canon, for placing the communion table in any church or chapel with more conveniency; that liberty is not so to be understood, as if it were ever left to the discretion of the parish, much less to the particular fancy of any humorous person, but to the judgment of the ordinary, to whose place and function it doth properly belong to give direction in that point, both for the thing itself, and the time when, and how long, as he may find cause. Upon which consideration his majesty declared himself, that he well approved and confirmed the act of the said ordinary, and also gave commandment, that if those few parishioners beforementioned do proceed in their said appeal, then the dean of the Arches, who was then attending at the hearing of the cause, should confirm the said order of the aforesaid dean and chapter.

The king's majesty's declaration to his subjects concerning lawful sports to be used.

By the king.

OUR dear father of blessed memory in his return from Scotland, coming thro' Lancashire, found that his subjects were debarr'd from lawful recreations upon Sundays after evening prayers ended, and upon holydays: and he prudently consider'd, that if these times were taken from them, the meaner sort, who labour hard all the week, should have no recreations at all, to refresh their spirits. And after his return, he further saw that his loyal subjects in all other parts of the kingdom did suffer in the same kind, tho' perhaps not in the same degree, and did therefore in his princely wisdom publish a declaration to all his loving subjects concerning lawful sports to be used at such times, which was printed and published by his royal commandment in the year M.DC.XVIII. in the tenor, which hereafter followeth:

By the king.

Whereas upon our return the last year out of Scotland we did publish our pleasure touching the recreations of our people in those parts under our hand; for some causes us thereunto moving we have thought good to command these our directions, then given in Lancashire, with a few words thereunto added, and most applicable to these parts of the realms, to be publish'd to all our subjects.

Whereas we did justly in our progress thro' Lancashire rebuke some puritans and precise people, and took order, that the like unlawful carriage should not be used by any of them hereafter, in the prohibiting and unlawful punishing of our good people for using their lawful recreations, and honest exercises upon Sundays and other holydays after the afternoon sermon or service; we now find that two sorts of people, wherewith that country is much infected (we mean papists and puritans) have maliciously traduced and calumniated those our just and honourable proceedings. And therefore lest our reputation might upon the one side (tho' innocently) have some aspersion laid upon it, and that upon the other part our good people in that country be misled by the mistaking and misrepresentation of our meaning; we have therefore thought good hereby to clear and make our pleasure to be manifested to all our good people in those parts.

It is true, that at our first entry to this crown and kingdom we were informed, and that too truly, that our county in Lancashire abounded more in popish recusants, than any county of England; and hath still continued to our great regret with little amendment, save that now of late in our last riding thro' our said county we find both by the report of the judges, and of the bishop of the diocese, that there is some amendment now daily beginning, which is no small contentment to us.

The report of this growing amendment amongst them made us the more sorry, when with our own ears we heard the general complaint of our people, that they were barred from all lawful recreation and exercise upon the Sunday afternoon, after the ending of all divine service, which cannot but produce two evils; the one the hindring of the conversion of many, whom their priests will take occasion hereby to vex, persuading them that no honest mirth or recreation is lawful on those days, which cannot but breed a great discontent in our people's hearts, especially of such as are peradventure upon the point of turning; the other inconvenience is, that this prohibition barreth the common and meaner sort of people from using such exercises as may make their bodies more able for war, whenever we or our successors shall have occasion to use them; and in place thereof, set up filthy tiplings and drunkenness, and breeds a number of idle and discontented speeches in their alehouses. For when shall the common people have leave to exercise, if not upon Sundays and holydays, seeing they must live by their labour, and win their living in all working days?

Our express pleasure therefore is, that the laws of our kingdom and canons of our church be as well observed in that county, as in all other places of this our kingdom. And on the other part that no lawful recreations shall be barred to our good people, which shall not tend to the breach of our foresaid laws, and canons of our church: which to express more particularly, our pleasure is, that the bishops and all other inferior clergymen and churchwardens shall for their their parts be careful and diligent both to instruct the ignorant, and convince and reform them that are misled in religion, presenting them that will not conform themselves but obstinately stand out to our judges and justices: whom we likewise command to put the laws in due execution against them. Our pleasure likewise is, that the bishop of the diocese take the like strait order with all the puritans and precisians within the same, either constraining them to conform themselves, or to leave the county, according to the laws of our kingdom, and canon of our church, and so to strike equally on both hands against the contemners of our authority and adversaries of our church. And as for our good people's lawful recreation, our pleasure likewise is, that after the end of divine service our good people be not disturbed, letted, or discouraged from any lawful recreation, such as dancing, either men or women, archery for men, leaping, vaulting or any other such harmless recreation, nor from having of May-games, Whitsun-ales, and morris-dances, and the setting up of May-poles, and other sports therewith used, so as the same be had in due and convenient time without impediment or neglect of divine service: and that women shall have leave to carry rushes to church for the decorating of it, according to their old custom. But withal we do here account still as prohibited all unlawful games to be used on Sundays only as bear and bull baitings, interludes, and at all times in the meaner sort of people by law prohibited bowling.

And likewise we barr from the benefit and liberty all such known recusants, either men or women, as will abstain from coming to church or divine service, being therefore unworthy of any lawful recreation after the said service, that will not first come to church and serve God. Prohibiting in like sort the said recreations to any that, tho' conform in religion, are not present in the church at the service of God, before their going to the said recreations. Our pleasure likewise is, that they, to whom it belongeth in office, shall present and sharply punish all such, as in abuse of this our liberty will use their exercises before the end of all divine services for that day. And we likewise straitly command, that every person shall resort to his own parish church to hear divine service, and each parish by itself to use the said recreations after divine service. Prohibiting likewise any offensive weapons to be carried or used in the said times of recreations. And our pleasure is, that this our declaration shall be published by order from the bishop of the diocese through all the parish churches, and that both our judges of our circuits, and our justices of our peace be informed thereof. Given at our manor of Greenwich the 24th day of May, in the 16th year our reign of England, France, and Ireland, and of Scotland the 5th.

Now out of a like pious care for the service of God, and for suppressing of any humours that oppose truth, and for the ease, comfort, and recreation of our well deserving people, we do ratify and publish this our blessed father's declaration, the rather because of late in some counties of our kingdom we find, that under pretence of taking away abuses there hath been a general forbidding not only of ordinary meetings, but of the feasts of the dedication of the churches, commonly call'd "Wakes." Now our express will and pleasure it, that the feasts with others shall be observed, and that our justices of the peace in their several divisions shall look to it, both that all disorders there may be prevented or punished, and that all neighbourhood and freedom with manlike and lawful exercises be used. And we farther command our justices of the assize in their several circuits to see that no man do trouble or molest any of our loyal and dutiful people in or for their lawful recreations, having first done their duty to God, and continuing in obedience to us and our laws. And of this we command all our judges, justices of the peace, as well within liberties as without, mayors, bayliffs, constables, and other officers to take notice of and see observed, as they tender our displeasure. And we further will that publication of this our command be made by order from the bishops through all the parish churches of their several dioceses respectively. Given at our palace of Westminster the 18th day of October, in the 9th year of our reign.

God save the king.

The archbishop of Canterbury's letter for a contribution to St. Pauls. Ibid. fol. 195. b.

"SALUTEM in Christo." My very good lord. Your lordship cannot but know, that his majesty taking into his princely care the decayed and ruinous estate of the cathedral church of St. Paul in London, was graciously pleased not many years since to grant a commission towards the repair thereof; the copy of which, being first drawn by his majesty's Attorney general, was afterwards reviewed by my lord keeper, and by the joint consent of my predecessor, and all the lord's of his majesty's most honourable privy council: it was then thought fit, that the clergy, bishops and deans excepted, which give annually, should contribute together with the laity, to the end that their good example might the better move them to the furtherance of so necessary and pious a work. But this course, it seems, took not that good effect which was wished, divers of the clergy disliking it: wherefore upon the renewing of the said commission, it is thought expedient to alter the former way, and to leave the clergy wholly to their ordinary, not doubting, but that by your lordship's good example and persuasion they will be very forward in advancing that good work. These are therefore heartily to pray your lordship to take special care herein, and by yourself or your archdeacons to call the clergy of your diocese together accordingly at such time or times, as your lordship shall approve to be most convenient, and to give them thanks, that have already contributed, not pressing any man beyond that which he shall please voluntarily and cheerfully to give. So assuring myself that you will use all effectual means with those of your lordship's diocese of London, and that they of themselves will be very ready to give their utmost assistance to a work of that nature and consequence, that so nearly concerns the service of God, and the honour of this church, and nation; with remembrance of my love, I leave you to God's grace, and rest

The king's letter to the merchants for bringing in of Arabic books. Ibid. fol. 196. a.

TRUSTY and well beloved, we greet you well, etc. We have of late taken into our princely care how to furnish a Greek press within our kingdom, that such of our subjects, as are learned in that language, might be able to set forth some of those divers manuscripts in Greek, with which our own library and the libraries in our universities are well furnished; which course, if it be well followed, as we doubt not but it will, must needs bring in a great deal of profit and honour both to church and state. With the consideration of this concerning the Greek, we took into our care also a great difficulty, which yet we conceive may be well mastered, if it be providently looked unto. There is a great deal of learning, and that very fit and necessary to be known, that is written in Arabic, and there is a great defect in both our universities; very few spending any of their time to attain to skill either in that or other eastern languages; which we impute not so much to the fault of the students there, as partly partly to the great scarcity and want of Arabic and Persian books, in which they might spend their pains; and partly to their lack both of opportunity and means to provide themselves with such books. While we took this into our royal consideration, and withal how useful and necessary the knowledge of those languages would be for our subjects; we could not but think and advise, which way some better store of Arabic and Persian books might be gotten and brought unto us. After long deliberation, we could not find any way so good and likely to be successful, as the employing of your service which trade thereabout; and because we could do it with little or no burthen at all unto you, we have thought of this course, which we pray and require you to follow carefully and with effect; namely, that every ship of yours at every voyage that it makes, should bring home one Arabic or Persian book to be delivered presently to the master of the company, and by him carried or sent to the lord archbishop of Cant. for the time being, who shall dispose of them as we in our wisdom shall think fit. And we doubt not, but you will be careful at all times readily to perform this service, which so much tends to our own honour, the advancement of learning, and the good of our people (the value of one book being not a considerable thing) and always provided that they bring any other books, besides the Alkorans, because we have choice of them already. The difference between the archbishop of Canterbury and bishop of Lincoln about visitation. Reg. Laud fol. 112. b.

To the right worshipful his very worthy friend William Noye, Esq; his majesty's Attorney general. With my heartiest commendations and respects unto you, I beseech you to be pleased to bestow a little pains in composing a difference between, not the bishop, but the bishoprick of Lincoln, and my lord's grace of Cant. concerning a metropolitanical visitation, which I being thereunto fairly and justly invited by his grace, do very willingly submit unto your opinion, as of one most able and likely to limit out those rights and privileges in either see, which shall be esteemed the more behoveful for the service of his most excellent majesty, the indubitate sovereign lord and patron of both churches.

I am very unwilling to dispute his grace's right of visiting my diocese, as well as any other of his province metropolitanically; however it may appear that my predecessors have questioned the same in all ages, not only by the records of Cant. and Lincoln, but also by several books in print, which your self may have perused, as "Math. Paris. Antiquitates Britannicae, Harpsfeild's Ecclesiastical history, and Godwin," and divers others.

Nor am I so versed in antiquity as to be able to give a reason hereof, save only this, that metropolitanical visitations have not been of use in England, as long as in other parts of Christendom, and were conceived at first to be encroachments, and that the bishops of Lincoln heretofore were great men, and the bishoprick great in means and extent, as containing all or most of the kingdom of the Mercians, no way subordinate to those other kingdoms, where the archbishoprick was then seated. And when this see was removed from Dorchester, the principal abode of the bishop was fixed in Lincolnshire, most of which county was of the jurisdiction of the archbishop of York; the which jurisdiction William Rufus bought from the archbishop with change of lands, and Bloet, bishop of Lincoln, from the king with ready money, as appears by good records. However certain it is, that in Groshead's time this bishoprick had never been metropolitanically visited, but that upon a noise of such an intention in the archbishop, he procured a bull to free all the dioceses in the province from the like innovations, otherwise than with consent of the suffragans themselves, which bull is recorded in many registries of this province.

Long after Grosheads age the diocese hath been sometimes visited, but never without opposition of the bishops for the time being, by appeals, and otherwise; howbeit the archbishops had strengthened themselves with papal bulls, royal mandates, and legatine powers, to the which only the bishops submitted; and yet was not the episcopal jurisdiction inhibited or taken away, which is no legal part of a visitation, but a late incroachment of the subordinate visitors, in any one of all those metropolitanical, or rather papal, royal, and legatine visitations, ut apparet apud acta.

Marry for this last hundred years, a little after the beginning whereof, to wit in primo of Edw. VI. the lands and means being taken away from this bishoprick, and the bishop left to live upon the fines of testaments and jurisdiction, for which he payeth first fruits, tenths, and subsidies, no one archbishop did ever offer to visit this diocese until this present year; so that all the visitations attempted upon this diocese quocunque titulo, fall out to be between the year M.ccc.xix. and the year M.d.xxxiv. There was not any one before or any one after, and in that space of time of seventeen archbishops of Cant. scarce five did upon any title or pretence whatsoever offer to visit the diocese of Lincoln, save in vacations only; and these particulars, if you shall hold them material shall be made good by books and records.

Now

488 Difference between the archb. of Cant. and the bp. of Lincoln.

Now my humble suit unto his grace is not to renounce his right of metropolitanical visitation, but to qualify and sweeten the same with some one or other of these modifications, which I conceive to be according to the laws ecclesiastical.

I. That when his grace doth visit, he would be pleased, as he hath already received his majesty's direction for it, to take also his majesty's letter, as archbishop Cranmer did, to assist the same, whereby both our rights may be saved and preserved.

II. That his grace would forbear it for this year, in regard it is my triennial visitation, at which time I am informed the canon-law directs archbishops to spare the visiting metropolitanically.

III. That if his grace would not be pleased to put it off until the next year, his grace would not take it amiss, that I visit likewise, and hold my triennial; because I am informed the law is clear for me in this point also.

IV. And lastly, that whensoever my lord archbishop shall visit, he would be graciously pleased not to inhibit me the exercise of my jurisdiction, there being, as I am informed, no law at all to warrant that course; and the practice in this diocese being to the contrary, as I will make good by the acts sped and dispatched by the bishop of the diocese in the times of every one of those former pretended visitations: and if it should be otherwise, as my bishoprick now stands endowed and conditioned, I shall neither be enabled by my bishoprick to maintain my family, nor yet to pay unto his most excellent majesty my tenths and subsidies.

All which notwithstanding, I do most willingly submit to your judgment and knowledge in both laws, and unwilling to give my lord's grace, whom I find my very good lord, the least distaste or umbrage by any action of mine, do earnestly intreat you, to make a speedy end thereof, whereby you shall oblige me to remain

Worthy Sir,

I FORESEE there are some troubles likely to arise about my metropolitanical visitation; my lord the bishop of Lincoln and myself differing as yet in some circumstances about it; but by a letter which I lately received from his lordship, I understand that he hath referred the examination of his right in this business to you, and so shall I mine too with all my heart; praying you, that you will take some time, betwixt this and the next term, for the perusal of our records on both sides; and whatsoever you shall find to be just and fitting, I shall promise for my part very readily to yield unto; yet as I would be loth to offer wrong to his lordship's lawful jurisdiction in any thing, so I am resolved to defend and maintain the ancient rights of my archbishoprick, as far as in me lieth, to the uttermost; and I doubt not but herein you will give me all just assistance. So I leave you to the grace of God, and rest

WHERE the most reverend father in God William, by divine providence archbishop of Cant. primate of all England and metropolitan, intending the metropolitanical visitation of his province of Cant. some question did arise between the said most reverend father, and the right reverend father in God John, lord bishop of Lincoln, concerning that visitation within the diocese of Lincoln; and both of them willing to preserve the rights of their churches, but especially for preservation of peace, the said lord bishop of Lincoln by his letters of the 7th of this instant March required me William Noye to bestow my pains in composing that difference, and that his lordship being thereunto fairly and justly invited by his grace, did very willingly submit unto my opinion; and his grace by his letters of the 12th of this instant required me to do the like, and to take some time between that and the then next term for perusals of their records on both sides, promising to yield unto that which I shall find just and fitting, as by the said several letters more at large appeareth; albeit I found myself unmeet for the deciding of questions of such moment, yet for conservation of peace in those churches, being of his majesty's foundation, and to preserve suits in law, which might tend to the trouble of both parties, and wherein sometimes the victory is more sought after than the truth, and may occasion some breach of brotherly charity, I consented to take the pains, to hear what should be alledged on either part, and did desire that upon Thursday the

the twentieth of this month, their officers and ministers would produce, what they had to shew touching the premisses; at which time they were pleased to repair to my chamber at Lincoln's Inn, and brought with them sundry registers, ancient, and of later times, divers books of history and of the canon law, and most of that day, and of the Friday following was spent in debate of sundry matters concerning the metropolitical visitation intended by his grace within the diocese of Lincoln. Wherein one question moved was; whether the archbishop of Cant. may metropolitically visit the diocese of Lincoln, or whether that diocese be free from such visitation? Wherein I endeavoured to inform myself of the fact; and it appeareth as well by divers authors of history, and registers, both of the said archbishoprick, and also of the said bishoprick, that the archbishops of Cant. in several ages had metropolitically visited the churches, and peoples clerks, and lay in that diocese of Lincoln, and therein did that which pertained to their order, as ordaining of priests, deacons, dedications, etc. as to jurisdiction, both voluntary, as institutions to churches, and litigious, and avoked the causes of that consistory; of which the last visitation shewn was by that reverend prelate Thomas Cranmer, archbishop of Cant. in the year M.D.XXXIV. at which time he had the king's letters of attendance, and for freeing of that diocese from visitation metropolitical no exemption or title was produced. But on the behalf of the lord bishop of Lincoln it was shewn, first, that there were some provocations from some of the visitations when they were attempted; but upon view of the acts and remembrance of the said visitations registred, it appeareth, that the archbishop did nevertheless visit, and that at that last visitation appearing the then lord bishop of Lincoln, with protestation of saving of his rights, did undergo the visitation; and it was observed that when a metropolitical visitation was intended in the vacancy of the bishoprick of Lincoln, and mandates were directed to the dean or president of the chapter, the dean and chapter appealing they did not suggest any exemption or immunity, but alleged want of due form in the mandate. And it appeareth by sundry records, that many other bishops by provocation and other means did endeavour to withstand the metropolitical visitations of the archbishop of Cant. as Exon, Sarum, etc. which were nevertheless after visited. Secondly, on the behalf of the lord bishop of Lincoln it was insisted upon, that the church and diocese of Lincoln was discharged of metropolitical visitation by prescription of one hundred years, incurred sithence the last visitation; but upon computation it is manifest that the hundred years sithence that visitation are not since elapsed; but then it was alleged that one hundred years were elapsed between the time of the visitation metropolitical of Thomas Cranmer, and the next precedent metropolitical visitation, which was in the year of our lord M.CCCC.XXIV. by Henry

Chicheley, then archbishop of Cant. but seeing that the bishop and church and diocese of Lincoln did afterwards undergo a visitation, taking no advantage of that prescription, and the then bishop and his successors have taken oath to defend the rights of the church of Cant. and as all the acts of the visitations are not registred, so it may be that the books and registers of them are lost; I was and am of opinion, that the lord archbishop of Cant. of right ought to visit metropolitically the said church and diocese of Lincoln, as he ought to do other churches or dioceses of his province. Also I am of opinion; that although a third may prescribe to visit against both archbishop and bishop, neither the lord bishop, or church, or diocese of Lincoln, or any diocese within the province of Cant. can prescribe to be exempt from the metropolitical visitation of the metropolitan; for that the right to visit metropolitically is of common right incident to the archbishoprick, not merely of custom; and it concerns the public peace of the church, that the several dioceses be visited by the metropolitan. Then was it alleged, that albeit the lord archbishop of Cant. may visit the diocese of Lincoln, yet he ought not to have procurations; any title of this exemption peculiar to that diocese of Lincoln was not produced; and I am of opinion, that that, or any other diocese cannot prescribe in not payment of such procurations, for they are necessarily incident to the office of visiting. But on the behalf of the said lord bishop of Lincoln, there was produced a copy of a bull of Innocent IV. bishop of Rome of the year M.CC.LIV. directed to the clergy of the province of Cant. wherein it is declared, that in churches secular not collegiate, procurations from thence should not be paid. Upon consideration of which, finding that it concerned not the diocese of Lincoln alone, but all the dioceses within the province of Cant. and that the use hath been, that at all the metropolitical visitations procurations have been paid not only by churches regular, secular, and collegiate, but also by churches secular, parochial, not collegiate; and finding that divers ordinances of councils and bulls papal, especially concerning causes of profitable interest have obtained no other force in England, but as they have been received; and being received they become of force, not only by virtue of the command but by the assent of the parties interested; and this bull, if any such be, having not been in use so long time, might have been by sundry means abrogated; I am of opinion, that this notwithstanding, procurations ought to be paid to the lord archbishop in his metropolitical visitation. Then was it alleged on the behalf of the lord bishop of Lincoln, that where the bishop of common right may visit annually, now in that diocese the archdeacons visit two years, and the lord bishop visiteth only triennially, which is by some composition long sithence had between them, and the year present is the time of the lord bishop's triennial visitation, and that therefore in that time the lord archbishop may not visit metropolitically; upon consideration whereof, and perceiving by the registries of the bishoprick of Lincoln, that the archdeacons did not exercise the total jurisdiction of the bishop; I am of opinion, that by such composition, the archbishop may not be restrained to make election of his time of visiting; and by this occasion the lord bishop may not in this year exclude the archbishop more, than the archdeacons may in any other year; and the rather, for that the archbishop is but once to visit in this manner, and the lord bishop may have another meet time of visitation. Then occurred one other question, which was this; admitting the lord archbishop might visit the diocese of Lincoln metropolitically, and that he ought to have the procurations, and that he may so visit in the year, wherein the bishop is to make his triennial visitation within his diocese; whether nevertheless the lord bishop of Lincoln may not have a concurrency of jurisdiction with the lord archbishop visiting metropolitically? And on the part of the bishop registers were produced, by which it appeareth, that in the time of several metropolitical visitations the lord bishop of Lincoln did in fact exercise jurisdiction, not only in cases of order, as ordaining priests, giving institution, benediction of regulars, etc. but in other things, probate of testaments, dispensing, etc. only I observed that in the former visitations I find not any inhibitions, saving in the metropolitical visitation of Thomas Cranmer, before mentioned. And when the said church and diocese of Lincoln was metropolitically visited by Thomas Arundell, lord archbishop of Cant. he avocated the causes of the lord bishop's consistory, but no inhibition issued, that I find. And in the time of Thomas Cranmer's metropolitical visitation there was a permission, that the lord bishop of Lincoln might exercise jurisdiction ecclesiastical. How the use hath been in other dioceses, or how this may stand with the ecclesiastical law of this realm, I know not; but regularly, in the presence of the superior the power of the inferior ceaseth: and in our law, commissions in the several counties may not be executed, if the King's Bench happen to be in that county. And if a concurrency of jurisdiction be admitted; manifold inconveniencies will follow; first it may breed confusion in divers things, that may concur at once; as if two patrons present severally two clerks, either upon a day may chance to institute; or the one may happen to prove a will, and the other to pronounce against the same will, and grant administration; the one may condemn, the other absolve of the same crime; a great trouble will fall upon the people of the diocese, the officers and ministers of either to anticipate the procurations may shorten the visitation, without making due inquisition. The end of visitation is to instruct, to correct, and be informed of the state of the diocese, that the metropolitan being informed of the whole province may render account to his superior, the king's majesty; but if there should be a concurrency, he cannot so well do it. Also it may happen (tho' it be not to be feared in this particular case) that some error or schism is grown into some part of a diocese, either by toleration, or connivance, or negligence of the bishop; if in this case, the bishop by anticipation should here first visit (and it is too great trouble to the people for both to visit successively, for then will both have procurations) that error and schism may still continue and be kept from notice of the archbishop, and by consequence from the king's majesty, the supreme governor. Upon all which I make bold to declare to the lord archbishop, and the lord bishop of Lincoln; first, that the bishop, church, and diocese of Lincoln, and the clergy and laity there ought of right to be metropolitically visited by the lord archbishop of Cant. and are not freed nor exempt from such visitation. Secondly, that the procurations ought of right to be paid to the archbishop visiting metropolitically. Thirdly, the said lord archbishop may of right visit metropolitically as well in the time, when the lord bishop of Lincoln is to make his triennial visitation, as at any other time. Fourthly, I do not take upon me to determine whether by the ecclesiastical law there may be a concurrency of exercise of ecclesiastical jurisdiction in the time of the archbishop's metropolitical visitation; but for the causes before delivered, I think it convenient, and do advise, that if the lord bishop of Lincoln be inhibited during the visitation metropolitical, he forbear to exercise jurisdiction ecclesiastical within his church or diocese, that the visitation metropolitical may be entire, and that his majesty may be fully informed of the state of the church, as well in this as in other dioceses. In witness of all which I have made two parts of these presents of one tenor, and to either of these parts I have subscribed my name, and I have sent the one part of them to the said lord archbishop his grace, and the other part to the lord bishop of Lincoln. Dated the five and twentieth day of March, in the year of the reign of our sovereign lord Charles, by the grace of God king of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, defender of the faith, etc. the ninth, and in the year of our Lord God M.DC.XXXIV.

The petition of the churches of foreign nations to king Charles I. Ex Bibl.
Tho. Hales, baronetti.

SIR,

THE churches of foreign nations, which under the grace and support of the princes your predecessors, of blessed memory, have been established, and do at this time, under the like favour of your majesty, subsist in this your realm, having foreseen their dissolution, by reason of an injunction directed by the lord archbishop of Canterbury to the churches of strangers residing within his diocese, do hereby in the persons of their deputies, cast themselves at your majesty's feet, most humbly beseeching, that with the same affection and royal word, with the which it pleased your majesty at your first coming unto the crown, to confirm unto them their privileges, granted them by your predecessors, you would likewise now be pleased to prevent their over just apprehensions of danger, and to hinder the stroke, which so directly aims at their ruin.

The said injunction hath two heads; the one is directed to all such children of strangers, as are born in this kingdom, enjoining them to separate themselves from the congregation of their nation, and to frequent, and apply themselves to the parish churches, where they dwell. The other hath regard to such as are strangers born, who are commanded to quit their ordinary liturgy, and to apply themselves to the liturgy of the church of England.

The first command, Sir, with one blow undermines the very fundamental substance of the said churches; for in as much as the natives in some respects make the greatest part of the same, but in others the least; so it is that generally they make the greatest and most considerable part of the whole, forasmuch as they only are the possessors of any wealth, and by their more than ordinary collections the ministers are not only entertained, but great number of poor people, wherewith they are charged, are fed and nourished; so that if they should retire themselves from their several congregations, the ministers would remain without entertainment, and the poor without relief, and the residue being only composed of artizans, ignorant in the language of the country, and who having no certainty here, whereto they may fix themselves, their abode will consequently prove both uncertain and indifferent, by which means they will be constrained to go seek out other places for their habitations, whereby the exercise of religion being wholly dissolved by the first command, the second command by that means will become void and of none effect.

Your majesty's singular piety is sufficiently known to all, and we have seen with our eyes so many signal effects of your great goodness and natural clemency towards those, who with your majesty profess the same purity of doctrine, that we can never believe you will endure to see in your reign so great a desolation to arise; that such a number of poor christian people, who having fled the fire, massacres, and persecutions abroad, and being come hither, and here relieved and placed in all safety, as it were in the sanctuary of a temple, should on a sudden be thus cast out, and constrained to go seek elsewhere a place of more assured residence.

That these strange and foreign plants having been formerly by divers outrageous tempests cast upon the shore of this island, and here so carefully gathered up and planted by the good king Edward the sixth, so favourably maintained and manured by the virtuous princess queen Elizabeth, come to perfection and ripeness under the happy and peaceful reign of the great and wise king James, your majesty's father, and at this time flourishing under your own gracious government and protection, should so suddenly be plucked up by the roots, as it were, in blame and reproach of the wisdom and charity of all such, who even to this present time have had regard to their growth and favoured their increase.

That these living monuments erected to the eternal memory of all these good princes, and who publish so highly throughout all the world the fame of their piety, charity, and hospitality towards the afflicted members of the Lord Jesus, should be thus demolished and beaten into powder.

And that these bonds and so express testimonies of the union of this realm in point of religion with the reformed churches of France, Germany, and the Low Countries, until this time so religiously kept and observed, should be suddenly broken and made void; is as it were, the forerunner of a sad and total separation.

These are, Sir, the causes which make us hope, that your majesty will never give way hereunto.

Especially at this time wherein the churches of Germany do even swim in their natural blood, and the churches of France in their own tears, all of them being in the very midst of their ruin, and burthened with the apprehension of a mighty desolation; they have no other but your majesty, unto whom they may turn themselves, and upon whom they may fix their eyes and hopes with any assurance.

What affrights, what despairs will overwhelm their afflicted hearts, when they shall hear that same (which always makes things worse than they are) goes publishing every where, that there are no more churches of strangers in England, that there is there no retreat or support for those, who are persecuted for cause of religion; their afflictions will be redoubled by the reproaches of their enemies, who will shew them, how much they are condemned by their own own side, and will not fail to tell them (and it may be make them feel) that it stands but with reason and justice, that the papistical princes should persecute and drive them out of their countries, since they cannot be supported by those of their own profession.

We most humbly beseech your majesty, to take the premisses into your good considerations; and as our consciences do give us an assured testimony that our behaviours unto this present day (by the grace of God) hath cleared us from all attainments of the least calumny, whereby as we are not rendered unworthy of the continuation of your majesty's favours so that you would be pleased upon this occasion to let us feel the effects thereof, and receiving this most humble request, which we present unto your majesty, you would be pleased to answer us as graciously and favourably as formerly you vouchsafed to promise us: that our usages should never be worse under your reign, than it had been under your predecessors; whereby being filled with joy and consolation we may continue our earnest prayers for the long and prosperous reign of your majesty, the good of your state, and the increase of glory and prosperity of your most flourishing and royal progeny.

King Charles's letter about the repair of St. Paul's London. Reg. Laud fol. 200. a.

CHARLES REX.

MOST reverend father in God, right trusty and right entirely beloved counsellor, we greet you well. You know with what princely care we have hitherto pursued the repair of St. Paul's church in London, and of how great necessity the work is for the church and honour of the kingdom; yet we are not ignorant what jealousies have been cast amongst our loving people by some ill affected persons, both to ourself and that glorious work; to the work, as if it were neither fit nor possible to be compassed; not fit, being a slander upon God's service, and not to be compassed, being a scandal upon the nation; to ourself, as if contrary to our just and princely disposition the work were but pretended by us to get some great sum of money together, and then to turn it to other uses; a thing not more base in itself, than hateful to all our free and princely thoughts, which by God's grace we have hitherto preserved constant and entire to the service of God in all kinds, and by the same assistance, shall least of all bring into suspicion in this. These are therefore to let you know, that against all false and scandalous rumors, we resolve to go really on with this great work; and do further hereby require you cheerfully to continue that care and pains, which you have hitherto taken in the business; and withal to send a copy of these our letters to our trusty and well beloved, the lord mayor and aldermen of our city of London, that they may both themselves see and inform the city of the clearness and the honour of all our intentions herein. And whereas of our princely bounty we promised five hundred pounds a year towards that work, for the space of ten years, which for these years past we have duly paid into the chamber of London by your hands; these are further to let you know, that we are resolved to enlarge that bounty of ours, and to undertake the whole repair of the west end of that church without having any to share in the honour of that particular with us, which will rise to a far greater sum, than at first we promised, toward which work as we will have the fifteen hundred pounds go, which we have already paid in, so will we also for the future pay all such monies as shall be necessary for it, into the chamber of London, as we have begun, that the clearness of our proceedings, and the fairness of the accompt may appear to all men. And we do hereby require you to call upon our surveyor, to use all care and industry for the setting forward of this work; not doubting but that this our princely example will stir up both them of our city of London, and all other of our loving subjects to enlarge themselves and their bounty towards it. After my hearty commendations, etc. His majesty, out of his princely care, not only of St. Paul's church London but of that city, and the kingdom in general, hath been graciously pleased to write unto me, that against all base and unworthy rumours, he is not only resolute to cause the work to go on, but further to take upon himself and his own charge, the repair of the whole west end of that church, which as it will be a great work in itself, so will it also be an excellent memorial to all posterity of so pious and gracious a prince. In these his majesty's letters there is an express command upon me, that I should send a copy of them to your lordship, and the aldermen your brethren, that ye may see not the king's bounty only, but the clearness of all his royal intentions in and concerning that pious work; and in obedience to the command which I have received, I here send you a true and perfect copy of his majesty's gracious letters sent to me; not doubting but that you will cheerfully receive them, and cause them to be registered amongst those things, which you keep with greatest

MOST reverend father in God, right trusty and right entirely beloved counsellor, we greet you well. We have of late taken the state of our several archbishopricks and bishopricks into our princely consideration, that we may be the better able to preserve that livelyhood, which as yet is left unto them. Upon this deliberation we find, that of later times there hath not risen a greater inconvenience, than by turning leases of one and twenty years into lives; for by that means the present bishop puts a great fine into his own purse to enrich himself, his wife, and children, and leaves his successors, of what desert soever to us, and the church, destitute of that growing means, which else would come in to help them. By which course, should it continue, scarce any bishop would be able to live and keep house, according to his place and calling. We know the statute makes it alike lawful for a bishop to let his lease for one and twenty years, or three lives; but time and experience have made it apparent, that there is a great deal of difference between them, especially in church leases, where men are commonly in great years before they come to those places. These are therefore to will and command you, upon peril of our utmost displeasure, and what shall follow thereon, that notwithstanding any statute, or any other pretence whatsoever, you presume not to let any lease belonging to your archbishoprick into lives, which is not in lives already; and further, that when any fair opportunity is offered you, if any such be, you fail not to reduce such as are in lives, into years. And we do likewise will and require, that these our royal letters may remain upon record, both with your own register, and with the register of the dean and chapter of your cathedral church at Cant. and that by them notice be given to all your successors respectively, whom we will that these letters shall concern as much as yourself, that they presume not to break any of these our commands in the least manner, as both you and they will answer it at your and their uttermost peril. Given under our signet at our manor of Greenwich the two and twentieth day of June, in the tenth year of our reign.

"Sic indorsatur:" To the most reverend father in God, our right trusty and right entirely beloved counsellor, William, lord archbishop of Canterbury, primate and metropolitan of all England.

The archbishop of Canterbury's letter about the same. Ibid. fol. 207. a.

"SALUTEM in Christo." My very good lord. Whereas his majesty in a princely consideration of the several bishopricks of this kingdom hath, amongst others, written to your lordship, to take care that hereafter the lands belonging to your fee be let for one and twenty years, and not for three lives, for the benefit of the church and your successors; I make no doubt, but you will carefully observe that his gracious pleasure; but in that diocese I hold it requisite you enlarge your care concerning the lands of your bishoprick already demised. I pray therefore and do hereby require you to call upon every tenant that holds lands of your bishoprick, that he make a survey of the lands he holds, and set the quantity of acres, the particular names of the closes, and other lands, as they are and have been called, and in what township, parish, or county the same and every part thereof lieth; and if it be possible, that they do this before Michaelmas day next; also that they certify you how long they and their ancestors have held the said lands, now in lease to them; and what houses they, or their ancestors have suffered to decay, and what remain in repair upon the same; and whether the rents answered unto the bishoprick, be out of the lands they hold by the said several leases respectively, or out of any other lands, held from the archbishoprick, which they do receive of the bishop's freeholders as a chief; and that they express by what right they receive such rents; and how much the rents are, if they be not issuing out of the lands demised unto them. And though this course be taken, yet it is not intended that you shall be concluded hereby, but the end is to prevent the concealment of the church's land, and to discover such as go about to conceal the same: and if you make it appear, that any tenant of your lordship doth hold more lands than he doth acknowledge upon this survey, I will inform his majesty of him, and his course against the church, that such further order may be taken with him as shall appertain to justice. But I hope they will all deal fairly and conscionably with you. Thus recommending to you in this the care both of yourself and successors, I leave you to the grace of God, and rest

CHARLES REX.

MOST reverend father in God, right trusty and right entirely beloved counsellor, we greet you well. Whereas we did of late direct our princely letters unto yourself, bearing date the two and twentieth day of June last past, as also other our letters to the dean and chapter of your cathedral church, whereby we did expressly forbid the letting of any church-lease, or leases into lives by you, or them, or any of your, or their successors respectively, excepting only such leases as were before the date of those our letters granted for lives; and concerning which we did require both you and every of them by all lawful means to endeavour, that they might be reduced to years again; all which we have done for the great good and advancement of the church, as we doubt not in future times will plainly appear: now, forasmuch as we have been informed, that some, more affecting their present private gain, than the future good of the church, whereof they are members, have misinterpreted those our princely letters, and do conceive that the meaning is to prohibit only the letting of such leases into lives, as are granted by the dean and chapter of any church, by common consent, and that every particular dean, archdeacon, or prebend, who hath any corpse belonging to his dignity, might notwithstanding dispose of it for lives, without breach of our royal command, as if we would direct our letters to a body in general, and not intend to include every several member thereof; these are therefore to will and require you, that you fail not to signify this explanation of our princely pleasure to your several archdeacons, and to the dean and chapter of your cathedral church, that they may impart it to every prebend; which is, that we do not only lay these our commands upon them, and their successors in general, but likewise upon every particular member of that church, whom they may any way concern, from the highest to the meanest officer in the same, including the vicars choral in what church soever any such body is. And that no doubts further may hereafter be made concerning this matter, we will that these our letters, together with our former, should remain upon record, both in your registry and the registry of the dean and chapter there, that so both they and their successors, from time to time, may take notice of them accordingly, as they will answer the contrary at their utmost perils. Given under our signet at our honour of Hampton court the sixth day of October, in the tenth year of our reign.

The archbishop of Canterbury's letter to the dean and chapter of Norwich.

"SALUTEM in Domino." After my hearty commendations, etc. I do very well remember the late alterations of your statutes, and the settlement of them in bishop Harfnet and dean Suckling's time; my predecessor and myself, among other, being employed in that service. At that time it troubled me very much, as it hath since done, upon the consideration of other churches, to see the weakness of that choir, and the small means that was left to make it better, considering that neither the choir, or any thing else in or about the church can flourish without some proportionable reward to service. The good old dean to help things on as far as he might, projected two things; the one was some proportion of corn to be allowed them, which I think was then settled, and I hope continues; the other I do not well remember that it was settled by statute, the more the pity, but it was generally thought fit and approved by all of us, to whom the consideration of the statutes was then recommended; that is, that such small benefices, or cures within the city or suburbs as are in the church's gift, should, as they fell void, be given to the petty canons respectively, and to no other; and that the church should be very careful from time to time, to chuse such petty canons into vacant places, as might be fit and able to discharge both duties, both to sing in the choir, and to catechise and preach in the parish; this custom of giving those small cures to the petty canons is usual with other churches, where the choir is as mean as yours, and it being help to them, and fit and able men will never be wanting, if this course for their preferment be held constant. I write unto you, because I am informed that there are divers very sufficient men already in expectation of those places, whensoever it shall please God to make any void, so that you need not be to seek to furnish yourselves; but I hear withal there is a purpose amongst some of you without any regard of the honour and good of the church, to bestow these livings, when they fall, upon their private friends, without any respect had to the choir; which, if it be, will utterly overthrow the choir service, and you will not be able to retain either voices or skill amongst you. I would be glad to hope this information were not true, but it is so constantly affirmed to me, that I cannot distrust it altogether. These are therefore to pray and require you to be careful in this business as you have any care of the church's good good, or of any good opinion that I shall hold of you; and this I assure you, that if I shall find, that you do at any time put other men in those cures, and leave the petty canons destitute to the utter prejudicing of the choir, I shall take all the ways, that wisely I can, to make you see your error; but I hope you will do your duties, and so preserve my love to you and my care for you, which I shall be glad to extend to the utmost, if you shall make yourselves capable of it. Thus not doubting of your obedience to this direction, I leave you to the grace of God, and rest

Your very loving friend,

MOST reverend father and our gracious lord. As we have many ways liberally tasted of your noble favours, so do we most humbly thank you for your late gracious letter, expressing your fatherly vigilance for the good of our poor choir, to the advancement whereof as (according to our duty) we bend our utmost care and endeavour, so by God's help we shall be thereto the more stirred up by your gracious admonition; and withall we most humbly beseech your grace to be persuaded, that tho' some overture hath been made among us to some such purpose, as to your grace hath been suggested, yet we have not hitherto alienated any cure from any of our canons, and so far we are from any such intention, that for the future we are resolved, by God's grace, at our next grand chapter, the acts whereof by the statutes bind, as the statutes themselves, to settle a particular and perpetual provision for every one of our canons. And thus humbly desiring in this and all other your grace's fatherly directions so to demean ourselves, as may both gain and continue your grace's good opinion of us, and gracious support to our poor church; we bless God for you, and beseech him long to continue you to his glory, the church's good, and your own comfort, and rest most humbly

The petition of King's college Cambridge to the archbishop of Canterbury about Eaton college. Ibid. fol. 257. b.

To the right honourable and most reverend father in God, William, lord archbishop of Cant. his grace, primate of all England, and metropolitan,

The humble petition of the provost and fellows of King's college in Cambridge.

WHEREAS we are given to understand, that his sacred majesty, out of his gracious care to advance the livelyhood of a poor churchman, hath been pleased to direct his royal letters to the provost and fellows of his college in Eaton, thereby requiring them to chuse into the next fellowship that shall be void, the vicar of the parish church of Windsor, and so successively.

And that we are right well assured, that his majesty according to his perpetual example in that kind will be a most pious and tender conservator of college privileges, especially his own, whereof he is the never dying founder.

And that by the statutes of Eaton, confirmed under the broad seal of England, and likewise most earnestly commended to your grace's patronage as metropolitanical visitor of that college, the rights of those fellowships do to us most properly appertain.

That your grace would vouchsafe your humble supplicants a gracious determination of such statutes of Eaton, wherein they conceive themselves to have been neglected, and also to intercede to his sacred majesty in the behalf of your petitioners, that the vicar of Windsor may hereafter be chosen out of his college at Cambridge, by which means his majesty's royal pleasure, and our blessed founder's shall be fulfilled to the further benefit of his royal foundation. And so shall we be all bound to pray to almighty God for the long continuance of your grace's health and happiness.

The humble petition of the provost and fellows of King's college in Cambridge.

To the king's most excellent majesty,

The humble petition of the provost and fellows of King's college in Cambridge

Sheweth,

THAT whereas your majesty's royal predecessor Henry the sixth, of blessed memory, hath erected two colleges, the one at Cambridge, the other at Eaton, and transmitted them by the letter of their several statutes to your majesty's sovereign protection, as to their living founder; unto both which he gave names, revenues, and immunities alike, intending the one as a nursery to the other, and commanded that there should ever be a mutual tie of love and amity between them, which your majesty's humble petitioners, for their parts, have always been most careful to observe; but do conceive themselves to have suffered much wrong from their sister foundation in many things, but most apparently in the choice of the fellows there.

And whereas at this present the most reverend father in God the lord archbishop of Cant. his grace hath begun his metropolitical visitation of that college; may it please your most gracious majesty in tender consideration of the premises, to recommend the examination, and exposition of their statutes, and final determination of all other causes, as may concern the peace and amity of both societies, to the said most reverend father, that so some binding order may be settled in this his grace's visitation, for the future good and peace of both the said colleges, according to their founder's most royal and pious intentions.

And your majesty's poor petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray, etc.

At the court at Whitehall 30th November,

His majesty's pleasure is, that the lord archbishop of Cant. his grace shall in this his metropolitical visitation examine and expound all those statutes, concerning which any doubts may arise betwixt the two colleges, to hinder their mutual tie and bond, which being established by his majesty's predecessors, his majesty is careful to preserve; and also that his grace shall finally determine with some binding order all other causes, which may concern the peace and amity of both societies, in such manner as his grace shall think it fit, and agreeable to justice.

Constitutions, and canons ecclesiastical treated upon by the archbishops and bishops, and the rest of the clergy of Ireland; and agreed upon by the king's majesty's licence in their synod begun and holden at Dublin anno Domini M.DCXXXIV. and in the year of the reign of our sovereign lord Charles, by the grace of God king of Great Britain, France, and Ireland, the tenth.*

CHARLES, by the grace of God king of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, defender of the faith, etc. to all men, to whom these presents shall come, greeting. Whereas our bishops, deans of our cathedral churches, archdeacons, chapters, and colleges, and the rest of the clergy within our kingdom of Ireland were summoned and called by virtue of our

In the articles drawn up by him he inserted the Lambeth articles, which were confirmed and printed M.DC.XV. and were received as the articles of the church till the year M.DC.XXXIV. when lord Strafford, then governor of Ireland, sent the first canon ready fair drawn to Dr. Lesly, the prolocutor, inclosed in a letter in these words:

Mr. PROLOCUTOR,

I send you here inclosed the form of a canon to be passed by the votes of the lower house of convocation, which I require you to put to the question for their consents, without admitting any debate or other discourse; for I hold it not fit writs directed to the archbishops of the four several provinces, and bearing date the four and twentieth day of May, in the tenth year of our reign, to appear before the said archbishops in the cathedral church of St. Patrick Dublin, upon the one and twentieth day of July then next ensuing, then and there to treat and conclude upon certain high and urgent affairs in the said writs mentioned; who did thereupon at the time appointed, and in the said cathedral church of St. Patrick aforesaid, assemble themselves, and appear in convocation for that purpose, according to the tenor of the said writs. And whereas we for divers urgent and weighty occasions, us thereunto moving, of our especial grace, certain knowledge, and meer motion, did by virtue of our prerogative royal and supreme authority in causes ecclesiastical, give and grant by our letters patents under our great seal of Ireland, bearing date the one and twentieth day of July, in the tenth year of our reign, full power and authority unto the said archbishops, bishops, deans, archdeacons, chapters, colleges, and clergy of this kingdom, then assembled in convocation in the said cathedral church of St. Patrick, that they from time to time during the parliament then begun at Dublin, might confer, treat, consult, and conclude of and upon such articles, canons, orders, ordinances, statutes, and constitutions ecclesiastical, as they shall think necessary, fit, and convenient for the honour and service of almighty God, and augmentation of his divine worship, the rooting out of heresies and errors out of the vineyard of Christ, for the procuring of the good and quiet of the church, and preservation of good government in causes ecclesiastical, and to the jurisdiction of the church belonging, as also to make and set down ordinances and decrees, to have such force and effect, as other canons and constitutions of the church have, and the same (our royal assent being thereunto first had and obtained) to set forth and publish freely and lawfully, and that as well the archbishops and bishops, and all other inferior persons, whom it may concern, should yield due obedience thereunto, as in and by our said letters patents more at large it doth and may appear; forasmuch as the said archbishops, bishops, deans, archdeacons, chapters, and colleges, with the rest of the clergy of this kingdom, having met together at the time and place before mentioned, and then and there by virtue of our said authority granted unto them, have treated of, concluded, and agreed upon certain canons, orders, ordinances, and constitutions, to the end and purpose by us limited and prescribed unto them, and have thereupon offered and presented the same unto us, most humbly desiring us to give our royal assent unto their said canons, orders, ordinances, and constitutions, according to the form of a certain statute or act of parliament made in that behalf, and by our said prerogative royal, and supreme authority in causes ecclesiastical to ratify by our letters patents under our great seal of Ireland, and to confirm the said canons, being one hundred in number, and contained in a book, entituled Constitutions and canons ecclesiastical treated upon by the archbishops and bishops, and the rest of the clergy of Ireland, and agreed upon with the king's majesty's license in their synod, begun at Dublin anno Dom. M.DC.XXXIV. and in the year of the reign of our sovereign lord Charles, by the grace of God king of Great Britain, France, and Ireland, the tenth, which book is remaining with John Forth, clerk of the upper house of convocation: we of our princely inclination and royal care for the maintainance of the present estate and government of the church of Ireland, by the laws of this our realm now settled and established, having diligently with great contentment and comfort read and considered of all these their said canons, orders, ordinances, and constitutions agreed upon, as is before expressed, and finding the same such as we are persuaded will be very profitable not only to our clergy but to the whole church of this our kingdom, and to all the true members of it, if they be well observed; have therefore for us, our heirs, and lawful successors, of our special grace, certain knowledge, and meer motion, by the advice and consent of our right trusty and right well beloved cousin and counsellor Thomas, viscount Wentworth, our deputy general of our said kingdom of Ireland, and president of our council established in the north parts of our kingdom of England, given, and by these presents do give our royal assent according to the form of the said statute or act of parliament aforesaid, to all and every the said canons, orders, ordinances, and constitutions, and all and every thing in them contained. And furthermore, we do not only by our said prerogative royal, and supreme authority in causes ecclesiastical, ratify, confirm, and establish by these our letters patents the said canons, orders, ordinances, and constitutions, and all and every thing in them contained, as is aforesaid; but do likewise propound, publish, and straitly enjoin and command by our said authority, and by these our letters patents the same to be diligently observed, executed, and equally kept by all our loving subjects of this our kingdom, in all points wherein they do, or may concern nor will suffer that the articles of the church of England be disputed. Therefore I expect from you to take only the voices consenting or dissenting, and give me a particular account, how each man gives his vote. The time admits no delay, so I further require you to perform the contents of this letter forthwith, and so I rest

Your good friend,

WENTWORTH.

The result was; that the canon passed, one only opposing it. By that canon it is thought that Dr. Usher's articles were annulled without noise, and the 39 articles of the church of England made the articles of the church of Ireland.

every or any of them, according to this our will and pleasure hereby signified and expressed. And that likewise for the better observation of them, every minister, by what name or title soever he be called, shall in the parish church or chapel where he hath charge, read all the said canons, orders, ordinances, and constitutions, once every year, upon some Sundays or holydays, in the afternoon before divine service; dividing the same in such sort, as that the one half may be read one day, and the other another day. The book of the said canons to be provided at the charge of the parish, betwixt this and the feast of Easter next ensuing. Straitly charging and commanding all archbishops, bishops, and all other that exercise any ecclesiastical jurisdiction within this realm, every man in his place to see and procure (so much as in them lieth) all and every of the same canons, orders, ordinances, and constitutions, to be in all points duly observed, not sparing to execute the penalties in them severally mentioned upon any that shall wittingly or wilfully break or neglect to observe the same, as they tender the honour of God, the peace of the church, tranquillity of the kingdom, and their duties and service unto us their king and sovereign. In witness, etc.

I. Of the agreement of the church of England and Ireland in the profession of the same christian religion.

For the manifestation of our agreement with the church of England in the confession of the same christian faith, and the doctrine of the sacraments; we do receive and approve the book of articles of religion agreed upon by the archbishops and bishops, and the whole clergy in the convocation holden at London in the year of our lord God M.D.LXII. for the avoiding of diversities of opinions, and for the establishing of consent touching true religion. And therefore if any hereafter shall affirm that any of those articles are in any part superstitious or erroneous, or such as he may not with a good conscience subscribe unto, let him be excommunicated, and not absolved, before he make a public revocation of his error.

II. The king's supremacy in causes ecclesiastical to be maintained.

All ecclesiastical persons having cure of souls, and all other preachers, and readers of divinity lectures, shall to the uttermost of their wit, knowledge, and learning, purely and sincerely, without any colour or dissimulation, teach, manifest, open and declare four times every year at the least, in their sermons, and other collations and lectures; that all usurped and foreign power, forasmuch as the same hath no establishment nor ground by the law of God, is for most just causes taken away and abolished; and that therefore no manner of obedience or subjection within his majesty's realms and dominions is due unto such foreign power; but that the king's power within his realm of Ireland, and all other his dominions and countries, is the highest power under God, to whom all men, as well inhabitants as born within the same, do by God's laws owe all loyalty and obedience, and to no other foreign power and potentate in the earth. And whosoever shall hereafter maintain, that the king's majesty hath not the same authority in causes ecclesiastical, that the godly kings had amongst the Jews, and christian emperors in the primitive church, or impeach in any part his regal supremacy in the said causes restored to the crown, and by the laws of this realm therein established, let him be excommunicated, and not restored but only by the archbishop of the province, after his repentance, and public revocation of his error.

III. Of the prescript form of divine service contained in the book of common prayer.

That form of liturgy or divine service, and no other, shall be used in any church of this realm, but that which is established by the law, and comprised in the book of Common Prayer and administration of the sacraments. And if any one shall preach, or by other open words declare or speak any thing in the derogation or despising of the said book, or of any thing therein contained, let him be excommunicated, and not restored, until he repent and publicly revoke his error.

IV. Of the form of consecrating and ordering archbishops, bishops, etc. and of the churches established according to that order.

That form of ordination, and no other, shall be used in this church, but that which is contained in the book of ordering bishops, priests, and deacons, allowed by authority, and hitherto practised in the churches of England and Ireland. And if any shall affirm, that they who are consecrated or ordered according to those rites, are not lawfully made, nor ought to be accounted either bishops, priests, or deacons; or shall deny that the churches established under this government are true churches, or refuse to join with them in christian profession, let him be excommunicated, and not restored, until he repent and publicly revoke his error.

V. Authors of schism and maintainers of conventicles censured.

Whosoever shall separate themselves from the communion of saints, as it is approved by the apostles rules in the church of Ireland; and combine themselves together in a new brotherhood (accounting the christians, who are conformable to the doctrine, government, rites and ceremonies of the church of Ireland, to be profane and unmeet for them to join with in christian profession) or shall affirm and maintain, that there are within this realm other meetings, assemblies, or congregations, than such as by the laws of this land are held and allowed, which may rightly challenge to themselves the name of true and lawful churches, let him be excommunicated, and not restored, until he repent and publicly revoke his error.

VI. Due

VI. Due celebration of Sundays and holydays.

All manner of persons shall celebrate and keep the Lords Day, commonly called Sunday, and other holydays, according to God's holy will and pleasure, and the orders of this church; that is, in hearing the word of God read and taught, in private and public prayers, in acknowledging their offences to God, and amendment of the same, in reconciling themselves charitably to their neighbours, where displeasure hath been, in oftentimes receiving the communion of the body and blood of Christ, in visiting the poor and sick, using all godly and sober conversation.

VII. The prescript form of divine service to be used on Sundays and holydays with all decency and due reverence.

Every Sunday and holyday the parsons, vicars, and curates shall celebrate divine service at convenient and usual times of the day, and in such place of every church, as the bishop of the diocese, or ecclesiastical ordinary of the place shall think meet, for the largeness or straitness of the same, so as the people may be most edified. All ministers likewise shall use and observe the orders, rites, ornaments, and ceremonies prescribed in the book of Common Prayer, and in the act for uniformity printed therewith, as well in reading the holy scriptures, and saying of prayers, as in administration of the sacraments; without either diminishing in regard of preaching, or in any other respect, or adding any thing in the matter or form thereof. And in cathedral and collegiate churches, all deans, masters and heads of collegiate churches, canons and prebendaries, being graduates, shall daily at the times both of prayer and preaching, wear with their surplices such hoods as are agreeable to their degrees. No man also shall cover his head in any church or chapel in the time of divine service, except he have some infirmity, in which case he may wear a night cap or coif. Neither shall any person be otherwise at such times busied, than in quiet attendance to hear, mark, and understand that which is read, preached or ministred; using all such reverent gestures and actions, as by the book of Common Prayer are prescribed in that behalf, and the commendable use of this church received; and not departing out of the church, during the time of service and sermon, without some urgent or reasonable cause.

Also the minister reading the lessons, epistle, and gospel, and the Ten Commandments, and such other parts of divine service, as do greatly tend to the edifying of the people, shall so place himself, and so turn him to the people, as they may best hearken thereunto, and be edified by the same. And every beneficiary and curate shall endeavour, that the confession of sins and absolution, and all the second service (at or before the communion, to the homily or sermon) where the people all or most are Irish, shall be used in English first, and after in Irish, if the ordinary of the place shall so think meet.

IX. Beneficed preachers being resident upon their livings, to preach every Sunday.

Every beneficed man, allowed to be a preacher, and residing on his benefice, having no lawful impediment, shall in his own cure preach one sermon every Sunday of the year; and therein he shall teach no vain opinions, no heresies, nor popish errors, disagreeing from the articles of religion, generally received in the churches of England and Ireland; nor any thing at all, whereby the people may be stirred up to the desire of novelty or contention; but shall soberly and sincerely divide the word of truth, to the glory of God, and to the best edification of the people.

X. No public opposition between preachers.

If any preacher shall in the pulpit particularly or namely, of purpose impugn or confute any doctrine delivered by any other preacher in the same church, or in any other near adjoining; or otherwise make any public opposition unto him, before he hath acquainted the bishop of the diocese therewith, and received order from him what to do in that case (because upon such public dissenting and contradicting, there may grow much offence and disquieting to the people) the churchwardens or party grieved shall forthwith signify the same to the said bishops, and not suffer the said preacher any more to occupy that place which he has once abused, except he faithfully promise to forbear all such matter of contention in the church, until the bishop hath taken further order therein; who shall with all convenient speed so proceed therein, that public satisfaction may be made in the congregation, where the offence was given. Provided, that if either of the parties offending, do appeal, he shall not be suffered to preach, pendente lite.

XI. Ministers to catechise every Sunday.

Every parson, vicar, or curate upon every Sunday before evening prayer shall for half an hour, or more, examine and instruct the youth and ignorant persons of his parish in the Ten Commandments, the articles of the Belief, and in the Lord's Prayer, and shall diligently hear, and instruct, and teach them the catechism set forth in the book of Common Prayer. And all fathers, mothers, masters, and mistresses shall cause their children, servants, and apprentices, which have not learned the catechism, to come to church at the time appointed, obediently to hear, and to be ordered by the minister, until they have learned the same. And if any minister neglect his duty herein, let him be sharply reprov'd upon the first complaint, and true notice thereof given to the bishop or ordinary of the place. If after submitting himself, he shall wilfully offend therein again, let him be suspended. If so the third time, there being little hope that he will be therein reformed, then then excommunicated, and so remain, until he be reformed. And likewise if any of the said fathers, mothers, masters, or mistresses, children, servants, or apprentices shall neglect their duties, as the one sort in not causing them to come, and the other in refusing to learn, as aforesaid, let them be suspended (if they be not children) and if they so persist by the space of a month, let them be excommunicated. Neither shall the minister admit any to be married, or to be godfathers or godmothers at the baptism of any child, or to receive the holy communion before they can say the articles of the Belief, the Lord's Prayer, and the Commandments in such a language as they understand.

XII. The people to be informed in the body of christian religion, and reformed in their conversation.

For the better grounding of the people in the principles of christian religion, we ordain, that the heads of the catechism being divided into so many parts, as there are Sundays in the year, shall be explained to the people in every parish church. In the handling whereof, the ministers and curates, are to use such moderation, that they do not run into curious questions, or unnecessary controversies, but shortly declare and confirm the doctrine proposed, and make application thereof to the behoof of the hearers. The ministers also in all their preachings and catechisings, and private conference, when need requireth, shall teach the people to place their whole trust and confidence in God, and not in creatures, neither in the habit or scapular of any fryar, or in hallowed beads, medals, reliques, or such like trumperies. They shall do their endeavour likewise to root out all ungodly, superstitious, and barbarous customs, as using of charms, sorcery, enchantments, witchcraft, or soothsaying; and generally to reform the manners of the people committed to their charge, unto a christian, sober, and civil conversation.

XIII. Preachers and lecturers to read divine service, and administer the sacraments twice a year at the least.

Every minister being possessed of a benefice, that hath cure and charge of souls, although he chiefly attend to preaching, and hath a curate under him to execute other duties, which are to be performed for him in the church; and likewise every other stipendary preacher, that readeth any lecture, or catechiseth, or preacheth in any church or chapel, shall twice at the least every year read himself the divine service upon two several Sundays publickly, and at the usual times both in the forenoon and afternoon, in the church which he so possesseth, or where he readeth, catechiseth, or preacheth as is aforesaid; and shall likewise as often in every year administer the sacraments of baptism, if there be any to be baptized, and of the Lord's supper, in such manner and form, and with the use and observation of all such rites, ornaments, and ceremonies, as are prescribed by the book of Common Prayer, and the act for uniformity printed therewith, in that behalf; which if he do not accordingly perform, then shall he that is possessed of a benefice, as before, be suspended, and he that is but a reader, preacher, or catechiser, be removed from his place by the bishop of the diocese, until he or they shall submit themselves to perform all the said duties in such manner and sort as before is prescribed.

XIV. Ministers not to refuse to christen or bury.

No minister shall refuse or delay to christen any child according to the form of the book of Common Prayer, that is brought to the church to him on Sundays or holydays to be christened; or to bury any corps that is brought to the church or churchyard, convenient warning being given to him thereof before, in such manner as is prescribed in the said book of Common Prayer. And if he shall refuse to christen the one, or bury the other, except the party deceased were denounced excommunicated "majori excommunicatione," for some grievous and notorious crime, and no man able to testify of his repentance, he shall be suspended by the bishop of the diocese from his ministry by the space of three months.

XV. Ministers not to defer christening, if the child be in danger.

If any minister, being duly, without any manner of collusion, informed of the weakness and danger of death of any infant unbaptized in his parish, and thereupon desired to go or come to the place where the said infant remaineth, to baptize the same, shall either wilfully refuse so to do, or of gross negligence shall so defer the time, as when he might conveniently have resorted to the place, and have baptized the said infant, it dieth through such default unbaptized; the said minister shall be suspended for three months, and before his restitution, shall acknowledge his fault, and promise before his ordinary, that he not wittingly incur the like again. Provided that where there is a curate or a substitute, this constitution shall not extend to the parson or vicar himself, but the curate or substitute present.

XVI. Fathers not to be godfathers in baptism, nor children not communicants.

No parent shall be urged to present, nor be admitted to answer as godfather for his own child; nor any godfather or godmother shall be suffered to make any other answer or speech, than by the book of Common Prayer is prescribed in that behalf. Neither shall any person be admitted godfather or godmother to any child at christening or confirmation, before the said person so undertaking, hath received the holy communion.

XVII. Confirmation, or laying hands upon children, to be performed by the bishop once in three years.

Every minister that hath cure and charge of souls, for the better accomplishing of the orders prescribed prescribed in the book of Common Prayer concerning confirmation, shall take such special care, as that none may be presented to the bishop for him to lay his hand upon, but such as can render an account of their faith, according to the catechism in the said book contained. The bishop also in his own person every third year at least in the time of his visitation, shall perform that duty of confirmation; or if in that year, by reason of some infirmity he be not able personally to visit his diocese, he shall not omit to do it the next year after, as he may conveniently. And whensoever the time shall by him be assigned, every such minister shall use his best endeavour to prepare and make able, and likewise to procure as many as he can, to be then brought to be confirmed.

XVIII. Of the receiving of the holy communion.

In every cathedral and collegiate church, at least once every month, and in every parish church and chapel where sacraments are to be administered within this realm, the holy communion shall be ministered by the parson, vicar, or minister, so often, and at such times, as every parishioner may communicate at the least thrice in the year (whereof the feast of Easter to be one) according as they are appointed by the book of Common Prayer. And that no minister when he celebrateth the communion, shall wittingly administer the same to any but such as kneel; provided that every minister as often as he administret the communion, shall first receive the sacrament himself. Furthermore, no bread nor wine newly brought shall be used, but first the words of institution shall be rehearsed, when the said bread and wine be presented upon the communion table. Likewise the minister shall deliver both the bread and wine to every communicant severally.

XIX. Warning to be given beforehand for the communion.

Whereas every lay person is bound to receive the holy communion thrice every year, and many notwithstanding do not receive that sacrament once in a year; we do require every minister to give warning to his parishioners publickly in the church at morning prayer, the Sunday before every time of his administering the holy sacrament, for the better preparation of themselves. Which said warning we enjoin the said parishioners to accept and obey, under the penalty and danger of the law. And the minister of every parish, and in cathedral and collegiate churches some principal minister of the church shall the afternoon before the said administration, give warning by the tolling of the bell, or otherwise, to the intent, that if any have any scruple of conscience, or desire the special ministry of reconciliation, he may afford it to those that need it. And to this end the people are often to be exhorted to enter into a special examination of the state of their own souls; and that finding themselves either extreme dull, or much troubled in mind, they do resort unto God's ministers, to receive from them as well advice and counsel for the quickening of their dead hearts, and the subduing of those corruptions whereunto they have been subject, as the benefit of absolution likewise for the quieting of their consciences, by the power of the keys which Christ hath committed to his ministers for that purpose.

XX. Notorious offenders not to be admitted to the communion.

No minister shall in any wise admit to the receiving of the holy communion any of his cure, or flock, which be openly known to live in sin notorious, without repentance. Nor any who have maliciously and openly contended with their neighbours, until they shall be reconciled. Nor any churchwardens or sidemen, who having taken their oaths to present to their ordinaries all such public offences, as they are particularly charged to enquire of in their several parishes, shall notwithstanding their said oaths (and that their faithful discharging of them is the chiefest means whereby public sins and offences may be reformed and punished) wittingly and willingly, desperately and irreli- giously incur the horrible crime of perjury, either in neglecting, or refusing to present such of the said enormities and public offences, as they know themselves to be committed in their said parishes, or are notoriously offensive to the congregation there, although they be urged by some of their neighbours, or by their minister, or by their ordinary himself to discharge their consciences by presenting of them, and not to incur so desperately the said horrible sin of perjury.

XXI. Ministers not to preach, or administer the communion in private houses.

No minister shall preach, or administer the holy communion in any private house, except it be in times of necessity, when any being either so impotent as he cannot go to the church, or very dangerously sick, are desirous to be partakers of that holy sacrament, under pain of suspension for the first offence, and excommunication for the second. Provided, that houses are here reputed for private houses, wherein are no chapels dedicated and allowed by the ecclesiastical laws of this realm. And provided also under the pain before expressed, that no chaplains do preach, or administer the communion in any other places but in the chapels of the said houses, and that also they do the same very seldom upon Sundays and holydays. So that both the lords and masters of the said houses, and their families shall at other times resort to their own parish churches, and there receive the holy communion at the least once every year.

XXII. Ministers not to hold private conventicles.

Forasmuch as all conventicles and secret meetings of priests and ministers have been ever justly accounted very hurtful to the state of the church wherein they live; we do now or-dain

tain and constitute, that no priests or ministers of the word of God, nor any other persons shall meet together in any private house, or elsewhere, to consult upon any matter or course to be taken by them, or upon their motion or direction by any other, which may any way tend to the impeaching or depraving of the doctrine of the church of Ireland, or of the book of Common Prayer, or of any part of the government and discipline now established in the church of Ireland, under pain of excommunication.

XXIII. Of ordering ecclesiastical jurisdiction.

No archbishop, bishop, or other person whatsoever, having ecclesiastical jurisdiction, shall appoint, constitute, make and confirm any chancellor, commissary, or official for longer time than their own incumbency, except he be of the full age of twenty six years at least, and one that is learned in the civil and ecclesiastical laws, and is at the least a master of arts, or bachelor of law, and is reasonably well practised in the course thereof. Neither shall they let their jurisdictions to farm, or grant, or confirm to any man the next, second, or third advowson of any prebend or benefice, being in their gift. And if they shall make or confirm any such grant or patent of the place of chancellor, commissary, or official for longer term than during their incumbency, to any that is not qualified as is hereby required, then the said person so accepting the said patent or grant, is to be held and declared incapable thereof, to all intents whatsoever. Lastly, the said archbishops and bishops, shall provide, that the clergy and people be not burdened with unjust exactions by their servants and officers in their visitations; and that neither the archbishops therein shall charge their suffragans, nor the bishops their clergy with any noctuals, or refectations, over and above their ordinary procurations (reserving notwithstanding unto the archbishops in their visitations the refectations usually heretofore received in those dioceses, where the same procurations are not received by them, which are yearly paid by the clergy unto their bishops.) And that no archbishop or bishop shall demand from the executors or administrators of any of their clergy any heriots or mortuaries, as in some place of this kingdom heretofore hath been accustomed.

No archbishop, bishop, dean and chapter, or dignitary shall in any wise diminish the ancient revenues of their sees, or churches, nor alienate their lands in fee-farm, nor destroy their woods, nor give power to their tenants to make waste thereof, nor by any devise demise their mensal or demesne lands, unless it be to their curates, actually discharging the said cures, without forty days absence in any one year, and to them for no longer time or term, than during their own incumbency. Neither shall they join with any dignitary, prebend, or other beneficiary or beneficiaries to confirm the leases or alienations made, or to be made by him or them of any ecclesiastical profits or obligations. And the said archbishops and bishops, shall carefully provide that all churches, chancels, and messe-houses, the repair whereof properly belongeth to them, or any of them, or to any other ecclesiastical person or persons, be from time to time preserved from ruin and decay.

Every archdeacon, which hath authority to visit either by common right, or by prescription, shall visit the precinct of his jurisdiction once every year in his own person; and he shall not substitute any to be his official, but such a one as hath been brought up in the university, and hath studied the civil law, if such a one may be had, being able not only in learning, but also with gravity and modesty to discharge that office.

XXVI. Residence of deans in their churches.

Every dean, master, or warden, or chief governor of any cathedral or collegiate church shall be resident in his said cathedral or collegiate church fourscore and ten days, "conjunctim aut divisim," in every year at least, so that they have houses, or ground to build houses upon, belonging to their churches; and then shall continue there in preaching of the word of God, and keeping good hospitality, except he shall be otherwise letted with weighty and urgent causes, to be approved by the bishop of the diocese. And when he is present, he with the rest of the canons or prebendaries resident, shall take special care that the statutes and laudable custom of their church, not being contrary to the word of God, or prerogative royal, the statutes of this realm being in force concerning ecclesiastical orders, and all other constitutions, now set forth and confirmed by his majesty's authority, and such as shall be lawfully enjoined by the bishop of the diocese in his visitation according to the statutes and customs of the same church, or the ecclesiastical laws of this realm, be diligently observed. And that the petty canons vicars choral, and other ministers of their church, be urged to the study of the holy scriptures, and every one of them to have the New Testament not only in the English, but also Latin.

The dean, master, warden, or other chief governor, prebendaries, and canons in every cathedral and collegiate church shall not only preach there in their own persons, so often as they are bound by law, statute, ordinance, or custom, but shall likewise preach in other churches of the same diocese where they are resident, and especially in those places, whence they, or their churches receive any yearly rents or profits. And in case they themselves be sick or lawfully absent, they shall substitute such licensed preacher to supply their turns, as by the bishop bishop of the diocese shall be thought meet to preach in cathedral churches. And if any otherwise neglect or omit to supply his course, as is aforesaid, the offender shall be punished by the bishop, or by him or them to whom the jurisdiction of that church appertaineth, according to the quality of the offence.

No prebendaries or canons in cathedral or collegiate churches having one or more benefices with cure, and not being residentiaries in the same cathedral or collegiate churches, shall under colour of the said prebends, absent themselves from their benefices, with cure, above the space of one month in the year, unless it be for some urgent cause, and certain time to be allowed by the bishop of the diocese. And such of the said canons and prebendaries, as by the ordinances of the said cathedral or collegiate churches do stand bound to be resident in the same, shall so among themselves sort and proportion the times of the year concerning residence to be kept in the said churches, as that some of them always shall be personally resident there. And that all those who be, or shall be residentiaries in any cathedral or collegiate church, shall after the days of their residency, appointed by their local statutes or customs expired; presently repair to their benefices, or some of them, or to some other charge, where the law requireth their presence, there to discharge their duties according to the law in that case provided. And the bishop of the diocese shall see the same to be duly performed and put in execution.

Forasmuch as the ancient fathers of the church, led by the examples of the apostles, appointed prayers and feasts to be used at the solemn ordering of ministers, and to that purpose allotted certain times, in which only sacred orders might be given or conferred; we following their holy and religious example, do constitute and decree, that no deacons or ministers be ordained and made, but only upon the Sundays immediately following "jejunia quatuor temporum," commonly called Ember-weeks, appointed in ancient time for prayer and fasting, purposely for this cause at their first institution, and so continued at this day in the church of Ireland; and that this be done in the cathedral or parish church where the bishop resideth, and in the time of divine service in the presence not only of the archdeacon, but the dean and two prebendaries at the least, or if they shall happen by any lawful cause to be let or hindered, in the presence of four other grave persons, being allowed for public preachers. And lastly, that no person, of what quality or gifts soever, be made a deacon and a presbyter both together upon the same day.

XXX. The titles of such as are to be made ministers.

No person shall be admitted into sacred orders, except he shall at that time exhibit to the bishop, of whom he desireth imposition of hands, a presentation of himself to some ecclesiastical preferment then void in that diocese, or shall bring to the said bishop a true and undoubted certificate, that he either is provided of some church within the said diocese, where he may attend the cure of souls, or of some ministers place vacant either in the cathedral church of that diocese, or in some other collegiate church therein also situate, where he may execute his ministry, or that he is a senior fellow of some college in the university, or except he be a master of arts of five years standing, that liveth of his own charge in the university, or except by the bishop himself that doth ordain him minister, he be shortly after to be admitted either to some benefice or curateship then void, not to be removed until he be otherwise provided for, except by his notable evil carriage he deserve the contrary. And if any bishop shall admit any person into the ministry that hath none of these titles, as is aforesaid, then he shall keep and maintain him with all things necessary, till he do prefer him to some ecclesiastical living. And if the said bishop shall refuse so to do, he shall be suspended by his archbishop, being assisted with another bishop, from giving of orders by the space of a year.

XXXI. The quality of such as are to be made ministers.

No bishop shall hereafter admit any person into sacred orders, who is not of his own diocese, except he be a graduate of some university within the king's dominions, or except he shall bring letters dimissory (so termed) from the bishop of whose diocese he is; and desiring to be a deacon, is three and twenty years old, and to be a presbyter, four and twenty years compleat; and hath taken some degrees of school in some of the said universities, or at the least, except he be able to yield an account of his faith in Latin (according to the articles of religion generally received in the church of England and Ireland) and to confirm the same by sufficient testimonies out of the holy scriptures. And except moreover he shall then exhibit letters testimonial, or authentic certificate of his good life and conversation, under the seal of some college, where before he remained, or of three or four grave ministers, together with the subscription and testimony of other credible persons, who have known his life and behaviour by the space of three years next before.

XXXII. The examination of such as are to be made ministers.

The bishop before he admit any person to holy orders, shall diligently examine him in the presence of those ministers, that shall assist him at the imposition of hands. And if the said bishop bishop have any lawful impediment, he shall cause the said ministers carefully to examine every such person, so to be ordered. Provided, that they who shall assist the bishop in examining and laying on of hands, shall be of his cathedral church, if they may conveniently be had, or other sufficient preachers of the same diocese, to the number of three at the least. And if any bishop or suffragan shall admit any to sacred orders, who is not so qualified and examined, as before we have ordained, the archbishop of that province having notice thereof, and being assisted by one bishop, shall suspend the said bishop or suffragan so offending, from making either deacons or priests for the space of two years. Neither shall any person be received into the ministry, nor admitted to any ecclesiastical living, nor permitted to preach, read, lecture, catechise, or minister the sacraments, except he shall first by subscription declare his consent to the first four canons of this present synod, and every thing contained therein.

No bishop shall institute any into a benefice, who hath been ordained by any other bishop, except he first shew unto him his letters of orders, and bring him a sufficient testimony of his former good life and behaviour, if the bishop shall require it: and lastly, shall appear upon due examination to be worthy of his ministry.

XXXIV. Of patrons of ecclesiastical benefices.

The bishop shall earnestly and diligently exhort patrons of benefices to consider the necessities of the churches, and to have before their eyes the last day of judgment, and the tribunal seat of God: therefore that they prefer no man to any ecclesiastical living, but him which by doctrine, judgment, godliness, honesty, and innocency of life is able to bear so heavy a burthen; that they do nothing therein, but uprightly, incorruptly, and truly: but if any patron shall be convicted to have made any simoniacal contract, either directly or indirectly, let him be excommunicated ipso facto, not to be absolved but after public penance in the cathedral church, and the church so simoniacally presented unto.

To avoid the detestable sin of simony, because buying and selling of ecclesiastical functions, offices, promotions, dignities, and livings is execrable before God, therefore the archbishop, and all and every bishop or bishops, or any other person or persons having authority to admit, institute, collate, install, or to confirm the election of any archbishop, bishop, or other person or persons to any spiritual or ecclesiastical function, dignity, promotion, title, office, jurisdiction, place, or benefice with cure, or without cure, or to any ecclesiastical living whatsoever, shall before every such admission, institution, collation, installation, or confirmation of election, respectively minister to every person thereafter to be admitted, instituted, collated, installed, or confirmed in or to any archbishoprick, or other spiritual or ecclesiastical function, dignity, promotion, title, office, jurisdiction, place, or benefice with cure, or without cure, or in any ecclesiastical living whatsoever, this oath in manner and form following, the same to be taken by every one, whom it concerneth, in his own person, and not by a proctor.

I N. N. do swear that I have made no simoniacal payment, contract, or promise, directly or indirectly, by my self, or by any other, to my knowledge or with my consent, to any person or persons whatsoever, for or concerning the procuring and obtaining of this ecclesiastical dignity, place, preferment, office, or living (respectively and particularly naming the same whereunto he is admitted, instituted, collated, installed, or confirmed) nor will at any time hereafter perform or satisfy any such kind of payment, contract, or promise made by any other without my knowledge or consent. So help me God through Jesus Christ.

And for the better expressing of this cursed abuse, we ordain and appoint, that if any clerk, or any other with his consent shall seal any bond or bill to any person or persons, with condition of resignation of his benefice, whereto he is to be, or hath been presented, or shall make or covenant to make any lease of the profits of the said benefice, or any part thereof unto the patron, or any belonging to him, or any other person, to his or their use, to continue during his incumbency, or for above three years, or with notable diminution of the rent under the true value, he shall be holden for convict of simony, and proceeded against according to the severity of the ancient canons in that behalf.

For remedy of the smallness of the maintenance of the clergy, we ordain, that when there is in one parish a rectory and vicarage, or portion of tithes collative, the bishop shall unite them perpetually; and those unions the deans and chapters shall be bound to confirm to remain perpetually, as one entire benefice: and that no dispensations be granted to hold more than one benefice of greater value than forty pounds English per annum, but to such only as shall be very well able and sufficient to discharge his duty, having taken the degree of a master of arts at least, in some university within his majesty's dominions, and being a public and sufficient preacher licensed. Provided, that he who is qualified as aforesaid, shall always reside in one of his benefices, and some reasonable time of every year in each of them. And lastly, that he have under him, wher where he doth not reside, a curate able to catechize and instruct the people, to have such maintenance as to the ordinary shall seem fit.

XXXVII. Absence of beneficed men, and livings appropriated to be supplied by curates that are allowed preachers.

Every beneficed man licensed by the laws of this realm (upon urgent occasions of other service) not to reside upon his benefice, shall cause his cure to be supplied by a curate that is a sufficient and licensed preacher, if the worth of the benefice will bear it. But whosoever hath two benefices, shall maintain a preacher licensed in the benefice where he doth not reside, except he preach himself at both of them usually. Also every beneficed man not allowed to be a preacher, shall procure sermons to be preached in his cure once every month at the least by preachers lawfully licensed, if his living in the judgment of the ordinary will be able to bear it. And upon every Sunday, when there shall not be a sermon preached in his cure, he or his curate shall read one of the homilies prescribed by authority, to the intents aforesaid. And as for those churches where all the tithes both great and small are taken by the appropriator, we ordain, that the bishop of the diocese, according to the laws of the church, shall allot out of the said appropriation such maintenance to a sufficient curate, as in equity in his discretion shall seem meet and competent.

XXXVIII. None to be curates but allowed by the bishop.

No curate or minister shall be permitted to serve in any place without examination and trial first to be made of his sufficiency, sobriety, and fitness every way for the ministration whereunto he is to be deputed; having respect to the greatness of the cure, and meetness of the party; and being found worthy, he shall be admitted by the bishop of the diocese in writing under his hand and seal. And the said curates and ministers, if they remove from one diocese to another, shall not be by any means admitted to serve, without testimony of the bishop of the diocese, or ordinary of the place, as aforesaid, whence they came, in writing, of their honesty, ability, and conformity to the ecclesiastical laws of the church of Ireland. Nor any shall serve more than two churches or chapels in one day, and those to be in a convenient distance, and unless the said church or chapel, where such a minister shall serve in two places, be not able in the judgment of the bishop or ordinary, as aforesaid, to maintain a curate. Provided, that no clergyman holding any benefice in title, shall by this constitution be debarred from nominating an able curate to such benefice, so often as the said cure shall be void, to be examined and admitted by the bishop as aforesaid.

XXXIX. Strangers not admitted to preach without licence.

Neither the minister, churchwardens, or other officers of any parochial or collegiate church shall suffer any stranger to preach unto the people in their churches, except they know him to be sufficiently authorized thereto, as is aforesaid. And if any in his sermon shall publish any doctrine, either strange, or disagreeing from the word of God, or from the articles of religion generally received in the churches of England and Ireland, they shall by their letters subscribed with some of their hands that heard him, so soon as may be, give notice of the same to the bishop of the diocese, that he may determine the matter, and take such order therein as he shall think convenient.

XL. Ministers to confer with recusants.

Every minister being a preacher, and having any popish recusant or recusants in his parish, and thought fit by the bishop of the diocese, shall labour diligently with them from time to time, thereby to reclaim them from their errors. And if he be not a preacher, or not such a preacher; then he shall procure (if he can possibly) some that are preachers so qualified, to take pains with them for that purpose. If he can procure none, then he shall inform the bishop of the diocese thereof, who shall not only appoint some neighbour preacher, or preachers adjoining, to take that labour upon them; but himself also (as his important affairs will permit him) shall use his best endeavour by instruction, persuasion, and all good means he can devise, to reclaim both them, and all other within his diocese so affected.

XLI. Ministers to visit the sick.

When any person is dangerously sick in any parish (although they have not formerly resorted to the church) the minister or curate having knowledge thereof, shall resort unto him or her (if the disease be not known or probably suspected to be infectious) to instruct and comfort them in their distress, according to the order of the communion book, if he be no preacher; or if he be a preacher, then as he shall think most needful and convenient. And when any is passing out of this life, a bell shall be tolled, and the minister shall not then slack to do his last duty. And after the party's death (if so it fall out) there shall be rung no more but one short peal, and one other before the burial, and one after the burial.

No ecclesiastical persons shall at any time, other than for their honest necessities, so much as resort to any taverns or alehouses, neither shall they board or lodge in any such places. Furthermore, they shall not give themselves to any base or servile labour, or to drinking, or riot, spending their time idly by day or by night, nor shall they give themselves to playing at dice, cards or tables, or any other game unbeseeming their function; but at all times convenient they shall hear or read somewhat of the holy scriptures, or shall occupy themselves with some other honest study or exercise; always doing the things which shall appertain to honesty, and endeavouring to profit the church of God, having always in mind that they ought to excel others in purity of life, and should be examples to the people to live well and christianly, under pain of ecclesiastical censures to be inflicted with severity according to the qualities of their offences. We do likewise constitute and appoint, that archbishops and bishops shall not intermit to use the accustomed apparel of their degrees. Likewise all deans, masters of colleges, archdeacons, and prebendaries, in cathedral and collegiate churches (being priests or deacons) doctors in divinity, law, and physic, batchelors in divinity, masters of arts, and batchellors of law, having any ecclesiastical living, shall usually wear gowns with standing collars, and sleeves straight at the hands; or wide sleeves, as is used in the universities, with hoods, or tippets of silk or sarcenet, and square caps in places and times convenient. And that all other ministers, admitted or to be admitted into that function, shall also usually wear the like apparel as is aforesaid, except tippets only. We do further in like manner ordain, that all the said ecclesiastical persons above mentioned shall usually wear in their journeys cloaks with sleeves commonly called priest cloaks, without guards, welts, long buttons, or cuts. And no ecclesiastical persons shall wear any coif, or wrought nightcap, but only plain nightcaps of black silk, satin, or velvet. In all which particulars concerning the apparel here prescribed, our meaning is not to attribute any holiness, or special worthiness to the said garments, but for decency, gravity, and order. In private houses, and in their studies the said persons ecclesiastical may use any comely and scholar like apparel. Provided that it be not cut or pinkt, and that in public they go not in their doublet or hose without coats or cassocks; and also that they wear not any light coloured stockings.

XLIII. Of consecrating of churches.

As often as churches are newly built, where formerly there were not, or churchyards appointed for burial, they shall be dedicated and consecrated. Provided, that the ancient churches and churchyards, shall not be put to any base and unworthy use.

XLIV. A terrier of glebe lands, and other possessions belonging to churches to be made.

We ordain, that the archbishops and all bishops within their several dioceses, shall procure, as much as in them lieth, that a true note and terrier of all the lands, glebes, meadows, gardens, orchards, houses, stocks, implements, tenements, and portions of tithes, and all rights whatsoever, which are in possession, or of right do belong to their several sees, or to any dignity, parsonage, or vicarage, or rural prebend, within any of their dioceses, be taken by the view of honest men in every parish, by the appointment of the said archbishops or bishops, whereof the minister to be one, and be laid up in their several registries to the use of posterity. And the archbishops and bishops shall in their visitations carefully provide, that this canon be observed, and that the said terrier be renewed every ten years. And no minister shall make a lease of his glebelands, or of his benefice, or the profits or means thereof, above the term of three years at the uttermost, saving unto all patentees from his majesty such power as is, or hereafter shall be granted to them in their patents, to demise their glebe, or any part thereof.

XLV. Payment of tithes to be made.

Forasmuch as every man is bound to pay his tithes, no man shall by colour of duty omitted by their curates, detain their tithes, and so requite one wrong with another, or be his own judge; but shall truly pay the same, as hath been accustomed, to their parsons, vicars and curates, without any restraint or diminution. And for such lack and default, as they can justly find, in their parsons, vicars, and curates, they shall seek for reformation to their ordinaries, and other superiors; who upon complaint and due reproof thereof, shall reform the same accordingly.

In every parish church and chapel within this realm shall be provided one parchment book, at the charge of the parish, wherein shall be written the day and year of every christening, wedding, and burial, which shall be in the parish, from the time that this canon shall be established. And for the safe keeping of the said book, the churchwardens, at the charge of the parish, shall provide one sure coffer with three locks and keys, whereof the one to remain with the minister, and the other two with the church wardens several; so that neither the minister without the churchwardens, nor the churchwardens without the minister shall at any time take that book out of the said coffer. And henceforth, upon every Sabbath day, immediately after morning and evening prayer, the minister and churchwardens shall take the said parchment book out of the said coffer; and the minister in the presence of the churchwardens shall write and record in the said book the names of all persons christened, together with the names and surnames of their parents; and also the names of all persons married and buried in that parish the week before by the minister or his curate, and the day and the year of every such christening, marriage, and burial. And that done, they shall lay up the book in the coffer as before. And the minister and churchwardens unto every page of that book (when it shall be filled with such inscriptions) shall subscribe their names. And the churchwardens shall once every year, within one month after the twenty fifth day of March, transmit unto the bishop of the diocese, or his chancellor a true copy of the names of all persons persons christened, married, or buried in their parish in the year before (ended the said twenty fifth day of March) and the certain days and months, in which every such christening, marriage, and burial was had, to be subscribed with the hands of the said minister and churchwardens, to the end the same may faithfully be preserved in the registry of the said bishop, which certificate shall be received without fee. And if the minister or churchwardens shall be negligent in the performance of any thing herein contained, it shall be lawful for the bishop, or his chancellor to convene them, and proceed against every of them, as contemners of this our constitution.

XLVII. None to marry within the degrees prohibited.

No persons shall marry within the degrees prohibited by the laws of God, and expressed in a table set forth by authority in England in the year of our Lord God one thousand five hundred and sixty three. And all marriages so made and contracted, shall be adjudged incestuous and unlawful, and consequently shall be dissolved, as void from the beginning. And the parties so married, shall be by course of law separated. And the aforesaid table shall be in every church publickly set up, and fixed at the charge of the parish.

XLVIII. None to marry under twenty one years without their parents consent.

No children under the age of twenty one years compleat shall contract themselves, or marry without the consent of their parents, or of their guardians and governors, if their parents be deceased.

XLIX. Security to be taken at the granting of licences to marry without publication of banns, and under what conditions.

The security mentioned shall contain these conditions: first, that at the time of the granting every such licence, there is not any impediment of precontract, consanguinity, affinity, or other lawful cause, to hinder the said marriage: secondly, that there is not any controversy or suit depending in any court before any ecclesiastical judge, touching any contract or marriage of either of the said parties with any other: thirdly, that they have obtained thereunto the express consent of their parents (if they be living) or otherwise of their guardians or governors: lastly, that they shall celebrate the said matrimony publickly in the parish church or chapel where one of them dwelleth, and in no other place; and that, between the hours of eight and twelve in the forenoon; neither in the time of Lent, nor of any public fast, nor of the solemn festivities of the nativity, resurrection, and ascension of our Lord, or of the descension of the Holy Ghost.

L. Oaths to be taken for the conditions.

For the avoiding of all fraud and collusion in the obtaining of such licences and dispensations;

we further constitute and appoint, that before any licence for the celebration of matrimony, without publication of banns be had and granted, it shall appear to the judge by the oaths of two sufficient witnesses, one of them to be known to the aforesaid judge himself, or to some other person of good reputation then present, and known likewise to the said judge; that the express consent of the parents or parent (if one be dead) or guardians or guardian of the parties is thereunto had and obtained. And furthermore, that one of the parties personally swear, that he believeth there is no let or impediment of precontract, kindred or alliance, or of any other lawful cause whatsoever; nor any suit commenced in any ecclesiastical court, to bar, or hinder the proceeding of the said matrimony, according to the tenor of the aforesaid licence.

LI. An exception for those that are in widowhood.

If both the parties which are to marry, being in widowhood, do seek a faculty, for the forbearing of banns; then the clause beforementioned, requiring the parents consent, may be omitted; but the parishes where they dwell both, shall be expressed in the licence, as also the parish named where the marriage shall be celebrated. And if any having power to grant licence, shall offend in the premises, or any part thereof, he shall for every time so offending, be suspended from the execution of his office for the space of six months; and every such licence or dispensation, shall be held void to all effects and purposes, as if there had never been any such granted, and the parties marrying by virtue thereof, shall be subject to the punishments, which are appointed for clandestine marriages.

LII. Ministers not to marry any person without licence or banns.

No minister of what place soever, nor under colour of any peculiar liberty or privilege, claimed to appertain to any church or chapel, shall upon pain of deprivation, if he be beneficed, or degradation, if he be not beneficed, celebrate matrimony between any persons, without a faculty or licence granted, except the banns of matrimony have been first published three several Sundays or holydays, in the time of divine service, in the parish churches and chapels wherein the said parties have dwelled, by the space of three months before. Neither shall any minister upon the like pain, under any pretence whatsoever, joyn any persons in marriage at any unreasonable times, but only between the hours of eight and twelve in the forenoon; nor in any private place, but either in the said churches or chapels where one of them dwelleth, and likewise in time of divine service, or when banns are thrice asked before, the parties and governors of the parties to be married, being under the age of twenty one years shall either personally, or by sufficient testimony signify to him their consents given to the said marriage.

LIII. No

LIII. No sentences for divorce to be given upon the sole confession of the parties.

Forasmuch as matrimonial causes have been always reckoned and reputed amongst the weightiest, and therefore require the greater caution, when they come to be handled, and debated in judgment, especially in causes wherein matrimony, having been in the church duly solemniz'd, is required upon any suggestion, or pretext whatsoever, to be dissolved or annulled; we do straitly charge and enjoyn, that in all proceedings to divorce and nullities of matrimony, good circumspection and advice be used, and that the truth may, as far as is possible, be sifted out by the deposition of witnesses, and other lawful proofs and evictions, and that credit be not given to the sole confession of the parties themselves, howsoever taken upon oath, either within or without the court.

LIV. No sentence of divorce to be given but in open court.

No sentence shall be given either for separation "a thoro et mensa," or for annulling of pretended matrimony, but in open court, and in the seat of justice. And that with the knowledge and consent either of the archbishop within his province, or of the bishop within his diocese, or "sede vacante," of the guardians of the spiritualities, or the judge of the prerogative, in their several jurisdictions and courts, and concerning them only, that are then dwelling under their jurisdiction.

LV. In all sentences for divorce, bond to be taken for not marrying during each others life.

In all sentences pronounced only for divorce and separation "a thoro et mensa," there shall be a caution and restraint inserted in the act of the said sentence, that the parties so separated shall live chastly and continently, neither shall they during each others life, contract matrimony with any other person; and for the better observing of this last clause, the said sentence of divorce shall not be pronounced, until the party or parties requiring the same, have given good sufficient caution and security into the court, that they will not any way break or transgress the said restraint or prohibition. And if any judge aforesaid, giving sentence of divorce or separation, shall not fully keep and observe the premises, he shall be suspended from the exercise of his office for the space of a whole year.

LVI. The order of jurisdiction to be made.

For the avoiding of the unjust vexation of the people, and for the better preserving of order in the exercise of ecclesiastical jurisdiction, we ordain and appoint, that the probate of all wills, and granting administration of the goods of any defunct, shall be had before the bishop of the diocese where he dwelled, unless it do appear, that the said defunct had goods to the value of five pounds sterling, in any other diocese; in which case the said probate, and granting administrations shall be referred to the Prerogative court; provided, that if any die "in itinere," the goods that he hath about him at that present, shall not cause his testament, or the administration to be liable to the Prerogative court. And the same order shall be holden in appeals; without passing by the intermediate jurisdiction, upon pain of nullity in all acts contrary to this canon. And if any judge of the Prerogative court, or any his surrogate, or his register, or apparitor shall cite or cause to be cited, "ex officio," any man to the intents aforesaid, contrary to this canon, not having knowledge, that the probate of a will, or granting administration or devolution of the cause, do appertain to his cognizance, he shall restore to the party so cited all his costs and charges, and the acts and proceedings in that behalf, shall be held void and frustrate: which expences, if the said judge, or register, or apparitor shall refuse accordingly to pay, he shall be suspended from the exercise of his office, until he yield to the performance thereof.

We do ordain and appoint, that no double quarrels shall be hereafter granted out of the archbishops or Prerogative court, at the suit of any clerk presented to any benefice, except he shall first take his personal oath, that the space of two months at the least is expired, since he first tendred his presentation to the bishop, and that he refused to grant him institution thereupon, under pain of suspension of the granter thereof from the execution of his office for half a year, and nullity of the said double quarrel, so unduly procured, to all intents and purposes.

LVIII. Inhibitions not to be granted without the subscription of an advocate.

That the jurisdictions of bishops may be preserved, as near as may be, entire and free from prejudice; and that for the behoof of the subjects of this land better provision be made, that henceforward they be not grieved with frivolous and wrongful suits and molestations; it is ordained and provided, that no inhibition shall be granted out of any court belonging to the archbishop of the province, or the supreme prerogative, at the instance of any party, unless it be subscribed by an advocate, practising in the said court, which the said advocate shall do freely, not taking any fee for the same, except the party prosecuting the suit, do voluntarily bestow some gratuity upon him for his counsel and advice in the said case. The like course shall be taken in granting forth any inhibition at the instance of any party, by the bishop or his chancellor against the archdeacon, or any other person exercising ecclesiastical jurisdiction; and if in the court or consistory of any bishop there be no advocate at all, then shall the subscription of a proctor practising in the same court, be held sufficient.

LIX. Inhi-

LIX. Inhibitions not to be granted, until the appeal be exhibited to the judges.

It is further ordered and decreed, that henceforward no inhibition be granted by occasion of any interlocutory decree, or in cause of correction whatsoever, except under the form aforesaid. And moreover, that before the going out of any such inhibition, the appeal itself, or a copy thereof avouched by oath to be just and true, be exhibited to the judge or his lawful surrogate, whereby he may be fully informed both of the quality of the crime, and the cause of the grievance, before the granting forth of the said inhibition. And every appellant, or his lawful proctor, shall before the obtaining of any such inhibition, shew and exhibit to the judge or his surrogate, in writing, a true copy of those acts wherewith he complaineth himself to be aggrieved, and from which he appealeth; or shall take a corporal oath, that he hath performed his diligence and true endeavour for the obtaining of the same, and could not obtain it at the hands of the register in the country, or his deputy, tendering him his fee. And if any judge or register shall either procure or permit any inhibition to be sealed, so as is said, contrary to the form and limitation above specified, let him be suspended from the execution of his office for the space of three months. If any proctor, or other person whatsoever by his appointment shall offend in any of the premisses, either by making or sending out any inhibition, contrary to the tenor of the said premisses, let him be removed from the exercise of his office for the space of a whole year, without hope of release or restoring.

LX. Solemn denunciation of parties excommunicated.

All ordinaries shall in their several jurisdictions carefully see and give order, that as well those who for revolting, and still obstinate refusing to frequent divine service, established by public authority within this realm of Ireland, as also (especially of the better sort and condition) who for notorious contumacy, or notable crimes stand lawfully excommunicate (unless within three months immediately after the said sentence of excommunication pronounced against them, they reform themselves, and obtain the benefit of absolution) by every six months ensuing, as well in the parish church as in the cathedral church of the diocese in which they remain, by the minister openly, in the time of divine service, upon some Sunday declared and pronounced excommunicate; that others may be thereby admonished and excited to refrain their company and society.

LXI. Notorious crimes and scandals to be certified into ecclesiastical courts by presentments.

If any offend their brethren either by adultery, whoredom, incest, or drunkenness, or by swearing, ribaldry, usury, or any other uncleanness and wickedness of life; the churchwardens, or questmen, and sidemen, in their next presentments to their ordinaries, shall faithfully present all and every of the said offenders, to the intent that they, and every of them may be punished by the severity of the laws, according to their deserts; and such notorious offenders shall not be admitted to the holy communion till they be reformed.

LXII. Schismatics to be presented.

If the churchwardens, or questmen, or assistants, do, or shall know any man within the parish, or elsewhere, that is an hinderer of the word of God to be read or sincerely preached, or of the execution of these our constitutions, or a fautor of any usurped or foreign power by the laws of this realm justly rejected, and taken away, or a defender of popish or erroneous doctrine, they shall detect and present the same to the bishop of the diocese, or ordinary of the place, to be censured and punished, according to such ecclesiastical laws as are prescribed in that behalf.

LXIII. Not communicants at Easter to be presented.

The minister, churchwardens, questmen, and assistants of every parish church and chapel, shall yearly within forty days after Easter, exhibit to the bishop or his chancellor, the names and surnames of all the parishioners, as well men as women; which being at the age of sixteen years received not the communion at Easter before.

LXIV. Ministers may present.

Because it often comes to pass that the churchwardens, sidemen, questmen, and such others of the laity, as are to take care for the suppressing of sin and wickedness in their several parishes, as much as in them lieth, by admonition, reprehension, and denunciation to their ordinaries, do forbear to discharge their duties therein, either through fear of their superior, or through negligence more than were fit, the licentiousness of these times considered; we ordain, that hereafter every parson and vicar, or in the lawful absence of any parson or vicar, then their curates and substitutes may join in every presentment with the said churchwardens, sidemen, and the rest above mentioned, at the times hereafter limited, if the said churchwardens and the rest will present such enormities as are apparent in the parish; or if they will not, then every such parson and vicar, or in their absence, as is aforesaid, their curates may themselves present to the ordinaries at such times, and when else they think it meet, all such crimes as they have in charge otherwise as by them (being the person that should have the chief care for the suppressing of sin and impiety in their parishes) shall be thought to require due reformation. Provided always, that if any one confess his secret and hidden sin to the minister, for the unburthening of his conscience, and to receive spiritual consolation and ease of his mind from him; we do not any way bind the said minister by this our constitution, tution, but do straitly charge and admonish him, that he do not at any time reveal, and make known to any person whatsoever, any crime or offence so committed to his trust and secrecy (except they be such crimes, as by the laws of this realm his own life may be called in question for concealing of the same) under pain of irregularity.

LXV. Ministers and churchwardens not to be sued for presenting.

Whereas for the reformation of criminous person, and disorders in every parish, the churchwardens, questmen, sidemen, and such other officers as are sworn, and the minister charged to present as well the crimes and disorders committed by the said criminous persons, as also the common fame which is spread abroad of them, whereby they are often maligned, and sometimes troubled by the said delinquents, or their friends; we do admonish and exhort all judges, both ecclesiastical and temporal, as they regard and reverence the fearful judgment seat of the highest judge, that they admit not in any of their courts, any complaint, plea, suit, or suits against any such churchwardens, questmen, sidemen, or other church officers, for making any such presentments, nor against any minister for any presentment he shall make, tending to the restraint of shameless impiety: and considering that the rules both of charity and government do presume, that they did nothing therein of malice, but for the discharge of their conscience.

LXVI. Churchwardens not bound to present oftner than twice a year.

No churchwardens, questmen, or sidemen of any parish shall be enforced to exhibit their presentments to any having ecclesiastical jurisdiction, above once in every year, where it hath been no oftner used, nor above twice in any diocese whatsoever; the bishop's visitation whereof to be one: for the which presentments of every parish church or chapel, the register of any court, where they are to be exhibited, shall not receive in one year above four pence, under pain for every offence therein of suspension from the execution of his office for the space of a month, toties quoties. Provided always, that as good occasion shall require it, it shall be lawful for every minister, churchwarden, and sideman to present offenders as often as they shall think meet; and likewise for any godly disposed person, or for any ecclesiastical judge upon knowledge, or notice given unto him or them of any enormous crime within his jurisdiction, to move the minister, churchwardens, or sidemen, as they tender the glory of God, and reformation of sin, to present the same, if they should find sufficient cause to induce them thereunto; that it may be in due time punished and reformed. Provided, that for these voluntary presentments there be no fee required or taken of them, under the pain foresaid.

LXVII. Churchwardens not to be troubled for not presenting oftner than twice a year.

No churchwardens, questmen, or sidemen shall be called or cited, but only at the said time or times before limited, to appear before any ecclesiastical judge whosoever, for refusing at other times to present any faults committed in their parishes, and punishable by ecclesiastical laws; neither shall they nor any of them, after their presentments exhibited at any of those times, be any further troubled for the same, except upon manifest and evident proof it may appear, that they did then wittingly and willingly omit to present some such public crime or crimes as they knew to be committed, or could not be ignorant, that there was then a public fame of them amongst divers honest and well reputed persons, or unless there be very just cause to call them for the explanation of their former presentments. In which case of wilful omission, their ordinaries shall proceed against them in such sort, as in causes of wilful perjury, in a court ecclesiastical, is already by law provided.

LXVIII. Convenient time to be assigned for framing presentments.

For the avoiding of such inconveniencies as heretofore have happened by the hasty making of bills of presentments, upon the days of the visitation and synods, it is ordered, that always hereafter every chancellor, archdeacon, commissary, and official, and every other person having ecclesiastical jurisdiction, at the ordinary time when the churchwardens are sworn; and the archbishops and bishops, when he or they do summon their visitation, shall deliver or cause to be delivered to the churchwardens, questmen, and sidemen of every parish, or to some of them such books of articles, as they, or any of them shall require for the year following, the said churchwardens, questmen, and sidemen to ground their presentments upon at such times, as they are to exhibit them. In which book shall be contained the form of the oath, which must be taken immediately before every such presentment. To the intent, that having before hand time sufficient not only to peruse and consider what their said oath shall be, but the articles also whereupon they are to ground their presentments; they may frame them at home both advisedly and truly, to the discharge of their own consciences, after they are sworn, as becometh honest and godly men.

LXIX. None to be cited into ecclesiastical courts by process of "Quorum nomina."

No bishop, chancellor, archdeacon, official, or other ecclesiastical judge, shall suffer any general process of "Quorum nomina" to be sent out of his court, except the names of all such as are thereby to be cited, shall be first expressly entred by the hand of the register, or his deputy, under the said processes; and the said processes and names be first subscribed by the

the judge or his deputy, and his seal thereto affixed. And we do further ordain, that when any person appeareth upon citation whatsoever, that if the next court day after there be not articles, or a libel put in against him, he shall, then be dismissed with his costs.

LXX. Maturity required in proceeding.

No man for neglect of appearance shall be excommunicated for the first absence, but shall be cited again upon the same process; and if he cannot be found, nor afterwards appear upon "viis et modis," then to be decreed "excommunicandum fore." Yet for preventing such neglect, and that the party querelant may sustain no detriment; hereby it is likewise ordered, that in causes of instance upon the appearance of any such person, he shall pay the charge past, before he be admitted to stand "rectus in curia." And in the end of every court the names of those that are decreed, shall be publickly read, to the intent that they may avoid the danger of the fearful sentence of excommunication. Which course also we ordain shall be holden with those that be already denounced excommunicate, before the time of the signifying of their obstinacy; to the end they and others may be admonished of the danger in which they stand, and to the aggravation of their obstinacy, if they continue in the same.

LXXI. No sentence of deprivation or deposition to be pronounced against a minister, but by the bishop.

When any minister is complained of in any ecclesiastical court, belonging to any bishop, for any crime, the chancellor, commissary, official, or any other, having ecclesiastical jurisdiction (to whom it shall appertain) shall expediate the cause by processes and other proceedings against him; and upon contumacy for not appearing, shall first suspend him, and afterward (his contumacy continuing) excommunicate him. But if he appear and submit himself to the course of law, then the matter being ready for sentence, and the merits of his offence exacting by law either deprivation from his living, or deposition from the ministry; no such sentence shall be pronounced by any person whatsoever, but only by the bishop, with the assistance of his chancellor, the dean (if they may conveniently be had) and some of the prebendaries, if the court be kept near the cathedral church, or of the archdeacon, if he may be had conveniently, and two others at the least, grave ministers and preachers, to be called by the bishop, when the court is kept in other places. It is likewise ordered, that no chancellor, commissary, official, or any other person shall exercise any ecclesiastical jurisdiction over a minister in causes criminal, except he himself have been admitted into the holy orders of priesthood.

LXXII. No act to be sped but in open court.

No chancellor, commissary, archdeacon, official, or any other person using ecclesiastical jurisdiction whatsoever, shall speed any judicial act, either of contentious or voluntary jurisdiction, except he have the ordinary register of that court, or his lawful deputy; or if he or they will not or cannot be present, then such persons as by law are allowed in that behalf, to write or speed the same under pain of suspension, "ipso facto."

LXXIII. No court to have more than one seal.

No chancellor, commissary, archdeacon, official, or any other exercising ecclesiastical jurisdiction, shall, without the bishop's consent, have any more than one seal for the sealing of all matters incident to his office; which seal shall always be kept either by himself, or by his lawful substitute exercising jurisdiction for him, and remaining within the jurisdiction of the said judge, or in the city or principal town of the county. This seal shall contain the title of that jurisdiction, which every of the said judges, or their deputies do execute.

LXXIV. Convenient places to be chosen for keeping of courts.

All chancellors, commissaries, archdeacons, officials, and all others exercising ecclesiastical jurisdiction, shall appoint such meet places for the keeping of their courts, by the assignment or approbation of the bishop of the diocese, as shall be convenient for entertainment of those, who are to make their appearance there, and most indifferent for their travel. And likewise they shall keep and end their courts in such convenient time, as every man may return homewards in as due season as may be.

LXXV. Peculiar and inferiour courts to exhibit the original copies of wills into the bishops registry.

Whereas deans, archdeacons, prebendaries, parsons, vicars, and others, exercising ecclesiastical jurisdiction, claim liberty to prove the last wills and testaments of persons deceased within their several jurisdictions, having no known nor certain registers, nor public places to keep their records in; by reason whereof many wills, rights and legacies, upon the death, or change of such persons and their private notaries, miscarry and cannot be found, to the great prejudice of his majesty's subjects; we therefore order and enjoin, that all possessors and exercisers of peculiar jurisdiction shall once in every year exhibit into the public registry of the bishop of the diocese, or of the dean and chapter, under whose jurisdiction the said peculiars are, every original testament of every person in that time deceased, and by them proved in their several peculiar jurisdictions; or a true copy of every such testament examined, subscribed, and sealed by the peculiar judge and his notary. Otherwise, if any of them fail so to do, the bishop of the diocese, or dean and chapter, unto whom the said jurisdictions do respectively belong, shall suspend the said parties, and every of them from the exercise of all such peculiar jurisdiction, until they have performed this our constitution.

LXXVI. The

LXXVI. The quality and oath of judges and surrogates.

No man shall hereafter be admitted a chancellor, commissary, official, or surrogate, to exercise any ecclesiastical jurisdiction, except he be of the full age of six and twenty years at the least, and one that is learned in the civil and ecclesiastical laws, and is at the least a master of arts or bachelor of law, and is reasonably well practised in the course thereof, as likewise well affected and zealously bent to religion, touching whose life and manners no evil example is had; and except before he enter into or execute any such office, he shall take the oath of the kings supremacy in the presence of the bishop, or in the open court; and shall declare his consent by subscription to the two first canons of this present synod. And also shall swear, that he will to the uttermost of his understanding deal uprightly and justly in his office, without respect of favour or reward; the said oaths and subscription to be recorded by a register then present. And it is likewise ordered, that every register shall take the said oath of supremacy, and subscribe as aforesaid, before he be admitted to exercise that office. And also, all chancellors, commissaries, officials, registers, and all others that do now possess or execute any places of ecclesiastical jurisdiction or service, shall before Christmas next in the presence of the archbishop or bishop, or in open court, under whom or where they exercise their offices, take the same oaths. Or upon refusal so to do, shall be suspended from the execution of their offices, untill they shall take the said oaths.

LXXVII. Proctors not to retain causes without the lawful assignment of the parties.

None shall procure in any cause whatsoever, unless he be thereunto constituted and appointed by the party himself, either before the judge, and by act in court; or unless in the beginning of the suit he be by a true and sufficient proxy thereunto warranted and enabled. We call that proxy sufficient, which is strengthened and confirmed by some authentical seal, the parties approbation, or at least his ratification therewithal concurring. All which proxies shall be forthwith by the said proctors exhibited into the court, and be safely kept and preserved by the register in the public registry of the said court. And if any register or proctor shall offend herein, he shall be secluded from the exercising of his office for the space of two months, without hope of release or restoring.

LXXVII. Proctors prohibited the oath "in animam domini sui."

Forasmuch as in the probate of testaments, and suits for administration of the goods of persons dying intestate, the oath usually taken by proctors of court "in animam constituentis," is found to be inconvenient; we do therefore decree and ordain, that every executor or suitor for administration shall personally repair to the judge in that behalf, or to his surrogate; and in his own person (and not by proctor) take the oath accustomed in these cases. But if by reason of sickness or age, or any other just let or impediment, he be not able to make his personal appearance before the judge; it shall be lawful for the judge (there being faith first made by a credible person of the truth of his said hinderance or impediment) to grant a commission to some grave ecclesiastical person, abiding near the party aforesaid, whereby he shall give power and authority to the said ecclesiastical person in his stead, to minister the accustomed oath abovementioned, to the executor, or suitor for such administration; requiring his said substitute, that by a faithful and trusty messenger he certify the said judge truly and faithfully, what he hath done therein. Lastly, we ordain and appoint, that no judge or register shall in any wise receive for the writing, drawing, or sealing of any such commission, above the sum of six shillings and eight pence; whereof one moiety to be for the judge, and the other for the register of the said court.

LXXIX. Proctors not to be clamorous in court.

Forasmuch as it is found by experience, that the loud and confused cries and clamors of proctors in the ecclesiastical courts in this kingdom are not only troublesome and offensive to the judge and advocates, but also give occasion to the standers by, of contempt and calumny toward the court itself; that more respect may be had to the dignity of the judge, than heretofore, and that causes may more commodiously be handled and dispatched; we charge, and enjoin, that all proctors in the said court do especially intend that the acts may be faithfully entred and set down by the register, according to the advice and direction of the advocate. That the said proctors refrain loud speech and brabbling, and behave themselves quietly and modestly, and that when either the judges or advocates, or any of them shall happen to speak, they presently be silent, upon pain of silencing for two whole terms, then immediately following every such offence of theirs. And if any of them shall the second time offend herein, and after due monition shall not reform himself, let him be for ever removed from his practice.

LXXX. The oath "de calumnia" not to be refused.

We ordain and appoint, that as well the actor, as his proctor and advocate (if they be required) shall take the oath "de calumnia," wheresoever in the suit the same shall be tendered before sentence, upon pain that the cause shall be dismissed by the judge, with costs for the party grieved.

LXXXI. Abuses to be reformed in registers.

If any register, or his deputy, or substitute whatsoever shall receive any certificate, without the knowlege and consent of the judge of the court, court, or willingly omit to cause any persons cited to appear upon any court day, to be called or unduly put off, and defer the examination of witnesses to be examined by a day set, and assigned by the judge, or do not obey and observe the said judicial, and lawful monition of the said judge, or omit to write, or cause to be written such citations and decrees as are to be put in execution, and set forth before the next court day, or shall not cause all testaments exhibited into his office, to be registred within a convenient time; or shall set down or enact, as decreed by the judge, any thing false or conceited by himself, and not so ordered and decreed by the judge; or in the transmission of processses to the judge "ad quem," shall add or insert any falshood or untruth, or omit any thing therein either by cunning or by gross negligence, or in cases of instance, or promoted of office, shall receive any reward in favour of either party, or be of counsel directly or indirectly, with either of the parties in suit, or in the execution of their office, shall do ought else maliciously or fraudulently, whereby the said ecclesiastical judge or his proceeding may be slandered or defamed; we will and ordain, that the said register or his deputy, or substitute offending in all or any the premisses, shall by the bishop of the diocese be suspended from the exercise of his office for the space of one, two, or three months, or more, according to the quality of the offence. And that some other public notary do execute and discharge all things pertaining to his office, during the time of his said suspension.

LXXXII. A certain rate of fees to all ecclesiastical officers.

No bishop, suffragan, chancellor, commissary, archdeacon, official, or any other exercising ecclesiastical jurisdiction whatsoever, nor any register of any ecclesiastical courts, nor any minister belonging to any of the said offices, or courts, shall hereafter (for any cause incident to their several offices) take or receive any other or greater fee, than such as are or shall be allowed by lawful authority in this kingdom, under pain that every such judge, officer or minister offending therein, shall be suspended from the exercise of their several offices, for the space of six months, for every such offence.

LXXXIII. A table of the rates of fees to be set up in courts and registries.

We do likewise constitute and appoint, that the registers belonging to every ecclesiastical judge, shall place two tables, containing the several rates and sums of all the said fees, one in the usual place or consistory where the court is kept, and the other in his registry; and both of them in such sort, as every man whom it concerneth, may without difficulty come to the view and perusal thereof, and take a copy of them. And if any register shall fail to place the said tables according to the tenor hereof, within the space of a month after the same hath been delivered to him by the bishop of the diocese;

he shall be suspended from the execution of his office, until he cause the same to be accordingly done. And the said table being once set up if he shall at any time remove, or suffer the same to be removed, hidden, or any way hindered from sight (contrary to the true meaning of this constitution) he shall for every offence be suspended from the exercise of his office, for the space of six months.

LXXXIV. The whole fees for shewing letters of orders, and other licences, due but once in every bishop's time.

Forasmuch as a chief and principal cause, and use of visitations is, that the archbishops, bishops, or other assigned by them to visit, may get some good knowlege of the state, sufficiency, and ability of the clergy, and other persons whom they are to visit; we think it convenient, that every parson, vicar, curate, schoolmaster, or other person licensed whosoever, do at the archbishop's or bishop's first visitation, or at the next visitation after his admission, shew and exhibit unto them his letters of orders, institution, and induction, and all other his dispensations, licences, or faculty whatsoever, to be by the said archbishops or bishops either allowed of, or (if there be just cause) disallowed and rejected; and being by them approved, to be (as the custom is) signed by the register. And that the whole fees accustomed be paid only once in the whole time of every archbishop or bishop; and afterwards but half of the said accustomed fees in every visitation, during the said bishop's continuance.

LXXXV. The number of apparitors restrained.

Forasmuch as we are desirous to redress such abuses and grievances, as are said to grow by sumners or apparitors; we think it meet, that the multitude of apparitors be (as much as is possible) abridged or restrained. Wherefore we decree and ordain, that no bishop, or archdeacon or their vicars or officials, or other inferior ordinaries shall depute, or have more apparitors to serve in their jurisdictions respectively, than one in every deanry at the most, besides the general apparitor of the bishop. All which apparitors, shall by themselves faithfully execute their offices; neither shall they, by any colour or pretence whatsoever, cause or suffer their mandates to be executed by any messengers or substitutes, unless it be upon some good cause to be first known and approved by the ordinary of the place. Moreover they shall not take upon them the office of promoters or informers for the court; neither shall they exact more or greater fees, than are in these our constitutions formerly prescribed. And if either the number of the apparitors deputed, shall exceed the foresaid limitation, or any of the said apparitors shall offend in any of the premisses; the persons deputing them, if they be bishops, shall upon admonition of their superior, discharge the persons exceeding the number so limited; if inferior ordinaries, they shall be suspended from the execution of their offices, until they have dismissed the apparitors by them so deputed; and the parties themselves so deputed, shall for ever be removed from the office of apparitors. And if being so removed, they desist not from the exercise of their said offices, let them be punished by ecclesiastical censures, as persons contumacious. Provided, that if upon experience the number of the said apparitors be too great in any diocese in the judgment of the archbishop of the province, they shall by him be so abridged, as he shall think meet and convenient.

LXXXVI. Parish clerks to be chosen by the minister.

No parish clerk, upon any vacation, shall be chosen but by the parson or vicar, or where there is no presentative or collative parson or vicar, by the minister of that place for the time being; which choice shall be signified by the said minister, vicar, or parson to the bishop of the diocese, to be by him approved. And if the parson, vicar, or curate shall fail to make choice of such a man, and present him to the bishop, to be by him allowed, by the space of forty days after the vacancy; in such case, the bishop shall have power to nominate and appoint a clerk for that place. And the said clerk shall be of twenty years of age at the least, and known to the said parson, vicar, or minister to be of honest conversation, and sufficient for his reading, writing, and also for his competent skill in singing (if it may be) and, where the minister is an English man, and many Irish in the parish, such a one, as shall be able to read those parts of the service, which shall be appointed to be read in Irish (if it may be) and the clerks so chosen shall be resident, and perform their duties in their own persons. For which they shall receive their due wages without diminution at such times, as have been accustomed. And if any question do arise concerning the said custom or wages, the bishop of the diocese shall set an order therein.

All churchwardens or questmen in every parish shall be chosen on Monday or Tuesday in Easter week, by the joint consent of the minister and the parishioners (if it may be) but if they cannot agree upon such a choice, then the minister shall choose one and the parishioners another; and without such a joint or several choice, none shall take upon them to be churchwardens, neither shall they continue any longer than one year in that office, except perhaps they may be chosen again in like manner. And upon the next consistory day after such election, they shall take their oath before the bishop or his chancellor; and in case the parish shall fail to joyn, or elect as is aforesaid, the ordinary shall supply the defect. And all churchwardens, at the end of their year, or within a month after at the most, shall before the minister and parishioners give up a just accompt of such money as they have received, and also what particularly they have bestowed in reparations and otherwise for the use of the church. And last of all, going out of their office, they shall truly deliver up to the parishioners whatsoever money or other things of right belonging to the church or parish, which remaineth in their hands, that it may be delivered over by them to the next churchwardens by bill indented.

The churchwardens of every parish, and two or more discreet persons in every parish to be chosen for sidemen or assistants by the minister and parishioners, if they can agree (otherwise to be appointed by the ordinary of the diocese) shall diligently see, that all the parishioners duly resort to their church upon all Sundays and holydays, and there to continue the whole time of divine service, and none to walk or stand idle, or talking in the churchyard or churchporch, during that time. But especially they shall see, that in every meeting of the congregation, peace be well kept; and that all persons excommunicated, and so denounced, be kept out of the church, during the time of divine service. And all such as shall be found slack, or negligent in resorting to the church (having no great or urgent cause of absence) they shall earnestly call upon them; and after due monition (if they amend not) they shall present them to the ordinary of the place. The choice of which persons, viz. churchwardens, or sidemen or assistants, shall be yearly made in Easter week.

The office of all churchwardens and sidemen, shall be reputed ever hereafter to continue, until the new churchwardens that shall succeed them be sworn, which shall be the first court after Easter, or according to the direction of the ordinary; which time so appointed, shall always be the time in every year, or one of the two times, when the churchwardens and sidemen of every parish shall exhibit to their several ordinaries the presentments of such enormities, as have happened in their parishes since the last presentments. And this duty they shall perform before the newly chosen churchwardens and sidemen be sworn; and shall not be suffered to pass over the said presentments, to those that are newly come into office and are (by intendment) ignorant of such crimes, under pain of those censures, which are appointed for the reformation of such dalliers and dispensers with their own consciences, and oaths.

XC. The duty of churchwardens, touching such persons as are out of the church in the time of God's worship on Sundays or holydays.

The churchwardens and their assistants shall warn inholders, taverners, victuallers, and alehousekeepers, that they sell no meat or drink, and that they receive none into their tavern or alehouse, all the time wherein there is preaching or or celebration of divine service upon Sundays or holydays; if any do contrary upon contempt or stubbornness, they shall present both him and them, whom he received, by name in the next visitation. Also they shall see, that none of those light wanderers in markets, and pelting sellers, which carry about and sell pins, points, and other small trifles, whom they call pedlars, set out their wares to sale; and that no beggars or idle persons abide either in the churchyard, or near the church, all that time; but shall cause them either to come in or to depart.

They shall also see, that in every meeting of the congregation peace be well kept, and that none behave themselves rudely or disorderly in the church. And to that end, they shall warn the people, that they bring not with them to the church dogs, hawks with bells, or children which are not so nurtured as they can be kept quiet in their seats, without running up and down. Neither shall they suffer any person to disturb the service or sermon, either by untimely ringing of bells, or by walking, talking, laughing, or any other noise, which may hinder the minister, or offend the people. And the names of all such as offend in this kind, they shall truly, and personally present in the ordinaries visitations.

XCII. To keep the churches from being profaned at all other times.

They shall suffer no plays, feasts, banquets, suppers, churchales, drinkings, exposing any wares to sale, temporal courts or leets, lay-juries, musters, commissions (other than for causes ecclesiastical) playing at ball, or any other profane usage, to be kept in the church, chapel, or churchyard; neither the bells to be rung either in the feast of All Souls, or upon any holydays or eves, abrogated by the book of Common Prayer, neither for months or twelve months minds, or remembrances of the dead, nor at any time at all prohibited by the bishop.

They shall take care and provide, that the churches be well and sufficiently repaired, and so from time to time kept and maintained; that the windows be well glazed, and that the floors be kept paved, plain, and even; and all things there in such an orderly and decent sort (without dust, or any thing that may be noisom or unseemly) as best becometh the house of God. The like care they shall take that the churchyards be well and sufficiently repaired, fenced, and maintained with walls, rails, and pales, as have been in each place accustomed, at their charge, unto whom, by law the same appertaineth.

XCIV. To furnish all churches with things necessary for the celebration of divine service, preaching, and administration of the sacraments.

They shall provide in every church, at the common charge of the parish two books of Common Prayer; one for the minister, and the other for the clerk, with all convenient speed; but at farthest, within six months after the publishing of these canons. And likewise the Bible of the last translation, set forth in the time of king James, of blessed memory. And where all, or the most part of the people are Irish, they shall provide also the said books in the Irish tongue, so soon as they may be had. The charge of these Irish books being to be born also wholly by the parish. They shall also at the same common charge provide a fit seat for the minister to read service in, a comely and decent pulpit, to be set in a convenient place for the preaching of God's word; and font of stone set in the ancient usual place for the ministration of baptism; together with a fair table, to be placed at the east end of the church or chancel, and a cup of silver for the celebration of the holy communion. Which table also shall stand covered in time of divine service with a carpet of silk, or other decent stuff, thought meet by the ordinary of the place (if any question be made of it) and with a fair linen cloth at the time of the ministration, as becometh that table.

XCV. To provide things fitting for every communion, and to observe those that come, or come not to the same.

Likewise they shall at the charge of the parish, against the time of every communion, with the advice and direction of the minister, provide a sufficient quantity of fine white bread, and of good and wholsom wine, for the number of communicants that shall from time to time there receive; which wine they shall cause to be brought to the communion table in a clean and sweet standing pot, or stoop of pewter, if not of purer metal. Also they shall mark, as well as the minister, whether all and every of the parishioners come so often every year to the holy communion, as the laws and our constitutions do require; and whether any strangers come often and commonly from other parishes to their church; and shall shew their minister of them, lest perhaps they be admitted to the Lord's table amongst others which they shall forbid, and remit such home to their own parish churches and ministers, there to receive the communion with the rest of their own neighbours.

XCVI. To provide a chest for alms in every church.

They shall provide and have, within three months next after the publishing of these constitutions, a strong chest with a hole in the upper part thereof, to be provided at the charge of the parish, having three keys; of which,

One shall remain in the custody of the parson, vicar, or curate; and the other two, in the custody of the churchwardens for the time being. Which chest they shall set and fasten in the most convenient place, to the intent the parishioners may put into it the alms for their poor neighbours. And the parson, vicar, or curate shall diligently from time to time (and especially when men make their testaments) call upon, exhort, and move their neighbours to confer and give (as they may well spare) to the said chest; declaring unto them, that whereas heretofore they have been diligent to bestow much substance otherwise, than God commanded, upon superstitious uses; now they ought at this time, to be much more ready to help the poor and needy: knowing, that to relieve the poor, is a sacrifice which pleaseth God; and that also, whatsoever is given for their comfort, is given to Christ himself, and is so accepted of him, that he will mercifully reward the same. The which alms and devotion of the people the keepers of the keys shall yearly, quarterly, or oftner (as need requireth) take out of the chest, and distribute the same in presence of most of the parish, or six of the chief of them, to be truly and faithfully delivered to their most poor and needy neighbours.

XCVII. To abolish all monuments of superstition.

Moreover they shall (with the approbation of the ordinary of the place) see, that all rood-lofts, in which wooden crosses stood, all shrines, and all coverings of shrines, and all other monuments of feigned miracles, pilgrimages, idolatry, and superstition be clean taken away and removed.

XCVIII. None to teach school without licence; and curates desired to teach, to be licensed before others.

It shall not be lawful for any to teach the Latin tongue, or to instruct children either in public school or private house, but such as shall be allowed by the ordinary of the place, under his hand and seal, being found meet as well for his learning and dexterity in teaching, as for sober and honest conversation; and also for right understanding of God's true religion (saving to all patrons and founders of schools the right of nomination) and in what parish soever there is a curate, which is a master of arts, or batchelor of arts, or is otherwise well able to teach youth, and will willingly so do, for the better encrease of his living, and training of children in the principles of true religion; we will and ordain, that the licence to teach grammar shall be granted to none by the ordinary of that place, but only to the said minister or schoolmaster. Provided always, that this constitution shall not extend to any parish, where there is a public school founded already. In which case, we think it not meet to allow any to teach grammar, but only him that is allowed for the said public school.

XCIX. The duty of schoolmasters.

All schoolmasters and ushers shall endeavour to train up the children committed to their charge, in good learning, civility, and piety. And in the Latin tongue they shall teach the grammar, set forth in England by king Henry the eighth, and so continued ever since, and none other. They shall also teach such other books, as shall be allowed and appointed by the bishop of the diocese. Provided, that according to the privilege granted to the university, near Dublin, logic and philosophy shall not be taught in grammar schools. Provided also, that none be admitted or licensed to be a schoolmaster or usher within this kingdom, unless he first by his subscription testify his consent to the two first canons. And also, that every archbishop, and bishop, and other ordinary, having ecclesiastical jurisdiction, shall by censures of the church respectively compel all such as are subject to their jurisdiction, which do now teach school, or hereafter shall presume to teach school, not having testified their consent by subscription as aforesaid, to desist from teaching of school.

C. The authority of this national synod established.

This sacred synod, being the representative body of the church of Ireland, in the name of Christ, and by the king's authority lawfully assembled, doth pronounce and decree, that if any within this nation shall despise and condemn the constitutions thereof (being by the said regal power ratified and confirmed) or affirm, that none are to be subject thereunto, but such as were present and gave their voices unto them; he shall be excommunicated, and not restored, until he shall publicly revoke his error.

The archbishop of Canterbury's letter for relief of the poor ministers in the Palatinate. Reg. Laud fol. 224. b.

SALUTEM in Christo." My very good lord. It hath pleased his majesty, out of his princely compassion towards the distressed estate of the ministers in the Palatinate, to grant them his letters patents for a collection throughout this kingdom of the charitable contributions of well minded people towards their relief; and though not many years past, they have had some former collections in this kind, yet having lately suffered sundry calamities by the continual incursions of their enemies, they are now in very low and dangerous estate, and with the same fears attending. These are therefore heartily to pray your lordship, that you will

will take care by some of your officers, that the briefs, which are herewith sent you by his majesty's command, be diligently dispersed into the several parishes within your diocese, and that the collection, which shall be made thereupon, be duly, carefully, and with all convenient speed returned to me, according to the tenor of his majesty's said letters patents. Thus not doubting of your best assistance and furtherance in a work so pious and full of charity, I leave you to the grace of God, and rest

Your lordship's very loving friend and brother;

I pray your lordship, upon the receipt of these my letters to take care, that the briefs be presently dispersed, and thereupon to give me notice in writing accordingly.

Orders enjoined by the most reverend father in God William, lord archbishop of Cant. his grace, primate of all England and metropolitan, to be observed by the master, warden, fellows, chaplains, and others of the college of St. Mary near the city of Winchester, made upon their answers unto the articles of enquiry given them in charge in his grace's metropolitical visitation there actually exercised anno Domini M.DC.XXXV. Ibid. fol. 147. b.

I. IN PRIMIS, That none who is incorporate a member of your college of what quality soever, do at any time, without a just impediment or constraining necessity, neglect his coming in due time unto morning and evening prayer in your chapel; and namely, that George Johnson, one of your fellows, be more diligent to perform his duty therein, than formerly he hath done.

II. Item, That the whole divine service, according according to the form of the book of Common Prayer, be always read on Sundays, and other solemn days, without omission of the Nicene creed, or any other part thereof.

III. Item, That your chapel be from time to time kept in good repair; the ornaments therein made seemly, your communion table comely and decently adorned; and also placed close to the east wall of your chancel, having the ends standing north and south, with a rail inclosing the same.

IV. Item, That your fellows and scholars commons be augmented according to the statute of provision, and fire allowed in your hall in the winter time, or such days as your statute doth require.

V. Item, That your warden for the time being, have from henceforth no allowance of diet, when he is absent from your college, unless your statutes do allow it unto him.

VI. Item, That your warden, fellows, and chaplains, and other the officers of your college do usually frequent your college hall at meal times, and take their diet there, as your statutes do enjoin; and that none be suffered to carry their commons to private houses.

VII. Item, That your college gates be every day shut up at due and appointed times, and that none be permitted to come in or go out in the night season, without consent of the governors of your college, and upon special and urgent occasion.

VIII. Item, That that fellow of your college, that is rider for the keeping of the courts, be from time to time made acquainted with all finer and grants of copy holds belonging to your college; and the true accounts be thereupon duly given up unto those that are appointed by your statutes to receive them.

IX. Item, That your warden make satisfaction for the unnecessary charge he hath put your college to, in building himself lodgings, a stair case, and balcony window, and for the college money he expended in furniture for those his lodgings and buildings, amounting (as we are informed) to ccxxl.

X. Item, That the allowance agreed upon in the lord archbishop Bancroft's time, our worthy predecessor, be observed by your warden, and others the members and officers of your college, being very favourable on the warden's behalf; and that the ten pounds, which your warden yearly takes for wine, be bestowed, as is appointed by your college statutes.

XI. Item, That such reverence be used in your chapel, both in your access thereunto, and recess therefrom, and also in service time, as is practised in cathedral churches, and is not dissonant to the canons and constitutions of the church of England; and that no fellow, or others belonging to your college, of what degree soever, presume to come thither without his cap and hood.

XII. Item, We require that these our injunctions be carefully registred and observed.

In witness hereof we have hereunto put our archiepiscopal seal. Given at our manor of Lambeth the 28th day of May in the year of our Lord M.DC.XXXV. and in the second year of our translation.

Orders enjoined by the most reverend father in God William, lord archbishop of Cant. his grace, primate of all England and metropolitan, to be observed by the dean, and chapter, and others of the cathedral church of Gloucester, made upon their answers to the articles of enquiry given them in charge in his grace's metropolitanical visitation, depending in the diocese of Gloucester anno Dom. M.DC.XXXV. Reg. Laud. fol. 236.

I. IN PRIMIS, That the church evidences and muniments shall not be kept abroad, in the city, or elsewhere, in any particular or private mans hands, but that they shall be kept in some private room within the limits of the church, and particularly in the room which anciently was assigned unto them, and was of late detained by Mr. Aisgill, as a part of his prebendal lodgings; and the chapter clerk, by consent of the dean and chapter, shall have a key to that room, and make a catalogue of all these evidences, that come to his hands, together with a repertory of the matters therein contained, for the use of the dean and chapter aforesaid.

II. Item, That none of those, who preach in your cathedral church, either in their turns or otherwise at any other time, do in their prayers before their sermons omit any one particular commanded in the five and fiftieth constitution of the late canons published in anno Domini M.DC.IV. mentioned in the twelfth article of inquiry ministred unto you in our said visitation.

III. Item, That no place or office belonging to your church, of what sort, or on what condition soever, shall at any time hereafter be granted in reversion.

IV. Item, that those of the choristers and other ministers of your church, who are disorderly, unruly, and wilfully negligent in performance of their several duties, and do not after wholesom admonition or correction reform their lives, and conform their manners, be expelled their places, that no unseemliness or disorder may from henceforth any way offend your church; and namely, that Thomas Long and Richard Long, two of your choristers, who are presented for incorrigible boys, be forthwith removed from their places, or stations in your your church, and other chosen in their rooms.

V. Item, That your petty canons, and singing men have all right done unto them concerning their houses, whereof they make complaint unto us in their answers, that they have received but hard measure; and therefore we require an account from you touching the same, and that you search your registry for an act concerning those houses made by me, when I was dean of your church; and if you find that any such were made, to transcribe it, and with the afore-said account to signify, how it hath been since observed, that, as we shall see cause, we may take further order for them.

VI. Item, That you keep your church, and churchyard from all manner of profanation, and suffer no encroachments to be made thereon; and if any such be, by houses there already built, or by dung miskins, or any other means, to certify unto us the manner of the offence, and the names of the offenders, that, as is fit, we may provide a remedy for restitution thereof unto the former consecrated uses.

VII. Item, That the almsmen and officers of your church, who do not daily frequent divine service in your church, having no just impediment to hinder them, be taken notice of, and presented either to us or your ordinary, that they may receive condign punishment for such their neglect, or at least that his majesty may be informed, in whose gift they are, to the end they may be better regulated hereafter.

VIII. Item, In regard it is his majesty's express pleasure, that the bodies of cathedral churches should not be pestered with standing seats, contrary to the course of cathedrals, and the dignity of those goodly piles of building; we must and do require you, that all standing and fixt seats, as well those where the mayor and aldermens wives use to sit, as other between the pillars, be taken down, and other moveable one's fitted in their rooms, according to such directions as we gave to the dean by our late letters written to him; but the seat where the mayor and his brethren used to sit in sermon time, as also that where the dean and prebends used to sit, because to our knowlege they are without blemish to the church, and more convenient than they can any where else be placed, we do hereby require, that they be left standing to the use aforesaid.

IX. Item, we require, that these our injunctions be carefully registred and observed.

In witness hereof we have hereunto put our archiepiscopal seal. Given at our manor of Lambeth the twentieth day of February, in the year of our lord God, according to the computation of the church England, one thousand six hundred thirty and five, and of our translation the third.

I. INPRIMIS, That all your prebendaries, and other ministers of your church be continually resident on their several places, as the statutes of your church require.

II. Item, That none be admitted into any place of your quire, before he be first approved of for his voice and skill in singing by such of your church, as are able to judge thereof; and that the places there, as they fall void, be supplied with men of such voices as your statutes require.

III. Item, That hoods, square caps, and surplices be constantly used, according to the canon in that behalf provided, by the dean, residentiaries, petty canons, and other ministers belonging to your church, whensoever they come to administer, or hear divine service.

IV. Item, That no timber trees growing upon the ground be hereafter sold, wasted, or made away, but that they be with care preserved for the only use and repair of the church.

V. Item, That your choristers be duly and diligently catechised; which hath been formerly too much neglected.

VI. Item, That your churchyard be decently and without profanation kept, and that you take care, that the bones of the dead may not lie scattered up and down; but that they be gathered together and buried, and that the chapel, called "capella carnaria," situate at the entry of your cathedral, now profaned and made a hay barn, be restored and imployed to the wonted use; and that the encroachments made upon the churchyard, and other hallowed ground about your church, be likewise restored, and laid open for those ancient uses, to which they were dedicated.

VII. Item, That as much as in you lies, you prevent the common throughfare made through your close.

VIII. Item, That the muniments, which concern the public state of your church, be presently taken from every particular and private person, that hath any of them in his custody; and that for ever hereafter they be carefully preserved and kept together in some convenient place, which shall be thought fit for that purpose by the dean and chapter.

VI. Item, We require that these our injunctions be carefully registred and observed.

In witness hereof we have hereunto put our archiepiscopal seal. Given at our manor of Lambeth the twentieth day of February, in the year of our Lord God, according to the computation of the church of England, M.DC.XXXV. and of our translation the third.

Orders enjoined by the most reverend father in God William, lord archbishop of Cant. his grace, primate of all England and metropolitan, to be observed by the dean and chapter of Lichfield, made upon their answers unto the articles of enquiry given them in charge in his grace's metropolitan visitation depending in the diocese of Coventry and Lichfield anno Domini, M.DC.XXXV. Ibidem.

I. IN PRIMIS, That the two pair of organs in your church, which are much defective, be speedily amended, and if it will stand with the grace of your church, and be more convenient and useful for your quire (as we conceive it will) that you put them both in one, and make a chair organ of them.

II. Item, That the frame of your great bells, which is much decayed, be substantially repaired without delay.

III. Item, That William Unit, — Aspley, and Richard Adams, lay men, and having no place in the church, who shewed themselves among your petty canons in their college, where they live as inmates, on purpose to free themselves from undergoing of offices in the commonwealth necessary for his majesty's service, be forthwith discharged from their dwellings or lodgings in the said college, that they may live publickly amongst other lay men, and bear such offices as shall necessarily and fitly be imposed on them, as the governors of that college will answer it at their perils: and that no man of the like condition be at any time received there again.

IV. Item, That that part of the choristers house, which is leased out, be taken in again by giving some reasonable consideration (if peaceably it may be so done) but if the lessee shall be obstinate, and not condescend to such a fair offer, then that you send up word either to our self or our vicar general, that we may think of some other course to be taken.

V. Item, That your churchyard walls, where they are broken or decayed, be made up again, and firmly repaired.

VI. Item, That you take care, as much as in you lies, of your church close, that it be not made a throughfare for carriages, or any other way profaned; and if any will be wilful and obstinate to abuse that place, that you take notice by sufficient witnesses of the persons, and the manner of their abuse, and return their names unto us, that they may be called to answer their ill carriage and unruliness in the high commission court.

VII. Item, We require that these our injunctions be carefully registred and observed.

In witness hereof we have hereunto put our archiepiscopal seal. Given at our manor of Lambeth the 20th day of February, in the year of our Lord God M.DC.XXXV. and of our translation the third.

Reg. Angliae
CAROL. I. II.

Orders enjoined by the most reverend father in God William, lord archbishop of Cant. his grace, primate of all England and metropolitan, to be observed by the dean, prebendaries, and others of the chapter of the cathedral church of Chichester, made upon their joint answers unto the articles of enquiry given them in charge in his grace's metropolitical visitation depending in the diocese of Chichester anno Domini M.DC.XXXV. Reg. Laud fol. 238.

I. IN PRIMIS, That none of your prebendaries, residentiary or at large, do at any time come into your quire to hear divine service or sermons, without a surplice, or without square caps, and hoods fit for their degrees.

II. Item, That all houses, rooms, stables, and outbuildings, belonging to any of your church, be kept in good repair; and particularly that the house lately belonging to Dr. Andrewes, your chancellor, the stable, and some other rooms belonging to bishop Shirburn's prebendaries, and also the hall and kitchen belonging to the corporation of your vicars choral, be well repaired without delay, and so maintained hereafter.

III. Item, That that plot of ground, called Paradise, adjoining to your church, and within your cloisters, which hath been heretofore a burying place, and is now by reason of a lease thereof, made by your predecessors, converted into a private garden, be by some fair means restored, and reduced into its pristine and consecrated use; and if the lessee shall be obstinate and unreasonable in restitution of it, that you give us notice thereof.

IV. Item, That you use some means with Mr. Peter Cox, an alderman of the city of Chichester, that the piece of ground called "Campus," now in his possession, be laid open again, that the scholars of your free school may have liberty to play there, as formerly they have had time out of mind; and if he shall refuse, to give us notice, or our vicar general, upon what reason and ground he doth it.

V. Item, That bishop Shirburn's four pre-bendaries do from henceforth keep residence on their prebends, as is appointed by their founder's statutes, and as by oath they are tied.

VI. Item, That you provide copes fitting for the service of your cathedral, by one a year until you be sufficiently furnished with them.

VII. Item, That Mr. Nutt, and Mr. Southcot yield up, without delay, what they have encroached upon in your churchyard, that it may be applied to the right use.

VIII. Item, That no postern doors into the churchyard be suffered.

IX. Item, That the meetings and hospital invitations anciently observed by your residentiaries, and by them kept quarterly for the quire be still maintained; or else, instead of those invitations, that the same mony be still given by the residentiaries, by way of perdition; which I am informed some of them have lately begun to give, so that the quire acknowledge it to be a benevolence, and that they carry themselves in that respectful manner to the residentiaries, as befits them to do.

X. Item, That the stall-wages be restored to the vicars choral, due to them for doing service all the year at the high altar.

XI. Item, We require that these our instructions be carefully registred and observed.

In witness hereof we have hereunto put our archiepiscopal seal. Given at our manor of Lambeth the twentieth day of February, in the year of our Lord God (according to the computation of the church of England) M.DC.XXXV. and of our translation the third.

Orders enjoined by the most reverend father in God William, lord archbishop of Cant. his grace, primate of all England and metropolitan, to be observed by the dean and chapter and other of the cathedral church of Peterborough, alias Borough St. Peter, made upon their answers unto the articles of enquiry given them in charge in his grace's metropolitical visitation depending in the diocese of Peterborough A. D. M.DC.XXXV. Ibid.

I. IN PRIMIS, That the encroachment of three yards in length, and about five yards in breadth, made upon your churchyard, and enclosed for the enlargement of one of your prebendaries gardens, be presently laid open, and the ground restored to the former use, and that care be taken that all other indecent usage and profanation of your churchyard be speedily redressed.

VOL. IV.

II. Item, That a consistory be erected in some convenient place towards the west end of your cathedral church, wherein cases reserved and proper unto the lord bishop's audience, may be debated and determined; but not to prejudice the country thereby, by calling men that live far remote (the shire being very long) to make their appearance there, and answer unto such matters as have been usually, and may be conveniently tried in other parts of the diocese.

III. Item, That enquiry be made after the executors or administrators of dean Fletcher, that some satisfaction may be had from either by a fair composition, or by compulsion of the law, for that great bell, which through his means, in his name, was taken away; and that the ring of bells, which wants repair, be suddenly amended, and that you give us an account of your doing herein.

IV. Item, That those of your quire, who are defective in skill or voice, be removed, and some others more worthy taken into their places, unless they use means to better their own ability, or provide that their rooms be sufficiently supplied, and the condign punishment be inflicted on such as are negligent in doing their services.

V. Item, That (until you have received statutes which shall be provided for your church) you be regulated and governed by the injunctions of archbishop Parker, our worthy predecessor, and your own decrees made by common consent, as is the use and custom amongst you.

VI. Item, That the fifty three pounds, six shillings, and eight pence, allowed by your donation, to be yearly employed in reparations in general, be not so wholly bestowed on other things, though perhaps in some sort necessary, as that the repair of the church itself be neglected; and if the twenty pounds a year contained in your said dotation (which you answer you do not receive) be by any unjust or indirect means detained from you, upon knowledge thereof, we shall yield you all just and fit assistance for recovery of the same.

VII. Item, That enquiry be made after the executors or administrators of Mr. Dove, sometime the fifth prebendary in your church, that satisfaction may be had from them for unmanly taking away a pair of gates set up by the the said Mr. Dove betwixt a new wall by him erected, about an inclosure of a parcel of ground taken in, to make a backside or garden for the house belonging to his prebend; and another wall inclosing a little parcel of ground belonging to the third prebendary's house, through want of which gates great annoyance by the defilement of some nasty people is brought upon the inhabitants thereabouts, and that consecrated ground intolerably profaned. Wherefore we require you to make speedy recourse unto the said executors or administrators, and return unto us an account of their answers, that thereby (as we shall find cause) we may provide a remedy for redress of so abusive an injury.

VIII. Item, We require that these our injunctions be carefully registred and observed.

In witness hereof we have hereunto put our archiepiscopal seal. Given at our manor of Lambeth the twentieth day of February, in the year of our Lord God (according to the computation of the church of England) M.DC.XXXV. and of our translation the third.

A form of penance and reconciliation of a renegado or apostate, from the christian church, to Turcism. Reg. Laud fol. 240. a.

I. LET the offenders conviction be first judicially had before the bishop of the diocese, so that his detection or confession, may stand "apud acta" and that thereupon an excommunication be decreed and denounced both in the cathedral and the parish church, where he lives; yet so as that upon his submission there in court, he may be absolved "in diem," and the form of his penance enjoined him in manner following.

II. Let the minister of the place have frequent conference with the party in private; lay open and aggravate the heinousness of his sin both in respect of God, the church, and his own soul; and see whether his conscience be troubled with any other grievous crime, that so he may be the better fitted for absolution of all together.

III. Let there be an order decreed in court, referring him to the minister of the place, to see his penance performed accordingly, and to reconcile him to the church, and let that order be published in the parish church on a Sunday at morning prayer, next before the communion service.

IV. The next Sunday following, let the offender be appointed to stand all the time of divine service and sermon in the forenoon, in the porch^a of the church, if it have any, if none, yet without the church door, if extremity of weather hinder not, in a penitent fashion in a white sheet, and with a white wand in his hand, his head uncovered, his countenance dejected, not taking particular notice of any one person that passeth by him, and when the people come in, and go out of the church, let him upon his knees humbly crave their prayers, and acknowledge his offence in this form, "Good christians remember in your prayers a poor wretched apostate or renegado."

V. The second Sunday let him stand in the church porch, and in his penitential habit as before, and then after the "Te Deum" ended, let him be brought in by one of the churchwardens, so far as to the west side of the font of the said church; there let him penitently kneel till the second lesson be ended, then let him make his submission, and ask mercy of God in the form following:

"O Lord God of heaven and earth, be merciful unto me most wretched sinner^b. I confess, O Lord, I have justly deserved to be utterly renounced by thee, because I have yielded to renounce my saviour, and that holy profession, which I had formerly made of his name, whereby I was received into thy church. O God, forgive me this heinous and horrible sin, with all other my grievous sins against thee, and let me, upon thy gracious pardon and infinite mercy, be restored to the right and benefit of this blessed sacrament, which I have so wickedly abjured and be received (tho' most unworthy) into thy gracious favour, and the communion of thy faithful people, even for thy great mercy's sake in Jesus Christ my blessed Lord and saviour."

Which done, let him in an humble and devout manner kiss the bottom stone of the font, strike his breast, and presently depart into the church porch as before.

VI. The third Sunday, let him at the beginning of divine service be brought into the body of the church, and be placed near unto the minister's pew, and there let him stand in his penitential habit, during the time of divine service; where the minister immediately before the Apostles Creed shall publicly put the offender in mind of the foulness of his sin, and stir him up to a serious repentance, advising him, that a slight and ordinary sorrow is not enough for so grievous an offence.

Which done, the minister shall ask the penitent publicly, whether he hath found, a true and earnest remorse in his soul for his sin; and whether he hath thoroughly humbled himself before God for it; and whether he doth desire that the whole congregation should take notice of his humiliation and unfeigned repentance.

In signification whereof, the offender shall say these words, or to the like effect, after the minister:

"I do here in the presence of almighty God and before you his faithful people, humbly and penitently confess, that I have grievously offended the majesty of God, and deeply wounded my own soul, in that I so far yielded to the weakness of my sinful flesh, as that I suffered myself thro' the cruelty of God's enemies to be miscarried to the renouncing of my dear saviour, and the true christian religion, wherein I was brought up. I do well know, what I have deserved both at the hands of God and of his church for this wicked and graceless act, and now as I have often betwixt God and my own soul washed this sin with my tears, and craved his merciful forgiveness; so I beseech you all to take knowlege of this my public sorrow and humiliation, and both to pardon and forgive that just offence, which I have herein given to you also, and the whole church of Christ, and also to join with me in humble and hearty prayers to almighty God, that he will be pleased to seal unto my soul the full pardon and remission of this my grievous sin, even for the sake of his dear Son my blessed saviour and redeemer. In whose name and words, I desire you to accompany these my prayers, saying with me: Our Father, etc."

After this the minister shall speak to the congregation to this effect:

"Seeing now, dear christian brethren, that this offender hath given so good and full testimony of his true repentance, and hath so humbly and fervently craved the forgiveness of God and his church, I shall not need to use many words in persuading you how ready you ought to be, both to conceive full hope of God's gracious pardon of him, as who is always ready to prevent and meet us in our turning to him, and also to profess your forgiveness of him, for so much as concerneth his offence toward you, and charitably to embrace him with the arms of tender pity and compassion, as a true christian convert to his saviour, and gladly to welcome him into that holy communion, which his sinful fear and frailty caused him to forsake. Now therefore I do earnestly beseech you, in the bowels of Jesus Christ our blessed saviour, to pass by the great offence of this sorrowful penitent, as well considering the weakness of our frail nature, when it is overpressed with violence, and extremity of torments, and both to commiserate his fearful apostacy, and to encourage and comfort him in this happy return to Christ and his church."

VII. Here let the penitent kneel down again eastward, and bowing to the very pavement, let him say thus, either by himself, if he be able to read it, or else after the minister:

"O my soul bless the Lord; blessed be the Father of mercies, and the God of all consolation; blessed be the Lord Jesus the Son of God, the saviour of the world; blessed be thy holy Spirit, God the Holy Ghost; blessed be the Holy Trinity, one God everlasting; blessed be the holy catholic church, and all you the servants of the Lord Jesus Christ; the name of God be blessed evermore for the assembly of his saints, and for the divine ordinances of his holy word and sacraments, and of his heavenly power committed to his holy priests in his church, for the reconciliation of sinners unto himself, and the absolving of them from all their iniquity. Lo here I upon the bended knees of my body and soul most humbly beg the assistance of all your christian prayers, and the benefit of that his holy ordinance; and I meekly beseech you, sir, as my ghostly Father, a priest of God, and the church's deputy, to receive me unto that grace, and into the bosom of the church, and by loosing me from the bands of my grievous sins, to make me partaker of that inestimable benefit, and so to reconcile me unto the mystical body of Christ Jesus my Lord and saviour."

Then let the priest come forth to him, and stand over him, and laying his hand on his head, say as is prescribed in the book of Common Prayer, thus:

^b This said, let him smite his breast three times.

^c Let him name here himself both by his christian and his surname.

"The Lord Jesus Christ, who hath left power to his church to absolve all sinners, which truly repent and believe in him, of his great mercy forgive thee thine offences; and by his authority committed to me, I absolve thee from this thy heinous crime of renegation, and from all other thy sins, in the name of the Father, of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost.

Then let the priest, turning himself eastward, kneel down in the same place, the penitent kneeling behind him, and say the collect, which stands after the absolution in the visitation of the sick, but changing the latter part of it thus:

"O most merciful God, who according to the multitude of thy mercies dost so put away the sins of those, which truly repent, that thou remembereest them no more; open thy eye of mercy upon this thy servant, who most earnestly desireth pardon and forgiveness; renew in him, most loving Father, whatsoever hath been decayed by the fraud and malice of the devil, or by his own carnal will and frailness; preserve and continue him in the unity of the church, consider his contrition, and accept his humiliation; and forasmuch as he putteth his full trust only in thy mercy, impute not unto him his former abnegation of thee, but receive him into thy favour, through the merits of thy most dearly beloved Son Jesus Christ our saviour. Amen."

After that, let the minister take him up, and take away his white sheet and wand, and taking him by the hand say unto him:

"Dear brother (for so we all now acknowledge you to be) let me here advise you, with what care and diligence every day of your life you ought, to consider, how much you are bound to the infinite goodness of God, who hath called you out of that woful condition whereinto you had cast yourself, and how much it concerneth you ever hereafter to walk worthy of so great a mercy, being so much more careful to approve yourself in all holy obedience to God, by how much you have more dishonoured and provoked him by this your shameful revolt from him, which the same God the Father of mercies vouchsafe to enable you unto, for the sake of the dear Son of his love, Jesus Christ the righteous. Amen."

After this, let him be openly promised, that upon any communion day following he shall be admitted to the holy sacrament; for which let him be directed to prepare himself, and when he receives let him make a solemn oblation according to his ability, after the order set down in the service book.

The petition of the dean and chapter of St. Paul's London about the archbishop of Canterbury's visitation. Reg. Laud fol. 163. a.

To the king's most excellent majesty.

THE humble petition of the dean and chapter of the cathedral church of St. Paul London, humbly sheweth unto your sacred majesty, that whereas the lord archbishop of Cant. his grace, by his summons to that purpose, directed to us the dean and chapter of St. Paul, hath signified his grace's purpose by his metropolitanical power to visit the said church.

And whereas it doth not appear by any records belonging to his grace or the church, that the dean and chapter have ever been visited by any metropolitanical power, notwithstanding the rest of the diocese hath been so visited.

And whereas the said dean and chapter do acknowledge, that they hold immediately from your majesty all their privileges, which they take themselves bound by oath to preserve entire, so far as in them lieth, but withal most tender in all things to shew themselves obedient to your majesty's pleasure, and the present government of the church; do humbly beseech your majesty you would be graciously pleased to take the premisses into your royal consideration, and to give such order herein, as your majesty in your wisdom shall think fit.

And your petitioners, as in all duty they are bound, shall ever pray, etc.

At the court at Whitehall April 27. M.DC.XXXVI.

His majesty approves well of the modesty of these petitioners, but withall is resolved, for the settlement of peace and good order in the church, that no place, without special grounds of privilege, shall be exempt from archiepiscopal visitation, and least of all this church of St. Paul, in regard it appears by their own suggestions, that the rest of the diocese hath been visited; and "de jure ordinario" it is known, that the archbishop or bishop ought to begin his visitation at the cathedral, and they can shew no act in any their registers, that the archbishops did not visit the church at the same time, when they visited the diocese; and therefore his majesty requires submission of the dean and chapter to the visitation of the present archbishop of Cant. and of his successors, and wills that this be registred both in the archbishop's office and in their own accordingly.

The archbishop of Canterbury's right of visiting the two universities debated and determined in council. Reg. Laud fol. 246. b.

At the court at Hamptoncourt the 21st of June
M.DC.XXXVI.

Present

The king's most excellent majesty.

Lord archbishop of Cant.	Lord Chamberlain.
Lord Keeper.	Ea. of Dorset.
Lord Treasurer.	Ea. of Holland.
Lord Privy Seal.	Ea. of Morton.
Lord duke of Lenos.	Ea. of Sterline.
Lord marquis Hamilton.	Lord V. Wentworth.
	Mr. Treasurer.
	Mr. Vicechamberlain.

Mr. secretary Windebank.

THIS day his majesty sitting in council was graciously pleased to hear and determine a difference and debate lately risen between the lord archbishop of Cant. his grace, and the two universities of England, concerning the right of visiting the said universities "jure metropolitico," in the presence of the lord archbishop of Cant. being also chancellor of the university of Oxon; and of the earl of Holland, chancellor of the university of Cambridge, and of persons sent and authorized by each of the said universities; and of the council of all the said parties. In the first place it was of all sides acknowledged to be the undoubted right of the crown to visit the said universities, whensoever his majesty pleaseth; and it was on all parts confessed that the archbishop, in right of his metropolitical church of Cant. hath power to visit his whole province, in which the said universities are situate, and are under the same power, unless they could shew privilege and exemption, which they then offered to shew; but were not such as did, or could give satisfaction; and his majesty upon full hearing of the proofs on both sides, and great consideration had of them, declared: That by no papal bull they could be exempted; and likewise that by none of the charters they were exempted; and lastly the omission of the archbishops to visit, since the visitations shewed unto his majesty could no way in this case be a prescription, to bar the right of the metropolitical see. But it appeareth to his majesty, for and in affirmance of the right of the archbishop, that actually both the universities had been visited by three of his predecessors "jure metropolitico," and not by any legatine power; and that the metropolitical right coming in question upon the resistance of the university of Oxon to be visited by the archbishop, it was upon great advice and full hearing of both parties adjudged for the archbishop by his majesty's predecessors king Richard II.

and afterwards upon a like rehearing and reexamination, adjudged and affirmed by king Henry IV. and both of them judgments upon a third and full reexamination established by act of parliament XIII. Hen. IV. now shewed by the archbishop, under the great seal of king Henry IV. and the archbishop produced before his majesty the original renunciation of all privileges from any pope by the university of Cambridge, under the hands of the heads of houses there. Upon which right so clearly appearing, both by practice and resolution of the kings and parliament, his majesty with the advice of his council, declared and adjudged the right of visiting both universities as universities, and the chancellors, scholars, their servants, and all others enjoying the privileges of the said universities, to belong to the archbishop and metropolitical church of Cant. by themselves or commissaries, and that they shall be from time to time obedient thereunto. Whereupon the archbishop made an humble motion to his majesty; first for himself that he would be graciously pleased, that he might have this sentence drawn up by advice of his majesty's learned council, and put under the broad seal, to settle all differences, that might hereafter arise. Then on the behalf of both the universities, that tho' they were to be visited by the archbishop and his successors, yet that they should not be visited by the bishop of the diocese, or archdeacon, but should perpetually remain free and exempt from the visitation and jurisdiction of the bishop, and archdeacon of the places where they are. But then, since it was declared his right to visit "metropolitice," and that it was not limited by law, how often he might visit; therefore notwithstanding the late custom of visitation "semel in vita tantum," he might visit the universities by himself or his commissaries, as often as any great emergent cause should move him thereunto; provided that neither the said archbishop, or any his successors, after his first visitation, shall visit on such emergent cause, unless the said cause be first made known to his majesty, and his successors, and approved by him or them: all which was graciously granted by his majesty, and so settled. And lastly, whereas it was alledged, that the chancellors of either university were, and are like to be persons of great honour and eminency, and therefore it might be inconvenient that they should be called to such visitations; it was declared by his majesty, that such inconvenience would easily be helped, for that in course of law the chancellor would be allowed to appear by his proxy.

Particular orders, directions, and remembrances given in the diocese of Norwich upon the primary visitation of the reverend father in God, Matthew [Wren] lord bishop of that see. Reg. Norwic. in ann.

I. THAT the whole divine service be read, both the first and second service, on Sundays and holydays and lecture days, if they have any; and that the communion service, called the second service, be audibly and distinctly read at the communion table unto the end of the Nicene creed before the sermon or homily; yet so as in very large churches the minister may come nearer to read the epistle and gospel, and after the sermon and homily the prayer for the whole state of Christ's church, and one or more of the appointed collects at the communion table likewise; and there to dismiss the congregation with The peace of God, etc.

II. That the prayer before the sermon or homily be exactly according to the LVth canon, "mutatis mutandis," only to move the people to pray in the words there prescribed, and no otherwise, unless he desire to interpose the name of the two universities, and of a patron; and no prayer to be used in the pulpit after sermon, but the sermon to be concluded with Glory be to the Father, etc. and so come down from the pulpit.

III. That the communion table in every church do always stand close under the eastwall of the chancell, the ends thereof north and south, unless the ordinary give particular direction otherwise, and that the rail be made before it according to the archbishops late injunctions, reaching cross from the northwall to the southwall, near one yard in height, so thick with pillars, that dogs may not get in.

IV. That the litany be never omitted on Sundays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, and that at all times the minister be in his surplice and hood whensoever he is in public to perform any part of his priestly function; and that in reading the chapters he leave out the contents, and after the lessons do use no psalms or hymns, but those that are appointed in the Common Prayer book.

V. That the "Gloria Patri" be said after every psalm all standing up; and that the people do audibly make all answers in the litany, and all other parts of the service, as is appointed in the book of Common Prayer; and to that end to lead the common people therein, that there be a clerk in every parish that can read sufficiently, and have competent allowance from the parish, and where there is none, that there be one forthwith appointed and chosen according to the canon.

VI. That the "Quicumque vult" or creed of Athanasius be used on the days by the rubric appointed, instead of the Apostles creed, and that ministers forget not to read the collects, epistles, and gospels appointed for the conversion of St. Paul, and for all the holy week before Easter, and for St. Barnaby's day, and for Ash-wednesday with the commination also on that day; and also to use the prayers and suffrages in going the perambulation, which is yearly to be observed in every parish upon the Rogation days, viz. the Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday before Ascension, and at no other times, at which it is anciently enjoined, that the ministers at some convenient places do (in a word) admonish the people to give thanks to God beholding his benefits in the fruits of the earth, saying the CIII. psalm, and as time and places shall admit, the CIV. psalm, and at any special bound mark repeating this or such holy sentences of Scripture, "Curfed be he that removeth away the mark of his neighbour's land," and that returning at last to the church there they say the divine service.

VII. That no man presume to have his hat on his head in the time of service and sermon in the church, and that due and lowly reverence be visibly done by all persons present when the blessed name of the Lord Jesus is mentioned; and that every one of the people do kneel devoutly when the confession, absolution, commandments, or any collect, or other prayer is read both at the time of the common service of the church, as also at christenings, burials, marriages, etc.

VIII. That warning be given by the minister for holydays and fasting days in the next week following, immediately after the prayer for the whole state of Christ's church; and that as soon as such warning is given, the second of those three exhortations, which next after the prayer for the universal church are set down in the service book, be treatably pronounced; after which to follow some of the collects appointed; and then to dismiss the people with The peace of God, etc.

IX. That when any need is, the sick by name be prayed for in the reading desk, and no where else at the close of the first service; except it be in the afternoon, and then to be done immediately after the creed, using only those two collects, which we set down in the service book for the visitation of the sick; that next after the marriage (if there be any) be begun in the body of the church, and finished at the table; that the churching of women begin as soon as the minister comes up to the communion table before the second service, unless there be a marriage the same day; for then the churching is not to begin till those prayers appointed to be said at the Lord's table for the marriage be ended.

X. That women to be churched come and kneel kneel at a side near the communion table without the rail, being veiled according to the custom, and not covered with a hat; or otherwise not to be churched but presented at the next generals by the minister, or churchwardens, or any of them.

XI. That they go up to the holy table at marriages at such time thereof as the rubric so directeth, and that the new married persons do kneel without the rail, and do at their own charge, if the communion were not warned the Sunday before, receive the holy communion that day or else to be presented by the minister, and the churchwardens at the next generals for not receiving.

XII. That no minister presume to marry any persons, whereof one of the parties is not of his parish, unless it be otherwise expressly mentioned in the licence; nor that he marry any by virtue of any faculties or licence, wherein the authority of an archdeacon or official is mentioned, "sub poena suspensionis."

XIII. That the parishioners be warned by the minister and churchwardens to bring their children to the church for baptism in due time, and if any child be not brought before the second lesson, that then the parents be presented for that default, and that no baptism be administered, excepting in the case of extreme necessity, but on the Sunday or holyday.

XIV. That the font at baptism be filled with clean water, and no dishes, pails, nor basons be used in it, or instead of it; and that the minister admit but two godfathers and one godmother for a male child, and two godmothers and one godfather for a female, and then do at first ask them whether the child be yet baptized or no, and do take it in his arms, and sign it with the sign of the cross, when he baptizes it, and after all do admonish them to bring it to confirmation, when time shall serve.

XV. That all communicants come up severally, and kneel before the rail to receive the holy communion; and that the minister repeat to every communicant severally all the words, that are appointed to be said at the distribution of the holy sacrament.

XVI. That no wicker bottles or tavern pots be brought unto the communion table, and that the bread be brought in a clean cloth or napkin; and that the words of consecration be audibly repeated again, if any bread or wine be to be used, which was not at first consecrated.

XVII. That the minister and churchwardens of great parishes, to avoid confusion and over long wearying of the minister and of the parishioners, do take order, that there may not come above 300. or at the most 400. communicants to one communion; for which occasion they are warned to have communions the oftner.

XVIII. That the holy oblations in such places, where it pleaseth God at any time to put into the hearts of his people by that holy action to acknowledge his gift of all they have to them, and their tenure of all from him, and their debt of all to him, be received by the minister standing before the table at their coming up to make the said oblation, and then by him to be reverently presented before the Lord, and set upon the table till the service be ended.

XIX. That the minister do catechise in the afternoon half an hour at least immediately after the last ringing or tolling of the bell for the evening prayer, according to the questions of the church catechism only, and standing in the reading desk.

XX. That the ministers reading desk do not stand with the back towards the chancel, nor too remote or far from it.

XXI. That the chancels and alleys in the church be not incroached upon by building of seats; and if any be so built, the same to be removed and taken away; and that no pews be made over high so that they, which be in them, cannot be seen how they behave themselves, or the prospect of the church or chancel be hindered; and therefore that all pews, which within do much exceed a yard in height, be taken down near to that scantling, unless the bishop by his own inspection, or by the view of some special commissioners shall otherwise allow.

XXII. That none of what rank soever do keep any chaplains, schoolmasters, ministers, or scholars in their houses to read prayers and expound scriptures, or to instruct their family, unless they be thereunto enabled by law.

XXIII. That whereas sermons are required by the church of England only upon Sundays and holydays in the forenoon, and at marriages, and are permitted at funerals, none presume to take upon them to use any preaching or expounding, or to have any such lecturing at any other time without express allowance from the bishop.

XXIV. That every one allowed to be a lecturer, do read the divine service fully in his surplice and hood before every lecture, in the same manner as is appointed on Sundays; and that all lecturers behave themselves modestly in their sermons, preaching faith, obedience, and good works, in all things observing his majesty's declaration prefixed before the 39. articles, and his majesty's injunctions, without meddling with matters of state, news, or questions late in difference, nor favouring or abetting any schismatics or separatists, either by special prayer for them or otherwise approving of them.

XXV. That the churchwardens suffer no man but their own parson, vicar, or curate to preach upon any occasion in their church, till he shew his licence, and subscribe his name in their paper book for that purpose appointed, and the name of the bishop who licensed him.

XXVI. That there be the same manner of ringing and tolling of bells to church on holydays, as is used on Sundays, and that there be no difference of ringing to church, when there is a sermon, more than when there is none; excepting the knells for funerals.

XXVII. That no churchwindows nor chancelwindows be stopped up in any part; nor the floor in any part unpaved, or uncleanly kept, nor, nor the churchyard any ways abused, annoyed, or profaned.

XXVIII. That all defaults contrary to the premisses be faithfully enquired into by the officials from time to time at their generals, of whom the bishop will require an account concerning the same.

Litterae regiae de visitatione universitat. Oxon. et Cantabrig. per archiepiscopum Cantuar. Ex reg. Laud fol. 252. a.

CAROLUS, Dei gratia Angliae, Scotiae, Franciae, et Hiberniae rex, fidei defensor, etc. omnibus, ad quos praesentes litterae pervenerint, salutem. Suborta nuper lite et controversia inter reverendissimum in Christo patrem archiepiscopum Cant. et universitates nostras Oxonii et Cantabrigiae, super jure et titulo visitationis metropolitanae universitatum praedictarum, praefato archiepiscopo jus visitandi praedictas universitates sibi et ecclesiae suae metropolitanae Christi Cant. vendicante; praefatisque universitatibus se a visitatione praedicta exemptas esse praetendentibus, liteque et controversia praedicta ad nos, et judicium et sententiam nostram regiam delata; nos ad stabiliendam pacem inter partes praedictas, et ad tollendam in perpetuum hujusmodi controversiae materiam, reverendissimum in Christo patrem, praedilectumque et perquam fidelem consiliarium nostrum Guilielmum, providentia divina Cant. archiepiscopum, totius Angliae primatem et metropolitanum, et universitatis Oxoniensis cancellarium, necnon praedilectum et perquam fidelem consanguineum et consiliarium nostrum Henricum, comitem Holland, universitatis Cantabrigiensis cancellarium, aliosque nonnullos a praedictis universitatibus mandata sufficientia habentes, venire fecimus coram nobis et consiliariis nostris in aula nostra apud honorem nostrum de Hamptoncourt, vicesimo primo die mensis Junii, anno regni nostri duodecimo, ibidemque auditis et intellectis quae per partes praedictas hinc inde dici et allegari potuerunt, habitaque cum praefatis consiliariis nostris deliberatione matura, ad definiendam et dijudicandam litem et controversiam praedictam processimus in modum sequentem: Primo et ante omnia, per probationes legitimas, et per confessionem utriusque partis nobis constabat, nos jure coronae nostrae regni Angliae habuisse, et habere potestatem visitandi universitates praedictas, quoties et quandocumque nobis et successoribus nostris visum fuerit; praefatumque archiepiscopum, jure ecclesiae suae metropolitanae Christi Cant. habuisse, et habere potestatem visitandi totam provinciam suam Cant. in qua universitates praedictae positae sunt. Cum vero ex parte universitatum propositum esset, universitates praedictas per quasdam chartas nostras et praedecessorum nostrorum, et bullas papales fuisse exemptas, et immunes ab omni visitatione, et jurisdictione archiepiscopi praedicti, eandemque immunitatem legitimo temporis usu fuisse praescriptam; ex parte praefati archiepiscopi coram nobis ostensum et probatum fuit, tres praedecessores suos archiepiscopos Cant. actualiter visitasse universitates praedictas, jure ecclesiae suae metropolitanae Christi Cant. et non per potestatem legatnam; ortaue olim lite inter archiepiscopum Cant. et universitatem Oxon. super jure visitationis praedictae tempore Richardi II. praedecessoris nostri regis Angliae, eundemque praedecessorem nostrum, plene auditis quae per partes utrinque proponi potuerunt, pro archiepiscopo et jure visitationis suae judicasse; eandemque controversia iterum emergente inter archiepiscopum Cant. et universitatem Oxon. tempore Henrici IV. praedecessoris nostri regis Angliae, eundem praedecessorem nostrum similiter pro archiepiscopo praedicto et jure visitationis suae praedictae pronunciasse et determinasse; easdemque sententias et determinationes per actum parlamenti anno tertio decimo Henrici IV. fuisse ratificatas et confirmatas: quinetiam nobis constabat, praedictas exemptiones et immunitates a visitatione metropolitana archiepiscopi Cant. vel earum aliquam per aliquam chartam nostram vel praedecessorum nostrorum non fuisse concessas, easdemque per bullas papales concedi non potuisse, nec per cursum temporis citra actuales visitationes archiepiscoporum praedictorum fuisse legitime praescriptas, nec de jure nostro ecclesiastico potuisse praescribi; praefatusque archiepiscopus coram nobis protulit schedulam subscriptam manibus magistrorum collegiorum universitatis Cantabrigiae, in qua praedicti magistri pro se et universitate sua, privilegiis et immunitatibus papalibus universitati praedictae concessis renunciabant. Quibus omnibus per nos consideratis, habitaque deliberatione cum praefatis consiliariis nostris, judicavimus et determinavimus jus visitandi cancellarios, magistrum, et scholares universitatum praedictarum, et successores suos, eorumque servientes, aliasque personas pro tempore existentes, libertatibus et privilegiis universitatum praefatarum utentes; necnon universitates praedictas, ut universitates, spectare et pertinere ad praefatum archiepiscopum et successores suos, et ecclesiam suam metropolitanam praedictam per se aut commissarium seu commissarios suos exercendum; et quod praefati cancellarii, magistri, scholares, et reliquae personae privilegiis universitatum utentes, eorumque successores perpetuis futuris temporibus, eidem archiepiscopo et successoribus suis, eorumve commissariis in visitatione et jurisdictione universitatum praedictarum in omnibus pareant et obediant. Cum vero coram nobis praeterea proponeretur non satis constare, quoties visitatio praedictarum universita-

tum exerceri debeat; ad amputandas similes controversias infuturum, ordinavimus, quod licebit praefato archiepiscopo et successoribus suis visitare universitates praedictas, non tantum semel in vita, sicuti in reliquis partibus provinciae Cant. nuper usitatum fuit, verum etiam quod licebit eis eorumque singulis post primam visitationem metropolitica finitam, praedictas universitates per se vel commissarios suos visitare, quotiescunque illud necessarium praefatis archiepiscopis visum fuerit, ex causa rationabili et legitima per nos et successores nostros primitus approbanda. Cumque praeterea coram nobis proponeretur ex parte cancellariorum praedictorum, futurum valde incommodum sibi et successoribus suis, prae dignitate personarum suarum, si in visitationibus praedictis personaliter debeant comparere; declaravimus jure satis consultum esse eorum incommodis in hac parte, cum possint in visitationibus praedictis per procuratores suos comparere. Denique per praefatum archiepiscopum a nobis humiliter peti- tum fuit, ut hoc nostrum judicium et declaratio potestatis visitandi universitates praedictas, sibi et successoribus suis jure ecclesiae metropoliticae Christi Cant. competentis, non possint infuturum extendi ad episcopos et archidiaconos locorum, in quibus universitates praedictae pos- itae sunt, et ut praefatae universitates per prae- fatos episcopos et archidiaconos in posterum non possint visitari, et ut hoc nostrum judicium, ordinationem, et determinationem sub magno sigillo Angliae confirmare dignaremur. Cujus petitioni annuentes, declaravimus, quod univer- sitates praedictae per episcopos et archidiaconos praedictos in posterum non visitentur; et hoc nostrum judicium, ordinationem, et declaratio- nem sub magno sigillo Angliae communiri et confirmari jussimus; mandantes praefatis can- cellariis, magistris, et scholaribus universitatum praedict. ut visitationi praefati archiepiscopi et successorum suorum se submittant, et ut nullam exemptionem seu immunitatem adversus visita- tionem praedictam sibi vindicare praesumant. In cujus rei testimonium has literas nostras fieri fecimus patentes. Teste meipso apud Westm. tricesimo die Januarii, anno regni nostri duo- decimo.

Ex reg. Laud fol. 248. a.

REVERENDISSIME in Christo pater, do- mine illustrissime. Mihi gaudeo, Britan- niae gratulor, Deo gratias ago de immissa ani- mo tuo cogitatione sanctissima revocandi juris ejus, quo reverendissimi Cant. praesules jam ab antiquis temporibus in lustrandis regni Anglici academiis uti frui solent. Sane non corpora solum nostra fluxa et fragilia sunt, sed humana etiam instituta, licet optima, facile per incuri- am in pejus vergunt, eoque ad retinendum gran- de illud disciplinae bonum nihil exoptatius a Deo et rege potuit evenire, quam ut priscum jus tanto praesuli restituatur, perque eum po- tissimum labantibus moribus obviam eatur; cui ut sacrorum, sic morum bonorum praecipue cura incumbit, quique sic sanctimoniam ab a- liis, exigere sciat, ut eadem praecedat caeteros.

Sunt quidem florentissimae academiae ambae, sed cura tua deinceps se vincent ac pulchrio- res, pulchrioresque semper exurgent, quod bo- num suum sapientissimi quique per se sine du- bio vident, ac magis et magis intelligent; nec solum nostra aetas, sed posteritas etiam ut sui temporis emendatori gratias propterea semper agat*.

Numen caeleste oro, ut tibi, illustrissime ac reverendissime domine, longaevam ac prospe- ram largiatur vitam.

Reverendissimi ac illustrissimi nominis tui cultor et cliens devotissimus,

CAP. I. De inhibitionibus.

I. CONTRA aliquem episcopum aut contra principalem visitatorem archiepiscopi Cant. in visitatione sua metropolitana, inhibi-tiones concedi nolumus; nisi aut dictus reve- rendissimus, aut judex ipse de arcubus aut au- dientiae (si sit in civitate) notitiam habeat de eisdem, et de causa earundem.

II. In causis criminalibus, ubi judex aquo

— gratias propterea semper agat. Primus qui me jucundissimo hoc negotio laetissimus ipse perfudit, optimus et doctissi- mus Goffius noster fuit. Is aliquamdiu studiorum ergo hac in urbe egit, ac me usus perfamiliariter; quia quae viri modestia est, arbitraratur, studia etiam sua ex nobis aliquid posse capere incrementi. procedit contra praesentatum de adulterio, fornicatione, aut huiusmodi delictis; ne fiant inhibitiones nisi per iudicem adquem, aut aliquem surrogatorum suorum, qui sit legum doctor. Et si appellans non prosecutus fuerit dictam appellationem secundo termino post inhibitionem extractam; tunc iudex adquem decretum suum intimet iudici aquo, aut parti appellatae. Quod ipsi (si sua putaverint interesse) urgere possint appellantem ad proseguendum. Quodsi et ipsi neglexerint per spatium unius termini post inhibitionem eis factam; tunc iudex adquem ex officio mero (ne talia scelera per inhibitionem protegi videantur) decernet pro parte appellante, ad proseguendum appellationem suam praedictam. Et si non proseguatur, remittat causam iudici aquo, juxta formam juris, et stilum illius curiae sine ulteriori dilatione.

III. Nulli procuratori aut parti liceat plures inhibitiones in una et eadem causa, et inter easdem personas conficere et obtinere, nisi iudicem adquem ultimo appellatur; aut ejus surrogatum prius consultum fecerint de priore inhibitione, et de causa quare denuo aut pluries appellare convenit.

IV. Ne sigilletur aliqua inhibito, nisi nomen procuratoris impetrantis subscribatur eidem, et libro sigilli etiam apponatur.

V. Cautiones in aliqua curia nostra contra inhibitiones, decreta, probationes, testamentorum administrationes, vel contra commissiones pro receptione juramenti, aut huiusmodi admitti nolumus, nisi sub hac forma et conditione; viz. quod prius vocetur ipsa pars, cujus interesse praetenditur, aut unus procuratorum in curiis nostris exercentium tunc existens in civitate per dictam partem nominandus: nolumus enim manus ligari iudicis, nisi paratum habeat, qui vocetur ad reddendam rationem cautionis praedictae.

CAP. II. De dilationibus vitandis.

I. In die ad libellandum detur libellus sine ulteriori dilatione, nisi aliter iudici visum fuerit: actor enim debet venire paratus ad iudicium.

II. Ne fiat continuatio alicujus mandati plus quam semel.

III. Ex generali continuatione nulla fit termini probatorii prorogatio aut continuatio.

IV. Ubi appellatur a sententia diffinitiva lata per iudicem aquo pro legato, decimis, aut summa taxata ad reparationem ecclesiae; et appellans vult allegare solutionem, plene administravit, aut aliud quicquam in peremptionem five exonerationem summae petitaе (quod bene potuit in prima instantia allegasse) deponat ille prius summam sententiatam, priusquam admittatur talis allegatio, nisi alias iudici visum fuerit ex justa causa per eum approbanda.

V. Si procurator adversam sibi partem ex aliqua cancellaria aut registrario in non transmittendo processum, aut testem in non comparendo, aut in non subeundo examen suspendi aut excommunicari obtinuerit; tunc literas denunciatorias, suspensionis, aut excommunicationis huiusmodi extrahat infra quatuor dies; et mittat eas bona fide in partes infra tres dies prox. postquam extraxerit easdem literas, debite denunciandas; nec penes se ulterius clam detineat easdem ad causam differendam.

VI. Si quis commissionem ad partes pro responsis partis suae aut pro examinatione testium habuerit concessam, eamque extrahere aut debite exequi distulerit aut neglexerit, renovationem ejusdem nullatenus expectabit, nec habebit, nisi ex justa causa per iudicem approbanda; qui et eo casu, si quicquam incuriae aut negligentiae invenerit, partem huiusmodi non extrahentem, aut non debite exequentem in expensis retardati processus condemnabit.

CAP. III. De advocatis et procuratoribus.

I. Dum advocatus informat iudicem, aut quicquam petit in curia, nullus procurator eum perturbet, aut se intromittat; quinetiam ejus petitioni respondere non praesumat, si advocatus ex adversa parte interfuerit et respondere sit paratus et voluerit.

II. Tam advocati, quam procuratores induantur habitu et caputio in curia de arcubus, prout fieri consuevit. Sine eis in limites curiae intrare non praesumant. Accedant ad initium curiae. Non recedant ante curiam finitam. Latine loquantur (et non Anglice) per totum tempus curiae. Sint iudici attendentes in eundo et redeundo ad curiam de arcubus et ab eadem, eumque comitando ducant et reducant.

III. Nulli tradetur processum iudicis aquo in registrum introductus, nisi advocato aut procuratori alterius partium, pro eodem (ut moris est) componenti; isque nomen subscribendo suum in libro compositionum se recepisse testificet; et semper dictum processum rogatus per registrarium infra unum diem post debitam requisitionem reducat in officium registrarii et retradat eum, ut pars adversa eundem per similem compositionem et subscriptionem habeat utendum.

IV. In die assignato ad audiendam voluntatem nullus procurator, qui habet aliquam in libro informationum causam descriptam aut assignatam, a publicis informationibus se absintet; praesertim cum sua causa ventilanda, aut juxta ordinem dicti libri evocanda venerit.

V. Si quis procurator in die ad audiendam voluntatem inventus fuerit allegasse, aut (uti vocant) placitasse aliquam materiam, quam ante in eadem causa ipse placitaverit et admitti obtinuerit; condemnatur in expensis retardati processus cum dolo malo et in dilationem causae plus justo hoc fecisse iudicabitur.

VI. Cum iudex utrasque partes audiverit, et decretum suum interposuerit, neque advocatus nec procurator sit ei ulterius molestus aut importunus.

VII. Brevia, quae vocant, causarum nulla fiant, nisi cum iudex requisiverit; nec pro eis scribendis ultra vi. denar. pro qualibet charta (Anglice "every sheet") capiatur. Si quis hoc nimis aut minus duxerit, stabit taxationi iudicis pro eisdem.

VIII. Si quae pars principalis responsum suum personale aut ipse aut ejus advocatus aut

procurator scripserit, et in registrum intrandum et registrandum dederit; idemque responsum super allegatione ad audiendam voluntatem, habita informatione imperfectum aut minus plenum fuerit inventum; solvet talis respondens expensas retardati processus, quia et litem retardavit, et partem adversam in expensis circa informationem super ea re indebite oneravit.

CAP. IV. De registrariis et eorum clericis.

I. Nullus actuarius aut acta scribens ponat in actu, quod aliquis dedit libellum, allegationem in scriptis, aut materiam hujusmodi, nisi eodem tempore et loco idem libellus, allegatio, aut materia sit realiter ei tradita et exhibita in registrum relinquenda, ut parti adversae etiam copia tunc deliberetur. Dicitur libellus sive exhibitum in pergamento conscribatur; nisi iudex versus finem termini propter multitudinem negotiorum duxerit eum pro tempore in papyro recipiendum (cui etiam stabitur contra exhibentem) et proxima vacatione in pergamento redigendum, et (vere comparatum) in registrum introducendum.

II. Registrarius, actuarius, aut aliquis eorum clericus officium procuratoris in eadem curia non exercebit; causas aliquas in illa curia nulloatenus sollicitabit, aut se minus indifferentem alicui partium praebeat, aut sit in aliquo.

III. Ubi decernendum est pro omisissis, iudex et registrarius omisissorum transmittent ea suis propriis expensis; et si eorum fraude aut supina negligentia omisissio fiat, refundat expensas litis retardatae ille, cujus dolo aut culpa id factum fuerit.

IV. Copiae depositionum, responsionum personalium, aut exhibitorum quorumcunque non tradentur partibus, aut eorum procuratoribus aut advocatis per registrarium, actuarium, aut clericos suos, nisi facta fideli comparatione cum originali et subscriptione manus suae, aut eorum unius (notariorum public. existentium) quod concordant cum originali.

V. Commissiones pro responsis recipiendis aut testibus examinandis fiant assumpto publico notario quocunque partibus indifferente, nisi ubi iudici aliter visum fuerit.

VI. Acta, exhibita, et recorda fideliter custodiantur, et in loco tuto et convenienti reponantur, et per annos sive terminos ordine distinguantur, quo facilius scrutinium fiat, ubi opus erit.

VII. Acta omnia et singula cujusque termini, aut in ipso termino, aut vacatione prox. sequente registrentur, aut (uti vocant) in libro actorum intrentur.

Archiepiscopi Cantuar. literae praeposito et sociis collegii Etonensis de numero sociorum. Ex reg. Laud fol. 258. a.

GUILIELMUS, providentia divina Cant. archiepiscopus, totius Angliae primas et metropolitanus, dilectis in Christo praeposito et sociis collegii de Etona in dioecesi Lincoln. salutem et gratiam. In visitatione nostra metropolitana dioec. Lincoln. et collegii vestri nuper proposita fuit coram nobis querela, ex parte quorundam sociorum collegii regalis in academia Cantabrigiensi, quod cum communis fundator utriusque collegii praedicti, Henricus sextus, pia memoriae, quondam rex Angliae, collegium vestrum de Etona, de decem sociis fundaverit, et in loca vacantia sociorum collegii vestri primo et ante omnes alios ordinaverit eligi socios collegii regalis, vel eos qui prius fuerint in eodem, et ex causis honestis et licitis recesserint ab ipso, si qui tales inventi fuerint habiles et sufficientes; vos tamen contra statuta collegii vestri septem socios tantum jamdiu habueritis, et in praesenti habeatis, et in loca vacantia sociorum collegii vestri saepius eligatis alios de aliis collegiis, vel locis, ad arbitrium vestrum, licet habiles et sufficientes in regali collegio praedicto inveniantur; unde praefati socii collegii regalis a nobis humiliter petierunt, ut velimus ordinare numerum decem sociorum collegii vestri in posterum perimplendum esse, et loca eorum vacantia, ex sociis collegii regalis et non alibi supplenda esse, si habiles et sufficientes in collegio regali praedicto reperiantur. Nos vero antedictis iis omnibus, quae coram nobis utrinque proposita fuerunt, post maturam deliberationem de perimplendo numero decem sociorum collegii vestri in praesenti aliquid decernere nolimus, cum nobis constet collegium vestrum ab Edwardo quarto, quondam rege Angliae, immediato fundatoris vestri successore, fuisse dissolutum, et ab eodem deinceps (sed redivisus ejusdem multum imminutis) restitutum, et ab eo tempore citra numerum sociorum vestrorum nunquam septenarium excessisse; adeoque nolimus consuetudinem collegii vestri in hac re ex verisimilibus causis tamdiu receptam subito immutare. Caeterum cum ex statutis collegii vestri nobis etiam constet, collegium vestrum esse originem et seminarium collegii regalis, et fundatorem vestrum communem desiderasse, ut inter utrumque collegium suum arctissima conjunctio, confociatio, et charitas inperpetuum intercederet, et in electione sociorum collegii vestri jufferit primam et praecipuam rationem habendam esse sociorum collegii regalis Cantabrigiae, vel eorum, qui prius fuerint in eodem, et ex causis honestis et licitis recesserint, utque ad loca vacantia sociorum collegii sanctae Mariae Wintoniensis (ad cujus exemplum collegium vestrum fundatum est) socii collegii novi Oxoniae tantum, et nulli ex aliis collegiis aut locis electi fuerint a fundatore ejusdem; nos ad promovendam fundatoris vestri voluntatem, et desiderium in concilianda conjunctione et charitate inter utrumque collegium suum praedictum, ordinamus

mus et decernimus, quod ex septem fociis collegii vestri continuo quinque ad minimum eligantur inperpetuum de fociis collegii regalis praedicti, vel de eis, qui prius fuerint in eodem, et ex causis honestis et licitis recefferint ab eodem, si qui tales habiles et sufficientes reperti fuerint; et quod nulli inposterum eligentur per vos aut successores vestros ex aliis collegiis vel locis in socios collegii vestri, quamdiu numerus quinque sociorum vestrorum ex fociis collegii regalis praedicti non fuerit perimpletus; mandantes et injungentes hanc nostram ordinationem et decretum a vobis et successoribus vestris inperpetuum observari. The archbishop's letter to the provost and fellows of Eaton college about the number of fellows. Reg. Laud. fol. 259. a.

"SALUTEM in Christo." After my hearty commendations, etc. You cannot but remember, that after my metropolitical visitation of your college at Eaton was begun, there was delivered unto me a petition from King's college in Cambridge, and another to his sacred majesty, both concerning certain rights to the fellowships of Eaton, as they pretended; and the petition delivered to his majesty was after sent unto me, with a reference under secretary Windebank's hand, requiring me to take their cause into consideration, and to do them that justice, which upon due deliberation, I should find did belong to them, and their cause. Thereupon I had divers times cognisance of this cause in the presence of some, both of your and their societies, and heard at large both your and their counsel, that by reason of the shortness of my visitation, being unwilling to hold it much longer than the ordinary time of six months, and because of my other many and great occasions not suffering me to attend that business wholly, I was constrained to reserve this and all such businesses, as were then depending before me, in the relaxation of my visitation aforesaid, to such other farther and fit time, as I might have to end them. And having now maturely consider'd of the aforesaid petition of King's college, with all incidents thereunto belonging, and of all such answers as you the provost and fellows of Eaton have given, I have now at last made my decision, with an injunction of obedience in time to come, and have sent it herewith unto you under my archiepiscopal seal, requiring you that it be registred at the end of our statute book, and observed in all future elections of fellows into that society; that so these two great bodies which had one and the same royal founder, may according to his will and frequent desires in your and their statutes, grow up into a nearer relation and greater amity one to, and with the other, which God grant. So with my love remembered to you, I leave you all to God's blessed protection and rest,

Your very loving friend,

A letter to the archbishop of Canterbury about the fellowships for Jersey men.

Reg. Laud fol. 260. a.

MOST honourable and most reverend father in God. Having credibly understood that your grace hath been pleased to procure and settle three fellowships in several colleges of Oxford, for the advancement and maintenance of young students born in these remote islands; we acknowledge ourselves with all dutiful humility much bound and obliged to your grace for this your undeserved care and kindness; and we had sooner expressed our humble and hearty thankfulness for so great and unexpected a benefit, had we not waited for a fit person to prefer to your grace to reap the fruits of that gift, his majesty hath been pleased to bestow upon us by your gracious hands. There was none fitter to present and recommend to your most honourable acceptance, than this very hopeful young man Mr. Daniel Brevin, of whom we conceive a good opinion, for his learning and piety, so that he shall be capable within a short time to serve in the ministry in this our isle; for we trust that is the end and intent of the bestowing of these places. We therefore with all humble submission beseech your grace to be pleased to accept of him, seeing he hath been persuaded to leave his hopes of preferment in the university of Saumur in France, where he hath proceeded master of arts with good approbation, and hath promised to be ready for the island's service, when occasion shall be offered. Thus with our hearty prayers unto God for your long life and prosperity we ever remain

IN camera stellata coram consilio ibidem 12. die Maii, anno decimo tertio Caroli regis.

This day several petitions being read in open court, presented on the behalf of John Bastwick, doctor in physic, and William Pryn gent. defendants, at the suit of his majesty's attorney general, the most reverend father in God, the lord archbishop of Cant. his grace inform'd the court, that in some of the libellous books and pamphlets lately published, his grace and others the reverend bishops of the realm are said to have usurped upon his majesty's prerogative royal, and to have proceeded in the high commission and other ecclesiastical courts, contrary to the laws and statutes of the realm; about which he prayed the judges might be attended, and they prayed and required by this court to certify their opinion therein. Upon consideration whereof, the court hath ordered, that the two lord chief justices, now present in court, the lord chief baron, and the rest of the judges and barons shall be attended by his majesty's learned council, touching the particulars hereafter ensuing, videlicet,

I. Whether process may not issue out of the ecclesiastical courts in the name of the bishops?

II. Whether a patent under the great seal be necessary for the keeping of the ecclesiastical courts, and enabling of citations, suspensions, excommunications, and other censures of the church; and whether the citation ought to be in the king's name, and under the seal of arms, and the like for institutions and inductions to benefices, and correction of ecclesiastical offences?

III. Whether bishops, archdeacons, and other ecclesiastical persons may or ought to keep any visitation at any time, unless they have express commission or patent under the great seal of England to do it, and that as his majesty's visitor only, and in his name and right alone?

May it please your lordships.

According to your lordships order, made in his majesty's court of Starchamber the 12th of May last, we have taken consideration of the particulars, wherein our opinions are required by the said order, and we have all agreed,

That process may issue out of the ecclesiastical courts in the names of the bishops, and that a patent under the great seal is not necessary for the keeping of the said ecclesiastical courts, or for the enabling of citations, suspensions, excommunications, and other censures of the church, and that it is not necessary, that summons, citations, or other process ecclesiastical in the said courts, or institutions or inductions to benefices, or correction of ecclesiastical offences by censure in those courts be in the king's name, or with the stile of the king, or under the king's seal, or that their seals of office have in them the king's arms, and that the statute of 1 Edarwd VI. chap. 2. which enacted the contrary is not now in force.

We are also of opinion, that the bishops, archdeacons, and other ecclesiastical persons may keep their visitations, as usually they have done, without commission under the great seal of England so to do. Primo die Julii M.DC.XXXVII.

King Charles's letter to the bishop of St. David's about an augmentation to his bishoprick. Reg. Laud fol. 278. a.

CHARLES REX.

TRUSTY and well beloved, we greet you well. Among the sundry cares, that attend our princely office, that of the church hath ever had the first place. Whereupon we well weighing what havock hath been made of it, and the goodly endowments thereof in former times, and what great inconveniences must needs arise both to church and commonwealth, if the authority of bishops be not supported, as it ought, which cannot be of their necessary means, if their livelyhood and subsistence be once taken away; and being informed that the rectory of Kerrye, in the county of Montgomery, and diocese of St. David's, is a lease of good value, and belonging to that bishoprick, but at this present let to farm for term

This day was read in court the certificate of the two lords chief justices, the lord chief baron, and other the justices of the courts of King's Bench, and Common Pleas, and barons of the Exchequer, made according to an order of reference to them granted the twelfth of May last, upon a motion made in the cause, wherein his majesty's attorney general is plaintiff against John Bastwick, doctor in physie, and other defendants; in which certificate the said judges have declared their opinions in point of law touching the several matters to them referred by the aforesaid order; and the same being so read in court, his majesty's attorney general humbly prayed, that the said certificate may be recorded in this court, and in all other the courts at Westm. and in the high commission and other ecclesiastical courts, for the satisfaction of all men, that the proceedings of the high commission and other ecclesiastical courts are agreeable to the laws and statutes of the realm; which the court held reasonable, and hath ordered it shall be so, and that after the same is enrolled in this court and other the courts aforesaid, the original certificate of the said judges shall be delivered to the most reverend father in God the lord archbishop of Cant. his grace, to be kept and preserved amongst the records of his court.

A proclamation declaring that the proceedings of his majesty's ecclesiastical courts and ministers are according to the laws of the realm.

By the king.

WHEREAS in some of the libellous books and pamphlets lately published, the most reverend father in God, the lord archbishop, and bishops of this realm are said to have usurped upon his majesty's prerogative royal, and to have proceeded in the high commission and other ecclesiastical courts, contrary to the laws and statutes of this realm; it was ordered by his majesty's high court of Starchamber the twelfth day of June last, that the opinion of the two lords chief justices, the lord chief baron, and the rest of the judges and barons, should be had and certified in those particulars; viz. whether processes may not issue out of the ecclesiastical courts in the name of the bishops? Whether a patent under the great seal be necessary for the keeping of the ecclesiastical courts and enabling citations, suspensions, excommunications, and other censures of the church? And whether citations ought to be in the king's name, and under his seal of arms, and the like for institutions and inductions to benefices, and correction of ecclesiastical offences? Whether bishops, archdeacons, and other ecclesiastical persons may or ought to keep any visitation at any time, unless they have express commission or patent under the great seal of England to do it, and that as his majesty's visitors only, and in his name and right alone?

Whereupon his majesty's said judges having taken the same into their serious consideration, did unanimously concur and agree in opinion, and the first day of July last certified under their hands as followeth: That processes may issue out of the ecclesiastical courts in the name of the bishops; and that a patent under the great seal is not necessary for the keeping of the said ecclesiastical courts, or for enabling of citations, suspensions, excommunications, and other censures of the church; and that it is not necessary that summons, citations, or other processes ecclesiastical in the said courts, or instituthese our letters be recorded, and kept in your public registry, and likewise in the registry of St. Davids; and that the tenors be both by your successors from time to time in all things observed most inviolably, as you or any of them will answer the contrary at your utmost perils. So we bid you heartily farewell. Given under our signet at our court at Greenwich the ninth day of July, in the thirteenth year of our reign, annoque Domini M.DC.XXXVII.

tions, or inductions to benefices, or correction of ecclesiastical offences by censure in those courts, be in the king's name, or with the stile of the king, or under the king's seal, or that their seals of office have in them the king's arms; and that the statute of "primo Edwardi sexti, cap. secundo," which enacted the contrary, is not now in force; and that the bishops, archdeacons and other ecclesiastical persons may keep their visitations as usually they have done without commission under the great seal of England so to do. Which opinions and resolutions being declared under the hands of all his majesty's said judges, and so certified into his court of Starchamber, were there recorded. And it was by that court further ordered the fourth day of the said month of July, that the said certificate should be enrolled in all other his majesty's courts at Westminster, and in the high commission and other ecclesiastical courts, for the satisfaction of all men; that the proceedings in the high commission and other ecclesiastical courts are agreeable to the laws and statutes of the realm.

And his royal majesty hath thought fit, with advice of his council, that a public declaration of these the opinions and resolutions of his reverend and learned judges, being agreeable to the judgement and resolutions of former times, should be made known to all his subjects, as well to vindicate the legal proceedings of his ecclesiastical courts and ministers from the unjust and scandalous imputation of invading or entrenching on his royal prerogative, as to settle the minds and stop the mouths of all unquiet spirits, that for the future they presume not to censure his ecclesiastical courts or ministers in these their just and warrantable proceedings. And hereof his majesty admonisheth all his subjects to take warning, as they shall answer the contrary at their perils. Given at the court at Lyndhurst the 18. day of August, in the XIII. year of his majesty's reign.

God save the king.

King Charles's letter to the high commissioners to proceed against such as refuse to take the oath, etc. Reg. Laud fol. 287. a.

CHARLES REX.

MOST reverend father in God, right trusty and right entirely beloved counsellors; right trusty and right well beloved cousins and counsellors; right reverend father in God, right trusty and well beloved; right trusty and well beloved counsellors, and right and well beloved, we greet you well. Whereas we are given to understand, that divers disorderly and refractory persons have been seduced, or withdrawn themselves from their obedience to our ecclesiastical laws into several ways of separation, sects, schisms, and heresies; and being convented for the same, or for other their misdemeanors and enormous offences before you our commissioners for causes ecclesiastical, are grown to that obstinacy and disobedience, that some of them refuse to take their oath, and others being sworn refuse to answer to the articles and matters there objected unto them, or by equivocation, or other undue evasions do not make full and plain answer to the same, as by law they ought; now forasmuch as you our said commissioners for causes ecclesiastical are authorized by our letters patents under our great seal, and that your proceedings are not only and wholly according to the formal manner and terms of the civil or canon laws, but with some relation to the form of proceeding used in our courts of Star Chamber, Chancery, or courts of Requests, and Exchequer, wherein defendants and delinquents have always used to answer upon their oaths in causes against themselves, and also to answer interrogatories touching their own contempts and crimes objected to them, which course in those courts is daily practised and held agreeable to the laws and customs of this our realm; therefore for the better regulating of such contemptuous persons in and for their obedience to our ecclesiastical laws, we do hereby declare and signify of our own meer motion, and certain knowlege, and by our supreme power ecclesiastical do order and appoint, that all such persons, as shall be legally called into our high commission court before you our said commissioners, shall and may lawfully by you be enjoined to take their corporal oaths, and by virtue thereof to answer to such articles and interrogatories, as shall be there objected against them, being of ecclesiastical cognizance, and within the limits of our said commission by our said letters patents granted unto you our said commissioners; and if any person or persons out of their own perverse will or obstinacy shall either refuse to take such oath before you our said commissioners, or being sworn shall refuse to answer, or not make a full and plain answer to the said articles or interrogatories to them objected, that then after due motion given, and intimation made to the said persons in that behalf, if they shall still continue and persist in this their contumacy, every such person so refusing to be sworn, or being sworn refusing to answer, or not fully and plainly answering to the said articles and interrogatories, shall and may be declared and adjudged by you our said commissioners "pro confesso," and shall be held and had as confessed and convicted legally of all those articles and matters, to which he so refuseth to be sworn, or being sworn shall refuse to answer, or not make full and plain answer as aforesaid: and these our letters shall be a sufficient warrant and discharge in that behalf. Given under our signet at our palace of Westm. the fourth day of February, in the XIIIth year of our reign.

To the most reverend father in God; our right trusty and right entirely beloved counsellors William, lord archbishop of Cant. primate and metropolitan of all England, and Richard, lord archbishop of York, primate and metropolitan of England, and to the rest of our commissioners of our court of high commission now being, and to all and singular the commissioners of that court that hereafter for the time shall be.

X. Ut mulieres in sacrario non sedeant, sed infra cancellos, et quidem a viris.

XI. Ut sacrarium in consistorium non convertatur, aut sacra mensa notariis aut scribis sit pro pluteo.

XII. Ne in funeribus mulieres luctum aut ululatum faciant.

XIII. Ut ossa defunctorum in coemeteriis non coacerventur, sed tradantur sepulturae.

XIV. Ut matricula sit, in quam referantur nomina eorum, qui ad sacros ordines admissi sunt aut instituti, aut admissi ad beneficia, five ad curam animarum cooptati, clericorum item parochialium et ludimagistrorum, neque deinceps ad literas testimoniales in visitationibus exhibendas adigatur.

XV. Ne quis minister oblationes ad funera, baptismum, eucharistiam, nuptias, post puerperium aut portionem canonicam cuiquam locet.

XVI. Ne quis ejusmodi oblata acerbe exigat, praesertim a pauperibus.

XVII. Ut fas sit ministro a sacra coena repellere eos, qui se ingerunt ad synaxin, neque nomina sua pridie paracho significarunt.

XVIII. Ut pueri saltem a septimo aetatis anno, donec confirmentur per manuum impositionem, stent inter catechumenos, factoque catalogo, singulis dominicis certus eorum numerus sistatur in ecclesia examinandus.

XIX. Si quis minister quemquam ex fratribus suis alibi accusaverit, priusquam episcopo denunciaret, ab ejus consortio caeteri omnes abstinerebunt.

In secunda sessione (17. die mensis Aprilis) in ecclesia collegiata D. Petri Westmonast. sub-

decanus et alii ecclesiae illius praebendarii privilegia ecclesiae suae illaesa asserere volentes, contra sessionem convocationis in ea protestati sunt; quibus reverendissimus in consueta orationis forma praesentibus confratribus suis ac clero provinciae suae libertates et immunitates eorum inconcussas relinquere protestatus est. Deinde Richardus Steward, in prolocutorem electus, ab archiepiscopo approbatus fuit. Postea lecta fuit licentia regia sigillo magno Angliae sigillata, de ordinando et conficiendo quasdam constitutiones, ordinationes, five capitula, statum ecclesiasticum, sinceram religionem, et utilitatem ecclesiae Anglicanae concernentes. Hoc facto, reverendissimus "prolocutorem et alios de domo inferiori, decanos, archidiaconos, capitula, et cleri procuratores ibidem praesentes monuit, ut ipsi inter se convenirent et mature excogitarent de subsidiis dicto domino nostro regi concedendis, et canonibus ac constitutionibus, statum ecclesiasticum et Christi religionem in ecclesia Anglicana concernentibus, concipiendis; et quicquid inde senserint five excogitaverint, in scriptis redigant, et coram ipso reverendissimo et confratribus suis episcopis exhibeant."

In tertia sessione (22. die Aprilis) reverendissimus prolocutori et toti coetui domus inferioris "notum fecit permagnas illas expensas, quae per regiam majestatem ex causis urgentibus erogandae sunt, et illa non minus pericula, quae et statui et regno Angliae hoc tempore imminet; eisque de causis et aliis per ipsum reverendissimum expositis, se et confratres suos praedictos inter se tractasse et convenisse de sex subsidiis et majori numero subsidiorum (si aliquo tempore major numerus per praelatos et clerum Cant. provinciae concessus ex registro constaret) illustrissimo domino nostro regi per ipsos concedendis, juxta ratam quatuor solidorum de qualibet libra desuper concipiendo, et de solvendo dicta subsidia in tam brevi tempore, quam aliqua unquam soluta fuere. Eisdemque rogavit, ut in testimonium singularis eorum obedientiae et obsequii erga dictum dominum nostrum regem, concessionem hujusmodi statim suum praeberent consensum, et responsa darent, habito prius tractatu inter eos de eisdem." Hanc concessionem ut eo felicius expedirent, de examinatore et correctore libri subsidiorum ex utraque domo convocationis eligendis convenerunt. Deinde prolocutor cum toto coetu ad domum superiorem revertens, "nomine suo et eorum dixit, quod ipse et coetus domus inferioris de propositis diligenter tractarunt, et omnes eorum consensum libentissime dederunt concessionem dictorum sex subsidiorum, et majoris numeri, si major numerus per clerum unquam concedebatur, juxta ratam quatuor solidorum de qualibet libra." Postea de precibus pro parlamento et pace ac tranquillitate regni actum est his verbis: "Et ut Deus bonorum omnium largitor hoc praesens parlamentum ita disponeret, quod omnes in eodem conventi in unum consentirent, ad Dei gloriam et honorem, ecclesiae utilitatem et commodum, ac regis et regni pacem et tranquillitatem, praefatus reverendissimus pater dominus archiepiscopus de mandato regio voluit divinam Dei gratiam implorari, ac formulam precis ad eundem effectum per duos doctos et graviores viros coetus domus inferioris eligendos concipi." Ad quas preces componendas electi fuerunt Guilielmus Bray, et Joh. Oliver, facellani dom. archiepisc. Cant. Eodem die reverendissimus sermonem habuit cum coetu domus inferioris convocationis "de capitulis canonum concipiendis, et dixit se et confratres suos de duobus capitulis everfionem five suppressionem Jesuitarum, presbyterorum, et aliorum Romanae ecclesiae concernent, tractasse, et de eisdem consensisse; eademque in binis schedulis papiri (ut apparuit) conscripta produxit, et easdem schedulas dicto domino prolocutori tradidit, toti coetui domus inferioris proponendas, legendas, et publicandas; cum monitione, quod copias earum cuicunque tradere minime praesumat. Et si aliquis dictae domus aliquid dictis capitulis contrarium proponat, porrigat in scriptis, et tradat in manus domini prolocutoris, domino archiepiscopo et caeteris episcopis domus superioris exhibiturum, ut ipsi de eisdem consultarent."

Quo die de libro subsidiorum domino regi concedendorum actum fuit; et "ulterius pro meliori expeditione negotiorum hujus sacrae synodi idem reverendissimus cum consensu et assensu eorundem confratrum suorum ordinavit, quod nullus episcopus aut aliquis e clero copiam canonis aut partis canonis propositi et tractati exscribere, aut de aliquo hujusmodi canone foras fabulare praesumpserit, donec hac convocatione five sacra synodo plenarie et finaliter assensum, et sacra regia majestate approbatum erit, sub poena suspensionis cujuslibet e clero per tres menses, et synodicae monitionis pro quolibet praelato, qui ita peccaverit." Deinde preces a doctoribus Bray, et Oliver pro parlamento et statu regis et regni compositae, domino archiepiscopo traditae et mutato uno verbo approbatae sunt.

Sexta sessio (29. die Aprilis) septima (2. die Maii) octava (5. mensis Maii) nona (9. mensis Maii) prorogabantur virtute commissionis ab archiepiscopo.

In decima sessione (13. mensis Maii) reverendissimus aliam licentiam regiam magno sigillo Angliae sigillatam, de ordinando et conficiendo quasdam constitutiones, ordinationes, five canones, statum ecclesiasticum concernentes, ad regium suum beneplacitum duraturam, cum omni reverentia et humilitate introduxit. Et post discursum inter reverendissimum et episcopos habitum de tumultu infimae plebis nuperime circa civitatem et suburbia ejusdem confluentis, reverendissimus voluit ut prolocutor et coetus domus inferioris convocationis "inter se convenirent et excogitarent de benevolentia five extraordinaria contributione dicto serenissimo domino nostro regi concedenda, et deinde de canonibus et constitutionibus, statum ecclesiasticum et ecclesiae utilitatem concernentibus componend. faciend. et inter se consentiend. et ut ipsi pro meliori et celeriori istius negotii expeditione petitione quosdam graviore et doctiores viros de gremio suo eligerent, dictum negotium de canonibus concipiendis subituros." Nomina ad hoc negotium electorum sunt,

"The convocation being called by the king's writ under the great seal, doth continue until it be dissolved by writ or commission under the great seal, notwithstanding the parliament be dissolved. May 14. M.DC.XL.

In undecima sessione (15. mensis Maii) comparuit dominus Henricus Vane, unus e secretariis principalibus domini regis, et thesaurarius hospitii regii, qui coram tota synodo declaravit se fuisse per dictum dominum regem ad hanc domum missum, ad regiam suam voluntatem eidem narrandam. Sc. quod idem dominus noster rex licentiam sive commissionem de ordinando canones et constitutiones ecclesiasticas pro meliori gubernatione ecclesiae ad Dei gloriam, regis honorem, et totius huius regni pacem, uti speratur huic sacrae synodo ex gratia speciali concedens cum dominis de privato suo concilio consultum habuit, an huiusmodi sacra synodus ad huiusmodi canones et constitutiones faciend. procederet, necne; et dicti domini unanimi consensu, nullo eorum dissentiente, vota eorum exhibuerunt, et tanquam maxime necessarium ad iudicarunt, ut sacra haec synodus ad istos canones, juxta potestatem eidem synodo datam, faciend. et concipiend. procedat. Ideoque dictus honorandus vir nomine et ex parte dicti domini regis hortatus est, ut tales canones in brevi tempore fiant, quales ecclesiae et praesenti huic statui maxime utiles sint. Et subjuncta alia brevi oratione per reverendissimum patrem antedictum praelatis et toti coetui praedicto, cum monitione nomine dicti domini regis, ut nullus eorum a dicta sacra synodo discedat, donec omnia juxta mandatum regium praedictum perimplerantur; idem reverendissimus pater una cum dicto honorando viro a dicta sacra synodo ad consilium ineundum cum domino rege apud Whitehall recessit.

In duodecima sessione (16. die Maii) prolocutor cum nonnullis e coetu domus inferioris convocationis capitula quaedam canonum reverendissimo tradidit; et deinde reverendissimus colloquium habuit cum episcopis de exiguitate exhibitionum cleri indigentioris, in detinendo ab eis per proprietarios et eorum firmarios oblationes, et salaria sive feoda ecclesiastica pro mulierum post partum purificationibus, matrimoniorum solemnizationibus, et demortuorum sepulturis, et etiam de magna illa injuria clero per laicos illata, in eligendo tales gardianos et clericos parochiales, qui eos opponunt et inquietant, ad maximum eorum praejudicium et incommodum. Nonnulla deinde de libello sive forma concessionis benevolentiae sive contributionis voluntariae tractabantur. Ac tandem prolocutor cum aliis domum superiorem intravit, canonemque reverendissimo pro brevi e curia cancellariae impetrando de excommunicatis capiendis tradidit.

In decima tertia sessione (18. die Maii) regiae literae toti clero sub signaculo regio directae legebantur, quae huius tenoris erant:

CHARLES R.

Most reverend father in God, right trusty and right entirely beloved counsellor, right reverend father in God, right trusty and well beloved, we greet you well. Whereas we of our meer grace and favour and for the good and peace of the church, have granted to you our archbishop of Canterbury free leave and licence under our great seal of England, bearing date the 12th of this instant May, to propose, treat, and conclude upon all such necessary articles and canons, which you shall find to be ordered for the better peace and government of this church; provided that you shall thereby have no power to meddle with, nor alter any thing ratified and confirmed by act of parliament; and whereas we have further in that licence, which we have granted unto you under our sign manual or signet. . . these are therefore to will and require you to propose, treat, and conclude upon such a canon, as may secure us and all our loving subjects, against all growth and increase of popery in this our kingdom, as also of any heretical or schismatical opinions to the prejudice of the doctrine or discipline of this church of England, established by law. And that in this case you agree upon some oath to be taken by yourselves and all the clergy respectively, and by all, which shall hereafter take on them holy orders; that they shall adhere constantly to the doctrine and discipline here established, and never give way, for so much as can any way concern them, to any innovation or alteration thereof. And when you have made this canon, and inserted this oath, we require you to present it to us, that we may advise upon it; and if upon mature consultation we

we approve it, we shall confirm it: and then give you power under our great seal, both to take the said oath yourselves, and to administer it to all such as the canon appoints.

Given under our signet at our court at Whitehall the 17th day of May, in the sixteenth year of our reign.

Hoc facto, nonnullae querelae contra clericos et nominatim contra doctorem Beale in synodo proponebantur, quod verbis pacem regni perturbantibus in concionibus suis usi fuerint; alia querela exhibita fuit ab archidiacono Roffensi, doctore Burges, quod contra privilegium convocationis, breve de subpoena e curia scaccarii executi fuerint in eum ministri regii. Canon deinde contra recusantes examinabatur, ac certae clausulae in iis contentae dominis iustitiariis primariis corrigendae committebantur.

Decima quarta sessio fuit eodem die post meridiem, quae prorogabatur ad 19. mensis Maii.

In decima quinta sessione (19. mensis Maii) canon contra recusantes a domino iustituario primario correctus confirmabatur; postea principium et finis articulorum de potestate regia, atque canon contra Socinianos post varias consultationes inter utramque domum approbabantur.

In decima sexta sessione (20. mensis Maii) rursus tractatum fuit de canone contra Socinianos, cui tandem unanimiter consensit synodus. Ibi forma iuramenti examinata toti coetui domus inferioris committebatur ad assensum eorum obtinendum. Tunc canones de collectione contributionis voluntariae legebantur, ac prolocutor tradidit in manus reverendissimi schedulam pro literis de excommunicatis capiendis extradendis.

In decima septima sessione (21. mensis Maii) literae regiae toti clero directae sub signaculo suo tenoris sequentis publice legebantur:

CHARLES R.

Most reverend father in God, right trusty and right entirely beloved counsellor; right reverend father in God, right trusty and well beloved; and trusty and well beloved, we greet you well. Whereas we understand by you the lord archbishop of Canterbury, you have confer'd and agreed amongst yourselves to represent unto us your humble and hearty service, and good affection towards us, by an extraordinary contribution and benevolence, to be granted to us by our whole clergy of that our province; we have therefore thought fit by these our letters to will and require you, according to the power given unto you by us, under our great seal, to finish and perfect the said concession; and also to make and ordain such decrees, canons, or constitutions for the collecting, levying, paying, and accounting of the said concession, as in your wisdom shall be thought fit for the better speeding of the same. And these our letters shall be your sufficient warrant and discharge in this behalf. Given under our signet at our palace at Westminster the 20th day of May, in the sixteenth year of our reign.

Subjectum harum literarum fuit negotium primarium sessionis hujus; antequam tamen illa continuaretur, tractatum fuit in domo superiori de quodam canone five declaratione per domum inferiorem eis transmissa, concernente quosdam ritus five gestus in ecclesiis observandos.

Decima octava sessio eodem die post meridiem habita continuabatur ad 22. diem Maii.

In decima nona sessione (22. die Maii) reverendissimus cum confratribus suis episcopis tractatum habuit de canone pro recipienda sacra eucharistia, et pro locatione mensae sacrae. Cui tractatui Godfredus, episcopus Glocestrensis, se opposuit dicens, nulli canoni in hac synodo formando se ullo modo assensurum esse, nisi ex vetusto appareat testimonio et exemplo, legitima ex auctoritate sacram hanc synodum congregatam esse et agere posse. Libello tamen concessionis benevolentiae domino regi fiendae se consentire dixit. Multa deinde tractata sunt de libro articulorum, de tribus canonibus; de emendanda impressione liturgiae in sermonem Wallicum conversae, et de transferendis precibus die inaugurationis regiae usitandis; de canonibus contra sectarios, separatistas, et alios ad preces divinas venire recusantes; de legendis precibus singulis annis die inaugurationis regiae; et de consecrando pane et vino tempore ministrationis sacrae eucharistiae, quoties opus fuerit.

In vicesima prima sessione (23. die mensis Maii) liber articulorum visitationibus parochialibus ministrandorum examinabatur et ulteriori disquisitioni episcoporum nonnullorum committebatur.

In vicesima secunda sessione eodem die post meridiem habita, instrumentum benevolentiae five contributionis voluntariae domino regi praesentandum esse, decretum fuit.

In vicesima tertia sessione (Maii 27.) reverendissimus toti synodo exposuit, quod 25. die mensis instantis instrumentum benevolentiae cum magna gratiarum actione a domino rege fuerit receptum; item quod hesterno die canones in hac sacra synodo tractati, per ipsum reverendissimum regiae majestati in praesentis domino de privato suo sigillo lecti fuerint, regiaeque majestas et domini de concilio praedicto eodem unanimiter et sine haesitatione approbaverint, et quod tota synodus gratias pro laboribus et cura in conficiendis illis retulerit a regia majestate. Postea prolocutor praesentabat conclusionem canonis cujusdam pro suppressione papismi et papistarum; item canones contra judices ecclesiasticos et eorum registrarios et officarios, qui canones sessione vicesima quarta et vicesima quinta (die 28. Maii) rursus tractabantur.

In vicesima sexta et ultima sessione (Maii die 29.) liber septendecim canonum assensum et subscriptionem obtinuit domini archiepiscopi et omnium episcoporum (excepto episcopo Glocestrensi) ac totius coetus domus inferioris convocationis.

Et reverendissimus inter hasce subscriptiones interrogavit dictum dominum episcopum Glocestren. an dictis canonibus assensum suum praebere et nomen subscribere velit; idem dominus episcopus respondendo denegavit. Unde reverendissimus primo, secundo, et tertio monuit eundem dominum episcopum ad subscribendum. Ipse refutavit, et sic ad secundam et tertiam monitionem canonicam respondebat, nisi ad subscribendum negative, petendo beneficium synodi. Tunc reverendissimus eundem dom. episcopum Glocestr. ob contumaciam et inobedientiam suam huiusmodi ab episcopatu suo pro parte sua deprivandum fore decrevit, ac monuit et iussit dominum Johannem Lambe, militem, tunc praesentem, ad concipiendam sententiam deprivationis; et ad vota et suffragia praelatorum ad eundem effectum processit. Post aliquem processum huiusmodi habitum, major pars praelatorum vota sua deprivationi dicti dom. episcopi praebuit. Tunc praefatus dominus episcopus obtulit ad subscribendum, et de facto nomen suum dicto libro apposuit. Quibus sic gestis, dictoque reverendo patre interrogato per reverendissimum ad rogatum prolocutoris et aliorum e coetu domus inferioris, an ipse subscripsit "voluntarie et ex animo, sine aequivocatione, animi evasione, et secreta reservatione?" respondebat quod ipse subscripsit et aliter denegavit respondere. Deinde dimisso dom. prolocutore cum toto coetu domus inferioris, reverendissimus et confratres sui praedicti super istud grave scandalum ecclesiae Anglicanae et huic sacrae synodo per dictum dom. episcopum illatum, inter se tractarunt et unanimiter vota sua dederunt pro suspensione ejusdem episcopi ab officio et beneficiis suis ecclesiasticis. Et mox dominus prolocutor cum toto coetu domus inferioris revertebat, ac nomine suo et totius coetus praedicti dixit se et totum coetum domus suae circa istud scandalum ecclesiae huic Anglicanae et synodo sacrae per dom. episcopum Glocestr. illatum tractasse, et vota sua et eorum suspensioni ejusdem episcopi ab officio et beneficiis praebuisse. Et ulterius dominus prolocutor nomine suo et eorum dominum archiepiscopum imploravit, ut dictus dom. episcopus Glocestr. ante recessum suum ab hac civitate, juramentum in sexto canone in hac sacra synodo tractat. mentionat. praestaret; et ut reverendissimus interrogaret eundem dom. episcopum, an ipse subscripsit bona fide, sine aequivocatione et animi evasione. Unde facta monitione dicto domino episcopo Glocestren. quod non recedat a civitate, donec juramentum praedictum ei oblatum praestiterit et subierit, reverendissimus cum consensu totius synodi dictum dom. episcopum Glocestr. ab officio et episcopatu suo Glocestren. et ab omnibus beneficiis suis ecclesiasticis suspendendum fore decrevit, donec serenissimo domino nostro regi sacrae et ecclesiae, ob magnum huiusmodi dedecus et grave scandalum illatum satisfecerit. Postremo per breve regium et mandatum reverendissimi eodem hoc die 29. Maii convocatio haec dissoluta fuit.

Secunda hujus anni convocatio praelatorum et cleri provinciae Cantuar. per breve regium in ecclesia S. Pauli London. ad diem quartum

Novembris summonebatur. In ea pro more solito sacra peragebantur, breve regium, mandatum archiepiscopi, et certificatorium episcopi London. publice legebantur, schedula contra contumaces, protestatio subdecani ecclesiae collegiatae Westmonast. et protestatio reverendissimi recitabantur, Richardus Steward prolocutor de novo electus, a reverendissimo approbatur. Et quid ulterius in hac synodo, tractatum sit, ex Heylini Cypriano Anglico, h. e. vita archiepiscopi Laudi, p. 460. describam. "Nothing more was done of any moment in this convocation, but that a motion was made by Warmistre, one of the clerks for the diocese of Worcester, to this effect; viz. "that they should endeavour according to the Levitical laws to cover the pit which they had opened," and to prevent their adversaries intention by condemning such offensive canons as were made in the last convocation. He had before offered at many things in that convocation, but such was his ill luck, that the vote was for the most part passed before he spake; nor had he better fortune in his motion now, than his offers then, the members of that house not being willing to condemn themselves, till they were accused. So that not having any other way to obtain his purpose, he caused a long speech, which he had made upon this occasion, to be put in print; bitter enough against some canons and proceedings in the former session; but such as could not save him from a sequestration, when the rest of the clergy were brought under the same condition." H. I.

In secunda hujus synodi sessione praedicatores pro die jejunii 17. die Novembris sequentis indicto, eliguntur. In hac oriebatur quaestio de electione procuratorum cleri pro dioecesi Lincoln. quae in septima sessione (secundo die Decembris) decisa, resuscitata tamen fuit die 27. mensis Januarii sequentis, et tertio die mensis Februarii consentientibus et acquiescentibus partibus querelatis, totum hoc negotium conclusum fuit.

I. Whether if the prolocutor hears any member of the house to speak any thing, which he conceives may be dangerous, he may interrupt him?

II. Whether if any speak impertinently?

III. If any one fall into vain repetitions of what was spoken of and satisfied before?

IV. Whether he may order that one only should speak at one time?

Quibus omnes et singuli praelati affirmative consenserunt, salva potestate eorum. Post decisionem controversiae de procuratoribus cleri pro dioec. Lincoln. convocatio ad 9. Februarii continuabatur. Quid autem eo die et seqq. actum sit et an aut quando synodus dissoluta sit, acta convocationis haud referunt.

Reg. Angliae
CAROL. I. 16.

Constitutions and canons ecclesiastical, treated upon by the archbishops of Canterbury and York, presidents of the convocations for the respective provinces of Canterbury and York, and the rest of the bishops and clergy of those provinces, and agreed upon with the king's majesty's licence in their several synods begun at London and York M.DC.XL. in the year of the reign of our sovereign lord Charles, by the grace of God king of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, the sixteenth; and now published for the due observation of them by his majesty's authority under the great seal of England.

CHARLES, by the grace of God king of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, defender of the faith, etc. to all, to whom these presents shall come, greeting. Whereas our bishops, deans of our cathedral churches, archdeacons, chapters, and colleges, and the other clergy of every diocese within the several provinces of Canterbury and York, being respectively summoned and called by virtue of our several writs to the most reverend father in God, our right trusty and right well beloved counsellor, William, by divine providence lord archbishop of Canterbury, primate of all England, and metropolitan, and to the most reverend father in God, our right trusty and well beloved counsellor, Richard, by divine providence lord archbishop of York, primate and metropolitan of England, respectively directed, bearing date the twentieth day of February, in the fifteenth year of our reign, to appear before the said lord archbishop of Canterbury in our cathedral church of St. Paul in London, and before the said lord archbishop of York in the metropolitan church of St. Peter in York, the fourteenth day of April then next ensuing, or elsewhere, as they respectively should think it most convenient, to treat, consent and conclude upon certain difficult and urgent affairs contained in the said writs, did thereupon at the time appointed, and within the cathedral church of St. Paul, and the metropolitan church of St. Peter aforesaid, assemble themselves respectively together, and appear in several convocations for that purpose, according to the said several writs, before the said lord archbishop of Canterbury, and the said lord archbishop of York respectively; and forasmuch as we are given to understand, that many of our subjects being misled against the rites and ceremonies now used in the church of England, have lately taken offence at the same, upon an unjust supposal, that they are not only contrary to our laws, but also introductive unto popish superstitions; whereas it well appeareth unto us, upon mature consideration, that the said rites and ceremonies, which are now so much quarrelled at, were not only approved of, and used by those learned and godly divines, to whom at the time of reformation under king Edward the sixth, the compiling of the book of Common Prayer was committed, divers of which suffered martyrdom in queen Mary's days, but also again taken up by this whole church under queen Elizabeth, and so duly and ordinarily practised for a great part of her reign, within the memory of divers yet living, as that it could not then be imagined that there would need any rule or law for the observation of the same, or that they could be thought to favour of popery.

And albeit since those times, for want of an express rule therein, and by subtle practises, the said rites and ceremonies began to fall into disuse, and in place thereof, other foreign and unfitting usages by little and little to creep in; yet forasmuch as in our own royal chapels, and in many other churches most of them have been ever constantly used and observed, we cannot now but be very sensible of this matter, and have cause to conceive that the authors and fomenters of these jealousies, though they colour the same with a pretence of zeal, and would seem to strike only at some supposed iniquity in the said ceremonies; yet, as we have cause to fear, aim at our own royal person, and would fain have our good subjects imagine that we ourself are perverted, and do worship God in a superstitious way, and that we intend to bring in some alteration of the religion here established. Now how far we are from that, and how utterly we detest every thought thereof, we have by many public declarations, and otherwise upon sundry occasions given such assurance to the world, as that from thence we also assure ourself, that no man of wisdom and discretion could ever be so beguiled, as to give any serious entertainment to such brainsick jealousies; and for the weaker sort, who are prone to be misled by crafty seducers, we rest no less confident, that even of them, as many as are of loyal, or indeed but of charitable hearts, will from henceforth utterly banish all such causeless fears and surmises, upon these our sacred professions so often made by us, a christian defender of the faith, their king and sovereign. And therefore if yet any person under whatsoever mask of zeal, or counterfeit holiness, shall henceforth by speech or writing, or any other way (notwithstanding these our right, hearty, faithful, and solemn protestations made before him, whose deputy we are, against all and every intention of any popish innovation) be so ungracious and presumptuous, as to vent any poisoned conceits, tending to such a purpose, and to cast these devilish aspersions and and jealousies upon our royal and godly proceedings, we require all our loyal subjects, that they forthwith make the same known to some magistrate, ecclesiastical or civil: and we straitly charge all ordinaries, and every other person in any authority under us, as they will answer the contrary at their utmost peril, that they use no palliation, connivance, or delay herein; but that taking particular information of all the passages, they do forthwith certify the same unto our court of commission for causes ecclesiastical, to be there examined, and proceeded in with all fidelity and tenderneſs of our royal majesty, as is due to us their ſovereign lord and governor. But forasmuch as we well perceive, that the misleaders of our well minded people do make the more advantage for the nourishing of this distemper among them from hence, that the foresaid rites and ceremonies or some of them, are now insisted upon but only in some dioceses, and are not generally revived in all places, nor constantly and uniformly practised throughout all the churches of our realm, and thereupon have been liable to be quarrelled and opposed by them who use them not; we therefore out of our princely inclination to uniformity and peace, in matters especially that concern the holy worship of God, proposing to our self herein the pious examples of king Edward VI. and of queen Elizabeth, who sent forth injunctions and orders about the divine service and other ecclesiastical matters, and of our dear father of blessed memory king James, who published a book of constitutions and canons ecclesiastical; and (according to the act of parliament in this behalf) having fully advised herein with our metropolitan, and with our commissioners authorized under our great seal for causes ecclesiastical, have thought good to give them free leave to treat in convocation; and agree upon certain other canons necessary for the advancement of God's glory, the edifying of his holy church, and the due reverence of his blessed mysteries and sacraments: that as we ever have been, and by God's assistance (by whom alone we reign) shall ever so continue careful and ready to cut off superstition with one hand, so we may no less expell irreverence and profaneness with the other; whereby it may please almighty God so to bless us, and this church committed to our government, that it may at once return unto the true former splendor of uniformity, devotion, and holy order, the lustre whereof for some years bypast hath been over much obscured, through the devices of some ill affected to that sacred order, wherein it had long stood from the very beginning of the reformation, and through inadvertency of some in authority in the church under us. We therefore by virtue of our prerogative royal, and supreme authority in causes ecclesiastical, by our several and respective letters patents under our great seal of England, dated the fifteenth day of April now last past, and the twelfth day of May then next following, for the province of Canterbury; and by our like letters patents dated the seven and twentieth day of the same month of April, and the twentieth day of the month of May aforesaid, for the province of York, did give and grant full, free, and lawful liberty, licence, power, and authority unto the said lord archbishop of Canterbury, president of the said convocation for the province of Canterbury, and unto the said lord archbishop of York, president of the said convocation for the province of York, and to the rest of the bishops of the said provinces, and unto all deans of cathedral churches, archdeacons, chapters, and colleges, and the whole clergy of every several diocese within the said several provinces, and either of them, that they should and might from time to time, during the present parliament, and further during our will and pleasure, confer, treat, debate, consider, consult, and agree of, and upon canons, orders, ordinances, and constitutions, as they should think necessary, fit and convenient for the honour and service of almighty God, the good and quiet of the church, and the better government thereof, to be from time to time observed, performed, fulfilled, and kept as well by the said archbishop of Canterbury, and the said archbishop of York, the bishops, and their successors, and the rest of the whole clergy of the said several provinces of Canterbury and York, in their several callings, offices, functions, ministries, degrees, and administrations; as by all and every dean of the Arches, and other judges of the said several archbishops courts, guardians of spiritualities, chancellors, deans and chapters, archdeacons, commissaries, officials, registers, and all and every other ecclesiastical officers, and their inferior ministers whatsoever, of the same respective provinces of Canterbury, and York, in their, and every of their distinct courts, and in the order and manner of their, and every of their proceedings, and by all other persons within this realm, as far as lawfully being members of the church it may concern them, as in our said letters patents amongst other clauses more at large doth appear.

Now forasmuch as the said lord archbishop of Canterbury, president of the said convocation for the province of Canterbury, and the said archbishop of York, president of the said convocation for the province of York, and others the said bishops, deans, archdeacons, chapters, and colleges, with the rest of the clergy, having met together respectively, at the time and places before mentioned respectively, and then and there, by virtue of our said authority granted unto them, treated of, concluded, and agreed upon certain canons, orders, ordinances, and constitutions, to the end and purpose by us limited and prescribed unto them, and have thereupon offered and presented the same unto us, most humbly desiring us to give our royal assent unto the same, according to the form of a certain statute or act of parliament made in that behalf in the five and twentieth year of the reign of king Henry VIII. and by our said prerogative royal and supreme authority in causes ecclesiastical, to ratify by our letters patents under our great seal of England, and to confirm firm the same, the title and tenor of them being word for word as ensueth:

I. Concerning the regal power.

Whereas sundry laws, ordinances, and constitutions have been formerly made for the acknowledgment and profession of the most lawful and independent authority of our dread sovereign lord, the king's most excellent majesty, over the state ecclesiastical and civil; we (as our duty in the first place binds us, and so far as to us appertaineth) enjoin them all to be carefully observed by all persons whom they concern, upon the penalties of the said laws and constitutions expressed.

And for the fuller and clearer instruction and information of all christian people within this realm in their duties in this particular,

We do further ordain and decree, that every parson, vicar, curate, or preacher, upon some one Sunday in every quarter of the year at morning prayer, shall in the place where he serves, treatably and audibly read these explanations of the regal power here inserted:

The most high and sacred order of kings is of divine right, being the ordinance of God himself, founded in the prime laws of nature, and clearly established by express texts both of the Old and New Testaments. A supreme power is given to this most excellent order by God himself in the scriptures, which is, that kings should rule and command in their several dominions all persons of what rank or estate soever, whether ecclesiastical or civil, and that they should restrain and punish with the temporal sword all stubborn and wicked doers.

The care of God's church is so committed to kings in the scripture, that they are commended when the church keeps the right way, and taxed when it runs amiss, and therefore her government belongs in chief unto kings; for otherwise one man would be commended for another's care, and taxed but for another's negligence, which is not God's way.

The power to call and dissolve councils both national and provincial, is the true right of all christian kings within their own realms and territories: and when in the first times of Christ's church prelates used this power, 'twas therefore only because in those days they had no christian kings; and it was then so only used as in times of persecution, that is, with supposition (in case it were required) of submitting their very lives unto the very laws and commands even of those pagan princes, that they might not so much as seem to disturb their civil government, which Christ came to confirm, but by no means to undermine.

For any person or persons to set up, maintain, or avow in any their said realms or territories respectively, under any pretence whatsoever, any independent coactive power, either papal or popular (whether directly or indirectly) is to undermine their great royal office, and cunningly to overthrow that most sacred ordinance which God himself hath established; and so is treasonable against God as well as against the king.

For subjects to bear arms against their kings offensive or defensive, upon any pretence whatsoever, is at least to resist the powers which are ordained of God; and though they do not invade, but only resist, St. Paul tells them plainly, they shall receive to themselves damnation.

And although tribute, and custom, and aid, and subsidy, and all manner of necessary support and supply be respectively due to kings from their subjects by the law of God, nature, and nations for the public defence, care, and protection of them; yet nevertheless subjects have not only possession of, but a true and just right, title, and property to, and in all their goods and estates; and ought to have: and these two are so far from crossing one another, that they mutually go together for the honourable and comfortable support of both. For as it is the duty of the subjects to supply their king, so is it part of the kingly office to support his subjects in the property and freedom of their estates.

And if any parson, vicar, curate, or preacher shall voluntarily or carelessly neglect his duty in publishing the said explications and conclusions, according to the order above described, he shall be suspended by his ordinary, till such time as upon his penitence he shall give sufficient assurance or evidence of his amendment; and in case he be of any exempt jurisdiction, he shall be censurable to his majesty's commissioners for causes ecclesiastical.

And we do also hereby require all archbishops, bishops, and all other inferior priests and ministers, that they preach, teach, and exhort their people to obey, honour, and serve their king; and that they presume not to speak of his majesty's power in any other way, than in this canon is expressed.

And if any parson, vicar, curate, preacher, or any other ecclesiastical person whatsoever, any dean, canon, or prebendary of any collegiate or cathedral church, any member or student of college or hall, or any reader of divinity or humanity in either of the universities, or elsewhere, shall in any sermon, lecture, common place, determination, or disputation, either by word or writing publickly maintain or abet any position or conclusion in opposition or impeachment of the aforesaid explications, or any part or article of them, he shall forthwith by the power of his majesty's commissioners for causes ecclesiastical be excommunicated till he repent, and suspended two years from all the profits of his benefice, or other ecclesiastical, academical, or scholastical preferments: and if he so offend a second time, he shall be deprived from all his spiritual promotions, of what nature or degree soever they be.

Provided always, that if the offence aforesaid be given in either of the universities by men not having any benefice or ecclesiastical preferment, that then the delinquent shall be censured by the ordinary authority in such cases of that university respectively, where the said fault shall be committed.

II. For the better keeping of the day of his majesties most happy inauguration.

The synod taking into consideration the most inestimable benefits, which this church enjoyeth under the peaceable and blessed government of our dread sovereign lord king Charles; and finding that as well the godly christian emperors in the former times, as our own most religious princes since the reformation have caused the days of their inaugurations to be publickly celebrated by all their subjects with prayers and thanksgiving to almighty God; and that there is a particular form of prayer appointed by authority for that day and purpose; and yet withall considering how negligent some people are in observance of this day in many places of this kingdom; doth therefore decree and ordain, that all manner of persons within the church of England, shall from henceforth celebrate and keep the morning of the said day in coming diligently and reverently unto their parish church or chapel, at the time of prayer, and there continuing all the while, that the prayers, preaching, or other service of the day endureth: in testimony of their humble gratitude to God for so great a blessing, and dutiful affections to so benign and merciful a sovereign. And for the better execution of this our ordinance, the holy synod doth straitly require and charge, and by authority hereof enableth all archbishops, bishops, deans, deans and chapters, archdeacons, and other ecclesiastical persons, having exempt or peculiar jurisdiction; as also all chancellors, commissaries, and officials in the church of England, that they enquire into the keeping of the same in their visitations, and punish such as they shall find to be delinquent, according as by law they are to censure, and punish those who wilfully absent themselves from church on holydays. And that the said day may be the better observed, we do enjoin, that all churchwardens shall provide, at the parishcharge, two of those books at least, appointed for that day; and if there be any want of the said book in any parish, they shall present the same at all visitations respectively.

III. For the suppressing the growth of popery.

All and every ecclesiastical persons, of what rank or condition soever, archbishops, and bishops, deans, archdeacons, all having exempt or peculiar jurisdiction, with their several chancellors, commissaries, and officials, all persons intrusted with cure of souls, shall use respectively all possible care and diligence by conferring privately with the parties, and by censures of the church in inferiour and higher courts, as also by complaints unto the secular power, to reduce all such to the church of England, who are misled into popish superstition.

And first, these private conferences shall be performed in each several diocese either by the bishop in person, if his occasion will permit it, or by some one or more learned ministers at his special appointment, and the said bishop shall also design the time and place of the said several conferences, and all such persons as shall be present thereat; which if recusants refuse to observe, they shall be taken for obstinate, and so certified to the bishop. And if the said time and place be not observed by the minister or ministers so appointed, they shall be suspended by their ordinary for the space of six months, without a very reasonable cause alleged to the contrary. Provided that they be not sent above ten miles from their dwelling.

If the said conferences prevail not, the church must and shall come to her censures; and to make way for them, the said ecclesiastical persons shall carefully inform themselves in the places belonging to their several charges, of all recusants above the age of twelve years, both of such as come not at all to church, as also of those who coming sometimes thither, do yet refuse to receive the holy eucharist with us, as likewise of all those who shall either say or hear mass: and they shall in a more especial manner enquire out all those who are either dangerously active to seduce any persons from the communion of the church of England, or seditiously busy to dissuade his majesty's subjects from taking the oath of allegiance, together with all them who abused by their sophistry, refuse to take the said oath.

And we straitly command all parsons, vicars, and curates, that they carefully and severally present at all visitations the names and surnames of the delinquents of these several kinds in their own parishes, under pain of suspension for six months.

And likewise we straitly enjoin all churchwardens, and the like sworn officers whatsoever, that by virtue of their oaths they shall present at the said visitations the names of such persons, whom they know or hear of, or justly suspect to be delinquent in all or any of these particulars, and that under the pains of the highest censures of the church, that so these delinquents may be legally cited; and being found obstinate, they shall be excommunicated and such excommunication shall be pronounced both in the cathedral church of the diocese, and in the several parishes where such recusants live; and every third month they shall be again publickly repeated in the places aforesaid, that all may take notice of those sentences.

And because there are places, which either have or pretend to have exemptions, in which such delinquents do usually affect to make their abode; therefore we enjoin, that all bishops shall within their several dioceses send unto such places one or more of their chaplains, or some of their officers, whom they may rely on, to make strict enquiry after offenders in those kinds; who diligently returning their information accordingly, the said bishop shall certify such informations to his metropolitan, that the aforesaid proceedings may forthwith issue from some higher courts in these cases, whereof by reason reason of the said exemptions, the inferiour courts can take no cognizance.

But if neither conferring nor censures will prevail with such persons, the church hath no way left but complaints to the secular power; and for them we straitly enjoin, that all deans, and archdeacons, and all having inferiour or exempt jurisdiction, shall every year within six months after any visitations by them holden, make certificate unto their severall bishops, or archbishop (if it be within his diocese) under their seal of office of all such persons who have been presented unto them as aforesaid, under pain of suspension from their said jurisdictions by the space of one whole year.

And we in like manner enjoin all archbishops and bishops, that once every year at the least they certifie under their episcopal seal in parchment unto the justices of assize of every county in the circuits, and within their dioceses respectively, the names and surnames not only of those, who have been presented unto them from the said deans, archdeacons, etc. but of those also, who upon the oaths of churchwardens and other sworn men at their visitations, or upon the information of ministers employed in the said conferences, have been presented unto them, that so the said intended proceedings may have the more speedy and the more general success.

In particular, it shall be carefully enquired into at all visitations under the oaths of the churchwardens and other sworn men, what recusants or popish persons have been either married or buried, or have had their children baptized otherwise than according to the rules and forms established in the church of England; and the names of such delinquents (if they can learn them, or otherwise such names as for the time they carry) shall be as aforesaid given up to the bishop, who shall present them to the justices of assize, to be punished according to the statutes.

And for the education of recusants children, since by canon already established, no man can teach school (no not in any private house) except he be allowed by the ordinary of the place, and withal have subscribed to the articles of religion established in the church of England; we therefore straitly enjoin, that forthwith at all visitations there be diligent enquiry made by the churchwardens or other sworn ecclesiastical officers of each parish, under their oaths, who are employed as schoolmasters, to the children of recusants; and that their severall names be presented to the bishop of the diocese, who citing the said schoolmasters shall make diligent search whether they have subscribed or no; and if they or any of them be found to refuse subscription, they shall be forbidden to teach hereafter, and censured for their former presumption; and withal the names of him or them that entertain such a schoolmaster, shall be certified to the bishop of the diocese, who shall at the next assize present them to the judges, to be proceeded against according to the statutes. And if they subscribe, enquiry shall be made what care they take for the instruction of the said children in the catechism established in the book of Common Prayer. And all ordinaries shall censure those whom they find negligent in the said instruction; and if it shall appear that the parents of the said children do forbid such schoolmasters to bring them up in the doctrine of the church of England, they shall notwithstanding do their duty; and if thereupon the said parents shall take away their children, the said schoolmasters shall forthwith give up their names unto the bishop of the diocese, who shall take care to return them to the justices of assize in manner and form aforesaid. And because some may cunningly elude this decree, by sending their children to be bred beyond the seas, therefore we ordain, that the churchwardens and other sworn ecclesiastical officers shall likewise make careful enquiry, and give in upon their oaths at all visitations the names of such recusants children who are so sent beyond the seas to be bred there, or whom they probably suspect to be so sent; which names as aforesaid shall be given up to the bishop, and from him returned to the judges as aforesaid, that their parents, who so send them, may be punished according to law: provided always that this canon shall not take away or derogate from any power or authority already given or established by any other canon now in force.

And all the said complaints or certificates shall be presented up to the judges in their severall circuits by the bishop's register, or some other of his deputies immediately after the publishing of his majesties commission, or at the end of the charge, which shall be then given by the judge. And this upon pain of suspension for three months.

This sacred synod doth earnestly intreat the reverend justices of assize, to be careful in the execution of the said laws committed to their trust, as they will answer to God for the daily encrease of this gross kind of superstition. And further, we do also exhort all judges, whether ecclesiastical or temporal, upon the like account, that they would not admit in any of their courts any vexatious complaint, suit, or suits, or presentments against any minister, churchwardens, questmen, fidemen, or other church officers for the making of any such presentments.

And lastly, we enjoin that every bishop shall once in every year send into his majesties high court of Chancery a "Significavit" of the names and surnames of all such recusants, who have stood excommunicated beyond the time limited by the law, and shall desire that the writ "De excommunicato capiendo" might be at once sent out against them all "ex officio." And for the better execution of this decree, this present synod doth most humbly beseech his most sacred majesty, that the officers of the said high court of Chancery, whom it shall concern, may be commanded to send out the aforesaid writ from time to time as is desired, for that it would much exhaust the particular estates of the ordinaries, to sue out several writs at their own charge. And that the like command command also may be laid upon the sheriffs and their deputies, for the due and faithful execution of the said writs, as often as they shall be brought unto them.

And to the end that this canon may take the better and speedier effect, and not be deluded or delayed; we further decree and ordain, that no popish recusant, who shall persist in the said sentence of excommunication beyond the time prescribed by law, shall be absolved by virtue of any appeal in any ecclesiastical court, unless the said party shall first in his or her own person, and not by a proctor, take the usual oath "De parendo juri, et stando mandatis ecclesiae."

IV. Against Socinianism.

Whereas much mischief is already done in the church of God by the spreading of the damnable and cursed heresy of Socinianism, as a complication of many ancient heresies condemned by the four first general councils, and contrariant to the articles of religion now established in the church of England; and whereas it is too apparent that the said wicked and blasphemous errors are unhappily dilated by the frequent divulgation and dispersion of dangerous books, written in favour and furtherance of the same, whereby many, especially of the younger or unsettled sort of people, may be poisoned and infected; it is therefore decreed by this present synod, that no stationer, printer, or importer of the said books, or any other person whatsoever shall print, buy, sell, or disperse any book broaching or maintaining of the said abominable doctrine or positions, upon pain of excommunication ipso facto to be thereupon incurred: and we require all ordinaries, upon pain of the censures of the church, that beside the excommunication aforesaid, they do certify their names and offences under their episcopal seal to the metropolitan, by him to be delivered to his majesty's Attorney general for the time being, to be proceeded withall according to the late decree in the honourable court of Star-chamber, against the spreaders of prohibited books. And that no preacher shall presume to vent any such doctrine in any sermon, under pain of excommunication for the first offence, and deprivation for the second. And that no student in either of the universities of this land, nor any person in holy orders (excepting graduates in divinity, or such as have episcopal or archidiaconal jurisdiction, or doctors of law in holy orders) shall be suffered to have or read any such Socinian book or discourse, under pain (if the offender live in the university) that he shall be punished according to the strictest statutes provided there against the publishing, reading, or maintaining of false doctrine; or if he live in the city or country abroad, of a suspension for the first offence, and excommunication for the second, and deprivation for the third, unless he will absolutely and "in terminis" abjure the same. And if any layman shall be seduced into this opinion, and be convicted of it, he shall be excommunicated, and not absolved, but upon due repentance and abjuration, and that before the metropolitan, or his own bishop at the least. And we likewise enjoin that such books, if they be found in any prohibited hand, shall be immediately burned: and that there be a diligent search made by the appointment of the ordinary after all such books, in what hands soever, except they be now in the hands of any graduate in divinity, and such as have episcopal or archidiaconal jurisdiction, or any doctor of laws in holy orders as aforesaid; and that all who now have them, except before excepted, be strictly commanded to bring in the said books in the universities to the vicechancellors, and out of the universities to the bishops, who shall return them to such whom they dare trust with the reading of the said books, and shall cause the rest to be burned. And we farther enjoin, that diligent enquiry be made after all such as shall maintain and defend the aforesaid Socinianism; and when any such shall be detected, that they be complained of to the several bishops respectively, who are required by this synod to repress them from any such propagation of the aforesaid wicked and detestable opinions.

Whereas there is a provision now made by a canon for the suppressing of popery, and the growth thereof, by subjecting all popish recusants to the greatest severity of ecclesiastical censures in that behalf; this present synod well knowing, that there are other sects which endeavour the subversion both of the doctrine and discipline of the church of England no less than papists do, although by another way; for the preventing thereof, doth hereby decree and ordain, that all those proceedings and penalties which are mentioned in the aforesaid canon against popish recusants as far as they shall be applicable, shall stand in full force against all Anabaptists, Brownists, Separatists, Familists, or other sect or sects, person or persons whatsoever, who do or shall either obstinately refuse, or ordinarily, not having a lawful impediment (that is, for the space of a month) neglect to repair to their parish churches or chapels where they inhabit for the hearing of divine service established, and receiving of the holy communion according to law.

And we do also further decree and ordain, that the clause contained in the canon now made by this synod against the books of Socinianism, shall also extend to the makers, importers, printers, and publishers, or dispersers of any book, writing, or scandalous pamphlet devised against the discipline and government of the church of England, and unto the maintainers and abettors of any opinion or doctrine against the same.

And further, because there are sprung up among us a sort of factious people, despisers and depravers of the book of Common Prayer, who do not according to the law resort to their parish church or chapel to joyn in public prayers, prayers, service, and worship of God with the congregation, contenting themselves with the hearing of sermons only, thinking thereby to avoid the penalties due to such as wholly absent themselves from the church. We therefore for the restraint of all such wilful contemners or neglecters of the service of God, do ordain, that the church- or chapelwardens, and questmen, or sidemen of every parish, shall be careful to enquire out all such disaffected persons, and shall present the names of all such delinquents at all visitations of bishops and other ordinaries; and that the same proceedings and penalties mentioned in the canon aforesaid respectively, shall be used against them as against other recusants, unless within one whole month after they are first denounced, they shall make acknowledgment and reformation of that their fault. Provided always, that this canon shall not derogate from any other canon, law or statute in that behalf provided against those sectaries.

VI. An oath enjoyn'd for the preventing of all innovations in doctrine and government.

This present synod (being desirous to declare their sincerity and constancy in the profession of the doctrine and discipline already established in the church of England, and to secure all men against any suspicion of revolt to popery, or any other superstition) decrees, that all archbishops, and bishops, and all other priests, and deacons in places exempt or not exempt, shall before the second day of November next ensuing, take this oath following against all innovation of doctrine or discipline, and this oath shall be tendred them and every of them, and all others named after in this canon, by the bishop in person, or his chancellor, or some grave divines named and appointed by the bishop under the seal; and the said oath shall be taken in the presence of a public notary, who is hereby required to make an act of it, leaving the universities to the provision which follows:

The oath is,

I A. B. do swear that I do approve the doctrine, and discipline, or government established in the church of England, as containing all things necessary to salvation: and that I will not endeavour by my self or any other, directly or indirectly to bring in any popish doctrine, contrary to that which is so established: nor will I ever give my consent to alter the government of this church by archbishops, bishops, deans, and archdeacons, etc. as it stands now established, and as by right it ought to stand, nor yet ever to subject it to the usurpations and superstitions of the see of Rome. And all these things I do plainly and sincerely acknowledge and swear, according to the plain and common sense and understanding of the same words, without any equivocation, or mental evasion, or secret reservation whatsoever. And this I do heartily, willingly, and truly, upon the faith of a christian. So help me God in Jesus Christ.

VOL. IV.

And if any man beneficed or dignified in the church of England, or any other ecclesiastical person shall refuse to take this oath, the bishop shall give him a month's time to inform himself; and at the month's end if he refuse to take it, he shall be suspended "ab officio," and have a second month granted: and if then he refuse to take it, he shall be suspended "ab officio et beneficio," and have a third month granted him for his better information; but if at the end of that month he refuse to take the oath above-named, he shall by the bishop be deprived of all his ecclesiastical promotions whatsoever, and execution of his function which he holds in the in the church of England.

We likewise constitute and ordain, that all masters of arts, (the sons of noblemen only excepted) all batchelors and doctors in divinity, law or physick, all that are licensed to practice physick, all registers, actuaries and proctors, all schoolmasters, all such as being natives or naturalized, do come to be incorporated into the universities here, having taken a degree in any foreign university, shall be bound to take the said oath. And we command all governors of colleges and halls in either of the universities, that they administer the said oath to all persons resident in their several houses that have taken the degrees beforementioned in this canon, within six months after the publication hereof.

And we likewise constitute, that all bishops shall be bound to give the said oath unto all those to whom they give holy orders at the time of their ordination, or to whomsoever they give collation, institution, or licence to preach or serve any cure.

VII. A declaration concerning some rites and ceremonies.

Because it is generally to be wished, that unity of faith were accompanied with uniformity of practice in the outward worship and service of God; chiefly for the avoiding of groundless suspicions of those who are weak, and the malicious aspersions of the professed enemies of our religion; the one fearing the innovations, the other flattering themselves with the vain hope of our backslidings unto their popish superstition, by reason of the situation of the communion table, and the approaches thereunto, the synod declareth as followeth:

That the standing of the communion table sideways under the east window of every chancel or chapel, is in its own nature indifferent, neither commanded nor condemned by the word of God, either expressly or by immediate deduction, and therefore that no religion is to be placed therein, or scruple to be made thereon. And albeit at the time of reforming this church from that gross superstition of popery, it was carefully provided that all means should be used to root out of the minds of the people, both the inclination thereunto, and memory thereof; especially of the idolatry committed in the mass, for which cause all popish altars were demolished: yet notwithstanding it was then ordered by the injunctions and advertisements of queen Elizabeth of blessed memory, that the holy tables should stand in the place where the altars stood, and accordingly have been continued in the royal chapels of three famous and pious princes, and in most cathedral and some parochial churches, which doth sufficiently acquit the manner of placing the said tables from any illegality, or just suspicion of popish superstition or innovation. And therefore we judge it fit and convenient that all churches and chapels do conform themselves in this particular to the example of the cathedral or mother churches, saving always the general liberty left to the bishop by law, during the time of administration of the holy communion. And we declare that this situation of the holy table, doth not imply that it is, or ought to be esteemed a true and proper altar, whereon Christ is again really sacrificed: but it is and may be called an altar by us, in that sense in which the primitive church called it an altar, and in no other.

And because experience hath shewed us how irreverent the behaviour of many people is in many places, some leaning, others casting their hats, and some sitting upon, some standing, and others sitting under the communion table in time of divine service: for the avoiding of these and the like abuses, it is thought meet and convenient by this present synod, that the said communion tables in all chancels or chapels be decently severed with rails, to preserve them from such or worse profanations.

And because the administration of holy things is to be performed with all possible decency and reverence, therefore we judge it fit and convenient, according to the word of the service book established by act of parliament "Draw near," etc. that all communicants with all humble reverence shall draw near and approach to the holy table, there to receive the divine mysteries, which have heretofore in some places been unfitly carried up and down by the minister, unless it shall be otherwise appointed in respect of the incapacity of the place, or other inconvenience, by the bishop himself in his jurisdiction, and other ordinaries respectively in theirs.

And lastly, whereas the church is the house of God, dedicated to his holy worship, and therefore ought to mind us both of the greatness and goodness of his divine majesty; certain it is that the acknowledgment thereof, not only inwardly in our hearts, but also outwardly with our bodies, must needs be pious in it self, profitable unto us, and edifying unto others. We therefore think it very meet and behoveful, and heartily commend it to all good and well affected people, members of this church, that they be ready to tender unto the Lord the said acknowledgement, by doing reverence and obedience, both at their coming in and going out of the said churches, chancels, or chapels, according to the most ancient custom of the primitive church in the purest times, and of this church also for many years of the reign of queen Elizabeth. The reviving therefore of this ancient and laudable custom we heartily commend to the serious consideration of all good people, not with any intention to exhibit any religious worship to the communion table, the east, or church, or any thing therein contained in so doing, or to perform the said gesture in the celebration of the holy eucharist, upon any opinion of a corporal presence of the body of Jesus Christ on the holy table, or in mystical elements, but only for the advancement of God's majesty, and to give him alone that honour and glory that is due unto him, and no otherwise; and in the practice or omission of this rite, we desire that the rule of charity prescribed by the apostle may be observed, which is, that they which use this rite, despise not them who use it not; and that they who use it not, condemn not those that use it.

Whereas the preaching of order and decency according to St. Paul's rule, doth conduce to edification; it is required that all preachers (as well beneficed men as others) shall positively and plainly preach and instruct the people in their public sermons twice in the year at least, that the rites and ceremonies now established in the church of England, are lawful and commendable; and that they the said people and others ought to conform themselves in their practice to all the said rites and ceremonies; and that the people and others ought willingly to submit themselves unto the authority and government of the church, as it is now established under the king's majesty. And if any preacher shall refuse or neglect to do according to this canon, let him be suspended by his ordinary during the time of his refusal, or wilful forbearance to do thereafter.

IX. One book of articles of enquiry to be used at all parochial visitations.

For the better settling of an uniformity in the outward government and administration of the church, and for the more preventing of just grievances which may be laid upon churchwardens and other sworn men by any impertinent, inconvenient, or illegal enquiries in the articles for ecclesiastical visitations: this synod hath now caused a summary or collection of visitatory articles (out of the rubrics of the service book, and the canons and warrantable rules of the church) to be made, and for future direction to be deposited in the records of the archbishop of Canterbury: and we do decree and ordain, that from henceforth no bishop or other person whatsoever having right to hold, use, or exercise any parochial visitation (shall under the pain of a month's suspension upon a bishop, and two months upon any other ordinary that is delinquent, and this to be incurred "ipso facto" cause to be printed, or published, or otherwise to be given in charge to the churchwardens, or to any other persons which shall be sworn to make presentments, any other articles or forms of enquiry upon oath, than such only as shall be approved and "in terminis," allowed unto him (upon due request made) made) by his metropolitan under his seal of office.

Provided always, that after the end of three years next following the date of these presents, the metropolitan shall not either at the instance of those which have right to hold parochial visitations, or upon any other occasion, make any addition or diminution from that allowance to any bishop of visitatory articles, which he did last before (in any diocese within this province) approve of, but calling for the same, shall hold and give that only for a perpetual rule, and then every parish shall be bound only to take the said book from the archdeacons and other having a peculiar or exempt jurisdiction, but once from that time, in three years, in case they do make it appear, they have the said book remaining in their public chest for the use of the parish: and from every bishop they shall receive the said articles at the episcopal visitation only, and in manner and form as formerly they have been accustomed to do, and at no greater price than what hath been usually paid in the said diocese respectively.

X. Concerning the conversation of the clergy.

The sober, grave and exemplary conversation of all those that are employed in administration of holy things, being of great avail for the furtherance of piety; it hath been the religious care of the church of England, strictly to enjoin to all and every one of her clergy, a pious, regular, and inoffensive demeanour, and to prohibit all loose and scandalous carriage by severe censures to be inflicted upon such delinquents, as appears by the LXXIV. and LXXV. canons, anno M.DC.III. provided to this purpose.

For the more effectual success of which pious and necessary care this present synod straitly charges all clergymen in this church, that setting before their eyes the glory of God, the holiness of their calling, and the edification of the people committed to them, they carefully avoid all excess and disorder, and that by their christian and religious conversation they shine forth as lights unto others in all godliness and honesty.

And we also require all those, to whom the the government of the clergy of this church is committed, that they set themselves to countenance and encourage godliness, gravity, sobriety and all unblameable conversation in the ministers of this church, and that according to the power with which they are intrusted, they diligently labour by the due execution of the abovenamed canons, and all other ecclesiastical provisions made for this end, to reform all offensive and scandalous persons, if any be in the ministry, as they tender the welfare and prospering of piety and religion, and as they will answer to God for those scandals, which through their remissness and neglect shall arise and grow in this church of Christ.

XI. Chancellors patents.

For the better remedying and redress of such abuses as are complained of in the ecclesiastical courts, the synod doth decree and ordain, that hereafter no bishop shall grant any patent to any chancellor, commissary, or official, for any longer term than the life of the grantee only, nor otherwise than with express reservation to himself and his successors, of the power to execute the said place, either alone, or with the chancellor, if the bishop shall please to do the same, saving always to the said chancellors, etc. the fees accustomedly taken for executing the said jurisdiction. And that in all such patents, the bishop shall keep in his own hands the power of institution unto benefices, as also of giving licences to preach or keep school. And further, that no dean and chapter confirm any patent of any chancellor, commissaries, or officials place, wherein the said conditions are not expressed "sub poena suspensionis," to the dean (or his "locum tenens" if he pass the act in his absence) and to every canon or prebendary, voting to the confirmation of the said act, to be inflicted by the archbishop of the province. And further, the holy synod doth decree and ordain, that no reward shall be taken for any chancellors, commissaries or officials place under the heaviest censures of the church.

XII. Chancellors alone, not to censure any of the clergy in sundry cases.

That no chancellor, commissary, or official, unless he be in holy orders, shall proceed to suspension, or any higher censure against any of the clergy in any criminal cause, other than neglect of appearance, upon legal citing; but that all such causes shall be heard by the bishop in person, or with the assistance of his chancellor, or commissary; or if the bishop's occasions will not permit, then by his chancellor or commissary, and two grave dignified or beneficed ministers of the diocese to be assigned by the bishop, under his episcopal seal, who shall hear and censure the said cause in the consistory.

XIII. Excommunication and absolution not to be pronounced but by a priest.

That no excommunications or absolutions shall be good or valid in law, except they be pronounced either by the bishop in person, or by some other in holy orders, having ecclesiastical jurisdiction, or by some grave minister beneficed in the diocese, being a master of arts at least, and appointed by the bishop, and the priest's name pronouncing such sentence of excommunication or absolution to be expressed in the instrument issuing under seal out of the court. And that no such minister shall pronounce any sentence of absolution but in open consistory, or at the least in a church or chapel, the penitent humbly craving and taking absolution upon his knees, and having first taken the oath, "de parendo juri et stando mandatis ecclesiae." And that no parson, vicar, or curate, "sub poena suspensionis," shall declare any of his or their parishioners to be excommunicate, or shall admit any of them so excommunicate municate into the church, and there to declare them to be absolved, except they first receive such excommunications and absolutions under the seal of the ecclesiastical judge, from whom it cometh.

XIV. Concerning commutations, and the disposing of them.

That no chancellor, commissary or official, shall have power to commute any penance in whole, or in part; but either together with the bishop in person, or with his privity in writing, or if by himself, there he shall give up a full and just account of all such commutations once every year at Michaelmas, to the bishop, who shall, with his chancellor, see that all such moneys be disposed of, to charitable and public uses, according to law. And if any chancellor or other having jurisdiction as aforesaid, shall not make such a just account to the bishop, and be found guilty of it, he shall be suspended from all exercise of his jurisdiction for the space of one whole year.

Always provided, that if the crime be publicly complained of, and do appear notorious, that then the office shall signify to the place, from whence the complaint came, that the delinquent hath satisfied the church for his offence. And the minister shall signify it as he shall be directed; saving always to all chancellors, and other ecclesiastical officers, their due and accustomed fees, if he or they be not so suspended as aforesaid.

XV. Touching concurrent jurisdiction.

That in such places wherein there is concurrent jurisdiction, no executor be cited into any court or office, for the space of ten days after the death of the testator. And that as well every apparitor herein, as every register or clerk that giveth or carrieth out any citation or process to such intent, before that the said ten days be expired, shall for the first offence herein, be suspended from the execution of his office for the space of three months; and for the second offence in this kind, be and stand excommunicated, "ipso facto," not to be restored but by the metropolitan of the province, or his lawful surrogate; and that yet nevertheless, it be lawful for any executor to prove such wills when they think good, within the said ten days, before any ecclesiastical judge respectively, to whose jurisdiction the same may or doth appertain.

XVI. Concerning licences to marry.

Whereas divers licences to marry are granted by ordinaries, in whose jurisdiction neither of the parties desiring such licence, is resident, to the prejudice of the archiepiscopal prerogative, to whom only the power of granting such licences to parties of any jurisdiction, "per totam provinciam," by law belongeth; and for other great inconveniences thereupon ensuing: it is therefore decreed, that no licence of marriage shall be granted by any ordinary to any parties, unless one of the said parties have been commorant in the jurisdiction of the said ordinary, for the space of one whole month immediately before the said licence be desired. And if any ordinary shall offend herein, and be sufficiently evinced thereof, in any of the lord archbishop's courts, he shall be liable to such censure as the lord archbishop shall think fit to inflict. And we farther decree, that one of the conditions in the bond of security given by the parties taking such licence, shall be, that the said parties, or one of them, have, or hath been a month commorant in the said jurisdiction, immediately before the said licence granted.

And the synod decrees, that whatsoever is ordered in these six last canons, concerning the jurisdiction of bishops, their chancellors and commissaries, shall (so far as by law is applicable) be in force concerning all deans, deans and chapters, collegiate churches, archdeacons, and all in holy orders, having exempt or peculiar jurisdiction, and their several officers respectively.

XVII. Against vexatious citations.

And that this synod may prevent all grievances, which may fall upon the people by citations into ecclesiastical courts upon pretence only of the breach of law, without either presentment, or any other just ground: this present synod decrees, that for all times to come no such citation, grounded only as aforesaid, shall issue out of any ecclesiastical court, except the said citation be sent forth under the hand and seal of the chancellor, commissary, archdeacon, or other competent judge of the said court, within thirty days after the fault committed; and return thereof to be made the next or second court day after the citation served, at the farthest: and that the party so cited, unless he be convinced by two witnesses, shall upon the denial of the fact upon oath be forthwith freely dismissed without any payment of fees: provided that this decree extend not to any grievous crime, as schism, incontinency, misbehaviour in the church in time of divine service, obstinate inconformity, or the like.

We, of our princely inclination and royal care for the maintenance of the present estate and government of the church of England, by the laws of this our realm now settled and established, having diligently, with great contentment and comfort read and considered of all these their said canons, orders, ordinances and constitutions agreed upon, as is before expressed: and finding the same such as we are persuaded will be very profitable, not only to our clergy, but to the whole church of this our kingdom, and to all the true members of it, if they will be observed, have therefore for us, our heirs and lawful successors, of our special grace, certain knowledge, and meer motion given, and by these presents do give our royal assent, according to the form of the said statute or act of parliament aforesaid, to all and every the said canons, orders, ordinances nances and constitutions, and to all and every thing in them contained, as they are before written. And furthermore, we do not only by our said prerogative royal, and supreme authority in causes ecclesiastical, ratifie, confirm and establish by these our letters patents the said canons, orders, ordinances, and constitutions, and all and every thing in them contained, as is aforesaid, but do likewise propound, publish, and straitly enjoin and command by our said authority, and by these our letters patents the same to be diligently observed, executed, and equally kept by all our loving subjects of this our kingdom, both within the provinces of Canterbury and York, in all points wherein they do or may concern every or any of them, according to this our will and pleasure hereby signified and expressed. And that likewise for the better observation of them, every minister, by what name or title soever he be called, shall in the parish church or chapel where he hath charge, read all the said canons, orders, ordinances, and constitutions at all such times, and in such manner as is prescribed in the said canons, or any of them: the book of the said canons to be provided at the charge of the parish, betwixt this and the feast of St. Michael the archangel next ensuing, straitly charging and commanding all archbishops, bishops, and all other that exercise any ecclesiastical jurisdiction within this realm, every man in his place to see and procure (as much as in them lieth) all and every of the same canons, orders, ordinances, and constitutions to be in all points duly observed, not sparing to execute the penalties in them severally mentioned, upon any that shall wittingly or wilfully break or neglect to observe the same; as they tender the honour of God, the peace of the church, the tranquillity of the kingdom, and their duties and service to us their king and sovereign. In witness whereof, we have caused these our letters to be made patents. Witness our self at Westminster the thirtieth day of June, in the sixteenth year of our reign.

bills, and other matters whatsoever debateable in parliament, by the ancient customs, laws, and statutes of this realm, and ought to be protected by your majesty quietly to attend and prosecute that great service; they humbly remonstrate, and protest before God, your majesty, and the noble lords and peers, now assembled in parliament, that as they have an indubitate right to sit and vote in the house of lords, so are they, if they may be protected from force and violence, most ready and willing to perform their duties accordingly; and that they do abominate all actions or opinions tending to popery, and the maintenance thereof; as also all propension and inclination to any malignant party, or any other side or party whatsoever, to the which their own reasons and consciences shall not move them to adhere. But whereas they have been at several times violently menaced, affronted, and assaulted by multitudes of people, in their coming to perform their services in that honourable house, and lately chased away, and put in danger of their lives, and can find no redress or protection, upon fundry complaints made to both houses in these particulars; they likewise humbly protest before your majesty, and the noble house of peers, that saving unto themselves all their rights and interests of sitting and voting in the house at other times, they dare not sit or vote in the house of peers, until your majesty shall further secure them from all affronts, indignities, and dangers in the premises. Lastly, whereas their fears are not built upon fantasies and conceits, but upon such grounds and objects, as may well terrify men of good resolutions, and much constancy; they do in all duty and humility, protest before your majesty, and the peers of that most honourable house of parliament, against all laws, orders, votes, resolutions, and determinations, as in themselves, null, and of none effect, which in their absence, since the 27th of this instant month of December M.DC.XLI. have already passed; as likewise against all such as shall hereafter pass in that most honourable house, during the time of this their forced and violent absence from the said most honourable house; not denying, but if their absenting themselves were wilful and voluntary, that most honourable house might proceed in all the premises; their absence, or this protestation notwithstanding. The humble petition of the archbishop, bishops, and the rest of the clergy in the kingdom of Ireland. Collect. Epistol. a clar. Carte edit. p. 365. seqq.

To the king's most excellent majesty,

SUCH is, and always hath been, your majesty's princely and unparalleled care of the church in that your majesty's kingdom, that without any petition of ours, more is already performed, than could be expected, in a time so full of distractions; not only in protecting it against foreign jurisdiction, and domestic schism, but likewise in committing the government of that whole kingdom to a person of the nobility, vigilancy, integrity, and unquestionable affection to your petitioners, that (if not prevented) they had been compelled to petition your majesty for so great a blessing. All which we most thankfully acknowledge, and with that cheerfulness, as much abateth the sense of our own most sad condition and present misery. So that your majesty may now justly seem to have anticipated all that can be desired, saving your majesty's continuance long to maintain the doctrine, worship, and government already by law established, and by your incomparable wisdom and piety at this time more especially preserved. Yet because the clergy there in so general a combustion must needs be liable to many emergent calamities and pressures, which can neither be known to your majesty, nor made now known by us;

we therefore most humbly supplicate,

I. That your majesty would be graciously pleased effectually to recommend your distressed petitioners and church, as well in general as following particulars, to the lord lieutenant of that your majesty's kingdom; not that we doubt his good affection, distrust his zeal, or that he hath omitted any thing which the present distractions could permit; but that this your majesty's recommendation including your royal approbation, meeting with his lordship's own desires and endeavours, may add to his encouragement, though not to his performances, when it shall please God to make the times more peaceable.

II. That your majesty would be pleased to give order for the continuance of that protection and assistance at council board, which that church hath enjoyed under your majesty's blessed father and queen Elizabeth; so that neither arbitrary orders of parliament, nor popish jurors may have it in their power to disinherit the church, or undo that which authority and consent of parties have settled on us, or vindicated, or preserved unto us.

III. In respect your petitioners have lost all their means, rents, and personal estates, during the late commotions, and yet are chargeable with great sums of money for subsidies due to your majesty, majesty, which they are altogether unable to pay; your majesty would be pleased to give power to your ministers there, to whom it appertaineth, to make such installment or abatement of these subsidies, as may stand with your majesty's goodness and their inabilities; and the rather because your petitioners enjoy their estates but for term of life; and their burthen in subsidies as far greater in proportion, than the laity's is.

IV. That it may be referred by your majesty to the council board, to give unto your petitioners such large and convenient time, as to their lordships shall seem fitting and reasonable, for reparation of many houses and chancels demolished or impaired by the late wars. And that their executors may not be charged with the whole dilapidation, now happening without the fault of the incumbent, but only for a proportionable part of those reparations, according to the time allotted by the lords of the council for rebuilding the same.

V. That your majesty would take no advantage of lapse (except what is taken already) against any archbishop or bishop, or other your petitioners, having right of collation or presentation, since the 23. day of October, M.DC.XLI. until six months after the proclamation of peace in that kingdom, but that they may still collate, or present to such benefices as are now void, and of their patronage.

VI. Forasmuch as the church hath no other censure to inflict upon contumacious refusers, to appear in ecclesiastical courts, or to abide the sentences there given; but only excommunication, and that as well in causes, which concern interest, as spiritual offences; by occasion whereof many persons, rather considering the smallness of the matters of the suit, than the heinousness of the offence of contumacy, take scandal to see the severest censure inflicted upon such occasion; it would therefore please your majesty to recommend it to the lord lieutenant and council; to advise some other process to be settled according to law, to compel the appearance, or punish the contumacy of such as shall be cited to appear in the ecclesiastical court; after the manner used either in the courts of common law, or of equity in the said kingdom. The execution thereof to be left unto officers to be appointed by your majesty for that purpose.

VII. That the ministers of Dublin, Drogheda, and other incorporate towns, having no predial tithes, but only stipends charged upon the several houses within their parishes, proportionable to their rents, may still levy and take up their respective stipends, whether by distress or otherwise, as they were formerly accustomed. If any resist, their punishment to be referred to the council board; and if through waste made in any other parishes, any of them want competency of maintenance, order there to be taken at that board for their relief.

And your petitioners, as most bounden, shall ever pray, etc.

The humble remonstrance of the archbishops, bishops, and the inferior clergy of the kingdom of Ireland. Collect. Epist. a clar. Carte edit. p. 493. seqq.

To the most honourable the lord lieutenant, his excellence.

May it please your excellence,

WHE the archbishops, bishops, and the rest of the clergy of this kingdom subscribing, are wonderfully sensible how your excellence out of zeal to God's glory and to the true protestant religion, and out of loyalty to his majesty, hath in this great distemper with much hazard, singular wisdom, and vigilant care preserved not only in this city, but also in all the out garrisons the free and full exercise of the true reformed religion according to the liturgy and canons so many years received in the church, which with sad and bleeding hearts we may say, is more than we know to be in any part of the three dominions.

Also we do most heartily acknowledge, that by your very great pains and labour you have at last concluded a most necessary peace, which we humbly conceive to be the only means to continue those blessings of religion and loyalty among us, and to be the only hopeful way to reduce this kingdom wholly to his majesty's obedience.

And withall we do ingenuously profess that out of your piety and nobleness you have vindicated our callings and places from contempt, protected us from personal injuries, and provided a subsistence for us, without the which many of us had undoubtedly starved.

Out of a deep sense of all which, and many more favours than we are able to express, we were the most unthankful of all men, if we should not bless God for your excellence, and return to you our most humble and hearty thanks, faithfully promising to continue our fervent prayers to God, and to contribute our very best endeavours for strengthening your hands, in managing the great trust his majesty reposes in you, and in maintaining religion and the peace now established among us.

Having made this just and necessary remonstrance of our gratitude and resolutions, we do most humbly beseech your lordship to continue (as we are exceeding confident you will) your care to preserve the religion, book of service, public worship, in the decency and comeliness thereof, and the true apostolical government of the church now exercised among us, against all opposition whatsoever, and graciously to persist in your care for providing some competent maintenance for us, till we may conveniently

The king's majesty's most gracious letter and declaration to the bishops, deans, and prebends, etc. about the augmentation of small vicarages. Collated with Wh. Kennet's Case of Improvements pag. 153.

CHARLES R.

As nothing is more in our desires, than to provide that the church of England, under our reign, might be furnished with a religious, learned, sober, modest, and prudent clergy; so we are ready to give encouragement to their labours and study in their several degrees and stations, that they may give check to all profaneness and superstition, and as zealously affect to remove all scandals, and reproach from them and their callings. Conceiving therefore a competent maintenance to be a necessary encouragement; and that all other persons, who have power to dispose of tithes, may be invited to cherish a learned and godly ministry; we do resolve, that because where tithes have been appointed for the support of bishops, deans, and chapters, collegiate churches and colleges; and other single persons; that have not taken due care to provide and ordain sufficient maintenance for the vicars of their respective places, or for the curates, where vicarages were not endowed; to settle for the future some good addition and encrease on such vicarages and curates places. Our will therefore is, that forthwith provision be made for the augmentation of all such vicarages and cures, where your tithes and profits are appropriated to you and your successors, in such manner, that they who immediately attend upon the performance of ministerial offices in every parish, may have a competent portion of every rectory impropriate to your see [* belonging to you or your successors.] And to this end, our further will is, that no lease be granted of any rectories or parsonages belonging to your see, belonging to you or your successors, until you shall provide, that the respective vicarages, or curates places, where are no vicarages endowed, have so much revenue in glebe, tithes, or other emoluments, as will commonly amount to 100. or 80. l. per annum, or more, if it will bear it, and in good form of law settle it upon them and their successors. And where the rectories are of small value, and cannot admit of such proportions to the vicar and curate; our will is, that one half of the profit of such a rectory be reserved for the maintenance of the vicar or curate. [And if any leases or grants of such forenamed rectories have been made by you since the first day of June last past, and you did not order a competent augmentation of the vicarages and cures in their respective places, that out of the fines, which you have received, or are to receive, you do add such encrease to the vicar and curate] as is agreeable to the rate and proportion formerly mentioned. And our further will is, that you do employ your authority and power, which by law belongeth to you as ordinary, for the augmentation of vicarages and stipends of curates, and that you do with diligence proceed in due form of law for the raising and establishing convenient maintenance for those, who attend holy duties in parish churches. And if any prebendary in any church (the corps of whose prebend consists of tithes) shall not observe these our commands, then we require you, or the dean of the church to use all due means in law, where you or he hath power, to compel them; or that otherwise you report to the bishop of the diocese, where the said corps doth lie, that he may interpose his authority, for fulfilling this our order. And if any dean, or dean and chapter, or any that holdeth any dignity or prebend in the cathedral church, do not observe these our commands, that you call them before you, and see this our will be obeyed. And if you or any bishop do not your duty, either in their own grants, or seeing others to do it, then we will, that upon complaint, the archbishop of the province see all performed according to this our declaration, will, and pleasure. And whereas there are divers rural prebends, where the vicarages are not sufficiently endowed, we require you to see these our commands fully to be observed by them. And we do declare our will and pleasure in all the particulars forecited to be, that if you or any of your successors, or dean, or dean and chapter of that our cathedral church, or any other person holding any office, benefice, or prebend in the same, do or shall refuse or omit to observe these our commands, we shall judge them unworthy of our future favour, whensoever any preferment ecclesiastical shall be desired by them from us. And lastly our will and command is, that you or your successors do at or before the first day of October in every year, render an account to the archbishop of [Canterbury] how these our orders and commands are observed, that the archbishop afterwards may represent the same unto us.

By his majesty's command.

CAROL. II. 12.

His majesty's gracious commission to search into and examine the pretended sales and purchases of the honours, manors, lands, and hereditaments of and belonging to his majesty, his royal mother, the archbishops, bishops, deans, and chapters, prebends, and other ecclesiastical persons; giving such powers and authorities as is necessary for the ends, intents, and purposes in and by the said commission specified and expressed.

CHARLES the second, by the grace of God King of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, defender of the faith, etc. to our trusty and right well beloved counsellor Edward lord Hyde, lord chancellor of England; and to our right trusty and right well beloved cousins and counsellors Thomas earl of Southampton, lord treasurer of England, and the lord chancellor, lord high treasurer of England, and the chancellor of the Exchequer for the time being; and to our right trusty and intirely beloved cousin and counsellor George duke of Albemarle, and to our right trusty and right well beloved cousins and counsellors James marquis of Ormond, steward of our household, Edward earl of Manchester, chamberlain of our household; and to our right trusty and right well beloved cousin Jerome earl of Portland, and to our right trusty and well beloved counsellor John lord Roberts, and to our right trusty and well beloved John lord Finch, Francis lord Seymour, chancellor of our duchy of Lancaster, and to the chancellor of our duchy of Lancaster for the time being, John lord Lucas; and to our trusty and well beloved counsellors Denzill Hollis esquire, Sir Edward Nicholas, and Sir William Morris, knights, our principal secretaries of state, Sir Anthony Ashley Cooper baronet, Arthur Annesley esquire; and to our trusty and well beloved Sir Robert Foster knight, chief justice of our bench, Sir Orlando Bridgeman knight and baronet, lord chief justice of our court of Common Pleas, Sir Robert Hyde knight, one other of the justices of our said court of Common Pleas, Sir Edward Atkins, and Sir Christopher Turner knights, two of the barons of our court of Exchequer, and to the barons of our Exchequer for the time being, Sir Jeoffry Palmer knight and baronet, our attorney general, Sir Heneage Finch knight and baronet, our solicitor general, Sir Charles Harbord knight, our surveyor general, and to our attorney, solicitor, and surveyor general for the time being; Sir Edward Turner, Sir Allen Broderick, knights, Samuel Brown, and Matthew Hale, serjeants at law, John Crewe esquire, Richard Kinsman, one of the auditors of our revenue, Job Charleton serjeant at law, Thomas Beverley esquire, Francis Phillips, and Richard Newman esquires. As it is our duty to be ever mindful of the great mercies of almighty God vouchsafed to us and our late oppressed people, in restoring us to the exercise of our royal authority by a calm and miraculous hand of divine providence, thereby delivering them from the violence and tyranny of the late usurped powers to the peaceable enjoyments of their ancient rights established by the known laws of this nation; so we have been most careful to pursue our declaration made before our return from beyond the seas, in securing the lives, liberties, and estates of our good subjects, by passing an act of general pardon, and such other acts as have been tendered unto us by our parliament, whereby we hope we have given a general satisfaction to them, as we have received much comfort and contentment in their expressions of their affections to us and our government. And albeit by the vote of our commons, as by the order of the parliament assembled, we have been restored to the immediate possession of our lands, and might in justice as well as divers of our subjects, have entered and taken the profits thereof from the four and twentieth day of June last; yet that it may appear how really we intend to perform all our gracious promises and professions made to the officers and soldiers of our army, who did correspond or join with our said general, or Sir George Booth, in their design towards our happy restauration, and to such other of our subjects, as have been induced to purchase and to possess any of our said lands, or those of the jointure of our dear mother the queen, or any of the lands or possessions of any archbishop, bishop, dean and chapter, prebend, or other ecclesiastical person, we were graciously pleased to accept the humble petition of the said officers and soldiers, presented unto us in July last, and to commend the same to the commissioners of our treasury, as we have since done to our high treasurer of England, who have authorized our surveyor general to receive such particulars of our lands purchased and claimed by the said officers and soldiers, to their own uses and not in trust for others, as they should tender under their hands, and thereupon to keep them in the quiet possession of the same without account (which hath been duly observed) until we should be informed of the true states of their several interests, and should thereupon declare our further pleasure touching their satisfaction. And we were also graciously pleased to accept of another petition presented unto us, in the names of all the purchasers of our lands, together with certain proposals touching the same, which by advice of our privy council we did refer to the consideration of our chief baron, and other the barons of our court of Exchequer, and our surveyor general, who taking the same into serious consideration, did represent unto us, and our said council, the various natures of the said purchases, and that it will require much time and industry to examine and consider the particular interests of the several purchasers, before it will be possible to make any report upon their said petition and proposals fit for our judgment therein. Whereupon we were pleased, and did command that our said surveyor general should allow unto them all their arrears of rents due before the four and twentieth day of June last to their own use without account, and the Michaelmas rent also since due upon such security, as he should think reasonable to be answerable for the same, which hath been accordingly pursued by him as we commanded, and we do hereby ratify and confirm the same. Now to the end that we may leave nothing undone, which honour and justice can require at our hands, for the establishment of the just rights and interests of all persons, and quiet their minds, and reconcile their affections, which the injury of the late times of change, and absolute, arbitrary power, had corrupted and alienated from us, and divided amongst themselves; we have thought fit to issue this our commission, and do therefore hereby require, and authorize you the said Edward lord Hyde, Thomas earl of Southampton, the lord chancellor, lord treasurer of England, and the chancellor of the Exchequer for the time being, George duke of Albemarle, James marquess of Ormond, Edward earl of Manchester, Jerome earl of Portland, John lord Roberts, John lord Finch, Francis lord Seymour, chancellor of our duchy of Lancaster, and the chancellor of our duchy of Lancaster for the time being, John lord Lucas, Denzill Hollis, Sir Edward Nicholas, Sir Will. Morris, Sir Anthony Ashly Cooper, Arthur Annesley, Sir Robert Foster, Sir Orlando Bridgeman, Sir Robert Hyde, Sir Edward Atkins, Sir Christ. Turner, barons of the Exchequer for the time being, Sir Jeoffry Palmer, Sir Heneage Finch, Sir Charles Harbord, our attorney, solicitor, and surveyor general for the time being, Sir Edward Turner, Sir Allen Brodrick, Matthew Hale, Samuel Brown, John Crewe, Richard Kinsman, Job Charleton, Thomas Beverley, Francis Phillips, and Richard Newman, to be our commissioners for and touching the premises, hereby giving and granting unto you, or any five or more of you, full power and authority to call, and cause to appear before you, as well the said officers and soldiers, and all other persons, who have purchased, or do claim any of the said lands of us, or of the jointure of our dear mother, or of any the said archbishops, bishops, deans, and chapters, prebends, and other ecclesiastical persons whatsoever, and every or any of them; as also the officers, servants, or agents of the said archbishops, bishops, deans and chapters, prebends, or other ecclesiastical persons, all or any of them, by your good discretion, and to enquire and inform yourselves, or by such other lawful ways or means, as you in your discretion shall think meet, which of the said lands, honours, manors, lordships, castles, parks, parks, chafes, forrests, houses, timber trees, woods, underwoods, mills, mines, fee-farm rents, or other rents, or hereditaments, leafes, or farms were sold, given, or granted by or under the late pretended parliament, or usurped power or authority; and to enquire and find out the true value of the said lands, honours, manors, lordships, castles, parks, chafes, forrests, timber trees, woods, underwoods, mills, mines, fee-farm rents, or other rents or hereditaments, leafes, or farms, as the same were then worth by the year, or otherwise by your judgments and discretion, and how much ready mony was then, or at any time since really, and "bona fide" paid for the same, and how much in true bills and debentures, as they were then worth in ready mony, and whether any bills or debentures, which have been allowed upon any of the said sales or purchases, were counterfeited or altered in part, or in all, and by whom the same were done, and to what value and proportion, and how far the same have been discovered, and when, and by whom, and in what manner; and what profits or sums of mony have been raised or made by any of the purchasers, or possessors, or pretended owners of any the said lands or other premises so sold or given as aforesaid, or any part thereof by after sales or exchanges of land, or by sale of woods, or timber, or by plowing up or improving the same lands, or any other part of the premises, or by sale of any iron, stone, lead, timber, or other materials of churches, chapels, or other houses that have been pulled down, altered, or defaced, or by the receipts, or rents, or by any ways or means whatsoever, and when, and by whom, and for whose use and benefit the same have been so raised or made. And to enquire and find out which of the purchases of any of the said lands or premises were made by the tenants themselves to preserve their houses, tenuaries, lands, woods, or estates from waste and injury, and which of them were made by others for gain and advantage, and when and by whom the same was done, and what profit, gain, or advantage hath been made thereby; and to enquire and find out what damage or danger hath accrued or may arise to us and these our kingdoms by the destruction or waste of timber trees from off any the premises that were serviceable for our navy, or otherwise; and to enquire which of the said purchasers or late pretended owners of any of the said lands or premises have relinquished or offered up the same unto us, or any of the said ecclesiastical persons, or shall yield up the same unto you for our use, or for the use of any of the said ecclesiastical persons, or any of them; and also to enquire and find out all other things which you in your discretion shall think meet for your perfect information in and touching the premises. And thereupon you are to proceed and compose all differences arising between the said archbishops, bishops, deans and chapters, prebends, and other ecclesiastical persons, and the said purchasers or pretended owners, and thereupon to make orders and agreements between them in writing under your hands and seals, and in such manner as you in your discretion shall find just and reasonable with their consents; and in case of refusal or disagreement on either part, then you are forthwith to certify the same unto us, and our council, whereupon you shall receive such further order therein as shall be meet: and you are then also to propose unto the said officers and soldiers, and other purchasers of our own lands such satisfaction for and in respect of their several pretended interests in the same, as upon consideration of their several interests, you shall think fit to advise in that behalf, and thereof you shall certify us with all convenient speed. And for your better information and proceeding in the premises, we do hereby will and authorize you to send for and coveine before you all such treasurers, receivers, accomptants, registers, witnesses, clerks, officers and other persons as you shall think fit, and to examine all or any of them upon their corporal oaths to be administered unto them, or any of them by your discretion, and to send for and peruse all such books of account, register books, surveys and other writings, as you shall think meet for your better discovery and finding out of the truth in all things touching the premises, and what monies have been raised by the said sales, and to whom the same hath been payed, and how the same hath been accounted for and disposed of, and how much remains in the treasurers, receivers, or accomptants hands, or any others, and how long it hath remained. And we do also hereby will and authorize you, to enquire by the oaths of good and lawful men of every county, city or privileged place, wherein the said lands and premises or any of them do lie, of all things comprehended in this our commission. Hereby willing and commanding all our sheriffs, mayors, bailiffs, and all other officers, and ministers, whom it may concern, upon your precepts and warrants to return good and sufficient jurors for the better enquiry and finding out of the truth of the premises, and to be obedient, aiding, and assisting unto you in all things, tending to the execution of this our commission. And whatsoever you, or any five, or more of you shall do or cause to be done in or about the premises, we do hereby ratify, confirm, and approve of. And our will and pleasure is, and we do hereby require the said archbishops, bishops, deans and chapters, prebends, and other ecclesiastical persons by themselves or by other persons sufficiently authorized by them to appear before you, when they shall be so required, to the end that your mediation and interposition may be the more effectual. We in no wise doubting of their readiness to comply with us in the end of this our commission, and that they will accept such reasonable conditions, as shall be tendered to them by you on the behalf of such as have been purchasers of any lands held from them or their respective churches, according to the several considerations of the persons and their interests, and that they will do no act to the prejudice of

of any purchasers, by granting any new or concurrent leases, whereby their present interest or possession may be hurt or disturbed, whilst the same is under your deliberation, and until our pleasure be further known. In witness whereof we have caused these our letters to be made patents. Witness ourself at Westminster the seventh day of October, in the twelfth year of our reign.

CAROL. II. 12.

His majesty's declaration to all his loving subjects of his kingdom of England and dominion of Wales, concerning ecclesiastical affairs.

CHARLES REX.

How much the peace of the state is concerned in the peace of the church, and how difficult a thing it is to preserve order and government in civil, whilst there is no order or government in ecclesiastical affairs, is evident to the world; and this little part of the world, our own dominions, hath had so late experience of it, that we may very well acquiesce in the conclusion, without enlarging ourself in discourse upon it, it being a subject we have had frequent occasion to contemplate upon, and to lament abroad, as well as at home.

In our letter to the speaker of the house of commons from Breda we declared how much we desired the advancement and propagation of the protestant religion; that neither the unkindness of those of the same faith towards us, nor the civilities and obligations from those of a contrary profession (of both which we have had abundant evidence) could in the least degree startle us, or make us swerve from it, and that nothing can be proposed to manifest our zeal and affection for it, to which we will not readily consent; and we said then, that we did hope in due time, ourself to propose somewhat for the propagation of it, that will satisfy the world, that we have always made it both our care and our study, and have enough observed what is most like to bring disadvantage to it. And the truth is, we do think ourself the more competent to propose, and with God's assistance to determine many things now in difference, from the time we have spent, and the experience we have had in most of the reformed churches abroad, in France, in the Low countries, and in Germany, where we have had frequent conferences with the most learned men, who have unanimously lamented the great reproach the protestant religion undergoes from the distempers and too notorious schisms in matters of religion in England: and as the most learned amongst them have always with great submission and reverence acknowledged and magnified the established government of the church of England, and the great countenance and shelter the protestant religion received from it, before these unhappy times; so many of them have with great ingenuity and sorrow confessed, that they were too easily misled by misinformation and prejudice into some disesteem of it, as if it had too much complied with the church of Rome; whereas they now acknowledge it to be the best fence God hath yet raised against popery in the world; and we are persuaded they do with great zeal wish it restored to its old dignity and veneration.

When we were in Holland, we were attended by many grave and learned ministers from hence, who were looked upon as the most able and principal assertors of the presbyterian opinions, with whom we had as much conference, as the multitude of affairs which were then upon us would permit us to have; and to our great satisfaction and comfort found them persons full of affection to us, of zeal for the peace of the church and state, and neither enemies, as they have been given out to be, to episcopacy, or liturgy, but modestly to desire such alterations in either, as without shaking foundations, might best allay the present distempers, which the indisposition of the time, and the tenderness of some men's consciences had contracted. For the better doing whereof, we did intend, upon our first arrival in this kingdom to call a synod of divines, as the most proper expedient to provide a proper remedy for all those differences and dissatisfactions which had or should arise in matters of religion; and in the mean time, we published in our declaration from Breda, a liberty to tender consciences, and that no man should be disquieted or called in question for differences of opinion in matter of religion, which do not disturb the peace of the kingdom; and that we shall be ready to consent to such an act of parliament, as upon mature deliberation shall be offered to us, for the full granting that indulgence.

Whilst we continued in this temper of mind and resolution, and have so far complied with the persuasion of particular persons, and the distemper of the time, as to be contented with the exercise of our religion in our own chapel, according to the constant practice and laws established, without enjoining that practice, and the observation of those laws in the churches of the kingdom; in which we have undergone the censure of many, as if we were without that zeal for the church which we ought to have, and which by God's grace, we shall always retain; we have found our self not so candidly dealt with, as we have deserved, and that there are unquiet and restless spirits, who without abating any of their own distemper in recompence of the moderation they find in us, continue their bitterness against the church, and endeavour to raise jealousies of us, and to lessen our reputation by their reproaches, as if we were not true to the professions we have made:

and in order thereunto, they have very unseasonably caused to be printed, published, and dispersed throughout the kindgom a declaration heretofore printed in our name during the time of our being in Scotland, of which we shall say no more than that the circumstances, by which we were enforced to sign that declaration, are enough known to the world; and that the worthiest and greatest part of that nation did even then detest and abhor the ill usage of us in that particular, when the same tyranny was exercised there by the power of a few ill men, which at that time had spread itself over this kingdom; and therefore we had no reason to expect that we should at this season, when we are doing all we can to wipe out the memory of all that hath been done amiss by other men, and we thank God, have wiped it out of our own remembrance, have been ourself assaulted with those reproaches, which we will likewise forget.

Since the printing this declaration, several seditious pamphlets and queries have been published and scattered abroad to infuse dislike and jealousies into the hearts of the people, and of the army; and some who ought rather to have repented the former mischief they have wrought, than to have endeavoured to improve it, have had the hardiness to publish, that the doctrine of the church, against which no man, with whom we have conferred, hath excepted, ought to be reformed as well as the discipline.

This over passionate and turbulent way of proceeding, and the impatience we find in many for some speedy determination in these matters, whereby the minds of men may be composed, and the peace of the church established, hath prevailed with us to invert the method we had proposed to ourself, and even in order to the better calling and composing of a synod (which the present jealousies will hardly agree upon) by the assistance of God's blessed Spirit which we daily invoke and supplicate, to give some determination ourself to the matters in difference, until such a synod may be called as may without passion or prejudice give us such farther assistance towards a perfect union of affections, as well as submission to authority, as is necessary: and we are the rather induced to take this upon us, by finding upon the full conference we have had with the learned men of several persuasions, that the mischiefs, under which both the church and state do at present suffer, do not result from any formed doctrine or conclusion which either party maintains or avows, but from the passion, and appetite, and interest of particular persons, who contract greater prejudice to each other from those affections, than would naturally rise from their opinions; and those distempers must be in some degree allayed, before the meeting in a synod can be attended with better success, than their meeting in other places, and their discourses in pulpits have hitherto been; and till all thoughts of victory are laid aside, the humble and necessary thoughts for the vindication of truth cannot be enough entertained.

VOL. IV.

We must for the honour of all those of either persuasion, with whom we have conferred, declare, that the professions and desires of all for the advancement of piety and true godliness are the same; their professions of zeal for the peace of the church the same; of affection and duty to us the same: they all approve episcopacy; they all approve a set form of liturgy; and they all disprove and dislike the sin of sacrilege, and the alienation of the revenue of the church; and if upon these excellent foundations, in submission to which there is such a harmony of affections, any superstructures should be raised, to the shaking those foundations, and to the contracting and lessening the blessed gift of charity, which is a vital part of christian religion, we shall think ourself very unfortunate, and even suspect that we are defective in that administration of government with which God hath entrusted us.

We need not profess the high affection and esteem we have for the church of England as it is established by law; the reverence to which hath supported us with God's blessing against many temptations; nor do we think that reverence in the least degree diminished by our condescensions, not peremptorily to insist on some particulars of ceremony, which however introduced by the piety, and devotion, and order of former times, may not be so agreeable to the present, but may even lessen that piety and devotion, for the improvement whereof they might happily be first introduced, and consequently may well be dispensed with; and we hope this charitable compliance of ours will dispose the minds of all men to a cheerful submission to that authority, the preservation whereof is so necessary for the unity and peace of the church; and that they will acknowledge the support of the episcopal authority, to be the best support of religion, by being the best means to contain the minds of men within the rules of government: and they who would restrain the exercise of that holy function within the rules, which were observed in the primitive times, must remember and consider that the ecclesiastical power being in those blessed times always subordinate and subject to the civil; it was likewise proportioned to such an extent of jurisdiction, as was most agreeable to that; and as the sanctity, and simplicity, and resignation of that age did then refer many things to the bishops, which the policy of succeeding ages would not admit, at least did otherwise provide for; so it can be no reproach to primitive episcopacy, if where there have been great alterations in the civil government, from what was then, there have been likewise some difference and alteration in the ecclesiastical, the essence and foundation being still preserved. And upon this ground, without taking upon us to censure the government of the church in other countries, where the government of the state is different from what it is here, or enlarging ourself upon the reasons why, whilst there was an imagination of erecting a democratical government here in the state, they should be willing to continue an aristocratical government in the church; it shall suffice to say, that since by the wonderful blessing of God the hearts of this whole nation are returned to an obedience to monarchic government in the state, it must be very reasonable to support that government in the church, which is established by law, and with which the monarchy hath flourished through so many ages, and which is in truth as ancient in this island as the christian monarchy thereof; and which hath always in some respects or degrees been enlarged or restrained, as hath been thought most conducing to the peace and happiness of the kingdom; and therefore we have not the least doubt, but that the present bishops will think the present concessions now made by us to allay the present distempers, very just and reasonable, and will very cheerfully conform themselves thereunto.

I. We do in the first place declare our purpose and resolution is and shall be to promote the power of godliness, to encourage the exercises of religion both public and private, and to take care that the Lord's day be applied to holy exercises, without unnecessary diversions; and that insufficient, negligent, and scandalous ministers be not permitted in the church; and that as the present bishops are known to be men of great and exemplary piety in their lives, which they have manifested in their notorious and unexampled sufferings during these late distempers; and of great and known sufficiency of learning; so we shall take special care, by the assistance of God, to prefer no men to that office and charge, but men of learning, virtue, and piety, who may be themselves the best examples to those who are to be governed by them; and we shall expect and provide the best we can, that the bishops be frequent preachers, and that they do very often preach themselves in some church of their diocese, except they be hindered by sickness, or other bodily infirmities, or some other justifiable occasion, which shall not be thought justifiable if it be frequent.

II. Because the dioceses, especially some of them, are thought to be of too large extent; we will appoint such a number of suffragan bishops in every diocese, as shall be sufficient for the due performance of their work.

III. No bishop shall ordain or exercise any part of jurisdiction which appertains to the censures of the church, without the advice and assistance of the presbyters; and no chancellors, commissaries, or officials, as such, shall exercise any act of spiritual jurisdiction in these cases, viz. excommunication, absolution, or wherein any of the ministry are concerned, with reference to their pastoral charge. However our intent and meaning is to uphold and maintain the profession of the civil law so far and in such matters, as it hath been of use and practice within our kingdoms and dominions; albeit as to excommunication, our will and pleasure is, that no chancellor, commissary, or official shall decree any sentence of excommunication, or absolution, or be judges in those things wherein any of the ministry are concerned, as is aforesaid. Nor shall the archdeacon exercise any jurisdiction without the advice and assistance of six ministers of his archdeaconry, whereof three to be nominated by the bishop, and three by the election of the major part of the presbyters within the archdeaconry.

IV. To the end that the deans and chapters may be the better fitted to afford counsel and assistance to the bishops, both in ordination and the other offices mentioned before; we will take care that those preferments be given to the most learned and pious presbyters of the diocese; and moreover, that an equal number (to those of the chapter) of the most learned, pious, and discreet presbyters of the same diocese, annually chosen by the major vote of all the presbyters of that diocese present at such elections, shall be always advising and assisting, together with those of the chapter, in all ordinations, and in every part of jurisdiction, which appertains to the censures of the church, and at all other solemn and important actions in the exercise of the ecclesiastical jurisdiction, wherein any of the ministry are concerned: provided that at all such meetings the number of the ministers so elected, and those present of the chapter shall be equal, and not exceed one the other, and that to make the numbers equal, the juniors of the exceeding number be withdrawn, that the most ancient may take place; nor shall any suffragan bishop ordain or exercise the forementioned offices and acts of spiritual jurisdiction, but with the advice and assistance of a sufficient number of the most judicious and pious presbyters annually chosen as aforesaid within his precincts: and our will is that the great work of ordination be constantly and solemnly performed by the bishop and his aforesaid presbytery, at the four set times and seasons appointed by the church for that purpose.

V. We will take care that confirmation be rightly and solemnly performed, by the information and with the consent of the minister of the place; who shall admit none to the Lord's supper, till they have made a credible profession of their faith, and promised obedience to the will of God; according as is expressed in the considerations of the rubric before the catechism; and that all possible diligence be used for the instruction and reformation of scandalous offenders, whom the minister shall not suffer to partake of the Lord's table, until they have openly declared themselves to have truly repented and amended their former naughty lives, as is partly expressed in the rubric, and more fully in the canons; provided there be place for due appeals to superior powers. But besides the suffragans and their presbytery, every rural dean (those deans, as heretofore, to be nominated by the bishop of the diocese) together with three or four ministers of that deanry, chosen by the major part of all the ministers ministers within the same, shall meet once in every month, to receive such complaints, as shall be presented to them by the ministers or churchwardens of the respective parishes; and also to compose all such differences betwixt party and party, as shall be referred unto them by way of arbitration, and to convince offenders, and reform all such things, as they find amiss, by their pastoral reproofs and admonitions, if they may be so reformed: and such matters as they cannot by this pastoral and persuasive way compose and reform, are by them to be prepared for, and presented to the bishop; at which meeting any other ministers of that deanry may, if they please, be present and assist. Moreover, the rural dean and his assistants are in their respective divisions to see, that the children and younger sort be carefully instructed by the respective ministers of every parish, in the grounds of christian religion, and be able to give a good account of their faith and knowledge, and also of their christian conversation conformable thereunto, before they be confirmed by the bishop, or admitted to the sacrament of the Lord's supper.

VI. No bishop shall exercise any arbitrary power, or do or impose any thing upon the clergy or the people, but what is according to the known law of the land.

VII. We are very glad to find, that all with whom we have conferred, do in their judgments approve a liturgy, or set form of public worship to be lawful; which in our judgment for the preservation of unity, and uniformity we conceive to be very necessary: and though we do esteem the liturgy of the church of England, contained in the book of Common Prayer, and by law established, to be the best we have seen; and we believe that we have seen all that are extant and used in this part of the world, and well know what reverence most of the reformed churches, or at least the most learned men in those churches have for it; yet since we find some exceptions made against several things therein, we will appoint an equal number of learned divines of both persuasions, to review the same, and to make such alterations as shall be thought most necessary; and some additional forms (in the scripture phrase as near as may be) suited unto the nature of the several parts of worship, and that it be left to the minister's choice to use one or other at his discretion. In the mean time, and till this be done, although we do heartily wish and desire, that the ministers in their several churches, because they dislike some clauses and expressions, would not totally lay aside the use of the book of Common Prayer, but read those parts, against which there can be no exception; which would be the best instance of declining those marks of distinction, which we so much labour and desire to remove; yet in compassion to divers of our good subjects, who scruple the use of it as now it is, our will and pleasure is, that none be punished or troubled for not using it, until it be reviewed, and effectually reformed, as aforesaid.

VIII. Lastly, Concerning ceremonies, which have administered so much matter of difference and contention, and which have been introduced by the wisdom and authority of the church; for edification, and the improvement of piety, we shall say no more, but that we have the more esteem of all, and reverence for many of them, by having been present in many of those churches, where they are most abolished, or discountenanced; and it cannot be doubted, but that as the universal church cannot introduce one ceremony in the worship of God, that is contrary to God's word expressed in the scripture; so every national church, with the approbation and consent of the sovereign power, may, and hath always introduced such particular ceremonies, as in that conjuncture of time are thought most proper for edification and the necessary improvement of piety and devotion in the people, though the necessary practice thereof cannot be deduced from scripture; and that which before was, and in it self is indifferent, ceases to be indifferent, after it is once established by law: and therefore our present consideration and work is to gratify the private consciences of those, who are grieved with the use of some ceremonies, by indulging to and dispensing with their omitting those ceremonies, not utterly to abolish any which are established by law (if any are practised contrary to law, the same shall cease) which would be unjust, and of ill example; and to impose upon the conscience of some, for the satisfaction of the conscience of others, which is otherwise provided for. As it could not be reasonable that men should expect, that we should ourself decline, or enjoin others to do so, to receive the blessed sacrament upon our knees, which in our conscience is the most humble, most devout, and most agreeable posture for that holy duty, because some other men, upon reasons best, if not only known to themselves, choose rather to do it sitting or standing; we shall leave all decisions and determinations of that kind, if they shall be thought necessary for a perfect and entire unity and uniformity throughout the nation, to the advice of a national synod, which shall be duly called after a little time, and a mutual conversation between persons of different persuasions hath mollified those distempers, abated those sharpnesses, and extinguished those jealousies, which make men unfit for those consultations; and upon such advice, we shall use our best endeavour, that such laws may be established, as may best provide for the peace of the church and state. Provided that none shall be denied the sacrament of the Lord's supper, though they do not use the gesture of kneeling in the act of receiving.

In the mean time, out of compassion and compliance towards those, who would forbear the cross in baptism, we are content that no man shall be compelled to use the same, or suffer for not doing it; but if any parent desire to have his child christened according to the form used, and the minister will not use the sign, it shall be lawful for that parent to procure another ther minister to do it: and if the proper minister shall refuse to omit that ceremony of the cross, it shall be lawful for the parent, who would not have his child so baptized, to procure another minister to do it, who will do it according to his desire.

No man shall be compelled to bow at the name of Jesus, or suffer in any degree for not doing it, without reproaching those who out of their devotion continue that ancient ceremony of the church.

For the use of the surplice, we are contented that all men be left to their liberty to do as they shall think fit, without suffering in the least degree for wearing or not wearing it; provided, that this liberty do not extend to our own chapel, cathedral or collegiate churches, or to any college in either of our universities, but that the several statutes and customs for the use thereof in the said places, be there observed as formerly.

And because some men, otherwise pious and learned, say, they cannot conform unto the subscription required by the canon, nor take the oath of canonical obedience; we are content, and it is our will and pleasure (so they take the oaths of allegiance and supremacy) that they shall receive ordination, institution, and induction, and shall be permitted to exercise their function, and to enjoy the profits of their livings, without the said subscription or oath of canonical obedience; and moreover, that no persons in the universities shall for the want of such subscription be hindered in the taking of their degrees. Lastly, that none be judged to forfeit his presentation or benefice, or be deprived of it, upon the statute of the thirteenth of queen Elizabeth, chapter the twelfth, so he read and declare his assent to all the articles of religion, which only concern the confession of the true christian faith, and the doctrine of the sacraments comprised in the book of articles in the said statute mentioned. In a word, we do again renew what we have formerly said in our declaration from Breda, for the liberty of tender consciences, that no man shall be disquieted or called in question for differences of opinion in matters of religion, which do not disturb the peace of the kingdom; and if any have been disturbed in that kind since our arrival here, it hath not proceeded from any

To conclude, and in this place to explain what we mentioned before, and said in our letter to the House of Commons from Breda, that we hoped in due time, our self to propose somewhat for the propagation of the protestant religion, that will satisfy the world, that we have always made it both our care and our study, and have enough observed what is most like to bring disadvantage to it; we do conjure all our loving subjects to acquiesce in and submit to this our declaration concerning those differences, which have so much disquieted the nation at home, and given such offence to the protestant churches abroad, and brought such reproach upon the protestant religion in general, from the enemies thereof; as if upon obscure notions of faith and fancy, it did admit the practice of christian duties and obedience to be discountenanced and suspended, and introduce a licence in opinions and manners, to the prejudice of the christian faith. And let us all endeavour, and emulate each other in those endeavours, to countenance and advance the protestant religion abroad, which will be best done by supporting the dignity and reverence due to the best reformed protestant church at home; and which being once freed from the calumnies and reproaches it hath undergone from these late ill times, will be the best shelter for those abroad, which will by that countenance both be the better protected against their enemies, and be the more easily induced to compose the differences amongst themselves, which give their enemies more advantage against them: and we hope and expect that all men will henceforward forbear to vent any such doctrine in the pulpit, or to endeavour to work in such manner upon the affections of the people, as may dispose them to an ill opinion of us and the government, and to disturb the peace of the kingdom, which if all men will in their several vocations endeavour to preserve with the same affection and zeal we our self will do; all our good subjects will by God's blessing upon us enjoy as great a measure of felicity, as this nation hath ever done, and which we shall constantly labour to procure for them, as the greatest blessing God can bestow upon us in this world. A proclamation prohibiting all unlawful and seditious meetings and conventicles under pretence of religious worship.

ALTHOUGH nothing can be more unwelcome to us, than the necessity of restraining some part of that liberty, which was indulged to tender consciences by our late gracious declaration; yet since divers persons (known by the name of Anabaptists, Quakers, and Fifth monarchy men, or some such like appellation, as a mark of distinction and separation) under pretence of serving God, do daily meet in great numbers in secret places, and at unusual times, by reason whereof they begin to boast of their multitudes, and to encrease in their confidences, as having frequent opportunities to settle a perfect correspondency and confederacy between themselves, of which some evil effects have already ensued, even to the disturbance of the public public peace by insurrection and murder, for which the offenders must answer to the law, and far worse may be still expected, unless some speedy course be taken to prevent their further growth.

To the intent therefore that none of those persons, who have presumed to make so ill an use of our indulgence, may be strengthened in such their proceedings by any general words or expressions in our late declaration; we have thought fit by these presents to publish and declare our royal will and pleasure, that no meeting whatsoever of the persons aforesaid, under pretence of worshiping God, shall at any time hereafter be permitted or allowed, unless it be in some parochial church or chapel in this realm, or in private houses by the persons there inhabiting. And that all meetings and assemblies whatsoever in order to any spiritual exercise, or serving of God by the persons aforesaid, unless in the places aforesaid, shall be esteemed, and are hereby declared to be unlawful assemblies, and shall be prosecuted accordingly, and the persons therein assembled shall be proceeded against as persons riotously and unlawfully assembled.

And for the better execution of this our proclamation, and the prevention of all illegal and seditious meetings and conventicles, we do hereby straitly charge and command all mayors, sheriffs, justices of the peace, constables, head-boroughs, commanders, and other our chief officers, and ministers, whom it may concern, that they cause diligent search to be made from time to time in all and every the places, where any such meetings or conventicles, as aforesaid, shall or may be suspected. And that they cause all and every the persons therein assembled to be apprehended and brought before one or more justices of the peace, and to be bound over to appear at the next sessions within the respective precincts, and in the mean time to find sureties for their good behaviour, or in default thereof to be committed to the next gaol.

And further we do will and command our justices of the peace, that they cause the oath of allegiance to be tendered to every person so brought before them, and upon his or their refusal, to proceed according, as by the statute made in the seventh year of the reign of our royal grandfather, of ever blessed memory, they are directed and commanded. Convocatio praelatorum et cleri provinciae Cantuar. per breve regium ad 8. diem mensis Maii in ecclesia S. Pauli London. summonita.

Post peracta sacra in ecclesia S. Pauli, lectaque in domo capitulari literas commissionales reverendissimi episcopo London. et aliis coepiscopis directas, breve regium cum mandato archiepiscopi, et certificatorio episcopi London. publice perlegabatur; deinde clerus domus inferioris convocationis ad prolocutorem eligendum, et 16. die mensis hujus in capella regis Henrici VII. infra eccles. colleg. S. Petri Westmonast. praesentandum monebatur.

Eo die, sc. 16. mensis Maii, Johannes Earles, decanus ecclesiae collegiatae B. Petri Westm. cum nonnullis ecclesiae hujus praebendariis privilegia ecclesiae suae per schedulam in pergamento scriptam asseruit, quae episcopus London. locumtenens, pro se et confratribus suis, ac clero provinciae Cantuar. nullo modo infringere promisit. Postea Henricus Fearn, prolocutor, praesentatus et approbatus fuit. Hoc eodem die, "dimisso prolocutore cum coetu domus inferioris praedict. habitoque aliquandiu tractatu inter dictum reverendum patrem et caeteros episcopos suffraganeos suos, ut praefertur, comparentes, de et super precibus specialibus pro die nativitatis domini nostri regis, necnon pro felicissima restauratione ejus ad et in regna sua, viz. 29. die mensis jam instantis Maii, per quatuor episcopos hujusmodi domus, nempe Matthaeum Elien. Robertum Oxon. Benjaminum Petriburgen. et Humphridum Sarum respective episcopos, in ea parte respective elect. et per octo praelatos sive clericos domus inferioris eligendos, con-cti Ogleby publice legebantur ac domui inferiori commendabantur.

Septimo die mensis Junii Richardus Aldworth, armiger praesentavit domino locumtenenti "licentiam quandam regiam sigillo magno Angliae sigillat. de emendando, reformando, exponendo et corrigendo constitutiones et canones alias factas; necnon de ordinando et conficiendo nonnullas novas constitutiones, ordinationes, sive capitula, statum ecclesiasticum, sinceram religionem, et utilitatem ecclesiae Anglicanae concernen. et tenden. una cum nonnullis aliis provisionibus in eadem licentia insertis." Quam cum domo inferioris convocationis communicavit. Deinde introducta fuit copia proclamationis per attournatum regium generalem (ut asserbatur) concepta pro jejuniis observando 12. die mensis Junii, ad cujus formam componendam quatuor episcopi et octo e clero domus inferioris electi sunt.

Die decimo nono mensis Junii alia licentia sive commissio regia magno sigillo Angliae sigillat. introducebatur, potestatem dans archiepiscopo et caeteris episcopis, ac clero provinciae Cant. ad procedend. emendand. reformand. exponend. corrigend. ordinand. et conficiend. ea, quae ad res ecclesiasticas spectant. Qua perlecta, dominus episcopus London colloquium habuit cum confratribus suis de et super examinatione canonum alias fact. ac de jurisdictione ecclesiae, necnon de regulatione clericorum et ecclesiasticorum officiariorum, et elegit xii. episcopos, et xxiv. e coetu domus inferioris ad conveniendum in magna aula "le Savoy" bis qualibet hebdomada, et ad procedendum in dicto negotio donec perficiatur.

Vicesimo primo mensis Junii dominus episcopus London "tractatum habuit de conceptione unius libri articulorum in visitatione cujuslibet episcopi oeconomis et inquisitoribus in qualibet dioecesi ministrandorum, et ad eundem intuitum elegit sex episcopos ad concipiend. et formand. dictos articulos, et ad conveniend. in aula magna in "le Savoy" bis qualibet hebdomada, donec dictum opus finiatur."

Diebus deinde sequentibus 17. 19. 22. et seq. mensis Julii canones ab episcopis compositi domino episcopo London. praesentati, examinati ac emendati fuerunt.

Post nonnullas deinde continuationes virtute literarum regiarum dominus episcopus London. 21. die mensis Novembris tractatum et colloquium habuit cum confratribus suis de revisione libri publicarum precum, juxta potestatem et libertatem per easdem literas regias eis concess. quod negotium primum sex episcopis, deinde toti coetui domus inferioris committebatur.

Die vicesimo octavo Novembris revisio psalmorum Davidis; sequenti die revisio libri de consecratione diaconorum, presbyterorum, et episcoporum publice introducebatur.

Die quinto mensis Decembris calendarium libro publicarum precum annectendum offerebatur, ac eo die et sequenti 9. ejusdem mensis de forma precum concipienda super alto mari observanda, de funeribus et funeralibus personarum super alto mari decedent. de sepultura, de comminatione agebatur. Et postquam de forma subscriptionis libro publicarum precum facienda fuisset concordatum, die 20. Decembris liber precum publicarum, administrationis sacramentorum, aliorumque rituum ecclesiae Anglicanae, una cum forma et modo ordinandi et consecrandi episcopos, presbyteros, et diaconos totius sacrae synodi provincialis assensum et consensum, approbationem ac subscriptionem recepit.

Sequenti octavo die Januarii et multis aliis sessionibus convocationis, de revisione canonum sive constitutionum anno Domini M.DC.XL. edit. tractatum fuit.

Vicesimo nono die Januarii actum fuit de actu parlamenti librum publicarum precum etc. concernent. obtinendo.

Ultima hujus mensis die et primo Februarii orta et determinata fuit "quaestio inter episcopos congregatos et assidentes, an tutum, licitum, aut consentaneum fuit pro dominis episcopis ad sedend. aut eorum praesent. exhibend. in domo procerum parlamenti, cum et quando negotium circa personas condemnatas pro prodicione nefanda in domo parlamenti inter proceres ageretur; et post multa argument. inter eos habit. et fact. concordatum et ordinatum fuit de et cum consensu totius domus, ad consulendum jurisperitos tam in foro seculari, quam in curiis civilibus et ecclesiasticis versatos de et super dicta quaestione." Et "comparuerunt dominus Willielmus Merrick miles, Robertus King, dominus Edwardus Lake, — Burrell, et Johannes Berkenhead, legum respective doctores; et post nonnullas quaestiones et argumenta inter dictos episcopos et juris consultos habit. et fact. de et super eorum praesentis in domo procerum super personis condemnatis, iidem omnes et singuli jurisperiti unanimi consensu eorum respective opiniones in scriptis dederunt; dictos episcopos in domo parlamenti una cum proceribus circa negotium personarum condemnatarum tutissime et sine ullo detrimento aut praedjudicio sedere, et eorum praesentias exhibere posse; et eidem scripto manus suas subscripserunt, et dictum scriptum sic subscriptum dicto domino episcopo London. tradiderunt".

Octavo die Martii Johannes, Dunelmensis episcopus, librum articulorum visitationem concernen. per eum concept. tradidit in manus domini praesidentis, qui domino archiepiscopo eum destinavit perlegendum et corrigendum.

Die vicesimo secundo Martii dominus Dunelmensis episcopus unanimiter eligebatur ad concipiendam formam de consecratione ecclesiarum parochialium et quarumcunque capellarum intra hoc regnum Angliae, quae 20. die Junii anni sequ. in manus domini praesidentis tradita fuit.

Concilium provinciale Eboracense.

AUCTORITATE brevis regii concilium hoc inchoatum fuit 8. die mensis Maii in ecclesia metropolitana B. Petri Ebor. ubi post preces matutinas in choro (inter quas lectio prima fuit Deut. xvii. lectio secunda Act. xv.) finita litania, pars prior hymni "Veni Creator Spiritus" ante concionem ad clerum cantabatur; post concionem ad domum capitularem ventum est, ubi lecto brevi regio una cum literis domini archiepiscopi mandatorialibus, clero praecognizato etc. percontabatur praeses:

"Doth it please you that this sacred synod or convocation do now begin, to the glory of God, and the peace and public good of the church and kingdom of England."

Responderunt: "It pleaseth us."

"Doth it please you to begin this solemn and sacred action with prayer, for the assistance of God's Holy Spirit."

Respond. "It pleaseth."

Tunc praeses: "Oremus genu flexi."

"Pater noster, qui es in caelis," etc.

"Adsumus Domine, Sancte Spiritus; adsumus peccati quidem inanitate detenti atque deterriti, sed in nomine Christi specialiter convocati et congregati. Veni ad nos, et esto nobiscum. Dignare cordibus illabi nostris. Doce nos quid agamus, quid dicamus, et ostende quid efficere debeamus, ut, te auxiliante, tibi in omnibus complacere valeamus. Esto salus nostra, omniumque in te sperantium. Esto effector et confirmator iudiciorum nostrorum, omniumque servorum tuorum, vices tuas ubique praefertim jam Londini gerentium. Praecipue autem in bonitate tua memineris domini nostri Caroli II. eorumque, qui ei sunt a consiliis, tum ecclesiasticis, tum civilibus, tum publicis, tum privatis. Non sinas inter nos perturbatores esse iustitiae tu, qui summam diligis aequitatem; non in sinistrum nos ignorantia trahat, non favor inflectat; non munerum vel personarum acceptio corrumpat; sed junge nos efficaciter tibi, solius tuae gratiae dono, ut simus in unum, sed in nullo aberremus a vero; quatenus in nomine tuo collecti, sic in cunctis cum moderamine pietatis iustitiam teneamus, ut hic a te in nullo dissentiat sententia nostra, et in futuro seculo te facie ad faciem in aeternum beatifice videamus, tecumque semper regnemus per Christum Jesum, Dominum et salvatorem nostrum, cui cum Patre benedicto, in unitate Spiritus Sancti, sit omnis honor, dominium, et gratiarum actio in secula seculorum. Amen."

orum, in prolocutorem unanimi consensu electus, archiepiscopi commissariis praesentatus et ab illis admissus fuit. Deinde post sex prorogationes vel sessiones octavo die Augusti literae regiae patentes dat. 23. die mensis Julii, potestatem concedentes praelatis et clero provinciae Ebor. canones et constitutiones ecclesiasticas exponendi, immutandi, etc. (quarum tenor de verbo ad verbum, mutatis mutandis, supra habetur anno 3. regni Jacobi I.) lectae fuerunt, synodusque provincialis prorogata in diem Jovis 21. diem mensis Novembris, et ab eo die in ultimum ejusdem mensis.

Ad comparandum in domo capitulari Ebor. ecclesiae isto die, emanaverat intimatio sive monitio omnibus et singulis praelatis, procuratoribus, et clericis sacrae synodi, ad tractandum et deliberandum de literis regis reverendissimo patri Ebor. archiepiscopo directis, aliisque literis praelatorum hujus provinciae, et una litera ab archiepiscopo Georgio Aislaby directae. Hoc facto, solennis et diligens habitus fuit tractatus de causis hujus convocationis, et de commissione sive procuratorio speciali nonnullis venerabilibus viris decernendo et concedendo, ad interendum in synodo sive convocatione cleri provinciae Cantuar. jam apud London tenta et celebrata, ex consilio et deliberatione communi in negotio revisionis libri publicarum precum, necnon formae consecrandi et ordinandi episcopos, presbyteros, et diaconos, virtute literarum seu mandati domini nostri regis in ea parte direct. prout per eandem commissionem sive procuratorium speciale inferius descriptum, plenius liquet et apparet.

Tenor praedictarum literarum domini regis sequitur in haec verba:

CHARLES R.

Most reverend father in God, we greet you well. Whereas by our commission under our seal of England, bearing date the tenth day of June last, we did (among other things) give full, free, and lawful liberty to you, as president of the convocation, and to other the bishops and clergy for our province of York, to confer, debate, treat, consider, consult, and agree of and upon such other points, matters, and things, as we from time to time should deliver or cause to be delivered unto you in writing under our sign manual or privy signet to be debated, considered, consulted, and concluded upon, any statutes, acts of parliament, proclamation, provision, restraint, clause, matter, or thing to the contrary notwithstanding; our pleasure therefore is, and according to the liberty and power reserved by our said commission, we do hereby authorize and require that you review or cause a review to be had and taken taken both of the book of Common Prayer, and of the book of the form and manner of making and consecrating bishops, priests, and deacons; and after mature consideration, that you make such additions or alterations in the said books respectively, as to you shall seem meet and convenient; which, our pleasure is, that you exhibit and present unto us in writing for our further consideration, allowance, and confirmation. And for so doing this shall be your warrant. Given at our court at Whitehall the 22^d day of November, M.DC.LXI.

By his majesty's command.

To our right trusty and well beloved, the most reverend father in God Acceptus, archbishop of York.

SIRS,

You see the contents of his majesty's letters for the review of the book of Common Prayer, and ordination of bishops, priests, etc. for the dispatch whereof his majesty requires all possible expedition. His grace and ourselves sit in consultation with the bishops of the province of Canterbury: and because time allotted for the dispatch of these things is so short, and an act of parliament for confirmation of them ready to pass, the ordinary course for concluding them here first, then sending them down for your concurrence, and returning them up again is so dilatory, that it will not be consistent with his majesty's expectation; it is therefore our desire and request to you, that forthwith you would pass a vote for a proxy in behalf of your whole house (wherein our prolocutors are desired to concur) to Dr. Henry Ferne, prolocutor, Dr. John Earles, dean of Westminster, Dr. John Barwick, dean of St. Paul's, and to some other of the lower house of convocation there, "conjunctim et divisim," to give your consents to such things, as shall be concluded on here in relation to the premisses. This proxy under your dean, and chapter, or your chancellor's seal, we earnestly desire may (if possible) be sent up by the next post, after this comes to your hands. This is all we have at present. We therefore commit you to the protection of almighty God, resting

Your most affectionate friends,

AC. EBOR.

JO. DURESM.

RICH. CARLIOL.

BRI. CESTREN.

To the right worshipful Dr. John Neile, prolocutor, and the rest of his brethren of the convocation assembled for the province of York.

SIR,

The inclosed to Dr. Neile your prolocutor, goes to him from the bishops of the province, having in it a true copy of another from his majesty to myself. Deliver it, I pray, unto him presently (excusing my not writing unto him at present in particular) and hasten their dispatch back according to the direction therein, with as much speed as possibly you can, for it is of great and general concernment. The chancellor, who hath been our clerk herein, will perhaps (if at leisure) say more: I adding only this here in the close, that if we have not all from you by the end of next week, we are lost; and in case the convocation sit not with the doctor presently, to open the letter, as if it had been sent to him only. Farewell.

Yours,

Nov. 23.

Ex MS. Guil. Sancroft, arch. Cant. penes Tho. Tanner, episc. Assaven.

I. If any alteration be made in the liturgy of the church, is it not meet, that a declaration should be published to express, that such change is not made upon the grounds pretended by those of the separation? whether good men might not safely have continued in the unity of our church, before any such alteration, to the salvation of their souls; or whether the wilful departing from the unity of the said church, were not an heinous crime? and therefore, were it not much conducive to the spiritual advantage of as many as have been involved in the schism, and to the honour also of our church, that they that have unadvisedly divided themselves from us, and should continue in their divisions, should be intreated, as they tender their own salvation, and the welfare of the souls of others joined with them, to repent for their foul offence, and not please themselves? whether their proceedings had been justifiable, because the church is contented to lay aside some of those expressions in the service book, that they had carped at?

II. Were it not fit, that a canon should be contrived for the more strict and general observation of the Ember weeks? and that collects were framed, that might implore the divine assistance in the management of that great work, to the end, that by the plentiful effusion of the graces of the blessed Spirit, the persons to be ordained at the following solemnities, might be enabled for the due discharge of their several offices, proportionably to the importance of the divers employments, that the men to be ordained shall enter upon?

III. Were it not expedient, that the holy eucharist were celebrated upon all such days, as it is required? that the second service should be said at the communion table, at least in the cathedrals? for then the quarrel of the exception would cease, that is made against reading the service apart from the common prayers: and if through the paucity of the communicants, the priest should forbear the celebration of that holy ordinance (as it is appointed in the rubric that he should, there be except three at least to join with him) the fault (as it is call'd) of saying the rest of the service, without the communion at the table, would evidently be chargeable upon none, but such as negligently regarded the discharge of their duty in coming to that holy sacrament.

IV. Were it not requisite, and much conducive to the peace of the church, that standing at the psalms and hymns, and the recital of the "Gloria Patri" etc. were enjoined as well as at the rehearsal of the Creed? that what laudable custom hath in many places taken up, canon might in all impose, especially seeing the psalms are commonly made up of prayers and praises, which are not so comely in the mouth of a sinner, as a stander? and moreover, were it not of great concernment to the preventing of animosities, commonly arising from difference of worship, or rather diversity of posture in the same worship, that all mens outward behaviour in the church were so circumscribed, that none might do any public act in any service or office kneel, bow, or prostrate himself, but as the canon should ordain?

V. Because many people, through the great disorders of the late confusions, have been so far debauched from the integrity of their christianity, that they have by the countenance and encouragement of the usurpations made amongst us, committed acts of violence, and injustice against their brethren, and by unwarrantable courses enriched themselves; and yet through the clemency of his gracious majesty, are secure from all impleadings, and suits, in the courts of man's law; were it not to be enjoined, that every priest should, especially before the celebration of the eucharist, press upon the consciences of his hearers, that are guilty in that kind, a serious resentment of such grand miscarriages? exhorting them, not to rest satisfied with the pardon of their pious prince here on earth, until by due penance they were qualified to receive their pardon also from the king of heaven, who remits no man's sin, that feels not the smart of it by remorse, and bewailing his wretchedness flieeth not to the throne of grace for absolution? And if his offence hath been not only against God, but also against his neighbour, expedient it is (as our church explaineth herself in one of the exhortations before the communion in such cases) to reconcile himself to his neighbour, being ready to make restitution and satisfaction unto him, according to the uttermost of his power. No man can find grounds from God's word to justify what he forbids. If therefore the war, lately commenced against his sacred majesty's royal father, of blessed memory, and own person, were contrary to God's word; the worldly advantages gotten thereby can be comfortable to no man, whose conscience shall tell him, that he is guilty of that crime. So that if any one continue to think such possessions lawful, he declareth thereby, that he approves still what he formerly did, and upon the like occasion would perhaps do the like again. And is such a person a meet and worthy communicant, and may he be received as such an one by his pastor, whatsoever opinion he may have of himself? Intimations (we humbly conceive) may be given unto such, without any diminution to the immunities, that by their prince's act of oblivion they do, or may enjoy, to ponder with themselves the greatness of their heinous extravagancies, and that to much advantage of their souls, so as it be done (as it ought to be) without indecent upbraidings, but with grave and serious exhortations, as in the presence of God, who searcheth all hearts, not to startle the greatest offenders in the assurance of his majesty's full remission; but to win them to seek for his pardon also, who alone properly can forgive sins.

VI. Forasmuch as some not so scrupulous, as they should have been in taking covenants and engagements, not agreeable to the oaths of supremacy and allegiance, have pleased themselves with what they did, because as they conceived the king's majesty was asserted supreme in the said oaths, in opposition only to foreign power and jurisdiction, and have pleaded a coordinancy of power with his majesty in the exercise of their classical authority (as may appear by their books*) were it not expedient in such times as now we live in, that some clause or clauses were inserted into the said oaths, that might expressly exclude all such evasions, and oblige men to assert his majesty supreme in opposition to all internal and domestical pretensions of power in the classis, as well as to the external and foreign claims of the bishop of Rome?

Post varias deinde sessiones et continuationes de die in diem (in quibus tamen nihil scitu dignum occurrit) synodus haec provincialis prorogabatur a 20. die mensis Martii, M.DC.LXI. in 3. diem mensis Aprilis, M.DC.LXII.

CAROL. II. 13.

A conference held by the king's order at the Savoy in London between several bishops and clergymen of the church of England, and some presbyterian ministers, about reviewing the liturgy. Ex MS. penes Tho. Tanner, episc. Assaven.

HIS majesty having promised in his declaration [see above pag. 563.] that the liturgy should be reviewed, in order to have it further accommodated to a general satisfaction, granted a commission to several persons of each persuasion for this purpose, the tenor of which is as follows:

Charles the second, by the grace of God, king of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, defender of the faith, etc. to our trusty and well beloved, the most reverend father in God, Accepted, archbishop of York, the right reverend fathers in God, Gilbert, bishop of London, John, bishop of Durham, John, bishop of Rochester, Henry, bishop of Chichester, Humphrey, bishop of Sarum, George, bishop of Worcester, Robert, bishop of Lincoln, Benjamin, bishop of Peterborough, Bryan, bishop of Chester, Richard, bishop of Carlisle, John, bishop of Exeter, Edward, bishop of Norwich; and to our trusty and well beloved, the reverend Anthony Tuckney, doctor in divinity, John Conant, doctor in divinity, William Spurstow, doctor in divinity, John Wallis, doctor in divinity, Thomas Manton, doctor in divinity, Edmund Calamy, batchelor in divinity, Richard Baxter, clerk, Arthur Jackson, Thomas Case, Samuel Clerk, Matthew Newcomen, clerks: and to our trusty and well beloved, doctor Earles, dean of Westminster, Peter Heylin, doctor in divinity, John Hacket, doctor in divinity, John Barwick, doctor in divinity, Peter Gunning, doctor in divinity, John Pearson, doctor in divinity, Thomas Pierce, doctor

* The power of the church is coordinate with, not subordinate to the civil magistrate, saith the book "Of the divine right of church gov." p. 84. apud The bishops appeal. in divinity, Anthony Sparrow, doctor in divinity, Herbert Thorndike, batchelor in divinity; Thomas Horton, doctor in divinity, Thomas Jacombe, doctor in divinity, William Bate, John Rawlinson, clerks, William Cooper, clerk, doctor John Lightfoot, doctor John Collins, doctor Benjamin Woodbridge, and William Drake, clerk, greeting. Whereas by our declaration of the 25th of October last, concerning ecclesiastical affairs, we did, amongst other things, express our esteem of the liturgy of the church of England, contained in the book of Common Prayer; and yet since we find some exceptions made against several things therein, we did by our said declaration declare, we would appoint an equal number of learned divines of both persuasions to review the same, and to make such alterations therein, as should be thought most necessary, and some additional forms in the scripture phrase, as near as might be suited unto the nature of the several parts of worship; we therefore in accomplishment of our said will and intent, and of our continued and constant care and study for the peace and unity of the churches within our dominions, and for the removal of all exceptions and differences, and the occasions of such differences and exceptions from amongst our good subjects, for or concerning the said book of Common Prayer, or any thing therein contained, do by these our letters patents require, authorize, constitute, and appoint you the said Accepted, archbishop of York, Gilbert, bishop of London, John, bishop of Duresme, John, bishop of Rochester, Henry, bishop of Chichester, Humphrey, bishop of Sarum, George bishop of Worcester, Robert, bishop of Lincoln, Benjamin, bishop of Peterborough, Bryan, bishop of Chester, Richard, bishop of Carlisle, John, bishop of Exeter, Edward, bishop of Norwich; Anthony Tuckney, John Conant, William Spurstow, John Wallis, Thomas Manton, Edmund Calamy, Richard Baxter, Arthur Jackson, Thomas Case, Samuel Clerk, and Matthew Newcomen, to advise upon, and review the said book of Common Prayer, comparing the same with the most ancient liturgies, which have been used in the church in the primitive and purest times. And to that end, to assemble and meet together, from time to time, and at such times, within the space of four calendar months now next ensuing, and in the master's lodging in the Savoy in the Strand, in the county of Middlesex, or in such other place, or places, as to you shall be thought fit and convenient, to take into your serious and grave considerations the several directions and rules, forms of prayer, and things in the said book of Common Prayer contained, and to advise and consult upon, and about the same, and the several objections and exceptions, which shall now be raised against the same. And if occasion be, to make such reasonable and necessary alterations, corrections, and amendments therein, as by and between you the said archbishop, bishops, doctors, and persons hereby required, and authorized to meet and advise, as aforesaid, shall be agreed upon to be needful or expedient for the giving satisfaction to tender consciences, and the restoring and continuance of peace, and unity in the churches under our protection and government; but avoiding, as much as may be, all unnecessary abbreviations of the forms and liturgy, wherewith the people are already acquainted, and have so long received in the church of England. And our will and pleasure is, that when you the said archbishop, bishops, doctors, and persons authorized and appointed by these our letters patents to meet, advise, and consult upon and about the premises, as aforesaid, shall have drawn your consultations to any resolution and determination, which you shall agree upon, as needful or expedient to be done for the altering, diminishing, or enlarging the said book of Common Prayer, or any part thereof, that then you forthwith certify and present unto us in writing, under your several hands, the matters and things whereupon you shall so determine, for our approbation; and to the end the same, or so much thereof as shall be approved by us, may be established. And forasmuch as the said archbishop and bishops, having several great charges to attend, which we would not dispense with, or that the same should be neglected upon any great occasion whatsoever, and some of them, being of great age, and infirmities, may not be able constantly to attend the execution of the service and authority thereby given, and required by us, in the meetings and consultations aforesaid; we will therefore, and do hereby require and authorize you, the said doctor Earles, Peter Heylin, John Hackett, John Barwick, Peter Gunning, John Pearson, Thomas Pierce, Anthony Sparrow, and Herbert Thorndike, to supply the place or places of such of the said archbishop and bishops (other than the said Edward, bishop of Norwich) as shall by age, sickness, infirmity, or other occasion be hindered from attending the said meetings or consultations (that is to say) that one of you, the said doctor Earles, Peter Heylin, John Hackett, John Barwick, Peter Gunning, John Pearson, Thomas Pierce, Anthony Sparrow, and Herbert Thorndike, shall from time to time supply the place of each one of them the said archbishop and bishops, other than the said Edward, bishop of Norwich, which shall happen to be hindered, or to be absent from the said meetings or consultations; and shall and may advise, consult, and determine, and also certify and execute all and singular the powers and authorities beforementioned, in and about the premises, as fully and absolutely, as such archbishop, or bishops, which shall so happen to be absent, should or might do by virtue of these our letters patents, or any thing therein contained, in case he or they were personally present. And whereas in regard of the distance of some, the infirmity of others, the multitude of constant employments, and other incidental impediments, some of you, the said Edward, bishop of Norwich, Anthony Tuckney, John Conant, William Spurstow, John Wallis, Thomas Manton, Edmund

Edmund Calamy, Richard Baxter, Arthur Jackson, Thomas Case, Sam. Clerk, and Matthew Newcomen, may be hindred from the constant attendance in the execution of the service aforesaid; we therefore will, and do hereby require, and authorize you, the said Thomas Horton, Thomas Jacombe, William Bate, John Rawlinson, William Cooper, John Lightfoot, John Collins, Benjamin Woodbridge, and William Drake, to supply the place or places, of such of the commissioners last abovementioned, as shall by the means aforesaid, or any other occasion be hindred from the said meetings and consultations (that is to say) that one of you, the said Tho. Horton, Tho. Jacombe, William Bate, John Rawlinson, William Cooper, Dr. Lightfoot, Dr. Collins, Mr. Woodbridge, and Mr. Drake, shall from time to time supply the place of each one of the said commissioners last mentioned, which shall happen to be hindered or absent from the said meetings and consultations; and shall and may advise, consult and determine, and also certify and execute all and singular the powers and authorities beforementioned, in and about the premises, as fully and absolutely, as such of the said last mentioned commissioners, which shall so happen to be absent, should or might do, by virtue of these our letters patents, or any thing therein contained, in case he or they were personally present. In witness whereof we have caused these our letters to be made patents. Witness ourself at Westminster the 25th day of March, in the thirteenth year of our reign.

BARKER.

The commissioners appointed being met at the bishop of London's lodgings in the Savoy, he acquainted the presbyterian ministers, that the conference for making alterations in the liturgy being requested by themselves, nothing could be done, 'till they had delivered their exceptions in writing, together with the additional forms and alterations, which they desired. Hereupon a paper containing exceptions against several parts of the rubric, and the offices of Common Prayer, the use of the surplice, the sign of the cross, kneeling at the Lord's supper, the religious observation of Lent, and saints days, and several other things of the like nature, enjoined in the liturgy, was laid before the bishops; in which they moved "that the prayers and other materials of the liturgy might not be clogg'd with any thing, that was doubtful, or questioned among pious, learned, and orthodox men; and that those parts of it, which impose any ceremonies, particularly the surplice, the sign of the cross, and kneeling, might be abrogated."

To these several objections and demands the church commissioners return'd distinct answers, and also made some concessions, which the presbyterians would not accept of.

At the expiration of the commission it was mutually agreed, that the report of the conference should be delivered to the king in writing, and that each party should give in this general account: "That the church's welfare, that unity and peace, and his majesty's satisfaction were ends, upon which they were all agreed; but as to the means, they could not come to any harmony."

And thus the conference ended without any accommodation.

An uniform reverence, decency, and order in all divine offices to be observed in the church; agreed in convocation 12. May, M.DC.LXII. Ex MS. Guil. Sancroft penes Thomam episc. Aflaven.

FORASMUCH as heretofore, and especially in the late licentious times many scandalous prophanations, and abuses have been presumptuously committed, and brought into the church, not only by the impiety, negligence, and irreverence of sundry sorts of people, but also by the undue liberty, which many ministers have there taken and used in altering the form of public service prescribed, and introducing, instead thereof, their own voluntary and extemporary effusions of prayers, with divers other misdemeanours and disorders, to the great dishonour of God, and the violation of the laws of religion established in the church of England, which according to the rule and precept of St. Paul enjoins all decency and order to be therein observed;

We do therefore require and ordain;

I. First, That all churches and chapels be from henceforth diligently kept from promiscuous, common, and profane usages, and restored unto those uses only, whereunto they have been religiously set apart and dedicated.

II. That the clergy, who perform holy duties in the church, shall use no other form of public service or prayer, either before or after their sermons, than what is prescribed in the book of Common Prayer, or appointed and ordered by the ecclesiastical constitutions of the church of England; and in all their celebrations of divine offices, shall so deport themselves, that they may be examples to the people, and excite them also to demean themselves with all gravity, decency, and reverence in the public service of God.

III. That all men, at their entrance into the church, or chapel, or other place of public worship, shall in honour of almighty God, who is there served, reverently uncover their heads, and so continue all the time of the divine service, sermon, or homily.

IV. That all persons, after their entrance into the church, shall make their humble address unto almighty God for his divine assistance and blessing upon the service there to be performed, and for his gracious acceptance of the same.

V. That they be diligent to resort to the church early, and in due time, and stay not in the churchyard or porch, after the service is begun, nor depart out of the church (without great, urgent, and unfeigned cause) till the whole service and sermon, or homily be ended, and they dismissed by the priest, that so they lose not the benefit of any part of the divine office.

VI. That no person or persons, during their stay there, shall disturb the service, sermon, or homily, by walking, or talking, or any other misdemeanour, but shall every one quietly attend the same; and shall audibly say with, and after the minister, whatsoever is so appointed to be said in the book of Common Prayer.

VII. and lastly, That in all divine offices, they constantly demean themselves with such pious and reverent behaviour, as may best suit the holy actions they are about; particularly, that whenever at the time of reading the holy gospel, or repeating the Creeds, the Lord Jesus shall be mentioned, they perform due and lowly reverence, as it hath been accustomed; that they stand up at the saying, or singing of all the hymns and Creeds, and at the reading of the gospel, and whenever the doxology commonly called "Gloria Patri" shall be used (except only in the litany and commination) and that they kneel at prayers, collects, and suffrages, as also at the litany, whenever it is used in the church.

And

576 Orders for an uniform reverence to be observed in the church.

And to the end that all this may be both the more generally and the more conscientiously performed, we do hereby further enjoin, that all who have cure of souls, do frequently in their sermons teach, and inform the people committed to their charge, how venerable the churches and sanctuaries of God are, wherein we meet together to adore and worship his divine majesty, to call upon his holy name, to set forth his most worthy praise, to read, preach, and hear his most holy word, and to administer his most holy sacraments; and therefore by no means to be despised, abused, or prophaned.

An act confirming a canon of the church, entituled "An uniform reverence" etc. ut supra.

Whereas by both houses of this present parliament it was recommended to the bishops and clergy in the convocation, to frame and make a canon for an uniform reverence, decency, etc. which they have accordingly performed, and represented the same unto our sovereign lord the king, and the lords and commons in this present parliament assembled in these words following:

Forasmuch as heretofore, and especially in the late licentious, etc. ad fin.

Be it therefore enacted by the king's most excellent majesty, that every person offending against the forerelated canon, or any part or branch of it, shall for every such offence be presented to the ordinary, and shall also forfeit — shillings to be levied by the churchwardens of the parish, where such offence shall be committed, for the relief of the poor, and the repair or other necessities of the church or chapel there, and the same shall be levied by warrant under the hands and seals of two or more justices of the peace of the county, city, or town corporate, where such offence shall be committed, by distress and sale of the goods of such offender, upon due proof to be made before such justices by two or more credible witnesses, and for want of such distress, then every such person so offending shall suffer imprisonment without bail or mainprize.

King Charles's letter to the archbishop of Canterbury about some abuses in the church.

*To the most reverend father in God, William,

CHARLES R.

MOST reverend father in God, we greet you well. Whereas the bold abuses, and extravagancies of preachers in the pulpit have not only by the experience of former ages been found to tend to the dishonour of God, the scandal of religion, and disturbance of the peace both of church and state, but have also (through the licentiousness of the late times) much increased, to the inflaming, fomenting, and heightening, of the sad distempers and confusions that were among us; and whereas even at this present (notwithstanding the merciful providence of God, so signally manifested in restoring us to our crown, and our pious care and endeavours to govern our realms in peace and tranquillity) the said abuses do yet continue in a very high measure in sundry parts of this realm, through the busy diligence of some unquiet and factious spirits, who instead of preaching the pure word of God, and building up the people in faith and holiness, have made it a great part of their business to beget in the minds of their hearers an evil opinion of their governors, by insinuating fears and jealousies, to dispose them to discontent, and to season them with such unsound and dangerous principles, as may lead them into disobedience, schism, and rebellion: and whereas also sundry young divines, and ministers, either out of a spirit of contention and contradiction, or in vain ostentation of their learning, take upon them in their popular sermons to handle the deep points of God's eternal counsels and decrees, or to meddle with the affairs of state and government, or to wrangle about forms and gestures, and other fruitless disputes and controversies, serving rather to amuse, than profit the hearers; which is done for the most part, and with the greatest confidence, by such persons as least understand them; we out of our princely care and zeal for the honour of God, the advancement of piety, peace, and true religion, and for the preventing for the future, as much as lieth in us, the many and great inconveniences and mischiefs that will unavoidably ensue, if a timely stop be not given to these and the like growing abuses, do, according to the examples of several of our predecessors of blessed memory, by these our special letters straitly charge and command you to use your utmost care and diligence, that these directions, which upon long and serious consideration we have thought good to give concerning preachers, and which we have caused to be printed herewith sent unto you, be from henceforth duly and strictly observed by all the bishops within your province. And to this end, our will and pleasure is, that you forthwith send them copies of these our directions, to be by them speedily communicated to every parson, vicar, curate, lecturer, and minister in every cathedral, collegiate, and parish church within their several dioceses; and that you earnestly require them to employ their utmost endeavour for the due observation of the same, whereof we shall expect a strict account, both of you, and every one of them: and these our letters shall be your sufficient warrant and discharge in that behalf. Given at our court at Whitehall the 14th day of October, in the XIVth year of our reign, M.DC.LXII.

I. THAT no preachers in their ſermons preſume to meddle with matters of ſtate, to model new governments, or take upon them to declare, limit, or bound out the power and authority of ſovereign princes, or to ſtate and determine the differences between princes and the people; but that upon all good occasions they faithfully inſtruct the people in their bounden duty of ſubjection and obedience to their governours, ſuperior and ſubordinate of all ſorts, and to the eſtabliſhed laws according to the word of God, and the doctrine of the church of England, as it is contained in the homilies of obedience, and the articles of religion ſet forth by public authority.

II. That they be admoniſhed not to ſpend their time and ſtudy in the ſearch of abſtruſe and ſpeculative notions, eſpecially in and about the deep points of election and reprobation, together with the incomprehenſible manner of the concurrence of God's free grace, and man's free will, and ſuch other controverſies as depend thereupon; but howſoever, that they preſume not poſitively and doctrinally to determine any thing concerning the ſame.

III. That they forbear in their ſermons ordinarily and cauſeleſly to enter upon the handling of any other controverſies of leſs moment and difficulty; but whenſoever they are occaſioned by invitation from the text, they preach upon, or that in regard of the auditory, they preach unto, it may ſeem requiſite or expedient ſo to do; that in ſuch caſes they do it with all modeſty, gravity, and candor, aſſerting the doctrine and diſcipline of the church of England from the cavils and objections of ſuch as are adverſaries to either, without bitterneſs, railing, jeering, or other unneceſſary or unſeemly provocation.

IV. That for the more edifying of the people in faith and godlineſs (the aforeſaid abuſes laid aſide) all miniſters and preachers in their ſeveral reſpective cures ſhall not only diligently apply themſelves to catechiſe the younger ſort, according as in the book of Common Prayer is appointed; but alſo ſhall in their ordinary ſermons inſiſt chiefly upon catechetical doctrines (wherein are contained all the neceſſary and undoubted verities of chriſtian religion) declaring withall unto their congregations, what influences ſuch doctrines ought to have in their lives and converſations, and ſtirring them up effectually, as well by their examples as their doctrines, to the practice of ſuch religious and moral duties, as are the proper reſults of the ſaid doctrines, as ſelfdenial, contempt of the world, humility, patience, meekneſs, temperance, juſtice, mercy, obedience, and the like; and to a deteſtation and ſhunning of ſin, eſpecially ſuch ſins as are ſo riſe among us, and common to the age we live in; ſuch are thoſe uſually ſtiled the ſeven deadly ones; in ſhort, all kind of debauchery, ſenſuality, rebellion, profaneneſs, atheiſm, and the like. And becauſe theſe licentious times have corrupted religion even in the very roots and foundations, that where there is an afternoon's exerciſe, it be eſpecially ſpent either in explaining ſome part of the church catechiſm, or in preaching upon ſome ſuch text of ſcripture, as will properly and naturally lead to the handling of ſomething contained in it, or may conduce to the expoſition of the liturgy, and prayers of the church (as occaſion ſhall be offered) the only cauſe they grew into contempt amongſt the people being this, that they were not underſtood. That alſo the miniſter, as often as conveniently he can, read the prayers himſelf; and when he cannot ſo do, he procure or provide ſome fit perſon in holy orders, who may do it with that gravity, diſtinctneſs, devotion, and reverence, as becomes ſo holy an action: and whenſoever by reaſon of his infirmity, or the concurrence of other offices, the time may ſeem too ſhort, or he unable to perform the office of both prayers and ſermon at length, he rather ſhorten his diſcourſe or ſermon, than omit any thing of the prayers, leſt he incur the penalty of the act for uniformity, requiring them to be read according as the book directs.

V. And further our will and pleaſure is, that all miniſters within their ſeveral cures, be enjoined publickly to read over unto the people ſuch canons, as are or ſhall be in force, at leaſt once, and the thirty nine articles twice every year, to the end they may the better underſtand, and be more thoroughly acquainted with the doctrine and diſcipline of the church of England, and not ſo eaſily drawn away from it as formerly they have been.

VI. Since preaching was not anciently the work of every prieſt, but was reſtrained to the choiceſt perſons for gravity, prudence, and learning; the archbishops and biſhops of this kingdom are to take great care whom they licence to preach, and that all grants and licences of this kind heretofore made by any chancellor, official, commiſſary, or other ſecular perſon (who are preſumed not to be ſo competent judges in matters of this nature) be accounted void and null, unleſs the ſame ſhall likewise be allowed by the archbiſhop or the biſhop of the dioceſe; and that all licences of preachers hereafter to be made or granted by any archbiſhop or biſhop, ſhall be only during pleaſure, otherwiſe to be void to all intents and purpoſes, as if the ſame had never been made nor granted.

VII. Laſtly, That for the better obſerving of the Lord's day, too much neglected of late, they ſhall, as by often and ſerious admonitions, and sharp reproofs, endeavour to draw off people from such idle, debauched, and profane courses, as dishonour God, bring a scandal on religion, and contempt on the laws and authority ecclesiastical and civil; so shall they very earnestly persuade them to frequent divine service on the Lord's day, and other festivals appointed by the church to be kept solemn; and in case any person shall resort unto any tavern, alehouses, or use any unlawful sports and exercises on such days, the minister shall exhort those, which are in authority in their several parishes and congregations, carefully to look after all such offenders in any kind whatsoever, together with all those that abet, receive, or entertain them, that they may be proceeded against according to the laws and quality of their offences, that all such disorders may for the time to come be prevented. The lord archb. of Cant.'s letter to the lords the bishops within his grace's province.

AFTER my hearty commendations. I have lately received letters from his majesty, wherein he takes notice of the continuance and increase of some bold abuses and extravagancies in the church, especially in preachers, notwithstanding his great indulgence used towards them; and foreseeing the mischief and inconveniencies likely to ensue thereupon, if not timely prevented, and repressed, hath out of his princely and tender care of the peace of the church, sent withall certain directions to be strictly observed by the bishops in their several dioceses (as by the copies thereof, which I have sent here inclosed, your lordship will more fully understand) and for the more speedy dispatch and ease in the communication hath been graciously pleased to command so many copies thereof to be printed, as shall be needful, a proportionable number whereof will be forthwith sent unto your lordship for your diocese. Now as we cannot but with all thankfulness acknowledge his majesty's affectionate care and zeal in this his providing for the good and welfare of the church by all means, which he finds may be conducive thereunto; so my earnest desire and hope is, we shall not be so much wanting to our own good, as not to second those his majesty's commands with the utmost of our endeavours; but that your lordship, when you shall have given order for the careful dispersing and communicating those copies, as is required, will by your diligent inspection and serious admonitions to your clergy, as occasion shall be offered, be able in due time to return an account of the success in the observation, answerable to his majesty's expectation and pious desires in this his injunction. And so with my prayers to God for a blessing upon your endeavours herein, I commit you to his holy protection, and rest

A proclamation commanding all Jesuits and popish priests to depart this kingdom.

CHARLES R.

WHEREAS our loyal subjects the lords and commons in this present parliament assembled, by their humble petition have represented to us, that notwithstanding our unquestionable affection and zeal to the true protestant religion, manifested in our constant profession and practice against all temptations whatsoever; yet by the great resort of Jesuits and Romish priests into this kingdom our good subjects generally were much affected with jealousy and apprehension, that the popish religion might much increase in this kingdom (which we have most piously desired may be prevented) and so the peace both in church and state may be insensibly disturbed, to the great danger of both. The two houses of parliament were therefore humble suitors to us to issue out our proclamation to command all Jesuits, and all English, Irish, and Scottish priests, and all such other priests, as have taken orders from the see of Rome, or by authority thereof (except such foreign Jesuits or priests, as by contract of marriage are to attend the persons of either of the queens, or by the laws of nations to attend foreign ambassadors) to depart this kingdom by a day, under pain of having the penalties of the laws inflicted upon them. And we having seriously considered and weighed the said humble representation and petition of our said lords and commons assembled in parliament, and the great affection and duty, with which the same was presented unto us, and accepting with much contentment their great care for the preservation of the true religion established in this kingdom; have therefore resolved to publish this our admonition and commandment, and do hereby require, charge, and command all Jesuits, and all English, Irish, and Scottish priests, and all such other priests, as have taken orders from the see of Rome, or by the authority or pretended authority thereof, who are not under any restraint by imprisonment; that they do before the fourteenth day of May next depart out of this our kingdom of England, and dominion of Wales, upon pain of having the penalties of our said laws inflicted upon them. And for their better means to depart accordingly, we do hereby declare and publish our further pleasure, that if at any time before the said fourteenth day of May next, they or any of them shall resort to any port town of our said kingdom of England, or dominion of Wales, and there declare himself to the magistrate of the town, or other officers of any port, that he is a priest, and that he is there to take shipping for his passage, they shall suffer him or them quietly to depart, and shall see them shipped and sent away for foreign parts, and give them their furtherance for their departure. And to the end this our proclamation may be the better observed and obeyed, we do hereby strictly charge and command all our lieutenants, deputy lieutenants, commissioners, justices of the peace, mayors, sheriffs, bayliffs, and all other our officers whatsoever, that they be circumspect and vigilant each of them in their several charges from and after the said fourteenth day of May, in searching for and discovering all such Jesuits and priests, as aforesaid, as shall presume to remain in this our realm of England, or dominion of Wales, contrary to our laws, and our royal pleasure and command herein declared. Provided always; and our intention is (which we do hereby declare) that this our proclamation do not extend to priests, that do or shall from time to time attend upon the persons of our dearest consort the queen, or of the queen our dear mother, according to the treaties of their several marriages, the names of which priests shall be set down and signified by them under their great seals respectively, and such signification inrolled in our court of King's Bench. And because there may be some priests imprisoned within this our realm yet unknown to us, we do will and command all sheriffs, bayliffs, and keepers of prisons, within twenty days after the publication of this our proclamation, to advertise our privy council, or some of them, of the names of all such priests, that are in their custody, and by whom, and for what cause they were committed, to the end that thereupon we may give order for their transportation, as the case shall require. Given at our court at Whitehall the ninth day of April, in the year of our Lord M.DC.LXIII. and of our reign the fifteenth.

briety of life and discretion you shall think most apt and fit, to be employed as chaplains in his majesty's fleet, now set forth under command of his royal highness, the duke of York. In doing this, you will do God and his church good service, and pay an acceptable duty to his majesty. And for the encouragement of such as shall be willing to undertake this employment, you are to let them know, that whatsoever they hold already in the church, shall be secured unto them, notwithstanding their absence, and after their return, as his majesty recommends it to your lordship's consideration, to reserve such benefices and promotions for them, as shall be in your dispose, and according as you shall think them capable; so likewise are you to assure them of his majesty's favour in having such livings and preferments as shall fall in his majesty's gift, according as they shall be found to have demeaned themselves, and deserved in this service. When you have found out the persons, you are to give me notice, as soon as may be, of their names and places, and how they may be sent to, that they being ready, I may know how to send for them, to attend his majesty's orders. If any person, whom you shall think fit for this employment, shall without apparent good reason refuse to shew their willingness to it, you are likewise to signify their names, that such course may be taken with them, as to his majesty and his council shall seem good. So not doubting of your lordship's performance, and expecting a speedy account, I bid you heartily farewell, and remain, my lord,

The clergy's petition to parliament. Ex MS. penes Tho. Tanner, episc. Assaven.

To the right honourable the commons of England assembled in parliament.

The humble petition of the inferior clergy, viz. of the rectors, vicars, and curates of this nation,

Humbly sheweth,

THAT your petitioners do, in all grateful manner, acknowledge your indefatigable endeavours to settle our church upon the firm basis of beautiful uniformity; a work of such matchless piety, that it can never be forgotten, whilst there remains a generation of true protestants; nevertheless there is a strange prodigious race of men amongst us, who are not at all affected with this inexpressible mercy, but labour to shake off the yoke (as they are pleas'd to term it) of government, as well civil as ecclesiastical.

We therefore your petitioners do, with all reverence, beseech this honourable house, to provide some timely cure for this disease; and in order thereunto, we in all humility beg leave to present you with these few expedients, which being (as we humbly conceive) so much to the glory of God, the good and settlement of the church, the safety and preservation of our sovereign and his crown, and the honour of our nation, will not be rejected by this honourable house.

I. That you would endeavour by some severe laws to put a stop to the increase and growth of Anabaptism in this kingdom, the people of that persuasion being most active, fraudulent, and industrious to make profelytes of the most ignorant, and to rebaptize them by their lay teachers.

II. That for the better observation of the Lord's day, and for the promoting of conformity, you would be pleased to advance the pecuniary mulct of twelve pence for each absence from divine service, in proportion to the degree, quality, and ability of the delinquent; that so the penalty may be of force enough to conquer the obstinacy of the nonconformists.

III. That you would relieve the clergy, in the gaining of their smaller tithes, not exceeding the value of forty shillings, by a less chargeable way than costly law suits, which to them (especially to poor vicars, whose maintenance is very mean by extraordinary impositions and multitude of customs) is a remedy much more grievous than the disease.

IV. That you would please to consider, and determine of some more equal manner of rating subsidies upon the clergy, the present measure thereof to them bearing no proportion with the rest of his majesty's subjects.

V. That you would please to provide some expedient to augment the maintenance of vicars in markets and great towns, and of curates under lay impropriators; such of the clergy's maintenance being in no degree competent for their pains and labour, which we conceive to be the cause, that the greatest congregations have generally curates of the meanest abilities.

VI. That you would compel such obstinate persons, as refuse to pay their due rates and assessments to the repair of their respective parish churches, and other charges relating to the worship of God, to be responsible for such stubborn refusal to the civil magistrate, seeing they undervalue and despise all ecclesiastical authority.

And your petitioners shall ever pray, etc.

His majesty's instructions concerning the present condition of all hospitals in England and Wales, directed to the lord archbishop of Cant. who is required to recommend the same to the enquiry of the bishops of both provinces, as well of York as Cant. and in his majesty's name to command them, that with all convenient speed they do each of them respectively certify to his grace the following particulars; videlicet [Reg. Sheldon fol. 204. b.]

I. How many hospitals there are within your diocese?

II. Who were the founders thereof?

III. What the revenue of each hospital doth amount unto by the year upon the rental?

IV. What the fines are reputed to be worth "communibus annis?"

V. What lands, and woods, or leasehold houses, or tenements belong to each hospital; and who hath the letting and setting of them?

VI. Who are the feoffees in trust (if any such be) for the said hospitals? and whether you have heard any just cause of complaint against them, that they have not performed their trust?

VII. Who is the present master, warden, prior, governor, or head of every of the said hospitals, and what is his allowance according to the foundation? or what is his place reputed to be worth in common esteem?

VIII. How many poor are maintained in each hospital, and of what sort men, women, or children? and what their places are worth, according to the foundation, or reputed according to the common esteem; and whether there be now as many members as ought to be by the foundation? if not, how many and what places are void, and who receives the profits of them? and if they all have their allowances duly made them as they ought?

IX. What statutes, orders, or rates the said hospitals respectively are governed by, and to send up copies of them.

The archbishop of Canterbury's letter to the archbishop of York about the above mentioned instructions. Ibidem.

RIGHT reverend, and my very good lord. After my hearty commendations, etc. Having heard frequent complaints from many parts of my province not only of great disorders and disturbances caused by the crafty insinuations and turbulent practices of factious nonconformist ministers, and other disaffected to the government of the church; but also of divers unworthy persons, that even of late years have crept into the ministry, to the scandal of the church, and dissatisfaction of good men, a great part of which miscarriages are imputed to the easiness, or inadvertency at least of the bishops, who ought to have a watchful eye against such growing mischiefs; I have therefore thought good, as in like cases hath often been done by my predecessors, to recommend to your lordship, and the rest of my brethren, the bishops of my province, the orders and instructions herewithall sent, desiring and requiring your lordship and them duly to observe the same, and to give unto me such account and certificates, as are thereby required. Which that it may be performed, I desire your lordship, that you will impart the tenor of this my letter, together with a true copy of the said orders and instructions, to every one of my brethren, the bishops of my province, with all convenient speed. And so I bid your lordship heartily farewell.

Postscript. I desire that your lordship in your letters to my brethren, the bishops, will quicken them to make a speedy return to his majesty's instructions, for enquiries concerning hospitals, by me lately sent, and recommended to your lordship, and them by his majesty's command.

Orders and instructions by the most reverend father in God Gilbert, lord archbishop of Cant. his grace, primate of all England and metropolitan, given to all the bishops of his province, and required to be observed and certified as followeth; videlicet [Ibid. fol. 205.]

I. Concerning ordinations.

THAT all and every the said bishops within their several dioceses and jurisdictions be very careful what persons they receive into the ministry; and that none be admitted into holy orders, unless he bring with him letters dimissory, according to the 34th canon; and that no bishop, being not within his own proper diocese, do at any time hereafter, confer orders upon any person, without licence first from us obtained; and that in all things the canons concerning ordination be duly and punctually observed; and that once every year, videlicet within thirty days after the feast of the annunciation of our blessed lady St. Mary the virgin, every bishop do certify unto us the names, degrees, titles, and orders of every person by him ordained, within the year before, ending at Christmas then last past.

II. Concerning pluralists and their curates.

That before the feast day of the annunciation of our blessed lady St. Mary the virgin next coming, they and every of them certify to me particularly the names, surnames, and degrees of all clergymen, that, together with any benefice with cure, do hold also any prebend, or ecclesiastical dignity, or promotion, or sinecure with the names and places of the said benefices, prebends, dignities, promotions, and sinecures; and also the names, surnames, and degrees of all clergymen, that hold two or more ecclesiastical benefices, with or without cure, whether within the same diocese, or in several dioceses, and the names and places wherein the said benefices are, and within what distance, or commonly reputed distance of miles; and whether they hold the same by lawful qualification and dispensation; and upon which of their benefices, prebends, dignities, or promotions they do reside; and whether they keep and maintain able, orthodox, and conformable curates upon the said benefices, where they do not reside; and whether any of them keep any curate, where they themselves do usually reside; and what are the names, surnames, and degrees of the said curates, and whether they be licensed and approved by the bishop, as they ought.

III. Concerning

III. Concerning lectures and lecturers.

That before the said feast day of our blessed lady St. Mary the virgin, they and every of them particularly certify unto me, what lectures are set up, and lecturers maintained within their respective dioceses; in what towns, places, and churches the same are set up; what allowances are made and established for any such lectures; what are the names, surnames, degrees, and qualities of all and every such lecturers; and whether such lectures be set up by and with the consent of the bishop of the diocese; and whether the said lecturers be lawfully licensed preachers, and by whom; and how they appear affected to the government of his majesty, and the doctrine and discipline of the church of England.

IV. Concerning schoolmasters and instructors of youth.

That before the said feast day of our blessed lady St. Mary the virgin, they and every of them particularly certify me, how many, and what free schools are within their respective dioceses, and where, and by whom founded, and how endowed, and the names, surnames, and degrees of the schoolmasters and ushers in the said free schools; and also the names, surnames, and degrees of all other public schoolmasters, and ushers, or instructors, and teachers of youth in reading, writing, grammar, or other literature, and whether they be licensed, and by whom; as also of all public mistresses of schools and instructors and teachers of young maids or women; and of all other men and women, that keep scholars in their houses to board or sojourn, and privately teach them or others within their houses; and whether the said schoolmasters, ushers, schoolmistresses, and instructors, or teachers of youth publickly or privately, do themselves frequent the public prayers of the church, and cause their scholars to do the same; and whether they appear well affected to the government of his majesty, and the doctrine and discipline of the church of England.

V. Concerning practisers of physick.

That before the said feast day of our blessed lady St. Mary the virgin, they and every of them particularly certify me the names, surnames, degrees, and qualities of all practisers of physick within their respective dioceses; in what towns, villages, or places they live; whether licensed, and by whom; and how they appear affected to his majesty's government, and the doctrine and discipline of the church of England.

VI. Concerning nonconformist ministers.

That before the feast of — they and every of them particularly certify me the names, surnames, and degrees of all nonconformist ministers, that within their respective dioceses have been ejected out of any ecclesiastical benefice, promotion, or charge for nonsubscription, or nonconformity; and where, and how, and in what profession of life they now do live; and how they behave themselves in relation to the peace and quiet as well of the church, as of the state; and further, if any such like nonconformist shall have removed from any other diocese into any of their respective dioceses, that they certify the same things concerning them, as well as of the others, in this instruction mentioned. The archbishop of Canterbury's letter about collections for those in the city of London infected by the plague. Reg. Sheldon fol. 206.

RIGHT worshipful and my very loving friends. After my hearty commendations, etc. His majesty having taken care by order of council and proclamation concerning collections for the succour of those persons and places, that at this time are under God's heavy visitation by the plague, and more particularly, for the relief of the said condition of this great city of London, upon which the chief interest of trade and principal strength of the nation depends, hath commanded, and again importuned me to encourage and quicken (as much as in me lies) those collections throughout my whole province. That I may therefore perform my duty in my particular diocese; these are to will and require you, that by the ministers and churchwardens of every parish, you cause frequent collections for the visited, with especial consideration for the city of London, to be made upon all occasions in all churches within my diocese, and that the monies so collected may be brought in unto you, according as his majesty's proclamation, and the order of the council do direct; out of which collections so much being reserved, as will only serve to provide for the present necessity of such places within the diocese, as are visited; you are to see, that the overplus be forthwith sent up and paid to the lord bishop of London, or such person as his lordship shall appoint to receive the same, to be employed for the succour of the miserably distressed in and about this great city, in the welfare whereof the well being of all the nation is almost wholly involved; and whose calamity is far more to be pitied, than any elsewhere, not only by the raging of the infection, but even for the very want of necessities for life; many perishing that way, which otherwise might have escaped the danger, and many thousands of poor artizans being ready to starve for lack of means to be employed in their callings; all trading being become dangerous,

Of your proceedings and diligence herein I shall expect at least a monthly certificate, that thereupon I may be able to give his majesty an account of the performance of his royal commands. Moreover, you are to cause several copies of this my letter to be transcribed, at least so many as there be deanries in the diocese, and with all speed to send one or more copies into each deanry, that from minister to minister it may also be copied out, and read in all churches, as well exempted as not exempted, upon the fast days when such collections shall be made, or on such other days before that, as the ministers in their discretion shall think most fit and convenient for the advance of this great work of charity, and the satisfaction of his majesty's so pious care and desires. And so I bid you heartily farewell.

A letter from the king's council to the archbishop of Canterbury about almsmen and hospitals. Reg. Sheldon fol. 213. a.

AFTER our very hearty commendations to your grace. His majesty out of his princely care and tenderness towards those, who in this way have exposed their lives at sea in his and their country's service, and have therein either by loss of limbs, or otherwise, been rendered unable to gain a livelihood for the future, having amongst other comfortable provisions designed for their relief and subsistence directed, that the almsmen's places in all the hospitals within the kingdom, which are at present, or shall become void, should be preserved and kept for such as are, or shall be so maimed as aforesaid; we do therefore, by his majesty's command, desire your grace to signify unto the several bishops within your province, that it is his express will and pleasure, that they require the masters of all hospitals, within their respective dioceses, in his majesty's name, not to dispose of any vacant almsmen's places, to any person or persons whatsoever, but that they reserve the same, with all necessary accommodations thereunto belonging, for the relief and support of such maimed seamen, and soldiers, as shall be sent unto them by his majesty's commissioners, for sick and wounded men, to whom they are to give notice of any place, that shall become void. And if after this notice given, the said masters of hospitals shall fill any vacant places with any other persons, his majesty will cause them to be removed, to make room for maimed seamen. And his majesty, out of his care to preserve the constitution of hospitals as entire as may be, considering this great occasion, hath directed the said commissioners for sick and wounded men, that where the statutes of any foundation require the almsmen to be of such county or place, that they comply therewith, as far forth as may be, by sending thereunto such maimed men, as are of those places, if they find any such under their care. And so not doubting of your readiness in promoting so pious a work, we bid your grace very heartily farewell.

and have further humbly desired us, that in the said proclamation, strict order be given to the judges, and barons of the Exchequer, and to all our justices of peace, and to all other ministers of justice, for the putting the laws in due execution against all popish recusants, and such as are suspected so to be, in order to their speedy conviction; and that the said judges, barons, and justices, be required at their respective assizes, and quarter sessions, to give the laws in charge against popish recusants:

And we having seriously considered thereof, and accepting with much contentment the great care of our said loyal subjects, the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons in parliament assembled, for the preservation of the true religion established in this kingdom; do therefore by this our proclamation require, charge, and command all Jesuits, and also all priests, who have taken orders from the see of Rome, or by the authority or pretended authority thereof, and are not since, and so continue reconciled to the church of England; that they and every of them do before the tenth day of December next ensuing, depart out of this our kingdom of England, and dominion of Wales, upon pain of having the penalties of the laws and statutes of this our realm inflicted upon them. And for their better means to depart accordingly, we do hereby declare and publish our further pleasure, that if at any time before the said tenth day of December next, they or any of them shall resort to any port town of our said kingdom of England, or dominion of Wales, and there declare him or themselves to the magistrate of the town, or other officers of any port, to be priests or Jesuits, and that he or they are there to take shipping for his or their passage, such magistrate or officers shall suffer him or them quietly to depart, and shall see them shipped and sent away for foreign parts, and give them their furtherance for their departure. And to the end that this our proclamation may be the better observed and obeyed, we do hereby strictly charge and command all our lieutenants, deputy lieutenants, commissioners, justices of the peace, mayors, sheriffs, bayliffs, and all other our officers whatsoever, that they be circumspect and vigilant each of them in their several charges from and after the said tenth day of December, in searching for, discovering, and apprehending all such Jesuits and priests (as aforesaid) as shall presume to remain within this our realm of England, or dominion of Wales, contrary to our laws, and our royal pleasure and command herein declared, to the end that the laws may be put in due execution against them.

Provided always, and our intention is (which we do hereby declare) that this our proclamation shall not extend to priests (not being our natural born subjects) that do or shall from time to time attend upon the persons of our dearest consort the queen, or of the queen our dear mother, according to the treaties of their several marriages, the names of which priests shall be set down and signified by them under their great seals respectively, and such signification inrolled in our court of King's Bench.

And we do also further require, charge, and command, that all our judges, barons of our Exchequer, justices of peace, and ministers of justice, in their several places, do not only observe our will and pleasure herein before expressed, in all and every the premises; but also do forthwith put all other our laws in due execution against all popish recusants, and such as are suspected so to be, in order to their speedy conviction. And we do further will and command, that all our said judges, barons of our Exchequer, justices of the peace, and ministers of justice, to whom the same shall appertain, at and in their respective courts, assizes, gaol deliveries, and quarter sessions do publickly give the laws in charge against popish recusants, and take order that they be speedily presented, indicted, and convicted according to law. And that all our judges of assize at the returns out of their respective circuits, do from time to time hereafter, give a true and strict account of their proceedings therein unto our chancellor for the time being; and that he do present the same unto us. The archbishop of Canterbury's letter to the commissary of the diocese of Canterbury about conventicles. Ex MS. Guil. Sancroft, arch. Cant. apud Thomam, episc. Aflaven.

Sir,

AFTER my hearty commendations, etc. You cannot choose (as well as I) but be alarmed on all hands with continued reports of the frequency of conventicles and unlawful meetings of those, who under a pretence of religion and the worship of God, separate from the unity and uniformity of God's service, to the great offence of all, and fear of many his majesty's most faithful subjects, who love and truly endeavour the peace and prosperity of the church and state. His majesty in public lately speaking much against these disorderly meetings, and expressing an indignation against all reports of him, as if he either favoured or connived at them, was pleased (after he had laid some blame upon the bishops for want of care in this affair) to declare, that henceforward they should not want the assistance of the civil magistrate to suppress them; insomuch that if hereafter any bishop shall complain to any justice, and require his help, if such justice do not his duty therein, then let the bishop certify, that his majesty may know, who they are that neglect his service.

Now Sir, that I may discharge my duty in my particular diocese, I do hereby desire and require of you, that having communicated this my letter to the reverend Dr. Sancroft, dean of St. Paul's, and archdeacon of Cant. you consult him for his advice thereupon, and that by the assistance of him and your officials, and officers, and all and every the parochial ministers, parsons, vicars, and curates, and by all other persons and means, which shall be thought best, you will make speedy enquiry throughout my diocese, as well in places exempt as not exempt, what and how many conventicles or unlawful assemblies, or church meetings are held in every town and parish, what are the numbers that usually meet at them, and of what condition or sort of people they consist, and from whom, and upon what hopes they look for impunity.

When any such conventicles are found out, if by the ecclesiastical power and authority they cannot be restrained, you are to complain to the next justice or justices; and if they fail to assist, it will be your part to certify their neglect: which if at any time there shall be cause to do, be sure your certificates be made upon good and true grounds, such as may all be evidently proved, that there be no failing, when we expect redress.

These things you are desired and required to put in speedy execution, and with all diligence to make your returns to me; whereupon you shall receive further advice and instruction. And so I bid you heartily farewell, and am,

Sir,

Your very loving friend,

Postscript.

Sir,

To the enquiries about conventicles in the body of this letter set down, I think fit that these two following be added; and I desire that together with the rest they be enquir'd into; viz. whether the same persons do not meet at several conventicles, which may make them seem more numerous than indeed they are; and whether you do not think they might be easily suppressed by the assistance of the civil magistrate; the greatest part of them being (as I hear) women and children, and inconsiderable persons.

A proclamation against numerous conventicles.

CHARLES R.

FORASMUCH as information hath been given to us from several parts of the kingdom, that those, who separate themselves from the established worship, do meet in greater numbers than formerly, to such a degree as may endanger the public peace, with which we cannot but take notice also, how far our known and still avowed easiness to indulge tender consciences, is abused thereby; wherefore by the advice of our privy council, we have thought fit to issue this our proclamation, strait-ly charging and commanding all our justices of the peace within the limits of their several jurisdictions, where they shall find any such meetings to be held, that they put the laws in execution for suppression thereof, and particularly proceed against the preachers, according to the statute made in the seventeenth year of our reign, entituled "An act for restraining nonconformists from inhabiting in corporations." The archbishop of Canterbury's letter to the commissary, the dean, and archdeacon of Canterbury concerning the king's directions to the clergy. Ex autographo penes Thom. episc. Assaven.

IT having pleased his majesty and the two houses of parliament, out of their pious care for the welfare of this church and kingdom, by making and publishing the late act for preventing and suppressing conventicles, to lay a hopeful way for the peace and settlement of the church, and the uniformity of God's service in the same; it becomes us the bishops, ecclesiastical judges, and clergy, as most particularly sensible of the good providence of God, to endeavour, as much as in us lies, the promoting so blessed a work. And therefore having well considered what will be proper for me in my place to do, I have thought fit and do hereby recommend unto you, as my commissioners jointly and severally these counsels and methods, which I desire, that in my stead, throughout my particular diocese of Cant. as well in places exempt as not exempt, you will pursue; and which I have also by my letters given in charge to all the rest of my brethren, the bishops of my province being thereunto encouraged by his majesty's approbation and express direction in this affair.

In the first place therefore I advise and require you, that you will call before you not only all officials, registers, and other ecclesiastical officers within my diocese; but that also by such means, and at such places as you shall judge most convenient, you assemble before you or some one or more of you the several parsons, vicars, and curates of my diocese and jurisdiction within their several deanries; and that you impart unto them respectively, as they shall come before you, the tenor of these my letters, requiring them in my name, that in their several capacities and stations they all perform their duty towards God, the king, and the church, by an exemplary conformity in their own persons and practice to his majesty's laws, and the rules of the church in this behalf.

Secondly I advise, that you admonish and recommend to all and every of the parsons, vicars, and curates within my said diocese and jurisdiction strictness and sobriety of life and conversation, checking and punishing such as transgress, and encouraging such as live orderly; that so by their virtue and religious deportment they may shew themselves patterns of good living to the people under their charge. And next, that you require of them, as they will answer the contrary, that in their own persons in their churches they do decently and solemnly perform the divine service by reading the prayers of the church, as they are appointed and ordered in and by the book of Common Prayer, without addition to or diminishing from the same, or varying, either in substance or ceremony, from the order and method, which by the said book is set down, wherein I hear and am afraid, too many do offend; and that in the time of such their officiating, they ever make use of, and wear their priestly habit, the surplice and hood; that so by their due and reverent performance of so holy a worship, they may give honour to God, and by their own example instruct the people of their parishes, what they ought to teach them in their doctrine.

Thirdly, having thus counselled the ecclesiastical officers and clergy of my diocese in their own particular duties, you are further desired to recommend unto them the care of the people under their respective jurisdictions and charges, that in their several places they do their best to persuade and win all Nonconformists and Dissenters to obedience to his majesty's laws, and unity with the church; and such as shall be refractory, to endeavour to reduce by the censures of the church, or such other good means and ways as shall be most conducing thereunto.

To which end, I advise that all and every of the said ecclesiastical judges and officers, and all and every of the clergy of my diocese, and the churchwardens of every parish by their respective ministers be desired in their respective stations and places, that they take notice of all Nonconformists, holders, frequenters, maintainers, and abettors of conventicles and unlawful assemblies, under pretence of religious worship, especially of the preachers and teachers in them, and of the place wherein the same are held, ever keeping a most watchful eye over the cities and greater towns, from whence the mischief is for the most part derived into the lesser villages and hamlets. And wherever they find such wilful offenders, that then with a hearty affection to the worship of God, the honour of the king and his laws, and the peace of the church and kingdom, they do address themselves to the civil magistrates, justices, and others concerned, imploring their help and assistance for the prevention or suppression of the same, according to the said late act made and set forth in that behalf.

Lastly, for the better direction to all those who shall be concerned in the advices given by this letter, I desire you will give out amongst ecclesiastical officers and clergy as many copies of the same, as you shall think most conducive to the ends for which it is designed.

And now, what the success will be, we must leave to God almighty. Yet I have this confidence

dence under God, that if we do our parts now at first diligently, by God's help and the assistance of the civil power (considering the abundant care and provisions this act contains for our advantages) we shall within a few months see so great an alteration in the distractions of these times, as that the seduced people returning from their seditious and self-serving teachers to the unity of the church, and uniformity in God's service, it will be the glory of God, the welfare of the church, the praise of his majesty's government, and the happiness of the whole kingdom. And so I bid you heartily farewell and am,

The archbishop of Canterbury's circular letter to cathedrals, that the residentiaries should in their own persons perform divine service on Sundays and holidays at least. Ex MS. penes Thom. episc. Aflaven.

RIGHT reverend and my very good lord. I have thought this a fit time to give your lordship, and all the rest of my brethren, the bishops of my province, notice of some things, which within some of our own cathedrals, and in the service God there, are not so orderly performed as they ought to be. Our cathedrals are the standard and rule to all parochial churches of the solemnity and decent manner of reading the liturgy, and administering the holy sacraments. And certainly there is none in those places, whom it better becomes to shew a good example, than those who have the chief preferments within those cathedrals; that is, the dean, canons, prebendaries, and other dignitaries within the same. But with some trouble I must needs tell you, I have from many places heard, that the duties of reading the church service, and administering the holy communion, have been too much neglected by those dignified persons; and as if it were an office below them, left for the most part to be performed by their vicars, or petty canons, to the offence of some of our friends, the advantage of sectaries, and their own just reproach. Upon this, my lord, my advice is, and I do hereby desire your lordship, that you will call before you the dean, and canons, or prebendaries of your cathedral churches, or as many as conveniently you can get together, and having imparted this my letter unto them, that your lordship will, as well in mine as your own name, counsel, and persuade, or otherwise require them, that they take care, as much as may be, that divine service, and administering the holy communion be celebrated by one of themselves, at least every Sunday and holiday in the year; and that they order their residence and attendance on the church, so as (if possible) one of them in person may officiate, as is before desired. This, I am assured, will be very agreeable to his majesty's good pleasure, conducive to the honour of God's service, and their own esteem and reputation. And so expecting from your lordship and them an account of what is done hereupon, as soon as conveniently it may be, at least within three months after the date hereof, I bid your lordship heartily farewell, and am, very affectionate friend and brother,

(My lord) your lordship's

GILB. CANT.

For the right reverend father in God, my very good lord and brother Seth, lord bishop of Sarum.

Some constitutions and orders settled and emitted by his majesty concerning the administration of the external government of the church of Scotland, and the persons employed therein. Ex MS. Guil. Sancroft, arch. Cant. apud episc. Aflaven.

CHARLES R.

WE having taken into our serious consideration, how highly important it is for the preservation and advancement of true religion, and the peace of the church and kingdom of Scotland, that the affairs and government ecclesiastical therein establish'd be duly managed; do allow and approve the practice of the bishops these years past since their restitution, in that they have exercised the government and discipline of the said church, in conjunction with presbyters, in the accustomed meetings of presbyteries and synods. And for the establishment of the same good order and practice in time to come; it is our will and we do ordain,

I. That the said bishops shall continue to manage all church matters, with the advice, consent, free vote, and assistance of the presbyters, or major part of them, in the said meetings of presbyteries and synods. And to the end, that discipline may be constantly and exactly exercised, and all scandalous offences and offenders duly censured; we farther will and ordain, that presbyteries shall ordinarily meet once once a month, and the diocesan synods once a year, in May or June, in their accustomed places.

II. Concerning ordination of presbyters, it is our pleasure, that intrants to the ministry being lawfully presented to any parish church, and bringing with them certificates of their having taken the oath of allegiance and supremacy; be duly tried and examin'd in the usual manner: and if thereupon they shall be in all points approved, and found sufficiently qualified by the bishop and presbytery within which the said parish church lies; an edict shall be duly served at the same, and a day appointed by the bishop and presbytery, for their meeting there, in order to the ordination and admission of the person so presented and appointed; and that one of the presbyters be appointed to preach, and the people of the parish warn'd to convene at a fit hour for the exercise of divine worship, and to see their design'd minister solemnly ordained by the imposition of the hands of the bishop, and presbyters there present; and be exhorted to yield due reverence and obedience to him and his ministry in the Lord.

III. And seeing the rules and duties of the ministerial office are fully express'd in the form of ordination, and that the intrants accordingly promise to observe them; our will is, that he having given his oath, that he is free from all simoniacal paction, none other oath or subscription shall be superadded or required of him.

IV. We farther ordain, that the bishops reside constantly in their dioceses, except upon urgent occasions; and that being in the dioceses, they preach every Sunday in some church thereof, unless they be hindered by old age or sickness, or some other invincible impediment.

V. And we do will and ordain that each minister with his church session be careful of the contributions for the poor and their constant relief, according to the ability of the parish, and likewise of the preserving and repairing the fabric of the church, in the way appointed by law, and that they take notice of all public scandals and gross offences within the parish, redressing such offences, as they have been in use to censure and correct; and reserving and delating others to the presbytery, as they have been accustomed to do; being always accountable and subject to the revising and recognition of the presbytery in all things acted by themselves in their usual meetings; as the presbyteries are to be accountable for all their actings to the bishop and diocesan synod.

VI. And to the end that good order may be the better preserved in those parochial meetings and affairs; we do ordain that besides every bishop's peculiar visiting the parishes within his diocese (in which they ought not, and it is hoped, they will not be deficient) there be frequently in the summer season more solemn and indicted visitations of such churches, as desire or need them, by the bishop and presbyters together, or by so many of the presbyters and moderator, as can conveniently meet at the times and places appointed.

VII. When we shall think fit to call a national synod of the church of Scotland, it shall consist of the archbishops and bishops, deans of cathedrals, archdeacons, the moderators of presbyteries, and one presbyter or minister out of each presbytery, chosen by the major part of the same, of one or two from the university of St. Andrew, one from Glasgow, one from Marshal's college at Aberdeen, and one from the college of Edinburgh; we or a commissioner from us being always present: and when we shall be personally present; such of our privy council shall have place and vote in the same national synod, as we shall think fit to choose; which shall not exceed the number of 15. And when we send a commissioner to it, those of our council, chosen by us as aforesaid, shall be present as assessors to our commissioner, and shall sit and vote in all things propounded in the synod, they not exceeding the aforesaid number. And the synod thus constituted, is to meet at such times and places, as we by our proclamation shall appoint, and is to debate, treat, consider, consult, conclude, and determine upon such matters, causes, and things concerning the doctrine, worship, discipline, and government of the church, as we or our commissioner shall propound, or cause to be propounded to the consideration of the said synod; and whatsoever shall be concluded by the votes of the major part of the synod, and shall be consented to by us, or our commissioner, shall have the full force of an ecclesiastical law or constitution of the church of Scotland; and all our subjects ecclesiastical and civil, in that our kingdom, shall in all matters ecclesiastical be subject to the judgment, decisions, and censures of the said national synod, and all inferior ecclesiastical meetings and judicatures in the said church shall in all their meetings and determinations be accountable to it, and censurable by it, according as we, or our commissioner, and the said synod shall see cause to take the cognizance and review of the same.

VIII. And upon the due publication of these constitutions and orders, our will is, that all the ministers of the church of Scotland shall thenceforward resort to the meetings of the presbyteries and synods, to which they belong; and that none of them shall be allowed upon any cause or pretence whatsoever to plead exemption from the same.

These are the particulars, which we have thought fit at present to ordain concerning the church affairs in Scotland; as we likewise intend, by the assistance of God, to be careful in time coming to add and enact such farther ordinances and constitutions, as we shall judge needful or useful for promoting of piety and true religion, and for the establishment of good order, and peace in that church. And these orders and constitutions being first recorded in the books of our privy council, and duly publish'd, we do ordain to be observed and obeyed by all our subjects in that our kingdom. And for the recording and due publishing of the same this shall be sufficient warrant. Given at

CHARLES R.

Whereas we have delivered a paper unto you signed by us, containing some ecclesiastical constitutions and orders to be recorded in the books of our privy council and duly published; you shall either impart the same to our privy council to be recorded, or forbear it totally; or shall do it soon after your arrival, or delay it to another time, as you shall judge fit. And if before the end of this session of parliament, you shall think fit to record or publish them, we do hereby authorize you to endeavour to pass such of them into acts of parliament, as you shall judge expedient.

You shall with the advice of such as you shall think fit, consider, whether or not it be fit, that to the end the memory of the late unlawful covenants may not be perpetuated, an act be past, by which the declaration against the covenants is not to be required of any, who was not eleven years old, when the covenants were last renew'd in the year M.DC.L. and so was not in capacity to have taken them, nor requir'd of any who shall declare, he never took those covenants, nor any of them: and for the same reasons that the declaration shall not be requir'd of any after the time limited in England; and accordingly you shall either endeavour, that an act be passed to that effect, or forbear the same.

You are to require the lord archbishop of S. Andrews to allow and authorize the transportation of such ministers, as shall be lawfully presented to any of the churches within the diocese of Glasgow, and approved by the bishop of Dunblain, out of any church within the diocese of S. Andrews, and that he enjoin the bishops within his province to do the like.

If you find it fit to publish our orders and constitutions, you shall in our name signify to the archbishops and bishops, that our pleasure is, that no minister be prejudiced nor molested for his private opinion concerning church government; providing he join with the church meetings, and submit to the present government, and in his preaching, and all other parts and exercises of his ministry, and in his whole conversation do behave himself peaceably and orderly, as becometh a minister of the gospel. Given at our court at Whitehall the 7th day of July, M.DC.LXX. and of our reign the 22^d year.

The archbishop of Canterbury's letter to his suffragans about the encrease of sects, etc.
Ex lib. instrum. episc. Lincoln.

THE king's most excellent majesty being truly sensible, that the growing increase of the prevailing sects and disorders amongst us, proceeds chiefly from the general neglect of instructing the younger sort of persons (or their erroneous instruction) in the grounds and principles of true religion, is therefore pleased to command me, that in his name I require your lordship (and by you the rest of my brethren the bishops of this province) that by yourselves and officers you will at all seasonable time reinforce the execution of such laws and constitutions, as enable us to enjoin the use and exercise of our said catechism. And that (by the most effectual remedies that may be) such as, without licence, either publickly or privately teach school within your lordship's or their jurisdiction, be forthwith proceeded against, according to such rules, as are prescribed unto us for their restraint. And to the end that this mischief may be prevented for the future, he moreover strictly chargeth us, that none be admitted to that office without such subscription, oaths, and declaration, as are exactly requisite. But in the mean time I desire that your lordship and they will, with the first conveniency, let me know, how far we are already defective in these particulars, that I may be able to give such satisfaction as hereafter will be necessary. A proclamation for the discovery and apprehension of Jesuits, seminary priests, and others, that have taken orders from the church and see of Rome.

CHARLES R.

HIS majesty having been informed, that notwithstanding his former orders and proclamations, requiring Jesuits, seminary priests, and others, that have taken orders from the church and see of Rome, and have not since been reconciled to the church of England, to depart the kingdom; yet nevertheless such priests and Jesuits continue and harbour themselves in the city of London and suburbs thereof, and likewise in other parts of this kingdom, to the manifest contempt of his majesty's royal authority, and the laws and religion established: and notwithstanding his majesty's commands, to have the laws against them given in charge in all counties, yet none have of late been apprehended or discovered. His majesty thereupon of his pious care for the preservation of the protestant religion, and for the prevention of the endeavours of such priests and Jesuits, who seduce his good subjects from the same, hath resolved, that so many of the said priests as can be found, shall be speedily sent away and transported into the parts beyond the seas; and to that end doth (with the advice of his privy council) by this his royal proclamation require and strictly charge and command the justices of the peace of the several counties and cities of this kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, and town of Berwick upon Tweed, at the next quarter, or other general sessions to be held for the said counties and cities respectively; that they and

And that such discoveries may be the better encouraged, and more effectually pursued, his majesty hath given order to the lord high treasurer of England, to cause speedy payment to be made unto every person, who shall make discovery of any priest or Jesuit, of the sum of five pounds for every priest or Jesuit so discovered, who shall be thereupon apprehended, and brought to the lords of his majesty's privy council, or one of his principal secretaries of state; and moreover the charges of sending them up shall be and are hereby directed and appointed to be born and paid by the respective sheriffs of the counties, through which they are to pass, who shall have the same allowed unto them, upon passing their accounts in the Exchequer. The archbishop of Canterbury's order of fees for the ostiary of the convocation.

Ex MS. penes Tho. episc. Assaven.

FORASMUCH as information, by way of complaint, hath been lately given us, that some of the upper house in the present convocation, or provincial synod, and divers of the lower house have delayed or denied satisfaction and payment of the accustomed fees and allowances due unto the clerk or actuary, and the huiſſiers or ostiaries there, for their constant service and attendance for many sessions, and successive prorogations, during the continuance thereof; we have now thought fit, and by these presents do declare, and expressly order, that every person and member of our said convocation, upon modest request to him or them in that behalf made, do and shall pay or cause to be paid unto him, and them, our said officers, all such fees and arrearages of fees, as have been and are respectively due unto them, in regard of such their service and attendance as aforesaid, according to an ancient table thereof made, and yet remaining upon record in the registry of our vicar general; or in default thereof, the names, and qualities of such refusers to be particularly certified unto us, that we may therein take such further course, as reason and justice shall require. The king's injunctions sent by the duke of Monmouth to the university of Cambridge about the clergy's wearing their hair and perukes, and about preaching without book. Ex autographo apud episc. Assaven.

Mr. vicechancellor and gentlemen.

HIS majesty having taken notice of the liberty, which several persons in holy orders have taken to wear their own hair and perukes of an unusual and unbecoming length, hath commanded me to let you know, that he is much displeased therewith, and strictly enjoins that all such, who do profess the study of divinity, do for the future wear their hair in a manner more suitable to the gravity and sobriety of their profession, and that distinction, which was always maintained between the habits of men devoted to the ministry, and other sons.

And whereas his majesty is informed, that the practice of reading sermons is generally taken up by the preachers before the university, and therefore sometime continued even before himself; his majesty hath commanded me to signify to you his pleasure is, that the said preaching, which took beginning with the disorders of the late times, be wholly laid aside, and that the aforesaid preachers deliver their sermons both in Latin and English by memory or without book, as being a way of preaching his majesty judges most agreeing to the use of all foreign churches, to the custom of the university heretofore, and the nature and intendment of that holy exercise.

And that his majesty's commands in the premises may be duly regarded and observed, his royal pleasure is, that the names of all such ecclesiastical persons, as shall wear their hair as heretofore, in an unfitting imitation of laymens fashions, or that shall continue the present supine, and slothful way of preaching, be from time to time signified unto me by the vicechancellor of the university for the time being, on pain of his majesty's displeasure.

Having in obedience to his majesty's will, signified thus much unto you, I shall not doubt of your ready compliance; and the rather because his majesty intends to send the same injunctions junctions to the university of Oxford very speedily, whom I am assured you will equal as in all other excellencies, so in obedience to the king; especially when his commands tend so much to the honour and glory of that renown'd uni-

Orders and resolutions taken by the king in council against papists and conventicles
Feb. 3. M.DC.LXXIV.

His majesty was pleased this day in council to declare, that he found it necessary that the laws, which were made for the safety and preservation both of church and state, should be put in execution with more care and diligence, than of late they have been; and that having long since commanded his judges to do their duty herein, he had also lately advised with several of his bishops, and upon due consideration of the whole matter, had resolved, and doth therefore order,

I. That the convictions of popish recusants be encouraged, quickned, and made effectual; and to this end his majesty's attorney general is required forthwith to inform himself, what convictions are already certified into the Exchequer, and to cause speedy process to issue upon them. And it is further ordered, that letters be forthwith sent from this board, directed to the justices of peace within the several counties, cities, and places of this realm, thereby requiring them with all speed to certify into the Exchequer such convictions as are perfected, and to certify his majesty's attorney general what convictions of popish recusants are preparing, and what hinders the compleating of them, and whether any persons of quality, who are suspected to be popish recusants, have been omitted to be presented, and what obstructions they find therein. And his majesty declares, that upon due information thereof, care shall be taken that they may be speedily removed.

II. And his majesty doth declare his further pleasure, and doth strictly charge and command, that no person or persons, of what quality and condition soever he be, do presume to say mass in any part of this kingdom, the chapels of the queen's majesty, and the chapels of the foreign ministers only excepted. And to prevent all extraordinary resort to those chapels, it is further ordered and declared, that if any person or persons shall presume to repair to those chapels, not being a menial servant of her majesty, or of such foreign ministers, and shall there willingly hear mass, every such offender shall suffer the forfeiture of one hundred marks, and one year's imprisonment, as by law is provided. And for the better discovery of such offenders, his majesty's third part of the said penalty shall be also given to the informer for his further reward and encouragement. And moreover all officers are required to apprehend such offenders, and to cause them to be examined and proceeded with according to law.

And all mayors, justices of peace, and other officers and ministers, to whom it shall and may appertain, are also ordered and required to cause diligent search and enquiry to be made into all other places, where they shall hear or suspect that mass is privately celebrated, to the end that the offenders may be brought to condign punishment.

III. And his majesty doth command and forewarn all persons born within any of his majesty's dominions, who have taken orders by any authority derived from the church or see of Rome, and are now remaining in any part of this kingdom, and out of prison (except Mr. John Huddleston, who was eminently serviceable to his majesty in his escape from Worcester) that they depart the realm before the five and twentieth day of March next ensuing, and that they presume not to return again, nor any other such priests to come over after that day; his majesty declaring, that he will cause the utmost penalties of the law to be inflicted upon the contemners of this his command; and Mr. attorney general is required to prepare a proclamation accordingly. And his majesty doth also command all such priests, who have taken such orders, and do pretend a privilege to attend upon the queen's majesty, or upon foreign ministers, to depart this kingdom likewise by the time before appointed, and to leave the court within fourteen days after notice of this order, whereof publication shall be forthwith made, by causing the same to be affixed upon the court gates, and in such other places as shall be thought convenient.

IV. And his majesty doth further forewarn and command all his subjects, that they presume not to send any person or persons to be educated in any popish colleges, or seminaries beyond the seas; and if any notice or information can be given of any, that have been already sent, and are there still remaining; his majesty declares, that he will give order for a privy seal to be directed unto them, and thereby to command them to return home with all speed, as they will answer the contrary at their peril. And if the parents or guardians of such person so educated abroad be living and within his majesty's dominions, his majesty will also command such parents or guardians to send for their children or pupils home, and cause them to return, upon peril of suffering the utmost penalties of the law in that case provided.

V. And if any of his majesty's natural born subjects, subjects, being papist, or reputed papist, shall presume to come into his majesty's palace at Whitehall, or St. James's, or into any other place, where his majesty's court shall be, contrary to his majesty's late prohibition; his majesty declares, that he will punish that contempt with exemplary severity, according to the quality of the offender, who, if he be a peer of the realm, shall be sent to the tower, if under that quality, to some other prison.

VI. And his majesty doth further order and appoint, that effectual care be taken for the suppression of conventicles: and whereas divers pretend licences from his majesty, and would support themselves by that pretence, his majesty declares, that all his licences were long since recalled, and that no conventicle hath any authority, allowance, or encouragement from his majesty.

Reverendissime et illustrissime domine, amice colendissime.

CUM nonnulli idonei homines rogatu meo susceperint negotium investigandi privilegia antiqua celeberrimae et primatialis in Anglia Cant. ecclesiae, audaciam sumpsi compellendi desuper illustrissimam et reverendissimam dominationem vestram. Responsio Gilberti, archiepiscopi Cantuar.

Reverendissime et illustrissime domine.

QUAMPRIMUM de privilegiis antiquis ecclesiae Cant. praesertim legationis natae, a reverendissima et illustrissima dominatione vestra quaesitum fuerat, idoneis quibusdam in mandatis statim dedimus, ut archiva et vetustiora sedis nostrae monumenta consulerent. Verum cum ejusmodi fere omnia non tantum injuria temporum, sed etiam malitia nequiorum hominum aut consumpta aut distracta non amplius compareant, difficilior, et eo tardior erat inquisitio. Responsione autem nostra utcumque demum parata, reverendissimae et illustrissimae dominationis vestrae literarum lator spem nostram longius fefellit. Ille namque diutius expectatus, hucusque non rediit; adeo ut de alio quaerendo necessario nobis prospiciendum foret. Haec itaque in mora cum fuerint, ne existimet reverendissima et illustrissima dominatio nos aut amicitiae aut benevolentiae officio interim defuisse, aut defuturos fore, rogamus et obtestamur. Licet enim ignoti (ut illustrissimae et reverendissimae dominationis vestrae verbis utamur) tantoque terrarum et maris spatio divisi agamus, in religionis insuper negotio non prorsus consentientes (quod unice dolendum, cuique calamitati ut Deus suo tempore finem aliquando det, ipsum quotidie veneramur) eadem tamen conjuncti vivimus humanitate, affectuque (uti speramus) eo sumus, qui inter christianos omnes, praesules praesertim, esse debet fraternus. Accipiat ergo, si placeat, illustrissima et reverendissima dominatio vestra, hanc quae sequitur notitiam sedis nostrae Cant. ejusque privilegiorum.

Quamquam ecclesia Britannica ab apostolis ipsis, aut saltem viris apostolicis sub primis evangelii initiis fundata, per plura exinde secula nullae peregrinae jurisdictioni subdita certissimo praescriptionis jure, necnon synodi Nicenae et Ephesinae decretis ἀντικεφαλίαν sibi vendicet, unde ejusdem primates pari potestate dioecesi suae praeerant, qua alii quicumque, sive orientis, sive occidentis, patriarchae fruebantur; tamen siquidem de privilegiis a Romana ecclesia sedi Cant. concessis impraesentiarum unice requiratur, et speciatim quibus auspiciis arch. Cant. legatus natus audiat, dicendum videtur: Jus illud a Gregorii Magni temporibus repetitum; epistola vero Formosi papae (quae passim extat) agnitum esse et confirmatum. Is enim ad Angliae episcopos scribens, haec habet: “Qui inter vos principatum tenere debeat; quaeve sedes episcopalis caeteris praepolleat, habeatque primatum abolitaneis temporibus, notissimum est. Nam ut ex scriptis beati Gregorii ejusque successorum tenemus, in Doroberniae civitate metropolim sedemque primam episcopalem constat esse regni Anglorum; cui venerabilis frater noster Pleimundus nunc praeesse dignoscitur; cujus honorem dignitatis nos nullo pacto imminui permittimus, sed ei vices apostolicas per omnia gerere mandamus. Et sicut Gregorius papa primo gentis vestrae episcopo Augustino, omnes Anglorum episcopos esse subjectos constituit, sic nos praenominato fratri Doroberniae five Canterberiae archiepiscopo, ejusque successoribus legitimis, eandem dignitatem confirmamus; mandantes, et auctoritate Dei, et beati Petri apostolorum principis praecipientes, ut ejus canonicis dispositionibus omnes obediant; et nullus eorum, quae sibi suisque successoribus apostolica auctoritate concessa sunt, violator existat. Si autem quivis hominum contra haec aliquando niti, ac imminuere ista tentaverit, sciat se proculdubio multandum fore gravi anathemate, et a corpore sanctae ecclesiae, quam inquietare molitur, perpetuo, nisi resipuerit, separandum.” Hinc factum, ut cum postea legati in Angliam Romae mitterentur, Henricus I. Angliae rex, una cum episcopis se opposuerit; “Provocans (ut verbis Baronii utar in anno M.C.XVII.) ad antiqua privilegia, quod scil. The archbishop of Canterbury's letter to the bishop of London concerning the number of dissenters.

I HAVE thought fit for some reasons, me thereunto especially moving, to pray and require your lordship (and by you the rest of my brethren the bishops) that forthwith, upon receipt hereof, you send letters both to your archdeacons and commissaries within your respective dioceses, willing and straitly charging them, that as well by conference with the ministers, as churchwardens of each parish within their jurisdiction, or such others as may best give them the most punctual satisfaction, they particularly inform themselves as to the several points and queries hereafter mentioned; and that having gain'd the most certain information therein that they are able, they presently after their next visitation of Easter ended, transmit their account thereupon in writing, unto their several dioceses, and they unto your lordship, to be communicated to me with your first convenience. And to the end that they may be the more circumspect and sudden in the performance of this business, I think it not unnecessary that there be some advertisement intimated unto them, that the matters enquired of, may nearly concern them in the exercise of their jurisdictions. So not doubting of your lordship's care in the premisses, etc.

The enquiries are these that follow:

First, What number of persons, or at least families, are by common account and estimation inhabiting within each parish subject unto them?

Secondly, What number of popish recusants, or such as are suspected for recusancy, are there among such the inhabitants aforesaid?

Thirdly, What number of other dissenters are resident in such parishes, which either obstinately refuse, or wholly absent themselves from the communion of the church of England at such times, as by law they are required?

It cannot be unknown unto your lordship, and the rest of my brethren the bishops, by what artifices and insinuations the established doctrine and discipline of the church of England hath been both heretofore and now lately impugned; and amongst other specious pretences, the consideration of the number of dissenters hath been an argument much insisted upon, as if their party were either too formidable to be suppressed, or that the combination of the several factions being infinite, it were but lost labour to reinforce the censure and execution of the laws provided against them. For manifestation of which groundless and untrue assertion, and other important reasons, me thereunto moving, I have thought fit at this time to pray and require your lordship. . . . And so soon as I shall receive satisfaction as to the particulars, I shall be able from the fact itself to unmask and lay open the prejudices and misapprehensions, wherewith some unwary persons are abused by the designs of our adversaries. I shall I hope justify the diligence, zeal, and integrity of both myself and brethren, in the management of the charge committed to our care. And lastly, having done this, I do not doubt but the pretended increase of schism and superstition will no longer be imputed to our easiness or inadvertency, and the just number of dissenters being known, their suppression will be a work very practicable, if they be not emboldened by the countenance of other authority than ourselves.

Resolutions taken by his majesty for the better regulating the choice of chaplains for the future service of his ships at sea. Ex MS. penes Thom. episc. Assaven.

CHARLES R.

I. THAT no person whatsoever shall be for the future admitted on board any of his majesty's ships, in the quality of chaplain to the said ship, or be held capable of receiving either the pay of ordinary seamen, allowed by his majesty, or the contribution of four pence per man a month, ordinarily granted by the seamen towards the maintenance of the person performing the duty of chaplain on board any of his majesty's said ships, unless the said person shall be first appointed to the said office of chaplain by his majesty's special warrant on that behalf, and that warrant produced as well to the commander of the said ship, as the comptroller of his majesty's navy, for the justifying the former in his entertaining, and the latter in his paying the said person in the aforesaid quality of chaplain.

II. That no person shall be deemed capable of his majesty's said warrant for the constituting him chaplain to any of his ships, who hath not first delivered to the secretary of the admiralty, for his majesty's satisfaction, a written certificate under the hand of his grace the archbishop of Canterbury, or the lord bishop of London, for the time being, testifying their being satisfied in the piety, learning, conformity, and other the qualifications of the said person fitting him for the said charge.

III. That as any of his majesty's ships shall be appointed for the sea, the secretary of the admiralty shall timely signify to his grace the said archbishop, or the lord bishop of London the names and rates of the said ships, the numbers of men to be borne on them, and the names of their respective commanders, in order to their lordship's proposing to his majesty fitting persons for taking charge of the said ships as chaplains, and their giving to the said persons the certificates before required; provided always, that where the commander of any of the said ships shall make it his humble suit to his majesty, that a particular person, who hath been at any time, within the space of three years before, approved of and certified for, by either of the lords the bishops before named, may be appointed to the place of chaplain on board his said ship; his majesty is pleased to resolve, and doth hereby accordingly declare his pleasure, that in that case the said commander shall be gratified in the choice of this chaplain, and upon the commanders said request, and evidence brought of the said person's having been so before approved of by the said lords the bishops, his royal warrant shall be issued for the constituting the said person chaplain of the said ship, without any new approval or certificate to be obtained from either of the said lords the bishops.

And all persons concerned in these his majesty's resolutions are hereby required in their several places strictly to conform themselves hereto. Dated at Whitehall this 15th day of December, M.DC.LXXVII.

Directions from the archbishop of Cant. to his suffragans concerning testimonials to be granted unto candidates for holy orders, dated from Lambeth house Aug. 23. M.DC.LXXVIII.

"SALUTEM in Christo." My lord. Whereas the easy and promiscuous granting of letters testimonial (which is in itself a sacred thing, and in the first intention of great and very weighty importance) is by the lapse of time and the corruption which by insensible degrees is crept into the best institutions, come to be both in the universities and elsewhere abroad in the dioceses a matter of meer formality, and piece of common civility, scarce denied to any that asked it, and many times, upon the credit of the first subscriber, attested by the rest, who have otherwise no knowledge of the person so adorned; or else, where more conscience is made of bearing false witness even for a neighbour, is done so perfunctorily, and in so low and dilute terms, as ought to signify nothing at all to the great end, for which 'tis designed to serve; and yet is sometimes with a like easiness and remissness, received and proceeded upon; whereby great mischiefs in the church and scandals daily ensue, persons altogether undeserving, or at least not duly qualified, being too often, upon the credit of such papers, admitted into holy orders, and in consequence thereupon thrusting themselves into employments of high trust, and dignity, and advantage in the church, and by their numerous instructions preventing and excluding others of greater modesty and merit: concerning all which, you lordship cannot but remember, how many and how great complaints we meet with both from our brethren the bishops, and others, during the late session of parliament, and what expedients for remedy thereof were then under debate and consideration among us. Now, as the result of those counsels, and for the effectual redressing of those inconveniences, and preventing the like for the future (though it would be abundantly sufficient to call all persons concerned, on both sides, to the serious perusal of, and exact compliance with those excellent constitutions and canons ecclesiastical, made in the year M.DC.III. which have most wisely and fully provided to obviate all these evils) yet because in the modern practice they seem not duly to be attended to, it is thought fit and necessary again to limit and regulate the grant, the matter, and the form of testimonials as followeth: "Videlicet,"

That no letters testimonial be granted only upon the credit of others, or out of a judgment of charity, which believes all things, and hopes all things, but from immediate and personal knowledge, and that own'd and express'd in the letters themselves.

That (as to the form of these letters) every such testimonial have the date, both as to time and place, expressly mentioned in the body of it, before it be subscribed by any, and pass also (as the canon requires, under our hand and seal; those namely from the universities, under the common seal of their respective colleges, attested by the subscription of the master, head, or principal person there, and those from other places, under the hands and seals of three priests at the least, of known integrity, gravity, and prudence, who are of the voisinage, where the person testified of, resides, or have otherwise known his life and behaviour by the space of three years next before the date of the said letters.

And as to the matter of them, that they particularly express the present condition of the person, in whose behalf the testimony is given; his standing and degree in the university; his place of present abode, and course of life; his end and design, for which he would make use of the said testimonial; whether for obtaining the order of deacon or priest, or the employment of a parson, vicar, curate, or schoolmaster, and that the subscribers know him to be worthy, and in regard of learning, prudence, and holy life, duly qualified for the same respectively: and if he desires holy orders, his age too, if the subscribers know it, or else that they admonish him to bring it otherwise credibly and sufficiently attested. Lastly, if such testimonial be to be made use of in another diocese, than that, where it is given; that it be by no means received without the letters dimissory of the bishop, or other ordinary of the place, attesting in writing the ability, honesty, and good conversation of the person commended, in the place from whence he came.

My lord, this is (I think) the sum of what was discoursed and resolved between us, when we were last together. I therefore desire you, with all convenient speed, to cause copies thereof to be transcribed and transmitted to the several bishops of this province, and vicechancellors of the universities respectively, and to be by them communicated (as soon as may well be) to as many as are herein concerned, that they may not be disappointed by coming furnished with such testimonials only, as will not, nor ought to be received to such great purposes, for which they are so often made use of. Commending your lordship and your great affairs to the blessing of God almighty, I remain, assured loving brother,

My lord, your lordship's

The king's order about fees at consecration of bishops. Ex MS. penes Thom. episc. Aflaven.

By the king's most excellent majesty in council.

WHEREAS formerly it hath been a custom, upon the consecration of all bishops, for them to make presents of gloves to all persons that came to their consecration dinners, and others, which amounted to a great sum of money, and was an unnecessary burden to them; his majesty this day taking the same into his consideration, was thereupon pleased to order in council, that for the future there shall be no such distributions of gloves; but that in lieu thereof, each lord bishop before his consecration shall hereafter pay the sum of 50. l.

to be employed towards the rebuilding of the cathedral church of St. Paul. And it was farther ordered, that his grace the lord archbishop of Canterbury do not proceed to consecrate any bishop, before he hath paid the said sum of 50. l. for the use aforesaid, and produced a receipt for the same from the treasurer of the mony for rebuilding the said church, for the time being; which as it is a pious work, so will it be some ease to the respective bishops, in regard the expence of gloves did usually far exceed that sum.

PHIL. LLOYD.

A proclamation for the confinement of popish recusants within five miles of their respective dwellings.

CHARLES R.

THE king's most excellent majesty having been informed of the dangerous and wicked plots and designs of popish recusants against his majesty's royal person and government, and tending to the subversion of the true protestant religion established by law within this his realm, doth (with the advice of his privy council) by this his royal proclamation strictly charge and command all persons being above the age of sixteen years, born within any of his majesty's realms or dominions, or made denizens, who being popish recusants, have been, or shall be thereof lawfully convicted, that they and every of them do (according to the statutes in that behalf made) repair to their respective places of abode; and if they have no places of abode, then to the places, where the father or mother of such respective persons is, or shall be then dwelling, and do not at any time thereafter remove or pass above five miles from thence, upon pain that the offenders shall lose and forfeit to the king's majesty all their goods and chattels, and also all their lands, and tenements, rents, annuities, and hereditaments, during their respective natural lives. And because many popish recusants, who are notoriously known, or reputed to be such, have notwithstanding by the connivance or negligence of those, by whom they ought to have been prosecuted, escaped conviction, and yet may be (by their concurrence and contrivances) as dangerous to his majesty, his government, and the true protestant religion, as those who are actually convicted; his majesty doth hereby further straitly charge and command all his judges, justices, magistrates, ministers, and officers, that if any popish recusant, or person reputed so to be, though not convicted, being above the age of eighteen years, shall not repair to his or her place of abode, and there continue without removing or passing above five miles from thence, that then such popish recusants, or persons reputed to be so respectively, shall be prosecuted and brought to punishment as well by tendering unto them the oaths of allegiance and supremacy, and taking advantage of their refusal thereof, as by putting in execution the severest laws, which are now in force against them. And his majesty doth hereby further signify to all his loving subjects, that upon certificate made to the lord chancellor of England by any justice of the peace, that there are any popish recusants, or persons reputed to be such, who do not give their obedience to this his majesty's royal proclamation, together with the names of such offenders, his majesty hath commanded the said lord chancellor to issue forth respective commissions under the great seal of England to the justices of the peace of the several counties, cities, and liberties, from which such certificates shall come, to require and authorize them, or any two of them respectively to tender and administer the said oaths to the said offenders accordingly. Provided that nothing herein contained, shall be construed to command any popish recusant convicted, or any other popish recusant, or person reputed to be such, to come within ten miles of the cities of London or Westminster, or to require any of the persons aforesaid to repair to their places of abode, or other the places aforesaid, who are restrained by imprisonment, or disabled by such sickness, as they shall not be able to travel without imminent danger of life, during the respective times of such imprisonment or disability; or to confine any such persons within the said space of five miles from the places aforesaid, who shall be (according to the laws and statutes of this realm) allowed or licensed to travel, or remove from thence; so that Orders given the sixth of December, M.DC.LXXVIII. by the king in council against the papists.

WHEREAS his majesty and this board are informed of the bold and open repair made to several places, and especially to her majesty's chapel at Somerset house, and the houses of foreign ambassadors, agents, and other public ministers, for the hearing of mass, and other worship and service of the Romish church; and that the said ambassadors, agents, and ministers do permit and suffer both daily masses to be said, and other worship and service to be performed in their houses in a public manner by English, Scottish, and Irish priests, and also sermons in English to be preached in their said houses and chapels, which the laws and statutes of this kingdom do expressly forbid his subjects to frequent or do; his majesty taking the same into serious consideration, and being sensible thereof, as a matter highly tending to the violation of the laws of the realm, and the scandal of religion and government, and breach of good order, and in his princely wisdom weighing the consequence thereof, is resolved to take strict order for the stopping this evil, before it spread any further.

His majesty therefore, by the advice of his council, doth hereby forbid any of his said subjects hereafter to offend in the like kind at their utmost perils; and straitly commands, that no others presume to resort to her majesty's chapel, but such as are her majesty's allowed servants. And to the end this provision and order may be more effectual, his majesty doth command, that forasmuch as concerneth the repair to the houses of foreign ambassadors, agents, and ministers, at the time of mass, or other Romish worship or service, some messengers of the chamber, or other officers or persons, fit for that service, be appointed to watch at the several passages to their houses, and without entering into the said houses, or invading the freedom and privileges belonging unto them, observe such persons as go thither at such times, without stopping or questioning any as they go thither, but at their coming from thence, they are to apprehend and bring the said persons before some justice or justices of the peace, to have the oaths of allegiance and supremacy tendered to them; and such as they cannot apprehend, to bring their names to this board. And that the ambassadors and other foreign ministers may have no cause to complain for this proceeding, as if there were any intention to wrong or disrespect them, his majesty doth likewise order, for the preventing of any such mistaken and sinister interpretation, that his principal secretaries of state (according unto his majesty's express commands now given unto them) should be hereby authorized and required forthwith to certify the said ambassadors, agents, and other foreign ministers his majesty's pleasure concerning the same; and that as his majesty is careful not to have any of the just privileges and immunities of the said ambassadors, agents, or ministers to be in any degree infringed or violated, so in the aforesaid particulars of permitting masses or other service to be said by any of the said priests, or sermons to be preach'd in English in their houses or chapels (things not heard of in the times of his majesty's predecessors) or in suffering his subjects to resort unto them, his majesty is no less careful of preserving his laws, and continuing his subjects in their obedience to the same; and doth therefore expect the said ambassadors, agents, and ministers compliance accordingly. And hereof his majesty thinks fit, that notice shall be first given to the said public ministers (the rather to testify his respects unto them) before the stricter course his majesty hath resolved be taken with his own subjects, by a vigorous prosecution and infliction of penalties and punishments for the preventing and repressing the like hereafter.

And it is likewise ordered, that the messengers of the chamber, or others to be employed in the service before specified, shall be appointed, and receive their charge from the lord archbishop of Canterbury, the lord bishop of London, and the said secretaries, or some of them, who are to take special care to see this put in due and effectual execution.

Order of council concerning clergymen that serve abroad. April. 25. at the court of Whitehall. Ex MS. penes Tho. episc. Aflaven.

By the king's most excellent majesty in council.

HIS majesty taking into consideration the great encouragement, that it would be to persons in holy orders to serve him in their function either at sea, or in his foreign plantations, if they might be permitted to hold their fellowships or benefices, during their absence; was this day in council pleased to order, and it is hereby accordingly ordered, that all such persons in holy orders, that now are abroad, or hereafter shall go to sea, or to any of his majesty's plantations, or with ambassadors or public ministers beyond sea, shall (during such their absence in their said employments) have and enjoy the full profits of their fellowships or benefices, and at their return home, re-enter upon them again; whereof all persons concerned are to take notice, and govern themselves accordingly.

A Proclamation for the more effectual discovery of Jesuits, and of all estates belonging to them, or to any popish priests, college, seminary, or other popish and superstitious foundation.

CHARLES R.

WHEREAS his majesty was graciously pleased by his royal proclamation dated the twentieth day of November, M.DC.LXXVIII. to promise a reward of twenty pounds to any person, who should discover and apprehend any popish priest or Jesuit, as in the said proclamation is express'd, whereof his majesty hath found good effect, and hopes, more will follow by the due putting thereof in execution; however his majesty having been lately more fully informed of the pernicious practices of the Jesuits, and that divers of them do still lie lurking and disguised within this his majesty's realm of England, contriving and carrying on their traitorous plots and designs against his majesty's person, and government, and the protestant religion by law established; his majesty is therefore graciously pleased by this his royal proclamation to add to the reward formerly promised, and doth hereby promise to him or them, who shall discover and apprehend, or cause to be apprehended any Jesuit, the sum of eighty pounds besides the former twenty pounds, in all one hundred pounds, which shall be immediately paid upon the conviction of such Jesuit. And his majesty doth hereby appoint the lords commissioners of his treasury, or the lord high treasurer of England to pay the same accordingly without delay or abatement. And his majesty is further graciously pleased to declare, that whosoever shall discover any estate, real or personal, belonging to any Jesuit or Jesuits, or college, or seminary of Jesuits, or to any popish priest, college, seminary, convent, or nunnery of popish and superstitious foundation (except the same be issuing out, or part of the estate and estates of Sir Thomas Preston, Sir John Warner, two thousand five hundred pounds charge upon the estate of Henry Nevil esquire, and fifteen hundred pounds in the hands of Augustine Hungate, which are lately discovered, and now under examination before the lords commissioners of the treasury) shall have one full moiety thereof. And his majesty doth hereby straitly charge and command all his judges, justices of the peace, magistrates, officers, and other loyal subjects whatsoever within his realm of England, dominion of Wales, and town of Berwick upon Tweed, that they use their utmost care and endeavours to discover, apprehend, and commit, or cause to be committed to safe custody, in order to their trial, all Jesuits and priests, as by his said former proclamation is commanded. Given at our court at Whitehall the twelfth day of November, M.DC.LXXIX. in the one and thirtieth year of our reign.

A proclamation commanding all papists, or reputed papists forthwith to depart from the cities of London and Westminster, and from within ten miles of the same.*

CHARLES R.

WHEREAS the papists, notwithstanding several acts of parliament to the contrary, do presume upon the expiration of his majesty's royal proclamation, bearing date the fourth of May last, commanding their departure and absence for six months, to repair at this present to the cities of London and Westminster in great numbers; the king's most excellent majesty is therefore graciously pleased to revive and continue his said former proclamation, and doth by this his royal proclamation strictly charge and command all papists, and persons reputed papists, and such as have been so within six months last past, that they and every of them do forthwith depart from the said cities of London and Westminster, and from all places within the distance of ten miles of the same; and that they or any of them do not presume to return again, upon any pretence whatsoever, within the space of six months from the date of these presents. And lest they or any of them should do the contrary upon pretence of any licence formerly granted by any of the lords or others of his majesty's privy council, his majesty doth hereby declare, that he hath caused all licences of that nature formerly granted by any of the lords or others of his privy council, to be revoked. And his majesty doth hereby further straitly charge and command all and every justices of the peace, constables, and others his officers and ministers of justice within his said cities, or either of them, and within ten miles of the same, that they do make strict search and enquiry for, and with all vigour proceed against all and every person and persons, who shall be found within the said cities of London and Westminster, and within ten miles of the same, during the said space of six months, contrary to the effect of any of the statutes, and the purport of this his majesty's proclamation. Provided that nothing herein contained shall be construed to extend to any person or persons, who being formerly of the popish religion have fully conformed to the protestant religion, in such manner, as is by law appointed, nor from the time of their respective conformity, to such, as shall hereafter in like manner conform themselves. A proclamation for the more effectual suppressing of popery.

CHARLES R.

HIS majesty being sensible of the great increase of popery within this kingdom of late years, by reason of the neglect of putting in execution those good laws, which were provided for suppressing the same, whereby Jesuits and priests have been emboldened to resort hither from parts beyond the seas, in great numbers, and they and others have openly practised to assert the most pernicious and damnable principles of that religion, and to persuade and withdraw divers of his majesty's good subjects from their obedience to his majesty, and to reconcile them to the pope and see of Rome; and that, notwithstanding the good laws made to restrain the same, it hath been the general practice of the papists to send their children and relations into foreign parts, to be bred up in popery; by which bold and wicked practices, and the impunity that hath followed thereupon, his majesty apprehends that many of his good subjects may be ignorant of the said laws; and therefore hath thought fit by this his royal proclamation, by the advice of his privy council, to publish and make known the principal and most penal of the said laws, as well to prevent and hinder any of his loving subjects from being misled into any the said offences through ignorance, as to guide and encourage all persons knowing of any such offences, to a legal prosecution of the same. The substance of the said laws is as followeth.

By writing, printing, preaching, teaching, deed, or act, or by any speech to set forth, maintain, or defend the authority or jurisdiction or power of the bishop of Rome, or his see, heretofore claimed, used, or usurped within this realm, or to attribute any such manner of jurisdiction, authority or preeminence, to the said see of Rome, or to any bishop of the said see for the time being, or to aid, assist, and comfort any in doing the same: the first offence is "praemunire," the second offence is made high treason by v. Eliz. cap. I.

To receive, relieve, comfort, aid, or maintain any Jesuit, seminary priest, or other priest, deacon, or religious or ecclesiastical person made by any authority, power, or jurisdiction derived, challenged, or pretended from the see of Rome, being at liberty, or out of hold, knowing him to be such, is felony without benefit of clergy xxvii. Eliz. cap. II.

By the statute xxiii. Eliz. I. it is high treason to withdraw any of the king's subjects to the Romish religion, to the intent to withdraw them from their natural obedience to the king; and it is high treason in the persons so willingly withdrawn; and all aiders, abettors, and concealers thereof knowingly are guilty of misprision of treason.

To put in practice to absolve, persuade, or withdraw any of his majesty's subjects of this realm of England from their natural obedience to his majesty, or to reconcile them to the pope or see of Rome, or to move them to promise obedience to any pretended authority to the see of Rome, or to any other prince, state, or potentate, is high treason by the statute of 3 Jac. cap. 4. whether done upon the seas, or beyond the seas, or in any other place within his majesty's dominions.

To be willingly absolved or withdrawn in manner aforesaid, or to be willingly reconciled, or to promise obedience to any such pretended authority, prince, state, or potentate, or to procure, counsel, aid, or maintain such offenders, knowing the same, is likewise made high treason by the same statute.

For any person under the obedience of the king to pass or go, or to convey, or send, or cause to be sent or conveyed any child or other person out of any of the king's dominions into any the parts beyond the seas out of the king's obedience, to the intent and purpose to enter into, or be resident or trained up in any priory, abby, nunnery, popish university, college or school or house of Jesuits, priests, or in any private popish family, and to be there by any Jesuit, seminary priest, friar, monk, or other popish person instructed, persuaded, or strengthened in the popish religion, in any sort to profess the same;

Or to convey or send, or cause to be conveyed or sent by the hands or means of any person whatsoever any sum or sums of money, or other thing, towards the maintenance of any child, or other person, gone or sent, or to go or be sent, and trained and instructed, as aforesaid; or under the name or colour of any charity, benevolence, or alms, towards the relief of any priory, abby, nunnery, college, school, or any religious house whatsoever;

All persons offending, being convicted, are disabled to use any action, bill, plaint, or information in course of law, or to prosecute any suit in any court of equity, or to be committee of any ward, or executor or administrator to any person, or capable of any legacy or deed of gift, and forfeit all goods and chattels, and all lands, tenements, hereditaments, rents, annuities, offices, and estates of freehold, for and during their natural lives, by the statute of 3 Car. cap. 2.

For the more precise knowledge of which laws, and all other laws made for suppressing the growth of popery, in case his majesty's loving subjects cannot conveniently have the printed statutes, or cannot well interpret the same, they are to resort to any of his majesty's judges, justices of peace, or other magistrates, who are hereby required and commanded upon all occasions to guide and direct them therein. It being his majesty's resolution, that all the said laws shall be strictly put in execution.

And his majesty doth hereby further charge and command all and every his loving subjects, that in case any person shall by any discourse or disputation offer to maintain the pope's authority or jurisdiction, or to persuade or pervert them to the popish religion, or that they know any person guilty of any the offences aforesaid, or any other offences against the laws to depress popery, that they do immediately reveal the same to some magistrate, that the offenders may be prosecuted and punished according to their demerits.

And for the better encouraging of all persons that shall do their duty herein, his majesty will be graciously pleased by his letters of privy seal, to enable all his judges of his several courts at Westminster to reward all prosecutors upon the said laws, or other laws made for suppressing the growth of popery, according to their discretions, out of such forfeitures as shall from thence accrue to his majesty, over and above what is already by the said laws or any of them allotted to the informer. The archbishop of Canterbury's letter to the bishop of London about the augmentation of vicarages and curacies. Ex autographo penes Tho. episc. Assaven.

MY LORD.

THE patrimony of the church (especially in the smaller vicarages) hath been so long and so often by unjust customs and otherwise invaded, and by degrees daily more and more diminished; and the little that is left of the old endowment, so likely by the same arts to be swallowed up and lost, that we have reason to bless God, who at the king's happy restu-ration put it into his heart by his letters to command us, upon the renewing of church leases, to make farther reservations beyond the old rent for the augmenting the livelihood of poor vicars and curates; which being done, he also past a law for the confirming and perpetuating such augmentations. After which pious care and provision, it would be an indelible blot upon us, if we should be found to have finally neglected any act enjoined us by that statute, whereby the payment of those augmentations is directed to be evidenced and secured. And yet (with grief I write it) I think I have ground to fear, that what in obedience to that excellent law ought to have been done by us above three years since, in order to so pious a purpose, is not to this day by us all universally performed. And therefore I desire your lordship to communicate this my letter to all our brethren, the bishops of this province, by them to be transmitted to their respective deans, archdeacons, and prebendaries, strictly requiring them, upon receipt hereof, to have recourse to the said act of parliament, and forthwith, punctually, and effectually to perform what is therein enjoined them. And when that is done, to the end I may be assured that at last it is done, that every bishop, dean, and archdeacon send me a particular of all the augmentations respectively by them made or by their predecessor, with the names of the parishes, and the sum so reserved to the use of the incumbents, subscribed with their own hands; that so I may know what hath been done herein throughout the whole province. My lord, I doubt not of your lordship's readiness to promote so good a work; which with your good lordship and all your great affairs I commend to God's blessing, and remain

The archbishop of Canterbury's letter to the bishop of London concerning prosecution of Popish recusants, according to the canons of king James, LXV. LXVI. CXIV. Ex MS. penes Thom. episc. Aflaven.

His majesty having yesternight in council (to the great satisfaction and joy of us all) declared his royal will and pleasure, that all papists and popish recusants throughout the realm be forthwith vigorously prosecuted, and the laws of the land made against them effectually put in execution, to the end that by such wholesome severity (so seasonable and necessary at this time) they may by God's blessing upon his majesty's pious intentions, and the endeavours of his good subjects, in pursuance of the same, be either reduced into the bosom of the church, or driven out of the kingdom; I could not but immediately reflect how highly it concerns, and how well it may beseem me and my brethren, and all that are entrusted with the manage of any jurisdiction under us, to contribute all we can; and particularly what the laws of the land, and the canons of the church require of us, for the promoting and accomplishing (if it may be) so good a design, which tends so manifestly to the glory of God, the honour of his majesty's government, the prosperity and flourishing estate of that excellent religion, by the peculiar blessing of heaven established among us, and the quiet and tranquillity of the whole realm. I have therefore thought fit at present (till other and further methods may be debated and resolved on) to require all the bishops within this province, and every of them, and I do hereby require them, that those three canons against popish recusants, agreed upon in the synod begun at London A. D. M.DC.V. namely the LXVth, LXVIth, and the CXIVth be by them, and all that hold or exercise any jurisdiction under them, forthwith exactly observed and effectually put in ure; considering how acceptable a service it will be to almighty God to assist his majesty's pious purpose herein, and on the other side, how severe a punishment the last canon of the three appoints to those, who shall neglect their duty herein, which will (I doubt not) without partiality or connivance be inflicted on them. My lord, my request to your lordship is, that you will not only take notice of all this yourself, but cause a copy hereof, by you attested, to be transmitted to every bishop of this province, in the name of

The humble address of the university of Cambridge protesting their loyalty and their zeal for religion; presented to the king at Newmarket by Dr. Gower, vice-chancellor. Sept. 18. M.DC.LXXXI.

SIR.

WE your majesty's most faithful and obedient subjects of the university of Cambridge have long with the greatest and sincerest joy, beheld what we hope is in some measure the effect of our own prayers, the generous emulation of our fellow subjects, contending who should first and best express their duty and gratitude to their sovereign, at this time especially, when the seditious endeavours of unreasonable men have made it necessary to assert the ancient loyalty of the English nation, and make the world sensible, that we do not degenerate from those prime glories of our ancestors, love and allegiance to our prince.

That we were not earlier seen in those loyal crowds, but chose rather to stand by and applaud their honest and religious zeal, we humbly presume will not be imputed to the want of it in ourselves, either by your majesty; for it is at present the great honour of your university, not only to be steadfast and constant in our duty, but to be eminently so, and to suffer for it, as much as the calumnies and reproaches of factious and malicious men can inflict upon us: and that they have been hitherto able to do no more than vent the venom of their tongues; that they have not proceeded to plunder and sequestration, to violate our chapels, rifle our libraries, and empty our colleges, as once they did, next to the overruling providence of almighty God, is only due to the royal care and prudence of your most sacred majesty.

But no earthly power, we hope, no menaces or misery shall ever be able to make us renounce or forget our duty. We will still believe and maintain, that our princes derive not their title from the people, but from God; that to him only they are accountable; that it belongs not to subjects either to create or censure, but to honour and obey their sovereign, who comes to be so by a fundamental hereditary right of succession, which no religion, no law, no fault, or forfeiture can alter or diminish.

Nor will we ever abate of our well instructed zeal for our most holy religion, as it is professed and established in the church of England, that church that hath so long stood, and is still the envy and terror of her adversaries, as well as the beauty and strength of the reformation.

It is thus that we have learned our own, and thus we teach others their duty to God, and their prince; in the conscientious discharge of both which we have been so long protected and encouraged by your majesty's most just and gracious government, that we neither need nor desire any other declaration, than that experience for your assurance, and security for the future.

For all which grace and goodness we have nothing to return. We bring no names, and seals, no lives, and fortunes well capable of your majesty's service, or at all worthy of your acceptance. Nothing but hearts, and prayers, vows of a zealous and lasting loyalty; ourselves and studies, all that we can, or ever shall be able to perform, which we here most sincerely promise, and most humbly tender at your majesty's feet, a mean and worthless present; but such an one as we hope will not be disdained by the most gracious and indulgent prince, that heaven ever bestowed upon a people.

The king's warrant concerning ecclesiastical affairs. Ex MS. penes Tho. episc. Assaven.

CHARLES R.

HAVING taken into our serious consideration, how much it will conduce to the glory of God, our own honour, and the welfare both of church and universities, that the most worthy and deserving men be preferred and favoured according to their merit; and being satisfied that the lord archbishop of Canterbury, John earl of Radnor, George earl of Halifax, Lawrence viscount Hyde, the lord bishop of London, and Edward Seymour Esq; are proper and competent judges in such cases; we have thought fit, and do hereby declare our pleasure to be, that neither of our principal secretaries of state do at any time move us on the behalf of any person whatsoever, for any preferment in the church, or any favour, or dispensation in either of our universities, without having first communicated both the person and the thing, by him desired, unto the said lord archbishop of Canterbury now, and for the time being, John earl of Radnor, George earl of Halifax, Lawrence viscount Hyde, the lord bishop of London, now, and for the time being, and Edward Seymour Esq; and without having the opinion and attestation of them, or any four of them in the case. And if at any time we be moved in like manner by any other person whatsoever; our pleasure sure is, and we do hereby declare, that neither of our principal secretaries shall present any warrant unto us for our royal signature in such a case, until the said lord archbishop of Canterbury, John earl of Radnor, George earl of Halifax, Lawrence viscount Hyde, the lord bishop of London, and Edward Seymour Esq; have been acquainted therewith, and have given their opinion and attestation as aforesaid. And to the end that this our declaration may stand as a lasting and inviolable rule for the future; our further pleasure is, that the same be entered not only in both the offices of our said principal secretaries, but also in the signet office, there to remain as upon record. Given at our court at Windsor the 12th day of August, M.DC.LXXXI. in the xxxiii. year of our reign.

Certain orders treated and agreed upon by the right reverend father in God William, lord bishop of St. Asaph, and the whole clergy of his diocese, at a synod begun at St. Asaph the fourth day of July, anno Domini M.DC.LXXXIII. Ex MS. penes Tho. episc. Aflaven.

For the more decent and orderly administration of the holy offices, it is proposed, ordained, and agreed, as hereafter followeth.

I. Concerning the sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

I. Whensoever the sacrament of the Lord's supper is to be administered, the bread and the wine shall be viewed and approved on some week day before by the minister; and on the day of celebration, the bread shall be decently cut by the minister before prayers, and then a sufficient quantity of that wine, together with the bread so cut, prepared, and proportioned to the number of communicants, is to be set on the table, covered with a napkin, immediately before the prayer for the church militant, and nothing else to be suffered to stand on the table. And that always on the Lord's day before the minister shall give notice of the administration of the communion, and shall then require every one, that intends to receive, that he shall give in his name to the minister on some day in the week, before he comes to communicate. And if any one shall neglect to give in his name, and yet come to the communion, the minister shall take notice of every such person, and shall within ten days at farthest give in their names to the rural dean, to the end that they may be transmitted to the bishop.

II. That in case the minister shall see any reason to fear, that any of those, that have given in their names, hath not knowledge of those things that are necessary to be known, in order to the due performance of this duty, that then the minister shall take all possible care to instruct him, before he comes to receive. And to the end that none may want a general instruction, the minister shall, at least twice in the year, preach upon that subject of preparation for the sacrament, or shall read those two homilies in Welsh, entituled "Of Common Prayer, and sacraments, and of the worthy receiving of the sacrament."

III. That in case any person, who hath given public scandal to the church, and especially if he be under any presentment for such an offence, shall presume to offer himself to communicate, the minister, as soon as he comes to understand it, shall privately admonish him to abstain from the sacrament, till he hath cleared himself of that scandal. And if nevertheless such a scandalous person shall go in that presumption to communicate, the minister shall acquaint the churchwardens therewith, to the end that they may cause him to withdraw. And if either they shall neglect their duty, or the scandalous person shall not withdraw, yet he shall be past by in the administration. And that upon every such case that may happen, the minister shall give notice thereof to the bishop within ten days, as is required by the rubric before the communion office in the Common Prayer book.

II. Concerning baptism.

I. The baptismal font is to be kept always clean, and the water is to be renewed before every ministration of baptism.

II. Whensoever there is any private baptism, it shall be certified publickly according to the rubric of that office in the liturgy.

III. Concerning burial.

I. That at all burials, the minister, in his surplice, go no further to meet the corps, than the gate of the churchyard.

II. That no unbaptized person, no "felo de se," or excommunicate be buried with the office. And that no "felo de se" be interred in the church, or churchyard, in any case. And that no excommunicate person be interred there, without special leave of the bishop.

IV. Of excommunication and absolution.

That for the denouncing of persons to be excommunicated in any parish, letters, under the seal of the court, shall be directed to the minister of the parish, and thereupon the said minister shall make serious application in private to such person or persons, so to be denounced, and endeavour to persuade him or them, them, by their speedy submission to the ordinary, to prevent such denunciation; and for this work, the minister shall have one whole week's time allowed him: if he prevail, he is to suspend the denunciation, and to signify the reason to the court with all convenient speed; but in case his endeavour takes no effect, that then, with the usual certificate of the execution of such letters, he certify also such previous notice, and private admonition given to such person or persons, as aforesaid. And in case the minister believes that the party to be denounced, hath any particular prejudice against him, then he is speedily to inform the bishop thereof, to the end he may employ some other person to give that charitable admonition, as aforesaid.

For the denouncing any person excommunicate in any judicial cause, it shall suffice, that the minister publish the excommunication in the usual form, that being a sufficient ground for a "significavit," in case the person do not submit in forty days.

When any person is decreed to be excommunicate for any criminal cause, there shall be three Sundays allowed for his denunciation, as follows.

On the first Sunday there shall be read by the minister of the parish, after the Nicene creed, the first form prescribed, to desire the prayers of the congregation for that person to implore the grace and mercy of God to bring him to repentance.

On the second Sunday there shall be read by the minister of the parish the second form prescribed, which form shall also be read in the parish church of every parish adjoining to that, in which the said person liveth; then the minister shall ask if there be any present, who can shew any reasonable cause, why the denunciation ought to be farther delayed, than the next Lord's day? if any person answers and says, he hath such cause, the minister shall admonish him to shew it to the bishop within that week.

On the third Sunday, if there be no cause alleged to the contrary, there shall be read by the said minister, and also in every neighbouring parish, as aforesaid, and the church of the next market town, the third form, which is prescribed for denunciation, and then also there shall be a sermon preached in the said parish church by a minister, whom the bishop shall appoint for that purpose.

Whosoever is thus excommunicate, is to be denounced again once every quarter in his parish church, and the church of the next market town, and the neighbouring parish, and the cathedral.

When any clergyman is excommunicated, and does not submit within one month, he shall be denounced excommunicate in every church in the diocese, and a roll of the name of such, if any be, shall be published once a year in the cathedral, and every parish church and chapel within the diocese.

The minister of every parish is to keep a book by him both of excommunications and absolution, that he may know who are, and who are not in church communion among his parishioners. And if one that is under excommunication remove out of his parish, then if the remove be out of his diocese, the incumbent shall speedily give notice thereof to the bishop, informing him into what place the person is removed; but if he be gone into any other parish in this diocese, then the minister of that parish, in which he was denounced, shall certify the minister, into whose parish he is removed, who thereupon shall enter the name into his book, as an excommunicate person, and shall declare it publicly, after the Nicene creed, on the next Lord's day after the receipt of such certificate; and as oft as any one shall be denounced, there shall be read, immediately after, the roll of all those persons, that remain under excommunication in that parish.

That all absolutions in criminal causes, except where the bishop reserves them to himself, shall be decreed to be performed by the minister of the parish. And that where any penance is to be performed, the said minister is to have notice of it a fortnight before, which notice shall be given him by the penitent, or else the minister to give him no certificate of his performance. And that when the performing of a penance is fully certified to the court; a commission shall be directed to the minister of the parish to give absolution, as aforesaid.

The minister may absolve any one "in articulo mortis," in case he believes him to be truly penitent, without a special commission.

That as often as it shall appear to the minister, that any penitent hath any eminent change wrought in him, especially if it be such as may be of great and useful example to others in the like case, he shall, immediately after the Nicene creed, stir up the people to render due thanks to almighty God, in a form prescribed for that purpose, to be read after the Nicene creed, as aforesaid.

V. Concerning the observation of the Lord's day.

The ministers are to take all possible care, that the Lord's day be better observed than generally it is, and frequently to mind the wardens of their duty, both in hindering all profanations of the Lord's day, as much as in them lies, and also in presenting all offenders in this particular; and they shall present the wardens themselves, in case they shall nevertheless be found negligent in their duty.

VI. Concerning the admitting and swearing of wardens.

None shall be hereafter sworn churchwarden of any parish, before his due election be certified to the court by the incumbent of the parish, as well as by the wardens then being; and when there is a necessity of granting a commission for administering this oath, it shall be directed to the incumbent, or some other beneficed minister, because such are upon their oaths, having sworn canonical obedience to the bishop.

VII. Concerning the residence of the clergy.

That the clergy be mindful, that they are not only obliged to reside within their respective parishes, but to dwell in the houses, which belong to their churches respectively, unless they have leave from the bishop to do otherwise, which is not to be obtained but upon weighty reasons, and giving good security against dilapidations. And he that shall presume to do otherwise, without the bishop's leave first had, shall be incapable of it after.

That every incumbent be obliged to bring in to the registry of the bishop, before the 25th day of March next ensuing, a terrier, fairly written upon parchment, of his glebe, and a description of the buildings situate thereupon, with the numbers of bays and several dimensions of them, together with a perfect inventory of the books, the plate, vestments, and other utensils of the church; and if all tithes are not paid in kind, how many, and what the "modi decimandi" prescribed to; and which are anciently and beyond hopes of being destroyed, and which yet within memory, or at least disputable: what right the minister hath yet in the church, as to seats and burying places left unprejudiced by prescriptions of the laity; and how much of the repair of the church, and fence of the churchyard lies upon the rector or vicar, and how much upon the parish in general, and how much upon particular estates, and what are the shares: and what seats are erected within the chancel, and how anciently. This terrier with these enlargements is to be published in the church, and afterwards to be subscribed by the minister and churchwardens, and others of greatest note in the parish.

IX. Concerning gifts to charitable uses.

That the bishops receive at, or before the 25th day of March next a particular account from every parish by the procurement of their minister, what charitable gifts, bequests, or legacies in lands, mony, or goods are disposed, and continued, according to the intentions of the donors or legators; and what concealed, defalked, or perverted within memory. And that as oft as there is a collection upon any brief, there shall be entered by the hand of the respective minister in a book to be kept for that purpose, the day of the receipt of every such brief, the time when it was published, and the particular sums collected; and that upon payment of such collections, the respective churchwardens shall take receipts for the said payments, and shall file the same, and enter them in the said book, which book and receipts shall be kept in the church chest.

CAROL. II. 35.

The judgment and decree of the university of Oxford, passed in the convocation July 21. M.DC.LXXXIII. against certain pernicious books, and damnable doctrines, destructive to the sacred persons of princes, their state, and government, and of all human society.

ALTHOUGH the barbarous assassination lately enterprized against the person of his sacred majesty and his royal brother, engage all our thoughts to reflect with the utmost detestation and abhorrence on that execrable villainy, hateful to God and man, and pay our due acknowledgments to the divine providence, which by extraordinary methods brought it to pass, that the breath of our nostrils, the anointed of the Lord is not taken in the pit, which was prepared for him; and that under his shadow we continue to live, and enjoy the blessings of his government; yet notwithstanding we find it to be a necessary duty at this time to search into, and lay open those impious doctrines, which having of late been studiously disseminated, gave rise and growth to these nefarious attempts, and pass upon them our solemn public censure and decree of condemnation.

Therefore to the honour of the holy and undivided Trinity, the preservation of the catholic truth in the church, and that the king's majesty may be secured both from the attempts of open bloody enemies, and machinations of treacherous heretics and schismatics; we the vicechancellor, doctors, proctors, and masters, regent and not regent, met in convocation in the accustomed manner, time, and place on Saturday the one and twentieth day of July, in the year M.DC.LXXXIII. concerning certain propositions contained in divers books and writings, published in the English, and also the Latin tongues, repugnant to the holy scriptures, decrees of councils, writings of the fathers, the faith and profession of the primitive church, and also destructive of the kingly government, the safety of his majesty's person, the public peace, the laws of nature, and bonds of human society, by our unanimous assent and consent, have decreed and determined in manner and form following:

I. All civil authority is derived originally from the people.

II. There is a mutual compact, tacit or express, between a prince and his subjects; and that if he perform not his duty, they are discharged from theirs.

III. That

III. That if lawful governors become tyrants, or govern otherwise than by the laws of God and man they ought to do, they forfeit the right, they have unto their government. Lex rex. Buchan. de jure regni. Vindiciae contra tyrannos. Bellarm. de conciliis, de pontifice. Milton. Goodwin. Baxter's H. C.

IV. The sovereignty of England is in the three estates, viz. king, lords, and commons. The king has but a coordinate power, and may be over-ruled by the other two. Lex rex. Hutton, of a limited and mixed monarchy. Baxter's H. C. Polit. Catechif.

V. Birthright and proximity of blood give no title to rule or government, and it is lawful to preclude the next heir from his right and succession to the crown. Lex rex. Hunt's Postscript. Doleman's history of succession. Julian the apostate. Mene Tekel.

VI. It is lawful for subjects, without the consent, and against the command of the supreme magistrate, to enter into leagues, covenants, and associations for defence of themselves and their religion. Solemn league and covenant. Late association.

VII. Self preservation is the fundamental law of nature, and supercedes the obligation of all others, whensoever they stand in competition with it. Hobbes de cive. Leviathan.

VIII. The doctrine of the gospel, concerning patient suffering of injuries, is not inconsistent with violent resisting of the higher powers, in case of persecution for religion. Lex rex. Julian the apostate. Apologet. relat.

IX. There lies no obligation upon christians to passive obedience, when the prince commands any thing against the laws of our country; and the primitive christians chose rather to die than resist, because christianity was not settled, by the laws of the empire. Julian the apostate.

X. Possession and strength give a right to govern, and success in a cause or enterprize proclaims it to be lawful and just. To pursue it, is to comply with the will of God, because it is to follow the conduct of his providence. Hobbes. Owen's sermon before the regicides, Jan. 31. M.DC.XLVIII. Baxter. Jenkins's Petition, Octob. M.DC.LI.

XI. In the state of nature there is no difference between good and evil, right and wrong. The state of nature is a state of war, in which every man hath a right to all things.

XII. The foundation of civil authority is this natural right, which is not given but left to the supreme magistrate, upon mens entering into societies. And not only a foreign invader, but a domestic rebel puts himself again into a state of nature, to be proceeded against, not as a subject, but an enemy; and consequently acquires by his rebellion the same right over the life of his prince, as the prince for the most heinous crimes has over the life of his own subjects.

XIII. Every man after his entering into a society, retains a right of defending himself against force; and cannot transfer that right to the commonwealth, when he consents to that union, whereby a commonwealth is made. And in case a great many men together have already resisted the commonwealth, for which every one of them expecteth death, they have liberty then to join together, to assist, and defend one another: their bearing of arms, subsequent to the first breach of their duty, though it be to maintain what they have done, is no new unjust act; and if it be only to defend their persons, it is not unjust at all.

XIV. An oath superadds no obligation to pacts, and a pact obliges no further than it is credited. And consequently, if a prince gives any indication, that he does not believe the promises of fealty and allegiance made by any of his subjects, they are thereby freed from their subjection; and notwithstanding their pacts and oaths, may lawfully rebel against, and destroy their sovereign. Hobbes de cive. Leviathan.

XV. If a people, that by oath and duty are obliged to a sovereign, shall sinfully dispossess him, and contrary to their covenants, chuse and covenant with another; they may be obliged by their latter covenants, notwithstanding their former. Baxter's H. C.

XVI. All oaths are unlawful and contrary to the word of God. Quakers.

XVII. An oath obligeth not in the sense of the imposers, but the takers. Sheriff's case.

XVIII. Dominion is founded in grace.

XIX. The powers of this world are usurpations upon the prerogative of Jesus Christ, and it is the duty of God's people to destroy them, in order to the setting Christ upon his throne. Fifth monarchy men.

XX. The presbyterian government is the scepter of Christ's kingdom, to which kings as well as others are bound to submit, and the king's supremacy in ecclesiastical affairs, asserted by the church of England, is injurious to Christ, the sole king and head of the church. Altare Damascenum. Apologet. relat. Hist. of Indulgences. Cartwright. Travers.

XXI. It is not lawful for superiors to impose any thing in the worship of God, that is not antecedently necessary.

XXII. The duty of not offending a weak brother is inconsistent with all human authority of making laws concerning indifferent things. Protestant reconciler.

XXIII. Wicked kings and tyrants ought to be put to death; and if the judges and inferior magistrates will not do their office, the power of the sword devolves to the people. If the major part of the people refuse to exercise this power, then the ministers may excommunicate such a king; after which it is lawful for any of his subjects to kill him, as the people did Athaliah, and Jehu, and Jezebel. Buchanan. Knox. Goodman. Gilby. Jesuits.

XXIV. After the sealing the scripture canon, the people of God in all ages are to expect new revelations for a rule of their actions; and it is lawful for a private man, having an inward inward motion from God, to kill a tyrant. Quakers and other enthusiasts. Goodman.

XXV. The example of Phineas is to us instead of a command: for what God hath commanded or approved in one age, must needs oblige in all. Goodman. Knox. Napthali.

XXVI. King Charles I. was lawfully put to death, and his murderers were the blessed instruments of God's glory in their generations. Milton. Goodwin. Owen.

XXVII. King Charles I. made war upon his parliament: and in such a case the king may not only be resisted, but he ceaseth to be king. Baxter.

We decree, judge, and declare all and every of these propositions to be false, seditious, and impious; and most of them to be also heretical and blasphemous, infamous to the christian religion, and destructive of all government in church and state.

We further decree, that the books, which contain the aforesaid propositions and impious doctrines, are fitted to deprave good manners, corrupt the minds of uneasy men, stir up seditions and tumults, overthrow states and kingdoms, and lead to rebellion, murder of princes, and atheism itself. And therefore we interdict all members of the university from the reading of the said books, under the penalties in the statutes expressed. We also order the before recited books to be publicly burnt by the hand of our marshal in the court of our schools.

Likewise we order that in perpetual memory hereof, these our decrees shall be entered into the registry of our convocation; and that copies of them being communicated to the several colleges and halls within this university, they be there publicly affixed in the libraries, refectories, or other fit places, where they may be seen and read of all.

Lastly we command and strictly enjoin all and singular the readers, tutors, catechists, and others, to whom the care and trust of initiating of youth is committed, that they diligently instruct and ground their scholars in that most necessary doctrine, which in a manner, is the badge and character of the church of England, of "Submitting to every ordinance of man, for the Lord's sake; whether it be to the king as supreme, or unto governors, as unto them that are sent by him for the punishment of evil doers, and for the praise of them that do well." Teaching that this submission and obedience is to be clear, absolute, and without any exception of any state or order of men. Also, that they, according to the apostle's precept, "Exhort, that first of all supplications, prayers, intercessions, and giving of thanks be made for all men; for the king, and all that are in authority, that we may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godliness and honesty, for this is good and acceptable in the sight of God our saviour." And in especial manner, that they press and oblige them, humbly to offer their most ardent and daily prayers at the throne of grace for the preservation of our sovereign lord king Charles from the attempts of open violence, and secret machinations of perfidious traytors, that the defender of the faith, being safe under the defence of the most high, may continue his reign on earth, 'till he exchange it for that of a late and happy immortality.

Articles for the better regulation of ordinances, and institutions, and other admissions to cure of souls, into which much abuse and many uncanonical practices have lately crept. Ex autographo archiep. Sancroft apud Tho. episc. Assaven.

IT is agreed by and between the archbishop and bishops of the province of Canterbury, and they do hereby mutually and solemnly promise for themselves respectively to one another as followeth:

I. That they will henceforth ordain no man deacon, except he be 23. years old, unless he have a faculty; which the archbishop declares he will not grant, but upon very urgent occasion; nor priest unless he be full and complete 24. years old, as it is indispensibly required in the preface to the book of ordination; nor unless the canonical age be either by an extract out of the register book of the parish, where the person to be ordained was born, under the hands of the minister and churchwardens there, or if no register be kept or found there, by

by some other means sufficiently attested.

II. That they will not admit or institute any person, who hath been formerly ordained, to cure of souls, unless it appear by a like testimonial, that when he was ordained, he was of canonical age; none but those who are so ordained being by the late act of uniformity and the statute 13 Eliz. c. 12. § 5. capable to be admitted to any benefice with cure.

III. That they will ordain no man deacon or priest, who hath not taken some degree of school in one of the universities of this realm, unless the archbishop in some extraordinary case, and upon the express desire and request of the bishop ordaining, shall think fit to dispense with this particular, the person, so to be dispensed with, being in all things else qualified, as the said 34th canon requires.

IV. That they will ordain none but such, as either have lived within their respective dioceses for the three years last past, and are upon their own personal knowledge, or by the testimony of three of the neighbouring ministers, whom they think fit to rely upon, found to be worthy of what they pretend to, or else do exhibit sufficient and authentic testimony thereof from the bishop or bishops, within whose jurisdiction they have resided for the three last years, or from some college in one of the universities, in which they are, or lately have been gremials; to the end, that there may be (by one or more of these methods) sufficient moral assurance to the bishop, by competent witnesses, of the good life and conversation of the persons to be ordained, for full three years last past, as the said canon requires. And the archbishop doth declare, that he will not give any man, beneficed in one diocese, a faculty to take and hold a benefice in another, unless the bishop, in whose diocese he is already beneficed, doth give him a fair dimission and testimony, together with his express consent to that very purpose.

V. That they will admit none to holy orders but such as are presented to some ecclesiastical preferment then void in that diocese, or have some other title specified and allowed in the 33^d canon; among which a curacy under a parson or vicar, during his pleasure, is not to be accounted to be one, unless that parson or vicar doth under his hand and seal, and before witnesses oblige himself to the bishop both to accept that person "bona fide" (when he shall be ordained and licensed by the bishop) to serve under him, and assist him, and also to allow him such salary, as the bishops shall approve of, so long as he shall continue doing his duty there; and lastly, not to put him out of that employment, but for reasons to be allowed by the bishop.

VI. That they will ordain no man, who hath a title allowed by the canon, if the benefice, to which that title relates, lie within another diocese, except he exhibit letters dimissory from the bishop, in whose diocese his title and employment is.

VII. That they will ordain no man, but upon the Lord's days; immediately following the "jejunia quatuor temporum," except he have a faculty to be ordained "extra tempora;" and such a faculty, the archbishop declares, he will not grant, but upon very urgent occasion, as (for instance) if one, who is not in full orders, be presented to some benefice; for of it since the late act of uniformity he is not capable, till he be ordained priest.

VIII. That they will ordain no man (of what qualities or gifts soever) both deacon and priest in one day, nor any man priest, until he shall have continued in the office of a deacon the space of a whole year, and behaved himself faithfully and diligently in the same. And if upon urgent occasion, it shall for reasonable causes seem good unto the bishop to shorten that time, yet even in that case, there being four times of ordination in the year, he shall give the deacon's order in the end of one Ember week; and (if the case may bear that delay) the priests order not till the next ensuing; or in the utmost necessity, not till the Sunday, or holyday next following; and that too not without a faculty. But in the same day none shall be made both deacon and priest, that some decent shadow at least, or footstep of so ancient and laudable a practice may be however retained and observed amongst us.

IX. That they will ordain none, but such as shall, a full month before the day of ordination, bring or send to the bishop notice in writing of their desire to enter into holy orders, together with such certificate of their age, and such testimonials of their behaviour and conversation, as are above required; to the end, that the bishop may (if he think fit) make farther enquiry into all particulars, and also give open monitions to all men to except against such, as they may perhaps know not to be worthy, as it is expressly required by that excellent canon M.D.LXIV. and may be performed, as otherwise, so generally by affixing a schedule of the names of the candidates upon the doors of the cathedral, for as long time before, as they are given in: nor any, but such as shall also repair personally to the bishop in the beginning of the Ember week, or on Thursday in that week, at the latest, to the end, that there may be time for the strict and careful examination of every person, so to be ordained, both by the archdeacon, and by the bishop himself, and such other as shall assist him at the imposition of hands, or he shall think fit to employ herein; and that they may also be present in the cathedral, and observe the solemn fast, and join in the solemn prayers, which are at that time to be put up to God in their behalf.

X. Lastly, That some time in the week, after every ordination, whether "intra," or "extra tempora," the bishop ordaining shall send a certificate under his hand and seal, attested by the archdeacon, and such other clergymen, as assisted at the ordination, containing the names and surnames of all the persons then ordained, the place of their birth, their age, the college where where they were educated, with the degree they have taken in the university, the title upon which they are ordained, and upon whose letters dimissory, if they came out of another diocese; to which shall be subjoined a particular account of all such as then offer'd themselves to ordination, and were refused, as also of the reasons, for which the bishop refused them. All which the archbishop doth undertake and

King James the second his gracious declaration to all his loving subjects for liberty of conscience.

JAMES R.

IT having pleased almighty God not only to bring us to the imperial crown of these kingdoms through the greatest difficulties, but to preserve us by a more than ordinary providence upon the throne of our royal ancestors; there is nothing now, that we so earnestly desire, as to establish our government on such a foundation, as may make our subjects happy, and unite them to us by inclination as well as duty. Which we think can be done by no means so effectually, as by granting to them the free exercise of their religion for the time to come, and add that to the perfect enjoyment of their property; which has never been in any case invaded by us since our coming to the crown. Which being the two things men value most, shall ever be preserved in these kingdoms, during our reign over them, as the truest methods of their peace and our glory. We cannot but heartily wish, as it will easily be believed, that all the people of our dominions were members of the catholic church; yet we humbly thank almighty God, it is, and hath of long time been our constant sense and opinion (which upon divers occasions we have declared) that conscience ought not to be constrained, nor people forced in matters of meer religion: it has ever been directly contrary to our inclination, as we think it is to the interest of government, which it destroys by spoiling trade, depopulating countries, and discouraging strangers, and finally, that it never obtained the end, for which it was employed. And in this we are the more confirmed by the reflections we have made upon the conduct of the four last reigns. For after all the frequent and pressing endeavours that were used in each of them, to reduce this kingdom to an exact conformity in religion, it is visible the success has not answered the design, and that the difficulty is invincible. We therefore out of our princely care and affection unto all our loving subjects, that they may live at ease and quiet, and for the increase of trade, and encouragement of strangers, have thought fit by virtue of our royal prerogative to issue forth this our declaration of indulgence; making no doubt of the concurrence of our two houses of parliament, when we shall think it convenient for them to meet.

In the first place we do declare, that we will protect and maintain our archbishops, bishops, and clergy, and all other our subjects of the church of England in the free exercise of their religion as by law established, and in the quiet and full enjoyment of all their possessions without any molestation or disturbance whatsoever.

We do likewise declare, that it is our royal will and pleasure, that from henceforth the execution of all, and all manner of penal laws in matters ecclesiastical, for not coming to church, or not receiving the sacrament, or for any other nonconformity to the religion established, or for, or by reason of the exercise of religion in any manner whatsoever, be immediately suspended; and the further execution of the said penal laws and every of them is hereby suspended.

And to the end, that by the liberty hereby granted, the peace and security of our government in the practice thereof may not be endangered, we have thought fit, and do hereby straitly charge and command all our loving subjects, that as we do freely give them leave to meet and serve God after their own way and manner, be it in private houses or places purposely hired or built for that use; so that they take especial care, that nothing be preached or taught amongst them, which may any ways tend to alienate the hearts of our people from us or our government; and that their meetings and assemblies be peaceably, openly, and publicly held, and all persons freely admitted to them; and that they do signify and make known to some one or more of the next justices of the peace, what place or places they set apart for those uses.

And that all our subjects may enjoy such their religious assemblies with greater assurance and protection, we have thought it requisite and do hereby command, that no disturbance of any kind be made or given unto them, under pain of our displeasure, and to be further proceeded against with the utmost severity.

And forasmuch as we are desirous to have the benefit of the service of all our loving subjects, which by the law of nature is inseparably bly annexed to, and inherent in our royal person; and that none of our subjects may for the future be under any discouragement or disability (who are otherwise well inclined and fit to serve us) by reason of some oaths or tests, that have been usually administered on such occasions; we do hereby further declare, that it is our royal will and pleasure, that the oaths commonly called "The oaths of supremacy and allegiance," and also the several tests and declarations mentioned in the acts of parliament made in the xxvth and xxxth years of the reign of our late royal brother king Charles II. shall not at any time hereafter be required to be taken, declared, or subscribed by any person or persons whatsoever, who is or shall be employed in any office or place of trust either civil or military under us, or in our government. And we do further declare it to be our pleasure and intention from time to time hereafter, to grant our royal dispensations under our great seal to all our loving subjects so to be employed; who shall not take the said oaths, or subscribe or declare the said tests or declarations in the above mentioned acts, and every of them.

And to the end that all our loving subjects may receive and enjoy the full benefit and advantage of our gracious indulgence hereby intended, and may be acquitted and discharged from all pains, penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities by them or any of them incurred, or forfeited, or which they shall or may at any time hereafter be liable to, for or by reason of their nonconformity, or the exercise of their religion, and from all suits, troubles, or disturbances for the same; we do hereby give our free and ample pardon unto all Nonconformists, recusants, and other our loving subjects, for all crimes and things by them committed or done contrary to the penal laws, formerly made relating to religion, and the profession or exercise thereof; hereby declaring that this our royal pardon and indemnity shall be as good and effectual to all intents and purposes, as if every individual person had been therein particularly named, or had particular pardons under our great seal, which we do likewise declare shall from time to time be granted unto any person or persons desiring the same: willing and requiring our judges, justices, and other officers to take notice of and obey our royal will and pleasure herein before declared.

And although the freedom and assurance, we have hereby given in relation to religion and property, might be sufficient to remove from the minds of our loving subjects all fears and jealousies in relation to either; yet we have thought fit further to declare, that we will maintain them in all their properties and possessions, as well of church and abby lands, as in any other their lands and properties whatsoever. Given at our court at Whitehall the fourth day of April, M.DC.LXXXVII. in the third year of our reign.

A proclamation for suppressing and preventing seditious and unlicensed books and pamphlets.

JAMES R.

WHEREAS in and by an act of parliament made in the fourteenth year of the reign of our late dearest brother king Charles II. entitled "An act for preventing abuses in printing seditious, treasonable, and unlicensed books and pamphlets, and for regulating of printing and printing presses" (which said act is by another statute or act of parliament made in the first year of our reign, revived and continued) it is amongst other things enacted, that no person or persons whatsoever, not being licensed in that behalf by the lord bishop of the diocese, nor having been seven years apprentice to the trade of bookseller, printer, or bookbinder, nor being a freeman of the city of London by a patrimonial right, as a son of a bookseller, printer, or bookbinder, nor being a member of the company of Stationers of London, shall within the city or suburbs of London, or any other market town, or elsewhere receive, take, or buy, to barter, sell again, change, or do away any book or books whatsoever, upon pain of forfeiture of the same; and whereas of late several persons not being qualified by the said act, and particularly great numbers of loose and disorderly people, commonly called hawkers and pedlers of books, have taken upon them to receive or buy several unlicensed, seditious, and many times treasonable books and pamphlets, framed and contrived by malicious persons on purpose to amuse and disturb the minds of our loving subjects, or for other evil or indirect ends and purposes, and have carried, sold, and dispersed the same about the streets, and in other places of public resort, and also in coffeehouses, taverns, and private families, to the great abuse and scandal of our royal state and government, and in open and manifest breach and contempt of our laws; we therefore considering the great mischief that doth ensue upon such licentious and illegal practices, and being resolved effectually to provide against the like mischiefs for the future, are pleased by this our royal proclamation, by and with the advice of our privy council to command and require, that the said act be put in execution, and duly and strictly observed and kept. And we do also straitly prohibit and forewarn, that from henceforth no person or persons, commonly called hawkers or pedlers of books, or any other person or persons whatsoever, not being qualified as aforesaid,

JACOB. II. 4.

The king's declaration for liberty of conscience.

OUR conduct has been such in all times, as ought to have persuaded the world, that we are firm and constant to our resolutions: yet that easy people may not be abused by the malice of crafty wicked men, we think fit to declare, that our intentions are not changed since the 4th of April M.DC.LXXXVII. when we issued out our declaration for liberty of conscience in the following terms. [Here the declaration was recited verbatim, and then follows] Ever since we granted this indulgence, we have made it our principal care to see it preserved without distinction, as we are encouraged to do daily by multitudes of addressees, and many other assurances we receive from our subjects of all persuasions, as testimonies of their satisfaction and duty; the effects of which we doubt not but the next parliament will plainly shew; and that it will not be in vain, that we have resolved to use our utmost endeavours to establish liberty of conscience on such just and equal foundation, as will render it unalterable, and secure to all people the free exercise of their religion for ever; by which future ages may reap the benefit of what is so undoubtedly for the general good of the whole kingdom. It is such a security we desire, without the burthen and constraint of oaths and tests, which have been unhappily made by some governments, but could never support any; nor should men be advanced by such means to offices and employments, which ought to be the reward of services, fidelity, and merit. We must conclude, that not only good christians will join in this, but whoever is concerned for the increase of the wealth and power of the nation. It would perhaps prejudice some of said company of Stationers, now and for the time being, and all other our subjects, whom it shall or may concern, that they and every of them do from time to time use their and every of their best and utmost powers, skills, and endeavours respectively, for the utter suppressing and preventing of the printing and publishing of all such unlawful books and pamphlets aforesaid, and for prosecuting, punish, and utterly suppressing all and every person and persons offending in the premises, according to the utmost rigour of the law, and our royal intent and meaning herein declared, as they our said officers and subjects do tender our pleasure, and will answer the contrary. Given at our court at Whitehall the tenth day of February, M.DC.LXXXVII. in the fourth year of our reign.

our neighbours, who might lose part of those vast advantages they now enjoy, if liberty of conscience were settled in these kingdoms, which are above all others, most capable of improvements, and of commanding the trade of the world. In pursuance of this great work, we have been forced to make many changes both of civil and military officers throughout our dominions, not thinking any ought to be employed in our service, who will not contribute towards establishing the peace and greatness of their country, which we most earnestly desire, as unbiassed men may see by the whole conduct of our government, and by the condition of our fleet, and of our armies, which with good management shall be constantly the same, and greater, if the safety or honour of the nation require it. We recommend these considerations to all our subjects, and that they will reflect on their present ease and happiness, how far above three years that it hath pleased God to permit us to reign over these kingdoms, we have not appeared to be that prince, our enemies would have made the world afraid of; our chief aim having been not to be the oppressor, but the father of our people; of which we can give no better evidence, than by conjuring them to lay aside all private animosities, as well as groundless jealousies, and to chuse such members of parliament, as may do their parts to finish what we have begun for the advantage of the monarchy, over which almighty God has placed us; being resolved to call a parliament, that shall meet in November next at furthest. Given at our court at Whitehall the 27th day of April M.DC.LXXXVIII. in the fourth year of our reign.

Petition of the archb. and bishops against the king's declaration. 617

JACOB. II. 4.

The petition of William Sancroft, archbishop of Canterbury, William Lloyd, bishop of St. Asaph, Thomas Kenn, bishop of Bath and Wells, Francis Turner, bishop of Ely, John Lake, bishop of Chichester, Thomas White, bishop of Peterborough, and Jonathan Trelawny, bishop of Bristol, against publishing the king's declaration for liberty of conscience, presented to the king May 18. M.DC.LXXXVIII.

To the king's most excellent majesty.

The humble petition of William, archbishop of Canterbury, and divers of the suffragan bishops of that province, now present with him, in behalf of themselves, and other of their absent brethren, and of the inferior clergy of their respective dioceses,

Humbly sheweth,

THAT the great averfeness they find in themselves to the distributing and publishing in all their churches your majesty's late declaration for liberty of conscience, proceeds neither from any want of duty and obedience to your majesty (our holy mother the church of England being both in her principles, and in her constant practice unquestionably loyal, and having to her great honour, been more than once publickly acknowledged to be so by your gracious majesty) nor yet from any want of tenderness to Dissenters, in relation to whom we are willing to come to such a temper, as shall be thought fit, when the matter shall be considered and settled in parliament and convocation: but among many other considerations, from this especially; because that declaration is founded upon such a dispensing power, as hath been often declared illegal in parliament, and particularly in the years M.DC.LXII. and M.DC.LXXII. and in the beginning of your majesty's reign; and is a matter of so great moment and consequence to the whole nation, both in church and state, that your petitioners cannot in prudence, honour, or conscience so far make themselves parties to it, as the distribution of it all over the nation, and the solemn publication of it once and again even in God's house, and in the time of his divine service must amount to in common and reasonable construction. Your petitioners therefore most humbly and earnestly beseech your majesty, that you will be pleased not to insist upon their distributing and reading your majesty's said declaration.

And your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray, etc.

A proclamation against vice and profaneness.

JAMES R.

WHEREAS nothing can prove a greater dishonour to a well ordered government, where the christian faith is professed, than the open and avowed practice of vice, profaneness, and debauchery, which amongst some men hath too much prevail'd in this our kingdom of late years, to the high displeasure of almighty God, the great scandal of christianity itself, and the ill and fatal example of our loving subjects, who have been soberly educated, and especially the younger sort, whose inclinations would lead them to virtuous courses, did they not daily find repeated instances of dissolute living and open profaneness, which in some persons is grown so habitual, as if in this our realm there were an allowed custom of doing evil; for the prevention whereof, and to the intent that religion, piety, and good manners may (according to our hearty desire) flourish and increase under our administration and government, we do hereby declare our royal purpose and resolution to be, that we will exercise the greatest severity of punishment against men of dissolute, debauch'd, and profane lives, of what quality or under what circumstances soever they shall be. And we do expect that all persons of honour, or in place and authority will so far contribute to the discountenancing such men, that they being reduced to shame and contempt, may be enforced the sooner to reform their ill habits and practices; and that the displeasure of good men towards them may supply, what the laws have not of themselves, or (it may be) cannot wholly prevent. And for the more effectual reforming these persons, who are a discredit to this our kingdom, our further pleasure is, and we do hereby straitly require, charge, and command all our judges, mayors, sheriffs, justices of the peace, and all other our officers and ministers both ecclesiastical and civil, and other our subjects, whom it may concern, to be very vigilant and strict in the discovery and prosecution of all persons, who shall be given to excessive drinking, debauchery, profane swearing and cursing, or any other dissolute, vicious, and immoral practices, that (having first given security for their good behaviour) they may be further proceeded against with all rigour and severity, and exposed to shame in such a manner as the laws, and the just and necessary rules of government shall direct or permit. Given at our court at Whitehall the twenty ninth day of June, M.DC.LXXXVIII. in the fourth year of our reign.

618 Articles recommended by the archb. of Cant. to the bishops.

Archiepsc. Cant.
GUIL. SANCROFT II.

Reg. Angliae
JACOB. II. 4.

The articles recommended by the archbishop of Cant. to all the bishops within his metropolitan jurisdiction.

SIR,

YESTERDAY the archbishop of Cant. delivered the articles, which I send you inclosed, to those bishops, who are at present in this place, and ordered copies of them to be likewise sent, in his name, to the absent bishops. By the contents of them you will see that the storm, in which he is, does not frighten him from doing his duty, but rather awakens him to do it with so much the more vigour. And indeed the zeal, which he expresses in these articles both against the corruptions of the church of Rome on the one hand, and the unhappy differences that are among protestants on the other, are such apostolical things, that all good men rejoice to see so great a prelate at the head of our church, who in this critical time has had the courage to do his duty in so signal a manner.

London, July 27.
M.DC.LXXXVIII.

I am, Sir, yours.

Some heads of things to be more fully insisted upon by the bishops in their addresses to the clergy, and people of their respective dioceses.

I. THAT the clergy often read over the forms of their ordination, and seriously consider what solemn vows and professions they made therein to God and his church, together with the several oaths and subscriptions they have taken and made upon divers occasions.

II. That in compliance with those and other obligations, they be active and zealous in all the parts and instances of their duty, and especially strict and exact in all holy conversation, that so they may become examples to the flock.

III. To this end, that they be constantly resident upon their cures in their incumbent houses, and keep sober hospitality there, according to their ability.

IV. That they diligently catechize the children and youth of their parishes (as the rubric of the Common Prayer book and the LIXth canon enjoin) and so prepare them to be brought in due time to confirmation, when there shall be opportunity; and that they also at the same time expound the grounds of religion, and the common christianity in the method of the catechism, for the instruction and benefit of the whole parish, teaching them what they are to believe and what to do, and what to pray for, and particularly often and earnestly inculcating the importance and obligation of their baptismal vows.

V. That they perform the daily office publickly (with all decency, affection, and gravity) in all market and other great towns, and even in villages and less populous places, bring people to public prayers as frequently as may be, especially on such days, and at such times, as the rubric and canons appoint, on holydays and their eves, on Ember and Rogation days, on Wednesdays and Fridays in each week, as especially in Advent and Lent.

VI. That they use their utmost endeavour both in their sermons, and by private applications, to prevail with such of their flock, as are of competent age, to receive frequently the holy communion, and to this end that they administer it in the greater towns once in every month, and even in the lesser too, if communicants may be procured, or however as often as they may, and that they do take all due care both by preaching and otherwise, to prepare all for the worthy receiving of it.

VII. That in their sermons they teach and inform their people (four times a year at the least, as what the canon requires) that all usurped and foreign jurisdiction is for most just causes taken away and abolished in this realm, and no manner of obedience or subjection due to the same, or to any that pretend to act by virtue of it; but that the king's power being in his dominions highest under God, they upon all occasions persuade the people to loyalty and obedience to his majesty in all things lawful, and to patient submission in the rest; promoting (as far as in them lies) the public peace and quiet of the world.

VIII. That they maintain fair correspondence (full of the kindest respects of all sorts) with the gentry and persons of quality in their neighbourhood; as being deeply sensible, what reasonable assistance and countenance this poor church hath received from them, in her necessities.

IX. That they often exhort all those of our communion to continue steadfast to the end in their most holy faith, and constant to their professions, and to that end, to take care of all seducers, and especially of popish emissaries, who are now in great numbers gone forth amongst them, and more busy and active than ever, and that they take all occasions to convince our own flock, that 'tis not enough for them to be members of an excellent church, rightly and duly reformed both in faith and worship, unless they do also reform and amend their own lives, and so order their conversation in all things, as becomes the gospel of Christ.

X. And forasmuch as those Romish emissaries, like like the old serpent, "insidiantur calcaneo," are wont to be most busy and troublesome to our people at the end of their lives, labouring to unsettle and perplex them in time of sickness and at the hour of death; that therefore all, who have the cure of souls, be more especially vigilant over them at that dangerous season, that they stay not till they be sent for, but enquire out the sick in their respective parishes, and visit them frequently; that they examine them particularly concerning the state of their souls, and instruct them in their duties, and settle them in their doubts, and comfort them in their sorrow and sufferings, and pray often with them, and for them, and by all the methods, which our church prescribes, prepare themselves for the due and worthy receiving of the holy eucharist, the pledge of their happy resurrection; thus with their utmost diligence watching over every sheep within their fold (especially in that critical moment) lest those evening wolves devour them.

XI. That they also walk in wisdom towards those, who are not of our communion; and if there be in their parishes any such, that they neglect not frequently to confer with them in the spirit of meekness, seeking by all good ways and means to gain and win them over to our communion. More especially, that they have a very tender regard to our brethren, the protestant dissenters, that upon occasion offered they visit them at their houses, and receive them kindly as their own, and treat them fairly wherever they meet them, discoursing calmly and civilly with them, persuading them (if it may be) to a full compliance with our church, or at least, that whereto we have already attained, we may all walk by the same rule, and mind the same thing. And in order thereunto, that they take all opportunities of assuring and convincing them, that the bishops of this church are really and sincerely irreconcilable enemies to the errors, superstitions, idolatries, and tyrannies of the church of Rome, and that the very unkind jealousies, which some have had of us to the contrary, were altogether groundless.

And in the last place, that they warmly and most affectionately exhort them to join with us in daily fervent prayer to the God of peace, for an universal blessed union of all reformed churches, both at home and abroad, against our common enemies; and that all they, who do confess the holy name of our dear Lord, and do agree in the truth of his holy word, may also meet in one holy communion, and live in perfect unity and godly love.

Convocatio praelatorum et cleri provinciae Cantuar.

CONVOCATIO praelatorum et cleri provinciae Cantuar. in domo capitulari ecclesiae cathedr. D. Pauli London. auctoritate brevis regii decano et capitulo ecclesiae Cantuar. custodibus spiritualitatis archiepiscopatus et dioecesis. Cant. (durante suspensione reverendissimi domini Wilhelmi, Cantuar. archiepiscopi, ab omni archiepiscopali administratione et jurisdictionis ecclesiasticae exercitio, virtute statuti hujus regni, sive actus parliamenti, cui titulus est: "An act for abrogating the oaths of supremacy and allegiance, and appointing other oaths") eorumve commissariis pro metropolitana jurisdictione dicti archiepiscopatus, durante suspensione praedicta, vel eorum alteri in hac parte directi, inchoata 6. die mensis Novembris.

In prima hujus synodi provincialis sessione breve regium, commissio decani et capituli Cantuar. constituens dominum episcopum London. praesidem convocationis, et certificatorium episcopi London. super executione mandati citatorii et monitorii decani et capit. Cant. necnon schedula contra contumaces perlegebantur.

In secunda (20. die mensis Novembris) quae fuit in capella Henrici VII. in ecclesia collegiata D. Petri Westmonast. sacra peragebantur, et protestatio decani Westmonasteriensis benigno domini praesidis responso excipiebatur.

In tertia sessione (25. die Novembris) Willelmus Jane in prolocutorem electus, a domino episcopo London. approbatur.

Quarta sessio (27. die Novembris) et quinta (2. die Decemb.) simulac congregatae fuerant, continuabantur.

In sexta sessione (4. die Decembr.) comes Nottinghamiae, unus e secretariis principalibus domini regis, comparuit, licentiam quandam sive commissionem regiam magno sigillo Angliae sigillatam exhibens, simulque mandatum quoddam domini regis ad hanc sacram synodum in scriptis producens. Utrumque dominus praeses cum omni reverentia et humilitate recepit, ac coram toto concilio perlegi jussit. Commissio autem hujus erat tenoris:

"Whereas the particular forms of divine worship, and the rites and ceremonies appointed to be used therein, are things in their own nature indifferent and alterable, and so acknowledged; it is but reasonable, that upon weighty and important considerations, according to the various exigencies of times and occasions, such changes and alterations should be made therein, as to those that are in place and authority should from time to time seem either necessary or expedient.

And whereas the book of canons is fit to be review'd, and made more suitable to the state of the church; and whereas there are defects and abuses in the ecclesiastical courts and jurisdictions, and particularly there is not sufficient provision made for the removing of scandalous ministers, and for the reforming of manners either in ministers or people: and whereas it is most fit, that there should be a strict method prescribed for the examination of such persons, as desire to be admitted into holy orders, both as to their learning and manners;

We therefore, out of our pious and princely care for the good order and edification and unity of the church of England, committed to our charge and care; and for the reconciling, as much as is possible, of all differences among our good subjects, and to take away all occasions of the like for the future, have thought fit to authorize and empower you, etc. and any nine of you, whereof three to be bishops, to meet from time to time, as often as shall be needful, and to prepare such alterations of the liturgy and canons, and such proposals for the reformation of ecclesiastical courts, and to consider of such other matters, as in your judgments may most conduce to the ends above mentioned."

The king's message by the earl of Nottingham.

"His majesty has summon'd this convocation, not only because 'tis usual upon holding of a parliament, but out of a pious zeal to do every thing, that may tend to the best establishment of the church of England, which is so eminent a part of the reformation, and is certainly the best suited to the constitution of this government; and therefore does most signally deserve, and shall always have both his favour and protection; and he doubts not, but that you will assist him in promoting the welfare of it, so that no prejudices, with which some men may have laboured to possess you, shall disappoint his good intentions, or deprive the church of any benefit from your consultations. His majesty therefore expects, that the things that shall be proposed, shall be calmly and impartially considered by you, and assures you, that he will offer nothing to you, but what shall be for the honour, peace, and advantage both of the protestant religion in general, and particularly of the church of England."

Hoc facto, dominus praeses cum confratribus suis ad cameram communiter vocatam "Jerusalem Chamber" sese conferens, libellum supplicem plenum gratiarum actione regiae majestati pro suo amore et favore speciali erga hanc sacram synodum, eidem praesentandum confecit, quem cum coetu domus inferioris convocationis communicavit, assensum eorum expectiturus. Hi gratiis domino regi pro gratioso suo mandato reddendis consenserunt, ast libello supplici, iis a domo superiori misso, subscribere noluerunt, sed alium potius conscribere intenderunt. Dominus praeses confectioni et praesentationi alius libelli supplicis minime consentiens, domum inferiorem ad colloquium cum superiore habendum, atque in eo emendationes aliquas, si necesse fuerit, libello supplice adjungendas hortatus est. Illud colloquium a nonnullis ex utraque domo ad hoc negotium selectis in proximam sessionem tractandum differabatur. Antequam autem huic sessioni finis imponeretur, dominus praeses cum consensu confratrum suorum, licentiam et mandatum regium una cum libello supplici inter acta referri, et formulam precum in hac convocatione observandam imprimi iussit.

The bishops address.

"We your majesty's most dutiful subjects, the bishops and clergy of the province of Canterbury in convocation assembled, having received your majesty's gracious message, together with a commission from your majesty by the earl of Nottingham, hold ourselves bound in gratitude and duty to return our most humble thanks and acknowledgements of the grace and goodness express'd in your majesty's message; and the zeal you shew in it for the protestant religion in general, and the church of England in particular, and of the trust and confidence reposed in us by this commission. We look on these marks of your majesty's care and favour, as the continuance of the great deliverance almighty God wrought for us by your means, in making you the blessed instrument of preserving us from falling under the cruelty of popish tyranny; for which as we have often thanked almighty God, so we cannot forget that high obligation and duty, which we owe to your majesty; and on these new assurances of your protection and favour to our church, we beg leave to renew the assurance of our constant fidelity and obedience to your majesty: whom we pray God to continue long and happily to reign over us."

In septima sessione (6. die Decembr.) multi ex coetu domus inferioris convocationis libellum supplicem a se in scriptis conceptum, domui superiori tradiderunt, illumque ab episcopis conscriptum reddiderunt absque ullis emendationibus, suum earum loco substituentes. Ast dominus praeses ambos libellos supplices decano D. Pauli London "cum directionibus quoad formam emendationum per dictam domum inferiorem observandis, quoties et quando eos alicui rei per hanc domum ipsis in scriptis propositae dissentire contigerit, toti coetui dictae domus inferioris communicandis tradidit."

Nonae (9. die Decemb.) et decimae sessionis (10. die Decemb.) tempus impendebatur in emendatione libelli supplicis a domo superiore compositi; cui ab utraque parte his et illis correctis mutatisque vocabulis, tandem tota synodus subscripsit et domino regi praesentari decrevit.

"We your majesty's most loyal and most dutiful subjects, the bishops and clergy of the province of Canterbury in convocation assembled, having received a most gracious message from your majesty by the earl of Nottingham, hold ourselves bound in duty and gratitude to return our most humble acknowledgements for the same; and for the pious zeal and care your majesty is pleased to express therein for the honour, peace, advantage, and establishment of the church church of England: whereby we doubt not, the interest of the protestant religion in all other protestant churches, which is dear to us, will be the better secured under the influence of your majesty's government and protection. And we crave leave to assure your majesty, that in pursuance of that trust and confidence you repose in us, we will consider whatsoever shall be offered to us from your majesty, without prejudice, and with all calmness and impartiality; and that we will constantly pay the fidelity and allegiance, which we have all sworn to your majesty and the queen, whom we pray God to continue long and happily to reign over us."

In undecima sessione (Decembris die 11.) Johannes Cawley, archidiaconus Lincoln. libellum supplicem domino praesidi exhibuit, querelans, quod Thomas Oldys, tanquam archidiaconus Lincoln. ad comparandum in sacra synodo provinciali in praejudicium juris et tituli sui citatus sit, et nunc ibi sedem teneat. Quam controversiam in proxima sessione (13. die Decembris) terminavit dominus praeses, dicendo "quod eis constet, duas sententias diffinitivas fuisse contra dictum doctorem Cawley latas, unam in alma curia Cant. de arcubus, et alteram in suprema curia delegatorum; et quod commissio pro revisione dicti negotii fuit per serenissimos in Christo principes dom. Willielmum et Mariam, regem et reginam etc. ad petitionem dicti doctoris Cawley, concessa, et quod idem negotium per iudices revisionis non est adhuc decusum," et ideo "dimisit dictum magistrum Oldys ab omni ulteriori iudicii observatione."

In hac undecima sessione prolocutor nomine totius coetus domus inferioris et ex eorum mandato querelatus est, diversos libros christianae religioni et ecclesiae inprimis Anglicanae doctrinis valde insidiosos et contrarios nuper impressos esse, viz. Annotationes super symbolum Athanasii, et duas epistolas ad hanc convocationem spectantes; petiitque consilium a domino praefide et caeteris episcopis, quomodo et quousque absque laesione statuti anno xxv. Henrici VIII. regis editi, haec sacra synodus procedere posset ad impediendum de futuro publicationem aliorum hujus generis perniciosorum librorum, et ad poenas et censuras ecclesiasticas juxta canonem in ea parte editum, auctoribus eorundem infligendas. Cui dominus praeses respondens ordinavit, ut prolocutor libros praedictos procuraret, et eosdem penes actuarium hujus domus relinqueret.

In duodecima sessione (13. die Decembris) dominus praeses negotium librorum perniciosorum reassumens declaravit, epistolas praedictas multum mali minari ecclesiae, et quod ipsi et confratribus suis adhuc nondum constet, utrum convocatio haec potestatem habeat infligendi censuras ecclesiasticas auctoribus earundem.

In decima tertia sessione (14. die Decembris) responsum domini regis ad libellum supplicem ei a synodo porrectum publice legebatur.

"My lords. I take this address very kindly from the convocation. You may depend upon it, that all I have promised, and all that I can do for the service of the church of England, I will do. And I give you this new assurance, that I will improve all occasions and opportunities for its service."

Deinde dominus praeses toti coetui domus inferioris enarravit; se et fratres suos episcopos admodum conscios esse, quam noxae ac perniciosae clausulae in libris nuperrime coram concilio expositis, latitarent, seque a juris peritis informatos esse, delicta auctorum in propriis curiis judicialibus puniri debere, et ideo non expediens ipsis videri sese impraesentiarum hisce rebus immiscere. Postea dominus praeses proposuit prolocutori nominare coetum selectum domus inferioris convocationis, ad conveniendum cum coetu selecto domus superioris ad inspicienda acta ambarum domuum convocationis durante recessu. Sed domus inferior huic proposito accedere recusavit.

His majesty's letter to the reverend father in God, Henry, lord bishop of London, to be communicated to the two provinces of Canterbury and York.

WILLIAM R.

RIGHT reverend father in God, we greet you well. Whereas the advancement of the honour and service of almighty God, and of the protestant religion, which by his wonderful providence hath been preserved and established in these kingdoms, ought to be the chief part of our royal care; in order to this, as we have oftentimes declared, that we would take the church of England, by law established, into our particular protection and favour, so we take this occasion to renew these assurances, being resolved to do all we can, for the support and strengthening of it, preserving withall the liberty of conscience to all our protestant subjects, which by our laws they now enjoy.

And because the welfare, peace, and honour of this church depends so much upon all persons faithfully doing their duties in their several places and functions; we therefore first of all charge and require you the bishops of this our church, to apply your selves with all diligence and zeal to the duties of your episcopal function, according to the word of God, the orders of this church, and the laws of this our realm.

More especially as to the ordination of ministers, we require you to use all possible care and strictness in examining and enquiring into the lives and learning of such persons, as desire to be admitted into holy orders; and herein constantly to observe the canons relating thereunto, the neglect whereof we shall strictly enquire into, and take care that it be punished according to law.

We also charge and require you, to keep a strict watch over all the clergy in your respective dioceses, to see that they be duly resident upon their livings, according to the laws in that case provided; and that they be constant and diligent in their duties, performing the public offices of worship gravely and devoutly, preaching the word of God plainly and practically, without running into needless controversies, and administering of the holy sacraments frequently, with that reverence, which is due to the institutions of Christ, also catechizing the youth, visiting the sick and distressed, and doing all such things in their stations, as may tend to promote the honour of God, and true religion, together with peace and charity among all their neighbours; themselves giving a good example to their flock, by walking before them in all holy conversation and godliness.

And the more effectually to prevent the scandals that may arise by any disorders in the lives of those, who ought to be examples to others, you shall admonish them religiously to observe the canon entituled "Sober conversation required in ministers;" and you shall severally and impartially proceed by ecclesiastical censures against all such of your clergy, as shall be found guilty of any notorious violation of this or any other law or canons, relating to their duty.

And for the better encouragement of deserving men, as we intend to make it a rule to ourself, so we also require it of you in disposing of church preferments, to have a special regard to such persons, as by their piety, learning diligence, and peaceableness do most promote the honour of God, and the edification of his church.

And because, as our duty requires, we most earnestly desire and shall endeavour a general reformation in the lives and manners of all our subjects, as being that which must establish our throne, and secure to our people their religion, happiness, and peace; all which seem to be in great danger at this time, by reason of that overflowing of vice, which is too notorious in this, as well as other neighbouring nations; we therefore require you, to order all the clergy to preach frequently against those particular sins and vices, which are most prevailing in this realm, and that on every of those Lord's days, on which any such sermon is to be preached, they do also read to their people such statute law or laws, as are provided against that vice or sin, which is their subject on that day; as namely against ^ablasphemy, swearing, and cursing, against ^bperjury, against ^cdrunkenness and against ^dprofanation of the Lord's day; all which statutes we have ordered to be printed together with these our letters, that so they may be transmitted by you to every parish within this our realm.

And whereas there is as yet no sufficient provision made by any statute law for the punishing of adultery and fornication, you shall therefore require all churchwardens in your dioceses to present impartially all those, that are guilty of any such crimes in their several parishes; and upon such presentments we require you to proceed without delay, and upon sufficient proof to inflict those censures, which are appointed by our ecclesiastical laws against such offenders. In doing whereof according to your duty, you shall not want our effectual assistance and support.

And for the better carrying on of so good a

A proclamation commanding all papists and reputed papists, forthwith to depart from the cities of London and Westminster, and from within ten miles of the same.*

MARIA R.

WHEREAS, notwithstanding the several acts of parliament, whereby the resorting of papists to the cities of London and Westminster, and places thereunto adjacent, are declared to be dangerous to the peace and safety of this kingdom, and the ways and methods provided and enacted as well for discovering as amoving them; and notwithstanding the manifestation of their majesty's princely disposition to extend their protection and royal grace to all and every of their subjects, that will live quietly and peaceably under their government, divers popish recusants, being ill affected to their majesty's government, and of restless spirits, have lately resorted to the said cities and places in great numbers, and thereby having opportunity to meet, have taken great boldness to consult and prosecute divers mischievous and treasonable designs and practices, contrary to the duty of their allegiance; their majesties have therefore thought fit (by the advice of their privy council) to issue out this their royal proclamation, and do hereby strictly charge and command all popish recusants, and persons reputed so to be (except merchants, strangers, and such other persons, as in the said acts are excepted) on or before the seven and twentieth day of this instant June, to depart out of the said cities, and from all places within the distance of ten miles of the same. And their majesties do hereby further require and command, that if any of the said popish recusants, or so reputed, shall presume to remain within either of the said cities, or ten miles adjacent, or repair or return to the same, they be proceeded against, as persons conspiring against the peace and welfare of the government. And their majesties do hereby straitly charge and command the lord mayor of London, and all and every the justices of the peace, constables, and other their majesty's officers and ministers of justice within the said cities and either of them, and within ten miles of the same, that they do make strict search and enquiry for, and with all vigour proceed against all and every person or persons, who shall be found within the said cities of London and Westminster, and within ten miles of the same, contrary to the effect of any of the said statutes, and the purport of this their majesties proclamation. And their majesties do further strictly charge and command, that immediately after the said seven and twentieth day of June, the constables, churchwardens, and other officers within the said cities and places, do go from house to house in their several parishes, hamlets, constaberies, and divisions respectively, and there take an account of the names and surnames of all such persons, as are popish recusants or reputed so to be, as well householders as lodgers or servants, and to carry a list of their names to the two next justices of the peace, who are hereby required and enjoined to send for and proceed against them (excepting always merchant foreigners, settled householders, and other persons in the said acts excepted) as aforesaid; and they the said justices are likewise required, when they shall have received such list or lists, to certify the same, together with their proceedings thereupon, to their majesties most honourable privy council. Injunctions given by the king's majesty to the archbishops of this realm, to be communicated by them to the bishops, and the rest of the clergy.

To the most reverend father in God, our right trusty and right entirely beloved counsellor Thomas, lord archbishop of Canterbury, and to the most reverend father in God John, lord archbishop of York.

WILLIAM R.

MOST reverend father in God, our right trusty and right entirely beloved counsellor; and most reverend father in God, we greet you well. We being very sensible, that nothing can more effectually conduce to the honour and glory of God, and the support of the protestant religion, than the protecting and maintaining of the church of England, as it is by law established; which we are resolved to do to the utmost of our power; have therefore upon mature deliberation with you and other our bishops, by virtue of our royal and supreme authority, thought fit, with the advice of our privy council, to ordain and publish the following injunctions.

I. That the 34th and 35th canons concerning ordinations be strictly observed.

II. That every person, to be admitted to holy orders, do signify his name and the place of his abode to the bishop fourteen days before he is ordained, to the end that enquiry may be made into his life and conversation. And that he appear at the furthest on Thursday in Ember week, that so such, who upon examination shall be found fit, may have time to prepare themselves by fasting and prayer, before the day of ordination.

III. That every bishop shall be well satisfied, that all persons that are to be ordained, have a real title with a sufficient maintenance, according to the 33^d canon, in which matter we require the bishops to use an especial care.

IV. That a certificate of the age of the person to be ordained, be brought, if it can be, out of the parish register, or at least a certificate very well attested.

V. That the part of the 34th canon, which relates to the giving of certificates concerning the lives and manners of those, who are to be ordained, be strictly looked to. And that the bishops lay it on the consciences of the clergy, that they sign no certificates, unless, upon their own knowledge, they judge the persons to be duly qualified.

VI. That every bishop shall transmit, between Michaelmas and Christmas, to the archbishop of the province a list of all such persons, as have been ordained by him during that year, according to the constitutions in the year M.D.LXXXIV. in order to be put in a public register, which shall be prepared by you for that use.

VII. That the bishops shall reside in their dioceses, and shall take care to oblige their clergy to such residence, as the laws of the land and the canons do require, particularly the 41st canon.

VIII. That they, who keep curates, have none but such as are licensed by the bishop of the diocese, or in exempt jurisdictions by the ordinary of the place having episcopal jurisdiction, as is required both by the act of uniformity and the 48th canon, that so when the incumbent does not reside, the bishop, or such ordinary may know how the cure is supplied; and that no person shall presume to serve any cure without licence from the bishop, or such ordinary, upon pain of suspension.

IX. That you use your most effectual endeavours to suppress the great abuses occasioned by pluralities, and restrain them as much as you can, except where the parishes lie near one another, and the livings are small: that all qualifications be carefully examined: we being determined to have no chaplains to be qualified by us, but such as are admitted to attend upon us. And that due caution be taken before any faculty is granted. And that such persons, as are legally qualified, shall reside at least two months in the year in each of their livings; and provide a curate to serve where they are not in person, with a due maintenance to be determined by the bishop of the diocese, unless the two parishes lie so near, that the incumbent can constantly serve both cures.

X. That the bishops shall look to the lives and manners of their clergy, that they may be in all things regular and exemplary, according to the 75th canon.

XI. That the bishops do use their utmost endeavour to oblige their clergy to have public prayers in the church, not only on holydays and litany days, but as often as may be, and to celebrate the holy sacrament frequently.

XII. That the bishops shall require the clergy to use their utmost endeavours, that the Lord's day be religiously observed. That they set a good example to their people, and exhort them frequently to their duty herein.

XIII. That the bishops remind their clergy to visit the sick frequently, and require them to perform that duty with great care and diligence according to the 67th canon.

XIV. That catechizing be duly performed, according to the 59th canon.

XV. That the bishops be careful to confirm, not only in their triennial visitations, but at other convenient seasons.

XVI. That care be taken, that the archdeacons make their visitations personally; and that, as much as may be, they live within the bounds of their jurisdiction, and do their duty according ing to the canons.

XVII. That no commutation of penance shall be made, but by the expresse order and directions of the bishop himself, which shall be declared in open court. And that the commutation money shall be applied only to pious and charitable uses, according to the "articuli pro clero" made in the year M.D.LXXXIV. and the constitutions made in the year M.D.XCVII.

XVIII. That no licence for marriage without banns shall be granted by any ecclesiastical judge, without first taking the oaths of two sufficient witnesses, and also sufficient security for performance of the conditions of the licence, according to the 102^d and 103^d canons.

These injunctions we do require you to transmit to the bishops of your respective provinces, to be by them communicated to their clergy, and to be strictly observed, and often enquired after both by you and them. For as we esteem it the chief part of our princely care to promote true religion, as it is established in this church, and in order thereunto, we have determined not to dispose of any church preferments in our gift, but to such of our clergy as we shall have reason to believe do live most exemplarily, and preach and watch most faithfully over the people committed to their charge; so we assure ourself, that these our pious intentions will be effectually seconded by you and the rest of our bishops; and that you will, without favour or partial affection, study to suppress impiety and vice; and to reform all disorders, as far as in you lies; well knowing that nothing will so much advance the great ends of religion, and so certainly secure and establish this church, as the exemplary lives and faithful labours of those who minister in it. And so we commend ourself to your prayers, and bid you very heartily farewell. Given at our court at Kensington the fifteenth day of February, M.DC.XCIV. in the seventh year of our reign.

Directions to our archbishops and bishops, for the preserving of unity in the church, and the purity of the christian faith, concerning the holy Trinity.

WILLIAM R.

MOST reverend and right reverend fathers in God, we greet you well. Whereas we are given to understand, that there have of late been some differences among the clergy of this our realm about their waysof expressing themselves in their sermons and writings, concerning the doctrine of the blessed Trinity, which may be of dangerous consequence, if not timely prevented; we therefore out of our princely care and zeal for the preservation of the peace and unity of the church, together with the purity of the christian faith, have thought fit to send you these following directions, which we straitly charge and command you to publish, and to see that they be observed within your several dioceses.

I. That no preacher whatsoever, in his sermon or lecture, do presume to deliver any other doctrine concerning the blessed Trinity, than what is contained in the holy scriptures, and is agreeable to the three Creeds and the thirty nine articles of religion.

II. That in the explication of this doctrine they carefully avoid all new terms, and confine themselves to such ways of expression, as have been commonly used in the church.

III. That care be taken in this matter, especially to observe the fifty third canon of this church, which forbids public opposition between preachers, and that above all things they abstain from bitter invectives and scurrilous language against all persons whatsoever.

IV. That the foregoing directions be also observed by those, who write any thing concerning the said doctrine.

And whereas we also understand, that divers persons, who are not of the clergy, have of late presumed not only to talk and to dispute against the christian faith concerning the doctrine doctrine of the blessed Trinity, but also to write and publish books and pamphlets against the same, and industriously spread them through the kingdom, contrary to our known laws established in this realm; we do therefore strictly charge and command you, together with all other means suitable to your holy profession, to make use of your authority according to law, for the repressing and restraining of all such exorbitant practices: and for your assistance we will give charge to our judges, and all other our civil officers, to do their duty herein, in executing the laws against all such persons, as shall by these means give occasion of scandal, discord, and disturbance in our church and kingdom. Given at our court at Kensington the third day of February, M.DC.XCV. in the seventh year of our reign.

An act for the more effectual suppressing prophane cursing and swearing.

WHEREAS it is found by experience, that an act of parliament made in the one and twentieth year of the reign of king James the first, entituled, "An act to prevent and reform prophane swearing and cursing," hath proved ineffectual to the suppressing of those detestable sins, by reason of some deficiencies in the said act; be it therefore enacted by the king's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that if any person or persons shall (after the four and twentieth day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred ninety five) prophane-ly swear or curse in the presence or hearing of any justice of peace of the county, riding, or division, or of the mayor or other head officer, or justice of peace for any city or town corporate, where such offence is or shall be committed, or that shall be thereof convicted by oath of one witness, or by the confession of the party offending, before any justice of peace of the county, or mayor, or bailiff, or other chief officer or justice of the peace of such city and town corporate, where the said offence shall be committed, that then, for every such offence the party so offending, shall forfeit and pay to the use of the poor of the parish, where such offence or offences shall be committed, the respective sums herein aftermentioned (that is to say) every servant, day labourer, common soldier, and common seaman one shilling, and every other person two shillings; and in case any of the persons aforesaid, shall, after conviction, offend a second time, such person shall forfeit and pay double; and if a third time, treble the sum respectively by him or her to be paid for the first offence. And it is hereby further enacted, that upon neglect or refusal of payment of the said forfeiture, any justice of peace of the county, riding, or division, or mayor, or other head officer, or justice of peace of any city, or town corporate, where the said offence shall be committed, shall, and are hereby authorized and required to direct and send his warrant to the constable, tithingman, churchwarden, or overseer of the poor of the parish, where the offence shall be committed, or where the offender shall inhabit, thereby commanding them, or some one or more of them, to levy by distress and sale of the goods of the offender the sum so forfeited, for the use of the poor of the parish, as aforesaid; and in case no such distress can be had, then every such offender, being above the age of sixteen years, shall, by warrant under the hand and seal of the said justice of peace or other officer as aforesaid, be publickly set in the stocks for the space of one hour for every single offence, and for any number of offences, whereof he shall be convicted at one and the same time, then two hours; and if the party offending be under the age of sixteen years, and shall not forthwith pay the said forfeitures, then he or she shall, by warrant, as aforesaid, be whipped by the constable, or by the parent, guardian, or master of such offender in the presence of the constable.

And be it further enacted, that if any justice of the peace, or chief magistrate shall wilfully and wittingly omit the performance of his duty in the execution of this act, he shall forfeit the sum of five pounds, the one moiety to the use of the informer, to be recovered by action, suit, bill, or plaint, in any of his majesty's courts at Westminster, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law shall be allowed, nor any more than one imparlance.

And it is hereby further enacted, that if any action or suit shall be commenced or brought against any justice of peace, constable, or other officer, or person whatsoever, for doing or causing to be done any thing in pursuance of this act, concerning the said offences, the defendant, in such action, may plead the general issue, and give the special matter in evidence; and if upon such action, verdict be given for the defendant, or the plaintiff become nonsuit, or discontinue his action, then the defendant shall have treble costs.

Provided always, and it is hereby enacted, that no person shall be prosecuted or troubled for any offence against this statute, unless the same be proved or prosecuted within ten days next after the offence committed.

And it is further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that this act shall be publickly read four several times in the year in all parish, churches, and all public chapels, by the parson, vicar,

Vicar, or curate of the respective parishes or chapels, immediately after morning prayer, on four several Sundays (that is to say) the Sunday next after the four and twentieth day of June, the nine and twentieth day of September, the five and twentieth day of December, and the five and twentieth day of March, under the pain of twenty shillings for every such omission or neglect.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the justice of peace, mayor, or other head officer shall register in a book, to be kept for that purpose, all the convictions made before him upon this act, and the time of making thereof, and for what offence, and shall certify the same to the next general quarter sessions of the peace for the said county or place, where the offences are committed, to be there kept upon record by the respective clerks of the peace, to be seen without fee or reward.

A declaration of the sense of the archbishops and bishops, now in and about London, upon the occasion of their attendance in parliament; concerning the irregular and scandalous proceedings of certain clergymen at the execution of Sir John Friend and Sir William Parkins.

WE the archbishops and bishops, now in and about London, upon occasion of our attendance in parliament, having seen a printed paper, entituled "A true copy of the papers delivered by Sir John Freind, and Sir William Parkings, to the sheriffs of London and Middlesex, at Tyburn the place of execution, April 3. M.DC.XCVI." and being also certainly informed of the most irregular behaviour of Mr. ^aCooke, Mr. ^bCollier, and Mr. ^cSnatt, in pretending to absolve the said criminals at their execution, to the great scandal of the church, and of our holy religion, have therefore thought ourselves obliged to declare our sense of the same, as here followeth:

I. As to the paper before mentioned, we cannot but observe, that in that part, to which Sir John Freind is entituled, among many other things there delivered as his private opinion (for which we must leave him to God) there are mingled some things concerning the church of England to the great dishonour and reproach of it. That venerable name is by the author of that paper appropriated to that part of our church, which hath separated itself from the body; and more particularly to a faction of them, who are so furiously bent upon the restoring of the late king, that they seem not to regard by what means it is to be effected. We have a sad instance of it in this very person, who (as was deposed at his tryal) was privy to the horrid design of assassination, and yet neither discovered it, nor shewed any dislike of it, but as he was afraid it might ruin king ^dJames, and his affairs; and was ready also, together with others of the same christian principle (as the author of his paper is bold to call it) to act in conjunction with an army of French papists, for the ruin of their country, and extirpation of that religion, which they themselves do profess.

II. As for Sir William Parkins, who also professed to die in the communion of the church of England, we cannot think he meant any thing else by it, than that he adhered to the same violent faction; being assured (as we are by very good information) that both he and Sir John Friend had withdrawn themselves from our public assemblies some time before their death. Which makes us the less wonder to find in both their papers so light, and even favourable a mention of that most inhuman design of assassinating his sacred majesty; especially in that of Sir William Parkins, who though he was publickly convicted of his having engaged so many in that horrible sin, yet after all could think to clear himself of it with this wretched excuse: "'Tis true, I was privy to the design upon the prince, but was not to act in it." Blessed be God, there never was any of our church, that in any change of times could have this laid to his charge, that he was so much as privy to a design of assassination.

Lastly, For those clergymen that took upon them to absolve these criminals at the place of execution, by laying, all three together, their hands upon their heads, and publickly pronouncing a form of absolution; as their manner of doing this was extremely insolent and without precedent either in our church, or any other that we know of, so the thing itself was altogether irregular.

The rubric in our office of the visitation of the sick, from whence they took the words they then used, and upon which, if upon any thing in our liturgy, they must ground this their proceeding, gave them no authority nor no pretence for the absolving these persons; nay as they managed the affair, they acted in this absolution far otherwise, than is there directed.

That rubric is concerning sick persons, and it is there required, first, that "the sick person shall be moved to make a special confession of his sins, if he feel his conscience troubled with any weighty matter, and then after such confession, the priest shall absolve him, if he humbly and heartily desire it." But here they absolved, and that publickly, persons condemned by law for execrable crimes, without so much as once moving them at that time to make a special confession of their sins, at least of those sins for which they were condemned. And on the other side, here were persons absolved that did not humbly desire absolution, as feeling any such weighty matter to trouble their conscience; but on the contrary, in Sir John Friend's paper it is declared, that he had a great deal of satisfaction in suffering for that cause which he firmly believed to be the cause of God and true religion.

If these ministers knew not the state of these mens souls, before they gave them absolution, as it is manifest two of them Mr. Snatt and Mr. Cooke, did not; as to Sir William Parkins (they having since declared, that he had not spoke with Sir William till they were at the place of execution) how could they without manifest transgression of the church's order, as well as the profane abuse of the power Christ has left with his ministers, absolve them from all their sins.

If they were acquainted with these mens sentiments declared in their papers, then they must look upon them, either as hardened impenitents, or as martyrs.

We are so charitable to believe that they would not absolve them under the former notion; for that had been, in effect, sealing them to damnation; but if they held these men to be martyrs, then their absolving them in that manner was a justification of those grievous crimes, for which these men suffered, and an open affront to the laws both of church and state.

Upon the consideration of these things, and for the doing of right to our church, which may otherwise suffer, among such as are strangers to our constitution, by the evil principles and practices, both of the aforesaid criminals, and the three clergymen that assisted them, who all pretended to be members of the church of England; we do declare that we disown and detest all such principles and practices; looking upon them as highly schismatical and seditious, dangerous both to church and state, and contrary to the true doctrine and spirit of the christian religion. And we also take this occasion to warn and exhort all the people committed to our charge, to beware of such seducers and to avoid them; lest (as the apostle St. Peter speaks) "they be led away with the error of the wicked," and fall from their stedfast adherence to the principles of the true church of England, as it was established at the blessed reformation of religion, and as by God's especial providence it continues to this day.

An act for the more effectual suppressing of blasphemy and profaneness.

WHEREAS many persons have of late years openly avowed and published many blasphemous and impious opinions, contrary to the doctrines and principles of the christian religion, greatly tending to the dishonour of almighty God, and may prove destructive to the peace and welfare of this kingdom; wherefore for the more effectual suppressing of the said detestable crimes, be it enacted by the king's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that if any person or persons, having been educated in, or at any time having made profession of the christian religion within this realm, shall, by writing, printing, teaching, or advised speaking, deny any one of the persons in the holy Trinity to be God, or shall assert or maintain there are more Gods than one, or shall deny the christian religion to be true, or the holy scriptures of the Old and New Testament to be of divine authority, and shall upon indictment or information in any of his majesty's courts at Westminster, or at the assizes be thereof lawfully convicted by the oath of two or more credible witnesses, such person or persons for the first offence shall be adjudged incapable and disabled in law, to all intents and purposes whatsoever, to have or enjoy any office or offices, employment or employments, ecclesiastical, civil or military, or any part in them, or any profit or advantage appertaining to them or any of them; and if any person or persons so convicted, as aforesaid, shall at the time of his or their conviction, enjoy or possess any office, place or employment, such office, place, or employment shall be void, and is hereby declared void. And if such person or persons shall be a second time lawfully convicted, as aforesaid, of all or any the aforesaid crime or crimes, that then he or they shall from thenceforth be disabled to sue, prosecute, plead, or use any action or information in any court of law or equity, or to be guardian of any child, or executor or administrator of any person, or capable of any legacy or deed of gift, or to bear any office, civil or military, or benefice ecclesiastical, for ever within this realm, and shall also suffer imprisonment for the space of three years, without bail or mainprize, from the time of such conviction.

Provided

Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that no person shall be prosecuted by virtue of this act, for any words spoken, unless the information of such words shall be given upon oath before one or more justice or justices of the peace, within four days after such words spoken, and the prosecution of such offence be within three months after such information.

Provided also, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that any person or persons, convicted of all or any of the aforesaid crime or crimes, in manner aforesaid, shall for the first offence (upon his, her, or their acknowledgment and renunciation of such offence or erroneous opinions, in the same court where such person or persons was or were convicted, as aforesaid, within the space of four months after his, her, or their conviction) be discharged from all penalties and disabilities incurred by such conviction; any thing in this act contained to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

A proclamation for preventing and punishing immorality and profaneness.

By the king.

WILLIAM R.

WHEREAS we cannot but be deeply sensible of the great goodness and mercy of almighty God in putting an end to a long, bloody, and expensive war by the conclusion of an honourable peace, so we are not less touched with a resentment, that notwithstanding this and many other great blessings and deliverances, impiety, profaneness, and immorality do still abound in this our kingdom; and whereas nothing can prove a greater dishonour to a well ordered government, where the christian faith is professed, nor is likelier to provoke God to withdraw his mercy and blessings from us, and instead thereof, to inflict heavy and severe judgments upon this kingdom, than the open and avowed practice of vice, immorality, and profaneness, which amongst many men has too much prevailed in this our kingdom of late years, to the high displeasure of almighty God, the great scandal of christianity, and the ill and fatal example of the rest of our loving subjects, who have been soberly educated, and whose inclinations would lead them to the exercise of piety and virtue, did they not daily find such frequent and repeated instances of dissolute living, profaneness, and impiety, which has in a great measure been occasioned by the neglect of the magistrates not putting in execution those good laws, which have been made for suppressing and punishing thereof, and by the ill example of many in authority, to the great dishonour of God, and reproach of our religion: wherefore, and for that we cannot expect increase or continuance of the blessings we and our subjects enjoy, without providing remedies to prevent the like evils for the future, we think ourselves bound by the duty we owe to God, and the care we have of the people committed to our charge, to proceed in taking effectual course, that religion, piety, and good manners may, according to our hearty desire, flourish and increase under our administration and government; and being thereunto moved by the pious address of the commons in parliament assembled, we have thought fit, by the advice of our privy council, to issue this our royal proclamation, and do declare our royal purpose and resolution to discountenance and punish all manner of vice, immorality, and profaneness in all persons from the highest to the lowest degree within this our realm, and particularly in such, who are employed near our royal person; and that for the greater encouragement of religion and morality, we will, upon all occasions distinguish men of piety and virtue by marks of our royal favour. And we do expect that all persons of honour, or in place of authority, will to their utmost contribute to the discountenancing men of dissolute and debauched lives, that they being reduced to shame and contempt, may be enforced the sooner to reform their ill habits and practices, that the displeasure of good men towards them may supply what the laws (it may be) cannot wholly prevent. And for the more effectual reforming these men, who are a discredit to our kingdom, our further pleasure is, and we do hereby strictly charge and command all our judges, mayors, sheriffs, justices of the peace, and all other our officers and ministers, both ecclesiastical and civil, and other our subjects, whom it may concern, to be very vigilant and strict in the discovery and the effectual prosecution and punishment of all persons, who shall be guilty of excessive drinking, blasphemy, profane swearing and cursing, lewdness, profanation of the Lord's day, or other dissolute, immoral, or disorderly practices, as they will answer it to almighty God, and upon pain of our highest displeasure. And for the more effectual proceedings herein, we do hereby direct and command our judges of assizes and justices of the peace, to give strict charges at the respective assizes and sessions, for the due prosecution and punishment of all persons, that shall presume to offend in any the kinds aforesaid, and also of all persons that contrary to their duty, shall be remiss or negligent in putting the said laws in execution, and that they do at their respective assizes and quarter sessions of the peace cause this our proclamation to be publicly read in open court, immediately before the charge is given. And we do hereby further charge and command every minister in his respective parish or chapel, to read or cause to be read this our proclamation, at least four times in every year, immediately after divine service, and to incite and stir up their respective auditories to the practice of piety and virtue, and the avoiding of all immorality and profaneness. And to the end that all vice and debauchery may be prevented, and religion and virtue practised by all officers, private soldiers, mariners, or others, who are employed in our service either by sea or land, we do hereby strictly charge and command all our commanders and officers whatsoever, that they do take care to avoid all profaneness, debauchery, and other immoralities, and that by the piety and virtue of their own lives and conversations they do set good examples to all such as are under their authority, and likewise to take care and inspect the behaviour and manners of all such as are under them, and to punish all those, who shall be guilty of any the offences aforesaid. And whereas several wicked and profane persons have presumed to print and publish several pernicious books and pamphlets, which contain in them impious doctrines against the holy Trinity and other fundamental articles of our faith, tending to the subversion of the christian religion; therefore for the punishing the authors and publishers thereof, and for the preventing such impious books and pamphlets being published or printed for the future, we do hereby strictly charge and prohibit all persons, that they do not presume to write, print, or publish any such pernicious books or pamphlets under the pain of incurring our high displeasure, and of being punished according to the utmost severity of the law. And we do hereby strictly charge and require all our loving subjects to discover and apprehend such person and persons, whom they shall know to be the authors or publishers of any such books or pamphlets, and to bring them before some justice of peace or chief magistrate, in order that they may be proceeded against according to law. Given at our court at Kensington the four and twentieth day of February, M.DC.XCVII. in the tenth year of our reign.

The report of the committee of the lower house of convocation appointed for the examination of books lately published against the truth of the christian religion, as to part of the matter to them referred, made on Thursday the twentieth of March, in the year of our Lord, juxta, etc. M.DCC. as follows: viz.

UPON the perusal of the book and schedule hereunto annexed, laid before this committee by Mr. vicechancellor of Oxford on Tuesday the eleventh day of this instant March, this committee came to the following resolutions, "nemine contradicente," hereupon: viz.

Resolved first,

That in the judgment of the committee the said book is a book of pernicious principles, of dangerous consequence to the christian religion, written on a design, as we conceive, and tending to subvert the fundamental articles of the christian faith.

Resolved secondly,

That in the judgment of this committee the positions extracted out of the said book, and therewith hereunto annexed, are, together with divers others of the like nature therein contained, pernicious, dangerous, and scandalous positions, and destructive of the christian faith.

Resolved thirdly,

That to prevent the growth of these and the like pernicious principles, it is the opinion of this committee, that some speedy course ought to be taken for suppressing this and all other books of the like mischievous nature and tendency.

Resolved fourthly,

That in order thereunto, it is also the opinion of this committee, that an humble representation of the premisses be forthwith laid by this house before the lords the bishops of the upper house, praying their lordships concurrence with these resolutions, together with their advice and directions, what effectual course may be taken to suppress these, and all other pernicious books, already written against the truth of the christian religion, and to prevent the publication of the like for the future.

A schedule of positions extracted out of the book herewith annexed, entitled, "Christianity not mysterious," and bearing the name of John Toland, printed at London in octavo, anno Domini M.DC.XCVI. in which the author expressly says, as follows:

Pos. 1. page 80. § xiv. he saith: "I conclude, that neither God himself, nor any of his attributes are mysteries to us for want of adequate ideas."

Pos. 2. page 107. § xxxiv. he saith: "No doubt on't, as far as any church allows of mysteries, so far it is antichristian, and may with a great deal of justice, tho' little honour, claim kindred with the scarlet whore."

A representation of the upper house of convocation of a book, called "The balance of power." [March 22.]

WHEREAS this day a book entitled, "Essays upon I. The ballance of power; II. The right of making war, peace, and alliances; III. Universal monarchy, etc." was brought into the Jerusalem chamber, where his grace the archbishop of Canterbury, and the rest of the suffragan bishops of his province were assembled in convocation; in the 40th page of which book are these words: "Are not a great many of us able to point out to several persons, whom nothing has recommended to places of highest trust, and often to rich benefices and dignities, but the open enmity, which they have, almost from their cradles, professed to the divinity of Christ?"

It is desired by the said archbishop and bishops, that the author himself, whoever he be, or any one of the great many, to whom he refers, would point out to the particular persons, whom he or they know to be liable to that charge, that they may be proceeded against in a judicial way, which will be esteemed a great service to the church; otherwise the above mentioned passage must be looked upon as a public scandal.

The answer of the archbishop and bishops to the representation of the lower house of convocation concerning Toland's and other books. [April 8.]

UPON our consulting with counsel learned in the law concerning heretical, impious, and immoral books, and particularly concerning a book of Toland's sent up to us from the lower house, we do not find how without a licence from the king, which we have not yet received, we can have sufficient authority to censure judicially any such books; but on the contrary we are advised, that by so doing both houses of convocation may incur the penalties of the statute of 25 Hen. VIII.

Papers relating to the convocation of Ireland.

WE, whose names are underwritten, members of the lower house of convocation in Ireland, being desired by our brethren of the lower house of convocation in England to give them an account in their house of several rights and usages, enjoyed and practised by that house, of which we are members, did accordingly on Monday the fourth of February, M.DCC.V. give our answers to several questions proposed to us by the prolocutor; and being farther requested to draw up the substance of what we then delivered, do now in compliance with their desires give into the said house this following account, to be in such manner by them made use of, as they in their wisdom shall think most fit.

The members of the lower house of this present convocation in Ireland were summoned, elected, and returned by virtue of the praemunientes clause in the bishops parliamentary writs, which clause was executed by all the bishops throughout the kingdom; but the clergy deferred the electing of a prolocutor, and the proceeding to business, until the reception of the provincial writs by the several archbishops.

After the said reception of the provincial writs, the members met, in order to chuse a prolocutor, in St. Patrick's church Dublin, and were there directed by the bishops to proceed to the choice. They thereupon withdrew into the chapter house of the said church, where the dean of St. Patrick's took the chair, claiming it as his right to preside in that place, during the election; but the members would by no means allow his claim, nor did they proceed to the election, till he first quitted the chair.

He did then quit it, and the members elected him to preside, and assum'd a public notary to make a notorial act of the election.

As soon as the prolocutor was chosen, the dean of St. Patrick's, having declared the election, left the chair, and then the prolocutor, having put on his doctor's hood, was conducted into it by two of the members.

The prolocutor being in the chair, the house immediately chose the same person to be their actuary, whom they had before assumed as a public notary: all this was done before the confirmation of the prolocutor by the bishops.

The returns of all members were made to the several archbishops, and a list of the members of the lower house was transmitted to the lower house from the upper.

A standing committee of elections was at the beginning of the convocation appointed to judge of elections, if any should be controverted, but none were. The aforesaid committee and all other committees of the lower house were appointed by the sole authority of that house.

Calls of the house were frequent, and always appointed by the house itself, and all members were then ordered to appear in their several places; and when any upon such call were absent, and not satisfactory account was given of their absence, the prolocutor or the actuary was ordered by the house to signify to such members, that the house demanded their attendance: upon such signification of the commands of the house, the members do either appear personally, or send letters of excuse to the prolocutor; of which excuse the house judges, and either allows or disallows it, as they see cause.

When such excuse has been disallowed by the house, and the members have still neglected to appear, the names of such members contumaciously absent have been laid before the bishops; and when any of the said members have afterwards sent such excuses, as the house hath allowed, that allowance hath been signified to the bishop.

No member doth ever presume to depart from the synod without asking leave of the house, and no application (that we know of) hath ever been made to the bishops for their leave, till that of the lower house was first obtained; but when we have procured the leave of our own house, we look upon ourselves always obliged to crave that of their lordships also, they having a just right to our attendance on them in synod.

In case of a vacancy by the death or promotion of a proctor, or by one proctor's being chosen for two places, and declaring for which of the two he will serve, the lower house signifies such vacancy to the upper house, praying their lordships, that it may be supplied; and thereupon a mandate issues from the bishop of the diocese, in which such vacancies happen, for the election of a new member; which, when made and returned, is notified to the prolocutor by the upper house, and upon his reporting it to the lower, the person elected is by two members introduced into the house, and there takes his place.

When

When the upper and lower house have concurrent sessions, the lower house always continues sitting, till they have notice, that the upper house is adjourned; which notice was at first brought by the bishops actuary by word of mouth, but, to avoid mistakes, hath at the desire of the lower house since been brought by him in writing.

The form, in which this notice is given, is various; it is said sometimes, that the president, archbishops, and bishops; sometimes, that the archbishops and bishops have adjourned this convocation or the convocation to such or such a time and place.

The lower house do not upon such notice ever break up their session, but always proceed in their business, till a motion is made by some member of the house for adjourning; which motion by a standing order of the house can never (in a morning session) be made without leave of the house, before one a clock.

The prolocutor, before he puts the question of adjournment, reports to the house, what time the bishops have adjourned to; and then the lower house adjourns itself to that time, or to any time short of that by the authority and consent of the house: which power of the lower house to adjourn itself was own'd and allowed by the archbishops and bishops then in Dublin, in their answer to some queries sent to them by the right honourable the earl of Nottingham, then principal secretary of state in England, before the calling of this convocation.

The lower house doth very frequently hold intermediate sessions, which they look upon to be as regular, as those, which are concurrent with the sessions of the bishops; and do in their books stile them sessions, and number them among others without any discrimination.

All messages sent from the lower house to the upper, are reduced into writing, and signed by the prolocutor, and by him read in the upper.

The lower house doth admit members, who dissent from the resolutions of the house, to enter upon their books a protestation against such resolution, either with reasons or without; but the house never permits any thing to be entered, which reflects on the honour of the house.

We never heard of any protestation made in the upper house by members of the lower.

Such papers, as have been by the prolocutor offered to the bishops, have been by their lordships constantly received.

The sessions of the upper house, tho' less frequent than those of the lower, are yet so ordered by their lordships, that business hath never been interrupted for want of synodical meetings.

We do, in the last place, declare our deepest and most grateful sense of the paternal tenderness of our archbishops and bishops for the lower clergy, very observable in their lordship's great zeal and readiness to concur with them on all occasions in the recovery and preservation of their rights, and in every other good work; and are heartily thankful to almighty God, that we do enjoy all these several rights and privileges without the least struggle, contest, or difference with their graces and lordships; and do bless him for the perfect unity and harmony between both houses, which being so very conspicuous, we look upon to be a great security to that national church, a great discouragement to her professed enemies, and a great vexation and disappointment to the more close and dangerous underminers of her apostolic and orthodox constitution.

A letter of the lower house to the archbishop and bishops about books and writings. — [Febr. 19.]

To the most reverend the president, and the right reverend the bishops in convocation assembled.

THE lower house of convocation think it becomes them to remind your lordships of a motion formerly made by them concerning a bill "for the more easy and speedy recovery of church rates," and to pray your lordships, that till such a bill can be obtained, your lordships would use your best endeavours towards preventing those dilatory and expensive methods of proceeding in courts ecclesiastical, which have been so much complained of on that occasion.

They have likewise taken into consideration the representation of grievances formerly offered to your lordships, together with the speech of your grace relating thereunto; and are much concerned to find, that that representation, tho' containing sundry proposals of great importance, as they conceive, towards reviving the discipline of the church by a due execution of the canons already in force, hath not yet had its desired effect.

In the mean time they think it proper to observe to your lordships, that, notwithstanding her majesty's pious care to repress and restrain the great enormities of the stage, for which the then lower house moved your lordships without success, that the humble thanks of the convocation might be given to her majesty; yet they find still great reason to complain of the immorality and profaneness of the stage, stage, of which there is a fresh flagrant instance in a profane prologue lately spoken at the opening of the new theatre in the Hay-market, and since printed and published.

They do also look upon themselves as in duty bound to complain to your lordships of the daring insults upon the clergy, the universities, and the constitution itself continually made by the licentious writers, particularly by the authors of the "Review" and "Observer"; and to pray your lordship's concurrence in an humble representation to her majesty of this great grievance and of the mischiefs, which must redound to our holy church and religion, if such open assaults upon our order, upon the places of our education, and upon our legal establishment shall continue to be made with impunity.

As likewise to inform your lordships of the scandal given to all good christians by an assembly of sectaries, under the name of Unitarians, publicly held in the city of London, the teacher whereof is notoriously known to have been convicted of denying the divinity of our blessed Saviour.

And moreover to acquaint your lordships with the late lewd and profane writings of Edmund Hickingill, rector of St. Mary's Colchester, which have brought so great scandal upon our church and holy order. And they must at the same time declare their grateful sense of the pastoral vigilance and exemplary zeal of the right honourable and right reverend the present lord bishop of London, of which he hath given constant proofs in endeavouring to bring such offenders to condign punishment; but hath met with insuperable difficulties therein; the removal of which by such methods, as may be effectual, doth, in the opinion of this house, highly deserve the mature consideration of this provin-

Nor can they omit taking notice of the present endeavours of several reformed churches to accommodate themselves to our liturgy and constitution, mentioned in the late form of an address sent down by your lordships. They are very desirous of knowing your lordships opinion, in what manner it may be proper for this convocation, with her majesty's leave and encouragement, to express their great satisfaction to find in them such good dispositions, and their readiness to maintain and cherish such a fraternal correspondence with them, as may strengthen the interest of the reformed religion against the common enemy.

They do further propose to your lordships consideration, what fit methods may (with the same leave and encouragement) be taken by this synod, for inviting and inducing the pastors of the French protestant churches among us to use their best endeavours with their people for an universal reception of our liturgy; which hath had the approbation of their most eminent divines, hath been long used in several of their congregations within this kingdom, and by her majesty's special influence hath been lately introduced into the French congregation held in the chapel near her royal palace.

They do, in the last place earnestly desire your lordships, that some synodical notice may be taken of the dishonour done to the church by a sermon preached by Mr. Benjamin Hoadly at Saint Lawrence Jewry Sept. 29. M.DCC.V. containing positions contrary to the doctrine of the church, expressed in the first and second parts of the homily against disobedience or wilful rebellion.

These several heads of information and complaint they are ready to make good by special proofs, whenever your lordships shall be pleased to demand them.

His grace the lord archbishop of Canterbury's circular letter to the right reverend the lords bishops of his province: in which is inserted her majesty's gracious letter to him of the eighth of April, M.DCC.VII. relating to matters in convocation.

To the right reverend the lord bishop of —

ON the eighth day of this instant April I received a letter from her most gracious majesty, the contents of which I was therein required to communicate to the bishops and clergy of my province in convocation assembled.

The convocation at that time stood prorogued to April the tenth, on which day we met; and those of the lower house, who were present, being call'd up to the Jerusalem chamber, I did, in pursuance of her majesty's order, communicate to them her said gracious letter.

But the prolocutor being absent, and very few of the lower house appearing, I thought it proper, in a matter of so great importance, to acquaint all the clergy of my province not only with the letter it self, but with divers other matters, which give light to it, and without which those, who were absent, will not be able to comprehend the full scope and intention of it.

I would therefore desire you to acquaint the clergy of your diocese, as soon as conveniently you can, with the following particulars.

On the twelfth of February last, by virtue of a royal writ then received, I prorogued the convocation to March the fifth following.

On the 19th of March the lower house did, by their prolocutor, deliver to the president an application in these words:

To

To the most reverend his grace the lord archbishop of Canterbury, and the right reverend the bishops of the upper house of convocation.

May it please your grace, and your lordships.

"We the clergy of the lower house of convocation beg leave to acquaint your lordships, that some of our members have carefully compared the several royal prorogations of the parliament, and of the synod of the province of Canterbury, from the year of our Lord M.D.XXXII. when the first royal writ for proroguing the convocation issued, to the year of our Lord M.DCC.V. when this present convocation first assembled.

Upon the perusal of a schedule thereof, which we are ready to lay before your lordships at your next session, your lordships will be pleased to observe, that within the period abovemention'd, containing one hundred seventy three years, there is no one instance of a writ of prorogation issuing, during the session of parliament, to dismiss the clergy, when met in convocation.

We do therefore in all humility and earnestness beseech your lordships, that out of that conscientious regard, which we doubt not but your lordships have for the welfare of the church of England, you will use your utmost endeavours, that your lordships, and the clergy of this province may enjoy the same usages, which your lordships protestant predecessors and ours have been in constant possession of, and have never misemploy'd."

As to the schedule mention'd in the foregoing paper, for the support of their assertion therein, they did not bring it up till March 26. on which day it was offer'd and receiv'd.

After a perusal of it, the president and his suffragans caus'd a paper to be drawn up at large, containing a vindication of her majesty's proceeding; together with observations on their schedule, and an appendix relating further to it. But the matter of the said application being of so high and nice a nature, they did forbear, at that time, to give them any other answer than this, which follows:

April 2. M.DCC.VII.

Mr. prolocutor, and the rest of the clergy with you.

"We have perused and consider'd your application brought up on the 19th of March last past, and your schedule mention'd therein, and brought up on the 26th of the same month; and are prepar'd to shew, that your assertion in the aforesaid application, together with what is offer'd as a support of it in the said schedule, is in many particulars far from being true.

But it appearing to us, that the matter therein contain'd does highly concern her majesty's royal supremacy (which she was pleas'd to declare in her gracious letter of Feb. 25. M.DCC.V. that she was resolv'd to maintain, as a fundamental part of the constitution of the church of England) we think it not proper to make any further step in relation thereunto, till we have humbly laid the same before her majesty.

On April 5. (the day to which the convocation was prorogu'd) some of the lower house brought up a short declaration; which, it seems, they had enter'd upon their minutes on Mar. 5. but did not acquaint the upper house therewith till the 5th of April; when the prolocutor, with four or five more, brought up the following paper:

May it please your grace and your lordships:

"The clergy of the lower house of convocation humbly pray, that when your grace shall be pleas'd to lay before her majesty the application and schedule lately brought up to your grace, the following declaration, made antecedently to their application, may also be laid before her majesty, as transcribed from the minutes; viz. that they did not thereby intend to enter into any manner of debate concerning the validity of the late royal prorogation, to which they have humbly submitted.

The same day (April 5.) the president and his suffragans having been informed, that divers of the lower clergy had dissented from the foresaid application, and that their dissent was enter'd in the acts of the lower house, did direct a copy thereof to be taken, and brought before them; which was done accordingly.

All the foregoing papers having been review'd, the president, with the consent of his suffragans, did humbly lay them, together with the schedule and vindication, before the queen; and her majesty, after consideration had of them, was pleas'd to send to the said president the abovemention'd gracious letter, a true copy of which is here subjoin'd:

ANNE R.

Most reverend father in God, our right trusty and right entirely beloved counsellor, we greet you well. In our letter to you, bearing date the twenty fifth day of February, M.DCC.V. which we directed to be communicated to the bishops and clergy of the convocation of your province, we declared our resolution to maintain our supremacy, and the due subordination of presbyters to bishops, as fundamental parts of the constitution of the church of England.

We did hope, that so plain a declaration of our royal intention would have been a sufficient warning to those of the clergy, whose innovations (contrary to the duty they owed to us, and their ecclesiastical superiours) gave us occasion to make it. Yet, contrary to our expectation, we understand, that not only the former illegal practices are continued, but also, by the proceedings laid before us by you and your suffragans, that the last prorogation of the convocation held before you, which you made by our command, signified in our writ under our great seal, has been by divers of the clergy of the said convocation in their application to you reflected on, as unpresided, and contrary to the ancient and constant usage of the convocation, which yourself and the bishops of your province were bound in conscience to have seen maintained and preserved to them. We are satisfied, that assertion is untrue in point of fact, and amounts to a plain invasion of our royal supremacy, which is reposed in us by the law and the constitution of the church of England; and that their subsequent declaration being evasive, and contrary to what they had before done, has rather aggravated, than lessen'd the guilt of so dangerous an attempt. As our repeated admonitions do sufficiently shew our tenderness for the clergy, so our firm resolution to preserve the constitution of the church of England, as by law establish'd, and our rightful supremacy (if any thing of the like nature be attempted for the future) will make it necessary for us (how unwilling soever we are to proceed to those measures) to use such means for the punishing offences of this nature, as are warranted by law. All which we require you to communicate to the bishops and clergy of your province in convocation assembled. And so we bid you very heartily farewell. Given

ANN, by the grace of God queen of Great Britain, France, and Ireland, defender of the faith, etc. Whereas in and by one act of parliament made at Westminster in the five and twentieth year of the reign of our late royal predecessor, king Henry the VIIIth reciting, that where the king's humble and obedient subjects, the clergy of this realm of England, had not only acknowledged according to the truth, that the convocation of the same clergy was always, had been, and ought always to be assembled only by the king's writ, but also submitting themselves to the king's majesty, had promised in verbo sacerdotii, that they would never from henceforth presume to attempt, allege, claim, or put in ure, enact, promulge, or execute any new canons, constitutions, or

I doubt not, but, in duty to our most excellent sovereign, in justice to the cause of the royal supremacy, and in tender regard to the welfare of our establish'd church, you will lay before the clergy of your diocese the foregoing account, which I here transmit to you, for that end, in the plainest manner, hoping it may be a means to detect the misrepresentation, and disappoint the designs of evilminded men. dinances provincial, or other, or by whatsoever other name they should be called, in the convocation, unless the king's most royal assent and licence might to them be had, to make, promulge, and execute the same, and that his majesty did give his most royal assent and authority in that behalf; it was therefore enacted by authority of the said parliament, according to the said submission and petition of the said clergy, amongst other things, that they, ne any of them should from henceforth enact, promulge, or execute such canons, constitutions, and ordinances provincial or synodal, upon pain of every one of the said clergy doing contrary to the said act, and being therefore convicted, to suffer imprisonment, and make fine at the king's will: and further by the said act as it it is provided, that no canons, constitutions, or ordinances should be made or put in execution within the realm of England by authority of the convocation of the clergy, which should be contrariant and repugnant to the king's prerogative royal, or the customs, laws, and statutes of the said realm of England; any thing in the said act to the contrary thereof notwithstanding: and lastly it is also provided by the said act, that such canons, constitutions, and ordinances provincial or synodal being then already made, which were not contrariant nor repugnant to the laws, statutes, and customs of the said realm of England, nor to the damage or hurt of the king's prerogative royal, should be still used and executed, as they were after the making of the said act, till such time as they should be viewed, searched, or otherwise ordered and determined by the persons mentioned in the said act, or the more part of them, according to the tenor, form, and effect of the said act, as by the said act, among divers other things, more fully and at large it doth and may appear; know ye, that we for divers urgent and weighty causes and considerations, us thereunto especially moving, of our especial grace, certain knowledge, and mere motion, by virtue of our prerogative royal, and supreme authority in causes ecclesiastical, have given and granted, and by these presents do give and grant full, free, and lawful liberty, licence, power, and authority unto the most reverend father in God Thomas, archbishop of Canterbury, primate and metropolitan of all that part of Great Britain called England, and to the rest of the bishops of the province of Canterbury, and to all deans of cathedral churches, archdeacons, chapters, and colleges, and to the whole clergy of every several diocese within the said province, that they the said archbishop of Canterbury, and the rest of the bishops of the said province, or the greater number of them, whereof the said archbishop of Canterbury, or in his absence, the reverend father in God Henry, bishop of London, or in both their absences, the reverend father in God George, bishop of Bath and Wells, to be one, and the rest of the clergy of this present convocation within the said province of Canterbury, or the greater number of them shall and may from time to time, during this present parliament, propose, confer, treat, debate, consider, consult, and agree of and upon such canons, orders, ordinances, and constitutions, as they the said archbishop of Canterbury, and the rest of the bishops of the same province, or the greater number of them, whereof the said archbishop of Canterbury, or in his absence, the said bishop of London, or in both their absences, the said bishop of Bath and Wells to be one, and the rest of the clergy of this present convocation within the said province of Canterbury, or the greater number of them shall think necessary, fit, and convenient for the honour and service of almighty God, the good and quiet of the church, and the government thereof, as by law established, to be from time to time observed, performed, fulfilled, and kept as well by the archbishops of Canterbury, the bishops and their successors, and the rest of the whole clergy of the said province of Canterbury in their several callings, offices, functions, ministries, decrees, and administrations, and also by all and every judges of the said archbishop's courts, guardians of spiritualities, chancellors, deans and chapters, archdeacons, commissaries, and their inferior ministers whatsoever of the same province of Canterbury in their and every of their distinct courts, and in the order, manner, and form of their and every of their proceedings, and by all other persons within the said part of Great Britain called England, as far as lawfully being members of the said churches may concern and oblige them; and further to confer, treat, debate, consider, consult, and agree of and upon such other points, matters, causes, or things, as we from time to time shall deliver, or cause to be delivered to the said archbishop of Canterbury in writing under our sign manual or privy signet, to be debated, considered, consulted, and agreed upon. And we do also by these presents give and grant to the said archbishop of Canterbury, and to all deans of cathedral churches, archdeacons, chapters, and colleges, and the whole clergy of every several diocese within the said province full, free, and lawful liberty, licence, power, and authority, that they the said archbishop of Canterbury, and the rest of the said bishops of the same province, or the greater number of them, whereof the said archbishop of Canterbury, or in his absence, the said bishop of London, or in both their absences, the said bishop of Bath and Wells to be one, and the rest of the clergy of this present convocation within the said province of Canterbury, or the greater number of them all and every the said canons, orders, ordinances, constitutions, matters, causes, and things so by them from time to time proposed, conferred, treated, debated, considered, consulted, and agreed upon, shall and may set down in writing in such form, as heretofore has been accustomed, and the same so set down in writing to exhibit and deliver, or cause to be exhibited and delivered unto us, to the end that we, upon mature deliberation by us to be taken thereupon, may allow, approve, confirm, and ratify, or otherwise disallow, annihilate, and make void such and so many of the said canons, orders, ordinances, constitutions, matters, causes, and things, as shall be by force of these presents considered, consulted, and agreed upon, as we shall think fit, requisite, and convenient. Provided always that the said canons, orders, ordinances, constitutions, matters, or things, or any of them, so to be considered, consulted, or agreed upon, as aforesaid, be not contrary or repugnant to, nor tend to make any alterations in the doctrine, discipline, or government of the church of England, as established by any act or acts of parliament made in England, and now being in force. Provided also, and our express will, pleasure, and commandment is, that the said canons, orders, ordinances, constitutions matters, and things, or any of them, so to be by force of these presents considered, consulted, or agreed upon, shall not be of any force, effect, or validity in the law, but only such, and so many of them, and after such time, as we by our letters patents under our great seal of Great Britain shall allow, approve, and confirm the same; any thing before in these presents contained to the contrary thereof in any wife notwithstanding. In witness whereof we have caused these our letters to be made patents. Witness ourself at Westminster the 23^d day of January, in the ninth year of our reign.

The queen's licence and heads of business to the convocation.

ANNE R.

MOST reverend father in God, our right trusty and right entirely beloved counsellor, we greet you well. Whereas by our royal licence to the present convocation of the province of Canterbury we have, among other things, empowered and authorized them to confer, treat, debate, consider, consult, and agree of and upon such points, matters, causes, and things, as we from time to time should deliver, or cause to be delivered to you in writing under our sign manual or privy signet, to be debated, considered, consulted, and agreed upon; we do accordingly hereby transmit unto you the heads of such matters, as we think proper for the consideration of the said convocation, which are as follow:

The drawing up a representation of the present state of religion among us, with regard to the late excessive growth of infidelity, heresy, and profaneness.

The regulating the proceedings in excommunications, and reforming the abuses of commutation money.

The preparing a form for the visitation of prisoners, and particularly condemned persons. For admitting converts from the church of Rome, and such as shall renounce their errors. For restoring those, who have relapsed.

The establishing rural deans, where they are not, and rendering them more useful, where they are.

The making provision for preserving and transmitting more exact terriers, and account of glebes, tithes, and other possessions and profits belonging to benefices.

The regulating licences for matrimony according to the canon, in order to the more effectual preventing of clandestine marriages.

All which points, matters, and things we do hereby direct to be debated, considered, consulted, and agreed upon by the said convocation, pursuant to our licence aforesaid. And so we bid you heartily farewell. Given at our court at St. James's the 29th day of January, M.DCC.X. in the ninth year of our reign.

By her majesty's command.

Report from the committee of the lower house about public charities. [March 2.]

TIS the opinion of this committee, that an humble application be made to his grace and the lords the bishops, desiring his grace and their lordships, that they would be pleased in such manner, as they shall judge most effectual, to recommend to the archdeacons, and others having jurisdiction in their respective dioceses, to use the best of their skill and authority with the ministers and churchwardens of the respective parishes, that all charities, given or to be given in perpetuity, be fairly entered in the register books of each parish, to which such charities belong; and also that copies of the said entries be transmitted to the bishops of each diocese respectively, to be inserted in their lordships registers; and also that a table of such charities be hung up in the several churches, to the end that a grateful remembrance of the several benefactors may be continued to posterity, and others may be incited to follow their good examples.

'Tis the opinion of this committee, that the charitable design of divers pious persons of providing libraries proper for the use of the poorer clergy, doth well deserve the encouragement and assistance of this synod.

The report of the committee of both houses about excommunications, and commutations of penance. [March 7.]

THE committee of the lords the bishops, and some members of the lower house of convocation, to whom it was referred to consider of the second head of matter, proposed by her majesty under her sign manual to the consideration of the president, and two houses of convocation, namely the regulating the proceedings in excommunication, and reforming the abuses abuses in commutation of penance, did accordingly meet in the Jerusalem chamber, and came to these following resolutions:

I. It is the opinion of this committee, that the best and most effectual methods for regulating the proceedings in excommunication will be the obtaining an act of parliament for a writ "De contumaci capiendo" in cases, which do not directly concern the christian faith, or reformation of manners, instead of the writ "De excommunicato capiendo;" and they are further of opinion, that this matter should be laid before her majesty.

II. It is the opinion of this committee, that some method ought to be taken to oblige every ecclesiastical judge not to pronounce or decree the sentence of excommunication against any party, till certain days after admonition given to the party offending, and notes in writing sent and delivered to the minister or curate of the parish, wherein the party offending does then inhabit or reside; that so the said minister or curate may advise and exhort the said party to submit to the courts, and so to avoid the highest censure of the church, being made sensible of the spiritual and temporal consequences of it.

III. It is the opinion of this committee, that no commutation of penance be hereafter accepted or allowed by any ecclesiastical judge, without an express consent given in writing by the bishop of the diocese, or other ordinary having exempt jurisdiction, or in case of the absence or too great distance of the bishop, or other such ordinary, then by some one or more ecclesiastical person or persons, delegated or duly approved to that purpose; and that no sum of money given or received for any commutation of penance, shall be disposed of to any use, without the like consent of the bishop, or other such ordinary; and that a register be kept in every ecclesiastical court of all such commutations, and of the particular uses, to which the said money has been applied; and that the said account be audited every year by the bishop, or other ordinary.

An additional clause to the first article.

Instead of meddling with the statute "De excommunicato capiendo," or making any change in that particular, it is proposed, that a short bill be drawn to extend the act 27 Hen. VIII. c. xx. which relates to the subtraction of tithes, only to such other cases, as shall be thought needful; and that ecclesiastical judges be therefore empowered to certify persons in those cases contumacious either to one privy counsellor, or to two justices of the peace, as by that act is required, in order to their imprisonment, till they shall find a sufficient surety to be bound for them, that they will give due obedience to the process, proceedings, decrees, and sentences of the ecclesiastical court.

A report of the committee of both houses about terriers, and account of glebes, tithes, and other profits belonging to benefices.

THE upper house having considered the report made from the committee appointed to consider that part of her majesty's letter, which relates to the making provision for preserving and transmitting more exact terriers, and accounts of glebes, tithes, and other possessions and profits belonging to benefices, after mature consideration had of that matter, came to the following resolutions:

I. That a calendar be made by every register or his deputy of the dates of all terriers remaining in the several offices or registries within this province, belonging to any parochial church or chapel, and delivered to the bishop of the diocese attested by the said registers or their deputies respectively, within one year after the ratification of the constitutions.

The lower house have maturely considered the paper relating to terriers sent down by your lordships marked num. iii. and have agreed unto it with the following amendments: [April 18. M.DCC.XI.]

I. The first article or paragraph they agree to without any amendment.

II. That where a full and exact terrier, or account of any parochial church or chapel, and the rights thereof, and of the minister thereof, and of the parish clerk hath not been delivered to the bishop within seven years last past, the minister and churchwardens of every parish, as well exempt as not exempt, shall make a true and perfect inventory, terrier, and account of the same within one year next after the ratification of these constitutions, according to such directions, as shall be given by the bishop of the diocese for that purpose. And the churchwardens shall deliver the same into court, together with an indented copy thereof, both the one and the other attested under their own hands, together with the hand of the minister, at the next visitation, that shall be held for the archdeaconry after the expiration of the said year; and the register for the archdeaconry shall return the same to the bishop of the diocese within one month next after the said visitation (if he shall then be within the diocese, or otherwise within one month after his first coming into it) upon pain of canonical censures and punishments to be inflicted upon every churchwarden and register, who (after canonical admonition) shall neglect or refuse to conform themselves to this constitution.

II. The

II. The second article they desire may be thus amended.

That where a full and exact terrier belonging to any parochial church or chapel, hath not been deposited in the bishop's office within seven years last past, the minister and churchwardens of every such church or chapel, as well exempt as not exempt, shall make a full and exact terrier within one year next after the ratification of these constitutions, according to such direction, as the proper ordinary shall give for that purpose; and the churchwardens shall deliver the same into court, together with an indented copy thereof, both the one and the other attested under their hands, together with the hand of the minister, at the next visitation, that shall be held after the expiration of the said year by the bishop, or other ordinary having exempt jurisdiction; and the proper register having compared and attested the said copies, shall within two months after the said visitation deliver back one copy to the said churchwardens, to be by them deposited in the public chest, where the writings of the parish or chapel are by law to be deposited, and shall deposit the other in the register of the ordinary, at whose visitation the said terrier was exhibited: which ordinary (if exempt) shall return an attested copy of the same into the registry of the bishop of the diocese, upon pain of canonical censures and punishments to be inflicted on every such minister, churchwarden, and register, who after canonical admonition shall refuse or neglect to conform themselves to this constitution. And that at the same time, that the aforesaid terrier is exhibited by the churchwardens, the minister shall exhibit an account of all other rights and incumbrances, profits and emoluments belonging to his church and benefice, together with an indented copy thereof signed by himself, the churchwardens, and some of the most ancient and knowing inhabitants; both which copies shall be attested by the register, and one of them returned to the minister, and deposited in the public chest of the church or chapel, the other shall be lodged in the several registries in the same manner, as the aforesaid terriers.

III. That the terriers of every diocese, when complete, shall be fairly copied in a book or books by the direction of the bishop; which book or books shall be collated with the originals, and attested by the subscriptions of those, who collated them (one whereof at least shall be a public notary) at the foot of every single copy; the said book or books constantly to remain in the custody of the bishop, to whose diocese they do belong.

III. To the third article they agree with this amendment lin. I. That when the terriers, and accounts of all the churches and chapels in each diocese are complete, and lodged in the bishop's registry, they shall be fairly —

IV. That the register of every diocese shall within one year next after the return of the terriers to the bishop, as before appointed, diligently collate and attest the same; and having so done, shall carefully lay up one copy of every such terrier in the bishop's registry and transmit the other to the several archdeacons, or their registers, from whom they received them, to be delivered by them to the ministers respectively concerned, at the next visitation to be held for the archdeaconry; which said copies so attested by the register, shall by the ministers and churchwardens of every parish be deposited in the public chest, where the writings of the parish are by law to be deposited. And if either the registers, or minister and churchwardens shall neglect or refuse to conform themselves thereunto, they or any of them so offending, shall be suspended, or otherwise censured, till they shall pay a due conformity to this constitution.

IV. The fourth article they desire may be omitted, the matter thereof being provided for in the 2^d and 3^d articles, as they are here amended.

V. That no terrier so to be laid up in the bishop's registry, as is before required, shall be permitted upon any occasion or pretence whatsoever to be carried out thence, without the knowledge and consent of the bishop himself testified in writing under his hand; and that all the said terriers shall by the register or his deputy be sorted or disposed in such method and order, with a table of references to them, as to the bishop shall from time to time appear most convenient for the better ordering and securing of the same.

V. In the fifth article, lin. 1. after the word "terrier" they desire may be added "or account." Lin. 3. after the word "hand" they desire may be added, "That security shall be given for the return thereof within a time limited, and that an entry shall be made in the register book of the said consent and security given." Lin. 4. after the word "Terrier" they desire may be added "And accounts."

VI. That every archdeacon shall in person or by his substitute visit his archdeaconry parochially after the rate of one deanry at the least every year, in such manner notwithstanding, that the visitation of the whole archdeaconry shall be completed within the space of six years at the farthest (which said visitation shall commence from the Easter next after the ratifications of these constitutions) and in such visitation shall diligently inspect the several terriers, and take account in writing of whatsoever he shall observe to have been defective in them, and shall likewise compare so much as he may of the churches and their furniture, the churchwardens edifices, and other particulars expressed in the terriers, and set down in writing, whatsoever he shall find differing from the terriers given in, and transmit an account of the same within three months to the bishop, to the end that due enquiry may be made concerning it, and where any neglect, fault, or omission has been, it may be speedily amended.

VI. The sixth article they desire may be omitted.

VII. And

VII. And whereas by one act of parliament made in the twenty second year of the reign of king Charles II. intituled, "An act for the better settlement of the maintenance of the parson, etc. in the parishes of the city of London burnt by the late dreadful fire there," it is required, that several transcripts should be taken of the assessments appointed by that act to be made, and disposed of in such manner, as by the said act (recourse being thereunto had) will more fully appear; that the minister and churchwardens of every such parish shall cause due enquiry and search to be made, whether those transcripts were then taken and disposed of in such manner, as by that statute was required, and make certificate thereof to the bishop of London, or other proper ordinary within six months after the ratification of these constitutions; or in case they were not, that then they will cause such transcripts to be forthwith taken, and laid up in the places mentioned in the said act, and within other six months certify the said bishop, or other ordinary, that they have done it, on pain of such penalties, as may by law be inflicted upon them for their neglect.

VII. In the seventh article, lin. 9. after the word "and" they desire these words may be inserted, "if they shall find they were, shall"—Lin. 13. after the first "ordinary" they desire these words may be added, "having peculiar and exempt jurisdiction." Lin. 14. instead of these words "on pain" they desire the word "under" may be put.

VIII. That a calendar be made by every register or his deputy, in whose office any endowments of churches or chapels are lodged, of the several endowments of churches and chapels within each diocese respectively, and delivered to the bishop, to be by him transmitted to the several archdeacons or their officials so far, as the churches or chapels within their respective jurisdictions are concerned; the same to be registred in the jurisdiction, to the end the clergy may have opportunity of knowing, where the endowments of their respective churches are lodged, upon any emergent occasion they may have to consult them.

VIII. In the eighth article, lin. 2. instead of these words, "any endowments of churches or chapels—within each diocese respectively, and"—they desire these words may be put, "any entries relating to the endowments, or other revenues of churches or chapels are lodged of the said entries and shall be"—

IX. That every dean and prebendary of any cathedral or collegiate church within this province, every archdeacon and other dignitary, who has any estate annexed to his dignity, shall within three years after the ratification of these constitutions cause an exact survey to be taken of all the lands, houses, and hereditaments belonging to the same, and, together with a copy of the lease or leases now in being, transmit the said survey to the dean and chapter, to which the dignity belongs, to be entered by them into a register to be provided only for that purpose; and that upon every renewal of any such estate to be made hereafter, a new survey and copy of the lease then made shall from time to time be transmitted in like manner to every such dean and chapter: the like to be done by every dean and chapter themselves as to such estates, as belong to them in common; and by all petit canons, vicars choral, and others, who have any estates belonging to the places, which they hold in any such cathedral or collegiate church within this province; for registring which survey and lease no chapter clerk shall demand or receive more than ten shillings a piece.

IX. In the ninth article, lin. 4. after the word "constitutions" add "or as soon after, as he conveniently can." Lin. 6. after the word "chapter" they desire these words, "by every dean and chapter themselves as to such estates, as belong to them in common," may be added.

X. That the archbishops and bishops do, as soon as conveniently they may, after the ratification of these constitutions require of their proper officers, whether such entries have been made of the augmentations given to any vicarages or curacies within their respective dioceses, as by the statute of the twenty ninth of king Charles II. cap. VIII. is required. And if upon enquiry it shall appear, that there have not, that they do give effectual order for such books to be provided, and such entries to be made, as by that statute is required in this behalf.

The house does further propose to your lordships, that in the intended canons about terriers care may be taken to revive and enforce the use of annual perambulations in all the parishes of this province.

Proceedings in convocation about rural deans.

Report of the committee of both houses about rural deans.

THE upper house having considered the report made from the committee of both houses appointed to consider of establishing rural deans, where they are not, and making them more useful, where they are, is come to the following resolutions:

I. It is the opinion of this house, that the number and extent of rural deanries may best continue according to the ancient division established by law and custom.

II. That a canon or constitution shall be drawn up declaring the office and powers of a rural dean; as particularly to enquire into the manners of the clergy and people, to visit and examine the state of parochial churches and chapels, with the chancels of the same, together with the ornaments and utensils thereunto belonging, as also the maners of rectors and vicars, and all ecclesiastical endowments; to enquire into the condition of schools, hospitals, parochial libraries, and the several gifts and legacies bequeathed to pious and charitable uses; and after such due enquiries, to represent yearly to the bishop, or to the archdeacon, or other ordinary any notorious crimes, scandals, errors, or defects in ecclesiastical matters or persons within the district of the said deanry, to be by them transmitted to the bishop, that so, if upon private admonition there does not follow a due reformation, then legal process may issue thereupon.

III. That in every diocese the persons to be appointed to the office of rural deans, shall be beneficed within the deanry, as rectors, vicars, or perpetual curates, and shall be resident upon their respective benefices or cures; men of the elder and graver sort of the clergy, and graduates in one of the two universities within this province.

IV. That the clergy of every deanry, or the greater part of them shall chuse a person thus qualified, who shall be presented by the archdeacon or other ordinary to the bishop for his approbation; and when approved, shall be appointed by the bishop under his hand to execute the said office for the term of three years, unless cause should appear to the bishop for altering the said term.

V. That a paper of instructions from the bishop shall be given to every rural dean so appointed, as above, without fee or reward, directing him how and in what manner to exercise that office; and that every dean so appointed, shall solemnly promise in the presence of the bishop, or any other person appointed by him, to execute the said office according to such instructions to the best of his skill and power.

VI. That it would be proper to consider, whether any privileges, or profits can be restored or conveyed to rural deans, to encourage them in the better execution of their office; as how far it may be practicable, that the rural deans shall be the only surrogates within their own district, to be appointed by the chancellors, or other judges ecclesiastical; and that the mandates of inductions be directed to the rural dean, to be executed by him, or any other neighbouring minister; and that the said rural deans be first nominated in all writs of enquiry "De jure patronatus," in sequestrations, and in all other commissions to be issued from the bishop or ecclesiastical court relating to any persons or matters within their respective districts; and that in all testimonials required by the bishop or other ordinary, relating to the abilities and manners of candidates for holy orders, curates, schoolmasters, or others within their said districts, a more particular regard shall be had to the testimony of rural deans.

VII. Nevertheless in those dioceses of this province, wherein rural deans have been hitherto constantly kept up with good effect, and in which the custom time out of mind hath been to chuse, appoint, or admit them in other manner, or for a longer or shorter term, than is before mentioned; it is hereby intended, that the ancient custom of such dioceses, as to the manner of the appointment and admission, and the term of their continuance in office, be still observed, unless the respective bishops of such dioceses shall think fit with the consent of the clergy to alter the same.

The lower house having considered the report from the committee of both houses relating to the establishment of rural deans, etc. and the paper sent down to them by your lordships upon that report, do agree to the first and third paragraphs of that paper without any alteration. [April 16. M.DCC.XI.]

The second paragraph they desire may be thus amended:

II. That a canon of constitution should be drawn up, declaring the office and power of a rural dean; as particularly to enquire into the manners of the clergy and people, into the condition of schools, hospitals, parochial libraries, and the several gifts and legacies bequeathed to pious and charitable uses; and when duly commissioned by the bishop, or archdeacon, or other ordinary, to visit and examine the state of parochial churches and chapels with the chancels of the same, together with the ornaments and utensils thereunto belonging, as also the maners of rectors and vicars, and all ecclesiastical endowments; and after such due enquiries, to represent to the bishop, or to the archdeacon, or other ordinary any notorious crimes, scandals, errors, or defects in ecclesiastical matters or persons within the district of the said deanry, that so, if upon private admonition there doth not follow a due reformation, then legal process may issue thereupon.

The fourth paragraph they desire may be thus amended.

IV. That a person so qualified for the office of a rural dean, shall be recommended by the archdeacons, having jurisdiction, to the bishops for their approbation; and where there are no archdeacons having jurisdiction, shall be nominated by the bishops; and when so approved or nominated shall be appointed by the bishops under their hands to execute the said office for the term of three years, unless great cause shall appear to the bishops, and archdeacons having jurisdiction, or to the bishops, where there are no archdeacons with jurisdiction, for displacing them sooner.

The fifth paragraph they desire may be thus amended.

V. That every rural dean so appointed, shall in the presence of the bishop, or some person by him deputed, solemnly promise to execute his office faithfully to the best of his skill and power.

VI. To

VI. To what was proposed in the sixth paragraph, the lower house return answer, that they are of opinion, that the privileges and profits therein mentioned may properly be restored or conveyed to rural deans; but desire that these amendments may be made in that paragraph; videlicet, that the words "shall be only surrogates," be changed into these words "shall be always surrogates."

And that the words, "the mandates of induction be directed to the rural dean to be executed by him, or any other neighbouring minister," be changed into these words, "The archdeacon's mandates of induction, or the mandate of the bishop, where the archdeacon hath no right to induct, be directed to the rural deans, and to any other rector, vicar, or perpetual curate within his deanry."

Instead of the seventh paragraph they desire these clauses may be added:

Saving in all these cases to all dioceses and archdeacons the several rights, to which either by prescription or express composition they may be intitled.

Nevertheless in those dioceses, where the directions given by the canon, now to be drawn in relation to the appointment of rural deans, shall not be observed, the rural deans shall not be intitled to the privileges and profits intended to be conveyed to rural deans by that canon.

Provided, that where it shall happen by reason of the smallness of any rural deanry, that no person qualified, as the third article requires, can be found to execute the mandate of induction, in such case it may be executed by any of the clergy of the adjacent deanry.

The upper house of convocation having considered the amendments made by the lower house to the paper sent down to them concerning the establishment of rural deans, have agreed to them with the following amendments: [April 25. M.DCC.XI.]

Paragraph the 4th leave out the word "great" after "unless."

In the same paragraph after "to the bishops" leave out "and archdeacons, etc." to "for displacing them sooner."

And leaving out the paragraph beginning with these words, "Nevertheless in these dioceses."

The lower house have considered the amendments sent down by your lordships relating to the paper about rural deans, and cannot agree to the two first of those amendments. The reasons of their disagreement are contained in the following paper. [May 5. M.DCC.XI.]

May it please your lordships.

The 4th paragraph of the paper relating to rural deans, as sent up by the lower house to your lordships, contained the following clause: "unless great cause shall appear to the bishops and archdeacons having jurisdiction, or to the bishop, where there is no archdeacon with jurisdiction, for displacing them sooner."

This clause your lordships propose should be thus amended: "unless cause shall appear to the bishops for displacing them sooner."

To this amendment the lower house disagrees for the following reasons:

I. Rural deans by the nature and duty of their office are ministerial both to the bishop and archdeacon, and your lordships have been pleased to agree, that they shall be appointed by both jointly; and the clergy do humbly conceive, that the same reason will equally hold for the displacing of them by both jointly.

II. What is conceived to be thus reasonable in itself, is expressly enjoined and determined in the body of the canon law under the title "De officio archidiaconi;" which chapter is a decretal epistle of Innocent the third, and contains as follows: "Subsequenter," etc.

III. That no doubt may remain whether the foregoing decretal epistle, and particularly this clause of it was received in England, the same rule of placing and displacing rural deans by the bishop and archdeacon jointly is laid down by Athon and Lynwode in their several commentaries upon the legatine and provincial constitutions, and in both with express reference to the said decretal epistle. In the legatine constitution of Otho, intituled "De vii. sacramentis," is this clause: "Archidiaconi vero in singulis conventibus suorum decanatum sacerdotes in his maxime studeant erudire," etc. where left the mention of "decanatum suorum" with immediate reference to the archdeacons should be thought to imply, that rural deans are subject to the archdeacons alone; the gloss of Jo. de Athon cautions us not to argue from that expression, "Quod decanatus rurales, et per consequens decani ibi praefecti sunt ipsorum archidiaconorum, sed certe (salva consuetudine locorum) tam praefici debent decani tales, quam etiam amoveri per episcopum et archidiaconum simul de jure;" and then he refers to the decretal epistle above-said.

Also in the provincial constitutions tit. "De judiciis c. 1. in causis," where the words of the constitutions are: "Statuimus, ut decani rurales nullam causam matrimonialem de caetero audire praesumant:" the gloss of Lynwode upon the words "Decani rurales" is this: "De his legitur de offic. archid. Adhaec in fi. ubi dicit Innocentius, quod sunt personae habentes quaedam officia, communiter spectantia ad episcopum et archidiaconum; et ideo communiter eorum receptio et amotio pertinet ad utrumque, ut ibi dicitur in textu."

For these reasons it is humbly hoped, that your lordships would be pleased to agree with the lower house in continuing your archdeacons the share, which the present constitution of our church gives them as in the appointing, so also in the displacing of rural deans.

To

To the third amendment proposed by your lordships they have agreed with the addition of a request to your lordships, which has passed the house in the words following:

The lower house do not insist upon the clause, which begins with the words "Nevertheless in those dioceses," but agree with your lordships in the omission of it. They offered that proviso to your lordships out of a desire to procure an universal conformity to the constitutions now to be made; but since that is not approved, they submit to your lordships wisdom to think of such an expedient, as may be most likely to procure the conformity desired, and to make the rural deans, according to the directions given in her majesty's letter, still more useful, where they are.

The upper house of convocation have considered the reasons offered by the lower house for their disagreeing to the amendments made by the upper house in the 4th paragraph of the paper relating to rural deans, and think them not sufficient to induce this house to recede from the said amendments for the following reasons: [May 16. M.DCC.XI.]

I. In the first reason of the lower house for disagreeing to the said amendments it is alleged, that the bishops have agreed, that the said rural deans shall be appointed jointly by the bishop and archdeacon, and from thence infer, that they ought to be displaced jointly by both; whereas in this very paragraph it appears, that the rural deans are only to be recommended by the archdeacons, having jurisdiction, and appointed solely by the bishops under their hands; so that the foundation of this reason being laid upon a mistake in fact, the reason grounded upon it cannot but fail.

II. It appears from the second paragraph, as amended by the lower house, that the rural deans, when appointed, cannot perform the archdeacon's part in visiting churches, etc. without a particular commission from him, and consequently, that they are not immediately by their appointment to that office ministerial both to the bishop and the archdeacon, nor therefore intitled upon that account to hold the same, until they shall be displaced jointly by both. And therefore

III. The decretal epistle of Innocent III. which proceeds upon a general supposition, that the rural deans have equal relation to the bishops and archdeacons, and thereupon provides, that they should be as well placed as displaced by both, is not applicable to the present case, wherein the constitutions proposed have made another provision.

IV. That decretal epistle is of the least weight, for being written at a time, when the popes made it their business to lessen the authority of the bishops for the increase of their own, and for being the single ground of those glosses, which afterwards followed agreeable to it.

V. That of what weight soever it might be, while any rural deans subsisted here upon that foot, which that decretal epistle supposes, it cannot in the least oblige us to govern ourselves by it in a new establishment of rural deans, where they are not; especially if it be considered,

VI. That when that part of the canon law obtained, there was a saving to the different customs of several places, as appears by the gloss referred to by the lower house in their third reason. And therefore if this epistle did not in its fullest authority overrule those customs, there is much less reason, that, after it has been long out of use, it should determine the convocation in their measures of establishing de novo rural deans, where they are not.

VII. The archbishop and bishops in convocation assembled M.D.LXXI. did not think themselves bound by it, when in the chapter "Archidiaconi" they express themselves thus: "Peracta visitatione, archidiaconus significavit episcopo, quos invenerit in quoquo decanatu et doctrina et judicio praeditos, ut digni sint, qui pro concione doceant populum, et praesint aliis. Ex illis episcopus potest electum facere, quos velit esse decanos rurales."

VIII. Nor did it hinder the council of Trent itself, as little favourable as it was to the order of bishops, from going farther than this, when they were pursuing the matter of reformation, and decreeing Sess. xxiv. cap. 3. in these words, "Archidiaconi autem, decani, et alii inferiores in iis ecclesiis, ubi hactenus visitationem exercere legitime consueverunt, debeant quidem, assumpto notario, de consensu episcopi deinceps per seipsos tandem ibidem visitare."

IX. The lower house do not seem to think themselves bound by that papal decree, to which they refer, when they suppose in their request subjoined to their reasons, to break in upon those customs, which obtain in those places, where rural deans are found, in order to make them, according to the direction given in her majesty's letter, still more useful, where they are.

For if they think, and it may be very rightly, that those customs, which were saved by the gloss upon that canon, to which they refer, may be altered by a new constitution for the improvement of the state of the church; they cannot reasonably pretend, that the bishops are not at liberty to propose a new constitution for the establishing rural deans, where they are not, different from that papal decree, which has been so long out of use, if they think such new constitution more for the service of the church.

They do think the constitution proposed, as amended by them, best fitted to maintain and promote the good order of the church, and therefore insist upon their former amendments, and hope the lower house will observe the regard they shew to the archdeacons in agreeing to the other amendments made by the lower house in relation to them.

VI. And

And as to the request of the lower house, that we would think of some expedient, as may be most likely to procure a conformity in this matter throughout the province; we are ready to enter into the consideration of it, and to receive any proposals from the lower house about it, that we may not only establish rural deans, where they are not, but also make them more useful, where they are.

The lower house have considered the reasons, which your lordships sent down for your adhering to the amendment made in the fourth paragraph of the paper relating to rural deans, and they do humbly beg leave to represent to your lordships. [June 5.]

I. That where the lower house in their former paper speak of the joint appointment of rural deans by the bishop and archdeacon, their meaning is not, that they shall be admitted to the said office by the bishop and archdeacon jointly, but only that the bishop may not admit any person, but who shall be recommended to him by the archdeacon. In like manner, where they speak of rural deans being displaced by both, their intention is not, that the archdeacon shall be joined with the bishop in the act of displacing, but only, that the said bishop may not proceed to execute such act without the consent of the archdeacon; the authoritative act being in both cases equally reserved to the bishop.

II. That as rural deans by their office have been ministerial both to the bishop and archdeacon, so they will still continue ministerial by the present canon; and although they cannot proceed in one part of their duty assigned to them (videlicet the visiting of churches) without commission from the bishop or archdeacon; yet they will be obliged by their office to execute such commission, when directed to them; and it is humbly conceived, that no person, who is bound to execute the commission of another, becomes less ministerial to that order by a restraint from acting, till he hath received such commission.

III. That the rural deans still remaining ministerial to the archdeacon, as well as to the bishop, it is humbly hoped, that the inference, which the lower house drew from thence (videlicet that therefore the archdeacon ought in reason to be concerned together with the bishop in placing and displacing of them) will still be thought just and equitable.

IV. That whereas your lordships are of opinion, that the decretal epistle of Innocent the third is of less weight for being written in a time, when the popes made it their business to lessen the authority of the bishops for the encrease of their own; we beg leave to observe, that that declaration of the authority of the archdeacon over rural deans cannot (as we conceive) be reckoned among the methods invented and practised at that time for lessening the authority of bishops, in as much as that epistle doth not make rural deans ministerial to the archdeacon, but supposes them to be so by the nature of their office; nor is that decision grounded upon an arbitrary declaration of the pope, but upon an established maxim of law, which holds generally in cases of the like nature: "Cum ab omnibus, quod omnes tangit, approbati debeat; et cum commune eorum decanus officium exerceat, communiter est eligendus, vel etiam amovendus."

V. That the said epistle, and the glosses of Lynwode and Athon founded upon it, were not alleged by the lower house in bar to the right and authority of convocation to alter the law in this particular, but only to shew, that the power they desire in behalf of archdeacons, is agreeable both to law and reason of former times; and they do still humbly hope, that in as much as the reason of the law continues, your lordships will be pleased to agree, that the law itself (as in placing, so in displacing rural deans) may be enforced by the constitution intended to be drawn upon this head.

VI. That the directions given by the archbishop and bishops in M.D.LXXI. for the choice of rural deans (the authority of which directions we do not now dispute) do not expressly affect the right of the archdeacons in the point now under consideration; forasmuch as they prescribe only the method of appointing rural deans, but say nothing of displacing them. And however it appears not, that the clergy at that time had any opportunity of laying before their lordships the grounds and reasons of their claims in these particulars.

VII. That if your lordships shall not be pleased, that the share of archdeacons in displacing of rural deans be declared and confirmed in the present constitution, the lower house are content that these words [Par. 4. "unless great cause shall appear to the bishops and archdeacons, having jurisdiction, for displacing them sooner"] be wholly omitted; lest all the other heads of the said paper being adjusted, a disagreement between the two houses upon this one article should for the present disappoint her majesty's expectation, and deprive the church of the benefits, that may arise from a regular establishment of rural deans.

Proceedings in convocation about Mr. William Whiston's book, entituled, "An historical preface to primitive christianity revived."

Schedule of the lower house about the same.
[March 16. M.DCC.X.]

To the most reverend the lord archbishop of Canterbury, and the lords the bishops, his suffragans.

THE clergy of the lower house in synod assembled represent to your lordships, that a book hath, during this session of convocation, been published and dispersed through several parts of this province, entituled, "An historical preface to primitive christianity revived;" with an appendix, containing an account of the author's prosecution and banishment from the university of Cambridge, by William Whiston, A. M. and dedicated to the most reverend Thomas, lord archbishop of Canterbury, president, and to the right reverend the bishops of the same province, his grace's suffragans, and to the reverend the clergy of the lower house in convocation assembled.

This historical preface is humbly dedicated, and the papers therein referred to, with all due submission offered to their and the public serious consideration by the author.

This book contains assertions in our opinion so directly opposite to the fundamental articles of the christian religion, that out of our duty to God, our zeal for preserving the purity of the catholic faith, and our concern to prevent the scandal, that may arise from our silence, we think ourselves obliged to lay it before your lordships, praying your opinion, after what manner it may be proper for this synod stoproceed in relation to that book.

First letter of the archbishop of Canterbury to the bishops in the case of Mr. Whiston.

To the right reverend my brethren the bishops of the province of Canterbury in convocation assembled.

Whereas your lordships on the 19th day of March last came to some resolutions concerning a book lately published by Mr. Whiston, and in pursuance thereof did agree at the same time, that they should be laid before me for my opinion thereupon; I have already signified unto you, that I entirely agree with you in your resolution, that notice should be taken of the said book; and after having consulted such books and persons, as I thought proper on this occasion, I do now subjoin and offer my opinion concerning the further methods of proceeding therein as follows:

To proceed regularly in the censure of Mr. Whiston, two points are to be considered:

- I. The censure of the book and doctrine.
- II. The censure of the person.

I. In order to a censure upon the book or doctrine, two things seem necessary to be done; first to have the book well examined, and to fix upon the particular passages, wherein he has asserted his pernicious tenets most plainly and expressly; II. To fix the particular places of scripture, and in the council of Nice; and the articles of our own church, upon which the charge of heresy may be most clearly grounded.

II. In order to a censure of a person in a judicial way, there are three several methods, which you will weigh and consider well, in order to judge how far each of them will be safe and expedient, and how far effectual.

I. The first method is by the court of convocation, in which such a judicature hath been evidently exercised in many instances both before and since the reformation, and which seems to be the most desirable method in the present case, if the following difficulties do not stand in the way. First such a court being final or the last resort, from which no appeal is provided by the statute 25 Hen. VIII. c. xix. it may seem to be doubtful, how far a prosecution without appeal to the crown will be consistent with 1 Eliz. cap. I. § 17. whereby all jurisdiction, and particularly for reformation of errors, heresy, and schism, is united and annexed to the imperial crown of this realm; and also how far it will be consistent with the statute of appeals 25 Hen. VIII. c. xix. which in the course of the appeals directed to be thenceforth made, doth not mention convocation.

Secondly, It seems to be another difficulty, that there does not appear to have been any exercise of such a judicature for this last hundred years or thereabouts, in which time matters of such nature were usually considered and adjudged in the high commission court, while that remained; and when that court was suppressed, it was enacted 17 Car. II. cap. ii. that no court should be thenceforth erected with like power, jurisdiction, or authority, but that all commissions erecting any such court shall be void.

You will therefore think it fit to be duly considered, how far the revival of this judicial authority in a convocation, empowered to proceed and act by her majesty's commission or licence, may be construed an erecting of a court with like power, etc. as the high commission had.

Thirdly,

Thirdly, Since the disuse of such judicial proceedings, the writ "De haeretico comburendo" hath been taken away by the statute of 29 Car. II. c. ix. and you will also consider, whether the provision there made for the jurisdiction of protestant archbishops or bishops, or any other judge of ecclesiastical courts in cases of atheism, blasphemy, heresy, and schism, extends to convocation, or only to the ordinary and established courts of every archbishop and bishop.

Fourthly, In the year M.DC.LXXXIX. several heretical books having been complained of by the lower house, the bishop of London, president, and the then bishops, after mature advice and deliberation thereupon, returned this answer sess. XIII. "Quod conscii sunt, diversas esse clausulas perniciosas in libris allatis penes eos, pro directione dictae domus relictis; sed informati sunt per jurisperitos utriusque juris, proprias esse curias judiciales pro punitione delictorum hujusmodi, et eorum ferunt opiniones, non esse conveniens impraesentiarum sese his rebus immiscere."

II. The second method of proceeding in the present case, as I humbly conceive, is, for the archbishop to hold a court of audience, and calling to him his provincial bishops, as assessors there, to examine, proceed and give sentence, as in his court of audience; into which court he is fully empowered by a special proviso 23 H. VIII. c. ix. § 3. to cite any person out of his diocese, wherein he dwells, in case that the bishop, or any immediate judge or ordinary dare not, or will not convene the party to be sued before him; and from which court (as within the statute 25 Hen. VIII. c. xix.) a regular appeal lies to the queen's delegates in chancery.

III. The bishop, in whose diocese, he inhabits, may of his own accord cite him into his court; or the cause may be remitted or especially recommended to him, as his proper ordinary, by the archbishop and bishops in convocation, which we find hath oftentimes been done in cases of the like nature.

Of the three forementioned methods the two last seem to be most plain and clear in point of legality. But because the first is the most solemn, provided it may be pursued legally, and with safety to the archbishop, bishops, and clergy of the province, it seems to be necessary to lay the premisses, or what else may be the result of your own debates and deliberation, before her majesty, with an humble request as from the upper house, that her majesty will be graciously pleased to lay the case before her reverend judges for their opinions thereupon. I heartily recommend you to God the ruler and guide of his church, and remain,

Right reverend brethren,

Your most affectionate brother.

CANTERBURY.

The second letter of the archbishop of Canterbury to the bishops in the case of Mr. Whiston.

To the right reverend my brethren the bishops of the province of Canterbury in convocation assembled.

I send you herewith a letter, which I received on the 5th of this instant April from Mr. Whiston, whose case (as you have given me to understand) is just now coming under your consideration. I thought it proper for me to communicate it to you for your perusal, and thereby also to cut off all occasions of his complaining, that I smother any of his overtures. You will best judge, what use is fit to be made of this paper, and at what time. I desire the original may be kept as long, as you think convenient, in the hands of any of my substitutes, that shall be this day in the chair.

I cannot but observe one thing in this letter with some degree of admiration, that 'tis his earnest wish, that the incorrupt faith and practice of the gospel may prevail; and the profession, which he makes, that he aims to promote to the best of his own judgment and ability the purity of Christ's religion, whilst he would obtrude upon the world, as a considerable part of the canon of the New Testament, that very spurious and corrupt book of the constitutions.

I am, right reverend brethren,

Your most affectionate friend and brother,

Lambeth house, April 11. M.DC.CXI.

CANTERBURY.

To the queen's most excellent majesty.

The humble address of the archbishop and bishops of the province of Canterbury in convocation assembled.

May it please your majesty.

Whereas one William Whiston, a presbyter of the church of England, and late professor of mathematicks in the university of Cambridge, who was in October last expelled the said university, for asserting and preaching abroad divers tenets contrary to religion received and established by public authority in this realm, has since that time, and a little before the sitting of this present convocation printed and published an historical preface to other writings of the same pernicious design, intended for the press, in which he has advanced several damnable and blasphemous assertions against the doctrine and worship of the ever blessed Trinity, expressly contradicting the two fundamental articles of the Nicene creed, and defaming the holy Athanasian, and has had the confidence to inscribe and direct the said printed preface to the convocation now assembled; and whereas we take ourselves to be both bound in duty to God, and to his holy truths, and

and in obedience to your majesty's pious intentions signified to us with your gracious licence, to repress the said blasphemy, and also obliged in vindication of our firm adherence to the true faith, and for the preservation of the same in the members of our communion, to call the said Mr. Whiston before us, in order either to his amendment, or exclusion from the communion of the church of England, but do yet find ourselves hindered from going on by some doubts arising among ourselves concerning our power so to act and proceed; for that the court of convocation being final, or the last resort, from which no appeal is provided by the statute made in the 25th year of Henry VIII. c. xix. it may seem to be doubtful how far a prosecution, without appeal to the crown, will be consistent with the statute made in the first year of queen Elizabeth chap. i. sect. 17. whereby all jurisdiction, and particularly for reformation of errors, heresies, and schisms, is united and annexed to the imperial crown of this realm; and also how far it will be consistent with the statute of appeals made in the 25th year of Henry VIII. chap. xix. which in the course of the appeals directed to be thenceforth made doth not mention convocation; may it therefore please your most gracious majesty, out of your known zeal for the honour of God, and the good of his church, to lay this case before your reverend judges, and others, whom your majesty shall in your wisdom think fit, for their opinion, how far the convocation, as the law now stands, may proceed in the examining, censuring, and condemning such tenets, as are declared to be heresy by the laws of this realm, together with the authors and maintainers of them.

April 22. M.DCC.XI

Her majesty's answer.

To the most reverend father in God, our right trusty and right entirely beloved counsellor, Thomas, lord archbishop of Canterbury, primate of all England and metropolitan, and president of the convocation of the province of Canterbury.

ANNE R.

Most reverend father in God, our right trusty and right entirely beloved counsellor, we greet you well. Upon the consideration of the humble address delivered to us from you, and from the rest of the bishops of your province of Canterbury in convocation assembled, we have consulted our judges, and our attorney and solicitor general, how far the convocation, as the law now stands, may proceed in examining, censuring, and condemning such tenets, as are declared to be heresy by the laws of this our realm, together with the authors and maintainers of them, and we have ordered the opinions given by our judges, and our attorney and solicitor general to be transmitted to you.

We are pleased to find, that according to the opinion of eight of our 12. judges, and of our attorney and solicitor general, as the law now stands, a jurisdiction in matters of heresy and condemnation of heretics is proper to be exercised in convocation; and we cannot doubt, but the convocation will now be satisfied they may employ the power, which belongs to them, in repressing the impious attempts, lately made to subvert the foundation of the christian faith; which was one of the chief ends we proposed to ourselves in assembling them, as appears from the whole tenor of our letter of December 12. and from the first head of business, which in our two subsequent letters of January the 29th and February the 14th we recommended to their consideration. We trust, that these our royal intentions so often signified will not be without effect. And so requiring you forthwith to communicate this our letter, together with the opinions of our judges, and attorney and solicitor general herewith transmitted to you, to both houses of convocation, we bid you heartily farewell. Given at our court at St. James's the 8th day of May, M.DCC.XI. in the tenth year of our reign.

By her majesty's command.

DARTMOUTH.

The opinion of the judges concerning the power of the convocation.

To the queen's most excellent majesty.

May it please your majesty.

In humble obedience to your majesty's commands signified to us by the right honourable the lord keeper of the great seal, in relation to the humble address of the archbishop and bishops of the province of Canterbury in convocation assembled hereunto annexed, we, whose names are hereunto subscribed, have taken into consideration the doubts and questions therein stated.

And after conference with the rest of the judges, we are humbly of opinion, that of common right there lies an appeal from all ecclesiastical courts of England to your majesty, in virtue of your supremacy in ecclesiastical affairs, whether the same be given by express words of any act of parliament, or not; and that no act of parliament has taken the same away; and consequently that a prosecution in convocation, not excluding an appeal to your majesty, is not inconsistent with the statute of 1 Eliz. chap. i. but reserves the supremacy entire.

As to the question proposed in the said address, how far the convocation, as the law now stands, may proceed in examining, censuring, and condemning such tenets, as are declared to be heresy by the laws of this realm, together with the authors and maintainers of them? we understand it only to import these two things; whether a jurisdiction to examine, censure, and condemn such tenets, and the authors and maintainers thereof could ever be exercised in convocation? and if it once could, whether it be taken away by any act of parliament?

And we humbly lay before your majesty, that all our law books, that speak of this subject, mentioning a jurisdiction in matter of heresy, and condemnation of heretics, as proper to be exercised in convocation, both before and since the acts of parliament mentioned in the address, and none of them, that we find, making any doubt thereof; and we observing nothing in those, or any other acts of parliament, that we think has taken it away; we are humbly of opinion that such jurisdiction, as the law now stands, may be exercised in the convocation: but this being a matter, which, upon application for a prohibition on behalf of the persons, who shall be prosecuted, may come in judgment before such of us, as have the honour to serve your majesty in places of judicature, we desire to be understood to give our present thoughts, with a reserve of an entire freedom of altering our opinions, in case any records or proceedings, which we are now strangers to, shall be laid before us, or any new considerations, which have not occurred to us, be suggested by the parties or their council to convince us of our mistakes. All which we most humbly submit to your royal majesty's great wisdom.

May 4. M.DCC.XI.

To the queen's most excellent majesty.

May it please your majesty.

In humble obedience to your majesty's royal command signified to your judges by the right honourable the lord keeper, we, whose names are subscribed, have considered the questions mentioned in the address hereunto annexed, and are humbly of opinion, that since the statute of the 23 Hen. VIII. against citing out of the diocese, and those statutes of the 24th and 25th years of the same reign touching appeals, and as the law now stands, the convocation hath not any jurisdiction originally to cite before them any person for heresy, or any other spiritual offence, which according to the laws of the realm may be cited censured, and punished in the respective ecclesiastical courts or jurisdictions of the archbishops, bishops, and other ordinaries, who, we conceive, have the proper judicature in those cases, and from whom, and whose courts the parties accused may have their appeals, the last resort wherein is lodged in the crown. In which statute for citing out of the diocese, and in the others, as far as relates to appeals, for such offences, no notice is taken of the convocation, either as to jurisdiction or appeals. Nor doth it any way appear to us, in whom the pretended judiciary power of a convocation either before or since the said statutes (if any such they ever had) resided; whether in the whole body of the convocation, or in part. But it is plain by the first statute, that the archbishop's jurisdiction, even in case of heresy, is bounded, so that he cannot proceed against such offenders within any other diocese, than his own, without the consent, or in the default of the diocesan bishops: all which statutes being made for the use and benefit of the subjects, they cannot (as we humbly conceive) be deprived of the benefit of them by any pretence of jurisdiction in the convocation, from which we cannot find, or be informed of any instance of appeal. Nor have any judicial precedents or authorities for convening or censuring of such offenders in any convocation, since those statutes, or the reformation (which is near 180. years) appeared unto us; and if such power should be allowed to the convocation, we conceive it would invade the ordinary jurisdiction of the archbishops and bishops, which, we conceive, are preserved by the act of parliament made in the 17th year of the reign of his late majesty king Charles the first, chap. ii. and by another made in the 13th year of king Charles the second, chap. xii. and by the act made 29 Car. II. chap. ix. which took away the writ "De haeretico comburendo;" in none of which any mention is made of the convocation. And by the bill of rights 1 W. and M. it is enacted, that the commission for erecting the late court of commissioners for ecclesiastical causes, and all other commissions and courts of the like nature are illegal and pernicious. But we conceive that heretical tenets and opinions may be examined and condemned in convocation authorized by royal licence, without convening the authors or maintainers of them. All which we most humbly submit to your royal majesty's great wisdom.

The judgment of the archbishop and bishops, and the clergy of the province of Canterbury in convocation assembled, concerning divers assertions contained in a book lately published by William Whiston.

Whereas great offence hath been given to the church of God by several writings published by William Whiston, and particularly by a book lately dedicated by him to the convocation of this province, wherein that rash and insolent writer declares with the utmost assurance, that the Arian doctrine concerning the Trinity and Incarnation is the doctrine of our

blest Saviour, his apostles, and the first christians, and very uncharitably insinuates, that all, who have considered these matters, want nothing but the honesty or the courage to own themselves of the same opinion; we have thought ourselves obliged in maintenance of our most holy faith, and for the vindication of our own sincerity, for checking, if possible, the presumption of this author, and for preserving others from being seduced by him, to compare the dangerous assertions, he has advanced, with the holy scriptures, and the two first general councils, and the liturgy, and articles of the church of England, in order to give our judgment upon them.

Hist. pref. p. 7. And now it was, and indeed not till now, that I had all my evidence at once before me, and was able to affirm and assuredly pronounce, that the Arian doctrine was in these points (viz. the Trinity and Incarnation, as in p. 6.) most certainly the original doctrine of Christ himself, of his holy apostles, and of the most primitive christians.

Ibid. p. 81, 82. When the scriptures speak of one God, they mean thereby one supreme God the Father only.

The moderns call these three divine persons but one God, and so introduced at least a new, and unscriptural, and inaccurate, if not a false way of speaking into the church.

Errata p. 123. lin. 23, 24. To whom with the Father and the Holy Ghost, read "in the Holy Ghost," and dele "three persons and one God." These I allow to be mine own words, and to be agreeable to my own not uncertain opinion, but certain faith. I was once, as the world will see by the occasion of the latter erratum, in the common opinion, that the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, the three divine persons, were truly in some sense one God, or the one God of the christian religion; that is, before I particularly examined that matter in the scriptures, and the most primitive writers; but since I have thoroughly enquired into it, I am so fully satisfied, that the Father alone is the only God of the christian religion, that I must now own, that when once I deny or doubt of that doctrine, I must deny or doubt of our common christianity, there being no one article more plain or more universally acknowledged in all the first ages of the church, than that was.

Hist. pref. pag. 65. Pos. III. That the Son is inferior as well as subordinate to the Father.

Pos. VII. That the Son was begotten or created by the Father only before the world, whatsoever secret eternity he had before his generation or creation.

Reply to Dr. Allix p. 30. Prop. VIII. Jesus Christ, the Word and Son of God, is a divine being or person far inferior to his Father in nature, attributes, and perfections.

Hist. pref. p. 65. Pos. v. That the Holy Ghost is inferior, as well as subordinate to both the Father and the Son.

Reply to Dr. Allix p. 33. Prop. XIX. The Holy Spirit of God is a divine person made under the supreme God by our Saviour, or in a due sense proceeding from the Father and the Son, of different perfections and offices from the Son of God.

Hist. pref. p. 28. Since your lordship is so thoroughly sensible of the antichristianism of popery, I would fain know, how the substantiality and coequality of the Holy Ghost to the Father and the Son, on which soon followed his invocation, which only stands upon one letter of pope Liberius or Damasus, can by your lordship be looked on under any other denomination.

Append. to Hist. pref. p. 5, 6. This language, To the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, one God, whom we adore, is so entirely contrary to the nature of the christian religion, that I cannot go into it for any consideration whatsoever.

Hist. pref. p. 46. I allow, that the Blessed Spirit is to be worshipped in those forms; viz. baptism, doxology, and blessing; but never by invocation.

Hist. pref. p. 6. I cannot but look on this discovery, viz. that the λογος in Christ supplied the place of the νοημα or rational soul in man, as one of the most certain and most important of all others.

Reply to Dr. Allix p. 32. Prop. XVI. Jesus Christ, the Word and Son of God, when he was incarnate, was liable to temptations in his divine nature, and thereby suffered for us, as the rational soul is tempted and suffers in other men by its partaking of the temptations and sufferings of the body.

We do declare, that the above mentioned passages, cited out of the books of William Whiston, do contain assertions false and heretical, injurious to our Saviour and the Holy Spirit, repugnant to the holy scriptures, and contrariant to the decrees of the two first general councils, and to the liturgy and articles of our church.

And we do earnestly beseech all christian people by the mercies of Christ to take heed, how they give ear to these false doctrines, as they tender the honour and glory of our Saviour and the Holy Spirit, the preservation of the purity of the gospel, and the peace of the church.

And whereas the said William Whiston, the better to support his heretical opinions, speaking of a book commonly called the "Apostolical constitutions," hath these words Hist. pref. p. 85, 86. I have, I think, certainly found, that the apostolical constitutions, which the antichristian church has so long laid aside, as spurious or heretical, are no other, than the original laws and doctrines of the gospel, the new covenant, or most sacred standard of christianity, equal in their authority to the four gospels themselves, and superior in authority to the epistles of single apostles; some parts of them being our Saviour's original laws delivered to the apostles, and the other parts the public blic acts of the apostles themselves met in council at Jerusalem and Caesarea before their death. And this was the constant opinion and testimony of the earliest ages of the gospel.

We cannot but declare this assertion advanced concerning a book, which was never yet acknowledged as part of the canon of scripture by any general council, nor received as such in any christian church, to be highly absurd and impious, tending to create in the minds of christians great uncertainties as to their rule of faith, and to subvert that faith, which was once delivered to the saints, and is preserved in the sacred books of the New Testament received in our church.

The prolocutor's schedule to the upper house of convocation with a copy of Mr. Whiston's letter. [May 30. M.DCC.XI.]

May it please your lordships.

I am directed by the lower house to lay before your lordships this letter from Mr. Whiston, which was delivered to me on the last day of our session at the door of our house by Mr. Emlyn, the Unitarian preacher.

The lower house think it reasonable, that Mr. Whiston, according to his request, should have a copy of the propositions extracted out of his book, and that he should be permitted to make his explication and apology in relation to them.

To this end they judge it requisite that he should be cited forthwith to appear before the court of convocation, and they do hereby humbly and earnestly propose to your lordships, that he may by the authority of convocation be cited accordingly.

“Epistolae verus tenor sequitur in haec verba:”

London, May 28. M.DCC.XI.

Mr. Prolocutor.

Understanding, that there are some propositions extracted out of my books, in order to their being censured by the convocation as heretical, I cannot but make this address to you, and thereby to the lower house of convocation, to beg the favour of a true copy of those propositions, and some small time to make my explication and apology in relation to them. This is the known confessed privilege of all men, to be heard, before their doctrines are censured or condemned, especially when the crime is so heinous as that of heresy. I do not remember, where either papists or protestants, Turks or Jews, heathens or christians have wholly refused this common right of mankind; and so I cannot, without the severest reflection upon the honour and justice of the convocation, suppose it will or can be refused me in this case; nor shall I be able to avoid the most open and affecting complaints and appeals to the christian world, if this most equitable request be denied me.

I am, Sir,

Your very humble servant,

WILLIAM WHISTON.

Constitutions and canons ecclesiastical treated upon by the archbishops and bishops, and the rest of the clergy of Ireland, and agreed upon by the queen's majesty's licence in their synod holden at Dublin anno Domini M.DCC.XI. and in the tenth year of the reign of our sovereign lady Anne, by the grace of God queen of Great Britain, France, and Ireland.

ANNE, by the grace of God of Great Britain, France, and Ireland queen, defender of the faith, etc. to all, to whom these presents shall come, greeting. Whereas certain constitutions and canons ecclesiastical, treated upon by the archbishops and bishops, and the rest of the clergy of our said kingdom of Ireland, and agreed upon by our licence in the year of our Lord M.DCC.XI. and in the tenth year of our reign, have been humbly laid before us for our royal approbation; we having taken the same into our consideration, have thought fit to approve thereof in manner and form as followeth: viz.

I. For preventing extrajudicial dismissal of criminals, and stifling proceedings against them.

If any register, proctor of office, or other officer shall at any time stifle and suppress any crime, that the offender may not be brought to do penance, they shall be suspended from their respective offices by the bishop of the diocese or other ordinary; and if any vicar general, chancellor, commissary, official, or surrogate shall make any clandestine prevention of any public penance by an extrajudicial dismissal of any offender, he or they shall be suspended by the bishop of the diocese or other ordinary, and such dismissal obtained shall be null and void. And for further preventing the stifling or suppressing proceedings against criminals, the register shall keep a book, in which he shall enter all presentments of criminals, according to the time that they come into the office; which book shall be laid before the bishop or judge every court day, that he may be apprized, what causes of office are in the court, and be enabled to enquire, what proceedings have been made in them; and the said book shall be produced at every visitation of

of the diocese, where the presentments have been made. And if the register shall neglect to enter such presentments, or to produce the said book, when required, then he shall be suspended for the space of three months.

II. Concerning citations, and the manner of serving them.

Whereas all citations, issued out of the ecclesiastical courts in this kingdom, are in Latin, which gives occasion to several persons served with them to pretend, that they have not been sufficiently informed by the apparitor or other mandatory, that serves them, of the purpose or intent of the said respective citations; and on that account excuse themselves, when by their contempt they have incurred the sentence of excommunication; to prevent therefore all such pretences, whenever any citation or process shall issue out of any ecclesiastical court, the register thereof or his deputy shall at the bottom of such citation or process enter an abstract or docket in English, containing the name and surname of every person to be served with a citation, at whose instance they are cited, and for what cause, together with the time, when such person or persons are to appear, and the place where; and a copy thereof shall be left with the person so to be cited or processed, if the said person can be found; or in case the person so to be cited cannot be personally found, and is not out of the kingdom, then the said citation shall be shewed to, and the copy of the said docket or abstract shall be left with the son, daughter, menial servant, husband, wife, master, or mistress of the person so to be cited (such son, daughter, or menial servant being of sixteen years of age) at the usual place of abode of the said person so to be cited; or in case the person so to be cited hath no house, or be an inmate or lodger in any house, then it shall be sufficient service, to leave the said copy with a son, daughter, menial servant, master, or mistress belonging to the said house, where the person so to be cited shall be a lodger or inmate, such son, daughter, or menial servant being, as aforesaid, above the age of sixteen years. But if the person so to be cited, be a loose vagabond without any certain abode, then the court shall proceed in the usual form.

III. To prevent abuses in commutation of penance.

For preventing abuses in commutations of penance, suitable penance shall be decreed for every crime; and the said penance, or any part of it shall not be relaxed or commuted by any vicar general, chancellor, or official of the diocese without consent of the bishop of the diocese; or in the absence of the bishop, by the consent of two or more grave clergymen, commissioned by the said bishop for that purpose; which consent shall be signify'd under the hand and seal of the said bishop or clergymen. And neither the said bishop or clergymen shall allow any commutation for the whole penance enjoin'd, but only for some part thereof, which may be thought inconvenient to be executed; and the mony taken on such commutations, shall be employed by appointment of the bishop, or clergymen deputed by him, on some pious or charitable work, to be performed in the parish, where the crime was committed.

IV. Public warning to be given before excommunication.

That contumacious persons may be the more inexcusable, when they persist in their own obstinacy 'till excommunication; for the future, with every citation against such contumacious person "ad videndum se excommunicari," there shall issue a mandate, directed to the minister or person officiating in the church, where the person, so to be excommunicated, is obliged to frequent divine service; or to the minister of some neighbouring parish in the same diocese, where there is divine service, requiring the said minister next Lord's day, or the next Lord's day following that at farthest, after the said mandate shall come to his hand, to read the abstract or docket in English of the said citation in church, in time of divine service; and publickly warn the party, if present, of his or her danger; and, if not present, admonish the people to take notice of it, and signify it to the party, if they meet him or her. And no sentence of excommunication shall be read, till the judge be certified, that the said mandate has been executed a fortnight before the time of excommunication, or the judge has personally admonished the contumacious person. And every minister or curate, to whom such a mandate is directed, shall enter a certificate under his hand and seal on the back of the said mandate, that it hath been duly executed, and deliver the said mandate and certificate to the mandatory, that executeth the citation, on demand, under pain of suspension. And then, if the judge shall think it needful to proceed to excommunication, if he be a presbyter, he shall read, and if not, he shall provide some grave presbyter to read the sentence of excommunication in open court.

V. For the more effectual prevention and discovery of clandestine marriages,

For the more effectual prevention of clandestine marriages, we constitute and appoint, that every person, who is married clandestinely, where neither banns according to the rubric have been published, or licence obtained, or where the said marriage is solemnized by a person not qualify'd by law, or in any other form, than that, which is prescribed by the church of Ireland, as by law established, and all, that are present at such marriages, shall be obliged to do public penance; and that the parties, so clandestinely married, shall be obliged to discover the person, that married or pretended to marry them, under pain of excommunication, from which they shall not be absolved, before they make such discovery.

Proposals of the lower houſe of convocation about matrimonial licences.
[April 30.]

WHEREAS it is by experience found, that notwithstanding the wholeſome proviſions made by the eccleſiaſtical law of this realm againſt irregular and clandestine marriages, yet through the corrupt practices of ſeveral diſorderly perſons, who are not ſufficiently reſtrained by the cenſures of the church, the holy office of matrimony is often performed after an undue and clandestine manner, from whence many and great inconveniences do ariſe; for the more effectual remedying and preventing thereof, be it enacted by the queen's moſt excellent majeſty, by and with the advice and conſent of the lords ſpiritual and temporal, and commons in parliament aſſembled, and by the authority of the ſame, that from and after — — every parſon, vicar, or curate, who ſhall marry, or who knowingly and willingly ſubſtitute or permit any ſuch miniſter in his ſtead to marry any perſons whatſoever in any church or chapel, exempt or not exempt, or in any other place whatſoever, without publication of the banns of matrimony between the reſpective perſons according to law, or without licence for the ſaid marriage firſt had and obtained, and alſo all perſons, who ſhall be ſo married without banns or licence, ſhall ſeverally for every offence forfeit the ſum of — together with full coſts of ſuit to ſuch perſon or perſons, as will ſue for the ſame in any of her majeſty's courts of record. And be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, that every parſon, vicar, or curate, who ſhall marry any perſon in any priſon, or within the rules and precincts thereof, or in any taverns, or other public houſes, and alſo all perſons, who ſhall be married in ſuch places, ſhall for ſuch offence be proſecuted according to the eccleſiaſtical laws of this realm, and being duly convicted, ſhall upon certificate of ſuch conviction made by the ordinary to two juſtices of the peace of the town or county, where the perſon or perſons ſo offending do inhabit, be by them committed to the common goal of the ſaid town or county, there to remain cloſe priſoners without bail or mainprize for one whole year from the day of their commitment, and ſhall ſeverally forfeit the ſum of — And be it further enacted, that every keeper of any priſon, tavern, or public houſe, in which any ſuch undue marriages ſhall with his privy and conſent be celebrated, ſhall forfeit the ſum of — And be it enacted that if any perſon, falſly pretending to have received holy orders according to the conſtitutions of the church of England, ſhall preſume to marry any perſons, according to the form and rights of matrimony preſcribed in the liturgy of that church, he ſhall for ſuch offence be committed by one or more juſtices of the peace of that county, where he liveth, or where he committed ſuch offence, to the common goal of the ſaid county, there to remain cloſe priſoner without bail or mainprize for one whole year from the day of his commitment, and moreover to forfeit the ſum of — And be it enacted by the authority aforeſaid, that every eccleſiaſtical judge, having power to grant licences or diſpenſations without thrice open publication of the banns, ſhall be, and is hereby obliged not to grant any ſuch licence or diſpenſations, without obſerving the rules and orders of the church of England; that is to ſay, the ſaid judge ſhall take good caution and ſecurity containing theſe conditions: Firſt, that at the time of granting every ſuch licence, there is not any impediment of precontract, conſanguinity, affinity, or other lawful cauſe to hinder the ſaid marriage. II. That there is not any controverſy or ſuit depending in any court before any eccleſiaſtical judge, touching any contract of marriage between either of the ſaid parties with any other. III. That the ſaid parties (except in caſe of widowhood) have obtained the expreſs conſent of their parents, if they be living, or otherwiſe of their guardians or governours. IV. That they ſhall celebrate the ſaid marriage publickly in the pariſh church or chapel, where one of them dwelleth, and in no other place, and that between the hours of eight or twelve in the forenoon. Moreover before any ſuch licence be granted, it ſhall appear to the judge himſelf, or to ſome other perſon of good reputation, and known likewiſe to the ſaid judge, that the expreſs conſent of parents or parent, if one be dead, or the guardians or guardian of the parties is thereunto had and obtained, except in caſes of widowhood. And furthermore one of the parties ſhall perſonally ſwear, that he believes, there is no let, or impediment, or precontract, kindred, or alliance, or any other lawful cauſe whatſoever, or any ſuit commenced in any eccleſiaſtical court, to bar or hinder the proceeding of the ſaid matrimony, according to the tenor of the ſaid licence. And if any judge ſhall grant any licence or diſpenſation for matrimony, without fully obſerving all and every of the ſaid conditions, or any proctor or register ſhall be aiding and aſſiſting in the procuring or ſpeeding any licence or diſpenſation for marriage without the ſaid conditions, he and they ſhall reſpectively forfeit the ſum of — and the like ſum of — ſhall be forfeited by each of the perſons, making the aforeſaid oath before the eccleſiaſtical judge, that the parents or guardians of the parties to be married, are conſenting to the marriage, for which a licence is prayed, if it ſhall afterward appear on ſufficient proof made before the judge, judge, who granted the said licence, that the parents or guardians were not consenting. And be it further enacted, that printed copies of this act be dispersed through all parish churches and chapels of this kingdom.

Whereas sundry ordinances, canons, and constitutions have been formerly made for preventing irregular and clandestine marriages, and for the regulating of faculties or licences granted for the solemnization of matrimony; we enjoin them all to be carefully observed by all persons, whom they concern, upon the several penalties of the said ordinances, canons, and constitutions expressed. And for the more effectual preventing of such clandestine marriages, as well as for the reformation of sundry and grievous abuses in the granting and obtaining such licences; we do further ordain and decree, that no parson, vicar, or curate, upon pain of suspension per triennium ipso facto, ut supra.

BREVE regium dat. August. 18. praelatos et clericum prov. Cantuar. ad 12. diem mensis Novemb. convocabat; sed nihil in hac synodo tractatum fuit ante literas reginae sequentes.

The queen's letter to the convocation about business for them.

MOST reverend father in God, our right trusty and right entirely beloved counsellor, we greet you well. Whereas by our royal licence to the present convocation of the province of Canterbury we have, among other things, empowered and authorized them to confer, treat, debate, consider, consult, and agree of and upon such points, matters, causes, and things, as we from time to time should deliver, or cause to be delivered to you in writing under our sign manual or privy signet, to be debated, considered, consulted, and agreed upon; we do accordingly hereby transmit unto you the heads of such matters, as we think proper for the consideration of the said convocation, which are as follow:

The regulating the proceedings in excommunications, and reforming the abuses of commutation money.

The preparing a form for the visitation of prisoners, and particularly condemned persons. For admitting converts from the church of Rome, and such as shall renounce their errors. For restoring those, who have relapsed.

The establishing rural deans, where they are not, and rendering them more useful, where they are.

The making provision for preserving and transmitting more exact terriers, and accounts of glebes, tithes, and other possessions and profits belonging to benefices.

The regulating licences for matrimony according to the canon, in order to the more effectual preventing of clandestine marriages.

All which points, matters, and things we do hereby direct to be debated, considered, consulted, and agreed upon by the said convocation, pursuant to our licence aforesaid. And so we bid you heartily farewell. Given at our court at St. James's the 17th day of March, in the thirteenth year of our reign.

By her majesty's command.

BOLINGBROKE.

To the most reverend father in God, our right trusty and right entirely beloved counsellor Thomas, lord archbishop of Canterbury, primate of all England, and president of the convocation of the province of Canterbury.

The form for regulating proceedings in excommunications, and reforming the abuses by commutation money, as agreed by both houses of convocation. [April 30.]

IT is the opinion of this house, that the best and most effectual method for regulating the proceedings in excommunication, will be the obtaining an act of parliament for a writ "De contumaci capiendo," instead of that "De excommunicato capiendo," in all such causes, as follow; that is to say, in all causes of instance between party and party; and in all causes of office, as either are testamentary, or do concern the parishioners for not duly paying their church rates; and also in such as have relation to the licensing of physicians, chirurgeons, and midwives; and further that in other causes of office, even such as do more immediately and directly concern the christian faith and reformation of manners, if any controversy shall arise concerning the payment of fees, and the party proceeded against, shall refuse to submit submit therein to the authority of the court, sentence of contumacy only, and not that of excommunication shall be decreed or pronounced by the ecclesiastical judge against such party on account of such refusal; that the sentence of contumacy shall be sent to the minister of the parish, where the contumacious party dwells, under the seal of the court, and that the said minister shall openly publish it in the church in the time of divine service on the next Lord's day but one, after he has received it; and that all civil incapacities and disabilities, to which persons excommunicated are now subjected by the sentence of excommunication, shall for the future follow upon the sentence of contumacy being so published by the minister, as aforesaid, against any offender: and they are further of opinion, that this matter, before it be offered in parliament, should be humbly laid before her majesty.

II. If such an act of parliament, as in the former article is proposed, shall be obtained, we are further of opinion, that whenever any person is by any ecclesiastical judge decreed to be excommunicated, the schedule of excommunication shall not be read in court, until thirty days are expired after the making of such decree. And for the more deliberate and solemn proceeding in a matter of this high nature, due notice in writing shall forthwith be given of such decree made, and of the sentence, which will issue in pursuance thereof, not only to the party decreed to be excommunicated, but moreover to the minister officiating in the parish, where the said party dwells; which minister between the time of his receiving such notice, and the third Lord's day after the receipt thereof shall endeavour to apply himself privately to the said party, and to prevail with him to prevent the dreadful sentence of excommunication by a timely and dutiful submission to the authority of the church; and if the party shall not hearken to such private advice, and shall not promise under his hand to submit to the authority of the church, then the minister shall on the third Lord's day after notice of the aforesaid decree, make an open publication thereof in the church at the time of divine service, and shall represent the extreme danger of being cut off from the communion of the faithful, according to a form provided for that purpose. And after such private and public admonition, where both have been used, or of such private warning only, where that alone hath proved effectual, the minister shall by the proper officer of the court (who shall call upon him for that purpose) transmit to the ecclesiastical judge an account of his proceedings, and of the effect thereof. Provided nevertheless, that if, after the care taken for preventing the sentence of excommunication by notifying the decree thereof both to the party, and to the minister of the parish in the manner above directed, the said party shall not within thirty days after the making such decree submit to the authority of the court; the ecclesiastical judge shall then without delay proceed to excommunicate the said party by reading, or causing to be read in court the sentence of excommunication, although the minister of the parish hath neglected or omitted to do any of the things enjoined; and in case of any such neglect or omission, the said judge shall notify the same to the bishop, who, if upon enquiry he see cause, shall himself proceed, or by writing under his hand direct process to be made for his contempt in such neglect or omission.

III. That in all crimes of ecclesiastical cognizance the judge and register shall send out their citations within three months at furthest after presentment duly made; and that no ecclesiastical officer shall prevent, or endeavour to prevent the citation or prosecution of any offender; nor shall any person, when cited, be dismissed, except in the public place of judicature between the hours of ten and two, and while the court is actually held there. And that no commutation of penance be hereafter accepted or allowed of by any ecclesiastical judge, without an express consent given in writing by the bishop of the diocese, or other ordinary having exempt jurisdiction, or by some person or persons to be especially deputed by them for that purpose; and that all commutations, or pretended commutations accepted or allowed otherwise, than is hereby directed, be ipso facto null and void.

That no sum of money, given or received for any commutation of penance, or any part thereof, shall be disposed of to any use, without the like consent and direction in writing of the bishop, or other ordinary having exempt jurisdiction, if the cause hath been prosecuted in their courts, or of the archdeacon, if the cause hath been prosecuted in his court; and all money received for commutation pursuant to the foregoing directions, shall be disposed of to pious and charitable uses by the respective ordinaries abovenamed, whereof at the least one third part shall by them be disposed of in the parish, where the offenders dwell. And that a register be kept in every ecclesiastical court of all such commutations, and of the particular uses, to which such money hath been applied; and that the account so registered, be every year laid before the bishop, or other exempt ordinary having episcopal jurisdiction, in order to be audited by them; and that any ecclesiastical judge or officer offending in any of the premises, be suspended forthree months for the said offence.

I. EVERY register of any archbishop, bishop, archdeacon, or other ordinaries, exempt or not exempt, throughout this province shall within one year next after the ratification of these constitutions, deliver to the bishop of the diocese an attested calendar of the dates of all terriers remaining in his registry; and moreover every register belonging to any exempt ordinary, and having episcopal jurisdiction, shall deliver the like calendar to the said exempt ordinary, to which he belongs; and every ordinary, to whom such calendar shall be so delivered by their respective registers, shall take care, that notice be given to each incumbent of the terrier or terriers relating to his benefice; and every incumbent, immediately upon the receipt of such notice, shall make an entry of the same in the register book belonging to the parish.

II. In every parish throughout this province, where no such terrier, as is hereafter mentioned, hath been deposited in any registry within seven years last past, the minister, together with the churchwardens, or such of his parishioners, as shall be appointed by the bishop of the diocese, or other ordinary having episcopal jurisdiction, shall make a full and exact terrier of all such glebes, lands, meadows, gardens, orchards, houses, outhouses, pensions, woods, and underwoods growing upon the glebe, and also of all such portions of tithes lying out of the parish, as belong to his benefice; of which terrier the said minister and churchwardens shall provide three indented copies in parchment, each of them to be signed by the said minister, the churchwardens, or the parishioners aforesaid; and being so signed, one of the said copies shall be exhibited by the said minister and churchwardens at the next visitation of the bishop, or other ordinary having episcopal jurisdiction: another copy in like manner shall be by them exhibited at the next visitation of the archdeacon, or other ordinary having archidiaconal jurisdiction; the said two copies to be lodged in the registries respectively belonging to the said ordinaries, and the remaining copy, having been first examined and attested by the several registers, with whom the other two copies are lodged, shall be by them deposited in the public chest belonging to the parish. And further, for the better preserving the terriers of benefices within exempt jurisdictions, every ordinary so exempt shall take care, that within one year after the exhibiting of any terrier at his visitation, as aforesaid, an attested copy thereof be transmitted to the bishop of the diocese, to be deposited and kept in his registry.

III. Every register, in whose office any terriers are deposited or lodged, whether before, or pursuant to the direction of the foregoing constitution, shall sort and dispose the same in such method and order, as the bishop and other ordinary shall direct, and shall by no means permit any of them to be carried out of his office on any pretence or occasion whatsoever, without the consent of the bishop or other ordinary signified under his hand, nor till security be given for the safe restoring thereof within a time limited.

IV. The minister and churchwardens of every parish within the city of London burnt by the dreadful fire M.DC.LXVI. shall diligently enquire, whether such transcripts of assessments for the maintenance of the clergy there, as are appointed to be made by the statute 22 Car. II. cap. xv. have been taken and disposed of in such manner, as by that statute is required; and if they find, that such transcripts have been duly taken and disposed of, they shall make certificate thereof to the bishop of London, or other proper ordinary within six months after the ratification of these constitutions; but in case they find, that the said transcripts have not been duly taken and disposed of, they shall cause such transcripts to be forthwith taken and disposed of, as the said statute doth direct; and within other six months shall make certificate of their having so done to the said bishop, or other proper ordinary, under such penalties, as may by law be inflicted upon them for their neglect.

V. Every dean and prebendary of any cathedral or collegiate church within this province, being a sole corporation, and also every archdeacon and other dignitary, who hath any estate annexed to his dignity, shall within three years after the ratification of these constitutions, or sooner, if he conveniently can, cause an exact account to be taken of all the lands, houses, and hereditaments belonging to such dignity or prebend, and the same, with a copy of the lease or leases then being, shall transmit to the bishop of the diocese, and the dean and chapter of that church, whereunto the said dignity or prebend doth belong, to be by them entered into a register provided only for that purpose. And upon every renewal, which shall hereafter be made of any such estate, a like account, together with a copy of the lease then granted, shall be transmitted to the bishop of the diocese, and to the dean and chapter, to be by them registred as aforesaid; the same to be done to the dean and chapter by all petit canons, vicars choral, and others upon every renewal of any estate belonging to the places, which they, or any of them hold in any cathedral or collegiate church: for registering of which account and lease aforesaid, the register or chapter clerk shall receive the customary fee, provided it does not exceed ten shillings.

VI. The archbishop and bishops shall, as soon as conveniently they may after the ratification of these constitutions, enquire of their proper officers, whether such entries have been made of the augmentations given to any vicarage or curacy within their respective dioceses, as by the statute of 29 Car. II. cap. XVIII. is required; and if it shall appear, that such entries have not been made, they shall give effectual order for such books to be provided, and such entries to be made, as by that statute are required: and every bishop, in whose registry any such entries have been or shall be hereafter lodged, shall, as soon as conveniently he can, give notice to the respective vicars or curates, who are entitled to such augmentations, and require them and every of them to take out an attested copy of the clause or clauses, which relate to such augmentations, as they are respectively entitled to; for which copy so attested, there shall be paid no more than one shilling; and the said copy shall be deposited in the parish church, where the terrier is by these constitutions to be deposited and kept.

VII. Every bishop, dean and chapter, and every other ecclesiastical person or persons having a public registry, shall take care, that diligent search be made in the books and records of their respective registries for all ancient endowments and augmentations of benefices, and that a particular calendar thereof being taken, shall be sent to the bishop, who shall order the same to be entered into his registry, and shall direct the like search to be made in the books and records of his own registry, and shall give notice to the several incumbents respectively concerned of such endowment or augmentation remaining in any of the said registries; of which notice so given, an entry shall immediately be made by every such incumbent in the registry book belonging to the parish.

VIII. For the better ascertaining the rights of benefices, and preventing vexatious controversies relating thereunto, it is further ordained, that all bishops, and other ordinaries shall revive and enforce the use of yearly perambulations in all the parishes of this province.

Proceedings of the convocation about Dr. Sam. Clarke's book, entituled, "The scripture doctrine of the Trinity."

Application of the lower house about Dr. Clarke's book of the Trinity. [June 2. M.DCC.XIV.]

To his grace the lord archbishop of Canterbury, and the lords the bishops of the province of Canterbury in convocation assembled.

THE clergy of the lower house of convocation humbly represent, that a book hath of late been published and dispersed throughout this province, entituled, "The scripture doctrine of the Trinity," in three parts, wherein all the texts in the New Testament relating to that doctrine, and the principal passages in the liturgy of the church of England are collected, compared, and explained by Samuel Clarke, D. D. rector of St. James's Westminster, and chaplain in ordinary to her majesty, and several defences thereof by the same author; which book and defences do in our opinion contain assertions contrary to the catholic faith, as received and declared by this reformed church of England concerning three persons of one substance, power, and eternity in the unity of the Godhead, and tending moreover to perplex the minds of men in the solemn acts of worship, as directed by our established liturgy, to the great grief and scandal of pious and sober-minded christians.

And whereas there are divers passages in the book of Common Prayer, and in the xxxix.

articles, which are directly opposed to such heretical assertions; we do further represent to your lordships, that even these passages have by the said author been wrested with such subtilty, as may both teach and tempt the unstable and insincere to comply with the laws, which require them to declare their unfeigned assent and consent to the said book of Common Prayer, and to subscribe to the said articles, and nevertheless to retain and propagate the very errors, which are most inconsistent with such their declaration and subscription. It is with the utmost concern, that we behold these daring and dangerous attempts to subvert our common faith, to corrupt the christians worship, and to defeat the church's main end in agreeing upon her articles, namely the avoiding the diversity of opinions, and the establishing the consent touching true religion.

And we cannot therefore but think ourselves bound in duty to God and his church, in discharge of the weighty trust reposed in us, as members of this synod, and in charity to the souls committed to our care, most earnestly to beseech your lordships to take the premises into your serious and godly consideration, assuring your lordships of our most dutiful and ready concurrence in any proper methods, which may effectually put a stop to this growing mischief, and remove from ourselves the reproach, which our silence in so important an occasion might justly bring upon us.

Extracts of the heretical expressions of Dr. Clarke's book made by the lower house of convocation. [June 23.]

May it please your grace and your lordships.

The lower house, in pursuance of what your lordships were pleased to recommend to them in your paper of the twelfth instant, have extracted some passages out of Dr. Clarke's Scripture doctrine of the Trinity, and the defences thereof, and have disposed the extract they have made under the following heads, with a distinct regard to the several matters of complaint contained in their late representation.

Affertions contrary to the catholic faith, as received and declared by this reformed church of England concerning three persons of one substance, power, and eternity in the unity of the Godhead.

Scripture doctrine of the Trinity pag. 465. l. 2. If it (id est, the word ὁμοούσιος, which we translate of one substance with the Father) be understood to signify one individual substance, this will be properly one subsistence or one person only.

Letter to Dr. Wells p. 47. lin. 10. Now this I say (viz. that in the Godhead there are three persons of the same divine individual essence) is an express contradiction in the very terms.

Answer to the author of "Some considerations," etc. p. 224. l. 12. If the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit be conceived to be all but one individual being, it followeth of necessity, that the Son and Holy Spirit have no being at all.

Ibid. p. 289. l. 8. That two persons should be one being, is, I think, a manifest contradiction.

Ibid. p. 297. l. 4. This (viz. that the Father and Son are both but one and the same individual being) I think, is an express contradiction.

N. B. That the words "essence, being, and substance" are used by this author as equivalent terms. Vid. Scripture Doctrine p. 243. l. 1. et 9. p. 270. § XII. lin. 2. pag. 272. lin. 2. pag. 289. § XIX. lin. 2. p. 349. § XL. lin. 2. p. 350. § IV. lin. 2. p. 372. § LI. lin. 3. p. 373. lin. 19. Answer to the author of "Some considerations," etc. p. 229. lin. 9.

Scripture Doctrine p. 429. lin. 10. There are not three eternal persons.

Ibid. lin. 17. There are not three uncreated persons.

Ibid. lin. penult. There are not three almighty persons.

II. Passages tending to perplex the minds of men in the solemn act of worship, as directed by our established liturgy.

All the passages beforecited have in our opinion this tendency, more particularly those, whereby the author pretends to explain some expressions in the Nicene and Athanasian creeds, which are parts of our divine service.

Of the like tendency are his * comments upon divers other expressions in the said creeds, in the doxology, litany, collects, and other offices of devotion, in which the church manifestly intends the worship of the Trinity in unity, and ascribes one and the same glory to the three persons without any difference or inequality.

But the most offensive passage under this head seems to be in pag. 476. of the said book, where having first connected the proper preface for Trinity Sunday with the words, "O Lord [holy Father] almighty, everlasting God," without taking notice, that the words "holy Father" are expressly ordered to be omitted on that day; he afterwards asserts, that the first, obvious, natural, and grammatical sound of the whole sentence is, that the person of the Father is not one only person, but three persons.

Which proceeding of this author is not only a manifest and gross misrepresentation of this particular form of devotion, but tendeth greatly to perplex the minds of men in the use of it, by insinuating, that whilst they are here acknowledging the one God to be not one only person, but three persons in one substance, they are all the while addressing themselves to the person of the Father singly, and absurdly declare him to be not one only person, but three persons.

III. Passages in the liturgy and xxxix. articles wrested by Dr. Clarke in such manner, as is complained of in the representation.

For these we refer to the whole second chapter of part the third of the Scripture doctrine of the Trinity, compared with page 24. and 25. of the introduction. In the second chapter he explains many passages in the liturgy and articles in a sense directly contrary to the known sense of the church; and in the introduction he desires it may be observed, that he gives his assent to the forms by law appointed in that sense only, wherein he himself hath explained them.

The lower house are persuaded, the foregoing extract does fully support their representation.

But moreover we beg leave to observe, that the offence given by the book complained of, seems to us to arise not only from such particular parts and passages thereof, as are before cited, but from the general drift and design of the whole. The said book in our opinion tending to nothing less, than to substitute the author's private conceits and arbitrary interpretations of scripture in the room of those catholic doctrines, which the church professes and maintains, as warranted both by holy scripture and antiquity.

[* Scripture doctrine part iii. ch. 11. p. 415. etc.]

Dr. Samuel Clarke's submission.

Concerning the eternity of the Son and Holy Spirit.

My opinion is, that the Son of God was eternally begotten by the eternal incomprehensible power of the Father, and that the Holy Spirit was likewise eternally derived from the Father by or through the Son, according to the eternal incomprehensible power and will of the Father.

Concerning preaching.

Before my book, entituled, "The scripture Doctrine," etc. was published, I did indeed preach two or three sermons upon this subject; but since the book was published, I have never preached upon this subject; and (because I think it not fair to propose particular opinions, where there is not liberty of answering) I am willing to promise (as indeed I intended) not to preach any more upon this subject.

Concerning writing.

I do not intend to write any more concerning the doctrine of the Trinity; but if I shall fail herein, and write any thing hereafter upon that subject contrary to the doctrine of the church of England, I do hereby willingly submit myself to any such censure, as my superiors shall think fit to pass upon me. And whereas it has been confidently reported, that the Athanasian creed, and the third and fourth petitions of the litany have been omitted in my church by my directions; I do hereby declare, that the third and fourth petitions of the litany were never omitted at all; and that the Athanasian creed never was omitted at the eleven a-clock prayers, but at the early prayers only for brevity sake, at the discretion of the curate, and not by my appointment. As to my private conversation, I am not conscious to myself, that I have given any just occasion for those reports, which have been spread concerning me with relation to this controversy. I am sorry, that what I sincerely intended for the honour and glory of God, and so to explain this great mystery, as to avoid the heresies in both extreams, should have given any offence to this synod, and particularly to my lords the bishops. I hope my behaviour for the time to come with relation thereunto will be such, as to prevent any further complaints against me.

SAMUEL CLARKE.

We having received a paper subscribed by Dr. Clarke, containing a declaration of his opinion concerning the eternity of the Son and Holy Spirit, together with an account of his conduct for the time past, and intentions for the time to come (which paper we ordered to be entered in the acts of this house, and to be communicated to the lower house) do think fit to proceed no further upon the extract laid before us by the lower house.

Draught of canons for regulating matrimonial licences, in order to the more effectual preventing of clandestine marriages. [June 16.]

I. WE do straitly charge and enjoin all persons concerned to see, that the LXII, LXIII, LXX, XCIX, C, CI, CII, CIII, and CIVth canons be duely observed.

II. Whereas it is by the CII^d canon provided, that the security to be taken at the granting of licences for matrimony, shall contain this condition; that the parties shall celebrate matrimony publickly in the parish church or chapel, where one of them dwelleth, and in no other place; and whereas the good intent of the said canon hath been frustrated by inserting in such licences the names of other parish churches or chapels besides those, where the parties to be married dwell; we do constitute and appoint, that in every faculty or licence, which shall be henceforth granted, the name of the parish church or chapel, where one of the parties to be married dwells, or the names of both (if both parties lie within the jurisdiction) shall be inserted and no other, and if any ordinary, commissary for faculties, vicar general, or other judge shall offend herein, he shall for every time so offending be suspended from the execution of his office for the space of one whole year: and if any faculty or licence shall be obtained for the celebration of matrimony in any church or chapel besides the parish church or chapel, where the parties to be married or one of them dwells, such licence shall be held void to all effects and purposes, as if there had never been any such licence granted; and the parties marrying by virtue of such licence, shall be subject to the punishments, which are appointed for clandestine marriages, and the minister, who married them, shall be suspended for one year.

III. No licence for matrimony shall be granted to any parties by any ordinary or judge, unless at least one of the said parties be usually inhabiting within the jurisdiction, or hath been commorant therein for the space of one whole month immediately before the said licence be desired; and one of the conditions in the said bond of security given by the parties taking such licence, shall be, that the said parties, or one of them have or hath been inhabiting or commorant, as aforesaid.

IV. No licence for matrimony shall be granted to any persons whatsoever under the age of twenty one years, unless the parents if they be living, or otherwise the guardians shall personally nally appear before the judge, of whom the licence is desired, and expressly declare their consent, or shall by writing under their hands signify their consent to such marriage; of the truth of which hand writing the messenger, who brings the same, shall make oath before the judge, who shall forthwith cause an act to be made of the exhibiting thereof, and of the oath made by the messenger, who exhibited it.

V. No parson, vicar, or curate, on pain of suspension "per triennium ipso facto," shall substitute or employ knowingly, or wilfully permit and suffer any other minister to marry any persons in any church or chapel, to such parson, vicar, or curate belonging, without due publication of banns first made, or licence lawfully obtained for the marrying of the parties in the church or chapel of such parson, vicar, or curate.

VI. After banns duly published, or a licence or faculty first made and obtained, matrimony may be celebrated on all days, in the year, except on Ashwednesday, and in Passion week, and on the yearly fast appointed for the murder of king Charles the martyr, and on all other solemn days of fasting, for which a particular service shall be enjoined by public authority; but no minister shall presume to celebrate matrimony either by banns or licence between any persons on the days before excepted.

VII. In all future entries of marriages in the register book the minister of every church and chapel within this province shall distinguish those, who are married by licence, adding the name of the judge, from whom such licence was obtained, together with the date thereof, and the names of the parishes, wherein both parties did live at the time of the granting the said licence; and a true copy of the registry of marriages so distinguished, shall be transmitted unto the bishop of the diocese or his chancellor in like manner, as the copy of the registry of marriages is already by the LXXth canon required to be transmitted.

A form for admitting converts from the church of Rome, and such as shall renounce their errors. [June 18.]

THE bishop, or some priest appointed by him for that purpose, being at the communion table, and the person to be reconciled standing without the rails, the bishop, or such priest as is appointed, shall speak to the congregation as followeth:

Dearly beloved.

We are here met together for the reconciling of a penitent (lately of the church of Rome, or lately of the separation) to the established church of England, as to a true and sound part of Christ's holy catholic church. Now that this weighty affair may have its due effect, let us in the first place humbly and devoutly pray to almighty God for his blessing upon us in that pious and charitable office we are going about.

Prevent us, O Lord, in all our doings with thy most gracious favour, and further us with thy continual help, that in this, and all other our works begun, continued, and ended in thee, we may glorify thy holy name, and finally by thy mercy obtain everlasting life, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Almighty God, who shewest to them, that be in error, the light of thy truth, to the intent that they may return into the way of righteousness; grant unto all them, that are or shall be admitted into the fellowship of Christ's religion, that they may eschew those things, that are contrary to their profession, and follow all such things, as are agreeable to the same, through our Lord Jesus Christ. Amen.

Psalms CXIX. v. 161.

Let my complaint come before thee, O Lord, give me understanding according to thy word.

Let my supplication come before thee, deliver me according to thy word.

My lips shall speak of thy praise, when thou hast taught me thy statutes.

Yea my tongue shall sing of thy word, for all thy commandments are righteous.

Let thine hand help me, for I have chosen thy commandments.

I have longed for thy saving health, O Lord, and in thy law is my delight.

O let my soul live, and it shall praise thee, and thy judgments shall help me.

I have gone astray, like a sheep that is lost; O seek thy servant, for I do not forget thy commandments.

Glory be to the Father, etc.

As it was in the beginning, etc.

The lesson. Luke xv. to v. 8.

Then drew near unto him the publicans and sinners for to hear him. And the Pharisees and Scribes murmured, saying: This man receiveth sinners, and eateth with them. And he spake this parable unto them, saying: What man of you having an hundred sheep, if he lose one of them, doth not leave the ninety and nine in the wilderness, and go after that, which is lost, until he find it? and when he hath found it, he layeth it on his shoulders rejoicing; and when he cometh home, he calleth together his friends and his neighbours, saying unto them, rejoice with me, for I have found my sheep, which was lost. I say unto you, that likewise joy shall be in heaven over one sinner, that repenteth, more than over ninety and nine just persons, which need no repentance.

Pſalm. cxv. to y 10.

Not unto us, O Lord, not unto us, but unto thy name give the praise, for thy loving mercy and for thy truth's sake.

Wherefore shall the heathen say: Where is now their God?

As for our God he is in heaven, he hath done whatsoever pleased him.

Their idols are silver and gold, even the work of mens hands.

They have mouths, and speak not; eyes have they, and see not: they have ears, and hear not; noses have they, and smell not: they have hands, and handle not; feet have they, and walk not, neither speak they through their throat.

They that make them, are like unto them, and so are all such, as put their trust in them.

But thou, house of Israel, trust thou in the Lord; he is their succour and defence.

Glory be to the Father, etc.

As it was in the beginning, etc.

If the penitent comes from the separation, then this is to be used.

Pſalm cxxii.

I was glad, when they said unto me: We will go into the house of the Lord.

Our feet shall stand in thy gates, O Jerusalem.

Jerusalem is built as a city, that is at unity in itself.

For thither the tribes go up, even the tribes of the Lord, to testify unto Israel, to give thanks unto the name of the Lord.

For there is the seat of judgment, even the seat of the house of David.

O pray for the peace of Jerusalem, they shall prosper that love thee.

Peace be within thy walls, and plenteousness within thy palaces.

For my brethren and companions sake I wish thee prosperity.

Yea because of the house of the Lord our God I will seek to do thee good.

Glory be to the Father, etc.

As it was in the beginning, etc.

Then the bishop sitting in a chair, or the priest standing shall speak to the penitent, who is to be kneeling, as follows:

Dear brother, or sister.

I have good hope, that you have well weighed and considered with yourself the great work, you are come about, before this time; but in as much as with the heart man believeth unto righteousness, and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation; that you may give the more honour to God, and that this present congregation of Christ here assembled may also understand your mind and will in these things, and that this your declaration may the more confirm you in your good resolutions, you shall answer plainly to these questions, which we in the name of God and of his church shall propose to you touching the same:

Art thou thoroughly persuaded, that those books of the Old and New Testament, which are received as canonical scriptures by this church, contain sufficiently all doctrine requisite and necessary to eternal salvation through faith in Jesus Christ?

Answer. I am so persuaded.

Dost thou believe in God the Father almighty, maker of heaven and earth, and in Jesus Christ, his only begotten Son our Lord, and that he was conceived of the Holy Ghost, born of the virgin Mary, that he suffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified, dead, and buried, that he went down into hell, and also did rise again the third day, that he ascended into heaven, and sitteth at the right hand of God the Father almighty, and from thence shall come again at the end of the world to judge the quick and the dead?

And dost thou believe in the Holy Ghost, the holy catholic church, the communion of saints, the remission of sins, the resurrection of the flesh, and everlasting life after death?

Answer. All this I stedfastly believe.

Art thou truly sorrowful, that thou hast not followed the way prescribed in these scriptures for the directing of the faith and practice of a true disciple of Christ Jesus?

Answer. I am heartily sorry, and I hope for mercy through Jesus Christ.

Dost thou embrace the truth of the gospel in the love of it, and stedfastly resolve to live godly, righteously, and soberly in this present world all the days of thy life?

Answer. I do embrace it, and do so resolve, God being my helper.

Dost thou earnestly desire to be received into the communion of this church, as into a true and sound part of Christ's holy catholic church?

Answer. This I earnestly desire.

If the penitent come from the church of Rome, this question is to follow.

Dost thou renounce all the errors and superstitions of the present Romish church, so far as they are come to thy knowledge?

Answer. I do from my heart renounce them all.

If the penitent from the church of Rome be in holy orders, let these further questions be asked.

Dost thou in particular renounce the twelve last articles added in the confession, commonly called "The Creed of pope Pius IV." after having read them, and duly considered them?

Answer. I do upon mature deliberation reject them all, as grounded upon no warrant of scripture, but rather repugnant to the word of God.

Dost thou acknowledge the supremacy of the kings and queens of this realm, as by law established, and declared in the thirty seventh article of religion?

Answer. I do sincerely acknowledge it.

Wilt thou then give thy faithful diligence always so to minister the doctrine and sacraments, and the discipline of Christ, as the Lord hath commanded, and as this church and realm hath received the same, according to the commandments of God, so that thou mayst teach the people with all diligence to keep and observe the same?

Answer. I will do so by the help of the Lord.

Wilt thou conform thyself to the liturgy of the church of England, as by law established?

Answer. I will.

If the penitent comes from the separation, these questions are to be asked.

Dost thou allow and approve of the orders of bishops, priests, and deacons [* as what have been in the church of Christ from the time of the apostles] and wilt thou, as much as in thee lieth, promote all due regard to the same good order and government of the church of Christ?

Answer. I do approve it, and will endeavour, that it may be so regarded, as much as in me lieth.

Wilt thou conform thyself to the liturgy of the church of England, as by law established, and be diligent in attending the prayers and other offices of the church?

Answer. I will do so by the help of God.

If the penitent be one, who has relapsed, the following question is to be asked.

Art thou heartily sorry, that when thou wast in the way of truth, thou didst so little watch over thy own heart, as to suffer thyself to be led away with the shows of vain doctrine? and dost thou stedfastly purpose to be more careful for the future, and to persevere in that holy profession, which thou hast now made?

Answer. I am truly grieved for my former unstedfastness, and am fully determined by God's grace to walk more circumspectly for the time to come, and to continue in this my profession to my life's end.

Then the bishop or priest standing up shall say:

Almighty God, who hath given you a sense of your errors, and a will to do all these things, grant also unto you strength and power to perform the same, that he may accomplish his work, which he hath begun in you, through Jesus Christ. Amen.

The absolution.

Almighty God, our heavenly Father, who of his great mercy hath promised forgiveness of sins to all them, that with hearty repentance and true faith turn unto him, have mercy upon you, pardon and deliver you from all your sins, confirm and strengthen you in all goodness, and bring you to everlasting life, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Then the bishop or priest taking the penitent by the right hand shall say unto him:

I N. bishop of — or I A. B. do upon this thy solemn profession and earnest request receive thee into the holy communion of the church of England, in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost.

People: Amen.

Then the bishop or priest shall say the Lord's prayer, with that which follows, all kneeling.

Let us pray.

Our Father, which art in heaven, etc.

O God of truth and love, we bless and magnify thy holy name for thy great mercy and goodness in bringing this thy servant into the communion of this church; give him (or her) we beseech thee, stability and perseverance in that faith, of which he (or she) hath in the presence of God, and of this congregation witnessed a good confession. Suffer him (or her) not to be moved from it by any temptations of Satan, enticements of the world, the scoffs of irreligious men, or the revilings of those, who are still in error; but guard him (or her) by thy grace against all these snares, and make him (or her) instrumental in turning others from the errors of their ways, to the saving of their souls from death, and the covering a multitude of sins. And in thy good time, O Lord, bring, we pray thee, into the way of truth all such, as have erred and are deceived; and so fetch them home, blessed Lord, to thy flock that there may be one fold under one shepherd, the Lord Jesus Christ; to whom with the Father and the Holy Spirit be all honour and glory world without end. Amen.

Then the bishop or priest standing up (if there be no communion at that time) shall turn himself to the person newly admitted, and say:

Dear brother, or sister.

Seeing that you have by the goodness of God proceeded thus far, I must put you in mind, that you take care to go on in that good way, into which you are entered; and for your establishment and furtherance therein, that, if you have not been confirmed, you endeavour to be so the next opportunity, and receive the holy sacrament of the Lord's supper. And may God's Holy Spirit ever be with you. Amen.

The peace of God, which passeth all understanding, keep your heart and mind by Christ Jesus. Amen.

An exhortation to be read in the church, when the person decreed to be excommunicated is present. [July 5.]

N. B. When the person decreed to be excommunicated is absent, the passages within the crotchets [] are to be omitted, and instead of them the passages within the parenthesis () to be used.

Dearly beloved.

CHRIST our Lord a little before he ascended into heaven, left with his apostles a power to remit and retain sins^a.

During his conversation with them on earth, he had given them a commission at large, and had promised, that^b whatsoever they should bind on earth, should be bound in heaven. Which authority after his resurrection he farther explained and confirmed to them; ^cbreathing on them, and saying, Receive ye the Holy Ghost; whosoever sins ye remit, they are remitted unto them, and whosoever sins ye retain, they are retained. You observe, with what solemnity in words and gestures he committeth these powers to them.

The blessed apostles were not wanting to execute this important trust, but, knowing that a little leaven leaveneth the whole lump, did in the name, and with the power of our Lord Jesus Christ cut off notorious and incorrigible sinners from the communion of the church, lest such corrupt members should defile the whole body.

When any were thus cast out of the church, and bereaved of the privileges appertaining to the communion of saints, the faithful were admonished^d not to keep company with such persons, no not to eat with them, ^ebut to mark them and avoid them, and to^f withdraw themselves from them, that they might be ashamed.

In the ages, which succeeded that of the apostles, the bishops, who were left in their stead to preside over the household of God, retained and exercised this awful power; and in the writings, which they have left us, we meet with frequent examples of their putting it in execution.

Agreeable to the commandment of our Saviour recorded by the holy evangelist St. Matthew^g, the primitive church directed her clergy to apply to an obstinate offender, and to tell him his faults in secret, that, if such gentle method could prevail with him, all further severities might be thereby prevented. But if he would not hearken, the minister was to take with him one or two more, that in the mouth of two or three witnesses every word might be established. And if he neglected to hear them, the church was publickly to be told of it. But if he neglected to hear the church, he was to be henceforth looked upon as an heathen man and a publican.

You see, with what tenderness, and caution, and love of souls this godly discipline was anciently exercised; you observe, by what leisurely steps, after how gentle a manner, and with what affectionate endeavour to prevent extremities the governours of the church proceeded in the application of their ghostly powers.

^h They knew the terror of the Lord, and therefore laboured incessantly in persuading their people to guard against it. They looked upon a sentence duly passed upon earth, ⁱas a certain anticipation of that, which would be passed in heaven, if not prevented in time by a penitential submission.

They acknowledged none to be christians, who were thus cast out of the church (^k the fold of Christ) in which the sheep of his pasture were required to hear and obey the voice of the shepherd. And therefore so long as there were any hopes of retaining her people within the pale of her communion, without dishonouring their profession by the scandal of their sin, or infecting Christ's flock with the contagion of it, they never proceeded to the final remedy of an utter excision.

But when no endeavours would bend the obstinate, nor melt the obdurate sinner, the dreadful sentence of excommunication was at last with great reluctance, and with an awful solemnity denounced against him^l, and he was cut off entirely from the church, as a person, whose case was judged to be desperate and incurable.

[Your case, my beloved, is near approaching to this sad extremity; you are now upon the very borders of this dreadful sentence, and the sword of excommunication is drawn and impending over you.

Consider, I beseech you, before it be too late, what inestimable privileges depend upon a^m communion with saints; of what importance it is to have fellowship with them, through whom alone you can have fellowship with God and with the Lamb. Consider howⁿ fearful a

(The case of our neighbour, and, as yet, brother in the Lord, A. B. is near approaching to this sad extremity; he is now upon the very borders of this dreadful sentence, and the sword of excommunication is drawn and impending over him.

We hope, that he will through God's grace consider, before it be too late, what inestimable privileges depend upon a communion with saints; of what importance it is to have fellowship with them, through whom alone we can have fellowship with God and with the Lamb: that he will ponder in his heart, how fearful a thing it is to fall from those glorious hopes, to which our baptismal covenant doth entitle us; what honours and advantages are annexed to the character of a member of Christ, a child of God, and an inheritor of the kingdom of heaven.

No one is any longer such, than whilst he retains his title to the benefits of that sacred engagement, which are no where to be reaped, but in the household of faith, and no way to be recovered by a notorious sinner, but by his returning from whence he is fallen, and by submitting to the wholesome discipline of a severe repentance.)

^p The holy fathers of the church inform us, what submissions were required from such a penitent to procure his pardon; how he must water his couch with tears, how he must mortify his most craving affections, and prostrate himself after the humblest manner before the public congregation in each assembly of the faithful for the worship of God.

Hear how Tertullian describes the severities of that discipline, which obtained in the earlier ages of the church.

^q It extends, saith he, its directions even to the garb and diet of a penitent, obliges him to neglect all care of dress and ornament, to lie in sackcloth and ashes, to afflict his soul with sorrowful reflections, and to cancel each instance of his guilt by bending all his endeavours to a quite contrary practice; as for eating and drinking, to use none for pleasure, but merely for sustenance. To pray without ceasing, to be frequent in fasting, to lament, and bewail, and to cry mightily unto the Lord his

God both day and night; to throw himself at the feet of God's ministers, and to embrace the knees of his faithful servants, thus earnestly soliciting the prayers of the whole church to prevent a final expulsion from it.

Ambrose (a bishop who lived in the fourth century) hath told us likewise of his own knowledge, what were the austerities, which penitents then submitted to in order to their forgiveness.

^r They quite furrowed their faces with cares and tears, they prostrated themselves in the church exposing their bodies even to be trod on; the very image of death was stamped upon their faces, which carried long the marks of that severity, wherewith they had been treated, in paleness and leanness, and in a settled habitual sorrow.

They wisely considered the advantage of these humiliations, that when they dejected the flesh (as Tertullian speaks) they exalted the spirit; that when they dishonoured the one, they advanced the other. And they chose rather to seek absolution in public, than to bear in private the torments of a self accusing, self condemning conscience.

They knew there would be ^s joy in heaven over each sinner that repenteth; that God willeth not the death of a sinner, but rather that he may repent and live. And with these encouragements they were excited to seek everlasting ^t salvation by the remission of their sins, through the tender mercies of God.

They were sensible, that if they did not obtain it, they were children of wrath, ^v aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, strangers to the covenant of promise, having no hope, without Christ, and without God in the world. They considered their case as the more deplorable, because they had ^x once been enlightened, and had tasted of the heavenly gift, and had been made partakers of the Holy Ghost, and had tasted the good word of God, and the powers of the world to come. And therefore they declined no hardships, they rejected no conditions, which might restore them to that comfortable state, from whence they were fallen. [These conditions are far less grievous, these hardships far less afflictive, than they severally were in the ancient church; so that you may avoid the censure, with which you are threatened, upon terms far easier and milder, than what would have been exacted of you under the primitive administration.

It is yet in your power to prevent, what afterward it will be more difficult to remedy. Be not partial to yourselves^y, that you have no sin; do not extenuate to your own heart (^z which is deceitful above all things) the horrors of your guilt. The less ^a you yourself do palliate and excuse it, the more indulgence it will find, and the more easy it will be to obtain your pardon from the judge and father of all flesh. ^b If you confess your sin, he is faithful and just to forgive you your sins, and to cleanse you from all unrighteousness.

Do not therefore (with the haughty Pharisee) boast of your righteousness before God, ^c in whose sight no man living shall be justified; but rather smite upon your breast and say (with the humble publican) ^d God be merciful to me a sinner! pray to God, that he would ^e take away the stony heart out of your flesh, and give you an heart of flesh. Make your humble confession to him, and say (with the returning prodigal) ^f Father, I have sinned against heaven and before thee, and am no more worthy to be called thy son. Prostrate yourself before the throne of grace, and there entreat ^g the Lamb of God, who taketh away the sins of the world, that he would have mercy upon you, and take away yours also, that he would grant you (in order to it) the ^h godly sorrow, which worketh repentance, not to be repented of. Cry unto God in the mournful language of the penitent David, saying, ⁱ Have mercy upon me, O Lord, after thy great goodness; according to the multitude of thy mercies do away my offences. Wash me thoroughly from my wickedness, and cleanse me from my sin; for I acknowledge my faults, and my sin is ever before me. Turn thy face from my sins, and put out all my misdeeds. Make me a clean heart, O God, and renew a right spirit within me. Cast me not away from thy presence; and take not thy Holy Spirit from me. O give me the comfort of thy help again, and establish me with thy free Spirit; then shall I teach thy way to the wicked, and sinners shall be converted unto thee.

Above all things beware of adding to the iniquity of thy sin an obstinate opposition to those, ^k who are over you in the Lord and admonish you; ^l but submit yourself to them, for they watch for your soul, as that they must give an account.

If, as ^m men of like passions with you, they are in any thing mistaken; yet is not their judgment or their sentence to be presently set at nought. Authority may not be despised, because the persons are fallible, who are invested with it. ⁿ The powers that be, are ordained of God; and tho' the execution of them should be grievous unto you, yet you must receive it with submission, lest you be found afterwards to deserve it by your obstinacy.

I also, as one, who ^o watch for your soul, and must give an account of it, intreat you, that I may do it with joy and not with grief; and therefore in the meekness of the gospel, and in the bowels of Christ I ^p beseech you to be reconciled to God, which you can never be, whilst you stand at defiance with his church, and condemn his most solemn ordinances. Remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how he said to his seventy disciples, and in them to all the ministers of his church: He that heareth you, heareth me, and he that despiseth you, despiseth me, and he that despiseth me, despiseth him that sent me.

Observe how nearly and affectionately the great ^r shepherd and bishop of our souls is interested in the honour of those, to whom (under himself) he hath committed the care of them.

O let no spirit of pride or perverseness move you to vilify their office, nor to disobey their authority, who by his gracious appointment have the rule over you, lest contending with them be construed as ^s fighting against God; lest the ^t sword of the Lord avenge the quarrel of his ambassadors, and you ^v perish at the last in the gainsaying of Korah and his company.

These things, well beloved, I am commanded to teach and exhort you. Think not, that ^x I am become your enemy, because I tell you the truth; think rather, that I tell you in prevention of a further danger, which is now very near approaching you, and which it must be my province, and my grief to denounce against you. Dreadful and solemn is the charge, which is given to the ministers of Christ ^y before God and the Lord Jesus, who shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing in his kingdom, to preach the word, to be instant in season and out of season, to reprove, rebuke, and exhort with all long suffering and doctrine.

^z I have travailed in birth again for you, until Christ be formed in you afresh. ^a My bowels are enlarged toward you, ^b my heart's desire and prayer to God for you is, that you may be saved. ^c If there be therefore any consolation in Christ, if any comfort of love, if any fellowship of the Spirit, if any bowels and mercies, fulfil you my joy. Stray no further from the fold of Christ, lest the wolf devour you, and tear you in pieces, whilst there is none to help.

^d But whether you will hear, or whether you will forbear, I must deliver my own soul: if you die in your sin, because I have not given you warning, your blood will be required at my hands.

^e Life and death are now before you, and and it is yet in your choice, which shall be your portion. ^f In Christ's stead I pray and beseech you not to shut against yourself the door of mercy, not to exclude yourself voluntarily from the means of grace, ^g not to put yourself under the power of Satan by a chosen separation from the ministers of Christ, who serve at his altar, and are appointed to make intercession with God for you.

Behold the arms of the church are as yet open to embrace you, she persuades, invites, and intreats you to be at peace with her; do not despise such a gracious call; do not force her to use her power, whilst with so much indulgence and lenity she warns you to avoid it; do not persist in slighting her clemency, lest it turn at length to vengeance, and drive upon you the judgments of God in this world, and in the world to come an everlasting separation from his blissful presence.

He of his infinite mercy grant, that you may apply this warning to the benefit of your precious soul, that you may have a lively sense of your present danger, and may bring forth the fruits, which are meet for repentance.

To him be glory and dominion now and ever.]

(Our offending brother may avoid the censure, with which he is threatened, upon terms far easier and milder, than would have been exacted from him under the primitive administration.

It is yet in his power to prevent, what afterwards it will be more difficult to remedy. If he confesseth his sin, God is faithful and just to forgive him his sins, and to cleanse him from all unrighteousness.

The apostle St. Paul hath taught us, that if any man be overtaken with a fault, we ought to restore such a one in the spirit of meekness; considering ourselves, lest we also be tempted. He exhorteth all christians to bear one another's burdens, and so to fulfil the law of Christ.

If therefore there be any consolation in Christ, any comfort of love, if any fellowship in the Spirit, if any bowels of mercies, we cannot but be touched with a tender and hearty compassion for the wretched deplorable state of this notorious and obstinate offender. We ought in our several stations, as opportunity shall offer, to use all methods possible of reclaiming him from sin, and rescuing him from the danger of perishing in his guilt, as knowing, that he, who converteth a sinner from the error of his way, shall save a soul from death, and hide a multitude of sins. We ought both in public and in private humbly and earnestly to beseech almighty God, that he would create in this miserable sinner a new and contrite heart, that lamenting his sins, and acknowledging his wretchedness, he may obtain of the God of all mercy perfect remission and forgiveness through Jesus Christ our lord. Amen.)

When this homily is used, the sermon for that day may be omitted.

Directions to our archbishops and bishops for the preserving of unity in the church, the purity of the christian faith concerning the holy Trinity; and also for preserving the peace and quiet of the state.

GEORGE R.

MOST reverend, and right reverend fathers in God, we greet you well. Whereas we are given to understand, that there have of late been great differences among some of the clergy of this our realm about their ways of expressing themselves in their sermons and writings concerning the doctrine of the blessed Trinity; and whereas also unusual liberties have been taken by several of the said clergy, in intermeddling with the affairs of state and government, and the constitution of the realm, both which may be of very dangerous consequence, if not timely prevented; we therefore, out of our princely care and zeal for the preservation of the peace and unity of the church, together with the purity of the christian faith, and also for preserving the peace and quiet of the state, have thought fit to send you these following directions, which we straitly charge and command you to publish, and to see, that they be observed within your several dioceses.

I. That no preacher whatsoever in his sermon or lecture do presume to deliver any other doctrine concerning the blessed Trinity, than what is contained in the holy scriptures, and is agreeable to the three creeds, and the thirty nine articles of religion.

II. That in the explication of this doctrine they carefully avoid all new terms, and confine themselves to such ways of expression, as have been commonly used in the church.

III. That care be taken in this matter especially to observe the fifty third canon of this church, which forbids public opposition between preachers; because (as that canon expresses it) there groweth thereby much offence and disquietness unto the people; and that above all things they abstain from bitter invectives and scurrilous language against all persons whatsoever.

IV. That none of the clergy in their sermons or lectures presume to intermeddle in any affairs of state or government, or the constitution of the realm, save only on such special feasts and fasts, as are or shall be appointed by public authority; and then no further than the occasion of such days shall strictly require. Provided always, that nothing in this direction shall be understood to discharge any person from preaching in defence of our regal supremacy established by law, as often, and in such manner, as the first canon of this church doth require.

V. That the foregoing directions be also observed by those, who write any thing concerning the said subjects,

VI. Whereas

VI. Whereas also we are credibly informed, that it is the manner of some in every diocese before their sermon either to use a collect and the Lord's Prayer, or the Lord's Prayer only (which the fifty fifth canon prescribes as the conclusion of the prayer, and not the whole prayer) or at least to leave out our titles, by the said canon required to be declared and recognized; we do further direct, that you require your clergy, in their prayer before sermon that they do keep strictly to the form in the said canon contained, or to the full effect thereof.

VII. And whereas we also understand, that divers persons, who are not of the clergy, have of late presumed not only to talk and to dispute against the christian faith concerning the doctrine of the blessed Trinity, but also to write and publish books and pamphlets against the same, and industriously spread them through the kingdom, contrary to the known laws in that behalf made and enacted; and particularly to one act of parliament, made in the ninth year of king William the third, entituled, "An act for the more effectual suppressing of blasphemy and profaneness;" we taking all the matters abovementioned into our royal and serious consideration, and being desirous to do what in us lies, to put a stop to these disorders, do strictly charge and command you, together with all other means suitable to your holy profession, to make use of your authority according to law, for the repressing and restraining of all such exorbitant practices. And for your assistance, we will give charge to our judges, and all other our civil officers, to do their duty herein, in executing the said act, and all other laws against all such persons, as shall by these means give occasion of scandal, discord and disturbance in our church and kingdom. Given at our court at St. James's the eleventh day of December, M.DCC.XIV. in the first year of our reign.

The king's letter to the convocation about business for them.

GEORGE R.

MOST reverend father in God, our right trusty and right entirely beloved counsellor, we greet you well. Whereas by our royal licence to the present convocation of the province of Canterbury we have, among other things, empowered and authorized them to confer, treat, debate, consider, consult, and agree of and upon such points, matters, causes, and things, as we from time to time should deliver, or cause to be delivered to you in writing under our sign manual or privy signet, to be debated, considered, consulted, and agreed upon; we do accordingly hereby transmit unto you the heads of such matters, as we think proper for the consideration of the said convocation, which are as follow:

The regulating proceedings in excommunication, and commutation of penances.

The making provision for preserving and transmitting more exact terriers, and accounts of glebes, tithes, and other possessions and profits belonging to benefices.

The regulating licences for matrimony according to the canon, in order to the more effectual prevention of clandestine marriages.

The preparing a form for consecrating churches and chapels.

The better settling the qualifications, titles, and testimonials of persons, who offer themselves for holy orders.

The making the seventy fifth canon, relating to the sober conversation required in ministers, more effectual.

The making the forty seventh canon, which provides for curates, where ministers are lawfully absent from their benefices, more effectual; as likewise the forty eighth canon, touching the licensing such curates.

Rules for the better instructing and preparing young persons for confirmation, required by the sixty first canon, and for the more orderly performance of that office.

All which points, matters, and things we do hereby direct to be considered and treated by the said convocation, pursuant to our licence aforesaid, that when they shall be agreed, they may be laid before us for our royal consideration. And so we bid you very heartily farewell. Given at our court at St. James's the 5th day of May, M.DCC.XV. in the first year of our reign.

A form of consecrating churches, chapels, and churchyards, or places of burial.

WHEN the bishop and the clergy, of which there shall be two at least, have entered the church or chapel in their several habits, let them, as they walk up from the west to the east end, repeat alternately the 24th psalm, the bishop beginning, "The earth is the Lords," etc. with "Gloria Patri."

When they are come to the Lord's table, the bishop sitting in his chair shall have the instrument of dedication, donation, and endowment of the church or chapel, churchyard or burial place presented to him by the founder, or some proper person, which he shall cause to be read by his register, or other officer deputed for that purpose; and after that the bishop shall lay such instrument or instruments upon the table, and standing on the north side thereof shall turn to the congregation and say:

Dearly beloved in the Lord. Forasmuch as devout and holy men as well under the law, as under the gospel, moved either by the secret inspiration of the blessed Spirit, or by express command of God, or by their own reason and sense of the natural decency of things, have erected houses for the public worship of God, and separated them from all profane and common uses, in order to fill mens minds with greater reverence for his glorious majesty, and affect their hearts with more devotion and humility in his service, which pious works have been approved and graciously accepted by our heavenly Father; let us not doubt, but he will also favourably approve this our godly purpose of setting apart this place in solemn manner to the performance of the several offices of our religious worship, and let us faithfully and devoutly beg his blessing on this our undertaking and say:

[The bishop kneeling shall say the prayer following]

O eternal God, mighty in power, of majesty incomprehensible, whom the heaven of heavens cannot contain, much less the walls of temples made with hands, and who yet hast been graciously pleased to promise thy especial presence in whatsoever place, even where two or three of thy faithful servants shall assemble in thy name to offer up their supplications and their praises to thee; vouchsafe, O Lord, to be now present with us, who are gathered here together to consecrate this place with all humility and readiness of heart to the honour of thy great name, separating it henceforth from all unhallowed, ordinary, and common uses, and dedicating it entirely to thy service, for reading therein thy most holy word, for celebrating thy holy sacraments, for offering to thy glorious majesty the sacrifices of prayer and thanksgivings, for blessing thy people in thy name, and performing of all other ordinances.

Accept, O Lord, this service at our hands, and bless it with such success, as may tend most to thy glory, and the furtherance of our happiness, thro' Jesus Christ, our blessed Lord and Saviour. Amen.

After this let the bishop stand up, and turning his face toward the congregation, say the following prayers:

Regard, O Lord, the supplications of thy servants, and grant, that whosoever shall be dedicated to thee in this house by baptism, may be sanctified with the Holy Ghost, delivered from thy wrath, received into the ark of Christ's church and ever remain in the number of thy faithful, and elected children. Amen.

Grant, O Lord, that they, who at this place shall in their own persons undertake to renew the promises and vows made by their sureties for them at their baptism, may receive such a measure of thy Holy Spirit, that they may be enabled faithfully to fulfil the same, and grow in grace to their lives end.

Grant, O Lord, that whosoever shall receive in this place the blessed sacrament of the body and blood of Christ thy Son, may come to that holy ordinance with faith, charity, and true repentance; and being filled with thy grace and heavenly benediction, may to their great and endless comfort obtain remission of their sins, and all other benefits of his passion. Amen.

Grant, O Lord, that by thy holy word, which shall be read and preached within this place, the hearers thereof may both perceive and know, what things they ought to do, and may have grace and power to fulfil the same. Amen.

Grant, O Lord, that whosoever shall be joined together in this place in the holy estate of matrimony, may faithfully perform and keep the vow and covenant betwixt them made, and may remain in perfect love together unto their lives end. Amen.

Grant we beseech thee, blessed Lord, that whosoever shall draw near unto thee in this place to give thee thanks for the great benefits they have received at thy hands, to set forth thy most worthy praise, to confess their sins unto thee, humbly to beg thy pardon for what they have done amiss, or to ask such other things as are requisite and necessary as well for the body, as the soul, may do it with that steadfastness of faith, that seriousness, attention, and devout affection of mind, that thou mayst accept their bounden duty and service, and vouchsafe to them whatsoever else in thy infinite wisdom thou shalt see to be most expedient for them. And this we beg for Jesus Christ his sake, our blessed Lord and Saviour. Amen.

After

After this let one of the priests (the appointed curate of the place, if he be present) begin and read the service for the day, except where it is otherwise ordered.

Proper psalms. xxxiv, cxxii, cxxxii.

The first lesson. 1 Kings chap. viii. from verse 22. to verse 62.

Second lesson. Hebrews x. from verse 19. to verse 26.

Then go on with the rest of the service, as upon litany days: after which let the bishop proceed to the communion service, and after the commandments, and one of the collects for the king, instead of the collect for the day shall be used this following:

O most gracious Lord God, we acknowledge, that we are not worthy to offer unto thee any thing belonging to us, yet we beseech thee out of thine infinite goodness graciously to accept the dedication of this place to thy service, and to prosper this our undertaking; receive the prayer and intercessions of us, and all other thy servants, who either now or hereafter entering into this house, shall call upon thee, and give both them and us grace to prepare our hearts to serve thee with reverence and godly fear; affect us with an awful apprehension of thy heavenly majesty, and with a deep sense of our own unworthiness, that so approaching thy sanctuary with lowliness and devotion, and bringing with us clean thoughts, pure hearts, bodies undefiled, and minds sanctified, we may be an acceptable people in thy sight, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Epist. 1 Cor. ii. from verse 17. to 29.

Gospel. St. John ii. from verse 13. to 17.

Then shall follow the Nicene creed and sermon, after which the bishop is to proceed in the service of the communion. If the church or chapel was built and endowed by any private person or persons, then the bishop may add the following prayer immediately after the "Gloria in excelsis:"

Blessed be thy name, O Lord, that it hath pleased thee to put it into the heart of thy servant N. to erect this house for thy honour and worship. Bless, O Lord, him, his family, and substance, and accept this his pious charitable work; remember him concerning this, wipe not out this kindness that he hath shewed for thy house, and the offices thereof; and grant, that all they, who shall enjoy the benefit of this pious work, may shew forth their thankfulness by making a right use of it to the glory of thy blessed name, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Prevent us, O Lord, etc.

The peace of God, etc.

When the service in the church is finished, let the bishop and clergy with the people go into the churchyard, and standing in some convenient place, let the bishop say the following prayers:

O God, who hast taught us in thy holy word, that there is a difference between the spirit of a beast, that goeth downward to the earth, and the spirit of a man, which ascendeth up to God, who gave it; and likewise hast taught, that the bodies of thy saints are committed to the ground in sure and certain hope of the resurrection to eternal life; accept, we beseech thee, this charitable work of ours in separating this portion of ground, that they may rest in peace, and be preserved from all indignities; and give us all grace, that by the frequent instances of mortality we behold, we may learn and seriously consider, how frail and uncertain our condition here on earth is, and so number our days, as to apply our hearts unto wisdom; that in the midst of life thinking upon death, and daily preparing ourselves for the judgment that is to follow, we may have our part in the resurrection with him, who died for our sins, and rose again for our justification, and now liveth and reigneth with thee and the Holy Ghost one God world without end. Amen.

The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the fellowship of the Holy Ghost be with you all evermore. Amen.

If there be only a churchyard to be consecrated adjoining to any church or chapel, let the common service of the day be read in the church or chapel, and at the end thereof let the instrument of donation be read before the bishop in the churchyard, and then let the bishop use the foregoing prayer.

But if the churchyard or burial place be remote from the church or chapel, it shall suffice to use only the prayer before appointed for that purpose, the instrument of donation being first read.

A declaration made in the convocation to make the seventy fifth canon more effectual. [July 13. M.DCC.XV.]

THE lower house of convocation, after mature and diligent examination and search into the canons and constitutions now in force in the church of England relating to the sober conversation of ministers, do humbly represent to your lordships, and are of opinion, that one means to make the LXXVth canon more effectual is, to enforce it by a declaration to the effect following:

VOL. IV.

Whereas it hath been the religious care of the church of England to enjoin her clergy a pious, regular, and inoffensive behaviour, and under severe censures to prohibit such practices, as may give occasion of scandal, by the seventy fifth canon anno M.DC.III. to that purpose provided, which canon, with other constitutions now in force, would sufficiently answer the good ends, if duly put in execution; the present synod therefore doth strictly charge all clergymen, that setting before their eyes the glory of God, the holiness of their calling, and the edification of the people committed to them, they carefully avoid all excess and disorder, and that by their christian and exemplary conversation they shine forth as lights unto others in all godliness and honesty. And we also require all those, to whom the government of the clergy of this church is committed, that they set themselves to countenance and encourage godliness, gravity, sobriety, and all unblameable conversation in the ministers of this church; and that (according to the power, with which they are entrusted) they diligently labour by the due execution of the abovenamed canon, and all other ecclesiastical provisions made for this end, to reform all offensive and scandalous persons, if any be in the ministry (and many such we trust will not be found) as they tender the welfare and prosperity of piety and religion, and as they will answer to God for those scandals, which through their remissness and neglect shall arise and grow in this church of Christ. And the lower house do further represent to your lordships, and are of opinion, that another means to make the said LXXVth canon more effectual is, to restrain the correction of the manners of the clergy to the archbishop, bishops, archdeacons, and such other ecclesiastical judges only, as are in holy orders; and therefore humbly offer to your lordships consideration, whether it might not be proper for this synod to make a canon to that purpose.

An address of the convocation to the king about the maintenance of the ministers of the fifty new churches. [July 20.]

To the king's most excellent majesty.

WE your majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the archbishop, bishops, and clergy of the province of Canterbury in convocation assembled, do think our selves obliged in duty and gratitude to your majesty to make our most humble acknowledgments of that gracious message, you were pleased to send to the house of commons, recommending the provision of a maintenance for the ministers, who are to attend the service of the fifty new churches, designed to be built in and about the city of London, and Westminster. A message so piously intended, and so well received, cannot fail of it's desired effect to the honour of the church of England, and the advancement of our holy religion.

After all the declarations your majesty has been pleased to make in favour of our established church, and the real proofs you have given of your concern for it's interest, we hope, that none will be found so unjust, as to doubt of your affection to it; and we most humbly assure your majesty, that we will take all opportunities to instill into those, who are under our care, the same grateful sense, that we ourselves have of your majesty's goodness.

May that God, who has put into your majesty's heart to do such things for us, unite the hearts of all your subjects in praising his mercy for the many blessings, we enjoy under your majesty's most auspicious government, and in making all the returns of honour and obedience, that are due to so good and gracious a sovereign.

The archbishop of Canterbury's letter to the right reverend the lords bishops of his province. [Westminster, June 5. M.DCC.XVI.]

My very good lord.

BEING by the providence of God called to the metropolitical see of this province, I thought it incumbent upon me to consult as many of my brethren the bishops of the same province, as were here met together during this session of parliament, in what manner we might best employ that authority, which the ecclesiastical laws now in force, and the customs and laws of this realm have vested in us, for the honour of God, and for the edification of his church, committed to our charge; and upon serious consideration of this matter, we all of us agreed in the same opinion, that we should, by the blessing of God upon our honest endeavours, in some measure promote those good ends, by taking care (as much as in us lieth) that no unworthy persons might hereafter be admitted into the sacred ministry of the church, nor any be allowed to serve as curates, but such as should appear to be duly qualified for such an employ; and that all, who officiated in the room of any absent ministers, should reside upon the cures which they undertook to supply, and be ascertained of a suitable recompence for their labours.

In pursuance of those resolutions, to which we unanimously agreed, I do now very earnestly recommend to you,

I. That you require of every person, who desires to be admitted into holy orders, that he signify to you his name and place of abode,

and

and transmit to you his testimonial, and a certificate of his age duly attested, with the title, upon which he is to be ordained, at least twenty days before the time of ordination; and that he appear on Wednesday, or at farthest on Thursday in Ember week, in order to his examination.

II. That if you shall reject any person, who applies for holy orders, upon the account of immorality proved against him, you signify the name of the person so rejected, with the reason of your rejecting him, to me within one month; that so I may acquaint the rest of my suffragans with the case of such rejected person before the next ordination.

III. That you admit not any person to holy orders, who having resided any considerable time out of the university, does not send to you, with his testimonial, a certificate signed by the minister, and other credible inhabitants of the parish where he so resided, expressing, that notice was given in the church in time of divine service on some Sunday, at least a month before the day of ordination, of his intention to offer himself to be ordained at such a time; to the end that any person, who knows any impediment, or notable crime, for the which he ought not to be ordained, may have opportunity to make his objections against him.

IV. That you admit no letters testimonial on any occasion whatsoever, unless it be therein expressed, for what particular end and design such letters are granted; nor unless it be declared by those, who shall sign them, that they have personally known the life and behaviour of the person for the time by them certified; and do believe in their conscience, that he is qualified for that order, office, or employment, to which he desires to be admitted.

V. That in all testimonials sent from any college or hall in either of the universities, you expect, that they be signed, as well as sealed; and that among the persons signing, the governor of such college or hall, or in his absence, the next person under such governor, with the dean, or reader of divinity, and the tutor of the person, to whom the testimonial is granted (such tutor being in the college, and such person being under the degree of master of arts) do subscribe their names.

VI. That you admit not any person to holy orders upon letters dimissory, unless they are granted by the bishop himself, or guardian of the spiritualities, sede vacante; nor unless it be expressed in such letters, that he, who grants them, has fully satisfied himself of the title, and conversation of the person, to whom the letter is granted.

VII. That you make diligent enquiry concerning curates in your diocese, and proceed to ecclesiastical censures against those, who shall presume to serve cures, without being first duly licensed thereunto; as also against all such incumbents, who shall receive and employ them, without first obtaining such licence.

VIII. That you do not by any means admit of any minister, who removes from another diocese, to serve as a curate in yours, without testimony of the bishop of that diocese, or ordinary of the peculiar jurisdiction, from whence he comes, in writing, of his honesty; ability; and conformity to the ecclesiastical laws of the church of England.

IX. That you do not allow any minister to serve more than one church or chapel in one day, except that chapel be a member of the parish church; or united thereunto; and unless the said church or chapel, where such a minister shall serve in two places, be not able in your judgment to maintain a curate.

X. That in the instrument of licence granted to any curate, you appoint him a sufficient salary according to the power vested in you by the laws of the church, and the particular direction of a late act of parliament for the better maintenance of curates.

XI. That in licences to be granted to persons to serve any cure, you cause to be inserted, after the mention of the particular cure provided for by such licence, a clause to this effect, "or in any other parish within the diocese, to which such curate shall remove with the consent of the bishop."

XII. That you take care, as much as is possible, that whosoever is admitted to serve any cure, do reside in the parish, where he is to serve, especially in livings, that are able to support a resident curate; and where that cannot be done, that they do at least reside so near to the place, that they may conveniently perform all their duties both in the church and parish.

These, my lord, were the orders and resolutions, to which we all agreed, and which I do hereby transmit to you; desiring you to communicate them to the clergy of your diocese, with an assurance, that you are resolved, by the grace of God, to direct your practice in these particulars agreeably thereunto. And so commending you to the blessing of God in these, and all your other pious endeavours for the service of his church, I heartily remain,

My very good lord,

Your truly affectionate brother,

W. CANT.

GEORG. I. 3.

A representation of the lower house of convocation about the bishop of Bangor's sermon of the kingdom of Christ. [May 3. M.DCC.XVII.]

To his grace the lord archbishop of Canterbury, and to the lords the bishops of the province of Canterbury in convocation assembled.

Humbly sheweth,

THAT with much grief of heart we have observed, what in all dutiful manner we now represent to your grace and your lordships, that the right reverend the lord bishop of Bangor hath given great and grievous offence by certain doctrines and positions by him lately published partly in a sermon, entituled, "The nature of the kingdom or church of Christ," and partly in a book, entituled, "A preservative against the principles, and practices of the Nonjurors both in church and state.

The tendency of the doctrines and positions contained in the said sermon and book is conceived to be

I. First, to subvert all government and discipline in the church of Christ, and to reduce his kingdom to a state of anarchy and confusion.

II. Secondly, to impugn and impeach the regal supremacy in causes ecclesiastical, and the authority of the legislature to enforce obedience in matters of religion by civil sanctions.

The passages in the sermon and book aforesaid, which are conceived to carry the evil tendency expressed under the first article, are principally these that follow:

I. [Sermon.] At page 11. octavo edition, his lordship affirms — "As the church of Christ is the kingdom of Christ, he himself is king; and in this it is implied, that he is himself the sole lawgiver to his subjects, and himself the sole judge of their behaviour in the affairs of conscience and eternal salvation. And in this sense therefore his kingdom is not of this world; that he hath in those points left behind him no visible, human authority; no vicegerents, who can be said properly to supply his place; no interpreters, upon whom his subjects are absolutely to depend, no judges over the consciences or religion of his people." This passage seems to deny all authority to the church, and under pretence of exalting the kingdom of Christ, to leave it without any visible human authority to judge, censure, or punish offenders in the affairs of conscience and eternal salvation.

Which will be confirmed by the passage next to be produced pag. 15, 16.

II. "If therefore the church of Christ be the kingdom of Christ, it is essential to it, that Christ himself be the sole lawgiver and sole judge of his subjects in all points relating to the favour or displeasure of almighty God; and that all his subjects, in what station soever they may be, are equally subjects to him; and that no one of them, any more than another, hath authority either to make new laws for Christ's subjects, or to impose a sense upon the old ones, which is the same thing; or to judge, censure, or punish the servants of another master in matters relating purely to conscience or salvation. If any person hath any other notion either through a long use of words with inconsistent meanings, or through a negligence of thought; let him but ask himself, whether the church of Christ be the kingdom of Christ, or not? and if it be, whether this notion of it doth not absolutely exclude all other legislators and judges in matters relating to conscience or the favour of God? or whether it can be his kingdom, if any mortal man have such a power of legislation and judgment in it?"

To the same sense he speaks page 25. "No one of his subjects is lawgiver and judge over others of them in matters relating to salvation, but he alone."

If the doctrine contained in these passages be admitted, there neither is nor hath been since our Saviour's time any authority in the christian church in matters relating to conscience and salvation, not even in the apostles themselves, but all acts of government in such cases have been an invasion of Christ's authority, and an usurpation upon his kingdom.

To which effect his lordship further expresses himself page 14. — "When they (i. e. any men on earth) make any of their own declarations or decisions to concern and affect the state of Christ's subjects with regard to the favour of God; this is so far the taking Christ's kingdom out of his hands, and placing it in their own. Nor is this matter at all made better by their declaring themselves to be vicegerents, or lawmakers, or judges under Christ, in order to carry on the ends of his kingdom."

Which words are not restrained to such decisions, as are inconsistent with the doctrines of the gospel, as appears not only from the general manner, in which he hath expressed himself, but from his direct words page 15. "And whether they happen to agree with him, or to differ from him, as long as they are the lawgivers and judges, without any interposition from Christ either to guide or correct their decisions, they are kings of this kingdom, and not Christ Jesus."

Whether these passages exclude the sacred writers as well as other from making decisions, and interpreting the laws of Christ, your lordships will judge by a passage page 12. — "Nay whoever hath an absolute authority to interpret any any written or spoken laws, it is he, who is truly the lawgiver to all intents and purposes, and not the person, who first wrote or spoke them." When a distinction is made between the interpreters of the written and spoken law, the sacred writers only can be meant by the latter. Others have had the written law, they only of all interpreters heard it spoke by Christ; and his lordship has left us only this choice, either to deny their authority to interpret the laws of Christ, or to charge them with setting up for themselves in opposition to their master.

III. These doctrines naturally tend to breed in the minds of the people a disregard to those, who are appointed to rule over them. Whether his lordship had this view, the following passages will declare page 25. "The church of Christ is the number of persons, who are sincerely and willingly subjects to him, as lawgiver and judge in all matters truly relating to conscience or eternal salvation. And the more close and immediate this regard to him is, the more certainly and the more evidently true it is, they are of his kingdom." And page 31. "If Christ be our king, let us shew ourselves subjects to him alone in the great affair of conscience and eternal salvation; and without fear of man's judgment live and act, as becomes those, who wait for the appearance of an all-knowing and impartial judge, even that king, whose kingdom is not of this world."—

IV. To these doctrines his lordship's description of the church doth well agree. He asserts page 17. "That it is the number of men, whether small or great, whether dispersed or united, who truly and sincerely are subjects to Jesus Christ alone, as their lawgiver and judge in matters relating to the favour of God and their eternal salvation:" and page 24. "The grossest mistakes in judgment about the nature of Christ's kingdom or church have arisen from hence, that men have argued from other visible societies, and other visible kingdoms of this world, to what ought to be visible and sensible in his kingdom:" and page 25. "We must not frame our ideas from the kingdoms of this world of what ought to be in a visible and sensible manner in his kingdom."

V. Against such arguings from visible societies and earthly kingdoms, his lordship says, our Saviour hath positively warned us; [page 25.] — and yet the scripture representations of the church do plainly express its resemblance to other societies in many respects, and we presume his lordship could not be ignorant of the nineteenth article of our church, entituled, "Of the church," viz. "The visible church of Christ is a congregation of faithful men, in the which the pure word of God is preached, and the sacraments be duly administered according to Christ's ordinance in all things, that of necessity are requisite to the same." Though in disparagement of this article by himself solemnly and often acknowledged, he asserts page 10. "That the notion of the church hath been so diversified by the various alterations it hath undergone, that it is almost impossible so much as to number up the many inconsistent images, that have come by daily additions to be united together in it."

We wish, that in his lordships account no images necessary to form a just and true notion of the church had been left out. He omits even to mention the preaching the word, or administering the sacraments; one of which, in the words of the twenty seventh article of our church, is a sign of regeneration or new birth, whereby, as by an instrument, they, that receive baptism rightly, are grafted into the church. We could wish also, that his lordship, whilst he was writing on the subject of the power of the church, had remembered his solemn profession made at his consecration, in which he promised by the help of God to correct and punish according to such authority, as he hath by God's word, and as should be committed to him by the ordinance of this realm, such, as be unquiet, disobedient, and criminous in his diocese.

Your grace and your lordships have seen the tendency of the doctrine in the sermon to throw all ecclesiastical authority out of the church. We now proceed to shew, that the doctrines before delivered in the "Preservative," etc. have the same tendency.

VI. Where, not to trouble your lordships with the contempt thrown on the regular succession of the ministry, and of their own order in particular, for which his lordship has found no better words, than trifles, niceties, dreams, inventions of men, etc. we observe, that as in the sermon all rulers and judges in the visible church are laid aside, so in the book all church communion is rendered unnecessary, in order to intitle men to the favour of God; and every man is referred in these cases to his private judgment, as that which will justify even the worst choice he can make.

Which strange opinion his lordship grounds on what he calls a demonstration in the strictest sense of the word in a paragraph pag. 89, 90. which is indeed nothing but the common and known case of an erroneous conscience, which was never till now allowed wholly to justify men in their errors, or in throwing off all the authority of lawful governours. For this is putting all communions on an equal foot, without regard to any intrinsic goodness, or whether they be right or wrong, and making every man, how illiterate and ignorant soever, his own sole judge and director on earth in the affair of religion.

The use his lordship intends from this doctrine is expressed page 90. "Every one may find it in his own conduct to be true, that his title to God's favour cannot depend upon his actual being, or continuing in any particular method, but upon his real sincerity in the conduct of his conscience and of his own actions under it:" and in page 91. is laid down this general proposition: "The favour of God follows sincerity, considered as such, and consequently equally follows every equal degree of sincerity."

If sincerity as such [i. e. meer sincerity] exclusive from the truth or falshood of the doctrine or opinion, be alone sufficient for salvation, or to intitle a man to the favour of God, if no one method of religion, be in itself preferable to another, the conclusion must be, that all methods are alike in respect to salvation or the favour of God.

VII. His lordship himself, in a point of the tenderest concern, has applied this principle to the whole reformation, and in virtue of it has left no difference between the popish and our reformed church, but what is founded in personal persuasion only, and not in the truth of the doctrines, or in the excellency of one communion above the other. The place we refer to, is at page 85. — “What is it, that justified the protestants in setting up their own bishops? Was it, that the popish doctrines and worship were actually corrupt; or that the protestants were persuaded in their own consciences, that they were so? the latter without doubt; as appears from this demonstration. Take away from them this persuasion; they are so far from being justified, that they are condemned for their departure. Give them this persuasion again, they are condemned, if they do not separate. Or in another manner: suppose a papist, not persuaded of that corruption, to separate; he is, for the want of that persuasion alone condemned: suppose a protestant, or one thoroughly persuaded of that corruption, to separate; and he is justified in so doing; or not to separate, and he is condemned.” From this pretended demonstration his lordship concludes: “If this were duly and impartially considered, it would be impossible for men to unchristian, unchurch, or declare out of God's favour any of their fellow creatures upon any lesser, or indeed any other consideration, than that of a wicked dishonesty and insincerity; of which in these cases God alone is judge.”

If it be true, that there is but one consideration, viz. that of wicked dishonesty and insincerity, which will justify unchristianing, unchurching, or declaring out of God's favour, and of that one consideration in these cases God alone is judge; there is evidently an end of all church authority to oblige any to external communion, and of all power, that one man, in what station soever, can have over another in matters of religion: and this will shew, what his lordship's true meaning is under the many colours and disguises he makes use of, when he speaks of excommunication; and that he does not write more against the abuse, than the use of it.

VIII. Your lordships will judge from hence, what view he has in pronouncing at page 101. “Human benedictions, human absolutions, human denunciations, human excommunications have nothing to do with the favour or anger of God:” and in teaching them as human engines permitted to work for a time (like other evils) by providence page 101. as mere outcries of human terror page 99. as the terrors of men,

How his lordship can consistently with these opinions make good his solemn promise made at his consecration, to be ready with all faithful diligence to banish and drive away all erroneous and strange doctrines contrary to God's word, and both privately and openly to call upon and encourage others to do the same; and how he can exercise the high office intrusted to him in the church, or convey holy orders to others, are difficulties, which himself only can resolve, and we humbly hope your grace and your lordships will think it proper to call for the explication.

In maintenance of the second article we offer your lordships the following particulars:

IX. That whereas his majesty is, and by the tutes of this realm is declared to be supreme head of the church; and it is by the statute 1 Elizabeth. cap. i. enacted, that such jurisdictions, privileges, superiorities, and preeminences spiritual and ecclesiastical, as by any spiritual and ecclesiastical power or authority hath heretofore been, or may lawfully be exercised or used for the visitations of the ecclesiastical state and persons, and for reformation, order, and correction of the same, and of all manner of errors, heresies, scisms, abuses, offences, contempts, and enormities, shall for ever by authority of this present parliament be united and annexed to the imperial crown of this realm: in consequence of which the kings and queens of this realm have frequently issued forth their proclamations, injunctions, and directions in matters of religion; and particular his majesty, that now is, did issue his directions for preserving of unity in the church, and the purity of the christian faith concerning the holy Trinity, bearing date December 11. M.DCC.XIV. Georgii primo; yet his lordship in contradiction to this affirms page 14. [sermon] “If any man upon earth have a right to add to the sanctions of his (i. e. Christ's) laws, that is to encrease the number, or alter the nature of the rewards and punishments of his subjects in matters of conscience or salvation; they are so far king's in his stead, and reign in their own kingdoms, and not in his:” and to the same purpose page 18. — “The sanctions of Christ's law are rewards and punishments: but of what sort? not the rewards of this world; not the offices or glories of this state; not the pains of prisons, banishments, fines, or any lesser or more moderate penalties; nay, not the much lesser negative discouragements, that belong to human society. He was far from thinking, that these could be the instruments of such a persuasion, as he thought acceptable to God.”

And whereas the scripture, and our own liturgy from thence has taught us to pray for kings, and all, that are put in authority under them, that they may minister justice to the punishment of wickedness and vice, and to the maintenance of true religion and virtue; his lordship asserts page 20. [sermon] “As soon as ever you hear of any of the engines of this world, whether of the greater or the lesser sort, you must immediately think, that then, and so far the kingdom of this world takes place. For if the very essence of God's worship be spirit and truth; if religion be virtue and charity under the belief of a supreme governor and judge; if true real faith cannot be the effect of force; and if there can be no reward, where there is no willing choice; then in all, or any of these cases to apply force or flattery, worldly pleasure or pain, is to act contrary to the interest of true religion, as it is plainly opposite to the maxims, upon which Christ founded his kingdom; who chose the motives, which are not of this world, to support a kingdom, which is not of this world."

X. The two first cases here mentioned relate to what is essential in the worship of God and religion; yet he declares, that to encourage religion by temporal rewards, is to act contrary to the interest of true religion, as it is opposite to the maxims, on which Christ founded his kingdom. This is to set the worship of God and the neglect of it, religion and irreligion on an equal foot in this world, as if, because they shall hereafter be distinguish'd by rewards and punishments by the great judge, therefore the magistrate was excluded from interposing with rewards and punishments to distinguish them here, and tied up from expressing any concern for his honour, by whom and under whom he beareth rule.

This his lordship further supports page 22.-- "And therefore when you see our Lord in his methods so far removed from those of many of his disciples; when you read nothing in his doctrine about his own kingdom, of taking in the concerns of this world, and mixing them with those of eternity; no commands, that the frowns and discouragements of this present state should in any case attend upon conscience and religion;—no calling upon the secular arm, whenever the magistrate should become christian, to enforce his doctrines, or to back his spiritual authority; but on the contrary, as plain a declaration, as a few words can make, that his kingdom is not of this world; I say, when you see this from the whole tenor of the gospel, so vastly opposite to many, who take his name into their mouths; the question with you ought to be, whether he did not know the nature of his own kingdom or church better, than any since his time? whether you can suppose, he left any such matters to be decided against himself, and his own express professions?" Where your lordships will observe, that all laws for the encouragement of religion, or discouragement of irreligion are reckoned to be decisions against Christ.

XI. The passages produced under this head, are as destructive of the legislative power, as of the regal supremacy; but the acts for uniformity of public prayer, and the articles for establishing of consent touching true religion, which in the last of the said acts are enjoined to be subscribed by the several degrees of persons ecclesiastical, being the main fence and security of the established church of England, they seem to be singled out by his lordship to be render'd odious. The passage we refer to, is to be found page 27, 28, 29. [sermon] "There are some professed christians, who contend openly for such an authority, as indispensably obliges all around them to unity of profession, that is, to profess even what they do not, what they cannot believe to be true. This sounds so grossly, that others, who think they act a glorious part in opposing such an enormity, are very willing for their own sakes, to retain such an authority, as shall oblige men, whatever they themselves think, though not to profess what they do not believe, yet to forbear the profession and publication of what they do believe, let them believe it of never so great importance. Both these pretensions are founded upon the mistaken notion of the peace, as well as authority of the kingdom, that is, the church of Christ. Which of them is the most insupportable to an honest and a christian mind, I am not able to say; because they both equally found the authority of the church [of Christ upon the ruins of sincerity and common honesty, and mistake stupidity and sleep for peace, because they would both equally have prevented all reformation, where it hath been, and will for ever prevent it, where it is not already; and in a word, because both equally divest Jesus Christ of his empire in his own kingdom, set the obedience of his subjects loose from himself, and teach them to prostitute their consciences at the feet of others, who have no right in such a manner to trample upon them.

If your lordships consider by what authority the acts of uniformity were enacted, by whom the articles were made, and by whom ratified and confirmed, you will discern, who they are that are said to divest Jesus Christ of his empire in his own kingdom, and stand charged by his lordship in the indecent language of trampling upon the consciences of others.

XII. Your lordships have now seen under the first head, that the church hath no governors, no censures, no authority over the conduct of men in matters of conscience and religion; you have seen under the second head, that the temporal powers are excluded from any right to encourage true religion, or to discourage the contrary.

But to do justice to his lordship's scheme, and to set it before you in its full light, we must observe, that he further asserts, that Christ himself (the only power not yet excluded) never doth interpose in the direction of his kingdom here. After observing page 13. [Sermon] that temporal lawgivers do often interpose to interpret their own laws, he adds: "But it is otherwise in religion, or the kingdom of Christ. He himself never interposeth, since his first promulgation of his law, either to convey infallibility to such, as pretend to handle it over again, or to assert the true interpretation of it amidst the various and contradictory opinions of men about it. To the same purpose he speaks at page 15. in a passage before recited.

Since then there are in the church no governors left in the state, none, who may intermeddle in the affairs of religion, and since Jesus Christ himself never doth interpose; we leave it to your grace and your lordships to judge, whether the church and kingdom of Christ be not reduced to a meer state of anarchy and confusion, in which every man is left to do, what is right in his own eyes.

XIII. We beg leave to close these observations in the words of the thirtyfourth article of our church: "Whosoever through his private judgment willingly and purposely doth openly break (much more teach and encourage others to break) the traditions and ceremonies of the church, which be not repugnant to the word of God, and be ordained and approved by common authority, ought to be rebuked openly (that others may fear to do the like) as one, that offendeth against the common order of the church, and hurteth the authority of the magistrate, and woundeth the consciences of weak brethren.

Having thus laid before your grace and your lordships the several passages, upon which this our humble representation is grounded, together with our observations on them, we must profess ourselves to be equally surprized and concerned, that doctrines of so evil a tendency should be advanced by a bishop of this established church, and that too in a manner so very remarkable, that the supremacy of the king should be openly impeached in a sermon delivered in the royal audience, and that the constitution of the church should be dangerously undermined in a book professedly written against the principles and practices of some, who had departed from it.

But so it hath happened: this right reverend bishop in his extreme opposition to certain unwarrantable pretensions to extravagant degrees of church power seems to have been so far transported beyond his temper and his argument, as not only to condemn the abuse, but even to deny the use, and to destroy the being of those powers, without which the church, as a society, cannot subsist, and by which other national constitutions, next under Christ, are chiefly supported. Under these apprehensions we could not but hold ourselves obliged to represent our own sense, with that of our brethren the clergy, to your lordships, and to submit the whole to your much weightier judgment which we do as with the most unfeigned sorrow for the unhappy occasion, and all becoming deference to our superiors, so with the most sincere and disinterested zeal, and with no other view in the world, but to give a check to the propagation of these erroneous opinions, so destructive of all government and discipline in the church, and so derogatory to the royal supremacy, and legislative authority, as, we presume, may have been sufficiently evinced. Of our honest and loyal intentions, we doubt not but your lordships in your known goodness will favourably apprise his majesty, if it shall be thought needful or expedient, in order to set this matter, together with our proceedings thereupon, in a true and proper light.

We are by no means infeasible, that there are divers other offensive passages in the sermon and book above mentioned, which we for the present omit, as not falling so directly under the two heads proposed; nor are we ignorant, that several offensive books have of late time been published by other writers, whose confidence doth loudly call for the animadversions of the synod, to which also we shall be ready to contribute our endeavours; but we apprehended this to be a case very singular and extraordinary, such as deserved a separate consideration, that a bishop of this church should in his writings make void and set at nought those very powers, with which he himself is invested, and which by virtue of his office he is bound to exercise; in particular as often as he confers holy orders, institutes to any ecclesiastical benefice, or inflicts spiritual censures: nor were we less apprehensive, that the eminence of his lordship's station and character, as it aggravates the scandal, would also help to spread the ill influence further and faster under that colour of argument, with which he endeavours to cover this his pernicious tenets.

If your grace and your lordships, after having maturely weighed the premises, shall find just cause for the complaints, which have given rise to this representation, we rest assured, that in your godly zeal and great wisdom you will not fail to enter upon some speedy and effectual method to vindicate the honour of God and religion, that hath been so deeply wounded, to assert the prerogative given to all godly princes in holy scripture, that hath been so manifestly invaded, and to resettle those weak and wavering minds, which may have been ensnared or perplexed by any of the unsound doctrines taught and published by this right reverend bishop. Which your lordships pious counsels and endeavours will be attended with the united prayers of us, our brethren, whom we represent, and of all good christian people.

Ex utroque vero genere priſcam hic Britannicae eccleſiae fabricam per aetates ſingulas intueamini et politiam; quis nimirum, et quando eam primo legibus circumſcripſit; quae origo juris hic eccleſiaſtici, quale olim fuit, et quanta potestatis; quibus latum auſpiciis, quo ſuſceptum honore, et quo obſequio conſervatum.

Videbitis hic praeterea, quali olim cura, et quanto ſtudio antiquiſſimi veſtri deceſſores eccleſiam Dei amplexi ſunt et venerati; ut infantulam eam in eremum pulſam, et in finibus terrarum orbis exulantem, primi omnium mortalium hoſpicio publico exceperunt, placidaque pace compoſuerunt. Veſtri, inquam, ^d majores (et, ut quidam perhibent, Arviragus, Marius, Coilus, reges celeberrimi) terris omnibus exploſos chriſtianos ſuo primi ſuſceperunt regno; et non ſolum laetam eis conceſſerunt pacem, ſed et habitandi regiunculam. Primi eccleſiae publicae aediſcandae tuendaeque potestatem fecerunt; fidei promovendae veniam primi indulſerunt; cum ea nec Romae adhuc, nec alicubi gentium per univerſitatis ambitum publice concederetur. Primus etiam regum omnium ſuſcepit anteceſſor veſter Lucius^e, rex Britannicus, ſacram baptiſmatis ablutionem; regum primus evangelio propagando ſtudit; regibusque univerſis ωρονφωσφορ chriſtianitatis eluxit lucifer et praeluxit. Primus regum ſuis ſumptibus eccleſias condidit; episcopales primus conſtituit ſedes; ſacerdotibus erexit habitacula; eademque haec omnia luculentis dotavit praediis, et ut tutius poſſiderentur, amplis munivit privilegiis. Hinc Britannia^f veſtra a tranſmarinis auctoriſus, atque ipſis alias Romanis prima agnoſcitur e permiſſu principum fidei ſuſceprix et ſeminarium; primum praedicatorum et ſeminantium hoſpitiū publicum; profugorum religionis ergo et exulantium refugium certum et aſylum ſalubre. Nec ſufficit quidem, Britanniam veſtram primum edidiſſe regem chriſtianum, qui divino refulgens lumine, totum orbem Britannicum ſuis accendebat radiis; ni Romani orbis imperator primus chriſtianus, qui univerſae eccleſiae pacem intulit, ^g Britannia etiam veſtra oriundus eſſet Conſtantine Magnus; ſicut et regina illic prima chriſtiana, mater ejus Helena.

dani regni fastigio, ut vi caelum caperent, in religiosorum abiisse solitudinem; quindecim scil. reges (vel plures) monachos factos fuisse, aut Romipetas; reginas tredecim moniales; duodecim etiam reges martyrio ab infidelibus coronari memorantur, et decem prae eximia sanctitate inter divos redigi. Adeo ut quidam ait: "Mirum tunc fuerat, regem videre non sanctum." Et alius^k in sua chronica: "Plures," inquit, "se invenisse sanctos reges in Anglia, quam in ulla alia mundi provincia quantumcunque populosa." Transeo regiae sobolis eximiam multitudinem: reges memero.

Ecquis facile crediderit, Aethelwulfum^l regem decimam partem non solum bonorum et facultatum, sed et mansionum praediorumque totius regni ecclesiae contulisse? Aut quod de filio ejus, Aluredo Magno, praedicatur; qui Zachaei aestuans ardoribus, dimidiam partem census sui annui in pios erogavit usus, temporisque partem tertiam (hoc est, dierum singulorum naturalium horas octo) studiis sacris et^m orationibus destinavit? O stuporem omnium aetatum Aluredum! cujus dum religionem intuemur, nunquam exiisse videatur monasterio; dum bella et militiam, nullibi versatus fuisse unquam, nisi in castris (quingenta duobus enim dimicasse fertur praeliis) dum scripta ejus et lucubrationes, vitam transegisse in academia; et dum regni populique sui administrationem, nibilo unquam studuisse, nisi in foro et senatu justitiae promovendae, legibusque bonis lanciendis. Liceret utinam sigillatim omnia enarrasse.

Nec praeteream pronepotem ejus, Eadgarum regem, qui inter multa alia egregiae majestatis et pietatis opera ita claruit, ut non solum, "quamdiu vixerat, unum quolibet anno fundaret monasterium" (ut Capgraviusⁿ retulit) sed, cum sub tempore antecessorum suorum regum omnia monasteria in tota Anglia destructa penitus essent a Danis barbarisque, "Ego," inquit, "meis cooperatoribus strenue annitentibus, quadraginta septem monasteria cum monachis et sanctimonialibus constitui, et (si Christus vitam mihi tamdiu concesserit) usque ad quinquagesimum, remissionis [Jubilaei] numerum, meae devotae Deo munificentiae oblationem protendere decrevi." Deficiet dies, Edwinum, Inam, Offam, Ethelredum, filium Ethewulfi, Edmundum, Aethelstanum, Canutum, Edwardum Confessorem, et singulos quosque enumerare; cum inter omnes illos illustrissimos reges, antecessores vestros, Anglosaxones christianos, vix reperiatur, censeo, tertius, qui ecclesiam Dei in aliquibus non ornaverit, auxerit, ditaverit. Taceo procerum nubem densam: taceo matronarum et nobilium foeminarum ingentem chorum.

Clerum ipsum, si placet, intueamur. Clerum inquam, nec tum olim in scribendo clarum (si Bedam et Alcuinum, aliumque unum vel et alterum excipiamus) nec supra morem rudium, in quibus floruit, seculorum eruditum; pium tamen, et in crebris jejuniis, orationibus, divinoque cultu, pro religionis suae norma, exhibendo sedulum; in eleemosynis vero, operibusque charitatis, et in excolendo ecclesiam Dei egregie sane praelucentem. Non hic prosequendi sigillatim locus est, quot basilicae et monasteria, quot ecclesiae et xenodochia ab archiepiscopis, episcopis, et clero caetero extructa sunt, amplissimisque dotata praediis et facultatibus; habentur sparsim apud auctores nomina; valor summatim in Henrici VIII. fisco regio.

Placeat clementissimae vestrae majestati unum tantummodo exemplum agnoscere, et ex eo, unius praesulis sub prisco seculo amplitudinem, in usus publicos fructuosam. Cum Herebertus^p a Lonsinga, abbas Ramesiensis, datis Gulielmo II. regi 1900. lib. in episcopatum Thetfordensem ascendisset, Wintoniensem etiam abbatiam patri suo non exigua summa comparasset, Romam proficiscitur, et magnam vim thesauri ad delendam tantam simoniam, aulae licet coactam vitio, effudit nomine poenitentiae. Reversus demum, minus videbatur pecuniosus; sed jam tum episcopalem sedem a Thetfordia pago in Norwicum civitatem transferens, eximiam illic basilicam, seu ecclesiam cathedralem Christo condidit. Huic ab australi latere nobile posuit monasterium S. Trinitatis, a boreali sumptuosum episcopatu palatium. Thetfordiae Cluniacensium instituit abbatiam monachorum, Lennae prioratum, et ad Hieri ostium, quod Yarmouth dicitur, coenobiolum^q. Sua etiam monasteria praediis ditavit et suppellectili, nihil ab episcopatu subtracto, ne successoribus videretur injuriam intulisse. Super haec omnia^r, 5. alias ecclesias construxit; unum S. Leonardo extra muros civitatis Norwici; alteram in ipsa civitate; tertiam Helmbamiae, ubi olim fuerat episcopalis cathedra; quartam Lennae, eamque primariam illam S. Margariae; quintam denique Hiermutbiae, spatiosam valde et capacem. "Ingenti ergo," inquit Malmesburius, "et numerosa virtutum gratia praeteritarum offensarum obumbravit molem." Prodigiosum memoro, et in hoc genere stellam primae magnitudinis. Erant etiam in secunda magnitudine clari multi, qui in ecclesiis condendis, sacris promovendis, pauperibus alendis, nudis vestiendis, captivis redimendis, servis manumittendis, aliisque operibus pietatis exequendis, omnes suas facultates, praeter victum et vestitum necessarium, effuderunt. Patrimonium enim ecclesiarum suarum sibi non dari norunt, sed credi; et se non fuisse ejusdem mere proprietarios, at fiduciarios possessores, tam ad usum ecclesiarum suarum atque pauperum, quam ad sui ipsorum proprium: sic etenim a regibus et aliis benefactoribus olim concedi, sic a patribus et clero jam tum accipi; non ad luxum aut voluptatem, non ad praedia comparanda, ditandamve sobolem aut cognatos, aut familiam novam erigendam. Docent hoc patres et concilia luculenter, statuuntque canones non solum transmarini, sed et^s Britannici. Istiusmodi igitur virtutibus emicuit clerus aevi veteris et Anglosaxonici; habuitque sine dubio, quo luculentius has exequeretur. Sacerdotis enim familia tenuis tunc erat ex ejus coelibatu; beneficium vero multo uberius, quod in multis locis una solum tunc erat ecclesia, ubi sub aevo Gulielmi II. tres vel quatuor erigebantur¹: plures aevo posteriore. Et licet exiguae plerunque eruditionis essent sub illis seculis sacerdotes; e vitae tamen probitate, et in obeundis praefacultate sua, in suis ministeriis diligentia, eam alias apud populum inibant gratiam, ut Bedae² placuerit ita proloqui: "Tota," inquit, "tunc fuit sollicitudo doctoribus illis Deo serviendi, non seculo; tota cura cordis excolendi, non ventris. Unde et in magna veneratione erat tempore illo religionis habitus; ita ut ubicunque clericus aliquis aut monachus adveniret, gaudenter ab omnibus, tanquam Dei famulus, exciperetur; etiam si in itinere pergens inveniretur, accurrebant, et flexa cervice, vel manu signari, vel ore illius se benedici gaudebant."

Magno sane, quod ait, in honore fuit universus clerus cum apud populum et proceres, tum apud ipsos reges Anglosaxonicos; nec precaria hoc quidem concessione, sed ipsis confirmatum legibus. Sacerdos ad altare celebrans, minori Thano, id est, villae domino atque militi, aequiparabatur, in censu capitis pariter aestimatus³, pariterque alias honorandus. Quia Thani rectitudine dignus est, inquit lex, et abbas, sive coenobiarcha inter Thanos majores (quos barones regis appellarunt posteri) primicerius fuit. Episcopus similiter inter comites ipsos majores, qui integro fruebantur comitatu, juribusque comitivis. Archiepiscopus duci et satrapae amplissimae provinciae, pluribus gaudenti comitatibus, praeficiebatur; ut et caeteri omnes ecclesiastici comparibus suis omnibus secularibus. Amplectebantur siquidem reges universum clerum laeta fronte, et ex eo sibi semper legebant primos a conciliis, primos ad officia reipublicae obeunda. Quippe sub his seculis apud ipsos solum erat literarum clavis et scientiae, dum militiae prorsus indulgerent laici; factumque est interea, ut os sacerdotis oraculum esset plebis; os episcopi oraculum regis et reipublicae. Primi igitur sedebant in omnibus regni comitiis et tribunalibus episcopi, in regali quidem palatio cum regni magnatibus, in comitatu una cum comite et justitiario comitatus, in² turno vicecomitis cum vicecomite, in hundredo cum domino hundredi. Sic ut in promovenda justitia usquequaque gladius gladium adjuvaret, et nihil, inconsulto sacerdote, qui velut saburra in navi fuit, ageretur.

Mutavit priscam hanc consuetudinem Gulielmus I. jurisdictionem alteram ab altera discretis secernens tribunalibus. Et secrevit quidem tribunalia, non diminuit jurisdictionem cleri; imo jurejurando confirmavit leges "Sanctae matris ecclesiae; quoniam per eam," inquit prooemium⁴, "rex et regnum solidum subsistendi habent fundamentum." Decrevit etiam, cleri omnia protegenda; et quas in curiis secularibus ecclesiae haberent lites, ante alias quorumcunque terminandas. Pulchra utique sunt polliciti Willielmus Rufus, Henricus I. et rex Stephanus. Sub Normannicis autem istis regibus nutari coepit prisca illa immunitas ecclesiae. Vellicantur enim monasteria, carcere coercentur praefules, venundantur episcopatus et ecclesiae dignitates, ad censum dimittuntur ejus praedia, et tributis supponuntur militaribus. Prae caeteris autem corripuit maxime rex Henricus II. ipsos nervos ecclesiasticae immunitatis, cum in concilio Clarendoniae avitas recognoscens consuetudines, multa redigeret statueretque contra canones pontificios. Inter alia, quod archiepiscopi, episcopi [et abbates] barones jam facti e tenuris possessionum ecclesiarum suarum, baronum obeant consuetudines erga regem et justitiarios ejus. Et, quod "Clerici accusati de quacunque re, summoniti a justitiario regis, veniant in curiam ipsis responsuri ibidem de hoc; unde videbitur curiae regis, quod ibi sit respondendum, etc. et si clericus convictus aut confessus fuerit, non debet eum de caetero ecclesia tueri." Juste licet, haud felici tamen auspicio; ex illa enim die usque ad nostra tempora in sequentibus plerisque parliamentis coercetur aliquialiter res ecclesiae.

Inter tot autem amplitudinis suae diminutiones ea semper habitus est clerus reverentia, ut quamvis ex eo alii atque alii essent superbi, avari, incontinentes, luxuriosi, et homines nequissimi; alii tamen cum propter summam in rebus gerendis prudentiam et solertiam, tum propter eximiam in regem et rempubl. fidelitatem et amorem (conquiniscente jam Maria, et florente Martha) ad maxima regni munia obeunda semper pene evocarentur. Septies, reor, vel supra, dum in transmarinis versaretur rex, aut sub ephebia, e clero constituti sunt custodes regni, qui proreges alias nuncupantur. Duodecies sunt summi Angliae justitarii, tum, cum ea dignitas tam in honore, quam in amplitudine alias omnes totius regni antecelluit. Primatum enim obtinebat in consiliis regis⁵; et complectebatur sub priscis illis seculis officia capitalis justitarii tribunalis regii, capitalis justitarii civilium placitorum, capitalis baronis scaccarii, magistri wardorum, et partes aliquot summi cancellarii et thesaurarii Angliae. Claruissent etiam sine dubio alii plures ista dignitate, si Innocentius P. III. non imposuisset R. Richardo I. sub periculo interdictionis, ut [Hubertum] "archiepiscopum ab officio justitarii removeret," etc. Sed divulgum postea hoc officium in partes varias, sub Edwardo rege I. exhalavit. Inter cancellarios Angliae, et custodes magni sigilli clerus floruit, plus minus, centum sexaginta vicibus. Inter summos thesaurarios circiter octoginta. Custodes privati sigilli plerique olim omnes erant ecclesiastici. Magistri rotulorum etiam usque ad annum xxvi. Henrici VIII. justitarii itinerantes, civilium placitorum, et ad assisas tenendas, numerosa multitudine e clero habebantur usque ad tempora Edwardi III. vel subinde.

Memorable est, quod hic se ingerit, de rege Edwardo III. proditum. Ascivisse eum sibi e clero nobiliores, plerosque officiales in administrationem regni, aulae, et familiae suae^a; e quibus hi deprebenduntur simul florentes in anno ejus 39. viz. "Summus cancellarius et thesaurarius, custos privati sigilli, magister rotulorum, decem magistri cancellariae, capitalis camerarius scaccarii, receptor et custos thesauri et jocalium regis, cancellarius scaccarii, clericus privati sigilli, thesaurarius hospitii regis, magister gardrobiae, camerarius alter scaccarii, etc. thesaurarius Aquitaniae et a partibus Calesiae, thesaurarius Hiberniae." Hos omnes uno eodemque tempore in sua solum dioecesi commorantes, descripsit Londinensis episcopus; cum hoc idem fieri per omnes Angliae episcopatus, praecepisse videretur papa Urbanus V. Animadvertendum igitur est, quanta fuerat in officiis totius regni et reipublicae clericorum multitudo, si per singulas dioeceses integra haberetur illa descriptio; majorem tamen extitisse prius aliquando, innuit Malmesburius^c, cum "Nullus," ait, "erat clericus, nisi causidicus." Sed provenisse videtur ex Urbani hoc edicto, ut deinceps parcius susciperentur clerici ad officia secularia.

Hic ecclesiae splendor vetus, haec et cleri prisca reverentia^d (absit dictis invidia, dum nihil memoro, non historicum) per aetates omnes; et floruit una legum ecclesiasticarum auctoritas, prout per seculorum varietates edi contigerint in vestra Britannia; pluries siquidem purgatae a Romano fermento, et solutae demum a jugo papali. Cui negotio perficiendo statuebatur primum sub rege^e Henrico VIII. postea sub^f Edwardo VI. denuo sub regina^g Elizabetha XXXII. expurgatores nominandos fore; etsi haecenus obdormierit munus illud, tepideve nimis fuerit executum. Potestatis vestrae est et prudentiae regiae, quae supra morem majorum vestrorum sinceram pietatem, castam fidem, purgatam religionem, et ecclesiam omni zelo et veneratione colit, quid expediat definire, et coronidem denique imponere. Aurem mihi vellit Cynthius. Non defuerunt autem, qui residuos vellicare palmites aggressi sunt, et integram ecclesiae jurisdictionem sic impetere; ut excussa cruce, ecclesiae symbolo, e corona regia, emblema seculi solum radiaret lilium. Cobi- buit hoc molimen princeps optima regina Elizabetha anno regni sui XXXIX. et alias; oppressitque pater vester prudentissimus Jacobus rex; qui neutram e sororibus columnis, arcum et coronam regni sui sustinentibus, hanc ecclesiasticam, illam secularem violari passus est aut temerari. Florentes autem ambas pariter, pariter ambas semet exerentes, regio vestro porrexit, uti acceperat, patrocinio; sub quo laeta acquiescens Anglicana ecclesia, posthabitis tam externorum, quam indigenarum calumniis, hodie ovat; et ovet, precor, inperpetuum, pia, humilis, et sincera.

Me vero quod attinet, rex augustissime, omni cum ardore supplicandum est, ut extenso regiae mansuetudinis vestrae sceptro aureo, ausis his nostris ignoscatis, senis animum, ad majestatis radios tremescentem, erigatis; oblationemque istam, indignam aliter et infelicem, serena fronte suscipere, tueri, protegere dignemini. Sic cum Deo bono dissipatum me interea et confusum recolligam, et quae supersunt, caetera pro tenuitate mea, et exiguo vitae residuo curabo adjungenda. Deus opt. max. regiam vestram majestatem, sobolemque serenissimam ecclesiae et Britannis inperpetuum sospitet beatissime.

Subditus omni obsequio devotissimus,

Praefatio lectori.

FACTURUS NE essem operae pretium, si a primordio christianae religionis concilia et decreta in re ecclesiarum Britannicarum ad nostra usque tempora concinnarem, diu mecum et sollicitus haesitavi. Adeo enim varias esse deprehendi hominum sententias, qua ex ipsorum praevaricatione, qua e rerum difficultate, ut cum saepissime discrepetur in rebus secularibus, rarius etiam conveniatur de ecclesiasticis, et quod pars una probat atque amplectitur, rejiciat alia et explodat. Verendum igitur erat, ne et nostri hic esset laboris exitus. Quidam enim ita religiose faevium, ut, praeter sacram paginam nihil, sed nec eam quidem, nisi canonicam, patiantur. Mitiores alii, patres, atque ecclesiae historias, ipsos etiam canones per intervalla et membratim ferunt; sed quod alias forte grave oleant, et ecclesiam nostram, feliciter reformatam, interdum pulsant; obrui potius malunt universam struem, et flammis dari, quam ut lucem videant, aut videantur. Sanioris denique consilii viri, quorum et longe maximus, Deo gratias, est numerus, Dei ipsius exemplo inhaerentes, numerosis Sodomitarum catervis parciturum se potius profitentis, quam vel decem justos inter impios perditurum, nolunt triticum, vel inter zizania palam eradicari, vel cum zizaniis clam in latibulis computrescere. Ut simul producantur igitur in lucem expetunt, utque doctorum judicio credantur, qui satis norunt triticum segregare, et in horreum ecclesiae ecclesiae congerere, zizania vero aut flammis dare, aut porcis, id est, haereticis et schismaticis, devoranda relinquere. Censent enim multum interesse ecclesiae, distincte noscere zizaniorum genera; deprehendere (quantum datur) qua in nocte inimicus ea sevit; quorum opera usus est, quando sunt enata; vigeantne etiamnum hodie inter fruges; an ab agricolis et messoribus dominicis pridem sint contrita; quibus denique artibus armisve suppressa a majoribus nostris, deletave fuerint; vel hoc etiam nosse apprime fore existimant in rem SS. ecclesiae: ut si forte repullulent denuo et renascantur, posteris in promptu sit ad eadem remedia se convertere.

Hac opinionum varietate coercitus, convenio quos pietate atque doctrina noveram in ecclesia nostra potiores theologos: expono quid mecum meditabar, ipse, quid illi censeant suadeantque sciscitor. Hi actutum omnes, omnia bona dicere, probare institutum, coeptum laudare opus, editionem accelerare. Claros multos episcopos intelligo me dicere: reverendissimos inprimis tres metropolitae (liceat eos omni cum honore et humilitate nominasse) DD. Georgium et Guilielmum Cantuarienses, atque D. Jacobum Armachanum. Inter et haec, magnopere dein erexit animum, quod a reverendo patre D. Matthaeo, Norwicensi tunc praesule (modo Eliensi) acceperam: egregium illud ecclesiae lumen, regni decus Lancelotum Andrewes, ὁ μακαρίτης, Wintoniensem nuper episcopum, graviter aliquando conquestum fuisse, quod in Britanniae nostrae conciliorum, canonumque ad invidiam feracissimae synodis pervulgandis, nemo oleum impendisset, nemo operam praebuisset, cum apud Germanos, Gallos, Italos, Hispanos, aliosque externos, multi fuissent in eo genere, optime a suis meriti. Serio igitur circa quindecennium jam elapsam cum ipso egisse, ut accitis sibi ad multi temporis et laboris opus citius expediendum ῥωεργοις aliquot, provinciam hanc in ecclesiae Dei beneficium, gentisque nostrae honorem fusciperet, auspice Christo, adiutore ipso praesule Wintoniensi. Id quod absque longa, ut aiebat, mora, ῥω Θεῷ, aggressi fuissent, nisi interea forte inaudierant me hunc ipsum lapidem aliquandiu agitasse. Quod cum praesuli retulissent, laetatus ille ad incepti operis initium: cum bono Deo inquit, propriamque manum retraxit a tabula. Infelicem interea me, qui tantum et tam multiplex orbi et ecclesiae beneficium ex improvise anteverterim. Praeter fidem enim et solertiam ipse nihil adfero. Solertiam certe in rimando perplurimas latebras et recessus, ad hanc conciliorum supellectilem eruendam. Fidem in edendo, quae collegimus, caste et fideliter, juxta exemplaria codicesque manuscriptos. Pauperulae sunt fortassis notae nostrae, sed quas aliquando non dedignabitur spero lector aliquis. Etsi in Saxonice transferendis claudicaverim, facile ei erit, qui rectius norit, verbum male sanum vel et locum restituere: ego supra Martem meum non sapio. Sin me causabitur quispiam, multas praeteriisse synodos et concilia; respondebit verbum illud vetus, Bernardus non vidit omnia: certe nec qui Bernardo oculatior est; sol ipse, totus oculus. Fateor me incautum praeteriisse aliquot, quae me penes habui: ab aliis etiam, praesertim a recolendo mihi semper D. supradicto Armachano, non pauca recepisse, cum loca, quibus inferenda essent, transcurrisset praelum. Sed hic una misit in magnam partem primi istius nostri tomi splendidae multas observationes, facturus porro forsitan et in reliquam, plus quam nostrae fuerit mediocritatis expectare; debitae autem gratitudinis est, hoc quod praestiti agnoscere. De appendice igitur ad hunc tommum attexenda cogito, in qua prodibunt (dante Deo) haec omnia; nec dedignabor certe inferere, si quis alius quicquam pari modo sit praestiturus.

Quoad vero ipsam hanc nostram collectionem, cum per tres insignes epochas sponte se distribuerit; nos oblatam distributionem amplectentes, singulis epochis singulos tomos seu volumina, auspicante Domino, destinavimus.

Primo ea, quae ab initio christianae religionis, usque ad Anglosaxonicae conditionis periodum (id est, an. Dom. MLXVI.) habita sunt, hic jam compegimus.

Secundo ea, quae post subactos a Normannis Anglosaxones, usque ad exutum papam; resignationem pontificiae jurisdictionis regi Henrico VIII. factam (qua adempta est episcopis cogensdorum postea conciliorum potestas usitata) et monasteriorum catalysim, congeessimus.

Tertio ea, quae deinceps in ecclesiis Britanniarum reformatis, usque ad nostra tempora acciderunt, concinnavimus.

Opus, spero, doctis plerumque gratum atque utile: varie tamen, e varia singulorum tommorum ratione. Primus forte magis speciatim arridebit rei antiquae studiosis: secundus juris nostri ecclesiastici professoribus: tertius his, qui reformatae apud nos ecclesiae modum et negotium nosse expetunt. Quo autem auspicio in lucem prodibunt, me jam sene propemodum exhausto, secundus et tertius, haud ausim polliceri; nisi illos vir dilectus, et bono natus publico, Jeremias Stephanus, cujus opera primus hic tommus, me adhuc tantum non invito, in lucem prodiit, ope et consilio Johannis Spelmanni filii mei, quem studiorum meorum (inutilium licet) haeredem scribo, typis curaverit mandandos. Quum vero in primo hoc tomo peragrandi mihi erant secula illa valde caliginosa; cogique contigit ex argumenti obscuritate duces saepe caecos, auctores malefidos sequi; non possum non vereri, quin in erroris foveam ipse saepe inciderim, lectoremque una mecum aliquando sim invito attracturus. Quod si acciderit, nemo mihi id imponat vitio, sed ad eos potius erigendos sanandosque opem quisque ferat, ut ingens illa veterum manuscriptorum codicum vis, quae per Angliam adhuc sparsim latet, et in ipsis, proh dolor! academiis, feliciori disquisitione excutiantur latebris, et sub dio proferantur. Haberi enim in illis censeo, si non venas integras desiderabilis thesauri, ramentorum tamen auri eam copiam, ut orbem literarum sine dubio ditiores reddant, et novum forte lucis adferant hemisphaerium.

Cupio igitur, atque ex animo hortor, ut in utraque academia unus saltem aliquis huic dedecetur studio; praesertim Cantabrigiae, ubi multo major, si recte assequor, nostratium reperitur manuscriptorum copia: praeripiet tamen si Oxonium palmam, non gravabor. Rem enim inprimis lugubrem duco, gentisque nostrae in probrum non mediocriter extare hodie apud nos in bibliothecis academicis, aliisque veteris Saxonici idiomatis manuscriptos codices, quot in orbe alias haud opinor reperiri; situ tamen et squalore corrumpi eos, dum e doctorum millibus ne vel myrta unus, vel linguae illius quispiam sciolus habeatur, qui vel unum eorumdem aliquem luce donet, aut enucleet. Annon mira haec nostratium curiositas, foris esse familiares, domi hospites? callere linguas exteras, nescire patrias? Saxonice vero quod attinet; eo olim in honore fuit forte quod a Graeco plurima retulisset, ut doctissimo ipsi Bedae Anglosaxoni inter laudes detur, fuisse doctum in Saxonica lingua. Tanti etiam apud majores nostros post subactos Anglosaxones, ut ad retinendam eam atque propagandam, praelectiones quasdam instituerint inter coenobitas Tavistokiae in agro Devonensi, quae ad avorum nostrorum memoriam floruisse dicuntur, et cum ipsis monasteriis videntur expirasse. Elanguit ex ea die, et paulatim ita exhalavit animam nobile illud majorum nostrorum et pervetustum idioma, ut in universo (quod sciam) orbe ne unus hodie reperiat, qui hoc scite perfecte calleat; pauci quidem, qui vel exoletas literas usquequaque noverint. Ne Batavus, ne Frisius, ne Germanus πολύγλωσσος, ne vel Saxo hodiernus, frater licet ipse Anglosaxonum nostrorum, atque olim ὁμογενής periodum. Indignum refero et indignans fero; gestitque animus, impar viribus, non grande aliquid audere:

Ἀεὶ τῷ μικροῖς μικρὰ διδάσκει Θεός.

Sed pro tenuitate nostra, mortuum velut et sepultum suscitare: Deumque pronus veneror, ut e tenui quocunque coepto, feliciter crescat in augmentum, fiatque demum, non ecclesiae solum, sed toti rei literariae fructuosum.

Summa approbationis.

RECENSUR haec concilia, decreta, leges, constitutiones in re ecclesiarum orbis Britannici; magno studio, nec minori judicio a doctissimo pariter ac integerrimo viro D. Hen. Spelman. eq. aur. collecta, et in ordinem digesta, una cum accuratis ejusdem clarissimi auctoris annotationibus in loca difficiliora; in quibus omnibus nihil reperio, quominus summa cum utilitate imprimi possint.

Attestatio cl. V. Edmundi Scott, eq. aur. reverendissimi in Christo patris domini Guilielmi, nunc archiepiscopi Cant. senescalli domestici.

MEMINI me adfuisse, quum cl. V. D. Henricus Spelman. eques auratus, * duos libros manuscriptos D. Georgio Abbot, nuper Cantuariensi archiepiscopo, volvendos obtulerit, quorum titulus fuit Decreta, et concilia ecclesiarum orbis Britannici: multas horas in eis legendis impendebat reverendissimus pater, et frequenter me audiente, magnis encomiis honestabat. Praesensque fui, quum serio D. Henr. Spelmanum hortaretur, ut limatos ab ipso et ultimam manum passos in lucem exire fineret (nonnihil enim in eis impolitum adhuc erat et imperfectum) et seposita mora, quanta poterat festinatione, praelo daret. Totum enim opus magni aestimandum duxit, quodque publico et posteritati donari, jure suo videbatur meruisse.

Apparatus de exordio christianae religionis in Britannii, et primum, de primis fidei satoribus. Ex Spelman. vol. I. p. 1. seqq.

BRITANNIAM nostram et fidem recepisse mox a passione Christi, et ab ipsis quidem discipulis ejus, multa perhibent testimonia. Gildas Brito, quem a loco recentiores Badonicum, a prudentia veteres sapientem nuncupant natus ann. Dom. CCCXCIII. (hoc est, in anno quadragesimo quarto post adventum Saxonum in Britanniam, ut ipse refert) auctor sane gravis et eximiae fidei, crebra licet ambage obvolutus, suo sic cothurno loquitur: "Interea glaciale frigore rigenti insulae [Britanniae] et velut longiore terrarum secessu soli visibili non proximae, verus ille Sol, non de firmamento solum temporali, sed de summa etiam caelorum arce, tempora cuncta excedente, universo orbi praefulgidum sui coruscum ostendens, tempore (ut scimus) summo Tiberii Caesaris (quo absque ullo impedimento ejus propagabatur religio, comminata, senatu nolente, a principe morte dilatoribus militum ejusdem) radios suos primum indulget, id est, sua praecepta Christus." Haec ille. Quorum sensus atque summa est: evangelii lumen in Britannia radiasse tempore summo, id est, sub anno novissimo Tiberii Caesaris, qui obiit anno post Christi nativitatem XXXVIII. et post resurrectionem v.

II. Praeisse fertur in hanc sententiam Gildas alter Albanicus, qui in ^b lib. De victoria Aurelii Ambrosii, lucide etiam asserit, Britanniam suscepisse evangelium sub tempore Tiberii imper. addit et is insuper, missum fuisse post dispersionem discipulorum e Gallia in Britanniam a Philippo apostolo Iosephum Arimathaeum, circa an. Domini nostri 63. ipsumque toto suo aevo hic moratum, et cum sociis suis fundamenta posuisse christianae religionis (fidem Christi fiducialiter praedicabant, inquit Malmesburius) quam alii praedicatores et doctores postea confirmabant et propagabant. Videtur hic (quod solet) vel erratum esse in anno Christi designando (nimirum LXIII. pro xxxvi. Baronius enim, Vaticano quodam ductus MS. Iosephi hunc adventum posuit sub anno Christi xxxv.) vel duplicem innui verbi seminationem; primam sub Tiberio imp. alteram sub Nerone, si non Claudio. Lubrica quippe fuit, et generaliter sub his seculis valde incerta annorum Christi ad res tunc gestas coaptatio; cum per quingentos plus minus deinceps annos, nobilem istum a nativitate Christi computum nondum invenisset abbas Dionysius: quod semel hic moneo, ut saepius caveatur in sequentibus.

Certum est, Britanniam non solum sub primis seculis in unius Dei consensisse religione, ut ^c Origenis liquet testimonio: sed et a primis ipsis seminatoribus recepisse fidem, ^d Theodoro hoc perspicue referente. Οἱ ὃ ἡμέτεροι ἄλλοις, καὶ οἱ τελῶναι, καὶ ὁ Κυροτόμος ὅσπασιν ἀνθρώποις τὰς βασιλικὰς προσενηνόχασιν νόμους, καὶ ἐ μόνον Ῥωμαίους καὶ τὰς ὑπὸ τῆς τῆς τελῶνας, ἀλλὰ καὶ τὰ Σκυθικά, καὶ τὰ Σαυροματικά ἔθνη, καὶ Ἰνδοὺς, καὶ Αἰθιοπας, καὶ Πέρσας, καὶ Σήρας, καὶ Ὑρκανοὺς, καὶ Βακτριανούς, καὶ Βρετάνους, καὶ Κίμβρους, καὶ Γερμανούς, καὶ ἀπαξαπλῶς πᾶν ἔθνος καὶ ἕκαστον ἀνθρώπων δεχάσθαι τὰς νόμους ἀνέπεισαν. i. Nostri vero illi piscatores, et telonarii, sutorque ille coriarius (sic apostolos Petrum, Paulum, etc. per ludibrium appellabant gentes) cunctis nationibus leges contulerunt evangelicas; nec Romanos solum, et qui sub iis degunt, sed et Scythas et Sauromatarum gentes, Indosque et Aethiopes, Persas et Seras, et Hyrcanos, et Bactrianos, et Britannos, et Cimbro, et Germanos, et (ut verbo dicam) omnes nationes hominumque genus suscipere crucifixi leges adduxerunt." Haec ille. Sed hic nihil de Britannia, quod non pariter dicit de omnibus mundi regionibus: jam tum scil. perimpleri Davidis id propheticum: "In omnem terram exivit sonus eorum, et in finem orbis terrae verba eorum."

III. Nos particularem magis Britanniae conversionem perscrutamur, et Sophronium Hierosolymorum patriarcham cum Theodoro relegantes, ^e Nicephorum audiemus de discipulis Christi memorantem. "Aegyptum, inquit, et Lybiam alius, ^f alius item extremas oceani regiones, et insulas Britannicas sortitus est." Refert alibi quis ille alius fuit: Simon nempe Cananaeus (quem et Judam nominatum saepe testatur ^g Hieronymus) "et propter flagrantem in magistrum suum ardorem, Zelotes cognominatus est: is," inquit Nicephorus, "caelitus adveniente Sancto Spiritu, Aegyptum, Cyrenem, et Africam, deinde Mauritaniam et Lybiam omnem, evangelium depraedicans percurrit, eandemque doctrinam ad occidentalem oceanum, insulasque Britannicas perfert." Sic et Dorotheus, qui addit praeterea, "occisum eum et sepultum ibidem." Amplecti videntur et Graeci horum sententiam in suo Menologio: "Sed haec absque aliquo antiquorum testimonio," inquit ^h Baronius. Numquid inter recentes rejicit Dorotheum, qui sub Dioclesiano et Constantino magno, Tyri floruit episcopus, sub Juliano coronatus est martyrio? an sancto huic viro fidei expetit e vetustioribus adminiculum? quod passum videtur dicere in Britannia, quem alii longius apud Persas? Ego in examine non morabor.

De S. Jacobo.

IV. Transeo quae de adventu S. Jacobi in Hiberniam et Britannicas insulas nonnulli suggerunt: cum vetustiorum nemo (quod sciam) hoc affirmaverit: et ab inferioribus non videatur aliunde proditum, quam Hibernos et Hiberniam male substituentibus pro Hiberis et Hiberia (i. Hispania) quibus et ubi Jacobus praedicasse multi asserunt, priusquam Hierosolymis redierat, cum ab Herode Agrippa interfectus esset. Hiberniam tamen (quam et tunc Scotiam appellabant) crepusculum evangelici luminis obtinuisse sub primis his seculis, evincunt aliquot testimonia; splendentes licet undequaque radios, neque alias, neque prius quam a S. Patricio afflicta fuerit, ut inferius suo loco demonstrabitur.

De adventu D. Pauli apostoli in Britanniam.

V. Afferunt autem (et non incondite) divum Paulum (quem apud Theodoretum ⁱ Κυροτόμον vocant) profectionem (quam in Hispanias est pollicitus) exequentem, Britanniam etiam salutasse. ^k Theodoretus hoc implicite. "Quando (inquit) appellatione usus, Romam a Festo missus est, defensione audita, absolutus, et in Hispaniam profectus est, et ad alias gentes excurrens, eis doctrinae lucem attulit." Alibi paulo expressius: ^l "In Hispanias pervenit, et insulis, quae in mari jacent, utilitatem attulit." At nunc, quibus insulis? Respondet poeta vetus christianus Venantius Honorius.

Transiit oceanum, vel qua facit insula portum,
Quasque Britannus habet terras, quasque ultima Thule.

^b Ego lib. hunc non vidi, sed e Foxio citatum refero. Act. et Mon. p. 107. a. Quare si forte non idem sit, qui in Vaticana biblioth. MS. Historia Anglorum a Baronio dicitur hic infra num. 8. ^c In Ezech. Hom. 4. ^d De curand. Graecorum affectib. Ser. 9. ^e Niceph. lib. II. cap. xl. ^f V. Baron. an. 44. num. 39. ^g Ann. Chr. 44. num. 38. ^h Com. in 2. Tim. iv. ⁱ In Psal. cxvi. Lib. III. de vita Martini.

Imo respondet et ipse Theodoretus (ut mihi suggerunt ^k Magdeburgenses) expresse dicens: "Paulum e priori captivitate Roma dimissum, Britannis et aliis in occidente evangelium praedicasse." Addunt illi praeterea: "Idem fere tradit Sophronius Hierosolymitanus patriarcha." Locum haud nominant, sed vide librum ejus De peregrinatione Petri et Pauli: et sermonem De natali apostolorum. Auctor quidam alius ipsum adventus sui annum indicat: quartum scil. Neronis, id est, Christi LIX. quem ^l Godwinus praeful arguens, accidisse mavult in anno Christi LXI. id est, Neronis sexto. Convenit igitur ab utroque Paulum venisse Britanniam circa quinque vel septem annos ante annum duodecimum Neronis (quo, relicta Britannia, Petrus dicitur (ut mox infra) Romam rediisse) fidemque igitur Paulum praedicasse in Britannia aliquot annos ante Petrum, ni hunc moratum dixerint in Britannis per quinquennium totum vel septennium: sed Paulum insuper referunt Britannis fidem annunciaisse in ipsa Roma: et nominatim Claudia Rufinae nobilissimae Britannae inter captivos hinc abductae sub Neronis imperio, Martialisque carmine celebratae, sed felicius multo in secunda epistola Pauli ad Timotheum, si eadem plane sit Claudia, quod multi asserunt, nec inique convenit synchronismus.

De adventu S. Petri in Britanniam.

VI. Sunt et qui D. Petrum vehementius contendunt, sacro irrigavisse flumine nostram Britanniam, auctoritate nixi ^m Metaphrastis Graeci auctoris, Innocentii Romani pontificis, et Gildae Britonis mystiloqui. Metaphrastis fidem in multis quidem aliis arguit Baronius; in hoc tamen habere videtur Metaphrastes Gildam nostrum quodammodo, quem testem laudet, ut mox perspexeris: audi Metaphrastem, qui ait, Petrum venisse in Britanniam, "et longo tempore moratum fuisse, multasque gentes non nominatas attraxisse ad fidem," monitumque angelica visione, "oportere eum ire Romam: in qua, cum mortem per crucem sustinuisset, acciperet mercedem justitiae:" Ἐπιμένοντας τε (inquit Graecus codex) ἐν Βρετανία ἡμέρας τινάς, καὶ πολλὰς τῶ λόγῳ Φαρίσας καὶ Χαιρίθους, ἐκκλησίας τε ὑποσησάμενους, ἑπισκόπους τε, καὶ πρεσβυτέρους, καὶ ἀρχόντας χειροτονήσας, δωδεκάτῳ ἔτει τῆς Καίσαρος Νέρωνος αὐθις εἰς Ῥώμην ἀναγίνεσθαι. "Εὐθεν καὶ τὸ Λῆον τελειωθέντα ὁδηγῶν, καὶ Κλήμεντα αὐτὸν αὐτὸν χειροτονήσας ἀπαυρόμενον, καὶ τὴν προσασίαν ἀναγίνεσθαι. ὃν καὶ λόγοις ἱκανοῖς πείσας, καὶ θάρρειν προτρέψας, ὅτι τὸ αὐτὸν τῶ λόγῳ ἀναδείξαι καθεδρῶν. Id est, "Postquam mansisset in Britannia dies aliquot, et multos verbo gratiae illuminasset, ecclesias statuisset, episcoposque, presbyteros et diaconos ordinavisset, anno XII. Caesaris Neronis Romam iterum reversus est, et inveniens Linum moriturum, Clementem in locum ejus elegit recusantem, et eam praefecturam deprecantem: quem sermone ille condigno persuadens, et cum bono esse animo exhortans, in cathedra doctrinae suae collocavit." Haec ille: Quid Innocentius? "Manifestum (est) in omnem Italiam, Hispaniam, et Africam atque Siciliam, insulasque interjacentes nullum instituisse ecclesias, nisi eos, quos venerabilis apostolus Petrus, aut successores ejus constituerunt sacerdotes." Non ait, insulas adjacentes, sed interjacentes; et num Britannia his concluditur terminis? De Petro etiam absolute dictum, ne glossa quidem intelligit. "Petrus apostolus" (inquit ^o Glossa) "vel aliquis ex ejus mandato, ut Paulus: nam Petrus Paulo dedit licentiam praedicandi auctoritate Domini, dum dicit, Segregate mihi Paulum et Barnabam." Glossam audis: ad Gildam ^p transeo, de clero gentis suae conquerentem: "Multos habere suam Britanniam, praecepta Christi spernentes, et suas libidines votis omnibus implere curantes, sedem Petri apostoli immundis pedibus usurpantes, sed merito cupiditatis in Judae traditoris pestilentem cathedram decedentes." Godwinus praeful dictum intelligit allegorice, ad perstringendum clerum Britannicum, vel quod essent hypocritae et ignavi in opere Domini: vel quod Nicolai immundi haeretici successores viderentur, potius quam Petri aut alicujus apostoli. Parsonius et alii, historice; et Petrum non solum evangelii lumen hic accendisse, sed et cathedram pariter hic collocasse episcopalem. Tempus etiam ejus adventus ponit id, quo Claudii Caesaris edicto Judaei omnes Roma pulsi sunt. Haec sigillatim omnia redarguit Godwinus et alii: tu, cujus in re fuerit, collutationes intueri, mihi aliud est in manibus.

VII. Refert praeterea Dorotheus non tantum Simonem (quem diximus) Zelotem Britanniam venisse, ibidemque occisum et sepultum: sed et Aristobulum, cujus Paulus meminit in epistola ad Romanos ^q, praedicandi evangelium causa huc etiam missum esse, et Britanniae factum episcopum. Huic e Menologio Graecorum astipulatur ^r Baronius. Et cum de recessu ejus nihil sit proditum, vitam hic finivisse existimatur.

VIII. Illud denique vulgatissimum, quod de Josepho Arimathaeae et sociis suis perhibetur. Dictum est in Actis Apostolorum, discipulos post lapidatum Stephanum dispersos esse, verbi semen (ut cum Athanasio dicam) per orbem universum delaturos. "Colligere possumus" (inquit ^s Baronius e manuscripta historia Anglorum in Bibl. Vaticana) "hoc quoque tempore Lazarum, Mariam Magdalenam ^t, Martham, et Marcellam pedissequam, in quos Judaei majori odio exardescabant, non tantum Hierosolymis pulsos esse, sed una cum Maximo discipulo, navi absque remigio impositos, in certum periculum mari fuisse creditos, quos divina providentia Massiliam tradunt appulisse: comitemque ferunt ejusdem discriminis Josephum ab Arimathaea nobilem decurionem, quem tradunt ex Gallia in Britanniam navigasse, illicque, post praedicatum evangelium, diem clausisse extremum." Et cum haec dispersio circa an. Chr. xxxvi. eveniret (tunc enim lapidatus est S. Stephanus) recte dixisse videatur Gildas loco priori citato, Britanniam recepisse fidem sub anno novissimo Tiberii Caesaris, i. infra quinquennium passionis Christi: sed an hoc ipso tempore, seu posterius venirent Iosephus ab Arimathaea et Simon Zelotes, ego non definiam; nec in dispari componendo calculo (vitio seculi) desudabo. Veniendi autem causa sic exponitur. Cum Philippus (apostolum dixeris, an evangelistam, nam confundi solent istorum res gestae) in Gallia praedicans, gravissime a Druidis oppugnaretur, intelligeretque eorum disciplinam (ut v. Caesar indicat) in Britannia vicina insula repertam esse et florentem; mittendos in Britanniam censuit XII. concionatores, qui conculcatis Druidarum superstitionibus, evangelii radiis illuminaret populum. Coetui praefecisse referunt * Iosephum Arimathaeum; venientesque omnes, opus Domini fideliter navasse: et rem apud Arviragum regem adeo promovisse, ut licet cauteriatum a vita superstitione, eum totum expedire nequeunt, quassum tamen reddunt et benignum. Penitentibus igitur quandam insulam in finibus suae regionis paludibus septam, rubisque horridam et nemoribus, habitandam concessit. Dicebatur tunc a Britannis indigenis Inisuitrim, id est, insula glacialis, a Saxonibus postea superioribus eodem sensu Glasteie, ab inferioribus vero (cum aedificiis resplenderet clarioribus) Glastenbury, hoc est, vel curia, vel oppidum in insula glaciali. Sed ut e meo nihil proferam: mallem enim cum v. Hieronymo, aliena verecunde dicere, quam mea imprudenter ingerere: narrationem integram a Guilielmo Malmesburienfi, qui libellum De antiquitate Glastoniae 500. hinc annis composuit, referemus. Sic autem ille pro more et religione sui seculi.

Willielmus Malmesbur. de antiquitate Glastoniensis ecclesiae. Quomodo XII. discipuli sanctorum Philippi et Jacobi apostolorum primo ecclesiam Glaston. fundaverunt.

IX. "Post dominicae Resurrectionis gloriam, ascensionis suae triumphum, ac Spiritus paracleti de supernis missionem, qui discipulorum corda temporalis adhuc poenae formidine trepidantia replevit, scientiam omnium linguarum tribuendo; "erant omnes credentes simul cum mulieribus, et Maria matre Jesu," ut Lucas enarrat evangelista, "et verbum Dei disseminabatur, crescebatque numerus credentium quotidie, eratque omnibus cor unum ac anima una." Invidiae ergo accensi facibus sacerdotes Iudaeorum, cum Phariseis et Scribis, concitaverunt persecutionem in ecclesia, interficiendo protomartyrem Stephanum, et fere a finibus suis omnes procul pellentes.

X. Hac igitur persecutionis procella saeviente, dispersi credentes petierunt diversa regna terrarum a Domino sibi delegata, verbum salu-tis gentibus propinando. Sanctus autem Philippus, ut testatur Freculfus lib. II. ca. 4. regionem Francorum adiens gratia praedicandi, plures ad fidem convertit et baptizavit. Volens igitur verbum Christi dilatari, duodecim ex suis discipulis elegit, et ad evangelizandum verbum vitae misit in Britanniam, quibus (ut ferunt) charissimum amicum suum Ioseph ab Arimathaea, qui et Dominum sepelivit, praefecit. Venientes igitur in Britanniam anno ab incarnatione Domini LXIII. ab ² assumptione beatae Mariae xv. fidem Christi fiducialiter praedicabant.

Rex autem barbarus cum sua gente tam nova audiens et inconsueta, omnino praedicationi eorum consentire renuebat, nec paternas traditiones commutare volebat. Quia tamen de longe venerant, vitaeque eorum exigebat modestia, ad petitionem eorum quandam insulam sylvis, rubis, atque paludibus circumdatam, ab incolis Yniswitrin nuncupatam, in lateribus suae regionis ad habitandum concessit. Postea et alii duo reges, licet pagani, successive comperta eorum vitae sanctimonia, unicuique eorum unam portionem terrae concesserunt, ac ad petitionem eorum secundum morem gentilium dictas xii. hidas eisdem confirmarunt, unde xii hidae per eos adhuc, ut creditur, nomen sortiuntur.

Praedicti itaque sancti in eodem deserto conversantes, post pusillum temporis visione archangeli Gabrielis admoniti sunt, ecclesiam in honorem sanctae Dei genitricis et virginis Mariae in loco caelitus eis demonstrato construere, qui divinis praeceptis non segniter obedientes, secundum quod eis fuerat ostensum, quandam capellam inferius per circuitum virgis torquatis muros perficientes consummaverunt anno post passionem Domini xxxi. post assumptionem gloriofae virginis xv. ex deformi quidem schemate, sed Dei multipliciter adornatam virtute. Et cum haec in hac regione prima fuerat, ampliori eam dignitate Dei filius insignivit, ipsam viz. in honorem suae matris dedicando. Duodecim igitur sancti saepius memorati in eodem loco Deo et beatae virgini devota exhibentes obsequia, vigiliis, jejuniis, et orationibus vacantes, ejusdem virginis auxilio ac visione (ut credi pi-um est) in omnibus necessitatibus refocillabantur. Haec autem ita se habere tum ex charta beati Patricii, tum ex scriptis seniorum cognoscimus, quorum unus Britonum historiographus, prout apud sanctum Edmundum, itemque apud sanctum Augustinum Anglorum apostolum vidimus, ita exorsus est. Est in confinio occidentalis Britanniae quaedam regalis insula, antiquo vocabulo Glastonia nuncupata, latis locorum dimensa finibus; piscosis aquis, stagnisque circumdata fluminibus et plurimis humanae indigentiae apta usibus, atque sacris (quod maximum est) dedicata muneribus. In ea siquidem primi catholicae legis neophyti antiquam Deo dictante reppererunt ecclesiam nulla hominum arte, ut ferunt, constructam, imo humanae salutis a Deo paratam, quam postmodum ipse caelorum fabricator multis miraculorum gestis, multisque virtutum mysteriis sibi sanctaeque Dei genitrici Mariae se consecrasse demonstravit. Sed de his postea: nunc autem ad incepta redeamus. Sancti igitur memorati in eodem eremo sic degentes, effluentibus multis annorum curriculis, carnis ergastulo sunt educti, idemque locus coepit esse ferarum latibulum, qui prius fuerat habitatio sanctorum, donec placuit beatae virgini suum oratorium redire ad memoriam fidelium.

XI. Laborat haec narratio (quod in aliis solet) fermento monachorum, et Josephi igitur aevo ita male in quibusdam consonat, ut ipsum ejus adventum in dubitationem trahat, qui ducentos pene supra mille annos veterum testimonio inolevit. Non moror quae ^a Capgravius refert: "Librum de antiquitate Glaston. et de sancto Josepho ab Arimathaea extractum fuisse de libro quodam per Theodosium imp. invento in praetorio Piti [forte Pilati] in Hierusalem." Nec quae in charta suggeruntur Glastonienfi, sub nomine S. Patricii, eam tamen librum esse censeo, quem ^b Balaeus refert Patricium scripsisse De antiquitate Avalonica. Sed vulgatam fuisse hanc de Josepho et sociis suis traditionem ante an. Dom. DL. ex eo constat, quod Melkinus Avalonius, qui tunc floruit vates inter Britannos celeberrimus (quantumvis alias fabulosus) de hac meminisse dicitur copiose. Mihi non obvenit quidpiam operum ejus, sin ^c Balaei valeat attestatio: refert ille Melkinum "in libro de antiquitatibus suae gentis plura tradidisse de primis in Britannia Christi testibus, et de patrum coemeterio sacro. Avalonia (inquit Melkinus) funerum avida, millia dormientium accepit, inter quos Joseph ab Arimathaea dictus, somnum sub marmore diuturnum coepit, etc. Claruit [Melkinus] anno Christi DL. sub rege Vortuporio." Haec Balaeus, quae (et plura ex eodem) Capgravius: et videtur hic esse Britonum ille historiographus, ad cujus scripta in coenobiis S. Edmundi Buriensis, et S. Augustini Cantuariensis conservata, inter seniorum alia supra provocat Malmesburius. Sed multo his antiquius est, quod de adventu Josephi retulit Gildas ille Albanicus, ut supra videas in sect. II.

XII Rex autem barbarus, quem Malmesburius hic dicit insulam Yniswitrin, id est, Glastoniam, duodecim discipulis a Philippo in Britanniam missis, habitandam concessisse; a ^d Capgravio praedicto (Lennenfi nostro monacho) Arviragus nominatur; et alii duo reges pagani (qui unicuique eorum unam portionem terrae successive concesserunt) Marius et Coillus. "Comperta" (inquit XII. illorum) "vitae sanctimonia, alii duo reges licet pagani, Marius Arviragi filius, et Coillus Marii filius, uni-cuique eorum unam hidam terrae concesserunt, et pariter confirmaverunt: unde et adhuc duodecim hidae per eos ^e nomen fortiuntur." Mirre discrepare videtur haec narratio a Malmesburi illa, quam sub fine hujus tractatus sum daturus, ubi ait: "Anno Incarnationis DCI. id est, adventus beati Augustini quinto, rex Domnoniae [i. Devoniae et Cornubiae] terram, quae appellatur Ineswithrin, ad ecclesiam vetustam concessit, quae ibi sita est, ad petitionem Worgret abbatis in quinque cassatis. Ego Mawron episc. hanc chartam conscripsi. Ego Worgret ejus loci abbas subscripsi. Sed perspicuum est ex ipso hoc loco, fuisse jam antea in insula Ineswithrin, seu Glastonia, duas ecclesias, unam prae nimia antiquitate vetustam appellatam; quae et alteram supponit recentiorem (illam scilicet a S. Davide circiter an. Dom. conditam) et ab ampliori structura majorem dictam. Fuisse hic etiam monasterium nobile, cui (a S. Patricio annos plus minus CLX. antea instituto) Worgret abbas nunc praesidebat. Totam igitur insulam seu terram Iniswithrin a rege Domnoniae jamjam dari, non est cogitandum; sed vicinam aliquam portionem, id est, quinque cassatas, quas alii hidas vocant, et carucas terras. Sed et illud intelligendum est, quod in antiqq. etiam regum chartis "concessisse" saepe dicitur de re ab altero prius data, pro "confirmasse."

Allata mihi fuit circiter hinc quinquennium priscae cujusdam laminae inscriptio, Glastoniae (ut ferebatur) effossae, istas breviter perhibentis antiquitates. Sed cum laminam ipsam nequaquam viderim, ad aeneam illam transeo, quae in columna vetustissimae ibidem ecclesiae affixa, ad manus D. Thomae Hugonis equ. aurati postea devenit, et filii sui beneficio apud me spectabilis jam habetur. Crebra ab auctoribus nostris fit ejusdem mentio, a nullis tamen (quod sciam) integre; et a quibusdam parum candide. Extra fucum igitur ut rem ponam, specimen ejus omnibus suis numeris et apicibus absolutum, ab ipsissima illa aenea lamina (scabrosa, uti videas, et impolita) curavi imprimendum: ut de re sub oculis tuis existente, tute ipse iudicium feras, semota jam antiquitatis larva.

Sequitur laminae iconismus, in quo foramina quae per circuitum marginis conspiciuntur, suscipiebant clavos, quibus lamina ad columnam figebatur. Lineam vero, quae per extremitatem marginis circumducitur, nos insculpi fecimus, ne alioquin non appareret margo in impressis interdum paginis. Constat lamina a duabus partibus, ut in exemplo vides.

Quid

Quid observandum in lamina.

XIV. Non vetusta hic quidem litera, nec quae tertium abhinc seculum excedit, si (quod dubito) eousque attigerit. E legendarum etiam somniis est narratio: et licet alicubi alias evenerit (quod difficile est probatu) ecclesias sub hac tempestate fuisse conditas; cingi tamen pro more hodierno suis coemeteriis non constabit. Multae siquidem erant in urbibus Britannicis ecclesiae mox a primis religionis christianae seculis; nullum autem coemeterium, usquedum Cuthbertus, decimus ab Augustino Cantuariæ archiepiscopus (qui obiit circa an. Dom. DCCXCVIII.) privilegium habendi in urbibus coemeteria a Romano pontifice reportavit. Quis etiam antiquorum affirmaverit ullos sub primis his seculis in ecclesiis sepultos esse, aut in primo seculo ecclesias sanctis dedicatas, aut beatam ipsam virginem a coevis suis jam tum cultam esse et invocatam? Sed de dedicatione ista observandum est, nihil innotuisse sub tempore constructionis ipsius ecclesiae (quae fuisse traditur anno XXXI. post passionem Christi) nec in toto aevo Josephi Arimathæi, aut per annos plus minus D. postea; donec S. David, qui Menevensis factus est archiepiscopus an. Dom. DXIX. eamque sedem tenuit LXV. annos (nam vixisse fertur annos CXLV.) haec e somnio primitus intellexerat.

f g. Latitudo ecclesiae xxvi. pedum juxta laminam.

h. Parietes ecclesiae ex virgis contortis, juxta Malmesburium, fabricati; more scilicet prisco illo, quo et aedes ipsae aliquando regiae. Sic rex totius Walliae sub an. Dom. DCCCCXL. Hovelus Dda domum voluit aedificari virgis albis in hospitium sibi ad venandum, quando ad partes Demetiae veniret, et ideo vocatur Ti guyn, id est, domus alba: ut enim a plebeis innotesceret, virgas (pro fastu regio) voluit decorticari. Texebantur et e virgis ipsa castra. "Pembrochiae castrum [inquit Giraldu Cambrensis] Arnulphus de Montgomery sub Anglorum rege Henrico I. ex virgis et cespite tenui satis exile construxit." Et humiles quidem fuisse parietes, prisca docet Anglosaxonum consuetudo: qui ut parvulorum suorum indolem experirentur, po-nere eos solebant super imam tecti partem (quam subgrundam Varro nuncupat) et si timide inhaerent aut ejularent, pusillanimes fore pronunciabant; si vero comprehenso stramine alacriter prorepserint, futuros illos protoutheper (i. magnanimos) acclamabant. Innuit autem haec consuetudo parietes domorum adeo humiles fuisse, ut manu quidem subgrunda tangeretur. Virgeas hujusmodi domos passim vidimus in Hibernia, saepe etiam et in Anglia.

i. Tectum: cujus desideratur hic notitia, ideoque e communi Britannorum usu stramineum facio, vel pro natura paludosae illius regiunculae, e foeno potius, vel e scirpis, ^h Beda suffragante. "Accenso (inquit) grandi igne in medio [domus] contigit volantibus in altum scintillis, culmen domus, quod erat virgis contextum et foeno tectum, subitaneis flammis impleri." Sic olim aliquando ipsum Capitolium, teste ⁱ Ovidio:

Lucius rex Britannicus fidem sopitam suscitavit et amplectitur.

XV. Mortuis (ut praedictum est) caelestium radiorum primis latoribus, ingens lucis evangelicae subsecutum est deliquium. E crepusculo autem et scintillis alias atque alias sparsim remanentibus, auditisque christianorum Romae, et in aliis regionibus fama, pietate, et miraculis, lucem concipit et ardorem caelestis regni Lucius ipse rex Britannicus. Legatos igitur Romam mittit Eluanum et Meduinum, viros probitate spectabiles, et in scripturis eruditos; contenditque per epistolam a Romano praefule Eleutherio christianus fieri, ductoresque et doctores dari, qui semetipsum populumque suum sacro mundarent fonte, et caelestis regni trami-tem edocerent. Annuit festinanter Eleutherius, et baptizatos prius Eluinum in episcopum, Meduinum in doctorem ordinat, et Britanniam relegat. Adjungit autem ad vineam Domini fincerius excolendam a latere suo clericos duos celeberrimae eruditionis, Faganum et Deruvianum, quorum praedicatione rex ipse Lucius, una cum uxore, fidei imbuitur lavacro, et exemplo ejus undique concurrentes populi. Coruscant jam tam Britannia caelestibus radiis, et luce nova repletus Lucius, tenebras paganorum explodit superstitiones, deletisque idolis et falforum numinum simulachris, templa purgat ab his fordibus, et ad veri Dei cultum diligenter instruit.

De gentilium flaminibus et archiflaminibus in episcopos et archiepiscopos mutatis.

XVI. Quae sequuntur, accipe a¹ Galfrido (ut vocant) Arturio, primum Monumetensi archidiacono, postmodum (anno scil. MCLI.) Eluensi, hoc est, Assaphensi episcopo. “Beati ergo doctores cum per totam fere insulam paganismum delevisent, templa, quae in honore plurimorum deorum fundata fuerant, uni Deo ejusque sanctis dedicaverunt, diversisque ordinatorum coetibus repleverunt. Fuerunt tunc in Britannia octo et viginti flamines, necnon et tres archiflamines, quorum potestate caeteri judices morum atque phanatici submittebantur. Hos etiam ex praecepto apostolici idololatriae eripuerunt: et ubi erant flamines, episcopos, ubi erant archiflamines, archiepiscopos posuerunt. Sedes autem archiflaminum in tribus nobilioribus civitatibus fuerant, Londoniis videlicet atque Eboraci et in urbe Legionum; quam super Oseam fluvium in Glamorgantia veteres muri et aedificia sitam fuisse testantur. His ergo tribus evacuata superstitione, octo et viginti episcopi subduntur, diversis quoque parochiis. Subjacuit metropolitano Eboracensi Deira et Albania, quas magnum flumen Humbri a Loegria fecernit. Londoniensi vero metropolitano submissa est Loegria et Cornubia. Has duas provincias sejungit Sabrina a Cambria, id est, Gualia, quae urbi Legionum subjacuit.

Denique restauratis omnibus, redierunt antistites Romam, et quae fecerant, a beatissimo papa confirmari impetraverunt. Confirmatione vero facta, reversi sunt in Britanniam, compluribus aliis comitati; quorum doctrina gens Britonum in fide Christi in brevi corroborata fuit. Eorum nomina et actus in libro reperiuntur, quem Gildas de victoria Aurelii Ambrosii inscripsit. Quod autem tam lucido tractatu paraverat, nullatenus opus fuit ut inferiori stylo renovaretur.” Haec ille.

Qui et quales erant isti flamines, et de conversione eorum in episcopos.

XVII. Vidissemus utinam Gildae hunc librum. Bene autem res se habet, si vel Gaufridus ipse, vel, quem interpretatus est, auctor suus Britannicus aliquando viderit. De Gaufrido enim nec tam austere, ut Neubrigensis olim, nec tam leviter, ut jam inde Polydorus, censeo: facile tamen haud credam reperiri uspiam apud veteres flaminum istam atque archiflaminum per provincias distributionem; aut sub Lucii aevo in usu esse voces archiflamines et archiepiscopi: exortasve jurisdictiones metropolitanas, aut pallii ceremoniam. Quippe flamines^m apud Romanos alii non erant quam sacerdotes; sic autem dicti a filo (inquit Varro) quo cingebantur capita, quasi filamines: ut alias a pileo (juxta Plutarchum) pileamines, et a sacrificando, vulgariter sacrificuli. Et cum singulorum singuli navarent deorum ministeria, unusquisque a deo suo nomen reportavit. Primum tres tantummodo: Jovis, qui flamen Dialis; Martis, qui flamen Martialis; Quirini, qui Flamen Quirinalis appellatus est. Deinde caeteri omnes cujuscunque dei. Vulcanalis, Floralis, Voltornalis, Pomalis, Furinalis, Falacer, etc. Demum ipsorum Caesarum, quos in deos evexerant, divi Julii Caesaris flamen; divi Marci, Heli, Antonini, et aliorum.

Nec obtinuit istorum aliquis sacerdotalem jurisdictionem per certam aliquam provinciam, aut solus in una aliqua curia ministrabat. Sed cum triginta olim sub Numa (postea triginta sex) in urbe Roma haberentur curiae (quas parochias appellemus) singulae praeponebantur bini flamines. Nec subiciebantur isti superiori alicui flamini, qui exinde archiflaminis aut protoflaminis insigniretur nomine, sed toti pontificum collegio, ejusdemque praefidi pontifici maximo, non archiflamini. Agnosco tamen flamines alios dici majores, alios minores; at hoc non a potestate, sed ab antiquitate: quod tres illi primi a Numa et e patriciis instituerentur; caeteri postea e plebeis. Sic et qui curiarum erant flamines, curiales appellati sunt, alii non item. Haec in gentilium Romanorum hierarchia, parum ad Britannicam illam, de qua Gaufridus, nusquam (quod sciam) alibi inventam.

De his etiam flaminibus et archiflaminibus gentilium, quibus comparant episcopos et archiepiscopos gentilium, nos ad illud conciliumplura. SALMAS.

Gaufrido autem atque aliis, qui flaminum, archiflaminum, et protoflaminum commento capiuntur, imposuisse videtur Gratiani auctoritas, epistolis munita S. Lucii et ipsius Clementis, Petrum apostolum rei laudantis auctorem, Fenestellae etiam veteris Romani historiographi sub imp. Tiberio. Certe epistolae illae, ut aliae aliquot decretales sub larva antiquitatis diu latitantes, fictitiae tandem comprehenduntur, cedentibus (et ingenue) quibusdam pontificiis, nec tum propugnante Baronio ipso, vel Bellarmino. Libellus vero, qui sub ⁿ Fenestellae nomine hodie prostat, plane non illius est. Quomodo enim is, qui obiit (ut refert Plinius) novissimo Tiberii Caesaris principatu, hoc est, anno a resurrectione Christi iv. futuros Romanae ecclesiae gradus, episcopum, archiepiscopum, cardinalem, patriarcham, metropolitanum, et recentiora alia praedicaret? Vidit et admonuit, qui Basileae primus impressit Valentinus Curio, librum hunc non esse Fenestellae: et qui ibidem postea anno Dom. MDXXX. illustratiorem reddidit Matthias Bredebachius: sed comperto tandem auctore, Plantinus eum in octavo Antverpiae edidit, sub nomine Dominici Flacci Florentini, ut Gesnerus perhibet, annum licet, in quo floruit Flaccus iste, non exprefferit. Undecunque autem in Gaufridi historiam devenit flaminum ista atque archiflaminum suggestio, aut latuisse videtur aequalem suum Guilielmum Malmesburiensem, et mox Giraldum Cambrensem, aut ab eisdem non satis lucide confirmata. Tractantes enim ambo Lucii conversionem, de his neuter meminit: sed nec primus quidem de episcopis, et alter aliter de episcopatibus. Placeat ut quid uterque prodidit recitemus, nam e latibulis nec efferuntur isti codices, nec nobis contigit vidisse integros. Subsequitur autem in Malmesburii (quem diximus) commentario in hunc modum.

XVII. Tradunt bonae credulitatis annales, quod Lucius rex Britannorum ad Eleutherium, XIII. loco post beatum Petrum, miserit orans ut Britanniae tenebras luce christianae praedicationis illustraret, etc. Venerunt igitur, Eleutherio mittente, praedicatores Britanniam duo viri sanctissimi, Faganus videlicet atque Deruvianus, prout charta beati Patricii et gesta Britannorum testantur. Hi igitur verbum vitae evangelizantes, regem cum suo populo sacro fonte abluerunt an. Dom. CLXVI. Hinc praedicando et baptizando Britanniae partes peragrantes, in insulam Avalloniae, more Moyfi legislatoris interiora deserti penetrantes, sunt ingressi, ubi antiquam, Deo dictante, repereunt ecclesiam manibus discipulorum Christi, ut ferunt, constructam, et humanae saluti a Deo paratam: quam postmodum ipse caelorum fabricator multis miraculorum gestis, multisque virtutum mysteriis sibi sanctaeque Dei genitrici Mariae se consecrassse demonstravit.

XVIII. Fluxerunt autem ab adventu discipulorum sancti Philippi in Britanniam, usque ad adventum sanctorum memoratorum CIII. anni. Igitur praedicti sancti Faganus et Deruvianus, oratorio illo sic reperto, ineffabili sunt referti gaudio, ibidem in Dei laudibus moram pertrahentes diuturnam, per novem videlicet annos. Locum etiam diligenter perscrutantes, figuram nostrae redemptionis, aliaque signa manifesta repperunt, quibus bene cognoverunt quod christiani prius locum inhabitaverunt. Postea caelesti perpendentes oraculo, quod Dominus ipsum locum prae caeteris Britanniae specialiter elegerit ad nomen gloriosae genitricis suae ibidem invocandum. Omnem etiam narrationem in antiquis scriptis invenerunt, qualiter sanctis apostolis per universum orbem dispersis, sanctus Philippus apostolus, cum multitudo discipulorum in Franciam veniens, duodecim ex ipsis in Britanniam misit ad praedicandum. Qui praedictam capellam, angelica docti revelatione, construxerunt, quam postmodum Filius altissimi in honorem suae matris dedicavit. Ipsisque duodecim tres reges, licet pagani, duodecim portiones terrae dederunt ad eorum sustentationem.

Insuper gesta eorum scripta invenerunt, ideoque locum prae caeteris dilexerunt, qui etiam in memoriam primorum duodecim, ex suis sociis duodecim elegerunt, et in praefata insula, rege Lucio consentiente, habitare fecerunt. Qui postea in diversis locis, sicut anachoretae, manserunt ibidem, in eisdem videlicet locis, in quibus primi duodecim primitus habitaverunt. In vetustam tamen ecclesiam ad divina obsequia devotius complenda crebro convenerunt quotidie. Et sicut tres reges pagani dictam insulam cum adjacentiis suis duodecim primis Christi discipulis dudum concesserant, ita praedicti Faganus et Deruvianus istis duodecim sociis, atque aliis in posterum secuturis, ab eodem rege Lucio liberam eandem confirmari impetrabant. Sic autem multi aliis succedentes, semper tamen in numero duodenario per multa annorum curricula, usque ad adventum sancti Patricii Hibernensium apostoli, in memorata insula permanserunt. Huic etiam ecclesiae sic repertae aliud dederunt sancti neophytæ opere lapideo oratorium, quod Christo sanctisque apostolis Petro et Paulo dedicaverunt." Ex antiquo exemplari scripto de antiquitate Glaston. etc.

XX. Malmesburium audisti: restat ut Giraldum Cambrensem pariter exhibeamus, qui in hunc modum suam complectitur narrationem.

Phaganus et Deruvianus missi ab Eleutherio, fidem serunt, quinque metropolitae, et duodecim singulis episcopatus statuunt, Saxones irruunt.

Ad instantiam itaque Lucii regis Britonum missi sunt ab Eleutherio episcopo Romano, qui quasi quartusdecimus fuit a beato Petro, duo nobiles praedicatores in Britanniam majorem, Faganus scilicet et Deruvianus, qui fidem

Christi per universam insulam a mari usque ad mare plantaverunt. Et juxta provinciarum numerum, quas tempore gentilitatis habuerat insula, quinque metropoles; singulas, duodecim urbes, sicut olim habuerat, et suffraganeas ecclesias totidem subjectas habentes, ordine et numero competenti distinxerunt. Juxta tomum enim Anacleti episcopi Romani, sicut in pontificalibus Romanorum gestis, et imperialibus continetur, directum Galliarum episcopis, juxta statum gentilium ante Christi adventum, Britannia habuit provincias numero quinque, Britanniam primam, Britanniam secundam, Flaviam, Maximiam, Valentiam. Prima dicta est occidentalis pars insulae, quia primum in illo Britones, Bruto et Corineo ducibus, applicuerunt, eaque primo a Corineo et suis occupata est, et inhabitata. Britannia secunda, Cantia, quia secundo a Bruto et suis inhabitata fuerat. Tertia, Flavia, hoc est, Flava, quae dicitur et Mercia, quasi mercibus abundans, cujus caput est London. Quarta, Maximia, id est, Eboraca, ab imperatore Maximo dicta. Quinta, Valentia, ab imperatore Valente nuncupata Albania, scilicet quae nunc abusive Scotia dicitur. Sicque ordinatum a viris sanctis praedictis duobus fuerat, ut in occidentali insulae parte, quae et nunc adulterino vocabulo Wallia dicitur, proprie vero Cambria a Cambro Bruti filio dicta, urbs Legionum^o metropolis fuerat, duodecim suffraganeos habens. Dorobernia, quae nunc Cantuaria dicitur, a (Dur) Britannico, quod est aqua, quoniam aquis abundat, sic nuncupata, metropolis ab australi Thamisiae fluvii parte, duodecim suffraganeos habens. Lundonia metropolis, duodecim suffraganeos habens. Eboraca, quae nunc dicitur Eboracum, metropolis, duodecim suffraganeos habens. Et urbs quae nunc sancti Andreae forsitan dicitur, totidem suffraganeos habens, olim Alba dicta, unde et Albania dicta provincia, vel potius ab Albanacto Bruti filio nuncupata.

Cumque hoc ordine distincta ducentis annis et pluribus Britannica ecclesia florisset, supervenit gens Saxonica, quae nunc Anglica dicitur, a Britonibus invitata, ut eis contra Pictos et Scotos, qui boreales insulae partes occupaverant, Britonum stipendiis militarent. Tandem vero cum viribus et numero crevissent, juncto cum hostibus foedere, et ipsi quoque peiores hostes effecti, miris praedationibus incolas usque ad occiduas partes insulae propulerunt, totamque terram residuam, quam et Angliam postea vocaverunt, a natali suo Saxoniae solo, quod lingua eorum Engelont vocabatur, i. angularis terra, Britanniam occupatam sic nominantes, necnon et Scotiae partem non modicam, destructis ecclesiis, ritu gentilitatis, quia gentiles erant, foedaverunt: Britonibus nihilominus Christi fidem in occiduis insulae finibus inconcussae servantibus." Haec Giraldus.

insulae divisionem a Romanis ante adventum Christi factam, et ab Anacleto, ut is perhibet, postea designatam: nihil hic tamen vel de flaminum, vel archiflaminum ditione, vel de gentilium quidpiam hierarchia prodidit. Eum tamen haud latuit vox archiflamen: nam Helenum Priami filium alias agens, archiflaminis titulo donat. Sed quid ad Giraldum, aut Gaufridum, aut Malmesburiensem, virum certe gravem et modestum, in tantarum antiquitatum caligine, absque seniorum suffragio provocamus: Gaufridum praesertim et Giraldum, qui in gente sua Britannica efferenda, nihil non egregium, nihil humile spirant aut inglorium?

In hac quidem narratione haud minus luxuriare videtur Giraldus Cambrensis, quam in altera Gaufridus ipse Monumethensis. Quis enim quintuplicis hujus Britanniae divisionis Lucii meminit seculo? aut quis quinquies duodecim urbes episcopales unquam in Britannia numeravit? Fattetur Giraldus in his divisionibus, unam Flaviam dici: aliam Maximiam (rectius Maximam) atque hanc a Maximo imp. tertiam, Valentiam, a Valente nominatam: cum Maximus imperium non suscepit ante ann. Domini cccclxxxiii. Valens non ante cccclxvii. et Flavia perhibetur dicta a Flavio Theodosio imp. Valentis filio, qui purpuram non adeptus est ante annum cccclxxxviii. Multo hi omnes post mortem Lucii. Sed mutasse forsitan eos dixeris provinciarum nomina, potius quam provincias ipsas constituisse. Esto: et jam tum audi ^p Pancirollum, virum sane egregie versatum in Romana historia. "Constantinus magnus quinque ejus [Britanniae] provincias fecisse dicitur; eam quae postea Maxima Caesariensis est dicta, Valentiam, Britanniam primam, Britanniam secundam, quae antea fuerant, et Flaviam Caesariensem, a se, qui Flavius Constantinus vocabatur, appellatam." Habemus jam ergo quinariae istius divisionis exordium, et hanc quidem supra centum et viginti annos post excessum Lucii: nam imperii et Britanniae suscepisse regimen Constantinus dicitur circa an. Dom. cccxi. Lucius obiisse circa an. clxxxvi. De metropolitibus igitur, et archiepiscopatu, episcopatuque sedibus, et numero sub rege Lucio institutorum, cautius statuendum censeo: praesertim cum ^q Guilielmus Malmesburiensis, episcopatum nostrarum antiquitatum d. ab hinc annos rimator solertissimus, nec archiepiscopatus sedem Cantuaria vetustiore novisse videtur, nec ubi locorum inter Britannos poneretur, reperit. "Ibi, scil. Cantuariae, prima," inquit, "sedes archiepiscopi habetur, qui est totius Angliae primas et patriarcha. Caeterum ubi fuerit archiepiscopatus tempore Britonum, cognitio labat; quia vetustas consumpsit nostri seculi memoriam." Loqui videtur de Britonibus, non solum sub Lucii seculo, sed et de inferioribus aliis. Et sufficit quidem plurimos hic fuisse episcopos, etiam et metropolitanos aliquos, vel sub ipso Lucio, vel mox ab aevo ejus, licet de ipsorum sedibus atque numero lucide satis non constiterit.

Haec mihi concinnanti, delati sunt a reverendissimo patre D. Jacobo Armachano archiepiscopo quaterniones aliquot libri sui, jam tum sub praelo, "De primordiis ecclesiarum Britannicarum:" in quibus nostrum hoc argumentum docte adeo et copiose, adeo per omnia exquisite rimatus est et illustravit, ut injuriam tibi inferrem, lector, si te ocysus illuc non legarem. Habebis enim illic omnia ad Lydium lapidem examinata, quae nos tanti impares, et aliud prosequentes institutum, hic percurrimus ut occurrunt apud ipsos auctores, disputationum non morantes retinacula.

Alia eademque uberior de rebus istis sub Lucio rege, et mox inde gestis Malmesburii narratio lib. I. Gest. Reg. c. ii.

XXIII. Malmesburii librum, quem "De antiquitate Glastoniae" is ipse refert se condidisse, et e quo praedictae narrationes perhibentur sumptae, ego vel omnino non vidi, vel accephalum sane, et hac parte mutilum. Obvenit autem mihi in exemplari quodam libri sui "De regibus Anglorum," cc. circiter abhinc annos, bellis literis, sed mendose pluries, et malefide exarato, diversa in nonnullis, et in aliis luculentior admodum commemoratio; Malmesburii tamen labium atque genium apprime resonans. Quaesitis igitur antiquis aliis ejusdem exemplaribus manuscriptis, duo reperi Cantabrigiae¹; collatisque una istis omnibus, et loco toto, prout poterat, redintegrato: aequum censui e tenebris suscitatum in lucem dare; tum quod huic convenit argumento, et antiquae historiae; tum quod in impresso² Malmesburii codice, ideo forte quod ad regum gesta parum attineret, praetermissum sit. Sic autem ille in omnibus his manuscriptis, lib. I. ca. ii. post haec verba, "per eadem tamen cucurrit vestigia."

XXIV. Sed quia Kenewalchii tempora attingimus, et Glastoniensis coenobii se obtulit locus, ejusdem ecclesiae exortum et processum, quantum e strue monumentorum corradere poterō, repetens ab origine pandam.

Tradunt bonae credulitatis annales, quod Lucius rex Britannorum ad Eleutherium XIII. loco post beatum Petrum papam miserit, oratum ut Britanniae tenebras luce christiana praedicationis illustraret. Mactus animi rex, magnae prorsus laudis factum adorsus, ut fidem, quam tunc temporis pene omnes reges et populi persequerentur exhibitam: ipse ultro appeteret vix auditam. Venerunt ergo, Eleutherio mittente, praedicatores Britanniam, quorum in aevum duravit efficacia, quamvis longae sitis aetatis consumpserit nomina. Horum fuit opera, vetusta in Glastonia sanctae Mariae ecclesia, sicut fidelis per succidua secula non tacuit antiquitas. Sunt et illae non exiguae fidei literae in nonnullis locis repertae ad hanc sententiam: "ecclesiam Glastoniae non fecerunt aliorum manus, sed ipsi apostoli Christi eam aedificarunt." Nec abhorret a vero, quia si Philippus apostolus Gallis praedicavit, sicut Freculfus lib. II. cap. iv. dicit, potest credi quod et trans oceanum sermonis semina jecit. Sed ne videar per opinionum naenias lectorum expectationem fraudare, illis, quae discrepant, in medio relictis, ad solidae veritatis gesta enarranda succingar.

XXV. Ecclesia, de qua loquimur, quae pro antiquitate sui celebriter ab Anglis Caldecippe, id est, vetusta ecclesia, nuncupatur, primo virgea, nescio quid divinae sanctitatis jam inde a principio redoluit, spiravitque in omnem patriam, quamvis ex deformi, grandis reverentia, cultu. Hinc confluentium illuc populorum totis callibus undae: hinc opulentorum deposita pompa conventus: hinc religionum, et literatorum frequens perendinatio. Nam sicut a majoribus accepimus, Gildas, neque insulsus, neque infacetus historicus, cui Britanni debent, si quid notitiae inter caeteras gentes habent, multum annorum ibi exegit, loci sanctitudine captus. Est ergo ecclesia illa omnium, quas quidem noverim, in Anglia vetustissima, et inde cognomen sortita. In ea multorum sanctorum (quorum aliquot in processu notabimus) corporales servantur exuviae, nec a beatorum cineribus vacat ullus fani ambitus: adeo pavimentum lapide constratum: adeo altaris latera, ipsumque altare super et infra reliquiis confertissimis aggeruntur. Ubi etiam notare licet in pavimento, vel per triangulum, vel per quadratum lapides altrinsecus ex industria positos et plumbo sigillatos, sub quibus quiddam arcani sacri contineri, si credo, injuriam religioni non facio.

XXVI. Antiquitas et sanctorum congeries excivit reverentiam loco, ut vix ibi quis noctu praesumat excubias agere: vix interdiu excreescens flegma projicere: illusoriae foeditatis conscius toto cohorreat corpore. Nullus inter contiguum coemeterium, vel avem venatoriam advexit, vel quadrupedes induxit, qui sui vel rei possessae indemnitas abierit. Ferro vel aqua examinandi, si orationem ibi deposuerint, omnes quos praesens memoria complectitur, uno excepto, de salute sua tripudiarunt. Si quis e vicino aliquod aedificium locandum putasset, quod obumbratione sua lucem invideret ecclesiae, patuit ruinae. Satisque constat homines illius provinciae nullum sanctius vel crebrius juramentum habere, quam per veterem ecclesiam; nihil magis vitantes, metu celeris vindictae, quam pejerare. Labantem veritatem dictorum, quae proposuimus in libro, quem de antiquitate ejusdem ecclesiae scripsimus pro successu annorum, testimoniis fulciemus.

XXVII. Interim palam factum est merito dici caeleste in terris sanctuarium, tot sanctorum reconditorium. Quantum vero is locus fuerit etiam primatibus patriae venerabilis, et ad sepulturam desiderabilis, ut ibi potissimum sub protectione Dei genitricis operirentur diem resurrectionis, multa sunt indicio, quibus pro cautela fastidii abstineo. Illud quod clam pene omnibus est, libenter praedicarem, si veritatem exculpere possem, quid illae pyramides sibi velint, quae aliquantis pedibus ab ecclesia illa posita, coemeterium monachorum praetextunt. [Vid. Usserii Primordia p. 112, 121, 122.] Procerior sane et propinquior ecclesiae, habet quinque tabulatus, et altitudinem xxvi. pedum. Haec prae nimia vetustate, etsi ruinam minetur, habet tamen antiquitatis nonnulla spectacula, quae plane possunt legi, licet non plene possint intelligi. In superiori enim tabulatu est imago pontificali schemate facta. In secundo imago regiam praetendens pompam, et literae Dei. Sexi. et Blirpej. In tertio nihilominus nomina Pencper. Bantome. pinepze. In quarto Bate. pulpneb. et E-angleb. In quinto, qui et inferior, est imago, et haec scriptura, Logop. pearlicar. et Bpezden. Spelper. Lupugender. Beapm. Altera vero pyramis habet xviii. pedes, et quatuor tabulatus, in quibus haec leguntur: Lentepine Hedde. Epc. Bpezopneb. et Beopimarb. Quid haec significant non temere definio, sed ex suspicione colligo eorum interius in cavatis lapidibus contineri ossa, quorum exterius leguntur nomina. Certe Leropot is pro vero asseritur, de cuius nomine quondam Lorpeper beprith dicebatur, qui nunc Mons Acutus vocatur. Bpezden a quo Bpientacnol et Bpintimepr. Bpezopneb et Beoppapb abbates ejusdem loci tempore Britonum, de quibus caeteris, quae occurrere poterint, exhinc liberiori campo exultabit oratio. [V. Usser. l. c. p. 1054.] Jam enim abbatum seriem, et quid, cuique, et a quo rege monasterio delegatum sit, sermo explicare contendet.

XXVIII. Ac primum de beato Patricio, a quo monumentorum series elucescere coepit, pauca libabimus. Saxonibus enim Britanno- rum infestantibus pacem, et Pelagianis eorum expugnantibus fidem, sanctus Germanus Antifidorensis contra utrosque suppetias tulit. Illos enim Alleluatico cantu fudit, et istos evangelicis et apostolicis tonitribus fulminavit. Inde in patriam meditatus reditum, Patricium ad familiare contubernium ascrivit, eundemque post aliquot annos Hibernensibus, jubente Coelestino papa, praedicatorem misit. Unde scriptum est in chronicis anno dominicae Incarnationis quadringentesimo xxv. sanctus Patricius ordinatur a Coelestino papa in Hiberniam. Item ccccxxxiii. anno Hibernia insula convertitur ad fidem Christi, praedicante sancto Patricio, cum multis mirabilibus. Ille igitur munus junctum gnaviter executus, et extremis diebus in patriam revertens, super altare suum Cornubiam appulit, quod usque hodie apud incolas magnae venerationis est, tum propter sanctitudinem, et utilitatem, tum propter infirmorum salutem.

Ita Glastoniam veniens, ibique monachus et abbas factus, post aliquot annos naturae cessit. Cujus assertionis omnem absolvit scrupulum visio cujusdam fratris, qui post obitum beati viri, jam nutante memoria utrum ibi monachus et abbas fuerit, cum de hoc frequens verteretur quaestio, tali confirmatus est oraculo. Resolutus enim in soporem, missus est audire quendam legentem post multa ejus miracula haec verba: "Hic igitur metropolitani pallii decoratus est sanctitate: postmodum vero hic monachus et abbas factus est." Adjecit etiam ut non integre credenti, literis aureis quod dixerat, scriptum ostenderet.

Excessit ergo Patricius anno aetatis cxi. incarnationis Domini cccclxxii. qui fuit annus, ex quo in Hiberniam missus est, quadagesimus septimus. Requiescit in dextero latere altaris vetustae ecclesiae, in pyramide saxea, quam argento vestivit posterorum diligentia. Hinc Hibernensibus mos inolitus, ad exosculandas patroni reliquias, locum frequentare: unde et sanctum Indractum et beatam Brigidam, Hiberniae non obscuros incolas, huc olim commeasse celeberrimus sermo est. Brigida relictis quibusdam suis insignibus, monili viz. pera et textilibus armis, quae adhuc pro sanctitatis memoria ostentantur, et morbis diversis medentur, utrum domum reversa, an ibi acceperit pausam, incertum. Indractum juxta Glastoniam martyrizatum, cum sociis septem postmodum in veterem translatum ecclesiam liquebit per narrationis consequentiam.

XXIX. Successit Patricio in abbatis regimine Benignus, sed quot annis incertum. Quis autem fuerit et quomodo patria lingua dictus non facete versus exprimunt, qui in epitaphio apud Forramerum scripti fuerunt.

Hoc patris in lapide Beonnae sunt ossa locata, Qui pater extiterat monachorum hic tempore prisco.

Hunc fore Patricii dudum fortasse ministrum
Fantur Hibernigenae, et Beonnam de nomine dicunt.

Quanta apud Deum gratiae fuerit et sit, et veteris quondam vitae, et novae in majorem ecclesiam translationis praeconantur magnalia.

XXX. Jam vero quanti hunc locum penderit magnus ille David, Menevensium archiepiscopus, celebrius est, quam ut nostro indigeat illustrari relatu. Ille antiquitatem et sanctitudinem ecclesiae divino comprobavit oraculo. Dedicationi enim ejus intendens, cum episcopis septem, quorum primas erat, ad locum venit, paratis autem omnibus, quae officii usus exposceret: nocte praecessura, ut putabat, festivitatem, somno indulgit. Omnes ergo sensus in quietem solutus, vidit Dominum Jesum assistere, causam adventus blande sciscitantem: quam cum ille incunctatus aperuisset, revocavit eum a sententia Dominus hoc dicto. Dedicatam a se dudum ecclesiam in honorem matris suae iteratione humana sacramentum temerari non oportere, simulque cum dicto, volam digito terebrare visus, haec subjicit, hoc haberet signum, repeti non debere, quod ipse anticipasset facere. Sed quia intentionis illius non tam fuerit audacia quam devotio, poenam non prologandam. Denique mane futuro cum in missa, "cum ipso, et per ipsum, et in ipso" dicturus esset, plenum ei salutis vigorem refundendum. His terroribus antistes somno excussus, sicut tunc ulcerosa sanie impalluit, sic postea veritati propheticae applausit. Sed ne nihil videretur egisse, aliam ecclesiam citato fecit et dedicavit opere. De hoc fane egregio et incomparabili viro, utrum ibi obierit, an in sede propria vitam finierit, incertum habeo. Nam viri religiosi, recordatione digni, eum cum beato Patricio esse affirmant, et Wallenses omni frequentatione et multiplici sermone proculdubio affirmant et corroborant, illud in medium proferentes, Bernardum episcopum semel et secundo eum quaesisse, et multis reclamantibus non invenisse. Hoc de beato David dixisse sufficiat.

XXXI. Multum temporis in medio, venit in Britanniam sanctus Augustinus a beato Gregorio directus, anno incarnationis Domini dxcvi. cujus praedicationis commilitonem Paulinum ex archiepiscopo Eboracensi Roffensem episcopum, asserit majorum traditio, ecclesiae contextum dudum, ut diximus, virgeae, ligneo induisse tabulatu, et plumbo a summo usque deorsum cooperuisse. Egit nimirum praedicabilis viri solertia, ut nihil decederet sanctitati, et plurimum accederet ornatui. Et certe solet ecclesiarum cultus augustior quolibet brutas mentes ad orandum illicere, quamlibet cervicositatem ad supplicandum inflectere.

XXXII. Anno Incarnationis dci. id est, adventus beati Augustini quinto, rex Domnoniae terram, quae appellatur Ineswithrin, ad ecclesiam vetustam concessit, quae ibi sita est, ob petitionem Worgret abbatis in quinque cassatis. Ego Mawron episcopus hanc chartam con-scripsi. Ego Worgret ejus loci abbas subscripsi.

Quis iste rex fuerit, schedulae vetustas negat scire, veruntamen quod Britannus fuerit, hinc praesumi potest, quia Glastoniam sua lingua Ineswithrin appellavit: sic enim eam Britannice vocari apud eos constat. Illud quoque animadvertere par est, quanta antiquitatis sit ecclesia, quae tunc etiam dicebatur vetusta. Fuerunt sane ejusdem abbates Britannicam barbariem nominibus praetendentes, praeter Worgret, Lademund, et Bregoreto: praelationis eorum tempora sunt in obscuro, sed nomina illorum et dignitates in majori ecclesia, prodente secus altare pictura, sunt in propatulo. Felices igitur ejus loci habitatores, quos ipsa sanctuarii reverentia ad morum compositionem invitat. Nullum de his crediderim deperire caelis, quos egressos corpore, tot patronorum excipit laus vel excusatio.

XXXIII. Anno dominicae Incarnationis dclxx. Kenwald, qui et Kenwalchius, regni sui xxix, dedit Berthwaldo Glastoniensi abbati Ferramere, ii. hidas, archiepiscopo Theodoro interveniente. Hic idem Berthwaldus, renuente rege et dioecesis episcopo, Glastoniae renunci-ans, ad regimen monasterii Raculfs secessit, quocirca Berthwaldus et fama religionis nominatissimus, et gentis nobilitate praeclarus, quippe fratris Ethelredi regis Merciorum filius, loci opportunitate Cantuariæ proximus, Theodoro archiepiscopo decedente, illius successit cathedrae. Haec de Glastoniensis antiquitate ecclesiae me dixisse sufficiat.

De primis Britannorum metropolitanis praesulibus, quos inferior aetas archiepiscopos appellavit.

Adjungam ad caliginosa ista secula pertinentia, analecta quaedam de metropolitanis Britonum praesulibus, qui post Lucii aetatem, sed ante Augustini primi Cantuariensis archiepiscopi adventum, in historiis nostris deprehenduntur, secundum triplicem provinciarum divisionem a Monumetensi positam, viz. Londinensem, Eboracensem, et urbis Legionum. De his autem, sicut et de ipsa religione, post Lucii seculum, rara apud auctores mentio, gravisque ea plerunque et lugubris. Agitantibus enim hic imperii clavum Romanis infidelibus; saevienteque interea furore Dioclesiano, quo martyrio coronatur S. Albanus, absorpta pene est ecclesia, et sub modio positum lumen evangelii. Licet etiam respiraret aliquantisper Constantini magni beneficio, novus tamen mox se ingerit inimicus. Abductis enim a Maximo, imperatore hic constituto, pube potiore et praesidiario milite in militiam transmarinam, atque eis nunquam remeantibus, sed in Gallia Armorica, quae ab ipsorum nomine Britannia postea nuncupata est, sedes suas collocantibus, natale eorum solum indigenis spoliatur defensoribus; et a Romanis haud multo postea abdicatum, hosti derelinquitur et praedonibus. Populantur jam tum omnia Pictus atque Scotus: et cum adversus saevos istos lupos, immaniores a Britannis invocarentur tigrides illi, in auxilium, Saxones; ambo tandem hostes fiunt, grassantesque pariter in imbellem populum, sacra rapiunt et profana, excidiumque inferunt funestissimum. Fugiant interea Britanni miseri, cautes, nemora, loca aspera atque devia quaeritantes. Catervatim nobiles in latebrosam Walliam quo et duces ipsi christianae militiae, Eboracensis et Londinensis archiepiscopi, cum toto suo clero se proripiunt. Repetit jam omnia, ut ex postliminio, gentilismus, ovatque triumphato evangelio, usque causam suam in se suscipiens Deus misericors, Aethelbertum regem, victoresque Saxones, vincenti omnia subegit Christo.

De archiepiscopis Eboracensibus ante Augustinum. Circa an. Dom. ccviii. Spartian. Cambden. Cod. lib. III.

De archiepiscopis igitur Eboracensibus eo obscurior est notitia sub his seculis, quo urbs ipsa Eboracum emicuit clarior sub Romanis. Erat autem non solum totius regni caput, ut Albinus refert, sed et Britannici orbis Roma altera, palatium, curia, et praetorium Caesaris; quo Severus ipse imp. legem dictavit, peractisque, inopinate in Bellonae templo, sacris ethnicis, vitam brevi exhalavit. Nullum igitur profligatae religioni christianae in hac urbe tunc latibulum; nec deinceps quidem, cum exutis Romanorum fascibus, eam pariter conterebat barbarorum jugum. Memorantur hic itaque quatuor tantum episcopi a Lucii aevo usque ad adventum Augustini, hoc est, per totos cccc. annos, licet prima videatur sedes et Britanniarum patriarchatus, viz.

1. Sampson, qui ab ipso Lucio collocari dicitur primus hic episcopus. Suspectam autem habet rei fidem Godwinus praesul, quod nondum susceptus esset apud veteres mos iste Hebraeorum, sanctorumve Christianorum nomina usurpandi. Cedo, sed et Lucio ipsi obvenisse videtur post conversionem suam mutatio nominis, ut alias memoravimus.

2. Taurinus, quem huc translatus ferunt e mandato Constantii Chlōri imp. qui purpuram sumpsit circa an. Dom. ccciv. [Godwin. de praes. Eborac.]

3. Pyramus, ab inclyto Arthuro rege, qui floruit anno dxx. constitutus.

4. Todiacus, veterum Britannicorum archipraesulum hic novissimus; qui abducens una suum clerum, in Cambriam profugit cum Theona, archiepiscopo Londinensi, A. D. dlxxxvi. Nec Eboraci postea quisquam sedit episcopus, vel archiepiscopus usque an. dcxxv. quo Paulinus Saxones ibidem degentes ad fidem convertit, et eorum denuo fit archiepiscopus.

Exiguo autem huic quatuor episcoporum catalogo a Godwino praesule exhibito; ego quintum addere, et forte aliis certiolem, non dubitabo. Eborium scil. qui in concilio Arelatenſi I. an. Chr. cccxiv. inter alios Britanniae episcopos et praelatos adfuit, primusque, et ut videtur primas, subscripsit in hunc modum.

Eborius, episcopus de civitate Eboracensi, provincia Britanniae.

Restitutus, episcopus de civitate London. provincia supradicta.

Adelfus, episcopus de civitate Colonia Londonensium. Exinde sacerdos presbyter Arminius diaconus. [Vide hoc concil. hic infra in an. cccxiv. et nota Eboracensem episcopum praeponi Londinensi.

De archiepiscopis Londinensibus ante Augustini adventum.

Collegit horum nomina (unde nescio, nec quam antique) Furnalensis quidam monachus, Jocelinus: tenui sane memoratone, ut apud Stouum videas, et, quod in re caliginosa solet, dirupta serie et imperfecta. Quae fortuito igitur nobis obvenierunt huc pertinentia, nos apposuimus.

1. Theanus, inquit Furnius, primus fuit Londini archiepiscopus, tempore Lucii regis; et ecclesiam S. Petri Londini condidit, in loco, qui vocatur Cornehill, id est, mons frumentarius, ope Citani, protopincernae Lucii regis, et in eadem fixit archiepiscopatus sui sedem. Sic ille. Tabula vero MS. neque pridem, nec antique in eadem ecclesia appensa, haec ad ipsum Lucium refert; et mansisse illic metropolitanam dignitatem cccc. annos, hoc est, ad adventum Augustini, a Gregorio missi, perhibet.

2. Eluanus [Bal. Cent. i. ca. xxvii.] secundus fuit: qui a Lucio rege cum Medvino socio suo Romam missus ad Eleutherium pontificem, fidei doctrinam, quam ab Arimathaeis patri-

16. Theonus, Gloceſtrenſis hic epiſcopus, inquit Godwinus, Londinum tranſlatus fertur anno DLIII. anno vero DLXXXVI. aſſumpto ſe- cum univerſo clero, in Walliam dicitur ad po- pulares ſuos profugiſſe, una cum Thadiaco E- boracenſi archiepiſcopo, ut ſupra memoravi- mus.

De archiepiſcopis Menevenſibus ante adventum Auguſtini.

E bellorum miseria, temporumve edacitate fieri videtur, ut ſi Lucii regis aevo Legionum urbs in Cambria ſuum acceperit archiepiſco- pum, nomen ejus (etiam et ſucceſſorum uſque ad Dubricium) oblivione interierit.

1. Dubricius autem, magnus ille, et inter divos poſtea celebratus, cum verbum Dei in- fraſta ſedulitate diu praedicafſet, Pelagianam- que haereſin vehementius contriviſſet, Landa- venſis primum fit epiſcopus, et auctoritate ſyn- odi ſub an. Dom. DXII. ad urbis Legionum archiepiſcopatum promovetur, cathedramque ejus metropolitanam inde tranſtulit ad Landa- viam. Dicitur duodecim monaſteria conſtituiſſe, monachosque docuiſſe, ut e labore manu- um victum quaerent, quod, more orientali- um et Africanorum, eos feciſſe conſtat in pri- ſco MS. codice de vitis ſanctorum Cambriae. Ait autem Matthaeus Florilegus: "S. Sam- pſonem Eboracenſem archiepiſcopum, et S. Du- bricium urbis Legionum archiepiſcopum in Bri- tannia floruiſſe anno gratiae DVII." hoc eſt, quinque annos ante praedictam ſynodum. Al- lii etiam eum factum eſſe illius provinciae ar- chiepiſcopum perhibent a SS. Germano et Lu- po; confirmante hoc rege Aurelio Ambroſio: poſt cujus mortem Dubricius fertur Utherum primo, et Arthurum poſtea regni inſigniviſſe diademate, et exutis jam tum infulis archiepi- ſcopalibus eremiticam ambiviſſe ſolitudinem.

2. S. David protinus conſtituitur ſucceſſor e- jus, anno ſcil. DXVI. licentia et Arthuri regis, archiepiſcopatus ſedem, quam Dubricius ab ur- be Legionum tranſtulerat ad Landaviam, ille vexit in Meneviam: eademque tenuit, ut Giraldus ait, 65. annos; hoc est, usque an. Dom. DLXXXI. qui praeceffit adventum Augustini 16. annis. Hic idem David fuit, quem Cambrenses hodie tanti faciunt.

3. Cenac, alias Kinotus, discipulus, ut videtur, Dubricii, a Paternensi episcopatu quodam Cambriae, post mortem S. Davidis, in archiepiscopatum Meneviae transfertur.

4. Eliud, qui etiam Teliaus, seu Thelias appellatur, Dubricii item discipulus, et in Landavenfi ecclesia successor: post condiscipuli sui Kinoti exitum, ad Menevensē promovetur cathedram. Clarus inter sanctos Landavenfes, ut supra videas in illis synodis.

Incertum est quamdiu rexit hanc provinciam aut Cenac supradictus, aut Eliud iste seu Thelias: sub tempore autem alterius eorum venisse in Britanniam censeo Augustinum: qui licet a Gregorio Magno, Romano pontifice mitteretur, et praecepto ejus ab Etherio Arelatenfi episcopo (ut Bonifacius papa et Beda noster referunt) Anglorum ordinaretur episcopus, et ab eodem Gregorio pallio donaretur plenae insigni potestatis, cui et omnes subjecit Britanniae sacerdotes, ut vol. I. dicitur in epistola ejus xxiv. retinuit tamen et tuebatur ecclesia Menevensis, seu Caerlegionis, pristinam suam dignitatem, subdique noluit aut Augustini cathedrae, aut Romani ipsius archipraefulis. Satis de hoc liquet apud ipsum Bedam, luculenter autem in responsione abbatis Banchorensis ad ipsum Augustinum petentem subjectionem ecclesiae Romanae: quem supra vide.

5. Tuebantur et episcopi successores suam hanc Meneviae metropoliticae jurisdictionem usque ad Sampsonem illic archiepiscopum, qui floruit circa an. Dom. DCCCC. Grassante vero sub eodem in illa patria funestissime morbo epidemico, qui ingentem plebis numerum devoraverat; pars cleri maxima sibi metuentes, archiepiscopo suo auctores extiterunt, ut ad consanguineos suos in Britannia Armoricana una cum ipsis commigraret. Quod cum fecisset, ille brevi apud eos constitutus est Dolensis episcopus, palliumque, quod abstulerat Menevense, suis illic dereliquit successoribus: qui post longam litigationem eo uti a papa prohibentur. Orbat in hunc modum suo pallio Menevenses antistites, et praeterea pressi egestate, ab archiepiscopali titulo deciderunt: eam tamen auctoritatem semper retinuerunt, suffraganeos suos episcopos consecrantes, et alia munia obeuntes, nulla professione ecclesiae Cantuariæ facta usque ad tempus regis Henrici I.

Tunc autem Bernardo existente episcopo Menevensi, Hubertus, Cantuariensis archiepiscopus, potentia et auxilio regis fretus, crucem interdum sibi praeferrī per Cambriae fines attentaverat, eandemque asserens ad suam pertinere ditionem, litem defert ad Remense concilium: ubi cadens Bernardus inops, subjectionem Cantuariæ ecclesiae, reclamans licet, coram Eugenio papa profiteri cogitur. De hoc inter alia multa, sic Giraldus [apud Godw. in episc. Men. de Bernard. pa. 606.] Menevensis postea et ipse episcopus. "De duabus autem sedibus istis, de quibus facta est mentio, Cantuariensi videlicet et Menevensi, quod mihi videtur juxta moderna tempora, paucis edisseram. Illinc hodie regum favor, opum affluentia, suffraganeorum antistitum opulenta numerositas, literatorum et jurisperitorum copia multa. Hinc autem omnium istorum defectus et jus remotum. Quapropter nisi per regnorum forte mutationes, rerumque vicissitudines magnas, quae variis et inopinatis eventibus accidere solent, difficilis erit antiqui juris recuperatio."

Sed nec istis, quae in Remensi concilio acta sunt, sedata est quaestio. Giraldus enim in episcopum Menevensē electus, Romam petit anno MCC. Et solícite illic tractans de metropolitano suae ecclesiae jure contra Hubertum, Cantuariæ archiepiscopum, ad ejus invectiones in pleno consistorio respondet, sed (pecunia, ut supponitur, intercedente) causa cadit et dignitate; et bis victi jam Menevenses praefules, in arenam ultra non prodierunt.

Extinctus jam est igitur Britannicorum metropolitaram radius ultimus, qui cccc. uti fertur, annos ante ingressum Augustini, et dc. postea, florens alias, alias fluctuans et oppressus perduravit. Perdurabant etiam una cum eodem inter lolia et corruptae ecclesiae subsequentis zizania puri tritici spicae plurimae, usque in permulta secula, ut superius in hoc opere sparsim videris, et haec quidem a primaevis patribus, etiam ab apostolis ipsis, aut discipulis suis seminatae: quae licet inimici hominis falce saepissime sint detonsae et excisae, repullulaverunt denuo, et virescunt hodie, Deo gratias, florentissime.

6. Placeat ut ad memoriam et honorem vetustissimae istius metropoliticae ecclesiae, quae a triplici sede, primum Caerlegionensis, postea Landavenfis, et mox inde Menevensis sanctique Davidis nuncupata est, ea referam, quae ad finem belle manuscripti codicis annalium Gisleberti deprehendi, in hunc modum, viz. "Ab urbe Legionum," vulgo olim Caerleon, "usque ad Meneviam, quae est ad occidentem Demetiae supra mare Hibernicum sita, translata est sedes metropolitana tempore S. David archiepiscopi per regem Arthurum: ubi steterunt 13. archiepiscopi usque Sampsonem. Hic etiam ingruente flava peste per Cambriam, quam ictericiam vocant, sumpto secum pallio, Armoricam Britanniam adiit: et sede Dolensi praefedit; a quo tempore usque ad tempus Henrici I. regis Anglorum, federunt Meneviae, quae nunc David dicitur, undecim episcopi pallio carentes (forte paupertatis causa) cum tamen usque ad hoc tempus episcopi Meneviae a suis suffraganeis Wallensibus ibidem fuerunt consecrati; nulla penitus professione vel subjectione facta alteri ecclesiae. Caeteri succedentes episcopi, regio urgente mandato, Cantuariæ consecrationem suscipiunt, in cujus subjectionis signum Bonifacius, Cantuariæ archiepiscopus, tempore Henrici II. in ecclesiis cathedralibus Cambriae, primus omnium Cantuariensium archiepiscoporum missam solenniter celebravit: ita quod hodie in tota Anglia duo tantum sunt primates, scil. Cantuariensis et Eboracensis."

7. Restat

7. Restat ut istius archiepiscopatus extensionem, et quos episcopos habuit suffraganeos, referamus. Memorantur fuisse septem numero: sed hi aliter sub introitu Augustini, aliter sub egressu Sampsonis, Menevensis archiepiscopi, in Britanniam Armoricanam, recitantur. Primores habes in notis nostris ad Augustini synodum an. Dom. DCI. ubi intelligendum est Vicensensem dioecesim, quae tunc e septem illis uni paruit antistiti, in quinque postea divisam esse episcopatus: viz. Lichfeldensem, Dorcestrensem, Legecestrensem, Sidnacestrensem, et Wigornensem. E quo liquet, hanc Meneviae, alias Caerlegionis, archiepiscopalem provinciam, tantum olim possedisse territorii, quantum ad duodecim, ex * Gregorii vetustiorumque institutione, suffraganeos episcopos alendum sufficeret. De posterioribus autem septem episcopis suffraganeis, qui huic sedi, sancti, ut vocant, Sampsonis tempore florere, haud bene convenit apud auctores: aliter enim istos recitat Roge. Hovedenus: aliter ex archivis Godwinus praeful, sed Hovedeno potius fidem adhibens.

En una, cum vetustioris, tum recentioris temporis episcopales sedes, Caerlegionensi Menevensive metropolitano subditas, viz.

Harum intra Cambriam trans Sabrinam sitae sunt praeter Menevensensem ipsum, et quae in hanc coaluit, post occisum a plebe suum praefulem Paternensem, Landavenfis, Banchorensis, et Affaphensis sedes: extra vero in confiniis apponebantur Cestrensis, Herefordensis, et Wigornensis episcopatus. Vide plura apud Hovedenum in fine anni Domini MXCIX. Johannis regis primo: et epistolam ibidem Eugenii papae de dignitate metropolitanae ecclesiae S. David, quae etiam habetur in II. tomo istius operis, sub praedicto anno.

Hujus archiepiscopatus memoriam libentius colo, quod ante adventum Augustini eximia pollet antiquitate: nullamque vel ab eo, vel ejus successoribus ordinationem acceperit, subjectionemve eidem praestiterit usque ad tempus, ut diximus, Henrici I. qui cum Walliae principatum suae subjugasset ditioni, Walliae clerum suo etiam subdi voluit archipraefuli. Nihil autem ut fileam, quod ad alterius utriusque ecclesiae praerogativam spectet; perhiberi fateor, Oudoceum, tertium Landaviae episcopum, non a metropolitano suo Menevensi consecrationem accepisse, sed ab archiepiscopo quodam Doroberniae: a noverca scil. non a matre. Quis autem iste fuerit archiepiscopus, magna me tenet dubitatio. Non agnoscunt enim historici nostri archiepiscopum Doroberniae, hoc est, Cantuariæ, ante Augustinum: quem probationes non fuisse ordinatum ferunt ante an. Dom. DXCVIII.

Qui igitur fiat ut Oudoceum ille consecraret, non ariolor. De tempore etiam nihil comperi. Sed post translationem S. Dubricii, protopraefulis Landaviae, ad archiepiscopatum Meneviae, auctoritate synodi an. Dom. DXII. Thelias secundus illic episcopus continuo surrogatur, succeditque tertius Oudoceus, sed incerto tempore. [V. Balaeus cent. I. ca. LVIII.] Quaerendum igitur quamdiu Thelias sedit. Coepisse dicitur sub an. Dom. DXII. et senex claruisse an. DL. quibus etiam si x. praeterea addiderimus, episcopatu exiisse videbitur circa XL. annos ante ipsius Augustini consecrationem. Cogitabimusne Landavensem cathedram toto hoc vacasse tempore, aut Oudoceum non interea consecratum esse? Minime. Ego eum fuisse episcopum circa an. Dom. DLX. opinatus sum, hac adductus ratione: quod a Dorobernia rediens consecratus, recipi dicitur a Mourico rege Glamorgantiae, una cum regina, proceribus, clero, etc. et solenni processione in ecclesiam deduci, Quin et Mouricum regem * episcopo dedisse aedes episcopales Mahern dictas circa an. Dom. DLX. refert Godwinus praeful, reor e Landavenfi codice, in vita Oudocei.

Hic fusius haereo, ut quae de Oudocei aevio obiter posui in sequentibus conciliis, istis, si feliciter, tuear rationibus. Non habeo tamen, quod de Doroberniae jam tum adferam archiepiscopo, nisi in Cantio archiepiscopalem sedem (temere) cum Giraldo ponerem sub Britonibus. Haud videtur sane verisimile, ut ingens adeo fidus in Britannica ecclesia, Oudoceum dico, quem inter majores numerabant sanctos, relicto clero patrio, ab inimico extero et longe dissito consecrationem peteret, et apud suos denuo versaretur. Penes doctiores sit judicium: ego, pace tua, lector haec in apparatu suggero, quae in ipso opere praetermissi.

‡ Intelligo Oudoceo.

Sed ut me recipiam: periit, sicut diximus, post Henrici I. regis seculum, Menevensis iste archiepiscopatus: et in crassas una abiit caligines omnis pene notitia veterrimae ecclesiae Britannicae: quae tribus olim metropolitanis florens cathedris^a "nullius subdebatur patriarchae legibus: sed in orbe suo hoc Britannico, dignitatem illam prae se ferebat. Non caecutivit igitur^b Malmesburius, cum Cantuariensem archipraefulem ex antiquo ritu patriarcham dixerit. Nec fateri dedignatus est quodammodo Romanus ipse pontifex Urbanus II. qui cum Anselmum Cantuariæ archiepiscopum ad Barrense concilium an. Epistola Lucii regis ad Eleutherium, episcopum Romanum, qua se expetit christianum fieri. [Circ. an. Dom. CLXXXV. ex Spelm. vol. I. p. 31.]

NUSQUAM, quod sciam, extat haec epistola; de ea autem sic Beda meminit. "Anno ab incarnatione Domini CLVI. Marcus Antoninus Verus, decimus quartus ab Augusto, regnum cum Aurelio Commodus fratre suscepit. Quorum temporibus cum Eleutherius, vir sanctus, pontificatui Romanae ecclesiae praeesset, misit ad eum Lucius, Britannorum rex epistolam, obsecrans ut per ejus mandatum christianus efficeretur: et mox effectum piae postulationis consecutus est, susceptamque fidem Britannii usque in tempora Dioclesiani principis inviolatam, integramque quietam pace servabant." Haec Beda, cui adjungam illa Mariani Scoti "sub an. Dom. CLXXVII. duodecimus ab apostolis succedit Eleutherius XVI. anno Antonini Veri." Hucusque, inquit ille, Methodius; et de suo addit: "Lucius Britanniae rex ab Eleutherio papa per epistolam christianum se fieri impetrat." Sic alii quamplurimi.

De tempore scriptionis hujus epistolae et conversionis Lucii multipliciter discrepatum est inter auctores, ut mox infra videas in notis ad epistolam Eleutherii. Sed cum omnes alii Lucium unanimiter ferunt suscepisse fidem ab Eleutherio, Nennius ille sive Gildas quartus, qui senex floruisse dicitur anno Dom. DCCCLX. Euaristum papam rei ponit auctorem, LX. pene annos ante pontificatum Eleutherii martyrio coronatum. "Lucius," inquit, "Britannicus rex cum universis regulis totius Britanniae, baptismum susceperunt, missa legatione ab imperatoribus Romanorum, et a papa Romano Euaristo." Irrepsit forte scriptoris vitio Euaristo pro Eleutherio: sed numquid plures tunc imperatores, aut christianis aliquis non infestus? An illud voluit, quod baptismum susceperunt eo tempore, quo imperatores Romani legationem alia de causa miserunt in Britanniam? Flocci penditur, fabulator enim iste habitus, et a Polydoro quidem egregius.

Eleutherius Faganum et Deruvianum legat in Britanniam. Hi fidem ferunt: regem Lucium, et cum regulis populum baptizant: clerum ordinant: tres metropolitanos, et viginti octo episcopos instituunt. [Circa an. Dom. CLXXXV. Ibid. p. 32.]

"Anno gratiae CLXXXV. Eleutherius papa XV. sedit in cathedra Romana annis 15. mensibus 6. et diebus 5. et cessavit sedes diebus 6. Eodem tempore Lucius Britannorum rex ad eundem papam epistolas direxit, petens ab eo ut christianus efficeretur. Beatus vero pontifex, comperta regis devotione, misit ad illum doctores religiosos Faganum et Deruvianum, qui regem ad Christum converterent, et lavacro salutari abluerent. Quod cum factum fuisset, concur-rerunt ad baptismum nationes diversae, exemplum regis sequentes, ita ut in brevi nullus inveniretur infidelis. Beati igitur doctores, cum per totam Britanniam paganismum delevisent, templa, quae in honorem plurimorum deorum fundata fuerant, uni Deo, ejusdemque sanctis dedicaverunt, diversisque ordinatorum coetibus repleverunt. Constitueruntque in diversis civitatibus regni viginti octo episcopos, qui tribus archiepiscopis et sedibus metropolitanis submittebantur.

Prima sedes Londini erat, cui submissa est Loegria et Cornubia, quas provincias Sabrina a Cambria sejungit.

Secunda

Secunda apud Eboracum, cui submissa est Deira et Albania, quas magnum flumen Humbri a Loegria fecernit.

Tertia in urbe Legionum, cui subjacuit Cambria, id est Wallia, quam Sabrina a Loegria fecernit. Hanc urbem super Oscam fluvium in Glamorgantia olim fuisse sitam, veteres muri et aedificia protestantur."

Eleutherius papa acta omnia a Fagano et Deruviano probat et confirmat.

[Circa ann. Dom. CLXXXV. ex Spelm. p. 32.]

DESIDERATUR hujus confirmationis pagina, sic autem, cum multis aliis, Mat. Westmonast. "Anno gratiae CLXXXVI. beati antistites Faganus et Deruvianus Romam reversi, quae fecerant, impetraverunt a papa beatissimo confirmari. Quibus peractis redierunt in Britanniam praefati doctores cum aliis quamplurimis, quorum doctrina gens Britonum in fide Christi, in brevi fundata refulsit. Istorum autem nomina et actus in libro reperiuntur, quem Gildas historicus de victoria Aurelii Ambrosii conscripsit."

Rex Lucius ecclesias et viros ecclesiasticos praediis donat: ecclesias etiam cum suis coemeteriis liberas facit, et confugientibus asyla. [Ann. Dom. CLXXXVII. ibid. p. 33.]

MAT. Westmonast. "An. gratiae CLXXXVII. gloriosus Britonum rex Lucius, cum infra regnum suum verae fidei cultum magnificatum esse vidisset, possessiones et territoria ecclesiis et viris ecclesiasticis abundanter conferens, chartis, et munimentis omnia communivit. Ecclesias vero cum suis coemeteriis, ita constituit esse liberas, ut quicumque malefactor ad illa confugeret, illaesus ab omnibus remaneret. Deinde in dilectione Dei et proximi feliciter vivens, regnum suum in tranquillitate maxima moderabatur."

Huc etiam pertinere videatur, quod e Malmesburio supra proditur. "Et sicut tres reges pagani" intellige Arviragus, Marius, et Coilus, "dictam insulam cum adjacentiis suis XII. primis Christi discipulis dudum concesserunt, ita praedicti Faganus et Deruvianus istis XII. sociis, quos ipsi tempore Lucii ibidem constituerunt, atque aliis in posterum servituris, ab eodem rege Lucio confirmari impetrabant."

Epistola Eleutherii, Romani episcopi, ad Lucium, regem Britanniae, leges Romanas et Caesaris petentem. Ex legibus S. Edovardi regis et confessoris, ubi sic inscribitur: Epistola domini Eleutherii Lucio regi Britanniae. Collat. cum MS. Gildae Londin. [Ann. Dom. CLXXXV. ibidem p. 34.]

ANNO^a CLXIX. a passione Christi, dominus Eleutherius papa Lucio regi Britanniae scripsit^b ad petitionem regis et procerum regni Britanniae. Petistis a nobis leges Romanas et Caesaris vobis transmitti, quibus in regno Britanniae uti voluistis. Leges Romanas et Caesaris semper^c reprobare possumus, legem Dei nequaquam. Suscepistis enim nuper miseratione divina in regno Britanniae legem et fidem Christi, habetis penes vos in regno utramque paginam, ex illis Dei gratia, per concilium regni vestri, sume legem, et per illam Dei potentia vestrum^d reges Britanniae regnum. Vicarius vero Dei estis in regno, juxta prophetam regem [Psal. xxiii. 1.] "Domini est terra et plenitudo ejus, orbis terrarum, et universi qui inhabitant in eo:" et rursus juxta prophetam regem [Ps. xlv. 9.] "Dilexisti justitiam, et odisti iniquitatem, propterea unxit te Deus tuus oleo laetitiae prae consortibus tuis:" et rursus juxta prophetam regem [Psal. lxxi. 1.]

"Deus judicium tuum," etc. Non enim judicium neque justitia Caesaris, filii enim regis gentes christianae et populi regni sunt, qui sub vestra protectione, et pace, et regno^e degant et consistant, juxta evangelium [Mat. xxiii. 37.] "Quemadmodum gallina congregat pullos sub alis," etc. Gentes vero regni Britanniae et populi vestri sunt, et quos divisos debetis in unum ad concordiam, et pacem, et ad fidem, et ad legem Christi, et ad sanctam ecclesiam congregare, revocare, fovere, manutenere, protegere, regere, et ab injuriosis, et malitiosis, et ab inimicis^f defendere. Animadversiones in hanc epistolam. Ex Spelm. vol. I. p. 35.

NONNULLI viri docti pluris faciunt hanc epistolam. Auctor Antiq. Britan. eccl. augustam vocat, et, ut naevos solet, tuetur quidem vehementius. Absit ut patriae meae monumentis, quibus excolendis assidue semper defudavi, injuriam vel tantillam inferam. Prae omnibus tamen excolenda veritas, et cum in secularibus universis, tum in his praecipue ad rem ecclesiae pertinentibus. Candide igitur, ut me exhibeam, epistolam pono, sed et pariter annotanda censeo, quae eamⁱ, nec immerito, vocent in suspicionem. Tu deinde, lector, tuo utere arbitrio.

Primo haud feliciter hic se habet synchronismus. Alias enim scribi dicitur anno Domini CLXIX. alias, ut in notulis, anno CLVI. et convenit quidem neuter numerus Eleutherii pontificatui, si probatos magis auctores insequamur. Nam licet Beda [in Breviar.] eum factum ait Romanae praefulem an. Dom. CLXVII. Eusebius tamen in suo Chronico pontificatus ipsius initium refert ad an. XVI. Antonini imp. id est, Domini nostri CLXXIX. et consultius in historia sua ad sequentem Antonini annum, qui est Domini nostri CLXXX. Huic etiam sententiae accedit Baronius, confirmatque martyrum Lugdunensium literis ad Eleutherium ipsum datis. Porrigitur a nonnullis aliis ad annum Dom. CLXXXI. et a Matthaeo Westmonasteriensi ad annum gratiae CLXXXV. Cum autem annus ille, qui est in fronte epistolae, non ab ipso Eleutherio, sed ignoto quopiam ascribatur, et saepissime hallucinari soleant auctores in annis Christi ad illa secula coaptandis, non enata adhuc, nec diu postea, Christi epocha, nos, si caetera bene quadrent, istud non morabimur.

Secundo, differt hic petitio Lucii ab illa, quam et Beda, et alii omnes auctores ponunt. Petiisse nempe ab Eleutherio Lucium, ut suo munere fide imbueretur christiana: et refert haec epistola nihil peti praeter leges Caesaris et Romanas. Hoc utique parum moror, cum bis forte scripserit, pro fide primo, et pro legibus denuo. Innuit idem ipsa epistola, ubi dicit, Suscepistis enim nuper miseratione divina in regno Britanniae legem et fidem Christi, etc.

Tertio, non opus erat ut Lucius Romam mitteret ad Eleutherium pro Romanis legibus adferendis, cum has domi a Romano praefide, nec fugiendas quidem, obtineret. Nam a tempore Claudii imp. qui Britanniam pene totam subjugavit, Romanae in Britannia resonabant leges, etiam per Brigantes ipsos tractu habitantes boreali, prout Seneca, Carm. Anapaest. in ludo de morte Cl. Caesar.

Ille Britannos ultra noti littora ponti
Et caeruleos Scuta Brigantas^a Dare Romuleis
Colla catenis Jussit, et ipsum nova Romanae
Jura securis Tremere oceanum.

Imo statuit in coloniis Romanas curias et tribunalia centum circiter annos ante Lucii regimen, ut e Tacito [Annal. lib. XIV.] liqueat, ea referente quae in colonia Cameloduni sub Paulino Suetonio Britanniarum praefide contingere. “Externos,” inquit, “fremitus in curia eorum auditos.” Hoc idem Dio Cassius, et praeterea Eutropius: “Colonia,” inquit, “Camelodunum ducitur valida, veteranorum manu in agros captivos, ut esset subsidium versus rebelles, et imbuendis sociis ad officia legum.” Adeo etiam celebre fuit mox ab excessu Lucii inter Brigantes tribunal Romanorum Eboraci, ut Aemilius Paulus Papinianus J. C. suae et multarum aetatum nominatissimus jura in eodem administasse perhibetur: et consulti ex eodem imp. Severus et Antoninus imperialem constitutionem edixisse de rerum venditione, quae habetur Cod. lib. III. tit. 32. Sed quid demum leges seculares peteret Lucius rex a sacerdote et viro sancto, qui harum studio penitus renuntiasset, ut se Dei legibus totum manciparet?

Quarto, non agnoscit haec epistola Romanorum in Britannia dominationem, cum Lucium tanquam regem absolutum, et, contra morem seculi, monarcham late imperantem alloquatur; non Romano coercitum praefide, ut apud Judaeos Herodes rex Pilato, Agrippa rex Felice et Festo, et ut in provinciis in usu fuit. “Vicarius vero,” inquit, “Dei estis in regno; non Claudii Caesaris, non imperatoris alicujus.” et mox infra: “Gentes vero regni Britanniae, et populi vestri sunt,” etc. [Lib. de Pontificib. Roman.] Lucius proculdubio erat rex Britanicus, ut in vita Eleutherii recte appellatur: hoc est, regionis alicujus Britanniae, non totius insulae, vel totius partis illius quae a Scotia muro determinata, Romano paruit. In hac tamen parte suam sub Romanis exercuisse ditionem, ut Herodes et Agrippa in Judaea, [Luc. i. 5.] non est dubitandum. Nec difficile est locum designare suae ditionis [Balaeus cent. i. ca. xxiii. Hect. Boet. lib. III. fol. 39. et 53. Hollinsh.

lib. IV. cap. iii. et plures alii] cum filius et successor esset Coili regis, Coilus Marii, Marius Arviragi, quem alii Tegenum fuisse perhibent, alii eundem ipsum quem Tacitus Prasutagum regem Icenorum nominat. Icenos autem, quos et Tegenos perperam vocant, eam Britanniae partem habitasse certum est, quae Eastangliam sub Saxonibus, hodie Norfolciam, Suffolciam, aliquando et Cantabrigiam complexa est: eorumque regiam Ventam Icenorum fuisse, quae nunc Caistor in Norfolcia dicitur, Norwico civitati in vicinia. Sed haec quidem a Glastonia Belgarum vicula in regno occidentalium Saxonum, quam Arviragum asserunt Iosepho Arimathaeo et sociis suis contulisse, longissime est diffita: quod altius igitur expendendum. Nam Arviragum potius regem fuisse innuit Belgarum et Dobunorum, id est, occidentalium Saxonum, quam Icenorum. Et sententiam promovet, quod in tractu isto plurimum is versatus fuerit, et Claudiocestriae sepultus, si Gaufrido fides. Haesitationem tollit (ni et de ipso dubitaveris) Hector Boethius Scotus, qui Histor. l. III. Arviragum indicat natione fuisse Icenum, et a Claudio imp. substitutum esse Britanniae regem. Perinde et Icenos primum suscepisse Christum in Britanniam.

Quinto, habetur hic vox manutenere, Eleutherii seculo, ut antiquior item manucapere, non in usu, sed Normanicam plane Latinitatem redolens; a qua in jus nostrum ir-repsit municipale^f. Dimidicare etiam non legitur.

Sexto, loca quae e sacra scriptura hic citantur, sumpta sunt e translatione divi Hieronymi, qui cc. pene annos post Eleutherium floruit, vel e recentiori vulgari.

Septimo et ultimo, non reperitur haec epistola usquam gentium infra mille annos post excessum Eleutherii; et e quo latibulo demum prodiit, incertum est. Typis inter primos dedit auctor Consuetudinum Londinensium an. 12 Hen. VIII. Clarius postea Guilielm. Lambardus in legum regis Edovardi Confessoris auctario, distincte tamen in Italica litera, ut pro adventitia cognoscatur. In veteri nostro MS. exemplari nequaquam cernitur, nec in illo quidem ab Hovedeno prodito annis ab hinc cccc. Sed, quod maxime animadvertendum est, non reperitur apud Hovedeni coaetaneum Gaufridum ipsum Monumethensem, qui Britannicarum antiquitatum non solum fuit solertissimus indagator, sed novitatum etiam strenuus praedicator. Exemplar utique, quod habetur in MS. codice Guildae London. ducentos annos non videtur salutasse.

His addit USSER. in not. MSS. ad locum: "I know not of what antiquitye that cōpye of Lucius his epistle is, which is now to be seen in Guild-hall: but that which was there of old, and now is in Sir Thomas Cotton's library, appeareth to have been written in the dayes of Edward I. as I have noted in my book De Britan. eccles. primordiis pag. 101."

De obitu Lucii regis, quem ab accepta fidei luce, Britanni Lever-maur, i. lucem magnam appellabant. [Circa ann. Dom. cci. ex Spelm. vol. I. p. 36. seq.]

MAT. Westmonast. "Anno gratiae cci. inclytus Britannorum rex Lucius in bonis actibus assumptus, Claudiocestriae ab hac vita migravit ad Christum, et in ecclesia primae sedis honorifice sepultus est. Quo defuncto, diffidium inter Britones surrexit, quia absque haerede decessit, et Romana potestas infirmata est. Mansit itaque Britannia in diffidio usque ad adventum Severi, qui eam postea Romanae restituit dignitati. Nam, ut inquit idem auctor, mox infra, anno gratiae ccv. Severus imperator in partes Britannicas bellum transfert, ubi gravibus praeliis saepe gestis maximam insulae partem sibi subjugavit, muroque fortissimo communivit.

Iste autem rex Lucius, ut habet Nennius in Eulogio Britanniae, propter fidem, quae in eius tempore venit, a Britannis Lever-maur agnominatus est, quod in uno exemplari MS. princeps magnae gloriae interpretatur: in alio vero, et verbo propius, magni splendoris; Lever enim lucem significat; maur magnam seu grandem.

Britannia fidem retinet. [Ann. Dom. ccii. et seqq. Ibidem.]

QUID in ecclesiis Britannicis actum sit post decessum Lucii usque ad Dioclesianam persecutionem (i. per annos lxxx. vel paucos supra) nihil, quod sciam, in historiis nostris proditum. Ab Origene [in Ezech. Hom. IV.] autem, qui eo floruit intervallo (nam obiisse dicitur an. Dom. cclx.) religionem etiam et hic floruisse intelligas, referente tunc ipso, Britanniam in unius Dei consentire religionem. Loquitur de celebri illa jam tum in Britannia ecclesia publica, sub Lucio Rege instituta: sed initium hanc coepisse ostendit Gildas tempore summo Tiberii Caesaris, et (licet per meatus aliquando tenues et obscuros) propagatam tamen floruisse usque ad persecutionem Dioclesiani tyranni, quam et late ibidem ipse describit.

USSERIUS in MSS. not. ad locum sequentia subiungit. Ab Origene Hom. IV. in Ezechielem affirmari aegre quis admiserit; Britanniam eo tempore in unius Dei consensisse religionem, qui nihilminus quam de Luciana conversione tum cogitaverat. H. I.

Persecutio Dioclesiana, qua S. Albanus, Aaron, Julius, et plures alii martyrio coronantur. [Circa ann. Dom. ccc. ex Spelm. vol. I. p. 37. seq.]

GILDÆ narrationis partem primam supra posuimus in apparatus nostri exordio, ubi cum dixisset, “ tempore summo Tiberii Caesaris radios suos primum indulget, id est, sua praecepta [in Britannia] Christus: adjungit immediate prout sequitur. Sect. vii. Quae licet ab incolis tepide suscepta sunt, apud quosdam tamen integre, et alios minus, usque ad persecutionem Dioclesiani tyranni novennem: in qua subversae per totum mundum sunt ecclesiae, et cunctae sacrae scripturae, quae inveniri potuerunt, in plateis exustae, et electi sacerdotes gregis Domini cum innocentibus ovibus trucidati: ita ut ne vestigium quidem (si fieri potuisset) in nonnullis provinciis christianae religionis appareret permanere. Tunc quantae fugae, quantae strages, quantae diversarum mortium poenae, quantae religionis apostatarum ruinae, quantae gloriosissimorum martyrum coronae, quanti persecutorum rabidi furores, quantae e contrario sanctorum patientiae fuere, ecclesiastica historia narrat ita ut agmine denso certatim (relictis post tergum mundialibus tenebris) ad amoena caelorum regna, quasi ad propriam sedem tota festinaret ecclesia. Sect. viii. Magnificavit igitur misericordiam suam Deus nobiscum, volens omnes homines salvos fieri, et vocans non minus peccatores, quam eos qui putant se esse justos, qui gratuito munere supradicto (ut cognoscimus) persecutionis tempore, ne crassa atrae noctis caligine Britannia obfuscaretur, clarissimas lampades sanctorum martyrum nobis accendit, quorum nunc corporum sepulturae et passionum loca, si non lugubri divortione barbarorum, quamplurima ob scelera nostra civibus adimerentur, non minimum intuentium mentibus ardorem divinae charitatis incuterent: sanctum Albanum Verolamensem, Aaron, et Julium Legionum urbis cives, caeterosque utriusque sexus diversis in locis summa magnanimitate in acie Christi perstantes dico. Quorum prior postquam charitatis gratia confessorem alium persecutoribus infectatum, et jam jamque comprehendendum (imitans et in hoc Christum “ animam pro ovibus ponentem”) domo primum ad mutatis dein mutuo vestibus occuluit, et se discrimini in fratris supradicti vestimentis libenter persequendum dedit: ita Deo placens inter sacram confessionem cruoremque, coram impiis Romana tum stigmata cum horribili phantasmate praeferebantibus, signorum miraculis mirabiliter adornatus est, ut oratione fervente illi Israeliticae arenti viae minusque tritae, stante diu arca prope glareas testamenti in medio Jordanis canali [Bed. lib. I. c. vii.] simile iter ignotum trans nobilis fluvii alveum cum mille viris sicco ingrediens pede, suspensis utrinque modo praeceptorum fluvialibus montium gurgitibus aperiret, et priorem carnificem tanta prodigia videntem in agnum ex lupo mutaret, et una secum triumphalem martyrii palmam sistere vehementius, et excipere fortius faceret. Caeteri vero sic diversis cruciatibus torti sunt, et inaudita membrorum discriptione lacerati, ut absque cunctamine gloriosi in egregiis Hierusalem veluti portis, martyrii sui trophaea defigerent: nam qui superfuerant, sylvis ac desertis, abditisque speluncis se occultavere, expectantes a justo rectore omnium Deo carnificibus severa quandoque judicia, sibi vero animarum tutamina.”

IGITUR, adhuc Gildam audis, “ bilustro supradicti turbinis nec dum ad integrum adimpleto, emarcescentibusque, nece suorum auctorum nefariis edictis, laetis luminibus omnes Christi tirones, quasi post hyemalem ac prolixam noctem, temperiem lucemque serenam aurae caelestis excipiunt, renovant ecclesias ad solum usque destructas, basilicas sanctorum martyrum fundant, construunt, perficiunt, ac velut victricia signa passim propalant, dies festos celebrant, sacramenta mundo corde oreque conficiunt, omnes exultant filii, gremio acsi matris ecclesiae confoti. Sect. ix. Mansit namque haec Christi capitis membrorumque consonantia suavis, donec Ariana perfidia atrox, seu anguis transmarina, nobis evomens venena, fratres in unum habitantes exitiabiliter faceret seungi, ac sic quasi via facta trans oceanum omnes omnino bestiae ferae mortiferum cujuslibet haereseos virus horrido ore vibrantes, letalia dentium vulnera patriae novi semper aliquid audire volenti, et nihil certi stabiliter obtinenti infigebant.”

Notae. Gildae haec omnia, et tantundem saepe verbis, in ecclesiasticam suam historiam transcripsit Beda lib. I. cap. vi. vii. viii. fusius etiam et multo lucidius. Nos ideo tamen Gildam exhibemus, quod annos plus minus cxi. Bedam praecefferat, et occurrit rarior libellus ejus, cum passim habeantur Bedae opera.

Synodi ejusdem vulgata editio solos canones et episcoporum nomina complectens.

SYNODUS episcoporum qui in civitate Arelatensium apud Marinum episcopum ecclesiae catholicae, temporibus Constantini Augusti Volusiano et Anniano coff. convenerunt.

Breviarium epistolae.

Domino sanctissimo, fratri Silvestro, Marinus et coetus episcoporum, qui adunati fuerunt in oppido Arelatensi. Quid decreverimus communi concilio, charitati tuae significavimus, ut omnes sciant quid in futurum observare debeant.

Canones.

I. Ut uno die et tempore Pascha celebretur. De conf. dist. 3. de observatione Paschae.

Primo loco de observatione Paschae dominici, ut uno die et uno tempore per omnem orbem a nobis observetur, et juxta consuetudinem literas ad omnes tu dirigas.

II. Ut ubi quisque ordinatur ibi permaneat.

De his qui in quibuscunque locis ordinati fuerint ministri, in ipsis locis perseverent.

III. Ut qui in pace arma projiciunt excommunicentur. Ivo p. 2. c. 112.

De his qui arma projiciunt in pace, placuit abstinere eos a communione.

IV. Ut aurigae dum agitant excommunicentur.

De agitatoribus qui fideles sunt, placuit eos quamdiu agitant a communione separari.

V. Ut theatrici quamdiu agunt excommunicentur.

De theatricis, et ipsos placuit, quamdiu agunt, a communione separari.

VI. Ut in infirmitate conversi manus impositionem accipiant.

De his qui in infirmitate credere volunt, placuit eis debere manum imponi.

VII. De fidelibus qui praesides sunt, vel rempublicam agere volunt.

De praesidibus qui fideles ad praesidatum profiliunt, placuit ut cum promoti fuerint, literas accipiant ecclesiasticas communicatorias, ita tamen ut in quibuscunque locis gesserint, ab episcopo ejusdem loci cura de illis agatur, et cum coeperint contra disciplinam agere, tum demum a communione excludantur. Simi-liter et de his qui rempublicam agere volunt.

VIII. De baptismo eorum qui ab haeresi convertuntur. De conf. dist. 4. de Arianis.

De Afris quod propria lege sua utuntur ut rebaptizent, placuit ut si ad ecclesiam aliquis ab haeresi venerit, interrogent eum symbolum, et si perviderint eum in Patre, et Filio, et Spiritu Sancto esse baptizatum, manus ei tantum imponatur ut accipiat Spiritum Sanctum. Quodsi interrogatus non responderit hanc Trinitatem, baptizetur.

IX. Ut qui confessorum literas afferant, alias accipiant.

De his qui confessorum literas afferunt, placuit ut sublati eis literis, accipiant communicatorias.

X. Ut is cujus uxor adulteravit, aliam illa vivente non accipiat. Ivo p. 8. c. 258.

De his qui conjuges suas in adulterio deprehendunt, et iidem sunt adolescentes fideles et prohibentur nubere, placuit in quantum possit consilium eis detur, ne viventibus uxoribus suis, licet adulteris, alias accipiant.

XI. De puellis quae gentilibus junguntur.

De puellis fidelibus quae gentilibus junguntur, placuit ut a communione aliquanto tempore separentur.

XII. Ut clerici foeneratores excommunicentur.

De ministris qui foenerant, placuit eos juxta formam divinitus datam a communione abstinere.

XIII. De iis qui scripturas sacras, vasa dominica, vel nomina fratrum tradidisse dicuntur.

De his qui scripturas sacras tradidisse dicuntur, vel vasa dominica vel nomina fratrum suorum, placuit nobis ut quicumque eorum ex actis publicis fuerit detectus, non verbis nudis, ab ordine cleri amoveatur. Nam si iidem aliquos ordinasse fuerint deprehensi, et de his quos ordinaverint ratio subsistit, non illis obfit ordinatio. Et quoniam multi sunt, qui contra ecclesiasticam regulam pugnare videntur, et per testes redemptos putant se ad accusationem admitti debere, omnino non admittantur nisi, ut supra diximus, actis publicis docuerint.

^b 14. q. 4. ministri qui foenerant.

XIV. Ut qui falso accusant fratres suos usque ad exitum excommunicentur.

De his qui falso accusant fratres suos, placuit eos usque ad exitum non communicare.

XV. Ut diacones non offerant.

De diaconibus quos cognovimus multis locis offerre, placuit minime fieri debere.

XVI. Ut ubi quisque sit excommunicatus, ibi communionem consequatur.

De his qui pro delicto suo a communione separantur, placuit ut in quibuscunque locis fuerint exclusi, eodem loco communionem consequantur.

XVII. Ut nullus episcopus alium conculcet episcopum.

Ut nullus episcopus alium episcopum conculcet. Ivo p. 5. c. 228.

XVIII. De diaconibus urbicis, ut sine presbyterorum conscientia nihil agant.

De diaconibus urbicis, ut non sibi tantum praesumant, sed honorem presbyteris reservent, ut sine conscientia eorum nihil tale faciant.

XIX. Ut peregrinis episcopis locus sacrificandi detur. Ivo p. 5. c. 216.

De episcopis peregrinis qui in urbem solent venire, placuit eis locum dari ut offerant.

XX. Ut sine tribus episcopis nullus episcopus ordinetur.

De his qui usurpant sibi, quod soli debeant episcopos ordinare, placuit ut nullus hoc sibi praesumat nisi assumptis secum aliis septem episcopis: si non potuerit septem, infra tres non audeat ordinare.

XXI. Ut presbyteri, aut diacones qui ad alia loca se transferunt, deponantur. Ivo p. 6. c. 172.

De presbyteris aut diaconibus qui solent dimittere loca sua in quibus ordinati sunt, et ad alia loca se transferunt, placuit ut eis locis ministrant quibus praefixi sunt. Quod si relictis locis suis ad alium se locum transferre voluerint, deponantur.

XXII. De apostatis qui in infirmitate communionem petunt.

De his qui apostatant, et nunquam se ad ecclesiam repraesentant, ne quidem poenitentiam agere quaerunt, et postea infirmitate arrepti petunt communionem, placuit eis non dandam communionem, nisi relevaverint et egerint dignos fructus poenitentiae.

Notae. Hoc concilium quoad locum sessionis, Gallicum est; quoad conscriptionis occasionem, ad conterendas scilicet impias quorundam Africanorum opiniones, Africanum. Congregatum autem iussu Constantini magni, qui tunc Britannis imperabat. Aderant igitur e Britannia celebriores, ut videtur, tres episcopi, nempe Eboracensis, Londoniensis, et de civitate Colonia Londinensium, quae alias dicitur Camelodunum, et colonia Cameloduni, una cum sacerdote, presbytero, et diacono; qui et canones assensu suo approbabant, et, in Britanniam redeuntes, secum deferebant observandos. Eisdem itaque in nostro hoc conciliorum syllabo exhibemus, ut videas, lector, quibus sub antiquo illo seculo ecclesia Britannica moderabatur regulis. Epistolas et rescriptum Constantini circa hoc concilium et epistolam ipsius concilii ad Silvestrum papam apud Sirmondum intueri.

Binius hoc concilium refert ad an. Dom. cccxxvi. alii ad cccxxviii. Balaeus nostras ad ccccl. Baronius et Sirmondus, quos libentius sequor, ad cccxiv. In eo autem acta et iudicata est causa Caeciliani: aderatque, ut vides, e Britannia Restitutus, Londinensis episcopus, et decretis ejusdem in hunc modum, ut habet Binius, verbis Sirmondi e codice Corbeiensis inversis subscripsit. "Ex provincia Britanniae, civitate Londinen. Restitutus episcopus." Differt et in aliis ejus editio. Sed redeuntem in Britanniam Restitutum, canones hujus concilii secum detulisse refert ex Balaeo Godwinus, et inter eos unum olim hunc fuisse.

"Si diaconi in ordinatione sua protestentur se uxores ducturos, ut liceat illis id ipsum facere, atque simul in ministerio permanere.

Epistola Constantini Magni, Britanniae imperantis, ad omnes ecclesias, de rebus Nicaeni concilii, et unanimi Paschatis observatione. Qua etiam ostendit ampliore jam nunc esse in Britannis ecclesiarum numerum, easdemque communiter sentire cum reliquis orbis ecclesiis. Ex Nicephor. lib. VIII. ca. xxv. [Ann. Dom. cccxxx. ex Spelm. vol. I. p. 43. seqq.]

IDEM Constantinus et ad episcopos, qui ad conventum (Nicaenum) venire non potuerunt, et ad omnes ubique ecclesias, quae acta ibi essent declarans, ad hunc modum scripsit:

Experientia edoctus per rerum publicarum prosperitatem, quanta sit divinae potestatis gratia, illum mihi propositum esse debere finem judicavi, ut a beatissimis catholicae ecclesiae populis fides una, et sincera charitas, consentiensque in Deum pietas servetur. Sed enim quum aliter omnino fieri non posset, ut ordo stabilis et firmus constitueretur, nisi simul omnes, aut certe plures episcopi convenirent, et de re qualibet ad sanctissimam religionem pertinente dijudicarent, ejus rei gratia, quam fieri potuit plurimis coactis, me quoque perinde atque uno aliquo ex vobis, non enim negaverim quo maxime laetor, conservum vestrum me esse, praesente, usque adeo omnia in debitam sunt disquisitionem vocata, quousque rerum omnium inspectori Deo placita sententia ad consentien-tis unitatis concordiam stabiliendam, in lucem est protracta, ita ut nihil jam quod ad dissensionem, aut professionis fidei ambiguitatem facere posset, sit relictum. Ubi quum de sanctissimo etiam Paschae die quaestio esset exorta, sententiis omnium decretum est, convenire, ut id eodem tempore ab omnibus ubique peragatur. Quid enim nobis esse potest vel pulchrius, vel gravius, quam si is dies festus, unde spem immortalitatis percepimus, uno ordine et celebri ritu ab omnibus certo et inviolabiliter peragatur? Ac primum quidem indigna res fuit, sanctissimum eum diem imitatione atque consuetudine Judaeorum celebrare, qui manibus suis nefario flagitio contaminatis, non injuria quoque animis sunt excaecati, homines scelerati. Quidni enim liceat, gente ea rejecta, rectiori veriorique ordine, quem a primo Passionis die hucusque servavimus, ad futura quoque secula observationis hujus ritum transmittere? Itaque nihil vobis commune sit cum infestissima festissima Judaeorum turba. Aliam siquidem a Servatore accepimus viam: propositus est sacratissimae religioni nostrae suus cursus, et legitima quae illam deceat regula: quam unanimi consensu complectentes, nosipsum a foeda illa conscientia et societate retrahamus, fratres reverendissimi. Et profecto omnium absurdissimum est, illos gloriando jactare, hisce observandis nos sufficere non posse, absque illorum doctrina et praescripto. Quidnam vero illi recte sentire et sapere possunt, qui post illam Domini caedem mentibus capti, non ratione aliqua, sed impotenti impetu, quocunque eos insitus impellit furor, ducuntur. Quam ob causam, quum in hac quoque parte verum non perspiciant, sed, uti semper, affectu vitioso transversim rapiantur, potius quam errorem corrigant, eodem anno bis Pascha peragunt. Quae igitur de causa eos sequemur, qui gravi errore se implicatos esse consentunt? Bis equidem eodem anno Pascha celebrare, haud unquam sustinuerimus. Atque etiam si haec vobis non exponerentur, conveniret tamen, vos, pro mentis vestrae sagacitate, semper et studere et optare, ne cujuscumque similitudine et exemplo, puritatem animarum vestrarum pollueretis, neve hominum modis omnibus malorum consuetudinem imitari videremini.

Ad haec illud quoque considerandum venit, in re tanta, et tam solennibus religionis nostrae feriis dissensionem extare aliquam, longe esse impiissimum. Unum namque nobis libertatis atque redemptionis nostrae diem, sanctissimae scilicet passionis suae, Salvator noster dedit. Unam esse catholicam suam ecclesiam voluit: cujus tametsi partes in multis variisque sunt dispersae locis, uno tamen Spiritu, hoc est, divino arbitrio fovetur. Consideret porro sanctitatis vestrae solertia, quam grave sit et indecorum, per eosdem dies, alios quidem jejuniis intentos esse, alios vero convivii vacare; et post Paschae dies, hos quidem feriari et conquiescere, illos autem statis jejuniis macerari. Quapropter hanc rem, pro eo atque decet corrigi, atque ad unum institutum formamque perducere, divina vult providentia: quantum equidem extra omnem affectum positus perspicio. Itaque quum hoc sic corrigere conveniat, ne quid nobis cum Domini percussoribus sit commune, et decens extet ordo, quem omnes occidentaliū, et meridionaliū, septentrionaliūque habitabilis orbis partium ecclesiae, et quibusdam quoque in locis orientales observant, ea de causa in praesentia omnibus convenire visum est, ipseque adeoque id solertiae vestrae placitum esse recepi, ut quod per urbem Romanam, Italiam, Africam omnem, Aegyptum, Hispanias, Gallias, Britannias, Libyam, cunctam Graeciam, Asiam, atque Ponticam ditionem, et Ciliciam, uno atque consentienti servatur consilio, id libenter quoque prudentia vestra suscipiat: secum ipsa perpendens, non modo ampliorem esse ecclesiarum in eis quae diximus locis numerum, verum etiam idem communiter omnes sentire et velle, esse quam sanctissimum. Quin et strictior ipsa atque exactior ratio flagitare videtur, ne qua sit nobis cum Judaeorum perjurio communio. Et ut tandem summam rei breviter dicam: communi omnium iudicio placuit, sanctissimas Paschae ferias uno eodemque die peragi. Minime namque decet in re tam sancta aliquam extare dissensionem. Et pulchrius est eam sequi sententiam, in qua nulla sit alieni erroris et peccati contagio. Ac cum ita se res habeat, libentibus animis caeleste hoc et vere divinum suscipite praeceptum. Quidquid enim in sanctis episcoporum agitur conventibus, id ad divinam refertur voluntatem. Itaque eis quae scripsimus, omnibus dilectis fratribus nostris significatis, jam rationem hanc et observationem sanctissimi diei suscipere atque instituere debetis, ut quum in pietatis vestrae, quod dudum mihi fuit in votis, conspectum venero, uno eodemque die sanctas vobiscum ferias celebrare valeam, et rebus omnibus una vobiscum animo delecter, feritatem diabolicam per vim divinam operibus nostris sublatam, vestramque ubique fidem, pacem, et concordiam vigentem cernens. Deus vos servet, fratres dilecti.

Aequum etiam est, quae contra Arium et ejus sectatores, omnibus passim episcopis et populis scripsit cognoscere. Quum malignos et impios Arius sibi imitandos duxerit, par est ut eandem cum illis ferat ignominiam. Quemadmodum igitur Porphyrius divinae pietatis hostis, iniquis de religione compositis libris, condignam reperit mercedem, per quam omnium futuris seculis probris obnoxius erit, plurimaque obruetur infamia, atque insuper impia ejus abolita sunt scripta: ita et nunc placitum nobis est Arium et Arianos suffragatores, Porphyrianos quidem nominari, ut quorum imitati sunt mores, eorum quoque obtineant appellationes. Si quod autem scriptum ab Ario compositum reperitur, ut igni id tradatur volumus, ut non modo improba ejus doctrina abrogetur, verum etiam ne monumentum quidem aliquod ejus relinquantur. Illud equidem praedictum volo, si quis libellum aliquem ab Ario conscriptum celare, nec continuo igni comburere, deprehensus fuerit, supplicium ei mortis esse constitutum. Illico namque in crimine tali comprehensus poenam sustinebit capitalem.

Plures etiam alias adversus eosdem ad loca omnia misit epistolas, verbis per ironiam ad simulationem compositis eis illudens, Nicomediensibus itidem, contra Eusebium et Theognidem scripsit; Eusebium perstringens, veluti Licinio aliquando faventem, sibi insidiantem, atque alium episcopum legere jubens: quod et factum est. Eas epistolas hoc loco apponere, ne longior esse videar, minus convenire putavi. Ac de his quidem haec tenus.

Sardicensis synodus. [Ann. Dom. ccccli. ex Spelm. vol. I. p. 46.]

Hoc anno celebratum Sardicēse est concilium in Dacia, contra Eusebianos, ubi coacti sunt trecenti episcopi, ex triginta sex provinciis, quarum unam esse Britanniam refert Athanasius, apologia secunda contra Arianos, "In magno," inquit, "Sardico concilio nostram innocentiam, plures quam trecenti epi-scopi suis calculis comprobarunt; qui ex multis provinciis Aegypti, Libyae, Pentapoleos, etc. Hispaniarum, Galliarum, Britanniarum, eo se ad concilium contulerant." Et in epistola quam dedit ad Jovinianum, ait, "Britannicas ecclesias idem in fide sentire cum caeteris ecclesiis in Nicaeno concilio promulgata."

Quod Arcadio regnante, Pelagius Brito contra gratiam Dei superba bella suscepit. Bed. Hist. Eccl. lib. I. cap. x. [Ann. Dom. cccxciv. ibidem.]

Annō ab incarnatione Domini cccxciv. Arcadius, filius Theodosii, cum fratre Honorio, quadagesimus tertius ab Augusto regnum suscipiens, tenuit annos tredecim. Cujus temporibus Pelagius, Brito contra auxilium gratiae supernae venena suae perfidiae longe lateque dispersit, utens cooperatore Juliano de Campania, quem dudum amissi episcopatus intemperans cupido exagitabat. Quibus sanctus Augustinus, sicut et caeteri patres orthodoxi, multis sententiarum catholicarum millibus responderunt, nec eorum tamen dementiam corrigere valebant: sed quod gravius est, correpta eorum vesania, magis augescere contradicendo, quam favendo veritati, voluit emendari. Quod pulchre verbis heroicis Prosper rhetor insinuat, cum ait:

Contra Augustinum narratur serpere quidam

Infantes sine peccato originali nasci: et tam insontes, quam insons fuit Adam ante praevaricationem. Nec etiam baptizandos esse ut a peccato solvantur: sed ut per adoptionem in regnum Dei admittantur. Qui etsi non baptizarentur, esse tamen eis extra regnum Dei aeternam beatam vitam.

Adam solum suo peccato laesum esse: eum-que mortuum esse non ex culpa meritis, sed ex conditione naturae, qui mortuus fuisset etiam si non peccasset.

Mutas etiam dicebat orationes quae fiunt ab ecclesia, five pro infidelibus five fidelibus.

Arius autem presbyter asseruit Filium Dei creaturam esse, et Spiritum Sanctum ab ea creatum.

Has autem haereses Germanus Altifiodorensis episcopus praedicatione et miraculis extinxit anno Domini ccccxlix. Haec ille in vita S. Albani, Britannorum protomartyris.

Notae. Aequorei Britanni*] Videtur Pelagii nomini alludere, quod in Cambria Britanniae parte aequorea seu pelagica natus sit, et Pelagius inde nuncupatus, hoc est aequoreus; Cambrico forte idiomate Morgan: nam mor aequor, pelagus; gan apud vel juxta significat.

Vita S. Patricii. Ex Probo in vita Patricii. Sigebert. in ann. ccccxxxii. Balaeo cent. i. c. xxxiv. Annal. Hollinsh. [Spelm. vol. I. p. 49.]

S. PATRICIUS in baptismo Suchat, Beda Sochet, alias Succetus, quibusdam Maun vel Manus, a S. Germano et Beda Magonius, plerisque Magnus ab eximia miraculorum et virtutum magnitudine cognominatus, Patricii nomen in ordinatione ad episcopatum accepit a Matthaeo archiepiscopo, inquit Florilegus, a Coelestino papa, ait Sigebertus, impostum.

Patrem Britonum habuit Calphurnium diaconum, Potiti presbyteri filium: matrem (ut ferunt) e Pannonia, Concam et Conchen, Beda Concessam, S. Martini, Trevirensis archiepiscopi sororem. Natus, inquit Beda, in villa Rosina, regionis Tiborniae (aliis Eiburniae) vel Neutriae, in vico Bannanae, Pembrochiensis agri ut quidam volunt, in marchii Angliae et Scotiae, ut probabilius alii, an. Dom. ccclxx. Quum esset puer tredecim annorum, cum fratre suo Riethi, et sorore Mila, aliisque multis, ad barbarorum insulam, puta Hiberniam, deVectus est, et apud quendam gentilem immittem regem in servitute detentus, ut inquit Probus, qui librum unum, cui titulus est: "Beati Patricii primi praedicatoris et episcopi totius Britanniae vita et actus," de eo composuit. Multa illic, ut apud alios vitae suae scriptores, Nennium, Jocelinum, Bedam, Vincentium, Antoninum, Capgravium, etc. ejus leguntur miracula: quorum, cum e Nennio prodigiosa aliquot recitasset Matthaeus Westmonasteriensis, qui et Florilegus nuncupatur, ita progreditur a Beda paululum circa patriam et captivitatem Patricii dissentaneus.

In pueritia autem, cum esset natione Hibernensis, a patre suo, cum duabus sororibus suis, in Scotiam venditus est cuidam homini, qui Cuulcu dicebatur, et porcarius ejus erat. Denique septendecimo aetatis suae anno a captivitate ad patriam suam reversus est, et nutu Dei sacris literis eruditus, atque tandem Romam veniens, ibidem tempus suum protraherebat, donec eruditior haberetur; sanctasque percurrere scripturas, divina mysteria penetravit. Dumque ibidem moraretur, missus est Palladius episcopus a papa Coelestino ad Scotos ad Christum convertendos. Qui primo verbum Dei in Scotia praedicans, tandem ad Britanniam pervenit, et in terra Pictorum defunctus est. Audita vero morte Palladii, Patricius, Theodosio, et Valentiniano imperantibus, a papa Coelestino, ad partes occiduas missus est, ut vexillum sanctae crucis gentibus praedicaret. Cumque ad Britanniam pervenisset, praedicavit ibi verbum Dei, et a gentibus incolis grater est susceptus. Deinde ad Scotos se conferens, praedicavit verbum Dei, quod non potuit alligari. Tandem a Matthaeo archiepiscopo ad episcopalem gradum promotus, hoc nomen Patricii in ordinatione suscepit, qui Mannus antea vocabatur. Ordinati sunt etiam cum eo Anfilius et Iferninus, et caeteri nonnulli ad ordines inferiores, ut sub ipso duce Deo militarent. Tunc accepta benedictione in nomine sanctae Trinitatis, navem ascendit, et perveniens ad Britanniae insulam, praedicavit ibi multis diebus. Deinde ad Hiberniam succinctus ad evangelium, cum thesauris spiritualibus transcendens baptizavit eos, multos Deo lucrificans, et annis ibi octoginta evangelizans, ubi tandem ad culmen religionis provectus, plenus dierum, et virtutum signis clarus multimodis quievit in Christo.

insulam ab eis in possessionem monasterii faciendi accepit. Neque enim magna est, sed quasi familiarum quinque juxta aestimationem Anglorum, quam successores ejus usque hodie tenent, ubi et ipse sepultus est, cum esset annorum septuaginta septem, post annos circiter triginta et duos ex quo ipse Britanniam praedicaturus adiit. Fecerat autem, priusquam Britanniam veniret, monasterium nobile in Hibernia, quod a copia roborum Dearmach lingua Scottorum, hoc est, campus roborum cognominatur. Ex quo utroque monasterio per plurima exinde monasteria per discipulos ejus et in Britannia et in Hibernia propagata sunt. In quibus omnibus idem monasterium insulanum, in quo ipse requiescit corpore, principatum tenet. Habere autem solet ipsa insula rectorem semper abbatem presbyterum, cujus juri et omnis provincia, et ipsi etiam episcopi ordine inusitato debeant esse subjecti, juxta exemplum primi doctoris illius, qui non episcopus, sed presbyter extitit et monachus. De cujus vita et verbis nonnulla a discipulis ejus feruntur scripta haberi. Verum qualiscunque fuerit ipse, nos hoc de illo certum tenemus, quod reliquit successores magna continentia ac divino amore regularique institutione insignes. In tempore quidem summae festivitatis dubios circulos sequentes, utpote quibus longe ultra orbem positus, nemo synodalia paschalis observantiae de-creta porregerat, tantum ea quae in prophetis, evangelicis, et apostolicis literis discere poterant, pietatis et castitatis opera diligenter observantes: permansit autem hujusmodi observantia paschalis apud eos tempore non pauco, hoc est, usque ad annum dominicae Incarnationis septingentesimum decimum sextum per annos centum quinquaginta. At tunc veniente ad eos reverendissimo et sanctissimo patre et sacerdote Egberto, de natione Anglorum, qui in Hibernia diutius exulaverat pro Christo, eratque doctissimus in scripturis, et longaeva vitae perfectione eximius, correcti sunt per eum, et ad verum canonicumque Paschae diem translati. Quem tamen et antea non semper in luna quartadecima cum Judaeis, ut quidam rebantur, sed in die quidem dominica, alia tamen quam decebat hebdomada, celebrabant. Sciebant enim, ut Christiani, Resurrectionem dominicam, quae prima Sabbati facta est, prima Sabbati semper esse celebrandam. Sed ut barbari et rustici, quando eadem prima Sabbati, ea quae nunc dominica dies cognominatur, veniret, minime didicerant. Verum quia gratia charitatis fervere non omiserant, hujus quoque notitiam rei ad perfectum percipere meruerunt, juxta promissum apostoli dicentis: et si quid aliter sapitis, et hoc quoque vobis Deus revelabit: de quo plenius in sequentibus suo loco dicendum.

Vita et epistolae nonnullae S. Gregorii in causa Britannicae ecclesiae: ac primum vita ejus. [Ex Spelm. vol. I. p. 66. seqq.]

JAM ad res gestas S. Gregorii in conversione gentis Anglosaxonum pervenimus, et vitam ejus (ut a Bedae lib. II. c. i. datur) praefigendam censemus. "De quo," inquit ille, "nos convenit, quia nostram, id est, Anglorum gentem quae potestate satanae ad fidem Christi sua industria convertit, latiore in nostra historia ecclesiastica facere sermonem, quem recte nostrum appellare possumus et debemus apostolum: quia cum primum in toto orbe gereret pontificatum, et conversis jamdudum ad fidem veritatis esset praelatus ecclesiis, nostram gentem eatenus idolis mancipatam, Christi fecit ecclesiam, ita ut apostolicum illum de eo liceat nobis proferre sermonem: quia etsi aliis non est apostolus, sed tamen nobis est. Nam signaculum apostolatus ejus nos sumus in Domino."

Erat autem natione Romanus, ex patre Gordiano, genus a proavis non solum nobile, sed et religiosum ducens. Deinde Felix, ejusdem sedis apostolicae quondam episcopus, vir magnae gloriae in Christo et ecclesia ejus fuit avus. Sed et ipse nobilitatem religionis non minore quam parentes et cognati virtute devotionis exercuit. Nobilitatem vero illam, quam ad seculum videbatur habere, totam ad nanciscendam supernae gloriae dignitatis divina gratia largiente convertit. Nam mutato repente seculari habitu, monasterium petiit, in quo tanta perfectionis gratia coepit conversari, ut, sicut ipse postea flendo attestari solebat, animo illius labentia cuncta subteressent, ut rebus omnibus quae volvuntur emineret, ut nulla nisi caelestia cogitare soleret, ut etiam retentus corpore ipsa jam carnis claustra contemplatione transfiret, ut mortem quoque, quae pene cunctis poena est, videlicet, ut ingressum vitae et laboris sui praemium amaret. Hoc autem ipse de se, non profectum jactando virtutum, sed deslendo potius defectum, quem, ut referre consueverat, sibi per curam pastorem incurrisse videbatur. Denique tempore quodam secreto, cum diacono suo Petro colloquens, enumeratis animi sui virtutibus priscis mox dolendo subjunxit; at nunc ex occasione curae pastoralis secularium hominum negotia patitur, et post tam pulchram quietis suae speciem terreni actus pulvere foedatur. Cumque se pro condescensione multorum ad exteriora sparserit, etiam cum interiora appetit, ad haec proculdubio minor rediit. Perpendo itaque quid tolero, perpendo quid amisi, dumque intueor illud quod perdidici, fit hoc gravius quod porto. Haec quidem sanctus vir ex magnae humilitatis intentione dicebat. Sed nos credere decet, nihil eum monasticae perfectionis perdidisse, occasione curae pastoralis, imo potiore tunc sumpsisse profectum de labore conversionis multorum, quam de propriae quondam quiete conversationis habuerat, maxime quia et pontificali functus officio domum suam monasterium facere curavit. Et dum primum de monasterio abstractus, ad ministerium altaris ordinatus, atque Constantinopolim apocrisarius, ab apostolica sede directus est, est, non tamen in terreno conversatus palatio propositum vitae caelestis intermisit. Nam quosdam fratrum ex monasterio suo, qui eum gratia germanae charitatis ad regiam urbem secuti sunt, in tutamentum coepit observantiae regularis habere, videlicet ut eorum semper exemplo, sicut ipse scribit, ad orationis placidum littus, quasi anchorae fune restringeretur, cum incessabili causarum secularium impulsu fluctuaret, concussamque seculi actibus mentem inter eos quotidie per studiosae lectionis roboraret colloquium.

Horum ergo consortio non solum a terrenis est munitus incurfibus, verum etiam ad caelestis exercitia vitae magis magisque succensus. Nam hortati sunt eum, ut librum beati Job magnis involutum obscuritatibus mystica interpretatione discuteret, neque negare potuit opus, quod sibi fraternus amor multis utile futurum imponebat. Sed eundem librum, quomodo juxta literam intelligendus, qualiter ad Christi et ecclesiae sacramenta referendus, quo sensu unicuique fidelium sit aptandus, per triginta quinque libros expositionis, miranda ratione perdocuit. Quod videlicet opus in regia quidem urbe apocrisarius inchoavit, Romae autem jam factus pontifex implevit.

Qui cum esset adhuc regia in urbe positus, nascentem ibi novam haeresim de statu nostrae resurrectionis, cum ipso quo exorta est initio, juvante se gratia catholicae veritatis attrivit: siquidem Euthycius, ejusdem urbis episcopus dogmatizabat, corpus nostrum in illa resurrectionis gloria impalpabile, ventis aerique subtilius esse futurum. Quod ille audiens, et ratione veritatis, et exemplo dominicae Resurrectionis probavit hoc dogma orthodoxae fidei omnibus modis esse contrarium. Catholica etenim fides habet, quod corpus nostrum in illa immortalitatis gloria sublimatum, subtile quidem sit per effectum spiritualis potentiae, sed palpabile per veritatem naturae, juxta exemplum dominici corporis, de quo a mortuis suscitato, dicit ipse discipulis: “Palpate et videte, quia spiritus carnem et ossa non habet, sicut me videtis habere.” In cujus assertione fidei venerabilis pater Gregorius in tantum contra nascentem haeresim novam laborare contendit, tanta hac instantia juvante etiam piissimo imperatore Tiberio Constantino comminuit, ut nullus exinde sit inventus, qui ejus resuscitator existeret.

Alium quoque librum composuit egregium, qui vocatur Pastoralis, in quo manifesta luce patefecit, qualis ad ecclesiae regimen assumi, qualiter ipsi rectores vivere, qua discretione singulas quasque audientium instruere personas, et quanta consideratione propriam quotidie debeant fragilitatem pensare.

Sed et homilias evangelii numero quadraginta composuit, quas in duobus codicibus aequa forte distinxit.

Libros etiam Dialogorum quatuor fecit, in quibus rogatu Petri diaconi sui virtutes sanctorum, quos in Italia clariores nosse vel audire poterat, ad exemplum vivendi posteris collegit, ut, sicut in libris Expositionum suarum quibus sit virtutibus insudandum edocuit, ita etiam de-scriptis sanctorum miraculis, quae virtutum earundem sit claritas, ostenderet.

Primam quoque et ultimam Ezechielis prophetae partem, quae videbantur obscuriores, per homilias viginti duas, quantum lucis intus habeant, demonstravit.

Excepto libello Responsorum, quem ad interrogationes sancti Augustini primi Anglorum gentis episcopi scripsit, ut supra docuimus, totum ipsum libellum his inferentes historiis, libello quoque synodico, quem cum episcopis Italiae de necessariis ecclesiae causis utilissimum composuit: et familiaribus ad quosdam literis. Quod eo magis mirum est, tot eum ac tanta condere volumina potuisse, quod omni pene juventutis suae tempore, ut verbis ipsius loquar, crebris viscerum doloribus cruciabatur, horis momentisque omnibus fracta stomachi virtute lassescibat, lentis quidem, sed tamen continuis febribus anhelabat. Verum inter haec dum sollicitus pensaret, quia Scriptura teste, omnis filius, qui recipitur, flagellatur, quo malis praesentibus durius deprimebatur, eo de aeterna certius praesumptione respirabat.

Haec quidem de immortali ejus dicta sint ingenio, quod nec tanto corporis potuit dolore restringi. Nam alii quidem pontifices construendis ornandisque auro vel argento ecclesiis operam dabant, hic autem totus erga animarum lucra vacabat. Quicquid pecuniae habuerat, hoc sedulus dispergere ac dare pauperibus curabat, ut justitia ejus maneret in seculum seculi, et cornu ejus exaltaretur in gloria, ita ut illud beati [cap. xxix. 11.] Job veraciter dicere possit: “Auris audiens beatificabat me, et oculus videns testimonium reddebat mihi, eo quod liberassem pauperem vociferantem et pupillum, cui non esset adjutor. Benedictio perituri super me veniebat, et cor viduae consolatus sum. Justitia indutus sum, et vestivi me sicut vestimento et diademate judicio meo. Oculus fui caeco, et pes claudus. Pater eram pauperum, et causam quam nesciebam, diligentissime investigabam. Conterebam molas iniqui, et de dentibus illius auferebam praedam.” Et paulo post [Job xxxi. 16.] “Si negavi,” inquit, “quid volebant pauperibus et oculos viduae expectare feci. Si comedi bucellam meam solus, et non comedit pupillus ex ea: quia ab infantia mea crevit mecum miseratio, et de utero matris meae egressa est mecum.”

Ad cujus pietatis et justitiae opus pertinet etiam hoc, quod nostram gentem per praedicatorum quos huc direxit, de dentibus antiqui hostis eripiens, aeternae libertatis fecit esse participem. Cujus fidei et saluti congaudens quamque digna laude commendans [in lib. super Job.] ipse dicit in expositione beati Job. “Ecce lingua Britanniae, quae nihil aliud noverat quam barbarum frendere, jamdudum in divinis laudibus Hebraeum coepit Alleluja resonare. Ecce quondam tumidus, jam substratus sanctorum pedibus, servit oceanus, ejusque barbaros motus, quos terreni principes edomare ferro nequiverant, hos pro divina formidine sacerdotum ora simplicibus verbis ligant: et qui catervas pugnantium infidelis nequaquam quaquam metueret, jam nunc fidelis humilium linguas timet. Quia enim perceptis caelestibus verbis, clarescentibus quoque miraculis, virtus ei divinae cognitionis infunditur, ejusdem divinitatis terrore refraenatur, ut prava agere metuat, ac totis desideriis ad aeternitatis gratiam pervenire concupiscat." Quibus verbis beatus Gregorius hoc quoque declarat, quod sanctus Augustinus et socii ejus non sola praedicatione verborum, sed etiam caelestium ostensione signorum gentem Anglorum ad agnitionem veritatis perducebant. Fecit inter alia beatus papa Gregorius, ut in ecclesiis beatorum apostolorum Petri et Pauli super corpora eorum missae celebrarentur. Sed et in ipsa missarum celebratione tria verba maximae perfectionis plena superadjecit, "Diesque nostros in tua pace disponas, atque ab aeterna damnatione nos eripi, et in electorum tuorum jubeas grege numerari."

Rexit autem ecclesiam temporibus imperatorum Mauricii et Focatis. Secundo autem ejusdem Focatis anno transiens ex hac vita migravit ad veram, quae in caelis est, vitam. Sepultus vero est corpore in ecclesia beati Petri apo-stoli ante secretarium, die quarto iduum Martiarum: quandoque in ipso cum caeteris sanctae ecclesiae pastoribus resurrecturus in gloria. Scriptumque est in tumba ipsius epitaphium hujusmodi:

Suscipe terra tuo corpus de corpore sumptum,
Reddere quod valeas vivificante Deo.
Spiritus astra petit, leti nil jura nocebunt,
Cui vitae alterius mors magis ipsa via est.
Pontificis summi hoc clauduntur membra sepulchro,
Qui innumeris semper vivit ubique bonis.
Esuriem dapibus superavit, frigore veste,
Atque animas monitis texit ab hoste sacris.
Implebatque actu, quicquid sermone docebat,
Esset ut exemplum, mystica verba loquens.
Ad Christum Anglos convertit pietate magistra, Acquirens fidei agmina gente nova.
Hic labor, hoc studium, haec tibi cura, hoc pastor agebas,
Ut Domino offerres plurima lucra gregis.
Hisque Dei consul factus laetare triumphis,
Nam mercedem operum jam fine fine tenes.

Epistola Gregorii, ut Augustinum et socios benigne suscipiat, et una Candidum.

[III. epistola est in Spelm. vol. I. p. 73. seq.]

REVERENDISSIMO et sanctissimo fratri Etherio coepiscopo, Gregorius, servus servorum Dei. Licet apud sacerdotes habentes Deo placitam charitatem, religiosi viri nullius commendationis indigeant; quia tamen aptum scribendi tempus se ingessit, fraternitati vestrae nos transmittere scripta curavimus, insinuantes latorem praesentium Augustinum, servum Dei, de cujus certi sumus studio, cum aliis servis Dei, illuc nos pro utilitate animarum auxiliante Domino direxisse. Quem necesse est ut sacerdotali studio sanctitas vestra adjuvare, et sua ei solatia praebere festinet. Cui etiam ut promptiores ad suffragandum possitis existere, causam vobis injunximus subtiliter indicare. Scientes quod ea cognita, tota vos propter Deum devotione ad solatiandum, quia res exigit, commodetis.

Candidum praeterea presbyterum communem filium, quem ad gubernationem patrimonioli ecclesiae nostrae transmisimus, charitati vestrae in omnibus commendamus. [Reliqua addit Beda lib. I. H. E. c. xxv.] Deus te incolumen custodiat, reverendissime frater. Datae die decima calendarum Augustarum, imperante domino nostro Mauritio Tiberio piissimo Augusto anno decimo quarto; post consulatum ejusdem domini nostri decimo tertio; indictione decima quarta.

Notae. Epistola haec ex Beda lib. I. H. E. c. xxv. Non datur autem in Gregorii registro cum hac inscriptione. Vid. epist. V. seq. Ex lib. V. Indict. 14. epist. LII. "Misit," inquit, "tunc iisdem, intellige Augustino et sociis, venerandus pontifex ad Etherium, Arelatensem archiepiscopum, ut Augustinum Britanniam pergentem benigne susciperet, literas quarum iste est textus. Arelatenensis vero tum fuerit Virgilius, cui epistola V. pag. 717. et XXII. pag. 721. postea habetur directa.

Epistola Gregorii Candido presbytero eunti ad patrimonium Galliae. Ex lib. v. ep. x. monium sancti Petri commendat in Galliis. [IV. epistola est ibid. p. 74]

PERGENS auxiliante Domino Deo nostro Jesu Christo, ad patrimonium quod est in Galliis gubernandum; volumus ut dilectio tua ex solidis quos acceperit, vestimenta pauperum vel pueros Anglos, qui ab annis decem et septem vel decem et octo sunt in monasteriis dati, ut Deo proficiant, comparet, quatenus solidi Galliarum, qui in terra nostra expendi non possunt, apud locum proprium utiliter expendantur. Si quid vero de pecuniis reddituum, quae dicuntur ablatae, recipere potueris; ex his quoque vestimenta pauperum comparare te volumus; vel, sicut praefati sumus, pueros qui in omnipotentis Dei servitio proficiant. Sed quia pagani sunt qui illic inveniri possunt; volo ut cum eis presbyter transmittatur, ne quid aegritudinis contingat in via, ut quos morituros conspexerit, debeat baptizare; ita igitur tua dilectio faciat, ut haec diligenter implere festinet.

Quinta,

QUINTA, quam Spelmannus Vol. I. p. 74. recitat, epistola habetur pagina praecedente, cum alia inscriptione, quam ex Beda hausit.

In Gregorii registro Pelagio de Turonis, et Sereno de Massilia, episcopis Galliarum a paribus, inscripta est.

Epistola Gregorii Virgilio episcopo Arelatensi, metropolitano Galliae, lib. v. epist. liii. Augustinum commendat quem in Angliam propagandi evangelii causa transmiserat. [VI. est in Spelm. vol. I. p. 75.]

QUAMVIS fraternitatem vestram bonis esse intentam operibus, et sponte se in causis exhibere Deo placitis confidamus: verum tamen utile esse fraterna vos alloqui veritate credimus, ut solatia, quae vos ultro decet impendere, nostris quoque provocati epistolis augeatis. Atque ideo indicamus sanctitati vestrae, Augustinum, servum Dei praesentium portitorem, cujus zelus et studium bene est nobis cognitum, cum aliis servis Dei pro animarum nos illuc compendio transmisisse, sicut ipse vobis coram positus poterit indicare. In qua re oratione vos eum et auxiliis adjuvare necesse est, atque ubi opus exegerit solatiorum vestrorum ei praebere suffragia, et paterna ac sacerdotali illum consolatione, sicut convenit, refovere: quatenus dum sanctitatis vestrae fuerit solamina consecutus, si quid Deo nostro lucrifacere, sicut optamus, valuerit, et vos possitis pariter mercedem acquirere, quia ad bona opera suffragii vestri devote copiam ministratis.

Candidum autem presbyterum, communem filium et patrimoniolum ecclesiae nostrae fraternitas vestra, quippe ut unanimis nobis, studeat habere commendatum, ut aliquid inde pauperum alimoniis sanctitate vestra valeat adjuvante proficere. Quia igitur patrimoniolum ipsum per annos plurimos praedecessor vester tenuit, et collectas apud se pensiones servavit; fraternitas vestra, cujus sint res, vel cui erogentur, consideret, atque eas animae suae respectu superscripto filio nostro Candido, presbytero nobis restituat dirigendas. Nam valde est execrabile, ut quod a regibus gentium servatum est, ab episcopis dicatur ablatum.

Epistola Gregorii Desiderio Viennensi, et Siagrio Augustodunensi episcopis Galliae a paribus, epist. lv. Augustinum commendat. [VII. est ibidem.]

DE fraternitatis vestrae sincera charitate bene confidimus, quod amore beati Petri, apostolorum principis hominibus nostris vestra devota solatia commodetis, praesertim dum causae qualitas exigit, ubi etiam sponte concurrere et laborare magis optetis. Indicamus itaque sanctitati vestrae nos Augustinum, servum Dei praesentium portitorem, cujus zelus et studium bene nobis est cognitum, cum aliis servis Dei pro animarum illic causa, disponente Domino direxisse: cujus relatione quid sibi injunctum sit, subtiliter agnoscens, fraternitas vestra ei modis omnibus, in quibus causa poposcerit, impendat solatia, ut boni operis adiutores, sicut decet et convenit, possitis existere. Ita ergo fraternitas vestra in hac re se devotam studeat demonstrare, ut bona quae de vobis opinione narrante didicimus, vera esse opere comprobemus.

Dilectissimum vero communem filium Candidum, cui patrimoniolum ecclesiae nostrae commisimus in illis partibus constitutum, vobis per omnia commendamus.

Epistola Gregorii Protasio, episcopo de Aquis Galliae, ut Virgilio episcopo, de pensionibus ecclesiae insinuet, lib. v. epist. lv. [VIII. est ibid. p. 76.]

QUANTUS in vobis beati Petri apostolorum principis amor excellat, non solum officii vestri praerogativa, sed etiam devotio, quam circa utilitates ecclesiae ipsius geritis, patefecit. Quem quia Augustino servo Dei praesentium latore cognovimus referente, de affectu et veritatis studio, quod in vobis est, valde congaudemus, et gratias agimus: quia etsi corpore absentes, mente tamen et animo nobiscum vos esse monstratis, quippe erga quos charitatem fraternam, ut convenit, exhibetis. Ut igitur bona, quae de vobis praedicavit opinio, rerum possit veritas confirmare, Virgilio fratri et coepiscopo nostro dicite, ut pensiones quas praedecessor ejus per annos plurimos de patrimoniolo nostro percepit, et apud se retinuit, ad nos, quia pauperum res sunt, studeat destinare. Qui si forte aliquo se modo, quod non credimus, excusare voluerit, vos qui veritatem ipsam subtilius nostis, revera qui in ecclesia ipsa tempore illo curam vice Domini gerebatis, qualiter se habeat causa differite, et ne res sancti Petri et pauperum ejus apud se retinere debeat, admonete. Sed etsi fortasse hominibus nostris necessarium fuerit, vestrum in causa testimonium non negare, ut tam pro veritatis quam pro voluntatis vestrae devotione beatus Petrus apostolus, cujus amore haec facitis, sua vobis et hic et in futura vita intercessione respondeat. Candidum presbyterum, communem filium, cui patrimoniolum ipsum commisimus, sanctitati vestrae magnopere commendamus.

Epistola Gregorii Arigio, Patricio de Gallia, lib. v. epist. lvii. Augustinum episcopum, et Candidum presbyterum commendat. [IX. est in Spelm. vol. I. p. 76.]

QUANTA in vobis bonitas, quantaque mansuetudo cum Christo placita charitate resplendeat, latore praesentium Augustino servo Dei referente comperimus: atque omnipotenti Deo gratias agimus, qui haec vobis pietatis suae dona concessit, per quae inter homines valde laudabiles, et ante conspectum ipsius, quod est veraciter utile, gloriosi possitis existere. Oramus ergo omnipotentem Dominum, ut haec in vobis quae concessit dona multiplicet, et sua vos cum omnibus vestris protectione custodiat, et ita actionem gloriae vestrae in hoc seculo disponat, ut et hic vobis et in futura gloria quod magis optandum est, vita proficiat. Salutantes itaque gloriam vestram, paterna dulcedine petimus, ut lator praesentium, et servi Dei qui cum eo sunt, vestra, in quibus necesse fuerit, solatia consequantur: quatenus dum vestrum favorem invenerint, injuncta sibi melius, adjuvante Domino valeant adimplere.

Praeterea filium nostrum Candidum presbyterum, quem ad gubernationem patrimonii ecclesiae nostrae, quod illic est, transmisimus, vobis per omnia commendamus, confidentes a Deo nostro vos mercedis vicem recipere, si rebus pauperum solatia sua, gloria vestra, devota mente praestiterit.

Epistola Gregorii Brunichildae, reginae Francorum, lib. vii. epist. v. De pallio Siagrio episcopo concedendo, etc. [XII. est ibid.]

EPISTOLA longa est: nos igitur haec excerptimus, quae inter alia de aliis, sic de Augustino. "Et quid in Augustino fecerit [Siagrius, episcopus Augustodunensis] audientes, Redemptorem nostrum benedicimus. Quia eum sacerdotis nomen etiam operibus implere sentimus." Sic praeterea inferius: "Qualiter autem se excellentia vestra erga fratrem et coepiscopum nostrum Augustinum exhibuerit, quan-tamque illi sibi Deo aspirante, charitatem impenderit, diversorum fidelium relatione cognovimus; pro qua gratias referentes, divinae potentiae misericordiam deprecamur, ut et hic vos sua protectione custodiat, et sicut inter homines, ita quoque et post multorum annorum tempora, in aeterna faciat vita regnare." [In fine: "Dat. mense Octobris, indictione prima."] Haec non sunt in edit. Froben. p. 903.

Epistola Gregorii Eulogio, episcopo Alexandrino, lib. vii. epist. xxx. Ubi commemorat in sancta Chalcedonensi synodo papam Romanum universalem appellatum. [XIII. ibidem.]

COMMUNIS filius praesentium lator, sanctitatis vestrae scripta deferens, aegrum me reperit, aegrum reliquit, qua ex re contigit ut ad largum vestrae beatitudinis fontem brevis epistolae me vix parva potuisset aqua reservare. Superni autem muneris fuit, ut in dolore corporis positus suavissimae vestrae sanctitatis scripta susceperem, quae me de doctrina Alexandrinae ecclesiae, de conversione haereticorum, de concordia fidelium sublimiter laetificaret: quatenus ipsa mentis laetitia immanitatem mihi molestiae temperaret.

Et quidem de bonis vestris nova semper exultatione gaudemus, sed tamen ita nos perfecte agere, nova esse nullo modo deputamus. Quod enim crescit sanctae ecclesiae populus, quod ad caeleste horreum spirituales segetes multiplicantur, hoc de omnipotentis Dei gratia, quae in beatissimis vobis large influit, nunquam habuimus incertum. Gratias itaque omnipotenti Deo solvimus, quia impletum videmus in nobis esse, quod scriptum est: ubi plurimae segetes, ibi manifesta est fortitudo boum. Si enim bos fortis aratrum linguae in terram cordis audientium non transfixisset, tanta fidelium seges minime surrexisset. Sed quoniam vere in bonis quae agitis scio, quod et aliis congaudetis, vestrae vobis gratiae vicem reddo, et non dissimilia nuncio: quia dum gens Anglorum in mundi angulo posita, in cultu lignorum ac lapidum perfidia nunc usque remaneret, ex vestrae mihi orationis adjutorio placuit, ut ad eam monasterii mei monachum in praedicationem transmittere Deo auctore debuissim. Qui data a me licentia, a Germaniarum episcopis episcopus factus, cum eorum quoque solatiis ad praedictam gentem in finem mundi productus est, et jam nunc de ejus salute et opere ad nos scripta pervenerunt: quia tantis miraculis vel ipse, vel hi qui cum eo transmissi sunt, in gente eadem coruscant, ut apostolorum virtutes in signis quae exhibent, imitari videantur. In solennitate autem dominicae Nativitatis, quae hac prima indictione transacta est, plus quam decem millia Angli ab eodem nuntiati sunt fratre et coepiscopo nostro baptizati. Quod idcirco narravi, ut cognoscatis quid in Alexandrino populo loquendo, et quid in mundi finibus agitis orando. Vestrae enim orationes sunt in eo loco ubi non estis, quorum operationes sanctae monstrantur in eo loco in quo estis.

Praeterea

Praeterea de Eudoxii haeretici persona, de cuius errore in Latina lingua nihil reperi, mihi a vestra beatitudine largissime gaudeo satisfactum. Virorum quippe fortissimorum Basilii, Gregorii, atque Epiphanii testimonia protulistis, et manifeste peremptum cognoscimus eum, in quem heroes nostri tot jacula dederunt.

De his vero erroribus qui nunc in Constantinopolitana ecclesia probantur exorti, doctissime omnia, et ut iudicium tantae sedis proferre decuit, respondistis. Unde omnipotenti Deo gratias agimus, quia adhuc arcae Dei insunt tabulae Testamenti. Quid est enim sacerdotale cor nisi arca Testamenti? in qua quia spiritalis doctrina viget, proculdubio tabulae legis jacent.

Indicare quoque vestra beatitudo studuit, jam se quibusdam non scribere superba vocabula, quae ex vanitatis radice prodierunt, et mihi loquitur, dicens: sicut iussistis. Quod verbum iussionis peto a meo auditu removete, quia scio quis sum, qui estis. Loco enim mihi fratres estis, moribus patres. Non ergo iussi, sed quae utilia visa sunt, indicare curavi. Non tamen invenio vestram beatitudinem, hoc ipsum quod memoriae vestrae intuli, perfecte retinere voluisse. Nam dixi, nec mihi vos, nec cuiquam alteri tale aliquid scribere debere: et ecce in praefatione epistolae, quam ad meipsum qui prohibui direxistis, superbae appellationis verbum universalem me papam dicentes, imprimere curastis. Quod peto dulcissima mihi sanctitas vestra ultra non faciat: quia vobis sub-trahitur quod alteri plus, quam ratio exigit, praebetur. Ego enim non verbis quaero prosperari, sed moribus. Nec honorem esse deputo, in quo fratres meos honorem suum perdere cognosco. Meus namque honor est honor universalis ecclesiae. Meus honor est fratrum meorum solidus vigor. Tunc ego vere honoratus sum, cum singulis quibusque honor debitus non negatur. Si enim universalem me papam vestra sanctitas dicit, negat se hoc esse, quod in me fatetur universum. Sed absit hoc. Recedant verba quae vanitatem inflant, et charitatem vulnerant. Et quidem in sancta Chalcedonensi synodo, atque post a subsequentibus patribus hoc decessoribus meis oblatum vestra sanctitas novit. Sed tamen nullus eorum uti hoc unquam vocabulo voluit, ut dum in hoc mundo honorem sacerdotum diligerent omnium, apud omnipotentem Deum custodirent suum. Proinde debitum salutationis alloquium solvens peto, ut in sanctis orationibus vestris mei memores esse dignemini: quatenus a peccatorum meorum nexibus, quia meis meritis non valeo, vestris intercessionibus me Dominus absolvat.

Nota. Haud candide in hac epistola actum est a titulorum ascriptore. Nam in Chalcedonensi synodo papam Romanum universalem appellatum fuisse ait: non una referens repudiatum a tunc papa et ab omnibus ejus successoribus ut ostendit Gregorius, fuisse vocabulum, sed ab ipso etiam Gregorio in hac ipsa epistola vehementer explosum: quod illi tamen ne vel apice placuit in titulo annotandum.

Epistola Gregorii Siagrio, episcopo Augustodunensi, lib. vii. epist. cxii. De conversione gentis Anglorum, et Augustino episcopo, et de synodo. [XIV. est in Spelm. vol. I. p. 80. seq.]

MAGISTRA bonorum omnium charitas, quae nil sapit extraneum, nil asperum, nil confusum, ita exercet corda et corroborat, ut nil grave, nil difficile existimet, sed fiat totum dulce quod agitur. Hujus igitur cum sit proprium nutrire concordiam, servare conjuncta, dissociata conjungere, prava dirigere, et virtutes caeteras perfectionis suae munimine solidare: quisquis in ejus radices se inserit, nec a viriditate deficit, nec fructibus inanescit: quia humorem foecunditatis opus efficax non amittit. Atque ideo multum tibi condelector atque congaudeo, quod sic eadem charitate te praeditum multorum testificatione comperio, ut et ipse quae sacerdotis sunt decenter exhibeas, et aliis te laudabiliter imitandum ostendas. Quia igitur in praedicationis opere, quamdiu cogitans Anglorum genti per Augustinum quondam monasterii mei praepositum, nunc fratrem et coepiscopum nostrum impendere studui, ita sollicitum atque devotum, adiutoremque in omnibus te, ut oportuit, fuisse cognovimus, ut magnum me sibi fraternitas tua hac de re faceret debitorem.

Tantae rei consideratione commonitus, ne infructuosus erga te viderer existere, fraternitatis tuae petitionem nulla pertuli ratione postponere. Proinde secundum postulationis tuae desiderium pallii te usu, quod inter ecclesiam tuam habere debeas, ad sacra tantum missarum solennia celebranda, Deo auctore, praevidimus honorandum. Quod tamen ita tibi dandum esse decrevimus, si prius per synodi definitionem emendari promiseris, quae corrigenda mandavimus: quia dignum profecto esse credimus, ut cum mentis gravitate qua Deo te propitio polere didicimus, habitus quoque exterioris clarior in te cultus accresceret: praesertim cum te hunc non ad superfluae elationis pompam, sed pro genio et honore tuae arbitramur ecclesiae petivisse. Cujus ne indumenti munificentiam nudam videamur quodammodo contulisse, hoc etiam pariter prospeximus concedendum, ut metropolitae suo per omnia loco et honore servato, ecclesia civitatis Augustodunae, cui omnipotens Deus praeesse te voluit, post Lugdunensem ecclesiam esse debeat, et hunc sibi locum et ordinem ex nostrae auctoritatis indulgentia vindicare. Caeteros vero episcopos secundum ordinationis suae tempus, sive ad consedendum in concilio, sive ad subscribendum, vel in qualibet alia re sua attendere loca decernimus, et suorum sibi praerogativam ordinum vindicare: quia omnino rationis ordo nos admonet, ut cum usu pallii aliqua simul, sicut diximus, largiri privilegia debeamus. Sed quoniam cum honoris augmento, cura quoque sollicitudinis debet accrescere, ut cultui vestium actionis quoque ornamenta conveniant: oportet ut enixius in cunctis se studiis vestra fraternitas exerceat. Et circa subjectorum actus sit cura vigilans, ut vestrum illis exemplum instructio et vita magistra sit. Linguae vestrae exhortatione discant quod metuant, et doceantur quod diligant, ut dum talenta credita lucro multiplicata reddideris, in die retributionis audire sis meritis: "Euge serve bone et fidelis, intra in gaudium Domini tui:" curam praeterea congregandae syn-odi, quam vobis atque aliis fratribus nostris pro illicitarum rerum prohibitionem fiendam scripsimus, vestrae specialiter sollicitudini noveritis incumbere. Unde quia praecellentissimos filios nostros Francorum reges magnam vobis novimus dilectionem impendere, omni vos studio, omnique agere adnisi necesse est, ut quod de synodo congreganda mandavimus, fraternitatis vestrae vigilantia compleatur, atque omnia illic quae pro animarum salute scripsimus censeantur: quatenus per hoc, et vos zelum vestrum, et qualiter vobis illicita displiceant ostendatis, et nos utiliter providisse, qui vestram ad hoc prae caeteris personam eligimus, videamur.

Epistola Gregorii Mennae, Tolosano et aliis compluribus episcopis per Galliam, lib. ix. epist. lii. De Augustino, episcopo Anglorum, et conversione gentis ipsius. [XV. est in Spelm. vol. I. p. 81.]

LICET fraternitatem vestram suscepti officii cura commoneat, ut religiosi viris, et praecipue in causa animarum laborantibus, omni debeat adnisi concurrere: non tamen ab re est, si sollicitudinem vestram epistolarum nostrarum sermo pulsaverit: quia sicut ignis aura flante fit grandior, ita bonae mentis studia commendatione proficiunt. Quia igitur Redemptoris nostri gratia cooperante, tanta de Anglorum gente ad christianae fidei gratiam multitudo convertitur, ut reverendissimus communis frater et coepiscopus noster Augustinus eos qui secum sunt, ad hoc opus exequendum per diversa loca asserat non posse sufficere: aliquantos ad eos monachos cum dilectissimis et communibus filiis Laurentio presbytero, et Mellito abbate praevimus transmittendos. Et ideo fraternitas vestra eis charitatem quam decet exhibeat, atque ita illis ubicunque necesse fuerit auxiliari festinet: quatenus dum vobis opitulanti- bus nullas illic remorandi causas habuerint, et ipsi vestra se revelatos consolatione congaudeant, et vos solationum exhibitione in causa pro qua directi sunt, possitis participes inveniri.

Epistola Gregorii Clothario, regi Francorum, De sociis Augustini suscipiendis, et simoniaca haeresi tollenda. [XVI. Ibidem.]

INTER tot curas et sollicitudines, quas pro subjectarum vobis gentium regimine sustinetis, existere vos in causa Dei laborantibus adju- tores, eximiae laudis et magnae mercedis est. Et quia tales vos praecedentibus bonis ostenditis, ut praesumere de vobis meliora possimus, ad ea quae pro mercede vestra sunt, libentissime provocamus. Quidam igitur qui cum reverendissimo fratre et coepiscopo nostro Augustino, ad Anglorum gentem perrexerant, revertentes, quanta eundem fratrem nostrum excellentia vestra in praesentia positum, charitate receperit, quantisque suffragiis proficiscentem adjuverit, narraverunt. Sed quia illa Deo nostro opera grata sunt semper, quae a vobis cum coeperint non recedunt: paterno affectu salutantes petimus, ut monachos praesentium portitores, quos ad praedictum fratrem nostrum una cum dilectissimis filiis nostris Laurentio presbytero, et Mellito abbate transmimus, habeatis peculiariter commendatos. Et quicquid illi ante exhibuistis, his quoque ad laudis vestrae cumu-lum uberius impendatis: quatenus dum vobis providentibus coeptum sine mora iter expleverint, bonorum vestrorum omnipotens Deus re- compensator existat, atque vobis et in prosperis custos, et in adversitatibus sit adiutor.

Praeterea pervenit ad nos, quod sacri illic ordines cum datione pecuniae conferantur. Et vehementer affligimur, si ad Dei dona non meritis acceditur, sed praemiis profilitur. Et quia haec simoniaca haeresis prima in ecclesia sur- gens, apostolorum est auctoritate damnata: petimus, ut pro mercede vestra congregari syno- dum faciatis: quatenus omnium sacerdotum definitionibus compressa et radicitus amputata, nullas illic vires de caetero in periculum ani- marum inveniat, nec ulterius sub qualibet ex- cusatione permittatur exurgere: ut tanto vos omnipotens Deus contra adversarios vestros ex- altet, quanto vos in suis mandatis zelum habe- re, et pro animarum salute quae huius fuerant sceleris gladio periturae, viderit cogitare.

Epistola Gregorii Brunichildae reginae Francorum. Ex lib. ix. epist. lvi. De Augustino et monachis ad eam directis suscipiendis. [XVII. est in Spelm. vol. I. p. 82.]

GRATIAS omnipotenti Deo referimus, qui inter caetera pietatis suae dona, quae excellentiae vestrae largitus est, ita vos amore christianae religionis implevit, ut quidquid ad animarum lucrum, quidquid ad propagationem fidei pertinere cognoscitis, devota mente, et pio operari studio non cessetis. Quanto autem favore, quantaque opitulatione excellentia vestra reverendissimum fratrem et coepiscopum nostrum Augustinum proficiscentem ad Anglorum gentem adjuverit, nec ante silentio fama conticuit, et postea quidam ab eo ad nos monachi redeuntes subtiliter retulerunt. Et quidem haec de christianitate vestra mirentur alii, quibus adhuc beneficia vestra minus sunt cognita: nam nobis, quibus experimentis jam nota sunt, non mirandum est, sed gaudendum: quia per hoc quod aliis impenditis, vos juvatis. Quae autem, quantaque in conversione suprascriptae gentis Redemptor noster fuerit miracula operatus, excellentiae vestrae jam notum est. Ex qua re magnam vos oportet habere laetitiam:

quia maiorem sibi partem hac in re praestitorum vestrorum solatia vendicant, cuius post Deum auxiliis verbum illic praedicationis innouit. Nam qui alterius bonum adjuvat, suum facit.

Sed ut mercedis vestrae magis magisque sit fructus uberior, petimus ut monachis praesentium portitoribus, quos cum dilectissimis filiis nostris Laurentio presbytero, et Mellito abbate ad praedictum reverendissimum fratrem et coepiscopum nostrum pro eo quod illos qui secum sunt, sufficere sibi dicit non posse, transmisimus, patrocinii vestri suffragia benignius ministretis, atque ita eis in omnibus adesse dignemini, quatenus dum bonis excellentiae vestrae initiis meliora successerint, et nullas illic moras vel difficultates invenerint, tanto erga vos ac dulcissimos nobis nepotes vestros Dei nostri misericordiam provocetis, quanto pro ejus amore vos in huiusmodi causis misericorditer exhibetis.

Epistola Gregorii Virgilio, episcopo Arelatensi. Ex lib. ix. epist. lxxiii. Augustinum episcopum commendat. [XXII. est ibid. p. 89.]

QUANTUS sit affectus venientibus sponte fratribus impendendus, ex eo quod plerumque solent charitatis causa invitari, agnoscitur. Et ideo si communem fratrem Augustinum episcopum ad vos venire contigerit, ita illum dilectio vestra, sicut decet, affectuose dulciterque suscipiat, ut et ipsum consolationis suae bono refoveat, et alios qualiter fraterna charitas colenda sit doceat. Et quoniam saepius evenit, ut hi qui longe sunt positi, prius ab aliis quae sunt emendanda cognoscant, si quas fortasse fraternitati vestrae sacerdotum, vel aliorum culpas intulerit, una cum eo residentes subtili cuncta investigatione perquirite. Et ita vos in ea quae

Deum offendunt, et ad iracundiam provocant, districtos ac sollicitos exhibete, ut ad aliorum emendationem, et vindicta culpabilem feriat, et innocentem falsa opinio non affligat. [Dat. die 10. calend. Julii, indict. iv.]

Beda [lib. I. H. E. c. xxviii.] post non affligat hic in fine sic progreditur. "Deus te incolumem custodiat, reverendissime frater. Data die decimo calendarum Juliarum, imperante domino nostro Mauritio Tiberio piissimo Augusto, anno decimo nono, post consulatum ejusdem domini nostri anno decimo octavo, indictione quarta," id est, anno Christi DCI.

Epistola Gregorii Mellito abbati, lib. ix. epist. lxxi. Dat mandata Augustino episcopo porrigenda. [XXIII. est ibidem.]

POST discessum congregationis nostrae, quae tecum est, valde sumus suspensi reddit: quia nil de prosperitate vestri itineris audisse nos contigit. Cum vero vos Deus omnipotens ad reverendissimum virum fratrem nostrum Augustinum episcopum perduxerit: dicite ei, quod diu mecum de causa Anglorum cogitans tractavi, videlicet quia fana idolorum destrui in eadem gente minime debeant, sed ipsa, quae in eis sunt, idola destruantur. Aqua benedicta fiat, in eisdem fanis aspergatur, altaria construantur, reliquiae ponantur: quia si fana eadem bene constructa sunt, necesse est ut a cultu daemonum in obsequium veri Dei debeant commodari: ut dum gens ipsa eadem fana sua non videt destrui, de corde errorem deponat, et Deum verum cognoscens ac adorans, ad loca quae consuevit, familiarius concurret. Et qui boves solent in sacrificio daemonum multos occidere, debet his etiam hac de re aliqua solennitas immutari: ut die dedicationis vel natalitio sanctorum martyrum, quorum illic reliquiae ponuntur, tabernacula sibi circa easdem ecclesias quae ex fanis commutatae sunt, de ramis arborum faciant, et religiosi conviviis solennitatem celebrent. Nec diabolo jam animalia immolent, sed ad laudem Dei in esu suo animalia occidant, et donatori omnium de satietate sua gratias referant: ut dum eis aliqua exterius gaudia reservantur, ad interiora gaudia consentire facilius valeant. Nam duris mentibus simul omnia abscindere, impossibile esse non dubium est: quia is qui locum summum ascendere nititur, gradibus vel passibus, non autem saltibus elevatur. Sic Israelitico populo in Aegypto Dominus se quidem innotuit, sed tamen eis sacrificiorum usus quos diabolo solebant exhibere, in cultu proprio reservavit, ut eis in sacrificio suo animalia immolare praeciperet: quatenus commutantes, aliud de sacrificio amitterent, aliud retinerent, ut etsi ipsa essent animalia quae offerre consueverant, veruntamen Deo haec et non idolis immolarent, jam sacrificia ipsa non essent. Haec igitur di-lectionem tuam praedicto fratri necesse est dicere, ut ipse, in praesenti illic positus, perpendat qualiter omnia debeat dispensare. Dat. die 12. calendas Julii, indict. iv.

Vita S. Augustini, primi Doroberniensis ecclesiae archiepiscopi. Ex Bed. Hist. lib. I. cap. xxiii. xxvi. et lib. V. cap. xxiv. et epist. Gregorii M. [Spelm. vol. I. p. 92. seq.]

DE Augustino isto non est opus ut multis utar. Vita ejus et res gestae, postquam a Gregorio delegatur ad convertendos Anglos, luculenter pateant in sequentibus. Quis autem et qualis antea fuit, parum ad nos attinet: Romanus censo genere, et ex ordine S. Benedicti monachus: deinde monasterii S. Gregorii Romae praepositus, ut ex epistola ipsius Gregorii ad Sigarium, episcopum Augustodunensem, quam supra exhibuimus numero XIV. intellexeris. Inde evocatus a Gregorio, in Britanniam mittitur cum quadraginta sociis monachis, et aliis e clero, quibus ipsum abbatem praefecit, anno Domini nostri DCCVI. et sequenti anno, id est, DCCVII. Britanniam advectus Ethelbertum, regem Cantii, et populi sui eximiam partem ad fidem convertit, et die Pentecostes in ecclesia S. Martini Cantuariæ, quae a Romanorum temporibus eatenus perduraverat, baptizavit. Eodem deinde anno Arelatem proficiscitur, et ab archiepiscopo ejusdem civitatis Etherio, qui hoc a S. Gregorio in mandatis acceperat, genti Anglorum archiepiscopus ordinatur 16. calendarum Decembris in Arelatensi civitate. Angliam rediens, omni gaudio, et, qua decuit, solennitate a rege et populo susceptus est; donatusque a rege urbe regia Cantuaria in episcopalem sedem, et aula regia in ecclesiam cathedrali Christo erigendam: sic ut aemulari rex videatur quod ab imp. Constantino Magno factum perhibent. Ordinatus vero episcopus, S. Gregorium per nuncios et interrogationes consulit de regiminis forma Anglosaxonicae suae ecclesiae noviter institutae, imponendi: responsionesque tulit quas superius dedimus, et pallio mox quo potestatis plenitudo designatur, ab eodem Gregorio insignitus est, anno sc. Christi DCI. Britanniarum jam tum metropolitanus, synodum in confiniis Huiciorum, i. Wigornensium, ut Britannorum clero et episcopis illo tempore in Cambria residentibus vicinior esset, indicit, eosdemque ad eandem vocat. Locus sessionis Augustini.... Ac, hoc est, Augustini quercus designatur. Convenientibus hic vocatis, obedientiam postulat Augustinus Romano pontifici, Romanosque ritus in Britannicam ecclesiam suscipiendos. Negant hoc Britanni, et re diutius litigata, convenit demum de alia synodo aut sessione: grandior huic adest cleri Britonum multitudo, et ex eisdem septem episcopi, Redintegrata lis, et cum Augustinus ultra non speraret, rogat ut in tribus saltem sibi et Romanis suis sint conformes. Primo in Paschatis celebratione: secundo in baptismi administratione: tertio in auxiliari praedicatione Anglosaxonibus. Hi vero factum Augustini metuentes, nec in istis cedunt. Lugubris inde eventus synodi, qui cum ad eam pervenerimus, enarrabitur. Differebat autem et in aliis multis Britannica tunc ecclesia a Romana: ut e Gilda, Beda, et quae hic sequuntur, liqueat.

De Augustini moribus ego nil definiam. Causantur hodierni, laudant veteres. Doctum, pium, et primitivae sanctitatis aemulum praedicant, et Anglorum apostolum, "Crebrum in vigiliis, jejuniis, orationibus, et eleemosynis;" in propagando sui seculi et religionis ecclesiam, et paganismum undequaque extirpando omnino fervidum; Romani monachatus, aliorumque rituum et ceremoniarum inductorem primum; in restaurandis condendisque ecclesiis satis sedulum, et in edendis miraculis valde celebrem. Hinc ob humanam imbecillitatem, elatior ei forte animus: quod et deprehendisse videatur S. ipse Gregorius, qui eum per epistolam monuit, ut ex magnis suis miraculis non inflaretur. Vide epistolam hic supra numero XVII. et etiam XVIII. Male etiam audit ex caede cleri Banachorensis, nec immerito quidem, si, quod suggerant, regem Edilfridum ad truculentum adeo flagitium excitaverat. De eo sic Capgravius in vita ejus. "Erat autem beatus Augustinus statura procerus, adeo ut a scapulis populo superemineret: facie amabilis et reverendus. Signa vero et sanitates quae in populo faciebat, nullus enarrare potest. Pedes incedebat, saepius discalceatus provincias lustrabat, et callos in genibus pro crebra genuflexione habebat.

De tempore quo diem consummavit novissimam, adeo variae sunt auctorum sententiae, ut quam tuear, nescio. Stous ponit 26. Maii, anno gratiae DCIII. Beda in anno DCIV. vel Florentius Wigorniensis potius, qui illo anno eum ad regnum migrasse caeleste 7. cal. Junii feria iii. significat. Augustinus ipse in bulla sua plumbea, si genuina fuerit, chartam citat Ethelberti regis datam anno incarnationis Christi DCV. Ex quo liquet eum tunc superstitem fuisse. Et refert Thomas Sprot eum concilium

Cantu-

Cantuariae celebrasse anno Dom. DCV. quod in eodem anno nos collocamus. Matthaeus Westmonasteriensis Sigebertum secutus, ait eum diem clausisse extremum anno gratiae DCVIII. Trivettus et Polydorus in anno DCXI. Et Savilius in Fastis, in anno DCXIII. Quamdiu igitur rexerit Dorobernensem ecclesiam, tanta est discordia fratrum, ut ego non audeam quid statuere. Satis autem liquet coepisse eum vel anno Dom. DXCVI. in quo missus est a S. Gregorio, vel anno DXCVII. in quo susceptus est a rege Ethelberto, et ab Etherio archiepiscopo Arelatensi ordinatus in episcopum Doroberniae seu Cantuariae.

Convenit autem sepultum eum fuisse in monasterio sui nominis, quod ope regis Ethelberti aedificaverat, in porticu nempe ecclesiae illius S. Petro et Paulo dicatae, sed haud adhuc consecratae in lapideo sarcophago ferro et plumbo obsignato, hac inscriptione,

Inclitus Anglorum praeful pius et decus altum,

Hic Augustinus requiescit corpore sanctus.

Consecrata autem ecclesia a successore suo Laurentio delatus est sarcophagus in ecclesiam, Gregorius pallium, et epistolam, et plures verbi ministros Augustino episcopo mittit.

Ex Beda Hist. Eccl. lib. I. cap. xxix. [Spelm. vol. I. p. 103. seq.]

PRAETEREA idem papa Gregorius Augustino episcopo, quia suggererat ei multam quidem sibi esse messem, sed operarios paucos, misit cum praefatis legatariis suis plures cooperatorum ac verbi ministros, in quibus primi et praecipui erant Mellitus, Justus, Paulinus, Rufinianus, et per eos generaliter universa, quae ad cultum erant ac ministerium ecclesiae necessaria, vasa videlicet sacra, et vestimenta altarium, ornamenta quoque ecclesiarum, et sacerdotalia et clericalia indumenta, sanctorum etiam apostolorum et martyrum reliquias, necnon et codices plurimos.

Misit etiam literas, in quibus significat se ei pallium direxisse, simul et insinuat qualiter episcopos in Britannia constituere debuisset, quarum literarum iste est textus: "Reverendissimo et sanctissimo fratri Augustino coepiscopo Gregorius, servus servorum Dei. Cum certum sit," etc. ut supra inter epistolas numero XXIX.

Abeuntibus autem praefatis legatariis, misit post eos beatus pater Gregorius literas memoratu dignas, in quibus aperte, quam studiose er-et parte ejusdem borealis positus, loco ubi altare sui nominis postea habebatur, et haec utique inscriptio:

Hic requiescit [in antiquissimis MSS. Bedae lib. II. cap. iii. ita legitur] dominus Augustinus, Doruvernensis archiepiscopus primus, qui olim huc a beato Gregorio, Romanae urbis pontifice, directus, et a Deo operatione miraculorum suffultus, et Ethelbertum regem, et gentem illius ab idolorum cultu ad Christi fidem perduxit, et completis in pace diebus officii sui, defunctus est 7. cal. Junii, eodem rege regnante.

Relatus est inter divos, et in Romano martyrologio locum obtinet die 7. calendarum Junii, id est 26. die Maii.

Scripsisse dicitur [Magdeburg. cent. 6. cap. x.] de successu suo prospero ad Gregorium librum unum: et ecclesiarum suarum statuta, librum unum: et quaestiones undecim, ad quas Gregorius ei respondet lib. XII. tomo secundo: quas etiam Beda refert lib. I. cap. xxvii. Historiae Angliae:

ga salvationem nostrae gentis invigilaverit, ostendit, ita scribens: [Bed. lib. I. cap. xxx.] "Dilectissimo filio Mellito abbati Gregorius, servus servorum Dei. Post discessum," etc. ut inter epist. num. XXIII.

Quo in tempore misit etiam Augustino epistolam super miraculis, quae per eum facta esse cognoverat: in qua eum, ne per illorum copiam periculum elationis incurreret, his verbis hortatur: [Bed. lib. I. cap. xxxi.] "Scio frater charissime, quia," etc. ut supra inter epistolas num. XVIII.

Misit et idem beatus papa Gregorius eodem tempore etiam regi Edilberto epistolam simul et dona in diversis speciebus perpulchra; temporalibus quoque honoribus regem glorificare satagens, cui gloriae caelestis suo labore et industria notitiam provenisse gaudebat. Exemplum autem praefatae epistolae hoc est: [Bed. lib. I. cap. xxxii.] "Domino gloriosissimo atque praecellentissimo filio Edilberto, regi Anglorum Gregorius episcopus. Propter hoc," etc.

De

De fundatione primarum ecclesiarum et monasteriorum apud Anglosaxones, id est, S. Pancratii, SS. Petri et Pauli, monasterii S. Augustini eisdem dicati, et cathedralis Christi ecclesiae, totius Britanniae metropolis, cum aliquibus privilegiis et dignitatibus ad haec omnia spectantibus. E splendido MS. codice fundationis monasterii S. Augustini Cantuariensis, in bibliotheca aulae S. Trinitatis apud Cantabrigienses. [Circa ann. Dom. DCIII. et seqq. Ex Spelm. vol. I. p. 36. seqq.]

Incipit titulus de fundatione.

TRACTATUM de statu hujus monasterii sancti Augustini Cantuariæ, ad Romanam ecclesiam nullo medio pertinentis, quem secundum temporum diversitatem inter omnes viae, et vitae hujus varietates habuisse asseritur, consequenter scripturus, ut aptius scribendi exordium aggrediar, a principio missionis ejusdem beatissimi Augustini in Angliam incipiens, stilum vertam. Historiographorum enim scriptorum assertionibus, necnon et modernorum informationibus plus innitens, explanationem hujus opusculi inferendo, venerabilis Bedae presbyteri, qui Anglorum describit historiam usque ad annum Domini septingentesimum tricesimum, Willielmi Malmesburiensis De gestis pontificum, quibus nullus in Anglia contradicit, necnon Thomae Sprot, Willielmi Thorne et aliorum hujus sancti monasterii monachorum seriem secuturus, regum Cantiae, archiepiscoporum Cantuariæ, et abbatum successiones, prout inter res gestas accidentaliter incidere reperi, interponam.

Ostendit plane historia venerabilis Bedae, De gestis Anglorum lib. I. cap. xxiii. quo anno Mauritius suscepit imperium Romanorum, quo anno Gregorius fortitus est Romanae sedis pontificatum, et consequenter ponitur quo anno idem papa Gregorius misit ad Anglos beatum Augustinum cum sociis suis, sub his verbis: "Qui," scil. Gregorius, "divino admonitus instinctu, anno xiv. ejusdem principis," sc. Mauriti, "adventus vero Anglorum in Britanniam anno circiter centesimo quinquagesimo, misit servum Dei Augustinum, et alios plures cum eo monachos timentes Dominum praedicare verbum Dei," etc. Memorat etiam idem Beda in quinto libro ejusdem historiae capitulo xxiv. in quo capitulo tota historia recapitulatur, quod "Anno ab incarnatione Domini quingentesimo nonagesimo sexto Gregorius papa misit in Britanniam Augustinum, cum monachis qui verbum Dei genti Anglorum evangelizarent," ubi additur consequenter: "Anno Domini quingentesimo nonagesimo septimo venere Britanniam praefati doctores."

Sequitur etiam de conversione regis Aethelberti, quae fuit in die Pentecostes, in primo libro praetacto, c. xxvi. et subsequenter c. xxvii. ponitur ordinatio beati Augustini post conversionem regis Aethelberti, eodem anno quo venit in Angliam 16. calendarum Decembr. apud civitatem Arelatensem ab Etherio, ejusdem urbis episcopo, prout missa sanctissimi papae Gregorii acceperat adimplenda. Ex his patet satisfactum ambiguitati multorum de loco, ubi rex baptizatus fuerat Aethelbertus; cum nec de ecclesia sancti Pancratii, nec de ecclesia Christi, neque aliqua alia ecclesia ante consecrationem ejusdem sanctissimi Augustini in episcopum memoratur, nisi solummodo de ecclesia sancti Martini, quae secundum Bedam in praetacto cap. xxvi. primi libri antiquitus fuit facta, dum adhuc Romani Britanniam incolerent, in qua regina Berta, uxor ejusdem regis Aethelberti, quae christiana fuisse asseritur, orare consueverat. Lector ergo prudens intelligat quod subjungitur consequenter. "Mox," inquit, "in hac ecclesia ipsi primo convenire, psallere, orare, missas facere, praedicare, et baptizare coeperunt, donec rege ad fidem converso, majorem praedicandi per omnia, et ecclesias fabricandi, vel restaurandi licentiam acciperent." His etiam subjungit haec verba: "At ubi ipse," scil. rex, "inter alios delectatus vita mundissima sanctorum, et promissis eorum suavissimis, quae vera esse miraculorum quoque multorum ostensione firmaverant, credens baptizatus est; plures coepere quotidie ad audiendum verbum Dei confluere, et relicto gentilitatis ritu, unitati se sanctae Christi ecclesiae sociare.

Ordinatus igitur Augustinus Angliam rediit, et cum gloria, et omni qua decuit solennitate, a rege et populo susceptus, atque in civitate Cantuaria sedem episcopalem rege annuente adeptus, primarium Anglicae genti retulit primarchatum. Patrocinium illud primarchale rex ipse Deo amabilis tanto fuit triumphali gaudio excipiens, ut illum statueret suae metropolis ecclesiasticum praesidem, quem primitus susceperat hospitem; nec tantum urbis, sed et totius orbis sui speculativum fiducialiter praeferebat custodem: solium regni in sedem pontificalem, aulamque regis in Christi ecclesiam transferens. Veruntamen ut veterem primitus, cum actibus suis, exueret hominem, et novum decentius indueret, fanum illud, sive idolum quod situm fuit non longe ab ipsa civitate ad orientem, quasi in medio itinere inter ecclesiam praetactam sancti Martini, et muros civitatis, in quo, secundum ritum gentis suae, solebat non Deo, sed daemoniis immolare, consilio salutari beatissimi Augustini ab inquinamentis et sordibus gentilium purgari fecit, et simulacro, quod in eo erat, confraeto, in ecclesiasticam synagogam mutavit; et eam fecit in nomine sancti Pancratii martyris dedicari; et haec est prima ecclesia a nostro in Christo protoparente et pontifice dedicata. Spiritu namque eodem hic in primordio fidei Anglicanae ecclesiae movebatur, quo ipse beatissimus [Vide Epist. xxiii.] Gregorius, qui paucis diebus interpositis missurus fuit eidem per Mellitum, quamdiu de causa Anglo-rum cogitans tractavit, ne fana idolorum destrui debeant, sed ipsa quae in eis sunt idola destruantur, aqua benedicta fiat, in eisdem fanis aspergatur, altaria construantur, reliquiae componantur; ut dum gens ipsa eadem fana sua non videt destrui, de corde errorem deponat, et Deum verum cognoscens et adorans, ad loca quae consuevit, familiarius sit concurrens."

Ista recitat Beda in libro primo praetacto de gestis post interrogationes Augustini a Gregorio, cap. xxx. Sed nota, quod Augustinus illam Gregorio quaestionem non fecit, quam tamen mero motu per suos legatarios sibi solvit. Templum enim illud valde congrue de beatissimo martyre Pancratio dedicatur. Valde utique conveniens et rationi consonum videbatur, ut puer Pancrati, qui tunc Romae (quae est mundi domina) martyr tam celebris habebatur, ab Anglicis praecipue veneraretur, quibus pueri Anglici in foro Romano lactei candoris venales, causerunt Gregorium tunc abbatem monasterii sancti Andreae, quod ipsemet ad clivum stauri in urbe Romana de patrimonio sancti Pancratii fundaverat; Anglos angelis sociare. Dum vero beatissimus Augustinus primo missam in eadem ecclesia celebraret, invidens hostis puritati Anglicorum per puerum Pancratium dilatandae, et videns se de domo expulsus quam per longa inhabitaverat tempora, dictam ecclesiam funditus evertere nitebatur. Cujus unguium scalpura usque in praefens exterius evidenter in muro orientali apparet.

Obtinuit itaque immediate istis peractis a rege Aethelberto beatus Augustinus eandem S. Pancratii ecclesiam, una cum terra adjacente, in cuius fundo rex, ejus hortatu, ecclesiam in honorem sanctorum apostolorum Petri et Pauli, tanquam sui et totius regni munimentum et praesidium primitivum, a fundamentis construxit: monachosque in eadem ecclesia perpetuis temporibus Deo servituros instituit, quibus Petrum monachum, unum de collegio sancti Augustini secum ab apostolica sede directum, in abbatem, ut ordo ecclesiasticus exposcit, praeposuit et elegit. Patet ergo omnibus manifeste, anchoram primae foundationis praesentis monasterii in portu salutis regiae, necnon regni totius tam firmiter fixam fore, ut martyre Pancratio affirmante, nullis altercationum frivolarum attractionibus violentis evelli poterit ullo modo. Inter foundationem vero et dotationem sex anni in numero exclusive probabiliter computantur. Limitatur enim tempus foundationis ab anno Domini quingentesimo nonagesimo octavo; dotationis vero ab anno Domini sexcentesimo quinto, ut patet evidenter per primam et secundam chartam ejusdem fundatoris nostri confectas. Adeo namque tam rex quam archiepiscopus, in arcem et speculam hujus regni, foundationem praesentis monasterii proponebant, ut jam caeli esset ornamenta pretiosissima thesaurizans, videlicet ubi ipsius Augustini et omnium archiepiscoporum Dorovernensium, simul et ejusdem regis Aethelberti, et omnium regum Cantiae corpora, quae in revelationem magni Christi resurgent, debent sepeliri. Unde, ut in urbe esset archiepiscopis consistorium sive sedes, et regibus thronus judicii vel tribunal, sic in isto monasterio extra urbem thalamus constituitur, necnon requies utrorumque. Juste enim divinus ipse contemplator Augustinus sibi et successoribus suis hic locum sepulturae elegit, tanquam ab exitu et strepitu mundano, * necnon cum passo Domino extra portam, ac pia fide gloriosus ille rex Aethelbertus cum eodem patre suo spiritali conssepeliri elegit, fidem in hoc antiquorum patrum humiliter imitatus, quibus maxima fuit cura cum sanctis patribus sepeliri, sicut de sancto Gamaliele et multis aliis legimus. Tacti itaque hac eadem devotione, plures pontifices, reges, et principes, et alii fideles Angliae se fecerunt in isto monasterio, vel saltem infra ejus ambitum sepeliri, ubicunque in Anglia morirentur.

Perpendere igitur ex praemissis quisque poterit sanae mentis, quod in praesenti monasterio apud Anglos prima fuit congregatio, seu primum collegium monachorum; non quod ipsi ab aliis descenderint, prius aut alibi in Anglia constitutis; sed magis quod ab ipsis descenderint alii. Inde est quod summi pontifices in suis authenticis privilegiis huic monasterio concessis communiter ita dicunt, sicut in initio nascentis christianae religionis apud regnum Anglicum in monasticae religionis observantia extitit primum; ita in posterum cum omnibus ad se pertinentibus ab omni maneat servitio liberum, ab omni mundiali strepitu inconcussum, nec ecclesiasticis conditionibus, seu angariis ullo modo subiaceat, aut ullis canonicis juribus serviat: addentes etiam in scriptis suis, quod valde incongruum videtur qualicunque modo alterius ditioni deservire, quod apud nos est primum in hac religione; omnia nempe et singula libertatum et privilegiorum insignia, quae in locis sibi competentibus in praesenti tractatu Deo adjuvante latius et evidentius apparebunt, ab illo Spiritus Sancti organo, sancto videlicet Gregorio, apostolica sua interminatione per saepedictum Anglorum apostolum Augustinum, velut a fonte rivuli, effluxerunt. Vota namque regia, tam devota et sancta, per suae legationis potestatem plenariam, et specificum privilegium archiepiscopus adimplevit; in tanto, ut semetipsum earundem libertatum adiutorem et patrocinatorem nominans, omnes successores suos archiepiscopos, omnesque ecclesiasticas et seculares potestates per Dominum Jesum Christum, et apostolorum ejus reverentiam obtestabatur, atque apostolica memorati patris sui Gregorii interminatione interdixit, ne quisquam unquam ullum potentatum, aut dominatum, aut imperium in hoc dominicum vel apostolicum monasterium, terras vel ecclesias ad illud pertinentes usurpare praesumat, nec ulla prorsus subjugationis, aut servitutis, aut tributis conditione, vel in magno, vel in minimo, Dei ministros inquietet aut opprimat.

* Clar. Walkerus necnon abesse vult, credens in Spelm. mendose mundano ne, pro quo necnon posuimus, ultimo ne ex proxime praecedenti syllaba no natum esse.

Omnibus utique, quod sequitur, est notandum; abbatem, inquit, a suis fratribus electum, in eodem monasterio, non ad suum famulatum sed ad dominicum ministerium ordinet; nec sibi hunc obaudire, sed Deo suadeat; nec vero sibi subiectum, sed fratrem, sed consortem, sed collegam, et comministrum in opus dominicum eum reputet; non ibi missas quasi ad suae ditionis altare, nec ordinationes vel benedictiones usurpative, sine abbatis vel fratrum petitione exerceat; nullum sibi jus consuetudinarium, vel in vilissima re exigit, quatenus pacis concordia unum in Domino sint utrique; ne quisquam, quod absit, dominandi dissidio in iudicium incidat diaboli, qui superbiae tyrannide corrui de caelo. Tradidit etiam in eisdem scriptis suis quod si quis tales supremi iudicis amicos offen-dere non metuens, huiusmodi privilegii statuta violaverit, vel violatorem imitando vim suam tenuerit, sciat se apostolico beati Petri gladio per suum vicarium Gregorium puniendum, nisi emendaverit. O quam pia affectio, quam matura intentio tam regiae maiestatis, quam pontificalis Cantuariæ dignitatis, ut erga filios, liberos regni Dei futuros, nullam finerent captivitatem futuris temporibus permanere! Unde audeo dicere, illum in hoc verum successorem Augustini non esse, qui vero successor sancti Petri, huius monasterii primi abbatis, pro tantis et talibus huic monasterio concessis privilegiis indignatur; nec verum ejusdem sancti Petri in hoc arbitror successorem, qui legitimo successor beati Augustini tali extollentia praeconcessis privilegiis est repugnans.

De ecclesia Christi, quae totius Angliae matrix et metropolis ordinatur. [Circa ann. Dom. DCIII. Ex Spelm. vol. I. p. 116. seqq.]

DE ecclesia vero Christi, quae metropolis, necnon matrix totius Angliae ordinatur, quae quidem dignitate est prior, sed posterior tempore, sic scribit idem venerabilis Beda in primo libro praetacto historiae Anglicanae cap. xxxiii. "At," inquit, "Augustinus ubi in regia civitate sedem episcopalem," ut praediximus, "accepit, recuperavit in ea, regio fultus adminiculo, ecclesiam quam ibi Romanorum antiquorum fidelium opere factam fuisse didicerat, et eam in nomine sancti salvatoris Dei et Domini nostri Jesu Christi sacrauit, atque ibidem sibi habitationem statuit, et cunctis successoribus suis." Haec ille. Prius enim accepimus, prout patet in capitulo praecedenti, quod ante adventum sancti Augustini non sit in chronicis mentio de aliqua ecclesia dedicata, nisi solummodo de ecclesia sancti Martini, in qua rex ipse baptizatus fuerat Ethelbertus; ex quo sequitur, quod ecclesia Christi nondum fuerat dedicata. Accepimus etiam quod ecclesia sancti Pancratii fuit prima ab Augustino ordinata in episcopum dedicata, quod non esset verum, si ecclesiam Christi regio fultus auxilio, immediate post suam ordinationem in episcopum dedicasset. Ergo illa recuperatio nullo modo in temporis prioritate dedicatio sive consecratio est dicenda, sed potius ecclesiae quaedam ruinosae regis sumptibus reparatio, quam idem rex didicerat antiquo Romanorum opere prius factam fuisse, cujus vestigia apparebant. Hanc verisimiliter ecclesiam beatus Augustinus, regio adminiculo fultus, debita, videlicet regis sumptibus, recuperatione seu reparatione peracta, post huius monasterii foundationem, in nomine sancti salvatoris Dei et Domini nostri Jesu Christi sacrauit, atque ibidem, ut praemittitur, sibi habitationem statuit, et cunctis successoribus suis. Nec aliquid obstat, quod prius de recuperatione ecclesiae Christi sit in chronicis mentio; cum id ordo scribendi deponat, ut a superiori incipere debeat. Quod enim dicitur a quibusdam, quod in ipsa matrice metropoli seu cathedrali ecclesia, priusquam in isto monasterio, congregatio fuit monachorum, plane probari poterit contrarium veritati, si superiora cum sequentibus diligentius attendantur. Nam a principio foundationis, quod, ut patet in capitulo praecedente, fuit sub anno Domini DCCVIII. in isto monasterio fuit congregatio monachorum, postea vero in illa ecclesia cathedrali fuerunt monachi introducti sub anno Domini DCXV. quod aperte probatur per epistolam Bonifacii papae, qui quartus fuit a Gregorio, regi Aethelberto transmissam, prout in libro primo Willielmi Malmesburiensis De gestis pontificum, ubi tractat de Lanfranco ejusdem sedis archiepiscopo, invenitur. Cujus quidem epistolae hic est tenor.

"Domino excellentissimo atque praecellentissimo filio regi Anglorum Aethelberto, Bonifacius episcopus, servus servorum Dei. Dum christianitatis vestrae integritas ita circa Conditoris sui cultum excreverit, ut longe lateque resplendeat, et in omni mundo annunciata, vestrae Deo dignae operationis augmenta referat, enormes largitori omnium bonorum grates Deo exsolvimus, qui vos de excelsis prospexit, et in tanto culmine virtutum erexit. Quapropter, gloriose fili, quod ab apostolica sede per coepiscopum nostrum Mellitum postulasti, libenti animo concedimus; id est, ut vestra benignitas in monasterio in Dorobernensi civitate constituto, quod sanctus doctor vester Augustinus, beatae memoriae, Gregorii discipulus, sancti Salvatoris nomini consecravimus, cui ad praesens praeesse dignoscitur dilectissimus frater noster Laurentius, licenter per omnia monachorum regulariter viventium, habitationem statuatur, apostolica auctoritate decernentes, ut ipsi vestri praedicatores monachi monachorum gregem sibi affociant, et eorum vitam sanctitatum moribus exornent. Quae nostra decreta si quis successorum vestrorum, sive regum, sive episcoporum, clericorum, sive laicorum, irrita facere tentaverit, a principe apostolorum Petro, et a cunctis successoribus suis anathematis vinculo subiaceat, quoad usque quod temerario ausu peregisse, Deo placita satisfactione poeniteat, et huius hujus inquietudinis veram emendationem faciat. In Christo valeas domine fili: missa per manum Melliti, episcopi Lundoniensis. Anno dominicae Incarnationis DCXV.

Quis igitur dubitet hunc papam Bonifacium a primo Gregorio quartum, ipso Gregorio tempore posteriorem, similiter et Augustino Laurentium successorem? Pari etiam ratione prius fuit collegium monachorum, ubi, qui priores tempore fuerunt, patres collegium ordinarunt.

Sed quid ad nos, quantum ad religionis eminentiam obtinendam, propter quam libertates et privilegia sunt concessa, quos noster paterfamilias exiit primo mane conducere in vineam suam, prioritas aut posterioritas temporis? "Erunt," inquit, "primi novissimi et novissimi primi." Nam si vana gloria, quae ex invidia nascitur, dominetur, ut ideo doleat quis esse secundus, quia desiderat esse prior: libertas in captivitatem, prioritas in deteriorationem turpiter ducitur. Inde propheta Esdras, volens omnium electorum unam ostendere vocationem; et nullam, temporis causa, esse differentiam inter illos, ostendit omnium sanctorum numerum esse quasi coronam: quia sicut in corona, cum sit rotunda, nihil, quo initium vel finis percipi poterit, invenitur; sic inter sanctos et electos, quantum ad tempus, in futuro seculo nemo novissimus dicitur, nemo prior. Ista namque corona sic signo sanctitatis expressa, neminem ut gemma radians tunc ornabit, qui ob vanae gloriae ostentationem istic de prioritate temporis gloriatur. Et qui contra veritatem, temporis vendicant prioritatem, sine dubio consequenter aliorum concessam destruere libertatem omnino conantur; cujus augmentum dum in aliis aspiciunt, apud semetipsos afflicti anxie captivantur, aliorum privilegium suum praejudicium reputantes. Tales, quod dolendum est, plures sunt istis diebus, quorum aliquos audivimus et vidimus pluries, qui versus quosdam a quodam claustrali hujus sancti monasterii ad honorem et laudem sanctissimi Augustini sociorumque ejus, necnon ob memoriam foundationis praesentis ecclesiae compositos, et ad tumbam ejusdem decenter in quadam tabula positos et appensos, turpiter impropere damnarunt, et turbine procelloso idoneos etiam et maturos, suis sinistris informationibus pro compositione eorundem versuum commovebant, quorum tamen sententiam ignorabant; quos nihil aliud, ut fatebantur, movebat, nisi nostrae foundationis prioritas hic praemissa, et quod abbas praesentis monasterii frater, consors, comminister vocaretur archiepiscopi Cantuariæ et collega; minime contemplantes sanctissimi patris nostri Augustini intentionem, et sancti regis Aethelberti fundatoris nostri devotionem superius pernotatam, nec etiam intelligentes quod aliud esse, aliud est vocari. Summi namque pontifices in scriptis suis semetipsos servos servorum Dei humiliter nominant, quorum primus sanctus fuit Gregorius ita scribens, nec tamen sequitur, quod quilibet Dei servus est summi pontificis dominus et magister. Sic in proposito, si ob reverentiam primariae institutionis beatissimi Augustini, dominus archiepiscopus vocet humiliter dominum abbatem hujus monasterii fratrem, consortem, collegam, et prae caeteris comministrum, non tamen aliquis sanae mentis intelligit abbatem in omnibus esse consortem, et domino archiepiscopo coaequalem collegam. Refert tamen Beda lib. III. De gestis cap. iii. quod est insula in Hibernia, quae rectorem abbatem presbyterum semper habet, cujus juri omnis provincia, et etiam episcopi sunt subjecti, juxta exemplum primi doctoris illius, qui non episcopus, sed presbyter extitit et monachus. Eadem ratione non solum propter institutionem beatissimi Augustini adhibenda est honoris prerogativa abbati hujus monasterii, sed ob reverentiam et memoriam ejusdem protodocoris nostri, qui in suo primo adventu, non episcopus, sed presbyter et monachus dignoscitur extitisse.

Ob ejusdem enim dignitatis memoriam, summus pontifex, post quadringentos sexaginta quinque annos Alexander secundus sub anno Dom. MLXIII. mero motu abbati Egelsino jussit mitra et sandaliis uti jure pontificali, sibi et suis successoribus, in his verbis: "Hunc apicem habere perpetuo rectorem decrevimus Augustinensem, ob ipsius scilicet Romanorum alumni, et Anglorum apostoli dignitatem." Ejusdem itaque abbatis Egelsini praedecessori Wlfrico summus pontifex Leo decimus, eodem anno quo confirmavit, ut in conciliis et synodis celebrandis archiepiscopus Cantuariensis assidere debeat pontifici sanctae Ruffinae, concessit ut abbas sancti Augustini assideret abbati montis Casini, anno Domini MLVI. Plures etiam Romani pontifices, tam scriptis quam factis, ob eandem protodocoris nostri Anglorum apostoli dignitatem, necnon ipsi archiepiscopi Cantuarienses fere omnes abbates hujus monasterii in magna reverentia habuere. Unde ut in capita praetactorum aemulorum confusio verteretur, qui acriter a venerabilis memoriae Thoma cognomine Chelingdene, tunc priore ecclesiae Christi, pro hujusmodi imperio fuerant reprehensi, eodem anno quo haec acta fuerunt, qui fuit annus Domini MCCCCVI. piae memoriae Thomas Arundell, archiepiscopus Cantuariæ, Thomam, hujus monasterii abbatem, hujus nominis quartum, cognomine Hundene, in die sancti Johannis ante portam Latinam in ecclesia sancti Pauli Londoniis, sine exactione aliqua subjectionis vel obedientiae benedixit, et eundem ut fratrem, consortem, collegam, et comministrum nominans et honorans, in opus dominicum, secundum sanctissimi Augustini decretum et sanctionem benigniter insignivit, cui in signum memoriale perpetui foederis annulum contulit pretiosum sapphirico lapide adornatum.

Eadem ergo foundationis nostrae prioritate gaudentes, privilegiorumque libertates a tempore Augustini usque in praesens sine intermissione firmiter retinentes, charitatem etiam ipsis nostris vicinis aemulis conservantes, cum propheta dicamus, "Redde vicinis nostris septuplum in sinu eorum," imperium ipsorum exprobraverit probraverit tibi, domine sanctissime Augustine, "nos autem populus tuus, et oves pascuae tuae, confitebimur tibi in seculum; in generationem et generationem annuntiabimus laudem tuam," in cujus nominis gloriam et honorem.

Prima charta regis Aethelberti, in confirmationem solius fundi circa ecclesiam sancti Pancratii. Ex MS. bibl. aulae S. Trinitatis Cantabrig. fol. 7. [Circa ann. Dom. DCV. Spelm. vol. I. p. 118. seq.]

IN nomine Domini nostri Ihesu Christi. Om-nem hominem qui secundum Deum vivit, et remunerari a Deo sperat et optat, oportet ut piis precibus consensum hilariter ex animo praebeat. Quoniam certum est tanto facilius ea quae ipse a Deo poposcerit consequi posse, quanto et ipse libentius Deo aliquid concefferit; quocirca ego Aethelbertus rex Cantiae cum consensu venerabilis archiepiscopi Augustini, ac principum meorum, do et concedo in honore sancti Petri aliquam partem terrae juris mei, quae jacet in oriente civitatis Doroberniae: ita duntaxat, ut ibi monasterium construatur, et res quam supra memoravi in potestate abbatis sit qui ibi fuerit ordinatus. Igitur adjuro et praecipio, in nomine Domini Dei omnipotentis, qui est omnium rerum iudex justus, ut prae-fata terra subscripta donatione sempiternaliter sit confirmata, ita ut nec mihi, nec alicui successorum meorum, regum aut principum, five cujuslibet conditionis dignitatibus, et ecclesiasticis gradibus, de ea aliquid fraudare liceat.

Si quis vero de hac donatione nostra aliquid minuere aut irritum facere temptaverit, sit in praesenti separatus a sancta communione corporis et sanguinis Christi, et in die iudicii, ob meritum malitiae suae, a consortio sanctorum omnium segregatus. Circumcincta est haec terra his terminibus. In orienti ecclesia sancti Martini. In meridie via of Burhgate. In occidente et in aquilone Dritingstreet. Acta in civitate Doroverni. Anno ab incarnatione Christi DCV. indictione VIII.

Secunda charta regis Aethelberti. Dotatio terrae de Langeport. Ibidem fol. 8. [Ibid. p. 119.]

IN nomine Domini nostri Ihesu Christi: notum sit omnibus, tam praesentibus quam posteris, quod ego Aethelbertus, Dei gratia rex Anglorum, per evangelicum genitorem meum Augustinum de idolatra factus christicola, tradidi Deo per ipsum antistitem aliquam partem terrae juris mei sub orientali muro civitatis Doroberniae, ubi scilicet per eundem in Christo institutorem monasterium in honore principum apostolorum Petri et Pauli condidi, et cum ipsa terra, et cum omnibus quae ad ipsum monasterium pertinent, perpetua libertate donavi, adeo ut nec mihi, nec alicui successorum meorum regum, nec ulli unquam potestati, five ecclesiasticae, five seculari quicquam inde liceat usurpare, sed in ipsius abbatis sint omnia libera ditione. Si quis vero de hac donatione nostra aliquid minuere aut irritum facere temptaverit, auctoritate Dei, et beati papae Gregorii, nostrique apostoli Augustini, simul et nostra imprecatione sit hic segregatus ab omni sanctae ecclesiae communione, et in die iudicii ab omni electorum societate. Circumcincta est haec terra his terminibus. In oriente ecclesia sancti Martini. Et inde ad orientem be Siwendoune. Et sic ad aquilonem be Wykengesmarke. Iterumque ad orientem et ad austrum be Burghwaremarke. Et sic ad austrum et occidentem be Kingesmarke. Item ad aquilonem et orientem be Kingesmarke. Sicque ad occidentem to Rideschaepe. Et ita ad aquilonem to Dritingstreet. Actum est hoc in civitate Doroverni. Anno ab incarnatione Christi DCV. indictione VIII.

Tertia carta regis Aethelberti, de Sturigao, alio nomine dictum Cistelei. Ibidem fol. 9. [Circa ann. Dom. DCX. Ibid. p. 120. seq.]

IN nomine sanctae et individuae Trinitatis rex Anglorum Aethelbertus, misericordia omnipotentis Dei catholicus; omnibus suae gentis fidelibus et adventum gloriae magni Dei et salvatoris nostri Ihesu Christi beata spe expectantibus, salutem vitaeque aeternae beatitudinem. Largiente summi Regis clementia, ego Aedelbertus in folio paterno confirmatus, paceque divinitus concessa, eo jam per decem quinquennia sceptrigera potestate potitus, et per venerabiles sacrae facrae fidei doctores Spiritus Sancti gratia irradiatus, ab errore falsorum deorum ad unius veri Dei cultum toto corde conversus, ne ingratus beneficiorum appaream illi, a cujus sancta sede nobis in regione umbrae mortis sedentibus lux veritatis emicuit: inter alias quas fabricavi ecclesias, monitu et hortatu beatissimi papae Gregorii, et sancti patris nostri Augustini, ipsi beatissimo apostolorum principi Petro, et doctori gentium Paulo ecclesiam a fundamentis construxi, eamque terris, variisque possessionum donariis decorare studui, inibique monachos Deum timentes aggregari feci, et cum consilio ejusdem reverendissimi archipraefulis Augustini ex suo sancto sanctorum collegio venerabilem virum secum ab apostolica sede directum Petrum monachum elegi, eisque ut ecclesiasticus ordo exposcit, abbatem praeposui.

Hanc igitur ecclesiam ad provectum debiti culminis promovere desiderans, suarumque possessionum terminos dilatare gestiens, sana mente, integroque consilio, cum Aedbaldi filii mei, aliorumque nobilium optimatum meorum consensu, ob redemptionem animae meae, et spem retributionis aeternae: obtuli ei etiam villam nomine Sturigao, alio nomine dictum Cistelei, cum omnibus redditibus ei jure competentibus, cum mancipiis, silvis, cultis vel incultis, pratis, pascuis, paludibus, fluminibus, et contiguis ei maritimis terminis eam ex una parte cingentibus. Omnia mobilia vel immobilia in usus fratrum sub regulari tramite, et monastica religione inibi Deo servientium, missorum etiam argenteum, scyphum aureum, item sellam cum fraeno auro et gemmis exornatam, speculum argenteum, armilaulia oloferica, camisiam ornatam, quod mihi xenium de domino papa Gregorio sedis apostolicae directum fuerat, quae omnia supradictae ecclesiae gratanter obtuli. Quam etiam ecclesiam ipse servus Dei Augustinus sanctorum apostolorum ac martyrum reliquiis, variisque ecclesiasticis ornamentis ab apostolica sede sibi transmissis copiose ditavit; seseque in ea, et cunctos successores suos ex auctoritate apostolica sepeliri praecepit, scriptura dicente, "non esse civitatem mortuorum, sed vivorum." Ibi etiam mihi et successoribus meis sepulturam providi, sperans me quandocunque ab ipso apostolici ordinis principe, cui Dominus potestatem ligandi atque solvendi dedit, et claves regni caelorum tradidit, a peccatorum nexibus solvi, et aeternae beatitudinis januam introduci. Quod monasterium aut ecclesiam nullus episcoporum, nullus successorum meorum regum in aliquo laedere aut inquietare praesumat, nullam omnino subjectionem in ea sibi usurpare audeat, sed abbas ipse, qui ibi fuerit ordinatus, intus et foris cum consilio fratrum secundum timorem Dei libere eam regat et ordinet, ita ut in die Domini dulcem illam piissimi Redemptoris nostri vocem mereatur audire, dicentis, "Euge serve bone et fidelis, quia super pauca fuisti fidelis, super multa te constituam; intra in gaudium Domini tui."

Hanc donationem meam in nomine Patris, et Filii, et Spiritus Sancti, largitate divina, ut mihi tribuatur peccatorum remissio, per omnia cum consilio reverendissimi patris Augustini condidi, atque ad transcribendum, Augemundum presbyterum ordinavi. De his ergo omnibus, quae hic scripta sunt, si quis aliquid inde minuere praesumerit, sciat se aequissimo judici Deo, et beatis apostolis Petro et Paulo rationem esse redditurum. Confirmata donatio praesentibus testibus; reverendissimo patre Augustino Dorobernensis ecclesiae archiepiscopo primo, Mellito quoque et Justo Lundoniae et Rosensis * praefulis, Aedbaldo filio meo, Hamigifilo, Augemundo referendario, Hocca, Graphio, Tangil, Pinca, Goddi, aliisque pluribus dignitatum diversarum personis.

* Nota. Post vocem "praefulis," UssER. in MSS. notis ad locum addit: "Post praefulis in MS. quo ego usus sum, legitur: et religioso famulo Christi Laurentio presbytero, Aedbaldo filio meo, Hamigifilo duce, Augemundo referendario, Hocca et Graphione comitibus, Tangifilo, et Pinca, et Geddi, et Aldhuno regis optimatibus, aliisque plurimis diversarum dignitatum personis. Actum sane quadragesimo quinto anno regni nostri, sub die quinto idus Januarii. Which date agreeth with the year of our Lord DCV. set down by Reynerus pag. 50. but cometh five years short of that which is set down in the beginning of the charter, where king Aethelbert saith, that he did jam per decem quinquennia sceptrigera potestate potiri." Haec ille.

Ex MS. Bibl. aulae S. Trinitatis Cantabrig. fol. 10. [Spelm. vol. I. p. 121. seqq.]

AUGUSTINUS episcopus Doroberniae sedis famulus, quem superna inspirante clementia beatissimus papa Gregorius Anglicae genti Deo acquirendae legatarium misit ac ministrum; omnibus successoribus suis episcopis, cunctisque Angliae regibus, cum suis posteris, atque omnibus Dei fidelibus, et in fide et gratia pacem et salutem. Patet omnibus quod Deo amabilis rex Aedelbertus, primus Anglorum regum Christi regno sacrat, nostra instantia, et sua prodiga benevolentia, inter caeteras ecclesias quas fecit, et episcopia, monasterium extra metropolim suam Doroberniam, in honorem principum apostolorum Petri et Pauli regaliter condidit, et regalibus opibus, amplisque possessionibus ditavit, dilatavit, magnificavit, perpetuae libertate, et omni jure regio, cum omnibus rebus et judiciis intus et foris illi pertinentibus munivit, suoque regio privilegio, et superni iudicii imprecatione, atque apostolica sancti papae Gregorii interminatione excommunicatoria contra omnem injuriam confirmavit.

Ego quoque ejusdem libertatis adjutor et patrocinator, omnes successores meos archiepiscopos, omnesque ecclesiasticas vel seculares potestates per Dominum Ihesum Christum, et apostolorum ejus reverentiam obtestor, atque apostolica patris nostri papae Gregorii interminatione interdico, ne quisquam unquam ullam potestatem, aut dominatum, aut imperium in hoc dominicum vel apostolicum monasterium, vel terras vel ecclesias ad illud pertinentes usurpare praesumat, nec ulla prorsus subjugationis aut servitutis, aut tributi conditione, vel in magno, vel in minimo Dei ministros inquietet aut opprimat.

Abbatem a suis fratribus electum in eodem monasterio non ad suum famulatum, sed ad dominicum ministerium ordinet, nec sibi hunc obaudire, sed Deo suadeat. Nec vero sibi subiectum, sed fratrem, sed consortem, sed collegam et comministrum in opus dominicum eum reputet. Non ibi missas, quasi ad suae ditionis altare, nec ordinationes vel benedictiones usurpative, sine abbatis vel fratrum petitione exerceat. Nullum sibi jus consuetudinarium, vel in vilissima re exigat, quatenus pacis concordia unum sint in Domino utrique. Ne quisquam, quod absit, dominandi dissidio in iudicium incidat diaboli, qui superbiae tyrannide corrui de caelo. "Reges gentium," inquit Dominus, "dominantur eorum, vos autem non sic." Cumque ab alienis, non a filiis accipiantur tributa, sic ipse Dominus concludit, "Ergo liberi sunt filii." Qua ergo irreverentia patres ecclesiarum in filios regni Dei sibi vendicant dominationem, maxime autem in hanc ecclesiam sanctorum thesaurariam, in cujus materno utero tot pontificum Doroberniae, regum ac principum corpora speramus alma refovenda sepulturae requie, ex auctoritate scilicet apostolica, et hinc ad aeternam gloriam resuscitanda. Tales supremi Judicis amicos si quis offendere non metuens, hujus privilegii statuta violaverit, vel violatorem imitando vim suam tenuerit, sciat se apostolico beati Petri gladio per suum vicarium Gregorium puniendum, nisi emendaverit.

Haec ergo omnia, uti hic sunt scripta, apostolica ipsius institutoris nostri Gregorii comprobatione et auctoritate servanda sancimus, suoque ore confirmamus, praesente glorioso rege Aedelberto, cum filio suo Aedbaldo et collaudantibus cum ipso omnibus optimatibus regis, atque ultro volentibus reverendissimis fratribus nostris, a sancta Romana ecclesia huc mecum vel ad me in evangelium Domini destinatis: scilicet Laurentio, quem nobis Deo favente successorem constituimus, et Mellito, Lundoniae episcopo, et Justo Rosensi episcopo, et Petro venerabili ejusdem monasterii principum apostolorum abbate primo, cum caeteris in Domino adjutoribus meis obnixè postulantibus, simulque in eos qui haec fideliter servaverint, benedictionem, aut in impenitentes, quod nolumus, transgressores damnationem exercentibus.

Ex una parte istius signi beati Augustini descriptio est ita ut patet. . . Augustini episcopi, et haec est scriptura in exteriori circumferentia. In medio signi est forma unius ecclesiae, super eandem scribitur Ecclesia, et subtus X P I. a dextris ponitur una litera, scilicet M. a sinistra P. per M. monasterium, per P. Petri intellige. Quod bene cum prima charta foundationis praesentis monasterii concordat. In qua solummodo Petri apostoli mentio annotatur. Sed in charta secunda et tertia fit mentio de utrisque, viz. Petro et Paulo.

Ex altera parte istius signi descriptio est ista. In exteriori circumferentia scribitur ✠ Signum sancti Salvatoris. In medio est imago Salvatoris ab umbilico sursum. A dextris scribitur I E. a sinistris X C.

De bulla plumbea sancti Augustini.

Quod enim praenotatum sancti Augustini privilegium sub bulla plumbea continetur: non est ab illis, qui sane ad sobrietatem sapiunt, dubitandum. Nam cum idem Augustinus Romanus esset, et Anglorum apostolus, ratione suae legationis apostolicae eundem potuit servare modum, quantum ad personae suae dignitatem in ecclesia Anglicana, quem tunc servavit Gregorius in ecclesia Romana. Nec mirum quod ipse bulla plumbea utebatur, cui tanta auctoritas a beato Gregorio fuit concessa, ut in nova Anglorum ecclesia per loca singula, ut patet 11. registri cap. xxiv. episcopos ordinaret, qui suae subjacere ditioni deberent, in tanto ut episcopus ipse ipse Eboracensis, qui metropolitani perfrueretur honore, suae subjaceret ditioni. Post obitum vero Augustini decrevit idem Gregorius, ut duorum metropolitanoꝝ ista in posterum esset honoris distinctio, ut ipse prior habeatur, qui prius fuerit ordinatus, et sic Augustini auctoritas in tanto successorum suorum auctoritatem excellere videbatur. Scripsit etiam suis interrogationibus sanctus Gregorius, ut recitat Beda De gestis, libro I. cap. xxvii. "Novit," inquit, "fraternitas tua Romanae ecclesiae consuetudinem in qua se meminit nutritam. Sed mihi placet, ut sive in Romana, sive in Galliarum, seu in qualibet ecclesia aliquid invenisti, quod plus omnipotenti Deo possit placere, sollicite eligas; et in Anglorum ecclesia, quae adhuc ad fidem nova est, institutione praecipua, quae de multis ecclesiis colligere potuisti, infundas;" haec ibi. Ex quibus patet bullam non incongrue plumbeam nostro apostolico competere Augustino, quod etiam quibusdam episcopis in partibus transmarinis, post quingentos annos ab adventu ejusdem in Angliam, asseritur evidenter concessum fuisse. Cum enim ab archiepiscopo Cantuar. Richardo, qui fuit quintus a sancto Thoma tempore regis Henrici tertii, post conquestum, privilegium Augustini argueretur falsi, propter hujusmodi bullam plumbeam: comes Flandriae Philippus, ad ejusdem rei majorem evidentiam, talem bullam plumbeam, quam sibi dedit quidam episcopus transmarinus, qua idem episcopus et antecessores sui utebantur, per magistrum Robertum Blundum capellanum suum, abbati praesentis monasterii transmittere affectabat. Quae quidem bulla plumbea usque in praesens inter caetera monasterii munimenta servatur. Cujus quantitas et forma hic notatur.

Ex altera enim parte hujus sigilli vix propter antiquitatem apparet imago sanctae Mariae cum Filio, scriptura ejusdem circumferentiae, quod legi poterit, minime apparente. Quod autem sigillum expressis literis in praesenti circumferentia annotatur, patet non majoris signi esse evidentiam, sed minoris: si igitur in minori fit, ut sigillo plumbeo possit uti; multo fortius in majori. Sed quod praesens sigillum plumbeum bulla a pluribus, prout praemittitur, appellatur, quam quidam episcopus transmarinus praetacto comiti Philippo donavit, qua idem episcopus et antecessores sui utebantur, plane non videtur consonum rationi, cum sit effigies abbatis cum scriptura superposita in eodem, unde non obstante quod quidam episcopus illud idem comiti contulit, videtur congruere sigillum alicujus monasterii monachorum fuisse, in honore sancti Stephani protomartyris consecrati, et ad hujusmodi brigae, sive litium declarationem, ad certam rei evidentiam posteris intuendam, praefato abbati fuisse transmissum. Bulla igitur plumbea beatissimi Augustini usque in praesens in praesenti monasterio sana et integra reverenter servata, in qua signum signati luminis vultus Domini super nos imagine Salvatoris exprimitur, ab illis qui Christi sunt, cum devotione et reverentia est contemplanda. Quod autem sancti papae Gregorii nullum omnino sub bulla plumbea habemus, non est mirum; cum eodem anno quo praesentis monasterii dotatio contingebat, post menses duos, et sex dies, quarto videlicet idus Martii, anno Phocatis imperatoris secundum Bedam et alios chronicatores, secundo, qui fuit annus Domini dcv. postquam sedem Romanae et apostolicae ecclesiae tredecim annis, mensibus sex, et diebus decem gloriosissime rexerat, defunctus est, ad veram quae in caelis est vitam migrando, sepultumque est corpus ejus Romae in ecclesia sancti Petri apostoli ante secretarium, quandoque cum caeteris ad gloriam resuscitandum. Scriptumque est ibidem epitaphium supra recitatum p. 716. super tumbam ejusdem.

Clar. USSERIUS in MSS. notis ad hunc locum sequentia adnotat. Quae pagina praecedente de bulla plumbea S. Augustini anno mccccvi. scripsit Cantuariensis ille monachus, maxima ex parte desumpta sunt ex Thomae Sprotti Chronico, quod ad annum mcccxxv. ab ipso productum Guilielmus Spinaeus sive Thornus deinceps continuavit. Locum Sprotti sub Spinae nomine in Disceptatione historica de antiquitate Benedictinorum in Anglia exhibuit Clemens Reynerus tract. I. §. i. pag. 51. cujus postremam partem, quae vitiose ibi legitur, integritati restitutam, hic etiam visum est repetere. "Cum praedictum Augustini privilegium argueretur falsi, propter bullam plumbeam ab archiepiscopo Cantuariensi Richardo; quidam episcopus transmarinus dedit domino Philippo comiti Flandriae talem bullam plumbeam, qua ipse episcopus et antecessores sui utebantur: quam bullam idem comes, ad majorem veritatis evidentiam, per magistrum Robertum Blundum capellanum suum misit abbati S. Augustini. Quae quidem bulla plumbea cum caeteris ecclesiae munimentis semper reservatur. In cujus bulla una superficie haec est scriptura: SIGILLUM PROTOMARTYRIS STEPHANI: alterius superficie scriptura minus apparente." Ubi et hoc notandum, maximopere falli monachum illum alterum qui ista ex Sprotto mutuatus est, quum Richardum illum Cantuariensem archiepiscopum, quintum (vel sextum potius) a S. Thoma tempore regis Henrici III. post conquestum fuisse asserit. Certissimum enim est, Henrici II. temporibus Thomae Becketi immediatum successorem illum extitisse, de quo ad annum Domini mclxxvi. in Sprotti Chronico ista legimus. "Habebat archiepiscopus duos commensales clericos, ut vulgo dicitur, jurisperitos, veritatis tamen et justae justitiae aemulos; magistrum Gerardum de Pucella, et magistrum Petrum Blesensem. Hi duo inter omnes mundi tunc temporis aestimabantur (nec immerito) eloquentiores: et in Augustini monasterium, velut lupi feroces in Christi agnos mansuetissimos, dentibus lethiferis semper toto mentis conamine grassabantur. Horum fretus consilio consilio praedictus archiepiscopus, et eorum facundia confusus nefanda, monasterium S. Augustini ex omni parte ferocius impugnabat." Philippum etiam illum, de quo dictum est, Flandriae comitem anno MCLXXVII. in die coenae Domini Cantuariam visitavisse, docet in Chronico suo Dorobernensis Gervasius. Notari hic quoque meretur error Clem. Reyneri Disc. histor. de antiquit. Benedictin. in Anglia p. 50. asserentis originale S. Augustini sub bulla plumbea in D. Henr. Spelmanni archivis adservari. Haec ille. Audiamus clar. Spelmannum.

Non his adducor ut genuinam credam Augustini bullam praecedentem. Sigilli enim fabrica nullum praefert tantae vetustatis specimen. Sculptura multo elegantior, quam sexto convenit post Augustinum seculo. Forma ecclesiae recentioris artificii, et effigies Salvatoris ne hodie quidem indecora.

Inscriptiones literae ejusmodi plane quales in usu erant aetate regum Henrici II. Richardi I. Johannis regis, et Henrici III. cujus tempestatibus bullam plumbeam habeo Honorii papae III. rudioris multo artificii quam ista Augustini. Appenditur et sigillum chartae, non ut in bullis solet pontificiis, e chorda serica, sed pro more a Normannis introducto et in usu hodie, a lemnisco membraneo.

Habentur etiam in contextu bullae voces et clausulae aliquot Augustini aevo non certo competentes: "archiepiscopo: judiciis, intus, et foris: jus consuetudinarium:" quarum prima nusquam, quod sciam, Augustino attribuitur a Gregorio: alteram nondum ambivit, reor, infantula ecclesia: tertia Normannicam sonat locutionem, et forensis nostri juris, non Saxoniam veterem.

Desideratur dati adnotatio: quam e bullae verbis deprehenderis, factam semet indicantis post Ethelberti privilegium, quod in tertia ejus charta erogatum dicitur, "cum regni solio per decem quinquennia sceptrigera potestate potitus esset:" id est, anno regni sui L. qui fuit Dom. nostri DCX. Genuina igitur si fuisset bulla ista, fieri oportebat post annum Domini DCX. quin et Augustinum tunc superstitisse, ut a Malmesburio, Trivetto, Polydoro, Savillo, et aliis perhibetur: potuisse etiam, quod [Epit. Chron. antiq. eccl. Brit. Guil. Harrison. Hollinsh.] alii non tepide affirmarunt, Legiocestriae interfuisse cum Ethelberto et Edilfrido regibus, non dico in ipsa strage monachorum Bangorensium, sed eodem tempore quo patrata fuit. Quam hoc vere ipsi viderint: vir eximius meo non cadet calculo.

Ad bullam redeo, sigillo plumbeo communitam ad exemplum, ut asseritur, ipsius S. Gregorii, cujus ne vel unum proferunt qui hoc tuentur. Certe, nec Gregorius ipse, nec sequentes longo post pontifices sigillis plumbeis aut metallicis usi sunt. Polydorus [De invent. lib. VIII. cap. ii.] ait se perdiu quaesivisse, unde id manaret institutum. "Siquidem," inquit, "fatis constat, Agathonem decimum sextum post Gregorium Magnum pontificem, quo sedente magna sedi facta est honoris accessio — in cera annulo impressisse sigilla. Verum postea cum Romanus pontifex multa erogaret privilegia, ut diplomata diuturniora forent, placuit Stephano III. ac deinde Hadriano I. tabulas apostolicas plumbo obsignari: fuit is annus salutis DCCLXXII. cum ipse Hadrianus factus est pontifex; nam antiquius non reperitur sigillum plumbeum: quemadmodum constat, ante Carolum Magnum imperatorem, literas auro obsignasse principum Romanorum neminem." Si de his plura cupias, vide archeologum nostrum in verbo Bulla.

Chartas regis Ethelberti non esse liberas a suspitione.

De chartis (verba audis clar. USSERII in notis MSS. ad locum) regis Aethelberti, in illo bibliothecae aulae S. Trinitatis apud Cantabrigienfes codice manuscripto, haec subjecta legitur admonitio. "Nec moveat aliquem, quod nec rex Ethelbertus, nec etiam alii reges de gente illa in chartis suis, prout mos inolevit modernis temporibus, sigilla cerea imprimebant: cum tam rudis ac barbarus populus, ad Christi fidem a perfidia conversus, signum crucis in testimonium suae conversionis omnibus suffecisse credebat. Non enim usque post conquestum a tempore foundationis hujus monasterii, excepta charta regis Knuti, qui fuit alienigena et conquestor, aliqua in munimentis reperimus sigilla cerea, sed solummodo crucis signa. Nec mirum: cum tanta ac talis possessio, tantique ac tales testes in principio renascentis ecclesiae Anglicanae (velut nostrae salutis primitivum ac publicum instrumentum fracto damnationis chirographo) posteris catholicis sufficere potuerunt; ubi sigillum cereum per lapsum temporis, aut per negligentiam perdi, aut propter antiquitatem sive corruptionem in pulverem possit labi. Post adventum vero Normannorum in Angliam tam reges quam alii domini et magnates laminas cereas membranis apponebant chartarum: crucis signum in laminis cereis imprimentes; de capillis capitum vel barbarum in eadem cera aliquam portionem pro signo posteris relinquentes. Ista patent in multis monasteriis post conquestum regni istius fundatis, ut est in monasterio S. Pancratii de Lewes, de charta Willelmi primi comitis Warenniae; in qua crines capitis usque in praesens ejusdem comitis permanent. Similiter in monasterio de Castleacre, quod est ejusdem foundationis in dioecesi Norwicensi, comes Lincolniae, qui pluribus possessionibus eandem ecclesiam dotavit, haec in fine intulit chartae suae. "In hujus," inquit, "rei evidentiam sigillum dentibus meis impressi. Teste Muriele uxore mea:" ubi usque in praesens in eadem cera apparent dentium vestigia pro sigillo. His etiam similia in pluribus aliis monasteriis sunt reperta." Haec Cantuariensis ille coenobii Augustiniani monachus: cum quibus et ista Ingulphi conferenda, in Croylandensis monasterii historia. "Chirographorum confectio Anglianam, quae antea usque ad Edwardi regis tempora fidelium praesentium subscriptionibus cum crucibus aureis aliisque sacris signaculis firma fuerunt, Normanni condemnantes, chirographa chartas vocabant; et chartarum tarum firmitatem cum cerea impressione per uniuscujusque speciale sigillum sub intitulatione trium vel quatuor testium astantium conficere constituebant." Haftenus USSERIUS. SPELMANNUS sequentia de chartis R. Aethelberti narrat.

Nec sine fuco (vereor) regis Ethelberti chartae praecedentes. In secunda enim et tertia rex Anglorum appellatur, cum non Anglorum proprie, sed Jutarum et Saxonum Cantium habitantium rex esset, ideoque ut in prima charta rex Cantiae vulgariter nuncupatus, licet eodem tempore ex potentia sua imperii fines super omnes reges usque ad confinium Humbri fluminis (ut Beda lib. I. cap. xxv. et lib. II. cap. iii. notat) tetendisset. Scio S. Gregorium eum titulo salutasse regem Anglorum, quod notiores ei Angli essent, quos Romae viderat, quam caeterae in Britannia nationes: sed Beda eum regem Cantiorum vocat, et sic passim nostri historici, nec abdicasse regem censeam usitatum suum et avitum titulum.

Quaerendum etiam est an annus Christi incarnationis jam tum accesserat (ut hic cernitur) regum nostrorum chartis et privilegiis. Nam deesse video, cum in epistolis S. Gregorii, tum in chartis et privilegiis quae nobis obvenerunt regum Franciae: licet Dionysius abbas Romanus eum antea per centum pene annos in computum suum ecclesiasticum induxisset. Chartis vero et privilegiis ascribi quippe tunc solebat regis vel imperatoris annus, cum indictionis saepenumero, non Christi epocha. Ad tollendam hanc dubitationem conducit maxime consuetudinem nosse vetusti illius seculi, rudis etiam et inertis populi, qui non tantum praedia soliti sunt conferre sine scripto, quod et hodie valeat cum debita ceremonia, sed etiam, ut asseritur, libertates et privilegia usque ad tempora Witheredi regis Cantii, qui regnum iniisse dicitur circa annum Domini nostri dcc. et edidisse chartam primam vel diploma scriptum, quod et Cantuariae conservari voluit ad exemplar edendorum aliorum illiusmodi pro ecclesiae uniuscujusque beneficio. Videntur igitur chartae et diplomata, quae anterioris proferuntur dati, ad ulterius fore et suspectae fidei: audi quid in veteri quodam MS. codice ecclesiae Cantuariensis A. p. 88. a. hac de re habetur.

Sanctus Ethelbertus rex Angliae, qui suscepit

christianitatem a beato Augustino, misso a beato Gregorio papa an. Dom. dxcvi. in ecclesiam Christi Cantuariae dedit eidem Augustino et successoribus suis palatium regium, et sedem perpetuam in civitate Doroberniae, quae nunc dicitur Cantuaria, cum ecclesia veteri, quae ab antiquo tempore Romanorum ibidem fuerat fabricata, quam ipsemet Augustinus sancti Salvatoris nomine dedicavit post consecrationem suam Arelatis factam.

Statuit etiam idem rex, auctoritate sanctae Romanae ecclesiae, ut in ecclesia Cantuariae ordinem monasticum monachi inperpetuum observarent, ne primorum videlicet praedicatio monachorum a memoria deleteretur, sed semper recens in mentibus succedentium perseveraret.

Dedit etiam idem rex possessiones amplas praedictis fratribus infra civitatem Cantuariae et extra. Et exinde dicta Dorobernensis ecclesia propter primatum, et quia inde primo christiana religio emanavit, et regnum Anglorum illuminavit, sicut rex ipse tenuit suas terras et consuetudines liberas et quietas in suo dominio; ita archiepiscopus et ecclesia praenominata tenuit terras suas et consuetudines suas omnino liberas et quietas in suo dominio, et inconcussa habuit dicta ecclesia Cantuariae omnimodas libertates et consuetudines suas in possessione pacifica sine interruptione cujusunque, ex consuetudine et antiquo more, sine chartis vel munimentis regis usque ad tempora Whytredi regis, cujus munimenti tenor talis est. Anno dominicae Incarnationis dxciv. Whytredus gloriosus rex Cantiae cum reverendissimo archiepiscopo Bryghtwaldo praecipit congregari concilium, etc. quae vide supra in anno eodem.

Cautius igitur intuendae sunt veterrimae monasteriorum chartae: fraudem enim saepe olent, et ab antiquis ipsis eo perstringuntur stigmatibus, ut supra animadvertas in veteri apologia pro bulla Augustini. Sed notabile illud est, quod circa cccc. abhinc annos retulit Gervasius in suo Chronico: qui in anno Domini mclxxxi. scribit "Monachos coenobii Augustinensis produxisse multas chartas suspectas et raras." Bonum est in earum datis accurate observare annorum concordantiam, scil. Christi, papae, indictionis, atque regis; in his enim saepius contigit hallucinatum iri.

ANNO Christi dciii. venit ex Anglia vir quidam insignis, satus ex regio sanguine, nomine Offo, trajectoque Rheno, in votis habuit plantare fidem Christi inter Germanos, et primum quidem fundavit monasterium Schuttern, et intervallo unius miliarii ab eo construxit super amnem Kintzig castellum, quod ab eo fuit appellatum Offonisburgum, quod successu temporis incrementa suscipiens, tandem factum est oppidum imperiale, vulgo Offenburg appellatum. Munster Cosmog. lib. III. cap. cclxxiv.

Nota. Videtur hic Offo quispiam fuisse e conversis Saxonibus, quibus jam sexennio pene evangelium praedicaverat Augustinus, Britanniam ingressus, sub an. Dom. dxcvii. ut e Beda liquet, Eccl. Hist. lib. I. cap. xxiii. De quo videndus Franciscus Guillimannus de episc. Argentoratens. in S. Amando, et Jodocus Coceius in Dagoberto suo cap. viii.

Laurentius successor Augustini et episcopi sui, clerum Scotorum et Britannorum ad unitatem ecclesiae suae invitant et hortantur, maxime in Paschatis observatione. Ex Beda H. E. lib. II. cap. iv. [Circa ann. Dom. DCX. Spelm. vol. I. p. 128. seq.]

SUCCESSIT Augustino episcopatu Laurentius, quem ipse idcirco adhuc vivens ordinaverat, ne se defuncto status ecclesiae tam rudis, vel ad horam pastore destitutus vacillare inciperet. In quo et exemplum sequebatur primi pastoris ecclesiae, hoc est, beatissimi apostolorum principis Petri, qui fundata Romae ecclesia Christi, Clementem sibi adiutorem evangelizandi simul et successorem consecrasset perhibetur.

Laurentius archiepiscopatus gradu potitus, strenuissime fundamenta ecclesiae, quae nobiliter jacta, vidit augmentari, atque ad perfectum debiti culminis, et crebra voce sanctae exhortationis, et continuis piae operationis exemplis provehere curavit. Denique non solum novae, quae de Anglis erat collecta, ecclesiae curam gerebat, sed et veterum Britanniae incolarum necnon et Scotorum, quae Hiberniam insulam Britanniae proximam incolunt, populis pastorem impendere sollicitudinem curabat. Si quidem ubi Scotorum in praefata ipsorum patria, quomodo et Britonum in ipsa Britannia vitam ac professionem minus ecclesiasticam in multis esse cognovit, maxime quod Paschae solennitatem non suo tempore celebrarent, sed, ut supra docuimus, a decima quarta luna usque ad vicesimam dominicae Resurrectionis, diem observandum esse putarent, scripsit cum coepiscopis suis exhortatoriam ad eos epistolam, obsecrans eos et contestans, unitatem pacis et catholicae observationis cum ea, quae toto orbe diffusa est Christi ecclesia, tenere, cujus videlicet epistolae principium hoc est.

Dominis charissimis fratribus episcopis vel abbatibus per universam Scotiam Laurentius, Melitus, et Justus episcopi, servi fervorum Dei. Dum nos sedes apostolica more suo, sicut in universo orbe terrarum, in his occiduis partibus ad praedicandum gentibus paganis dirigeret, atque in hanc insulam, quae Britannia nuncupatur, contigit introisse antequam cognosceremus, credentes, quod juxta morem universalis ecclesiae ingrederentur, in magna reverentia sanctitatis tam Britones, quam Scotos venerati sumus. Sed cognoscentes Britones, Scotos meliores putavimus. Scotos vero per Dagamum episcopum in hanc quam superius memoravimus insulam, et Columbanum abbatem in Galliis venientem, nihil discrepare a Britonibus in eorum conversationibus didicimus. Nam Dagamus episcopus ad nos veniens, non solum cibum nobiscum, sed nec in eodem hospitio quo vescebamur sumere voluit.

Misit idem Laurentius cum coepiscopis suis etiam Britonum sacerdotibus literas suo gradui condignas, quibus eas in unitate catholica confirmare satagit. Sed quantum haec agendo profecerit, adhuc praesentia tempora declarant.

Concilium Romanoanglicum sub Bonifacio IV. in causa Anglicanae ecclesiae celebratum Romae anno VIII. Focae imp. indictione XIII. et 3. die calendarum Martiarum; rem Anglicam promovente, et in eodem consedenti Mellito primo episcopo Londinensi. [Ibidem p. 129.]

Non reperiuntur istius concilii canones vel decretum: sed finitis quae praecedunt de Laurentio archiepiscopo Cantuariæ, Beda sic progreditur lib. II. cap. iv.

HIS temporibus venit Mellitus, Londoniae episcopus Romam de necessariis ecclesiae Anglorum causis cum apostolico papa Bonifacio tractaturus. Et cum idem papa reverendissimus cogeret synodum episcoporum Italiae de vita monachorum, et quiete ordinaturus, et ipse Mellitus inter eos affedit anno octavo imperii Focae principis, indictione decima tertia, tertia die calendarum Martiarum, ut quaeque erant regulariter decreta, sua quoque auctoritate subscribens confirmaret, ac Britanniam rediens, secum Anglorum ecclesiis mandanda, atque observanda deferret, una cum epistolis quas idem pontifex Deo dilecto archiepiscopo Laurentio et clero universo, similiter et Edilberto regi atque genti Anglorum direxit. Hic est Bonifacius quartus a beato Gregorio, Romanae urbis episcopus, etc.

Nota. Extra moenia Londini civitatis recens erat extructum monasterium, pro cujus regulari observantia Mellitus plurimum sollicitus, Romam se contulerat: utpote quod illud ipsum fore sciret, si bene custodiretur, amplum seminarium, ex quo omnes ecclesiae, quae erant in Anglia, sibi antistites adsciscerent. His accedebat alia causa, quae et potissima videri poterat, an nimirum rata sit habenda ecclesiae S. Petri ejusdem monasterii dedicatio divinitus facta, de qua plura valde miranda refert Ealredus abbas, scriptor gravissimus in vita S. Edwardi regis Anglorum, apud Surium die 5. Januarii. Vide Baron. anno DCX. num. 10. Sic Binnus tom. II. vet.

Bonifacii IV. decretum pro introducendis primis monachis regularibus in ecclesiam Christi Cantuariæ. Ex Annal Petriburgen. MSS. [Ann. Dom. DCX. Spelm. vol. I. p. 130. seq.]

BONIFACIUS papa, Aethelberto regi Anglorum. Domino excellentissimo atque prae-cellentissimo filio regi Anglorum Aethelberto Bonifacius episcopus, servus fervorum Dei. Dum christianitatis vestrae integritas ita circa conditoris sui cultum excreverit, ut longe lateque resplendeat, et in omni mundo annunciata, vestrae Deo dignae operationis augmenta referat: enormes largitori omnium bonorum Deo grates exolvimus, qui vos de excelsis prospexit, et in tanto virtutum culmine erexit.

Quapropter gloriose fili, quod ab apostolica sede per coepiscopum nostrum Mellitum postulastis, libenti animo concedimus, id est, ut vestra benignitas in monasterio in Dorovernensi civitate constituto, quod sanctus doctor vester Augustinus (beatae memoriae Gregorii discipulus) sancti Salvatoris nomini consecravat, cui ad praesens praeesse dignoscitur dilectissimus frater noster Laurentius, licenter per omnia monachorum regulariter viventium habitationem statuatur apostolica auctoritate: ^a decernentes, ut ipsi vestrae salutis praedicatores monachi, monachorum gregem sibi adsociant, et eorum vitam ^b sanctam tum moribus exornent.

Quae nostra decreta si quis successorum vestrorum regum, sive episcoporum, clericorum sive laicorum irrita facere tentaverit, a principe apostolorum Petro, et a cunctis successoribus suis anathematis vinculo subiaceat, quoad usque quod temerario ausu peregit, Deo placita satisfactione poeniteat, et hujus inquietudinis vestrae emendationem ^c faciat. In Christo valeas domine fili. Actum sane anno Incarnationis ^d sexcentesimo quarto decimo, imperante Foca Augusto piissimo, anno imperii ejusdem principis octavo, indictione ^e XIV. tertia die Martiarum, Aethelberti regis regni anno quinquagesimo tertio ^f.

Notae. Surrepisse hic videtur in Annali dato (ut centies istiusmodi solent) verbum quatuor, legendumque hoc excluso, anno Incarnationis sexcentesimo decimo, qui in synchronismo recte convenit cum Focae imp. anno VIII. et indictionis anno XIII. ut codex unus MS. reddit. Mendose autem omnino editur annus DCXIV. neque enim tunc Focas imp. sed Heraclius, nec Bonifacius papa, sed Deusdedit, nec Laurentius monasterii S. Salvatoris praefectus, sed in archiepiscopatum Cantuariæ, circiter triennium antea, si auctori Antiqq. eccl. Brit. credamus, sublimatus. Sed auget errorem chartae istius exemplum aliud quod profert hic auctor datum anno Incarnationis DCXV. Et extensus adhuc ille ipsemet, Bonifacio quinto chartam ascribens, qui papatum non adeptus est ante an. Christi DCXVII. et Foca imperatore et Aethelberto rege jam vita functo. Sine dubio igitur Bonifacio quarto tribuenda est, qui an. Christi DCX. pontificatus sui annum sextum agebat. Datorum etiam adnotatio, quae a primis transcribentibus saepenumero praetermittitur, a recentiori forte est apposita: rarissime enim annus Christi habetur in istius aevi epistolis, ut nos alias admonuimus inquirendum. Quin et hic adscriptum vides annum regni Aethelberti, ac si hunc in suis literis posuisse, curae esset Bonifacio. Haec SPELM.

Clar. USSERIUS in notis MSS. ad locum, his rem totam expedit verbis. Epistolam hanc in bibliotheca Cottoniana reperi, cum interlineari quoque interpretatione Saxonica, praefixam historiae cuidam Anglosaxonicae quondam pertinenti ad monasterium S. Augustini Cantuar. in qua subscriptio erat hujusmodi. "Actum sane anno Incarnationis sexcentesimo quartodecimo, imperante Foca Augusto piissimo, anno imperii ejusdem principis octavo, indictione tertiadecima, quarta die calendarum [Martiarum seemeth to be wanting here as calendarum in the foregoing epistle, which being added thereunto and the thirteenth indiction also retayned, will shew that the date also was here taken out of Bede lib. II. cap. iv.] Aethelberti regis regni anno quinquagesimo tertio:" pro qua apud Guilielmum Malmesburiensem (qui libro I. De gestis pontificum in Lanfranco, hanc et alias epistolas ad dignitatem sedis Cantuariensis astruendam spectantes inseruit) habetur. "Missa per manum Melliti, episcopi Londoniensis anno dominicae Incarnationis DCXV." Haec USSER.

Aethelbertus rex Deo inspirante pro animae suae remedio dedit episcopo Mellito terram, quae appellatur Tillingham ad monasterium sive solatium scilicet S. Pauli. Et ego rex Aethelbertus ita firmiter concedo tibi praefuli Mellito potestatem ejus habendi et possidendi, ut in perpetuum in monasterii utilitate permaneat, etc. Sto. pag. 77. inter ann. DCIV. et DCXIX.

Extat prior epistola antiquiss. scripta in fine Annalium Petriburgensium, interlineari Saxonica interpretatione: et juxta eandem varias lectiones in margine annotavimus. Notatur autem illic a recentiore in hunc modum. "An. MCLXXXI. Gervasius scribit monachos coenobii Augustinensis produxisse multas chartas suspectas et raras." Indeque orta est illa jam commemorata inter Richardum archiepiscopum et Augustinianos monachos de chartarum illarum authenticâ controversia. Quare igitur de ista epistola, neque enim in an. Dom. DCXIV. erat Focas imperator, sed successor ejus Heraclius, nec Bonifacius papa, sed ejus successor Deusdedit.

^b Alias sanctitatum

^c Alias promittat.

^d Alias sexcent.

Ego genuinam existimo; annum imperatoris et indictionis recte posuit, erratum vero a scriptore apponendo in anno Domini verbum quarto, cum revera esset sexcentesimo decimo, ut etiam in notando indictione XIV. pro XIII. ut aliud exemplar habet. Ascripsitque annum Ethelberti LIII. (pro anno L.) ac si papa istum etiam in suis literis addidisset. Vide si haec epistola reperiatur inter Bonifacii IV. III. et II. nam in dubio est quis horum scripsit, cum intra triennium omnes papatum adierint. In Godw. de eo. Sed apparet esse Bonifacii IV.

Nam missa fuit epistola Ethelberti per Mellitum Romam proficiscentem, qui factus est Londini episcopus anno DCIII. et circiter quadrennium postea Romam venit anno DCVII. mansisseque illic usque concil. Romanum in anno DCX. et rediens attulisse epistolam istam videtur Bedae testimonio lib. II. cap. iv. vel Alexandri II. pontificis potius, qui in literis ad Lanfrancum hanc ipsam epistolam Bonifacii nomine producit, qui quartus a beato Gregorio ecclesiae Romanae praefuit (apud Eadmer. Histor. novor. lib. I. pag. 2.)

Obitus Ethelberti regum Anglorum primi christiani. Ex Beda Hist. Eccl. lib. II. cap. v. [Ann. Dom. DCXIII. Spelm. vol. I. p. 131.]

ANNO ab Incarnatione dominica sexcentesimo decimo tertio, qui est annus vicesimus primus ex quo Augustinus cum sociis ad praedicandum genti Anglorum missus est, Edelbertus rex Cantuariorum, post regnum temporale, quod quinquaginta et sex annis gloriosissime

tenuerat, aeterna caelestis regni gaudia subiit. — Defunctus vero est die 24. mensis Februarii post vigesimum et unum annum acceptae fidei, atque in porticu S. Martini intra ecclesiam beatorum apostolorum Petri et Pauli sepultus. Ubi et Berta regina condita est.

Conversio Gevissorum, id est, occidentalium Saxonum. Ibidem lib. III. cap. vii. [Ann. Dom. DCXXIV. Ibidem p. 132.]

EODEM tempore gens occidentalium Saxonum, qui antiquitus Geviffe vocabantur, regnante Cynigilso fidem Christi suscepit; praedicante illis verbum Byrino episcopo, qui cum consilio papae Honorii venerat Britanniam, promittens quidem se illo praesente in intimis ultra Anglorum partibus, quo nullus doctor praecessisset, sanctae fidei semina esse sparsurum. Unde et jussu ejusdem pontificis per Asterium, Genuensem episcopum in episcopatus consecratus est gradum. Sed Britanniam perveniens, ac primum Gevissorum gentem ingrediens, cum omnes ibidem paganissimos inveniret, utilius esse ratus est, ibi potius verbum Dei praedicare quam ultra progrediens eos quibus praedicare deberet inquirere. Itaque evangelizante illo in praefata provincia, cum rex ipse catechizatus fonte baptismi cum sua gente ablueretur, contigit tunc temporis sanctissimum ac victoriosissimum regem Nordanhumbrorum, Oswaldum affuisse, eumque de lavacro exeuntem suscepisse, ac pulcherrimo prorsus et Deo digno confortio, cujus erat filiam accepturus in conjugem, ipsum prius secunda generatione Deo dedicatum sibi accepit in filium. Donaverunt ergo ambo reges eidem episcopo civitatem quae vocatur Dorcicca, ad faciendam inibi sedem episcopalem. Ubi factis dedicatisque ecclesiis, multisque ad Dominum pro ejus labore populis advocatis, migravit ad Dominum. Sepultusque in eadem civitate, et post annos multos Hedde episcopatum agente, translatus inde in Ventam civitatem, atque in ecclesia beatorum apostolorum Petri et Pauli positus est.

Defuncto autem et rege, successit in regnum filius ejus Coinwalch, qui et fidem et sacramenta regni caelestis suscipere renuit; et non multo post etiam regni terrestri potentiam perdidit. Repudiata enim sorore Pendan regis

Merciorum, quam duxerat, aliam accepit uxorem. Ideoque bello petitus, ac regno privatus ab illo, secessit ad regem orientalium Anglorum, cui nomen erat Anna, apud quem triennio exulans fidem cognovit, ac suscepit veritatis. Nam et ipse, apud quem exulabat, rex erat vir bonus, et bona ac sancta sobole felix, ut in sequentibus docebimus. Cum vero restitutus esset in regnum Coinwalch, venit in provinciam de Hibernia pontifex quidam nomine Agilbertus, natione quidem Gallus, sed tunc legendarum gratia Scripturarum in Hibernia non parvo tempore demoratus; conjunxitque se regi, sponte ministerium praedicandi assumens: cujus eruditionem atque industriam videns rex, rogavit eum, accepta ibi sede episcopali, suae genti manere pontificem. Qui precibus ejus annuens, multis annis eidem genti sacerdotali jure praefuit. Tandem rex, qui Saxonum linguam tantum noverat, pertaesus barbarae loquelae, subintrodixit in provinciam alium suae linguae episcopum, vocabulo Vini, et ipsum in Gallia ordinatum. Dividensque in duas paroecias provinciam, huic in civitate Venta, quae a gente Saxonum Vintancestir appellatur, sedem episcopalem tribuit. Unde offensus graviter Agilbertus, quod haec ipso inconsulto ageret rex, rediit Galliam, et accepto episcopatu Parisiaca civitatis, ibidem senex et plenus dierum obiit. Non multis autem annis post abscessum ejus a Britannia transactis, pulsus est Vini ab eodem rege de episcopatu, qui secedens ad regem Merciorum, vocabulo Vulfheri, emit pretio ab eodem sedem Londoniae civitatis, ejusque episcopus usque ad vitae suae terminum mansit. Sicque provincia occidentalium Saxonum tempore non paucis absque praefule fuit. Quo etiam tempore rex praefatus ipsius gentis, gravissimis regni sui damnis faepissime pissime ab hostibus afflicto, tandem ad memoriam reduxit, quod eum quem pridem perfidia regno depulerit, fide agnita Christi in regnum revocaverit. Intellexitque quod etiam tunc destituta pontifice provincia, recte pariter divino fuerit destituta praesidio. Misit ergo legatarios in Galliam ad Agilbertum, submissa illum satisfactione deprecans ad episcopatum suae gentis redire. At ille se excusans, et eo venire non posse contestans, quia episcopatu propriae civitatis ac parochiae teneretur astrictus; ne tamen obnix petenti nil ferret auxilii, misit pro se illo presbyterum Eleutherium nomine, nepotem suum, qui ei, si vellet, ordinaretur episcopus, dicens: quod ipse eum dignum esse episcopatu iudicaret. Quo honorifice a populo et a rege suscepto, rogaverunt Theodorum, tunc archiepiscopum Dorovernensis ecclesiae ipsum sibi antistitem consecrari. Qui consecratus in ipsa civitate, multis annis episcopatum Gevissorum ex synodica sanctione solus sedulo moderamine gessit.

Nota. The conversion of the Westsaxons (sunt verba clar. USSERII in MSS. notis ad locum) was after this time: and being done by the counsel of pope Honorius sending Byrinus into Britain, should rather have been referred unto his times; the latter part also, wherein mention is made of Theodorus, archbishop of Canterbury, being to be referred unto lower times than that also. Haec USSERIUS.

Apparet e novissimis hic Bedae verbis, fuisse sub hoc tempore concilium a Theodoro, Dorobernensi archiepiscopo celebratum, in quo episcopatus occidentalium Saxonum, qui nuper a Coinwalcho rege in duas parochias divisus fuit (Dorincensem nempe et Wintanensem) jam in unum denuo coalescere sancitum est.

Conversio orientalium Anglorum. Ex Matt. Westmonast. [Ann. Dom. DCXXXII. Spelm. vol. I. p. 139. seq.]

“ANNO gratiae DCXXXII. rex orientalium Anglorum Eorpenwaldus, hortatu regis Eadwini, fidem Christi suscepit. Verum postquam cum omni gente sua per Felicem episcopum credidit, non multum vixit, quia a viro gentili, nomine Regberto, occisus est. Exinde tribus annis provincia illa in errore permansit. Fuit autem Felix episcopus memoratus, natione Burgundus, quem ad illam provinciam Honorius, Cantuariensis archiepiscopus tandem miserat ad praedicandum, accepitque sedem episcopatus in civitate Dommoc, ubi cum septemdecim annis pontificale officium complevisset, in pace vitam finivit.” Haec MAT. WESTM. sed Bedam Hist. Eccl. lib. III. cap. xviii. una accipe.

“His temporibus regni orientalium Anglorum, post Eorpwaldum Redualdi successorem, Sigbertus frater ejus praefuit, homo bonus ac religiosus, qui dudum in Gallia, dum inimicitias Redualdi fugiens exularet, lavacrum baptismi percepit, et patriam reversus, ubi regno potitus est, mox ea quae in Galliis bene disposita vidit, imitari cupiens, instituit scholam in qua pueri literis erudirentur, juvante se episcopo Felice, quem de Cantia acceperat, eisque paedagogos ac magistros juxta morem Cantuariorum praebente. Tantumque rex ille caelestis regni amator factus est, ut ad ultimum relictis regni negotiis, et cognato suo Ecgrico commendatis, qui et antea partem ejusdem regni tenebat, intraret monasterium quod sibi fecerat, atque accepta tonsura, pro aeterno magis regno militare curaret. Quod dum multo tempore faceret, contigit gentem Merciorum duce rege Penda adversus orientales Anglos in bellum procedere. Qui dum se inferiores in bello hostibus conspicerent, rogaverunt Sigbertum ad confirmandum militem secum venire in praelium. Illo nolente ac contradicente, invitum de monasterio eruentes duxerunt in certamen sperantes minus animos militum trepidare, minus praesente duce quondam strenuissimo et eximio, posse de fuga meditari. Sed ipse professionis suae non immemor, dum optimo esset vallatus exercitu, non nisi virgam tamen habere in manu voluit. Occisusque est una cum rege Ecgrico, et cunctus eorum, insistentibus paganis, caesus sive dispersus exercitus.”

Conversio Anglorum mediterraneorum. Ex Beda Hist. Eccl. lib. III. cap. xxi. [Ann. Dom. DCLV. Ibidem p. 143.]

HIS temporibus Midilengli, id est, mediterranei Angli sub principe Peada filio Pandan regis, fidem et sacramenta veritatis perceperunt. Qui cum esset juvenis optimus, ac regis nomine ac persona dignissimus, praelatus est a patre regno gentis illius. Venitque ad regem Nordanhumbrorum Oswi, postulans filiam ejus Alchfledam sibi conjugem dari, neque aliter quod petebat impetrare potuit, nisi fidem Christi ac baptismum, cum gente cui praeerat, acciperet. At ille audita praedicatione veritatis, et promissione regni caelestis, speque resurrectionis nis, ac futurae immortalitatis, libenter se christianum fieri velle confessus est, etiam si virginem non acciperet, persuasus maxime ad percipiendam fidem a filio regis Oswi, nomine Alchfrido, qui erat cognatus et amicus ejus, habens sororem ipsius conjugem vocabulo Cymburgam filiam Pandan regis. Baptizatus est ergo a Finano episcopo, cum omnibus qui secum venerant comitibus ac militibus, eorumque famulis universis, in vico regis illustri qui vocatur Admurum. Et acceptis quatuor presbyteris, qui ad docendam baptizandamque gentem illius, et eruditione et vita videbantur idonei, multo cum gaudio reversus est. Erant autem presbyteri Cedda, et Adda, et Betti, et Diuna, quorum ultimus natione Scotus, caeteri fuere Angli. Adda autem erat frater Uttan presbyteri illustris, et abbatis monasterii quod vocatur ad Capreae caput, cujus supra meminimus.

Venientes igitur in provinciam memorati sacerdotes cum principe, praedicabant verbum, et libenter auditi sunt. Multique quotidie et nobilium et infimorum abrenunciata sorde idololatriae, fidei sunt fonte abluti. Nec prohibuit Penda rex, quinetiam in sua, hoc est, Merciorum natione, verbum, si qui vellent audire, praedicaretur. Quin potius odio habebat, et despiciebat eos, quos fide Christi imbutos opera fidei non habere deprehendit, dicens contemnendos et miseros esse eos, qui Deo suo in quem crederent, obedire contemnerent. Coepta sunt haec biennio ante mortem Pendae regis. Ipso autem occiso, cum Oswi rex christianissimus regnum ejus acciperet, ut in sequentibus dicemus, factus est Diuna unus ex praefatis quatuor sacerdotibus episcopus mediterraneorum Anglorum simul et Merciorum ordinatus a Finano episcopo. Paucitas enim sacerdotum cogebat unum antistitem duobus populis praefici, etc.

Conversio Merciorum, occiso jam Penda rege suo. Ex Bed. lib. III. cap. xxiv. et Florileg. in anno DCLV. [Spelm. vol. I. p. 144. seq.]

His temporibus rex Oswi cum acerbas et intolerabiles pateretur irruptiones saepe dicti regis Merciorum [Pendae] qui fratrem ejus occiderat, ad ultimum necessitate cogente, promisit se ei innumera, et majora quam credi potest, ornamenta regia vel donaria in pretium pacis largiturum, dummodo ille domum rediret, et provincias regni ejus usque ad internecionem vastare desineret. Cumque rex perfidus, nullatenus precibus illius assensum praeberet, qui totam ejus gentem a parvo usque ad magnum delere, atque exterminare decreverat, respexit ille ad divinae auxilium pietatis, quo ab impietate barbarica posset eripi; votoque se obligans, si paganus inquit, nescit accipere nostra donaria, offeramus ei, qui novit, Domino Deo nostro. Vovit ergo quod si victor existeret, filiam suam Domino sacra virginitate dicandam offerret, simulque duodecim possessiones praediorum ad construenda monasteria donaret, et sic cum paucissimo exercitu se certamini dedit. Denique fertur, quod tricies majorem pagani habuerint exercitum, siquidem ipsi triginta legiones ducibus nobilissimis instructas in bello habuere. Quibus Oswi rex cum Alchfrido filio perparvum, ut dixi, habens exercitum, sed Christo duce confusus occurrit. Nam alius filius ejus Ecfrid eo tempore in provincia Merciorum apud reginam Cinuisse obses tenebatur. Filius autem Oswaldi regis Edilwald qui eis auxilio esse debuerat, in parte erat adversariorum, eisdemque contra patriam et patruum suum pugnaturis ductor extiterat, quamvis ipso tempore pugnandi sese pugnae subtraxerat, eventumque discriminis tuto in loco expectabat. Inito ergo certamine fugati sunt, et caesi pagani duces regii triginta, et qui ad auxilium venerant pene omnes interfecti, in quibus Edilhere, frater Annae regis orientalium Anglorum, qui post eum regnavit auctor ipse belli, perditis militibus sive auxiliis interemptus est. Et quia prope fluvium Juwet pugnatum est, qui tunc prae inundantia pluviarum late alveum suum, imo omnes ripas suas transierat, contigit, ut multo plures aqua fugientes, quam bellantes perderet ensis. Tunc rex Oswi, juxta quod Domino voverat pro collata sibi victoria, gratias Deo referens, dedit filiam suam Elfedam, quae vix dum unius anni aetatem impleverat, perpetua ei virginitate consecrandam, donatis insuper duodecim possessiunculis terrarum, in quibus ablato studio militiae terrestri, ad exercendam militiam caelestem supplicandumque pro pace gentis ejus aeterna devotioni sedulae monachorum locus facultasque suppeteret. E quibus videlicet possessiunculis sex in provincia Deirorum, sex in Berniciorum dedit. Singulae vero possessiones decem erant familiarum, id est, simul omnes centum viginti. Intravit autem praefata regis Oswi filia Deo dicanda monasterium quod nuncupatur Heruteu, id est, insula cervi, cui tunc Hilda abbatissa praefuit. Quae post biennium comparata possessione decem familiarum, in loco qui dicitur Streaneshalch ibi monasterium construxit. In quo memorata regis filia primo discipula vitae regularis, deinde etiam magistra extitit, donec completo sexaginta annorum numero ad complexum et nuptias sponso caelestis virgo beata intraret. In quo monasterio et ipsa, et pater ejus Oswi, et mater ejus Eanfled, et pater matris ejus Edwinus, et multi alii nobiles in ecclesia S. Petri apostoli sepulti sunt.

Hoc autem bellum rex Oswi in regione Loidis tertio decimo regni sui anno, decimo septimo die calendarum Decembrium, cum magna utriusque populi utilitate confecit. Nam et suam gentem ab hostili paganorum depopulatione liberavit, et ipsam gentem Merciorum finitimarumque provinciarum, defecto capite perfido, ad fidei christianae gratiam convertit. Primus autem in provincia Merciorum simul et Lindisfarorum ac mediterraneorum Anglorum factus est episcopus Diuna, ut supra diximus, qui apud mediterraneos Anglos defunctus ac sepultus est. Secundus Cellach, etc.

Oswi rex Nordanumbrorum et Ecgbertus Cantiorum, Vitaliano papae Romam mittunt, ut ejus de Paschate judicium referatur, qui suis literis hoc denunciat. Ex Bed. Hist. Eccl. lib. III. cap. xxix. [Circa ann. Dom. DCLXVII. Spelm. vol. I. p. 150.]

His temporibus reges Anglorum nobilissimi, Oswi provinciae Nordanumbrorum, et Ecgbert Cantuariorum, habito inter se consilio quid de statu ecclesiae Anglorum esset agendum: intellexerat enim veraciter Oswi, quamvis educatus à Scotis, quia Romana esset catholica et apostolica ecclesia, assumpserunt cum electione et consensu sanctae ecclesiae gentis Anglorum virum bonum et aptum episcopatu presbyterum nomine Vighardum, de clero Deusdedit archiepiscopi, et hunc antistitem ordinandum Romam miserunt, quatenus accepto ipse gradu archiepiscopatus, catholicos per omnem Britanniam ecclesiis Anglorum ordinare posset antistites. Verum Vighardus Romam perveniens, priusquam consecrari in episcopum posset, morte praereptus est, et hujusmodi literae regi Oswi Britanniam remissae sunt.

MORTUIS Deusdedit Dorobernensi archiepiscopo, et, quem ad capeffendum locum ejus Egbertus Cantiorum, et Oswius Northumbrorum reges Romam miserant, Wighardo Anglo quodam erudito: Vitalianus papa in archiepiscopatum sufficit Theodorum, Graecum monachum, cum in moribus, tum in literis illustrem admodum et laudatum. Ne quid tamen contra Romanos ritus in ecclesiam Anglicanam introduceret, speculatorem ei imposuit, atque remoram, Adrianum abbatem Veridanum, non longe a Neapoli, Afrum natione, sed aetate venerandum, et in sacris literis, omnique eruditionis genere instructissimum. Fefellit autem quod sub initio metuebat Vitalianum: Theodoro enim nemo acrius promovebat Romanos ritus et ecclesiae canones: quos et peragratus totam insulam, ubique stabilivit, et quod antea nulli obtigisset, omnis ecclesia Anglicana ei primo libenter se subjecit.

Perhibent etiam antiquitates ecclesiae Christi Cantuariæ, in vita Theodori, Theodorum istum Cantuariensem provinciam per parochias primum distribuisse: fierique hoc designat in vita Ercomb. Stowus haud longe post excessum Ercomberti regis Cantiorum, cui male non quadrabunt priores anni pontificatus Theodori.

Modus imponendi poenitentiam a Theodoro archiepiscopo institutus. Ibidem p. 154.]

CONSTITUIT praeterea Theodorus archiepiscopus Doroberniae, poenitenciales regulas copiosas, omni peccantium peccatorumque generi, qua ille potuit providentia, imponendas: de quibus Regino abbas Prumiensis sic in chronico suo sub anno Dom. DLXXVI. qui mendose admodum ponitur, ut numeri illic et alia plurima solent, Theodorus enim nec pontificalem ascendit cathedram, nec in Angliam venit per centum deinceps pene annos, si fastis nostris fides. Corrigendum igitur tempus: sed rem attende. “Per id,” inquit, “tempus Theodorus archiepiscopus, et Adrianus abbas doctissimus a Vitaliano papa missi sunt in Britanniam, plurimasque ecclesias Anglorum doctrinae apostolicae fruge foecundarunt, e quibus Theodorus archiepiscopus peccantium judicia, quantis scilicet annis pro unoquoque peccato quis poenitere debeat, mirabili et discreta consideratione describit.”

Habetur in celebri bibliotheca S. Benedicti Cantabrigiensis, liber iste poenitentialis Theodori, archiepiscopi Doroberniae: sed cum prolixior sit quam ut commode hic inferatur, nec facile concedatur venia transcribendi totum codicem, nos capitula solummodo vel potius capitulorum fastigia annectemus.

Cantus et curſus Romanus juffu Agathonis papae in Britanniam advehuntur a Jobanne, archicantore eccleſiae S. Petri Romae. Ex Bed. Hiſt. Eccl. lib. IV. cap. xviii. [Ann. Dom. DCLXXX. Spelm. vol. I. p. 175. ſeq.]

INTERERAT huic ſynodo, pariterque catholicae fidei decreta firmabat vir venerabilis Johannes, archicantor eccleſiae ſancti Petri, et abbas monaſterii beati Martini, qui nuper venerat a Roma per juffionem papae Agathonis, duce reverendiſſimo abbate Biſcopo, cognomine Bene-dicto, cujus ſupra meminimus. Cum autem idem Benedictus conſtruxiſſet monaſterium Britanniae, in honorem beatiffimi apoſtolorum principis juxta oſtium fluminis Wyri, venit Romam cum cooperatore ac ſocio ejusdem operis Ceolfrido, qui poſt ipſum ejusdem monaſterii abbas fuit fuit, quod et ante saepius facere consueverat, atque honorifice a beatae memoriae papa Agathone susceptus est: petiitque et accepit ab eo in munimentum libertatis monasterii, quod fecerat epistolam privilegii ex auctoritate apostolica firmatam, juxta quod Ecgfridum regem voluisse ac licentiam dedisse noverat, quo concedente et possessionem terrae largiente, ipsum monasterium fecerat.

Accepit et praefatum Joannem abbatem Britanniam perducendum, quatenus in monasterio suo cursum canendi annum, sicut ad sanctum Petrum Romae agebatur, edoceret. Egitque abbas Joannes, ut jussionem acceperat pontificis, et ordinem, videlicet ritumque canendi ac legendi viva voce praefati monasterii cantores edocendo, et ea quae totius anni circulus in celebratione dierum festorum poscebat, etiam literis mandando: quae haecenus in eodem monasterio servata, et a multis jam sunt circumquaque transcripta. Non solum autem idem Joannes ipsius monasterii fratres docebat, verum de omnibus pene ejusdem provinciae monasteriis ad audiendum eum, qui cantandi erant periti confluebant. Sed et ipsum, per loca in quibus doceret, multi invitare curabant.

Nota. Haec et huc BEDA. Quoniam vero in cantus et cursus ecclesiasticos jam incidimus, non a re futurum existimo, si ejusdem argumenti narrationem adjiciamus, quam exhibuit mihi aliquando codex MS. vetustissimus, caractere quidem non plane Saxonico, sed infueto magis, et Latinitate adeo rudi saepe et male cohaerenti, ut sub illo seculo exaratum putes, de quo rex celeberrimus [Praefat. Alur. ad Pastoral. Greg.] Aluredus, qui obiit ann. Chr. DCCCCI. haec lugens retulit: "Paucissimos fuisse citra Humbrum fluvium, qui liturgiam suam norunt Anglice, vel epistolam e Latino redderent in vernaculum. Pauciores proculdubio ultra Humbrum. Adeo equidem [inquit] paucos, ut ne vel unum memini ex australi Thamesis parte, cum in folio primum collocatus essem."

Narrationem habe suis omnino apicibus, nulla a me vel nota adhibita, vel emendationis industria, ne perspicaciorum forte acumini fucum obducerem, aliis abreptus.

Cantum et cursum ecclesiasticorum origo ex codice MS. vetustissimo. [Spelm. vol. I. p. 176. seqq.]

SI sedulo inspiciamus cursus autores, in exordium reperimus decantatum fuisse, non sicut aliqui imperiti fuisse, vel variae objectione pertulerunt, adhuc multi conantur fore.

Beatus Trofimius, episcopus Arelatensis, et sanctus Photinus martyr, et episcopus Lugdunensis; discipulus S. Petri apostoli, sicut et refert Josephus et Eusebius Caesariensis episcopus, cursum Romanum in Galliis * tradiderunt.

Inde postea relatione beati Photini martyris, cum quadraginta et octo martyribus, retrusi ergastulum, relatione ad beatum Clementem IV. loci successoris beati Petri apostoli deportaverunt, et beatum Irenaeum episcopum beatus Clemens ordinavit. Hoc in libro sancti ipsius Irenaei episcopi et martyris reperies. Edoctus a beato Polycarpo Smyrnaeorum episcopo et martyre, qui fuit discipulus Joannis apostoli, sicut refert historiographus Josephus et Irenaeus episcop. in suo libro.

Joannes evangelista primum cursum Gallo- rum decantavit: inde postea beatus Polycarpus discipulus sancti Joannis. Inde postea Irenaeus qui fuit episcopus Lugdunensis Galliae tertius ipse, ipsum cursum decantavit in Galliis.

Inde et modulationibus, series scripturarum Novi ac Veteris Testamenti, diversorum prudentium virorum paginis, non de propriis, sed de sacris scripturis receperunt antiphonias et responforia, seu sonos et alleluias composuerunt, et per universum orbem terrarum, ordo cursus est. Non sicut multi opinantur, ut Gallicanus quidam clericus Britto modulationi deditus quod ipsum edidisset, quod non facit quod beatus Hieronymus presbyter, Germanus et Lupus episcopi, Pelagianam haeresim vel Gallianam, quae nomen ipsius titulatur, ex Britannis et Scotis provinciis expulerunt, unde alium cursum qui dicitur praesente tempore Scotorum, quae sa opinione jactatur.

Sed beatus Marcus evangelista, sicut refert Josephus et Eusebius in quarto libro, per totam Aegyptum vel Italiam taliter praedicaverunt sicut unam ecclesiam, ut omnis sanctus, vel Gloria in excelsis Deo, vel oratione dominica, et Amen universi tam viri quam foeminae decantarent. Tanta fuit sua praedicatio unita, et postea evangelium ex ore Petri apostoli edidit.

Beatus Hieronymus adfirmat, ipsum cursum qui dicitur praesente tempore Scotorum, beatus Marcus decantavit, et post ipsum Gregorius Nanzzenus, quem Hieronymus suum magistrum esse adfirmat. Et beatus Basilius frater ipsius sancti Gregorii, Antonius Paulus, Macarius, vel Joannes et Malchus secundum ordinem patrum decantaverunt.

Inde postea beatissimus Cassianus, qui Livorensi monasterio beatum Honorium habuit comparem. Et post ipsum beatus Honoratus primus abbas et S. Caesarius episcopus qui fuit in Arelata, et beatus Porcarius abbas qui in ipso monasterio fuit, ipsum cursum decantaverunt, qui beatum Lupum et beatum Germanum monachos: in eorum monasterio habuerunt. Et ipsi sub normam regulae ipsum cursum ibidem decantaverunt, et postea in episcopatus cathedra summi honoris pro reverentia sanctitatis eorum sunt adepti.

Et postea in Britannis vel Scotiis praedicaverunt, quae vita Germani episcopi Antifiodorensis, et vita beati Lupi adfirmat, qui beatum

* Quae hic a nonnullis mendis expurgata sunt, clar. Salmasii curis debentur.

Patricium spiritualiter literas sacras docuerunt atque enutrierunt, et ipsum episcopum pro eorum praedicatione archiepiscopum in Scotiis et Britannii posuerunt, qui vixit annos centum quinquaginta tres, et ipsum cursum ibidem decantavit.

Et post ipsum beatus Wandilochus senex, et beatus Gomogillus, qui habuerunt in eorum monasterio monachos circiter tria millia.

Inde beatus Wandilochus in praedicationis ministerium abbato. Gomogillo missus est; et beatus Columbanus partibus Galliarum destinati sunt Luxogilum monasterium, et ibidem ipsum cursum decantaverunt.

Et inde postea percreebuit formam sanctitatis eorum per universum orbem terrarum, et multa coenobia ex eorum doctrina tam virorum quam puellarum sunt congregata.

Et postea inde sumpsit exordium sub beato Columbano, quod ante beatus Marcus evangelista decantavit, et si nos non creditis, inquire in vita beati Columbani et beati Eastasi abbatis, plenius invenietis, et dicta beati Attheleti abbatis Ebovensis.

Est alius cursus orientalis a sancto Cromachio et Eliodoro; et beato Paulino, seu et Athanasio episcopo editus, qui in Gallorum consuetudine non habetur, quae sanctus Macarius decantavit, hoc est, per duodenas, hoc est, unaquaque hora.

Est et alius cursus quem refert beatus Augustinus episcopus, quem beatus Ambrosius propter haereticorum ordinem dissimilem composuit, quem. in Italia antea decantabatur.

Est et alius cursus beati Benedicti, qui ipsum singulariter paucis discordante a cursu Romano quem in sua regula reperis scriptum: sed tamen beatus Gregorius, urbis Romae pontifex, quasi privilegium monachis ipsum sua auctoritate in vita S. Benedicti in libro Dialogorum adfirmavit, ubi dixit, "Non aliter sanctus vir docere, nisi sicut ipse beatus Benedictus vixit."

Conversio australium Saxonum a Wilfrido episcopo facta. Ex Bed. lib. IV. ca. xiii.

PULSUS est autem ab episcopatu suo Wilfridus, et multa diu loca pervagatus Romam adiit, Britanniam rediit. Et si propter inimicitias memorati regis in patriam sive parochiam suam recipi non potuit, non tamen ab evangelizandi potuit ministerio cohiberi. Siquidem divertens ad provinciam australium Saxonum, quae post Cantuarios ad austrum et ad occidentem, usque ad occidentales Saxones pertingit, habens terram familiarum septem millium, et eo adhuc tempore paganis cultibus serviebat, huic verbum fidei et lavacrum salutis ministrabat. Erat autem rex gentis illius Edilwalch non multo ante baptizatus in provincia Merciorum, praesente ac suggerente rege Vulfhere. A quo etiam egressus de fonte loco filii susceptus est, in cuius signum adoptionis duas illi provincias donavit, Vectam videlicet insulam, et Meanuarorum provinciam in gente occidentalium Saxonum. Itaque episcopus, concedente, imo multum gaudente rege, primos provinciae duces ac milites sacrosancto fonte abluebat. Verum presbyteri Eappa, et Padda, et Bruchelin, et Oidda caeteram plebem vel tunc, vel tempore sequente baptizabant. Porro regina nomine Ebba in sua insula, id est, Vicciorum provincia fuerat baptizata. Erat autem filia Eanfridi fratris Eanheri, qui ambo cum suo populo Christiani fuere. Caeterum tota provincia australium Saxonum divini nominis et fidei erat ignara. Erat autem ibi monachus quidam de natione Scotorum, vocabulo Dicul, habens monasterium permodicum in loco qui vocatur Bosanham sylvis et mari circumdatum, et in eo fratres quinque sive sex in humili et paupere vita Domino famulantes. Sed provincialium nullus eorum vel vitam aemulari, vel praedicationem curabat audire. Evangelizans autem genti episcopus Wilfridus, non solum eam ab aerumna perpetuae damnationis, verum et a clade infanda temporalis interitus e-ripuit. Siquidem tribus annis ante adventum ejus in provinciam nulla illis in locis pluvia ceciderat. Unde et fames acerbissima plebem invadens impia nece prostravit. Denique fertur, quia saepe quadraginta simul aut quinquaginta homines inedia macerati procederent ad praecipitium aliquod sive ripam maris, et junctis misere manibus pariter omnes aut ruina perituri, aut fluctibus absorbendi deciderent. Verum ipso die quo baptismi fidei gens suscepit illa, descendit pluvia serena et copiosa, refluavit terra, rediitque viridantibus arvis annus laetus et frugifer. Sicque abjecta prisca superstitione, exsufflata idololatria, cor omnium et caro omnium exultaverunt in Deum vivum, intelligentes eum, qui verus est Deus, et interioribus se bonis, et exterioribus caelesti gratia ditasse. Nam et antistes cum venisset in provinciam, tantamque ibi famis poenam videret, docuit eos piscando victum quaerere. Namque mare et flumina eorum piscibus abundabant. Sed piscandi peritia genti nulla nisi ad anguillas tantum inerat. Collectis ergo undecunque retibus anguillaribus homines antistitis miserunt in mare, et divina se juvante gratia mox cepere pisces diversi generis trecentos. Quibus trifariam divisus, centum pauperibus dederunt, centum his a quibus retia acceperunt, centum in suos usus habebant. Quo beneficio multum antistes cor omnium in suum divertit amorem, et libentius eo praedicante caelestia sperare coeperunt, cuius ministerio temporalia bona sumpserunt. Quo tempore rex Edilwalch donavit reverendissimo antistiti Wilfrido terram octoginta septem familiarum, ubi suos homines qui exules vagabantur, recipere posset, vocabulo Selescu, quod dicitur Latine insula vituli marini. Est autem locus ille undique mari circumdatus praeter ab occidente, unde habet ingressum amplitudinis quasi jactus fundae: qualis locus a Latinis peninsula, a Graecis solet Cherronesos vocari. Hunc ergo locum cum cum accepisset episcopus Wilfridus, fundavit ibi monasterium, ac regulari vita instituit, maxime ex his quos secum adduxerat fratribus, quod usque hodie successores ejus tenere noscuntur. Nam ipse illis in partibus annos quinque, id est, usque ad mortem Ecgfridi regis, merito omnibus honorabilis, officium episcopatus et verbo exercebat et opere. Et quoniam illi rex cum praefata loci possessione omnes quae ibidem erant facultates cum agris et hominibus donavit, omnes fide Christi institutos unda baptismatis abluit. Inter quos servos et ancillas ducentos quinquaginta, quos omnes non solum baptizando a servitute daemonica salvavit, sed etiam libertatem donando humanae jugo servitutis absolvit.

Conversio Vectensium (i. e. eorum qui Vectam insulam incolunt) Wilfrido episcopo praedicante. Ex Bed. H. E. lib. IV. cap. xvi. [Circa ann. Dom. DCLXXXVII. Spelm. vol. I. p. 180. seq.]

POSTQUAM ergo Ceadualla regno potitus est Gevissorum, cepit et insulam Vectam, quae eatenus erat tota idololatriae dedita, ac tragica caede omnes indigenas exterminare, ac suae provinciae homines pro his substituere contendit; voto se obligans, quamvis pondum regeneratus (ut fertur) in Christo: quia si cepisset insulam, quartam partem ejus, simul & praedae Domino daret. Quod ita solvit, ut hanc Wilfrido episcopo, qui tunc forte de gente sua superveniens aderat, utendam pro Domino offerret. Est autem mensura ejusdem insulae juxta aestimationem Anglorum mille ducentarum familiarum: unde data est episcopo possessio terrae trecentarum familiarum. At ipse partem quam accepit, commendavit cuidam de clericis suis, cui nomen Bernuvin, et erat filius sororis ejus, dans illi presbyterum nomine Hildila, qui omnibus qui salvari vellent, verbum ac lavacrum vitae ministraret. Ubi silentio praetereundum non esse reor, quod in primitias eorum, qui de eadem insula credendo salvati sunt, duo regii pueri, fratres videlicet Arvaldi regis insulae, speciali sunt Dei gratia coronati. Siquidem imminentibus insulae hostibus fuga lapsi sunt de insula, et in proximam Vitorum provinciam translati. Ubi cum delati ad locum qui vocatur "Ad lapidem," occultandos se a facie regis victoris credidissent, proditi sunt, atque occidi jussi. Quod cum audisset abbas quidam et presbyter vocabulo Cimberth, habens non longe abinde monasterium in loco qui vocatur Reodford, id est, vadum arundinis, venit ad regem, qui tunc iisdem in partibus occultus curabatur a vulneribus, quae ei inflicta fuerant praelianti in insula Vecta, postulavitque ab eo, ut si necesse esset pueros interfici, prius eos liceret fidei christianaе sacramento imbui. Concessit rex, et ipse instructos eos verbo veritatis, ac fonte * salutari ablutos, de ingressu regni aeterni certos reddidit. Moxque illi instante carnifice mortem laeti subiere temporalem, per quam se ad vitam animae perpetuam non dubitabant esse transuros.

Hoc ergo ordine postquam omnes Britanniarum provinciae fidem Christi susceperant, suscepit et insula Vecta: in qua tamen ob aerumnas externae subjectionis, nemo gradum ministerii ac sedis episcopalis ante Daniele, qui nunc occidentalium Saxonum et Gevissorum est episcopus, accepit. Sita est autem haec insula contra medium australium Saxonum et Gevissorum; interposito pelago latitudinis trium millium, quod vocant "Solente:" in quo videlicet pelago bini aestus oceani, qui circum Britanniam ex infinito oceano septentrionali erumpunt, sibi invicem quotidie compugnantes occurrunt, ultra ostium fluminis Homelea, quod per terras Vitorum, quae ad regionem Gevissorum pertinent, praefatum pelagus intrat, finitoque conflictu, in oceanum refusi, unde venerant, redeunt.

Epistola Sergii papae ad Ceolfridum abbatem monasterii D. D. Petri et Pauli (quod est ad Wirimundam et Ingeruum) de Beda venerabili Romam transmittendo. Ex W. Malmesb. De gest. reg. lib. I. cap. iii. [Ibidem p. 181.]

SEGIUS episcopus, servus servorum Dei, Celfrido religioso abbati salutem. Quibus verbis ac modis clementiam Dei nostri, atque inenarrabilem providentiam possumus effari, et dignas gratiarum actiones pro immensis circa nos ejus beneficiis persolvere, qui in tenebris et umbra mortis positos ad lumen scientiae producit. Et infra; benedictionis interea gratiam quam nobis per praesentem portitorem tua misit devota religio, libenter et hilari animo, sicuti ab ea directa est nos suscepisse cognosce. Opportunis ergo ac dignis amplectendae tuae sollicitudinis petitionibus arctissima devotione faventes, hortamur Deo dilectam tuae religiositatis bonitatem, ut, quia exortis quibusdam ecclesiasticarum causarum capitulis, non sine examinatione longius innotescendis opus nobis sunt ad conferendum arte literaturae imbuti, sicut decet Deo devotum auxiliatorem sanctae matris universalis ecclesiae, obedientem devotionem huic nostrae hortationi non desistas accommodare, sed absque aliqua remotione religiosum Dei famulum Bedam venerabilis monasterii tui presbyterum ad limina apostolorum principum dominorum meorum Petri et Pauli amatorum tuorum ac protectorum, ad nostrae mediocritatis

conspectum non moreris dirigere, quem favente Deo sanctis tuis precibus non diffidas prospere ad te redire, peracta praemissorum capitulorum cum auxilio Dei desiderata solennitate; erit enim, ut confidimus, etiam cunctis tibi creditis profuturum, quicquid ecclesiae generali claruerit per ejus praestantiam impertitum.

Berctwald, alias Berhtwaldus et Brithwaldus fit Cantuariæ VIII. archiepiscopus.

Ex Antiquit. Britann. pag. 83. et Beda lib. V. H. E. cap. ix. [Ann. Dom. DCXCIII. Spelm. vol. I. p. 181. seq.]

MORTUO Theodoro, et vacante per biennium pene archiepiscopatu, sufficitur in locum ejus Berctwaldus, secundus ex Anglosaxonibus, qui hanc obtinuit eminentiam. Primus enim fuit Deusdedit Theodori praedecessor. Successit (inquit Beda) Theodoro in episcopatu Berehtwaldus, qui erat abbas in monasterio quodam juxta ostium aquilonare fluminis Genlade positum, quod Racuulf nuncupatur. Vir et ipse scientia scripturarum imbutus, et ecclesiasticis simul et monasterialibus disciplinis summe instructus, tametsi praedecessori suo minime comparandus: qui electus est quidem in episcopa-tum anno dominicae Incarnationis sexcentesimo nonagesimo secundo, die primo mensis Julii, regnantibus in Cantia Wichtredo et Suebhardo. Ordinatus autem anno sequente, tertio die calendarum Juliarum Dominica, a Godwino metropolitano episcopo Galliarum: et sedit in sede sua pridie calendarum Septembrium Dominica: qui inter multos quos ordinavit antistites, etiam Gebmundo Rhofensis ecclesiae praefule defuncto, Tobiam pro illo consecravit, virum Latina, Graeca, et Saxonica lingua, atque eruditione multipliciter instructum.

Concilium magnum Becanceldae anno Christi DCXCII. celebratum, praesidente Withredo rege Cantii, necnon Bertuvaldo, archiep. Britanniae, cum Tobia, episcopo Roffensi, abbatibus, abbatissis, presbyteris, diaconibus, ducibus, satrapis, etc. in quo ecclesiae liberae fiunt ab omni tributo et exactione seculari, earumque res a laicorum jure et injuria eximuntur. [Ex Spelm. vol. I. p. 189. seqq.]

IN nomine Domini Dei nostri et salvatoris Jesu Christi, congregatum est magnum concilium in loco qui nominatur Becancelde. Praesidente autem eodem concilio Withredo, clementissimo rege Cantuariorum, necnon Bertuvaldo, reverendissimo archiepiscopo Britanniae, simulque Tobia, episcopo Roffensis ecclesiae, caeterisque abbatibus, abbatissis, presbyteris, diaconibus, ducibus, satrapis in unum glomeratis: pariter tractantes, anxie examinantes de statu ecclesiarum Dei vel monasteriorum intra Cantiam, quae a fidelibus regibus praedecessoribus meis et propinquis Deo omnipotenti in propriam haereditatem condonata fuerunt, quomodo vel qualiter secundum normam aequitatis stare, quidve servare amodo et usque finem seculi, constituimus.

Ideo ego Withredus rex terrenus a Rege regum compunctus, zelo rectitudinis accensus, ex antiqua traditione sanctorum patrum, et mandatis didici non esse licitum alicui ex laico habitu sibiipso usurpare, vel ad se trahere (quasi suam propriam possessionem) quod antea fuerat Domino concessum, et cruce Christi firmatum atque dedicatum: quia scimus et veraciter constat, ut si quid semel acceperit homo de manu alterius in propriam potestatem, nullatenus sine ira et ultione illud dimiserit impunitus.

Ideo horrendum est hominibus expoliare Deum vivum, et scindere tunicam ejus et haereditatem ejus, quodque ab aliquo concessum ei fuerit de terrenis substantiis, ad id, ut eo facilius promereri valeant aeternam retributionem percipere in caelis: quia manifeste declaratur quanto incautius applicaverit se homo secularis in haereditatem Regis aeterni quam ad ejus imperium trahere desiderat; tanto districtius ab eodem Deo in igne inextinguibili puniatur.

Pro hac re firmiter statuimus atque decrevimus, et in nomine omnipotentis Dei, omniumque sanctorum praecipimus omnibus successoribus nostris, regibus, principibus, vel omnibus qui in habitu laico constituti sunt, ut nullus unquam habeat licentiam accipere alicujus ecclesiae vel monasterii dominium, quae a meipso vel antecessoribus meis priscis temporibus tradita erant in perpetuam haereditatem, Jesu Christo et sanctis apostolis, etiamque Mariae virgini matri Domini nostri sacrata. Sed magis, sicut decet, et in canonibus praecipitur, servandum est: quando quis evenerit ex numero dominorum obire de seculo abbas vel abbatissa: propterea * mmuatatur propriae parochiae episcopus, et cum ejus consilio vel consensu: quisquis dignus inveniat et ejus vita atque munditia ab episcopo examinatur: talis eligatur et ab episcopo benedicatur (et) sanctificetur dominus spirituali gradui, Dei servitio et tonsurae, seu sacro velamini mancipatus: et nullo modo sine consultu et licentia archiepiscopi in dioecesi sua abbas vel abbatissa eligatur.

Si quis per insipientiam aliter faciet, pro nihilo habeatur, citiusque abjiciatur, neque de hac re aliquid pertineat ad regis secularis imperium: quia illius personae est, principes, praefectos, seu duces seculares statuere: metropolitani episcopi est ecclesias Dei regere, gubernare, atque abbates, abbatissas, presbyteros, diaconos eligere, statuere, et sanctificare, firmare, et amovere, ne quis ovis de ovibus aeterni pastoris erret, Hoc praeceptum statuimus his monasteriis quorum nomina haec sunt annotata. Primum primi apostolorum principis Petri, id est, Upmynster, Raculf, Sudmynster, Dofras, Folcanstan, Lymming, Stepeis, et Hor. Haec omnia interdicimus, sicut ante diximus, ut nullus habitus ex numero laicorum ad se pertrahat vel suscipiat nullum monasterium de his praenominatis.

Haec lex supradicta per eum completa, permaneat: adhuc addimus majorem libertatem.

cum suis, caeterisque praedictis omnibus ecclesiis, Dei juri subjiciantur pro salute animae meae, meorumque praedecessorum, et pro spe caelestis regni ex hac die, et deinceps concedimus et donamus ab omnibus difficultatibus secularis servitutis, a pastu regis, principum, comitum, necnon ab operibus, majoribus minoribusque gravitatibus: et ab omni debito vel pulsione * regalium censuum liberas esse perpetua libertate statuimus: nisi sua spontanea voluntate, ex largitate beneficiorum quid facere velint: tamen hoc in posterum non fervetur nec habeatur in malam consuetudinem: sed magis securi possint pro nobis Deo omnipotenti hostias dignas offerre, et immaculatis muneribus nostra ablueri peccata, ut per eorum intercessionem mereamur audire felicem sententiam, "Venite benedicti Patris mei, percipite regnum quod vobis paratum est ab origine mundi."

Si quis autem rex unquam post nos elevatus in regnum, aut episcopus, aut abbas, vel comes, vel ulla potestas hominum contradicat huic chartulae, aut infringere tentaverit: sciatur se sequestratum a corpore et sanguine Domini nostri Jesu Christi, seu etiam sic excommunicatum, sicut qui non habet remissionem neque in hoc seculo, neque in futuro, nisi ante pleniter emendaverit iudicio episcopi; manente tum hac chartula, irrefragabili sua firmitate muniatur, fervetur, et habeatur semper ad ecclesiam Salvatoris, quae sita est in civitate Dorobernia, ubi metropolitanum caput habetur, ad exemplum atque defensionem omnibus ecclesiis Dei quae in hac Cantia morantur.

Haec lex inviolabilis usque ad consummationem seculi permaneat, quia nulli homini terreno data sunt: sed haec omnia in manus Dei omnipotentis sanctisque ejus concedimus et donamus.

Chartula Wyhtredi regis Cantiae, et Kynigythae uxoris suae, Eabbae abbatissae de terra quatuor aratorum in insula Teneti. [Ann. Dom. DCXCV. Ex Spelm. vol. I. p. 192. seq.]

IN nomine Domini Dei salvatoris ego Wyhtredus rex Cantiae una cum conjugē mea Kynigytha regina, referens gratias largitori bonorum Domino, qui dilatavit terminos nostros juxta paternam antiquitatem, in commune pertractavimus aliquam partem terrae nobis collatae ad vicem rependere ne ingrati beneficiis videremur largitoris nostri. Qua de re a praesente die et tempore tibi religiosae Eabbae abbatissae Deoque dicatae foeminae terram juris nostri quae sita est in insula Teneti, quae quondam appellata est Humantium, aratorum quatuor contulimus in perpetuum possidendam, ut cum omnibus ad eandem pertinentibus pratis, campis, fontanis, sylvis, piscariis, fluminibus, marisc. et quicquid ad supradictam terram pertinet, a quatuor partibus orientis, occidentis, aquilonis, et meridiei, tuo usui ditionique subjicias, teneas, possideas, dones, commutes, vendas, vel quicquid exinde facere volueris, liberam habeas potestatem, successoresque tui defendant in perpetuum, nunquam me haeredesque meos contra hanc chartulam descriptionis nostrae aliquando esse venturos. Ad cujus cumulum affirmationis cespitem hujus supradictae terrae super sanctum altare posui, et propria manu pro ignorantia literarum signum sanctae crucis in hac chartula expressi, sed et Kynigytha id ipsum fecit, principesque meos, ut pari modo propriis manibus facerent rogavi, quorum nomina subtus annexa sunt. Si qui (quod absit) contra hanc chartulam a me factam vel haered. meis contraire praesumpserint, noverint a participatione corporis Domini segregandos hic, et in aeternum. Quam saepe dictam chartulam scribendam dictavi, et tibi Eabbae abbatissae tradidi conservandam. Actum 16. calend. Augusti indictione VII. anno regni nostro tertio, etc.

Plurima

Plurima pars Scotorum in Hibernia, nonnulla etiam Britannorum canonicam Paschatis observantiam Alfridi regis aetate suscipiunt. Ex Beda Hist. Eccl. lib. V. cap. xvi. [Ann. Dom. dxcvii. Spelm. vol. I. p. 193.]

Quo tempore plurima pars Scotorum in Hibernia, et nonnulla etiam de Britonibus in Britannia rationabile et ecclesiasticum paschalis observantiae tempus, Domino donante suscepit. Siquidem Adamnanus, presbyter et abbas monachorum qui erant in insula Hu, cum legationis gratia missus a sua gente venisset ad Alfridum regem Anglorum, et aliquamdiu in ea provinciae moratus videret ritus ecclesiae canonicos, et a pluribus qui erant eruditiores, esset solerter admonitus, ne contra universalem ecclesiae morem, vel in observantia paschali, vel in aliis quibusque decretis cum suis paucissimis et in extremo mundi angulo positis vivere praesumeret, mutatus mente est: ita ut ea quae viderat et audierat in ecclesiis Anglorum, suae suorumque consuetudini libentissime praeferret. Erat enim vir bonus, et sapiens, et scientia scripturarum nobilissimae instructus. Qui cum domum rediisset, curavit suos qui erant in Hu, quive eidem erant subditi monasterio ad eum, quem cognoverat, quemque ipse ex toto corde susceperat, veritatis callem perducere, nec valuit. Navigavit itaque Hiberniam, et praedicans eis, ac modesta exhortatione delarans legitimum Paschae tempus, plurimos eorum et pene omnes, qui ab Hibernensium erant dominio liberi, ab errore avito correctos, ad unitatem reduxit catholicam, ac legitimum Paschae tempus observare perdocuit. Qui cum celebrato in Hibernia canonico Pascha ad suam insulam revertisset, suoque monasterio catholicam temporis paschalis observantiam instantissime praedicaret, nec tamen perficere quod conabatur posset, contigit eum ante expletum anni circulum migrasse de seculo, divina utique gratia disponente, ut vir unitatis et pacis studiosissimus ante ad vitam raperetur aeternam, quam redeunte tempore paschali graviolem cum eis, qui eum ad veritatem sequi volebant, cogeretur habere discordiam.

Synodus sub Ina R. occidental. Saxonum habita loco incerto, in qua episcopatus occidentalium Saxonum in duas dividitur parochias. Ibidem cap. xix. [Ann. Dom. dccvii. Ibidem p. 208.]

Quibus (Daniele et Aldhelmo) episcopatum administrantibus: statutum est synodali decreto, ut provincia australium Saxonum, quae eatenus ad civitatis Ventanae (cui tunc Daniel praeerat) parochiam pertinebat, et ipsa sedem episcopalem et proprium haberet episcopum. Consecratusque est eis primus Antistes Eadbertus [an. Christi dcccxi.] qui erat abbas in monasterio beatae memoriae Wilfridi episcopi quod dicitur Selescu. Quo defuncto Ceolla suscepit officium pontificatus. Ipso autem ante aliquot annos ex hac luce subtracto, episcopatus usque hodie cessavit.

Nota. Non convenit de tempore hujus synodi. Rex Ina, inquit Huntingtonius [Hist. lib. IV.] vicesimo anno regni sui (id est, juxta factos Domini nostri dccvii.) divisit episcopatum Westfaxoniae in duo, qui unus esse solebat. Partem orientalem a sylvis tenuit Daniel, occidentalem Aldelmus. Haberi igitur jam tum oportet istam synodum: nam Aldelmum obiisse ait Ranulfus Cistrensis anno gratiae dcccviii. Godwinus et alii dcccix. verius proculdubio quam Florilegus qui ait: anno gratiae dcccxi. provincia australium Saxonum synodali decreto statutum est ut qui eatenus ad civitatis Ventanae (cui tunc Daniel praeerat) parochiam pertinebant, et ipse sedem episcopalem ac proprium haberet episcopum. Meminerunt et istius synodi Magdeburgenses [Cent. vii. cap. ix.] sub Britannicae titulo: habitamque ferunt (Bedam dubium secuti) circa annum Domini septingentesimum quintum: quod non male convenit Huntingtonio [lib. V. cap. xix.] synodumque igitur collocamus in anno Domini dccvii.

Prolegomena ad visionem Egwini, et concilium de imaginibus adorandis [Ibidem.]

Jam ad tempus pervenimus, quo primum in ecclesias Anglosaxonum advectas ferunt sanctorum imagines, ibidemque positae adorandas. Beatam liquidem Mariam virginem Egwino Wicciorum (hoc est, Wigornensium) episcopo lucidius apparuisse aiunt, et imaginem suam in ecclesia quam curabat episcopus collocandam mandavisse ut a populo coleretur. Visionem praesul desert ad Constantinum episcopum Romanum, factaque juramento fide, pontifex Bonifacium legat in Britanniam, praece-pitque ut Londini cum assensu Brithwaldi archiepiscopi Cantuariarum, concilium celebret generale. Huic sub anathematis interminatione adsunt reges et episcopi: decretumque est in sententiam papae, imagines in ecclesiis collocandas, missarumque celebratione et adoratione honorandas, etc. Haec e Naclero et Balaeo sine veteris alicujus testimonio asserunt Magdeburgenses cent. i. cap. xci, xciv, xcix. redarguunt igitur, et inter recentiorum commenta projiciunt Baronius atque Binius. Ego nulla nulla hic praelibata assertione te lectorem de-

Volumus insuper ac decernimus in nomine Domini, terram quinque cassatorum quae Mor-gaudere: quam quidem terram ego Kenredus rex Merciorum, anno dominicae Incarnationis DCCIX. cum jam una cum venerabili viro Eg-wino apostolorum limina visitare disponerem, inter quaedam alia donaria, ad fabricam mo-nasterii construendi in Homme, concessi eidem, et sub testimonio plurium potentum meorum scripto confirmavi.

Statuimus igitur in nomine Domini, et in virtute Dei summi praecipimus tam viventibus, quam Domini praedestinatione nobis inposterum succedentibus, ut hujus donationis statuta ad irritum deducere minime quispiam audeat.
Si quis autem hoc nostrae munificentiae donum depravare vel minuere attentaverit, deleatur nomen

men ejus de libro vitae. Acta sunt haec anno dominicae Incarnationis DCCIX. in ecclesia Salvatoris Lateranensi, confirmante pontifice Romanae sedis Constantino, astantibus regibus Angliae Kenredo et Offa, rogante venerabili viro Egwino episcopo, cum pluribus archiepiscopis, et episcopis, principibus, ac nobilibus diversarum provinciarum, cunctis clamantibus et dicentibus. Nos hanc voluntatem et regiam liberalitatem laudamus, donationibus ac libertati consentimus.

Ego Constantinus, Romanae sedis episcopus, per hoc signum ✚ sanctae crucis has donationes et libertatem confirmavi.

✚ Ego Egwinus humilis episc. confirmavi.

✚ Ego rex Kenredus corroboravi.

Nota. Suspectam merito hanc chartam reddat, quod Offa rex orientalium Anglorum gubernatorem se denunciat, cum certissime sit compertum, eum non orientalium Anglorum, sed orientalium Saxonum fuisse regem. Nec scriptoris vitio obrepisse videatur error iste, sed a pluribus approbatus et propagatus: adeo ut ipse Malmesburius Gest. pont. lib. IV. de Kenredo et Offa Romam proficiscentibus agens; hunc orientalium Anglorum regem, illum Merciorum nuncupat. Contra tamen auctor antiquior Wigornensis, et inferiores alii Ranulfus Cestrensis et Florilegus, ipsaque veritas, eum orientalium Saxonum regem, non Anglorum ponunt. In serie igitur regum orientalium Saxonum perspicue cernitur, apud Anglos vero orientales nemo unquam rex ejusdem deprehenditur appellationis ante ann. Domini DCCXCIII. quo Offa alius Merciorum rex Ethelbertum regem orientalium, simulata exceptum amicitia, contra hospitalitatis fidem et Hymenaeos ritus perfide interfecit, et regnum ejus usurpavit: hinc enatum suspicor errorem istum quem e charta tollere non est nostri.

Nulla autem hic in beatae virginis apparitione de imaginibus mentio. Vide quae notabimus ad sequentem chartam.

Charta Egwini episcopi Wicciorum, sive Wigornensium, in qua meminit de suis visionibus, et de fundatione dotationeque monasterii sui Eveshamiae in agro Wigornensi. [Spelm. vol. I. p. 211. seqq.]

EGO Ecguinus Wicciorum humilis episcopus, volo manifestare omnibus fidelibus Christi, qualiter per Sancti Spiritus inspirationem, et per labores multarum et magnarum visionum, ostensum est mihi, quod ego primum unum locum aedificare deberem, ad laudem et gloriam omnipotentis Dei, et sanctae Mariae, omniumque electorum Christi, et etiam mihi ad aeternam retributionem. Cum igitur maxime florerem in diebus Ethelredi regis, expetii ab eo locum qui Ethomme nuncupatur, in quo loco sancta et perpetua virgo Maria, primum cuidam pastori gregum Eoves nuncupato, dehinc etiam mihi cum duabus virginibus, librum in manibus tenens apparuit. Mundavi itaque locum, opusque inceptum, Dei opitulante gratia, ad finem perduxim.

Volo igitur ostendere omni sequenti generationi quas possessiones supradicto loco adquisivi, et ipsas terras ab omni exactione potestatum omnium adquietavi, ipsamque adquietationem applicitis auctoritatibus, et privilegiis, necnon et regalibus edictis confirmari feci, et fratres secundum regulam S. Benedicti inibi Deo fervientes, sine perturbatione vitam agerent. Nomina etiam villarum volo manifestare, quas omnes liberas et juste adquisitas, Deo et sanctae Mariae obtuli. Itaque ab Ethelredo rege quoddam coenobium quod Flendaburch nominatur obtinui, quod postea pro alio coenobio quod Streatforda nominatur mutavi: post parvum vero tempus, a praedicti regis fratre Oswardo viginti mansas in loco qui Tuisforda appellatur adquisivi. Postea vero succedente in regnum Kenredo concessit et ipse mihi octaginta quatuor mansas super utrasque partes illius fluminis quod Avena vocatur. Quidam autem adolescens Athericus nomine octo mansas mihi concessit, et Walterus venerandus sacerdos alias octo mihi mansas donavit. Sicque Deo propitio brevi tempore CXX. mansas praedictae Christi ecclesiae adquisivi, sicut scriptum est et confirmatum in chartis ecclesiae, et in libro manifestatur terra et termini ejus, quem scripsit Brihtwaldus archiepiscopus, et dictavit praecepto Romani pontificis, cum consensu principum totius Angliae. Haec vero sunt nomina villarum quas ut supradictum est adquisivi. Lovesham, Beniucgurthe, Hautun, Beddeseye, Wicque, Humburne, Brotfortun, Willersey, Witheleia, Samburne, Kiueuarton, Saltforde, major et minor, Ambresloy, Ulbeorge, Mortun, Buchtun, Meleigaresbyri, Titlestrop, Suella major, Mayeldesbordi, Sildeuicoque: has omnes terras, ut praefatus sum, liberas ab omni calumnia adquisivi, et sanctae Dei ecclesiae obtuli.

Qui ergo locum, quem apostolica dignitas et regia potestas, regiae libertati donavit, et nos auctoritate Dei, et sanctorum apostolorum donamus, qui depravare aut minuire vel contaminare praesumpserit, judicetur ante tribunal Christi, et nunquam in Christi veniat memoriam, nisi n hac vita poenitens emendet; qui vero servaverit et adauxerit, benedictionibus repleatur. Fiat. Amen. Scripta est haec charta anno dominicae Incarnationis DCCXIV. ✚ Ego Ecguinus per signum sanctae crucis confirmavi. ✚ Ego Kenredus rex subscripsi. ✚ Ego Offa per signum crucis confirmavi. ✚ Ego Brihtwaldus archiepiscopus subscripsi. Ego ✚ Oswardus frater regis confirmavi.

Nota. Nullam hic Egwinus mentionem facit de introducendis imaginibus, vel de adorandis. Videtur tamen haec charta liber esse quem Balaeus refert eum scripsisse de suis apparitionibus:

bus: nam et earum in eadem meminit, et iisdem quae ille ponit verbis, exorditur charta: "Ego Egwinus Wicciorum humilis episcopus," etc. Libros etiam et libellos appellabant Saxones, quos Normanni et nos hodie chartas, ut in ipsa hac de qua agimus perspicue videas, ubi dicitur: in libro manifestatur terra et termini ejus quem scripsit Brihtwaldus et dictavit praecepto Romani pontificis. Quod de praecedenti charta intelligendum censeo, ubi Kenredus et Offa reges praesenti, inquit, libello confirmamus, etc. terras et mansas, latis illic descriptas terminis. Solet etiam Balaesus inter veterum quae refert opera, hujusmodi saepe epistolas pro libris numerare. Non inficior tamen quin alicubi lateat ejusdem farinae alius Egwini liber. Sed quoniam id jam quaeritur quod a beata virgine in apparitione sua Egwino dictum sit vel factum, pro imaginum cultu, et nihil in his chartis de eodem reperitur, nec in epistola Constantini papae: quam mox daturi sumus istius argumenti, videamus quid Capgravius Augustinianus frater, qui floruit cc. abhinc annos, et Egwini vitam studiosius rimabatur, de ista prodidit apparitione [in vita S. Egwini episc. et confess.] "Surgente," inquit, "illo Egwino, "ab oratione tres virgines non minoris splendoris et gloriae, quam prius apparuere" (pastori gregis, Eovo) "quarum quae media erat, praecelsior, et omni nitore splendidior praefulgebat, liliis candidior, rosas vernatior, odore inaeestimabili fragrantior, librum quoque manibus praeferebat, et crucem auream luce radiantem. Cumque cogitaret hanc Domini genitricem esse, virgo praecellentissima quasi favens tam pia aestimationi, adorantem praetensa, quam tenebat cruce, benedixit, et cum tali valefactione, disparuit." Nihil hic de introducendis imaginibus, nec apud antiquiorem sane Malmesburium [Gest. Pont. lib. IV.] qui de fundatione monasterii Eveshamiae memorans, quaedam ab aliis no dicta refert. "Eo," inquit, "loci, vir sanctissimus, Egwinus, dum solitudine invitante frequentaret excubias, Dei genetricis visione et allocutione mulceri meruit, plane et absque scrupulo praecipientis, ut ibidem sibi fundaret coenobium futurum sibi gratiosum, illi negotiosum. Institit ille jussis, et complens opus, apostolicis et regiis privilegiis corroboravit." Et hic nihil quidem beata virgo de imagine sua aut proponenda aut adoranda, cum tamen coenobii istius ecclesia ea fuisse videtur, qua Egwinus ejus exequeretur praeceptionem. Scripsit praeterea Egwini vitam circa dcccc. abhinc annos Brithwaldus Glasconiensis monachus, cujus ego non vidi librum, sed in quodam illius paragrapho ad hoc spectante argumentum, a Godwino tradito, et hic inferius recitando, nihil utique de imaginibus perhibetur, ut suo loco ibidem videris.

Erratum vero censeo in charta istius datione. Scripta enim perhibetur anno Incarnationis dccciv. cum nec Egwinus ipse qui eam condidit, nec qui inter testes nominantur Brithwaldus archiepiscopus, aut Oswardus frater regis, Romae fuisse cognoscuntur, sed in Anglia: Kenredus e contrario, et Offa reges, non in Anglia, sed in Roma, nec hos igitur convenire potuisse ad subscribendum. Respondeatur (fateor) Kenredum, Offam, cum Egwino, Romae subscripsisse: Brithwaldum et Oswardum post Egwini reditum, hic in Anglia. Nec quid impediret, sciam, si Egwinus tertio jam fuisset Romae, et Kenredus atque Offa seculares nondum exuissent facultates: sed characterem monachatus per quinquennium ante suscipientes, mundo jam emortui, mundanas nec tractarent actiones, nec se regnum titulis adornarent. Chartas igitur, hanc et praecedentem alteram, factas censeo antequam tondebantur reges, hoc est, anno dcccix. scriptamque in hac charta (ut in altera) dationem, literis numerabilibus, juxta morem illorum temporum, nam figuris non sunt usi Saxones, anno dominicae Incarnationis dcccviii. quod fuligine forte obductum male oculatus scriptor dcccxiii. legit, figurisque exprimit 714. pro 709. Sed habetur in hac charta alius nodus, et hic quidem ense potius quam industria nostra dissolvendus: qui fiat ut Brithwaldus chartam istam scriberet et dictaret ex praecepto papae Romani cum consensu principum totius Angliae, cum nondum convenissent principes, nec habitum sit concilium quod praeceperat papa, nec Brithwaldus Romam salutasset advena.

CIRCA hoc tempus praefatus Ina rex occidentalium Saxonum, celeberrimam eleemosynam, quam Denarium S. Petri vocant, vulgus Romefcot, Romae contulit. "Rex Ina," inquit Ran. Cestrensis lib. V. cap. xxiv. e Will. de reg. lib. I.] "commendato regno suo Westsaxoniae, Ethelardo cognato suo, Romam profectus est. Qui primus omnium regum denarium ex singulis domibus regni sui, B. Petro fertur concessisse, quod diu ab Anglis Romefcot, Latine vero Denarius Petri vocabatur." Audi Polydorum, Hist. lib. IV. "Officia autem," inquit, "ejus regis [Inae] pietatis plena infinita produntur, et illud imprimis, quod regnum suum

Romano pontifici vectigale fecerit, singulis argenteis nummis quos denarios vocant in singulas domos impositis. Fecit idem ejus exemplo, ut opinor, ductus Offa Merciorum rex, qui non multo post id tempus regnavit. Fuit is annus salutis dcccxl. Hoc vectigal prout quidam scribunt, auxit posthac Ethelwolphus seu Athulphus rex, qui, ut proximo libro demonstrabitur, totius fere insulae imperium obtinuit. Omnis Anglia hoc tempore illud vectigal pietatis et religionis causa, Romano pontifici pendit domesticatim collatum, et nummi illi argentei vocantur vulgo Denarii divi Petri, quos pontificius quaestor, quem non inscienter collectorum lectorum nuncupant, exigit. Nos hanc olim quaesturam aliquot per annos gessimus, ejusque muneris obeundi causa, primum in Angliam venimus."

Haec POLYDORUS. Vide plura superius

tom. I. p. 155. seq. de Offa. Ina vero Romam regrediens, comam deposuisse dicitur, et brevi obiisse: et regina ejus Edelburga primo monialis facta est in coenobio Berkingensi juxta Thamesim, et deinde illic abbatissa.

Aliud chartae istius Aethelbaldi exemplar priori succinctius, ut habetur apud Ingulphum Saxonem, in hist. Croyland. et, levi interdictum dictionis varietate, Guilielmum Malmesburium De gestis reg. lib. I. [Spelm. vol. I. p. 257. seq.]

PRAEDICTUS vero rex Ethelbaldus, perfecto et plene consummato monasterio suo Croyland, ad promovendam sanctam ecclesiam ubique per regnum suum, et ad alia etiam religionum virorum ac mulierum coenobia dignitatibus et privilegiis emancipanda, jugiter animo intendebat, unde pro libertate ecclesiastica per suum regnum roboranda, tertio anno regni sui tale statutum legitur edidisse.

Cum plerumque contingere soleat pro incerta temporum vicissitudine, ut ea, quae multarum et fidelium personarum testimonio, concilio roborata fuerunt, per contumaciam plurimorum, et machinamenta simulationis fraudulentae, et sine ulla consideratione rationis in animarum suarum periculosi dissipentur, nisi auctoritate literarum et testimonio cyrographorum in perpetuam memoriam fuerint consignata.

Quapropter ego Ethelbaldus rex Merciorum pro amore caelestis patriae, et pro redemptione animae meae, statuendum esse providi, ut eam per bona opera liberam efficerem ab omni vinculo delictorum. Dum enim mihi omnipotens per misericordiam clementiae suae absque ullo antecedente merito, sceptrum regni largitus est, ideo libenter ex eo quod dedit retribuio. Hujus rei gratia hanc donationem meam me vivente concedo ut omnia monasteria et ecclesiae regni mei a publicis vectigalibus, operibus et oneribus absolvantur, nisi in instructionibus arcium vel pontium, quae nulli unquam possunt laxari. Praeterea habeant famuli Dei propriam libertatem in proficuo sylvarum, in fructu agrorum, in captura piscium, nec munuscula praebeant regi, vel principibus, nisi voluntaria, sed liberi Domino serviant in contemplatione pacifica, per totum regnum meum usque in aevum.

Nota. Desinunt Ingulphus et Malmesburius, cum ad imprecationem est perventum; in Ingulphi autem editione legitur, Aethelbaldum hoc statutum edidisse tertio anno regni sui, hoc est, dum in sordibus versaretur juvenilibus, nec a Bonifacio legato Romano adhuc expectatus esset: sed restituendo est lectio juxta chartae suae datum: scil. anno tricesimo tertio regni sui.

Venerabilis Bedae presbyteri de remediis peccatorum. [Ibidem p. 281. seqq.]

Praefatio.

DE remediis peccatorum paucissima haec quae sequuntur, ex priorum monimentis excerptimus: in quibus tamen omnibus non auctoritate censoris, sed consilio potius compatiens usi sumus, solerter admonentes doctum quemque sacerdotem Christi, ut in universis quae hic adnotata reperit, sexum, aetatem, conditionem, statum, personam cujusque poenitentiam agere volentis, ipsum quoque cor poenitentis curiose discernat, et secundum haec ut sibi visum fuerit, singula quaeque judicet. Quibusdam namque a cibis abstinendo, nonnullis genua saepius flectendo, sive in cruce stando, aut aliud aliquid hujusmodi, quod ad purgationem peccatorum pertineat, faciendo: plurimis universa haec agendo, sua necesse est errata corrigere: quae universa in examine discreti debent pendere iudicis.

Institutio illa sancta, quae fiebat in diebus patrum nostrorum, rectas vias nunquam deseruit, qui instituerunt poenitentibus atque lugentibus suas passiones ad vera medicamenta salutis:

quia diversitas culparum diversitatem facit poenitentibus medicamentum, vel sicut medici corporum diversa medicamina vel potiones solent facere contra diversitatem infirmitatum, vel iudices secularium causarum. Diversa igitur iudicia, qui boni sunt et recti, pensant et tractant quomodo recte judicent inter miseros et divites, inter causam et causam. Quanto magis igitur O sacerdotes Dei, diversa medicamenta animarum invisibilium hominibus pensare et tractare oporteat, ne per stultum medicum vulnera animarum fiant pejora, propheta dicente: "Computruerunt et deterioraverunt cicatrices meae a facie insipientiae meae." O stulte medice, noli decipere animam tuam, et illius ne duplicem poenam accipies, vel septupla, vel millena: audi Christum dicentem: "Si caecus caecum duxerint, ambo cadent in foveam." Si tu non cogitas iudicium meum, alter homo non audit neque videt, qui me judicet. O non intelligis, quia Deus iudex justus et fortis videt et audit, et in palam abscondita deducit, et reddit secundum opera: et item vere sunt nonnulli caecorum, canum similitudine currentium ad cadavera mortuorum, vel corvorum volantium, qui ad sacerdotium vehuntur, qui non propter Dominum, sed plus propter honorem terrenum inhiantes caeci divina sapientia. De talibus dixit

Grego-

Gregorius Nazianzenus: "Timeo hoc quod canes affectantur officium pastorale, maxime cum in semetipsis nihil pastoralis praeparaverint disciplinae: Ezechiel namque ait, "Vae pastoribus Israel, qui pascebant semetipsos, et non gregem: lac bibebant, et lanis eorum operiebantur, et quod crassum fuit manducabant, quod fractum fuit non alligabant," etc. Item Ezechiel ait: "Vae sacerdotibus qui comedunt populi mei peccata," hoc est, sibi eorum fumentes victimas, et non orantes pro eis. Comedentes hostias et non corripientes: qui ubi morituros homines audiunt, inde gaudentes, et praeparant se ad praedam, quasi corvi ad cadavera mortuorum. Nunc ergo fratres, qui voluerit sacerdotalem auctoritatem accipere, inprimis cogitet propter Deum, et praeparet arma ejus antequam manus episcopi tangat caput, id est, psalterium, lectionarium, antiphonarium, missale, baptisterium, martyrologium, in anno circuli ad praedicationem cum bonis operibus et computum cum cyclo, hoc est jus sacerdotum. Postea autem suum poenitentialem, qui hoc ordine secundum auctoritatem canonum ordinatur, ut discretionem omnium causarum investiges. Primitus sine quibus rectum iudicium non potest stare, quia scriptum est: in nulla re appareas indiscretus, sed distingue quid, ubi, quamdiu, quando, qualiter debeas facere. Non omnibus ergo in una eademque libra pensandum est, licet in uno constringantur vitio: sed discretio sit unoquoque eorum, hoc est, inter divitem et pauperem, liberum, servum, infantem, puerum, juvenem, adolescentem, aetate senem, hebetem, gnarum, laicum, clericum, monachum, episcopum, presbyterum, diaconum, subdiaconum, lectorem: in gradu vel sine, in conjugio vel sine, peregrinum, virginem, foeminam, canonicam vel sanctimoniam, debilem, infirmum, sanum. De qualitate pecudum vel hominum, continens vel incontinens, voluntate vel in casu, in publico vel in abscondito, quasi compunctione emendet necessitate vel in voluntate, loca et tempora collationum constituerunt sancti apostoli. Deinde sancti patres, et sanctus Penuus. Deinde canones sanctorum patrum, deinde alii atque alii: ut Hieronymus, et Augustinus, et Gregorius, et Theodorus. Ex quorum omnium ista descripsimus dictis et sententiis veraciter, ut salvi sint omnes, et non pusillanimes, quia "Potentes potenter tormenta patientur." Item in Jesu filii Sirach, "In iudicando esto misericors, pusillus ut pater, et pro viro matri illorum." Item sanctus Jacobus dixit: "Iudicium sine misericordia erit illi, qui non facit misericordiam," superexaltat autem misericordia iudicium, ut idem ipse consequatur: ut sanctus Benedictus, hoc est, qui veram poenitentiam faciunt in jejuniis et fletu, in eleemosynis, in orationibus, et perpetrata iterum non faciunt: et si faciunt, tamen non perseverarent in eis: quia Deus dixit: "Malum cogitasti, ignovi: malum dixisti, ignovi: malum fecisti, ignovi: perseverare in malo, non ignosco." Ergo qui perseverant in malo, non ignosce, sed iudica iudicium districtum secundum canones, ut alii timorem habeant.

II. De fornicatione.

Adolescens si cum virgine peccaverit, annum unum poeniteat. Si semel et fortuito, levietur, et tamen usque ad annum plenum. Si intra viginti annos puella adolescens, tres Quadragesimas, et ferias legitimas. Si propter hoc peccatum servitio humano addicti sunt, quadraginta dies; si nitens tantum, et non coinquinatus, viginti dies poeniteat. Si vidua obstuprata annum totum, et dies jejuniorum in altero: si usque ad generatum filii, annos duos integros, et duos alios levius. Si et occiderint, annos tres, et alios quatuor levius. Si monachus laicam, tres annos poeniteat. Illa duo, et legitimas ferias. Si monacham laicus, duos annos poeniteat, et legitimas ferias. Illa tres. Si usque ad generatum filium, annos quatuor, si et occiderint, septem annos poeniteat. Si quis vacans uxorem alterius polluit, duos annos poeniteat. Si uxoratus virginem, similiter, ita ut primo horum a sua contineat. Si ei consenserit, alioquin addatur modus poenitentiae. Si uxoratus uxorem alterius, tres annos poeniteat. Primo horum a propria consentiente abstineat. Si uxoratus ancillam suam, annum unum poeniteat, et tres Quadragesimas, et legit. fer. tribus mensibus primis, et a sua se contineat. Illa si invita passa est, quadraginta dies poeniteat: si consentiens, tres Quadragesimas, et legit. fer. Si adolescens sororem, septem annos poeniteat. Si matrem, septem annos, et quamdiu vixerit, nunquam sine continentia. Si Sodomitae, annos septem, si in consuetudine, annos septem; vel si monachus, annos septem. Qui cum pecude peccat, annum unum: si monachus est, duos annos; qui saepe fornicantur laicus cum laica, tres annos poeniteant, et quanto saepius aut negligentius, tanto magis et tempus addat, et modum. Qui diutius fornicationi, perjurio, latrocinii, caeterisque flagitiis servivit, annos septem poeniteat. Qui complexu foeminae illecebroso, vel osculo polluitur, dies triginta poeniteat. Qui contactu ejus invectus ad carnem, tres menses poeniteat. Puer seipsum voluntate polluens, triginta dies poeniteat, juvenis quadraginta, qui in turpiloquio polluitur negligens, septem dies poeniteat. Qui impugnatione cogitationis et naturae inquinatur nolens, per quatuor dies quinquagenos psalmos canat, et quarta et sexta feria jejundet ad nonam vel ad vesperam. Qui in ecclesia consecrata concumbunt, qui in ecclesia per somnium polluitur, tres dies poeniteat: uxoratus contineat se quadraginta dies ante Pascha et natale Domini, et omni die Dominico, et quarta et sexta feria a conceptione manifestata, usque post natam sobolem. Vir contineat se ab uxore tres menses; uxor post natam sobolem abstineat se ab ecclesia, si filius est, dies triginta, si filia, quadraginta. Si quis cum muliere tempore menstrui sanguinis concubuerit triginta dies poeniteat; qui Dominica nocte vel . . . sanctorum septem dies poeniteat. Patrens, cujus filius per negligentiam non baptizatus obiit, unum annum poeniteat, et nunquam sine aliqua poenitentia. Si sacerdos, ad quem pertipertinebat, vocatus venire neglexerit, ipse damnationem animae iudicio episcopi sui castigetur. Sed in omnibus licet fidelibus, ubi forte morituros invenerint non baptizatos, immo praeceptum est, animas eripere a diabolo per baptismum: id est, benedictam simpliciter aquam in nomine Domini, baptizare illos in nomine Patris, et Filii, et Spiritus Sancti. Intincto autem superfusus aqua, unde oportet eos qui possunt fideles monachos maxime, et scientiam habere baptizandi, et si longius alicubi exierint eucharistiam semper secum habere.

III. De occisione.

Qui occiderit monachum aut clericum, arma relinquat, et Deo serviat, vel septem annos poeniteat. Qui laicum, odii meditatione, vel possidendae haereditatis ejus, annos quatuor. Qui pro vindicta fratris, unum annum. Et in sequentibus duos annos, tres Quadragesimas ac legitimas ferias. Qui per iram subitam et rixam, tres annos poeniteat. Qui casu, unum annum. Qui in bello publico, dies quadraginta. Qui jubente domino suo servus, dies quadraginta. Qui liber jubente majore suo innocentem, annum unum, et sequentes duas tres Quadragesimas et legit. fer. Qui super rixam ictu debilem vel deformem hominem reddit, impensas in medicos, et maculae pretium et opus ejus donec sanetur, restituat, et dimidium annum. Si vero non habet unde restituat haec, annum integrum. Qui ad feriendum hominem surrexerit, volens eum occidere, duas septimanas poeniteat. Si clericus fuit, septem menses. Quod et si vulneraverit, dies quadraginta, si clericus, annum totum. Sed et pecuniam pro modo vulneris, licet lex non commendat, cui inflixit, tribuat ne laesus scandalizet. Mulier partum suum ante dies quadraginta sponte perdens, unum annum poeniteat. Si vero post quadraginta dies, tres annos poeniteat. Si vero postquam animatus fuit, quasi homicida. Sed distat multum, utrum pauperula per difficultatem nutriendi, an fornicaria, causa sceleris celandi faciat. Qui perjurat sciens, compulsus a domino suo, tres Quadragesimas poeniteat, ac legit. fer. Qui sciens virtutem juramenti vel perjurii, perjurat in manu episcopi aut presbyteri, vel altari vel cruce consecrata, tres annos poeniteat. Si vero in cruce non consecrata, unum annum poeniteat. Si autem in manu hominis, apud Graecos nihil est. Qui seducit nescium perjurare, pernoxio, qui et postea perjurium suum cognovit, unum annum poeniteat.

IV. De immunda carne.

Qui manducat carnem immundam aut dilaceratam a bestiis, quadraginta dies poeniteat. Si necessitate famis cogente multo levius. Mus si ceciderit in liquorem, tollatur inde, et aspergatur liquor ille aqua benedicta: si vero mortuus sit, abjiciatur totus liquor, nec ab hominibus sumatur, sive lac sit, cerevisia, vel aliquid hujusmodi; quodsi mortuus sit, liquor ille in quo mus vel mustela incidens moritur, purgetur, et aspergatur aqua sancta, et sumatur.

VOL. IV.

tur, si necessitas sit. Si avis stercoreaverit in quemcunque liquorem, hujusmodi tollatur sterco, et mundetur cibus aqua benedicta, et sumatur. Qui sanguinem nescius cum saliva sorbet, non ei nocebit; qui manducans proprio polluitur inscius, non ei nocet. Si autem scit, poenitentiam agat juxta modum pollutionis.

V. De capitalibus criminibus.

Nunc igitur capitalia crimina secundum canones explicabo. Primo superbia, invidia, fornicatio, inanis gloria, ira longo tempore, tristitia seculi, avaritia, ventris ingluvies: Augustinus adjecit sacrilegium, id est, sacrarum rerum furtum, et hoc est maximum furtum, vel idololatriis servientem. Id est, auspiciis, et reliqua. Deinde adulterium, falsum testimonium, furtum, rapina, ebrietas assidua, idololatria. Molles, sodomita, maledici, perjuri. Ista sunt ergo capitalia crimina. Sanctus Paulus et Augustinus, et alii sancti computaverunt, pro istis fieri oportere eleemosynas largas, et longum tempus jejunium teneatur. Id est, ut alii judicant, pro capitalibus, id est, adulteris, homicidis, perjuris, fornicariis, et similibus. Laicus quatuor annos poeniteat: clericus quinque, subdiaconus sex, diaconus octo, presbyter decem, episcopus duodecim, si consuetudo erat.

VI. De minoribus peccatis.

Id est, furto, falso testimonio, et similibus. Laici annum unum, clerici duo, subdiaconus tres, diaconus quatuor, presbyter quinque, episcopus septem annos poeniteant. Item [de] sodomitis si consuetudo erat, episcopus quatuordecim annos poeniteat, presbyter duodecim, diaconus decem, subdiaconi octo, clerici septem, laici quinque. Monachus si fornicationem facit cum ancilla Dei, quatuor annos poeniteat. Si cum puella, septem annos poeniteat. De parricidis vel fratricidis: quidam septem, quidam quatuordecim et septem.

VII. De cupiditate, caeterisque flagitiis.

Item cupidus vel avarus, vel ebriosus, vel superbus, vel invidus, vel rapax, vel iracundia longa, vel maledicus, vel his similia, quae enumerare longum est, tres annos poeniteat. Item si clericus cum quadrupede fornicaverit, duos annos poeniteat, subdiaconus tres, diaconus quinque, presbyter septem, episcopus decem annos poeniteat. Qui cum matre fornicaverit, quindecim annos poeniteat. Si cum filia vel sorore, duodecim annos poeniteat. Qui cum fratre naturali fornicaverit per commixtionem carnis, ab omni carne se abstineat, quindecim annos poeniteat. Si clericus venationes exercuerit, annum unum poeniteat, diaconus duos, presbyter tres. Si presbyter, vel diaconus, vel monachus uxorem duxerit, in conscientia populi deponatur. Si adulterium perpetraverit cum ea, et in conscientia populi devenit, projiciatur extra ecclesiam, et inter laicos poeniteat quamdiu vixerit. Qui dimiserit uxorem suam alteri coniugi, septem annos poeniteat. Si clericus homicidium fecerit, et proximum suum occiderit, decem annos poeniteat, exul septem poeniteat, si odii meditatio fuit. Si laicus homicidium fecerit per furorem, et meditationem, quatuor annos poeniteat, vel quinque vel septem annos poeniteat. Si per rixam, quatuor annos poeniteat. Item qui immolat daemonibus in magnis, si consuetudo est, decem annos poeniteat. In minimis annum unum; auguriis et divinationibus, quinque annos poeniteat. Emissores tempestatum septem annos poeniteant; ut poenitentia semper isto ordine servata sit ab uno anno, et deinceps de qualicunque peccato: id est, in unaquaque hebdomade tres dies vino, et sine medone, carne: et jejUNET usque ad vesperam, et manducet de sicco cibo, et tres Quadragesimas semper de sicco cibo, et jejUNET tres dies ad nonam, et tres ad vesperam; et in diebus dominicis, et in natale Domini quatuor dies, et in Epiphaniam et in Pascha, usque in Albas; et ascensionem Domini, et Pentecosten, et S. Michael, et sanctae Mariae, et sancti Johannis Baptistae, et duodecim apostolorum, et sancti Martini, et illius sancti festivitatem, qui in illa provincia est, in his praedictis diebus faciat charitatem, sicut sui compares, clerici sive laici. Ebrietatem et ventris distensionem in omnibus caveant. Faciant quod Apostolus dicit, "Sive manducetis, sive bibatis, vel quicquid facitis, omnia ad gloriam Dei facite." Tunc ergo digna poenitentia est, si hoc impleatur.

VIII. De clericorum poenitentia.

Item in canone apostolorum indicatur, ut episcopus, presbyter, diaconus, qui in fornicatione aut perjurio, aut furto captus est, depouatur: non tamen communione privetur, quia non judicat Deus bis in id ipsum. Si quis pontifex fornicationem faciens, naturalem judicabit duodecim annos poeniteat; per multas lachrymas et eleemosynas, veniam a Domino petat; post annos tres vel quatuor levius. Presbyter cum puella non praelato monachi voto annos tres vel quatuor poeniteat, tres Quadragesimas, et quartas et sextas ferias semper de sicco cibo. Si cum ancilla Dei, aut cum masculo, plus addetur, id est, septem annos poeniteat, si consuetudo est. Similiter diaconi, si monachi non sunt, duos vel tres annos poeniteant. Sic et monachus sine gradu, si cum puella, annos tres. Si diaconus vel monachi sunt, quinque vel septem annos poeniteat. Monachi cum gradu, septem annos poeniteant, si sine voto; monachi cum puella novem annos vel decem poeniteant. Clericus sine voto monachi fornicatus, unum annum poeniteat. Si frequenter, duos annos poeniteat. Si cum canonica, duos annos: frequenter tres. Si genuerit filium, plus poeniteat: id est, quatuor vel quinque annos, alii dicunt septem exul fiat. Sic et virgo sanctimonialis cum laicis sine gradu, si clericus, qui canonici sunt, unum annum; frequenter duos. In gradu autem sicut monachus, id est, tres annos. Theodorus dixit: "Monachus faciens fornicationem, et non invenit, unum annum poeniteat et dimidium." Item monachus faciens cum puella, sex annos poeniteat. Laicus maculans se cum ancilla Dei, annos duos poeniteat. Si genuerit ex ea, tres annos poeniteat. Si sine conjugio sunt, tres Quadragesimas; quidam quadraginta dies judicant, id est, consuetum. Item sodomitae quidam, decem, id est, qui saepe fecerit vel in gradu quidam septem annos, quidam ann. ut mollis quidam centum dies, ut pueri, viri inter annos, si pueri duos annos. Qui cum pecude peccaverit, vel jumento, decem annos poeniteat, quidam septem, quidam tres, quidam unum, quidam centum dies, ut pueri. Oportebat discretionem esse inter qualitatem pecudum, vel hominum, sicut supra diximus. Item episcopus si cum quadrupede fornicaverit, octo annos poeniteat, si consuetudo, decem, presbyter quinque, diaconus tres, clericus duos.

IX. De juramento.

Qui juramentum fecerit in ecclesia, aut in evangelio, sive in reliquiis sanctorum, septem annos poeniteat. Alii duodecim annos judicant. Sive in manu episcopi, aut presbyteri vel diaconi, sive in cruce consecrata, unum annum poeniteat. Alii tres vel quatuor judicant. Et in cruce non consecrata, unum annum, vel septem menses, ut alii; qui autem seductus ignorans, et postea cognoscit, unum annum poeniteat, vel tres Quadragesimas, vel quadraginta dies poeniteat. Si quis coactus pro qualibet causa necessitatis, tres Quadragesimas, alii tres, annum unum, et ex eis in pane et aqua, ut alii judicant. Item perjuri tres annos qui suspicatur priusquam juramentum ducatur, et tamen jurat per consensum, duos annos poeniteat. Si quis in manu laici juraverit, apud Graecos nihil est.

X. De abstinentia mulierum.

Mulier abstineat se a viro suo, quando conceperit, antequam pepererit: et post partum quadraginta dies. Qui autem nupserit his diebus, decem dies poeniteat, vel triginti, vel viginti. Qui in matrimonio sunt, abstineant se tres Quadragesimas, et in dominica nocte, et in Sabbato et feria quarta et tertia qui legitime sunt, et tres noctes abstineant se, antequam communicent. Qui in Quadragesima ante Pascha cognoscit uxorem suam, et noluit abstinere, unum annum poeniteat, vel suum pretium reddat ad ecclesiam, vel pauperibus dividat, vel viginti sex solidos reddat. Si per ebrietatem vel aliqua causa accefferit sine consuetudine, quadraginta dies poeniteat. Mulier si divinationes fecerit, vel incantationes diabolicas, unum annum poeniteat, vel tres Quadragesimas, vel quadraginta dies, juxta qualitatem culpae. Mulier si aliquem interfecerit, imitantem malitia sua: id est, per poculum, aut per artem aliquam, octo annos poeniteat. Si paupercula, quatuor annos. Mulier si occiderit filium suum per homicidium, undecim annos poeniteat.

XI. De auguriis vel divinationibus.

Auguria vel sortes, quae dicuntur fata sanctorum, vel divinationibus observare, vel quorumcunque scripturarum inspectione futura promittunt, vel votum voverint in arborem vel in quamlibet quamlibet rem, excepta ecclesia, si clericus laici excommunicentur ab ecclesia, vel tres annos clericus poeniteat, laici duo, vel unum et dimidium. Mulier si filium suum supra tectum ponit, vel in fornacem, pro sanitate febrium, quinque annos poeniteat. Nolite exercere, quando luna obscuratur, ut clamoribus ac maleficiis sacrilego usu se defensare posse confidunt. Caragios et divinos praecantatores, laici tres dies sine cerevisia vel vino et carne: alii duodecim dies. Si fidelis laicus sit, qui pro nequitia inebriat alterum, quadraginta dies poeniteat. Si vomitum facit infirmitatis causa, sine culpa est.

XII. De ebrietate.

Si per ebrietatem vel voracitatem evomerit eucharistiam, quadraginta dies poeniteat. Clericus, monachus, diaconus sexaginta, presbyter septuaginta, episcopus centum decem. Si infirmitatis causa septem dies unusquisque, sine infirmitatis causa sacrificii die quatuor dies; quidam psalterium, quidam bis psalterium suum sacrificii die in ignem projecit, vel in flumine, centum psalmos cantet. Si canes comedunt talem vomitum, centum diebus, si scit; si non scit, quadraginta. Qui vero inebriantur contra praeceptum Domini, si votum sanctitatis habent: hoc est ebrietas, quando statum mentis mutat, et linguae balbutiunt, et oculi turbantur, et vertigo erit, et ventris distensio, ac dolor sequitur. Si clericus sit, quatuor dies poeniteat. Monachus quatuordecim diaconus quatuor hebdomades. Presbyter quatuor, episcopus quinque, praelati tres sine vino et carne.

XIII. De eucharistia.

Si quis eucharistiam negligentiae causa perdidit, unum annum poeniteat, tres Quadragesimas seu quadraginta dies poeniteat. Si sacrificium in terra ceciderit causa negligentiae, quinquaginta psalmos cantet. Qui neglexerit sacrificium, ut vermes in eo sint, ut colorem non habeat saporemque, viginti dies poeniteat, vel triginta vel quadraginta, et in igne accendatur. Cinis ejus sub altari abscondatur: si usque ad terram ceciderit, unum diem poeniteat; si stella arserit, altare ceciderit, tres dies poeniteat. Qui in ecclesia modicam partem perdiderit, et non invenerit, viginti dies poeniteat, unoquoque die psalmos quadraginta cantet. Qui autem in plebem suam chrismalem perdiderit, et non invenerit, quadraginta dies poeniteat, vel tres Quadragesimas. Qui perfuderit calicem in finem solennitatis, triginta dies poeniteat.

XIV. De diversis causis.

Qui creaturam perdiderit, thus, tabulas, aut schedulam suam, sal benedictum, panem novum consecratum, vel aliquid huic simile, quatuor dies poeniteat. Qui morticinum inscius comederit, quadraginta dies poeniteat. Si autem sciens, centum dies poeniteat. Qui suffocatum comedit et est inops, vel hebes, quatuor dies poeniteat: sani autem et infirmi si sciunt, quadraginta dies poeniteant. Qui saepe faciunt tres Quadragesimas vel annum. Qui comedit vel bibit intinctum a familiari bestia, id est, canem vel cato, et scit, centum psalmos cantet, vel unum diem jejunet. Si quis dederit alicui liquorem, in quo mus vel mustela mortua inveniuntur; si secularis, quatuor dies poeniteat, in coenobiis trecentos psalmos cantet. Qui postea noverit, quod tale potum biberit, psalterium cantet. Si quis semicoctum comederit inscius tres dies poeniteat: vel psalterium cantet. Sciens autem, quatuor dies poeniteat: pro modico furto, triginta dies poeniteat in viginti annos. Pueri decem annorum, aliquod furtum facientes, quatuor dies poeniteant. Si quis intinxerit manum in aliquo cibo, et non idonea manu, centum psalmis emendetur. Si in farina aut in aliquo cibo sicco, aut in pulvere aut lacte coagulato mus vel mustela mortua inveniuntur, quod in circuitu ejus remanserit, projicietur foras: et quod reliquum est manducetur. Item qui autem, quod impoenitentiale scriptum est, implere poterit, bonum est: qui autem non potest, consilium damus per misericordiam Dei, in primitus pro uno die in pane et aqua, quinquaginta psalmos, genu flectendo: aut sine flexu, septuaginta psalmos, intra ecclesiam, vel in uno loco per ordinem psallat: et pro uno die valent duae et centum genuflexiones, vel unus denarius pro die valet, et tres eleemosynas tres pauperes valent: quidam dicunt quinquaginta percussiones, quinquaginta psal. pro uno die valent. Id est, in hyeme, in autumno, et in verno, centum percussiones vel psalm. et in aestate, centum quinquaginta psalmos vel percussiones. Item pro uno mense, quod in pane et aqua poenitere debet psalmos in genuflexu, vel sine flexu, j. dc. lxxx. et postea omnes dies reficiant ad sextam, nisi quarta et sexta feria jejunet ad nonam. A carne et vino abstineat se, alium cibum postquam psallat, sumat. In duos annos remissior poenitentia erit, de natali Domini usque in Epiphania, et illos praedictos dies, qui superscribuntur, qui impoenitentiae non computantur. Item qui non potest sic agere poenitentiam, sicut superius diximus, in primo anno eroget in eleemosyna solidos viginti tres pro uno anno in pane et aqua, donet in eleemosyna solidos viginti duos, et in unaquaque hebdomade unum diem jejunet ad nonam, et alium ad vespertinum, et tres Quad. in duos, viginti solidos, pro tribus annis octoginta solidos, quae sunt lxiv. solidi. Potentes homines pro culpis criminalibus faciunt, ut Zacchaeus ait: "Domine omnium bonorum meorum dimidium do pauperibus, et si quid injuste abstuli, in quadruplum reddam;" et de mancipiis dimittat liberos et captivos redimat, et a quo die desinat peccare, non desinat commemorare, quod apostolus ait: "Qui per corpus peccat, per corpus emendet," hoc est, jejniis et vigiliis, et orationibus ad Dominum, qui conversus fuerit, et omne malum fecit, in effundendum sanguinem in furto, in fornicatione, in mendacio et juramento, et omnibus malis: et postea Deo servire vult usque in finem, tres et duos annos poeniteat, vel quomodo sacerdos judicet. Ipse tamen cogitet de medicamento animarum, quomodo suam vel eorum animas servare valeat in erudiendo, in docendo sanum sermonem nem, quod qui bene ministrat, bonum gradum sibi acquirit apud eum, qui est super omnia “Deus benedictus in secula seculorum, Amen.”

XV. Item de pretio anni vel diei.

Primo anno quidam promiserunt quatuor triduanas, interveniente una nocte. Alii aiunt, duodecim triduanas: hoc est, semel in uno mense triduanas quidam dixerunt. Quidam verberibus aut in vigiliis insistendo quatrimum: alii sic, alii vero sic. Pretium autem diei, hoc est agapen, duobus vel tribus pauperibus. Alii totum psalterium, id est, in aestate, in hyeme vero, et in verno vel autumnno quinquaginta psalmos: quidam duodecim plagas vel percussiones, vel plus minus vel discernat tempora. Quidam in labore alieno, vel inflectendo Quadrageinta bis definat, Quadrageinta ter definat, centum viginti sexies definat, et addentur decem, secundo viginti, superiori triginta, si labor non sit.

Nota. Gestit, ut vides, hoc se opusculum, Bedae nomine, aegre tamen id concedendum. Si enim poenitentiales suos canones non ediderit Egbertus usquedum salutatus est archiepiscopus, ut ex eorum suggeratur titulo, nec pote-stas ei per jus competiverit quam e Roma retulisset pallium; libellus iste sine dubio non est Bedae. Juxta Fastos enim non est affecutus archiepiscopatus cathedram ante annum gratiae DCCXXXV. Pallium vero, ut superius e Florilego annotavimus, non ante annum DCCXLV. et Bedam obiisse refert Sigebertus in an. Domini DCCXXXI. probatiores nostri auctores Wigornensis, Malmesburienensis, Westmonasteriensis, atque alii in anno DCCXXXIV. et Cuthbertus ipse, qui apud Wigornensem adfuisse dicitur morienti, in sequenti anno, hoc est DCCXXXV. 8. cal Junii, 4. feria, et circa horam x.

Bedae igitur non est tribuendum, reor, hoc opusculum: cujus ne relator deprehendar malefidus: scias lector me pauca aliquot hic consulto praeteriisse, utpote quae pectore verecundi sacerdotis potius reponenda censui, quam publicae exponenda lectioni, ne ignotas forte doceant turpitudines, castumve huic radant oculum, pudicam illi aurem. Loca igitur nec vel asterisco denotavimus, ne quaerenti esset pro Mercurio. Pluribus autem, ut accepi, discrepat impressus codex ab Oxoniensi manuscripto, habenturque in eodem aegri aliquot loci quos tardius deprehensos, jam non possumus sanos reddere.

Monachi primum in Anglia vinum bibunt. Ex Balaeo Cent. II. cap. xv. in Append. [Ann. Dom. DCCLVII. Spelm. vol. I. p. 289.]

PIPINUS ex regis et magistri sui prodicione Francorum rex per pontificem factus, Romanorum ritus et cantum anno Dom. DCCLVI. primus in Gallias attulit: ut habet Paulus Aemilius in Chronicis Francorum. Sequenti anno monachi primum Lindisfarne, vinum bibere coeperunt: nam prius aquam solummodo aut lac potabant. Principes in Anglia multi his diebus, cum tonsura monachatum induebant.

Edictum Eadberti regis Cantii de mutandis loco et consuetudine sepeliendi reges et archiepiscopos Cantuarienses. Ex Antiqq. Britann. Eccl. in Cuthberto et Tho. Spot. monach. S. Aug. [Ann. Dom. DCCLVIII. Ibidem seq.]

CUTHBERTUS, archiepiscopus Cantuariæ ecclesiam suam cathedralem Christi, honore aliquo insignire cupiens, cum nulla honorabili sepultura ornatam videret, indignum ratus est, defunctorum archiepiscoporum corporibus suam ecclesiam spoliari, et ad monasterium Petri et Pauli, sanctique Augustini ea semper transferri. Iniit ergo secum rationem, quonam modo hanc consuetudinem irritam faceret. Itaque ad regem Eadbertum in Cantio tunc regnantem accessit: ab eo precibus contendit, ut praedictum sepulturae morem mutaret, et mutatum regio suo edicto confirmaret: quod partim precario, partim etiam pretio interveniente, tandem obtinuit an. Dom. DCCLVIII. etc.

Nota. Luci non prostat edicti istius regii diploma. Constituit autem Augustinus, primus ibidem archiepiscopus ex auctoritate sancti Gregorii papae ejusdemque confirmatione: ut monasterium SS. Petri et Pauli, quod in fundo S. Pancratii extra muros Cantuariæ aedificabatur, locus in perpetuum esset sepulturae archiepiscoporum Cantuariensium: ut v deas in appendice in diatriba de primis ecclesiis Anglofaxonum, pag. 724. in tertia charta Ethelberti regis p. 728. et in bulla plumbea Augustini p. 730. licet enim charta et bulla ista, scripturae vetustatem, quam prae se tulerint, non obtinuisse censeam, rei tamen gestae veritatem continere non inficiar.

Certum est, ante hoc Cuthberti tempus, nullum fuisse in urbibus coemeterium, nullum sepulturae locum. Prohibitum quippe cum in legibus XII. tabularum, cap. II. tum ex more gentium, et consuetudine ipsius ecclesiae, in urbibus sepelire. Morem igitur tenuere Gregorius et Augustinus, statuentes, ut ipsorum regum et archiepiscoporum sepultura extra urbem foret: et de hoc statuere, ad sacram jurisdictionem pertinebat (etiam apud Romanos ethnicos) non civilem. Cum tamen ad abrogandam hanc antiquam consuetudinem, et ecclesiasticam constitutionem ab archiepiscopo Augustino, et ipso papa Gregorio latam veniretur: vides sub hoc seculo, primatem ipsum antistitem Cuthbertum, non ad claves gladiumve ecclesiae ecclesiae confugere, sed obnixius regiae potestatis virgam et diploma implorare: et hoc quidem non in armatam laicorum multitudinem late dispersam; sed in domesticam ecclesiae suae clientelam, imbelles aliquot monachos, claustro septos et mundo mortuos. Haec SPELM.

Scholae seu collegii Anglorum Romae institutio. Ex Balaeo Cent. I. ca. xv. et Malmesbur. De gest. reg. lib. II. cap. ii. [Circa ann. Dom. DCCCLX. Spelm. vol. I. p. 290. seq.]

DE istius origine tenuis apud veteres mentio. "Claruit [inquit Balaeus] Ecgbertus, archiepiscopus Ebor. anno a Salvatoris nostri adventu in carnem DCCCLX." Et mox subjungit in Appendice: "Circa haec tempora Merciorum rex Offa, Romae collegium pro peregrinis Anglicis, ad non modicum Anglicanae reipub. malum fecit, ac pontifici sua sponte tributum annuum pendit." Collegium sive scholam istam condidisse cedit etiam Malmesburius: qui de Aethelwulpho rege Romam postea veniente, sic commemorat: "Ibi ergo integro moratus anno, scholam Anglorum, quae, ut fertur, ab Offa rege Merciorum primitus instituta, proximo anno conflagraverat, reparavit egregie." Non autem cum Balaeo suggerit, Offam hoc collegium sive scholam condidisse, eodem tempore quo tributum pependit. Clarum enim est, eum neque concessisse neque pependisse tributum, de quo Balaeus loquitur, ante adventum suum Romam an. Dom. DCCXCIV. Scholam vero seu collegium etiam tunc et prius floruisse, liquet e residentiario codice MS. Cicestrensis ecclesiae, ubi in hunc modum legitur: "Anno Domini DCCXIV. sic scriptum de denariis S. Petri reperitur. Offa rex Merciorum pro impetranda canonizatione S. Albani martyris, Romam adiens tempore Adriani papae primi expedito voto suo, scholas Anglorum quae tunc Romae floruerant ingressus, contulit ad sustentationem scholarium regni sui illuc venientium, singulos argenteos, de singulis familiis quibus fors tantum dederat extra domos in pascuis, ut XXX. argenteorum pretium excederet: et pro tali largitate obtinuit ab eodem papa, ut nullus de regno Angliae publice poenitens pro sibi injunctis poenitentiis, exilium tunc subiret." Clara igitur fuit haec Anglorum schola antequam Offa Romam venit, deinceps vero multo clarior ex hac ejus munificentia. Cui insigne aliud adjecit beneficium, quod a Carolo Magno privilegium obtinuit; ut Romam peregrinantes Angli religionis ergo pace fruerentur, liberique essent a vectigalibus et teloniis. Consimile eis utique privilegium Romae commorantibus, indulgit postea Martinus papa II. ut superius de utroque videas in annis gratiae DCCXCVII. et DCCCLXXXIII.

Carolus Magnus rex Francorum mittit concilii Nicaeni II. librum in Britanniam ad Offam R. Merciorum, in quo imagines decernuntur adorandae, sed Angli hoc rejiciunt. Ex lib. de vita Offae regis p. 152. [Ann. Dom. DCCXCII. Ibidem p. 305. seqq.]

Epistola Caroli Magni ad Offam, regem Merciorum.

CAROLUS, gratia Dei rex Francorum, et Longobardorum, et patricius Romanorum, viro venerando et fratri charissimo Offano, Merciorum regi salutem, honorem, et amorem. Cum deceat reges potentes et famosos amicitiae foedere convinciri, et mutuis gaudiis adinvicem gratulari, ut in vinculo charitatis Christus in omnibus et ab omnibus glorificetur: vestrae serenitati hoc eulogium duximus destinandum. Cum nobilissimam Longobardorum civitatem, cum suis civibus omnibus nostro dominatui subjugaverimus, et Italiam totam nostro imperio feliciter subjugaverimus, Christi adjutorio, cui famulari desideramus, rex Desiderius Longobardorum, ducesque Saxoniae, quos nostris nutibus inclinavimus, Withimundus et Albion, cum fere omnibus incolis Saxoniae, baptismi susceperunt sacramentum, Domino Jesu Christo de caetero famulaturi. Hoc igitur salubri mandato ego Carolus, regum christianorum orientalium potentissimus, vos O Offane, regum occidentalium christianorum potentissime, cupio laetificare et te in dilectione speciali amplecti sincerius.

Ex quo autem haec Offano plenius nunciabantur, crevit dietim inter ipsos reges magnificos amicitia, foedera firmabantur, munera pretiosa mutuo deferebantur, regna utrobique non modicum roborabantur, et prosperitas utriusque suscepit incrementum. Inter caetera vero dilectionis insignia, memoratus rex Carolus (qui sicut erat regum potentissimus, ita et erat mansuetissimus) Offano regum Occidentalium maximo et piissimo, quasdam transmisit epistolas, cum quibus statuta synodalia, quasi quaedam fidei catholicae rudimenta, ad informandum corda aliquorum suorum praelatorum, quos rudes credidit et incompósitos: et ad amicitiam inter ipsos inchoatam feliciter perpetuandam. Quam et idem Offa, quasi hostiam sibi caelitus transmissam, gratanter et gaudenter suscepit.

Haec codex de vita Offae, qui praetermissis mediis pluribus, remotiora insequitur. Scribi enim videtur data epistola sub anno Domini DCCLXXIV. Nam eo anno subjugasse dicitur apud Sigebertum Carolus Magnus Desiderium, Longobardorum regem, et Italiam totam: tribusque suis exercitibus Saxonum tres exercitus delevisse. Statuta vero synodalia, de quibus loquitur, ad Offam non mittuntur ante annum DCCXCII. vel sub eo tempore, nam concilium ipsum Nicaenum II. non est celebratum ante an. Dom. [Bin. DCCLXXXVII. Sigeb. DCCLXXXIII. Fasti DCCLXXXIX. Pontac. DCCXC.] DCCLXXXIX. Nec meminit auctor iste quid in statutis illis synodalibus decretum fuit, sed ab aliis hoc petendum liquet, et inter primos Hovedeno, qui sic ait, Annal. par. I. pag. 405.

Anno ab incarnatione Domini DCCXCII. Carolus rex Francorum misit synodalem librum ad Britanniam, sibi a Constantinopoli directum: in quo libro, heu pro dolor! multa inconvenientia et verae fidei contraria, reperta sunt: maxime, quod pene omnium orientalium doctorum non minus quam trecentorum vel eo amplius episcoporum, unanimi assertione confirmatum, imagines adorari debere: quod omnino ecclesia Dei execratur. Contra quod scripsit * Albinus epistolam ex auctoritate divina scripturarum mirabiliter affirmatam, illamque cum eodem libro, ex persona episcoporum et principum nostrorum regi Francorum attulit.

Nota. Habetur Hovedeni haec narratio, ni me fallant notae meae et memoria, nam defunt mihi jam ad quos recurram libri ipsi, apud Simeonem Dunelmensem; et in historia Roffensi: in Saxon. Sermon. par. ult. et totidem verbis apud Matthaeum Westmonasteriensem in anno gratiae DCCXCIII. Qui hic Albinus, alias Flaccus Albinus, et usitatius Alcuinus nominatur. Vir inter eruditos sui seculi, extra aleam positus: Anglus genere, sed apud Gallos praecipue florens. Erat quippe Caroli Magni institutor, et in sacris ei consultissimus, de quo multa Malmesburius et scriptores nostri. Sed ne de Anglo Anglos audias, Sigebertum habe in anno DCCXC. "Alcuinus de Britannia oriundus, magister deliciosus regis Caroli, scientia literarum praepollet in Gallia, cujus praecipue magisterio ipse rex omnes artes liberales didicit. Hic multa scripsit inter quae eminent libri de sancta Trinitate scripti ad ipsum regem. Hic etiam jussu ipsius regis divinam historiam correxit." Haec illic. Vide Baronium.

Memorabilis autem et lugubris pariter sub hoc seculo orta est in ecclesia Dei, de adorandis imaginibus disceptatio: quae cum in oriente, ab ipsis imperatoribus Philippico Bardanae, Leone III. Isauro, Constantino VI. Cabalino etc. synodisque Nicaena et Constantinopolitana VII. oecumenica, etc. ultra citraque acerbissime vexata esset et damnata: arte et dolo Irenes imperatricis [dux foemina facti] aspi-rante Hadriano papa, conflatum est Nicaenum hoc concilium an. Dom. DCCLXXXIX. in quo pars propugnatrix superior evasit, propulsatrix vincitur et opprimitur. Longum est ambages recitare, et non nostri penfi.

Stabilito vero in hunc modum cultu imaginum, allatus est a Constantinopoli ad Carolum Magnum, regem Franciae nondum imperatorem, actorum synodaliu codex, quem ille citius in Britanniam misit ad Offam regem Merciae, et episcopos suos observandum. Peregrina illis hac doctrina, quam, ut supra dicitur, "omnino ecclesia Dei execratur," contristatis; Alcuinus, de quo supra, per epistolam ex persona episcoporum et principum Angliae, ad Carolum datam, hanc Nicaeni concilii sententiam scripturae sacrae testimoniis mirabiliter labefactat: Carolumque, ut videtur, sic concussum reddidit, ut altero posthac anno, habita ex mandato ejus Francofordiae synodo 300. vel eo supra patrum, refutetur hoc decretum de imaginibus adorandis, et damnetur. Placeat synodi verba recitari, ut e bibliotheca celeberrimi I. C. Petri Pithoei luci publicae exhibuit Melchior Goldastus inter imperialia decreta de cultu imaginum § X. cap. ii. "Allata est, [inquit synodus Francofordensis] in medium quaestio de nova Graecorum synodo, quam de adorandis imaginibus Constantinopoli fecerunt, in qua scriptum habebatur, ut qui imagines sanctorum, ita ut deificam Trinitatem, servitio aut adoratione non impenderent, anathema judicarentur. Quam omnes, qui supra, sanctissimi patres nostri, omnimodis et adorationem et servitium respuentes contempserunt, atque consentientes condemnauerunt." Prodigiosam sane illam sententiam de deificandis imaginibus in Nicaenae synodi exemplari a Binio hodie exhibito non reperire me fateor: inter multa autem de adorandis imaginibus sparsim edita papam ipsum Hadrianum omnia lenientem, spontaneam enim, ne vel adversariis injuriam feram, ita introducit in epist. Adrian. ad imp. Act. 2. Ἐπεὶ μὴ ἤνοιτο ἡμῖν, ἵνα τὰς αὐτὰς εἰκόνας, καθὼς φλυαροῦσιν τινες, θεοποιήσωμεν· ὁ γὰρ μόχθος καὶ ὁ πόντος ἡμῶν, ὃν ἔχομεν εἰς τὸ πόθον τῆς Θεοῦ καὶ τῶν ἁγίων αὐτῶν ἐστίν. Καὶ καθὼς ἡ θεία γραφή ἡμῶν ἔχει, τὰς αὐτὰς εἰκόνας εἰς μνημόσυνον τῆς Θεοῦ δόξης ἡμῶν ἔχομεν, φυλάττοντες τὴν καθαρότητα τῆς πίστεως ἡμῶν. Id est, "Nam absit a nobis, ut ipsas imagines, sicut quidam garriunt, deificemus. Sed affectum et dilectionem nostram, quam in Dei amorem et sanctorum ejus habemus, omnimodo praeferimus. Et sicut divinae scripturae libros ipsas imagines ob memoriam venerationis habemus, nostrae fidei puritatem servantes." Haec ille, et alia: quae si patribus Francofordensis concilii innotuerint, videntur pro commentis censuisse, dum nihilominus imaginum condemnarunt adorationem. Sed gravem esse quaestionem ait Binius inter viros hujus seculi doctissimos, an Nicaena II. synodus a patribus Francofordensis concilii condemnata esset, an non; alii, inquit, negant, alii affirmant: fateturque illustrissimos ipsos cardinales Baronium atque Bellarminum condemnatam sensisse. Cum tamen istius concilii actiones non in lucem devenisse animadverteret, non abstinuit negare quid in eo actum esset adversus cultum imaginum; imo eo prorupit, ut contrarium stabilitum contendat, ipsosque Bellarminum et Baronium aliter decernentes, pluribus satagit redarguere. Proculdubio id in causa fuit quod perierunt Francofordensis synodi monumenta (et Alcuini nostri laudata adeo epistola superstita interea tanto operum suorum volumine) quod imaginum oppugnabant adorationem. Vixissent enim et in Vaticana forte haberentur bibliotheca, si, quod Binius asserit, eandem promovissent. Me ut reprimam: nihil haecenus obvenit nobis, quo ecclesiam Anglicanam imaginum censeamus adorationem suscepisse. Vide quae a Goldasto colliguntur in citato suo libro; et quid Magdeburgenses Cent. VIII. cap. ix. et confer haec cum Binii notis ad H. Nicaen. synod. et Francoford. concil.

Epistola Caroli Magni ad Offam regem Merciorum de privilegiis Romam peregrinantibus concessis. E MS. Cod. de vita Offae regis. [Circa an. Dom. dccxcvii. Spelm. vol. I. p. 315.]

CAROLUS, gratia Dei rex Francorum et Longobardorum, et patricius Romanorum, viro venerando et fratri charissimo Offae regi Merciorum salutem. Primo gratias agimus omnipotenti Deo, de catholicae fidei sinceritate, quam in vestris laudabiliter paginis reperimus exaratam. De peregrinis vero qui pro amore Dei et salute animarum suarum, beatorum apostolorum limina desiderant adire, cum pace sine omni perturbatione vadant. Sed si aliqui non religioni servientes, sed lucrum sectantes, inveniuntur inter eos, locis opportunis statuta solvant telonia. Negotiatores quoque volumus, ut ex mandato nostro, patrocinium habeant in regno nostro legitime, etsi in aliquo loco injusta affligantur oppressione, reclamant se ad nos et nostros iudices; et plenam jubebimus inde justitiam fieri. Cognoscat quoque dilectio vestra, quod aliquam benignitatem de Dalmaticis nostris vel palliis ad singulas sedes episcopales regni vestri vel Ethelredi direximus, in elemosynam domini apostolici Adriani: deprecantes ut pro eo intercedi jubeatis, nullam habentes dubitationem, beatam illius animam in requie esse; sed ut fidem et dilectionem ostendamus in amicum nobis charissimum. Sed de thesauro humanarum rerum quem Dominus Jesus (nobis) gratuita pietate concessit, aliquid per metropolitanas civitates direximus, vestrae quoque dilectioni unum balteum et unum gladium Hunniscum, et duo pallia ferica duximus destinanda. Vale.

Malmesburio [De gest. reg. lib. I.] assumpsisse: qui non eam integre, sed (ut sua utar dictione) haec saltuim verba epistolae decerpens, per compendium veluti nobis reddidit. Angli vero sub hac tempestate peregrinantes Romam, gravissimis spoliis et injuriis affliguntur, non solum a Saracenis qui Alpium infidebant angustiis, sed ab aliis etiam Caroli Magni subditis, Galliam et Italiam habitantibus: de quo apud Carolum Offa querens, hoc per epistolam retulit privilegium, anno incerto. Westmonasterius (sibi non constans) eam primo ponit in anno dcccxxv. deinde, seu consultior, seu oblitus praecedentis, in dccxcvii. et utrobique eisdem pene verbis, sed utrobique data peccans aliquantulum. Ex verbis enim ipsius epistolae, scripta deprehenditur post mortem Hadriani papae, qui in vivis fuit anno dcccxxv. et in vicesimo subsequenti. In anno vero dccxcvii, non solum Hadrianus (si fastis et chronographis nostris fidem adhibuerimus) sed et ipse Offa mortuus est, utrique scilicet in anno dccxcvi. sic ut scripta videatur haec epistola sub ipso tempore quo decessit Offa, quod vicinum regem Carolum diu non latere potuit. Munera quae Carolus rex Offae misit, sic expressit et interpretatur priscus quidam.

A Carolo dona data sunt Offae, mucro, zona, Cingat ut imbelles clemens, feriatque rebelles. Pallia donantur, velut his secreta tegantur. Tyro mucrone, sed et utens munere zonae, Indomitos punit, pronos sibi necit et unit. Palliat arcana, ne signent pallia vana.

Aethelwulphus R. occidentalium Saxonum potitus Merciorum, Northumbrorum, orientalium Anglorum, et australium Saxonum regnis, Denarium (quem vocant) S. Petri eisdem imponit; et scholam Anglorum Romae incendio correptam instaurat. Ex Polyd. Virg. lib. V. [An. Dom. dcccxlvi. Ibid. p. 343.]

REX ea molestia liberatus, haud multo post Romam voti causa petivit, ubi a Leone IV. pontifice benigne acceptus, fecit Romano pontifici eam quoque insulae partem quam Ecgbertus pater ad regnum adjunxerat, vectigalem, imitatus Inam, id quod supra memoravimus: legeque sancivit, ut qui ex suis possessionibus, triginta denariorum vectigal in singulos annos caperent, aut plures domos haberent, pro iis, quas habitarent, singuli singulos denarios quotannis Romano pontifici, ad diem festum apostolorum Petri et Pauli, vel summum, ad Vincula Petri solverent. Quam legem quidam, licet falso, Aluredo ejus filio assignant. Fuit

is annus salutis humanae DCCCXLVII.

Idem fertur instaurasse Romae scholam quandam primo ab Offa Merciorum rege conditam, et paulo ante ejus adventum in urbem, incendio fere consumptam. Ipsam autem scholam, ubi Romae Angli duntaxat manebant, bonisque artibus operam dabant, eo loci fuisse opinor, quo postea hospitalis domus divo Thomae dedicata posita est, ad quam Angli homines receptum habent. Rex Ethelwulphus moratus est Romae majorem anni partem: postea domum reversus, non modo se clementem principem, sed optimum parentem omnibus suis praebuit, ut qui cuncta ad honesti cultum, modestiamque referebat.

Nota. Errat sine dubio Polydorus, seu quis alius in anno istis designando. Haec enim facta refert dum Aethelwulphus Romae versabatur, quod Wigornensis et clariores alii historiographi etiam et ipsius Aethelwulphi charta sub anno statuunt DCCCLV. imo Florilegus DCCCLVII. et surrepsit hic forte numerus DCCCXLVII. pro DCCCLVII.

Cur variores nunc et posthac synodi in ecclesia Britannica. [Spelm. vol. I. p. 353.]

JAM ad funestissima illa tempora pervenimus, in quibus Danorum eluvies per Angliam universam grassata; urbes, oppida, castra, monasteria, ipsas ecclesias, populumque Dei, et sacrum ministerium ferro et face erasit; conculcatis una, quae non solum ad regni reipublicaeque spectabant habitum, sed literarum et religionis scientiam: hinc truncato foedissime sancto archipraefule, illinc in latebras adaeto rege piissimo. Abiit igitur in desuetudinem rei ipsius sacrae administratio publica; silent leges, et per annos plurimos relegatur conciliorum usus et synodorum; donec rex fortissimus Aluredus tanquam leo rugiens, et e latibulis proruens, "percussit inimicos suos in posteriora, opprobriumque sempiternum dedit illis." Triumphatis enim eorum aliis et fugatis; aliis vero victas manus porrigentibus: hos in deditionem suscepit, illos patriis abactos sedibus Angliae compulit valedicere. Redeunt tamen post dies ejus, novisque semper inhiantes moliminibus, miseram insulam (una et ecclesiam) usque ad Confessoris seculum laniant et diripiunt, ecclesiasticam politiam impediunt saepius, et saepius subvertentes.

DESIDERATUR bulla privilegii, de eo autem sic Hovedenus. "Anno DCCCLXXXIII. Martinus papa scholam Saxonum (nostratum) in Roma morantium, pro amore et deprecatione regis Alfredi, ab omni tributo et telone liberavit benigne. Qui etiam Martinus multa dona praedicto regi transmisit, inter quae dedit ei non parvam illius sanctae crucis partem, in qua filius Dei pro salute hominum pependit."

Idem Florilegus, sed scholam Anglorum dicit; et addit ut sequitur. "Eodem anno defuncto Afferio Shireburnensi antistite Suithelmus successit. Hic regis Aelfredi eleemosynam ad sanctum apostolum Thomam in Indiam deferens, indeque prospere rediens, multos regi pretiosos lapides reportavit." V. Affer. Meneven. in ann. DCCCLXXXIV. et Matt. Westmon. eo anno.

CAP. I. De juramentis et vadiis. Ll. Sax.
CAP. I. et Jorn. CAP. I.

INPRIMIS, quod maxime necessarium est, cuicunque fidelium, fidem et juramentum suum, multa, ut convenit, observantia custodire. Si quis tamen ad alterutrum cogatur injuste, vel ad prodicionem domini, vel injustum aliquod adjutorium: rectius est hoc e mentiri quam implere. Si quis autem vadiet quod fieri justum sit, et transgrediatur, committat arma sua et pecuniam amicis suis in custodiam, et sit quadraginta noctibus in carcere ad mansionem regiam, et poeniteat ibi secundum jussionem episcopi sui, et parentes ejus pascant eum, si ipse victum non habeat. Si parentes non habeat, aut ci-bum, praepositus regis procuret eum, et si cogi oporteat, et aliter nolit, si ligetur, perdet arma sua cum tota pecunia sua. Si occidatur, inultus jaceat. Si aufugerit ante terminum, et iterum capiatur, sit quadraginta noctibus in carcere, ut ante debuerat. Si amittatur, sit forbannitus, et excommunicatus ab omnibus Christi ecclesiis. Si tunc aliquis plegius interfit, emendat infractionem plegii, sicut rectum edocebit, et infracturam vadii secundum poenitentiae censuram.

CAP. II. De confugio ad ecclesiam. Ll. Sax.
CAP. II. Jorn. II.

Si quis ad ecclesiae mansionem pro quacunque culpa confugiat, quae ad firmam regis

^a non

^a non pertineat, vel alterius liberae familiae quae honorabilis sit: habeat ^b trium noctium terminum cavendi sibi, nisi reconciliari quaesierit. Si quis ^c in hunc terminum malignaverit ^d eum, vinculis aut verberibus, emendet singulum eorum rectitudinem patriae, were, wita, et ecclesiae ministris centum viginti solidos, pro infractione pacis.

CAP. III. De infractione plegii regis [vel episcopi] Ll. Sax. CAP. III. Jorn. III.

Si quis plegium regis infringat, emendet inculpationem, sicut rectum est, et infractionem plegii quinque libris Merciorum denariorum. Archiepiscopi Borhbrice sive Mundbrice emendetur III. lib. aliorum episcoporum vel comitum II. lib.

CAP. IV. De pace ecclesiarum, et earum libertate. Ll. Sax. CAP. V. Jorn. V.

Item statuimus omni ecclesiae dedicatae, pacem habeat. Si quis factiosus incurrat vel ad eam confugiat, nullus eum septem diebus contingat vel extrahat. Si quis hoc praesumat, culpabilis sit infractionis regiae pacis et ecclesiae, et amplius, si forisfaciat amplius: si pro fame vivere possit, si non, ^e vi praelietur. Si aeditui magis opus habeant ^f ecclesiae suae, custodiant eum in alia domo quae non habeat plura ostia quam ecclesia, et caveat ipsius ecclesiae senior ne interim reum pascant. Si inimicis suis arma sua reddiderit, et se dederit, fervetur xxx. noctibus, et parentibus et amicis suis ^g offeratur.

Item qui ad ecclesiam confugiet pro quacunque culpa quae non propalata sit, et eam in nomine Domini gratis ^h confitetur, dimidium forisfacti condonetur ei.

CAP. V. De furtis die festo. Ll. Sax. CA. VI. Jorn. VI.

Qui furatur die Dominica vel in sancto Natali, vel in Pascha, vel ⁱ in ascensione Domini, in quolibet eorum volumus dupliciter emendandum sit, sicut in quadragesimali jejunio.

CAP. VI. De furatis in ecclesia. Ll. Sax. CA. VI. Jorn. VII.

Si quis in ecclesia furetur aliquid, restituat hoc semel, et forisfactum sicut ad angildum pertinet: et amputetur ei manus de qua furatus [est.] Si manum redimere velit, et hoc ei permittatur, componat sicut ad weram ejus pertinebit.

CAP. VII. De ducente sanctimoniam ab ecclesia. Ll. Sax. CA. VIII. Jorn. IX.

Si quis sanctimoniam ab ecclesia duxerit, sine licentia regis aut episcopi, det centum viginti solidos, dimidium regi, dimidium episcopo, et ipsius ecclesiae domino cujus monacha fuit. Si ipsa diutius vivat quam qui eam abduxit, nihil de pecunia ejus habeat. Si infan-tem procreaverint, nihil inde habeat infans, sicut nec mater ejus. Si puer eorum occidatur, habeat partem rex maternae cognationis, parentes patris partem suam habeant.

CAP. VIII. De sponsa fornicata. Ll. Sax. CA. X. Jorn. XII.

Si quis fornicetur cum uxore hominis ^k twelfhendes emendet ipse marito 120. sol. homini ^l sexhindo 100. sol. ^m cyrlisco 60. sol. emendet et hoc in viventi ⁿ capitali componatur, et nemo vendatur pro eo.

CAP. IX. De injuria cyrliscae foeminae. Ll. Sax. CA. XI. Jorn. XIII.

Si qui ^o cyrliscae foeminae pectus apprehendat, 5. sol. emendetur ei. Si supinet eam, nec tamen concumbat cum ea, 10. sol. emendet. Si concubuerit, 60. sol. emendet ei. Si aliquis cum ea jacuit antea, sit emendatio medietas hoc. Si accusetur inde ^p adlegiet se per 60. hidas, vel dimidium emendationis amittat. Si hoc in nobilius oriunda muliere contigerit, crescat emendatio sicut ejus natalis ingenuitas erat.

CAP. X. De illis qui pugnant coram archiepiscopo. Ll. Sax. CA. XV. Jorn. XVII.

Si quis coram archiepiscopo pugnet, vel arma extrahat, emendet 130. sol. Si coram alio episcopo vel aldermanno faciat, 120. sol. emendetur.

CAP. XI. De apprehensione nunnae. Ll. Sax. CA. XVIII. Jorn. XX.

Si quis nunnam causa fornicationis, in vestes aut in sinum sine licentia comprehendat, sit hoc duplo emendabile, sicut ante simpliciter de laica decrevimus.

CAP. XII. De pecunia commissa monacho. Ll. Sax. CA. XX. Jorn. XXIII.

Si quis alterius monacho pecuniam commendavit sine licentia domini ipsius monachi, et amittatur, nihil inde recipiat qui commisit ei.

CAP. XIII. De presbytero homicida. Ll. Sax. CA. XXI. Jorn. XXIV.

Si presbyter hominem occidat, capiatur totum unde sibi mansionem emerat: et exordinet eum episcopus, et ab ecclesia reddatur, nisi dominus suus componere velit weram ejus.

CAP. XIV. De violento concubitu foeminae villanae. Ll. Sax. CA. XXV. Jorn. XXVIII.

Si quis ceorles mancipium ad violentum concubitum comminetur, emendet ipsi ceorlo, i. rustico 5 s. et 60 s. witae.

CAP. XV. De servo qui servam violenter cogat. Ll. Sax. CA. XXV. Jorn. XXIX.

Si servus servam cogat ad violentiam perferendam, castretur.

Anglosaxonum eleemosyna Romam mittitur. [Spelm. vol. I. p. 374. seq.]

Hoc anno, viz. DCCCLXXXVII. Aethelhelm comes Wiltunensium Aelfridi regis et Anglosaxonum eleemosynam Romam duxit: verba sunt Asserii episcopi Menevensis, qui hoc tempore floruit, Aluredo intimus et a consiliis. De nummo autem loquitur quem Denarium S. Petri vocant: et nota eum hunc non tributum appellare, ut Polydorus et Romani alii, sed eleemosynam: beatum apostolum secutus qui Corinthiorum similem, λογίαν vocat, et [†] χάριν, collectam scilicet atque gratiam sive liberalitatem.

Nota. Praeter has quas exhibuimus Aluredi leges, alias etiam condidit ad ecclesiam pertinentes, cum Guthurnum, Danorum regem victum et ad fidem ductum e sacro fonte in filium adoptivum suscepisset. Non habentur autem in ea foederis parte quam ab eis pactam Lambardus edidit, sed in alio foedere quod cum eodem Guthurno iniit rex Edwardus, Aluredi filius, recitantur integre et confirmantur. Ibidem igitur (A. D. DCCCcv.) eas cum Saxonico exemplari, vol. I. pag. 202. seqq. quare et intueri interea vetustam illarum versionem e Jornalensi MS. in Latinum datam.

Leges ecclesiasticae ab Aluredo M. rege Anglorum, et Guthurno rege Anglodanorum in concilio quo foedus inierunt sancitae. Ex Historia Jornalensi MS. [Ibidem p. 375. seqq.]

Hoc est concilium quod Aluredus rex et Godrun rex elegerunt et condixerunt, quum Angli et Dani ad pacem et concordiam plene convenerunt, et sapientes et qui postea successerunt, saepius hoc et assidue renovantes, in bonum semper adduxerunt.

CAP. I. De dilectione Dei et pace ecclesiae. Ll. Sax. CAP. I.

Inprimis est ut unum Deum diligere velint, et omni paganismo sedulo renunciare. Et instituerunt secularem justitiam pro eo quod sciebant, quod non poterant multi aliter castigari, plures vero nolebant ad Dei cultum, sicut deberent, aliter inclinare. Et secularem emendationem instituerunt communem Christo et regi, ubicunque recusabitur lex Dei, juste servari secundum dictionem episcopi. Et hoc est primum edictum ecclesiae pax inter parietes suos, et regis ^s Hangrid semper inconvulsa permaneat.

CAP. II. De negligentibus legem Christi, et paganismum venerantibus. Ll. Sax. CAP. II.

Si quis christianitatem suam male mutat, ut paganismum veneretur verbis vel operibus, reddat sic weram, sic witam, sic lathlite secundum quod factum sit,

^a L. handgryp.

CAP. III. De ordinatis male viventibus. Ll. Sax. CAP. III.

Et si quis ordinatus furetur, vel praelietur, vel perjuret, vel fornicetur, emendet sicut factum erit sic weram, sic witam, sic lashlite, et erga Deum saltem emendet juxta sanctorum canonum doctrinam, et plegium faciat inde, vel mittatur in carcerem.

CAP. IV. De presbyteris falso pronunciantibus festum vel jejunium. Ll. Sax. CAP. III.

Et si presbyter populum suum misdoceat de festo vel jejunio, reddat 30. sol. cum Anglis et cum Dacis 3. dimid. marcas.

CAP. V. De presbyteris rectis terminis chrisma non perquirentibus, vel baptismum negantibus. Ll. Sax. CAP. III.

Si presbyter ad rectum terminum sanctum chrisma non perquirat, vel baptismum perneget ei cui necesse sit, reddat witam cum Anglis, et cum Dacis lashlite, i. xii. horis. Et de siblegereis sapientes instituerunt, ut rex habeat superiorem, et episcopus inferiorem, nisi dignus emendetur pro Deo et pro seculo juxta modum facti, sicut episcopus docebit.

CAP. VI. De fratribus vel cognatis in una fornicantibus. Ll. Sax. CAP. IV.

Si duo fratres vel duo cognati cum una aliqua fornicentur, emendent in omni mansuetudine, sicut eis permittetur, sit wita, sit lashlite, secundum modum facti.

CAP. VII. De ordinato qui vitam forisfaciat.

Et si ordinatus homo se forisfaciat, in morte plectendus actibus exsuperetur, et episcopi iudicio reservetur.

CAP. VIII. De reo mortis qui confiteri desiderat sacerdoti. Ll. Sax. CAP. V.

Et si quis reus mortis profiteri desideret sacerdoti, nunquam negetur ei, et omnes rectitudines Dei pacificentur sedulo per Dei misericordiam, et per witam quam sapientes addicent.

CAP. IX. De decimis Dei retentis, et aliis ecclesiae rectitudinibus. Ll. Sax. CAP. VI.

Et si quis decimam contrateneat, reddat lashlite cum Dacis, witam cum Anglis. Si quis Romfeih superteneat, reddat lashlite cum Dacis, witam cum Anglis. Si quis non reddat symbolum luminis, reddat lashlite cum Dacis, witam cum Anglis. Si quis Dei rectitudines aliquas disforciet, reddat lashlite cum Dacis, witam cum Anglis. Si contra stet ut hominem vulneret, * de wita componat. Si aliquem dejiciat in mortem, sit uthlaga ut exlex, et persequatur eum cum clamore omnis qui rectum amat. Et si faciat ut occidatur pro eo quod contra rectum, et regis imperium stet, si hoc probetur, jaceat egilde.

CAP. X. De illis qui mercandis diebus dominicis. Ll. Sax. CAP. VII.

Si quis in die dominica negotiationem facere praesumat, perdat ipsum capitale et 12. oras cum Dacis, et 30. sol. cum Anglis.

CAP. XI. De operantibus diebus dominicis. Ll. Sax. CAP. VII.

Si liber diebus festis operetur, perdat libertatem suam, witam vel lashlite, servus corium perdat vel hidgildum. Si dominus servum suum cogat festis diebus operari, reddat idem dominus lashlite cum Dacis, et witam cum Anglis.

CAP. XII. De jejuniis infractis. Ll. Sax. CAP. VIII.

Si liber homo rectum jejunium frangat, reddat witam vel lashlite, si servus hoc faciat, perdat corium suum vel hidgildum.

CAP. XIII. De diebus in quibus ordalium et jusjurandum probibeantur. Ll. Sax. CAP. IX.

Ordalium et jusjurandum festis diebus et legitimis jejuniis legibus est interdictum. Et qui hoc fregerit, reddat lashlite cum Dacis, witam cum Anglis.

CAP. XIV. Ne die dominica homo forisfactus occidatur. Ll. Sax. CAP. X.

Si fieri possit nunquam occidatur aliquis in festo dominicae diei, quicquid peccaverit, sed capiatur et fervetur donec transeat festa dies.

CAP. XV.

Si quis forisfactus et de membris disfactus dimittatur, et idem post afflictionem per quatuor noctes vivat, potest ei deinceps per episcopi licentiam subveniri, si quis ejus doloribus et animae condescendat.

CAP. XVI. De sortilegis, incantatoribus, veneficis, perjuris, et his similibus. Ll. Sax. CAP. XI.

Si sortilegae vel incantatrices, perjuri et venefici, foedae, foetidae, vel meretrices alicubi compareant, relegentur de patria, desperent omnia, nisi cessent, et profundius emendent.

CAP. XVII. De ordinatis vel alienigenis in aliquid de pecunia vel vita seductis. Ll. Sax. CAP. XII.

Si ordinatus vel alienigena seducatur in aliquo de pecunia, vel vita, tunc debet ei adesse rex vel comes illius terrae, et episcopus gentis illius pro cognatione et advocato, si penitus alium non habeat, et emendet sedulo juxta modum facti, Christo et regi, sicut docebit, vel illud factum profunde nimis vindicet, qui Rex sit in populo.

* Credo legendum de vita componat. Nam in Anglosax. est beo hyr reonher rcylbig.

Nota. De tempore non liquet quo sanxisse censeantur leges illas alias, quas supra dedimus, Aluredus et Guthurnus. Certum est, post i-ctum inter eos foedus (quod Wigornensis refert ad A. D. DCCCLXXVI. Afferius ad DCCCLXXVII. Huntingtonius ad annum DCCCLXXVIII.) et verisimillimum est, post priores illas ab Aluredo solo editas, tum quod Aluredi illae nullam de Danis mentionem faciunt, tum etiam quod in vetustis legum Saxonicarum exemplaribus istae illas subsequuntur.

Erat autem Guthurnus (alias Godrun, Guthrum, et Gythurnus) rex Danicus, quem bello victum ad fidem convertit Aluredus, susceptoque e sacro fonte, Aethelstani nomen imposuit: et tanquam in filium adoptato, eximiam regni sui partem, provincias scil. orientalium Anglorum et Northumbrensiū, quae singulis olim gaudebant regibus, jure feudali et haereditario possidendas cessit. In condendis igitur istis legibus Guthurnum sibi ascivit socium, ne valere minus viderentur, cum ad Anglos utriusque regni, tum ad Danos ipsos adventitios obligandos.

Miraberis autem nec immerito, qua humanitatis praerogativa insignis hic princeps, qui sexies supra quinquaginta vicibus terra marique adversus Danos dimicasse fertur: subcivitas tot horas, imo tantam vitae portionem in legendo, scribendo, et transferendo consumpsit: ea praesertim tempestate qua literarum et religionis lumen propemodum exstingueretur: et nihil ab episcopis Anglosaxonibus per annos plurimos actum vel consultum deprehendimus in rem ecclesiae. Attende quid de mutis his lustris ipse praedicavit Aluredus in praefatione sua ad librum Pastoralem S. Gregorii, quem e Latino in vulgare Saxonicum, ut ab episcopis et sacerdotibus legeretur, transulit, viz.

Epistola regis Aluredi M. ad Wulfugium episcopum, praefationis vice in Pastorem S. Gregorii praefixa, in qua miseram ecclesiasticorum illius aetatis inscitiam arguit et luget. [Spelm. vol. I. p. 379. seqq.]

AELFRIDUS rex optat salutem Wulfugio episcopo dignissimo benevole et amanter. Et te scire volo, quod mihi saepenumero in mentem venit, quales sapientes abhinc extiterunt in Anglica gente, tam de spirituali gradu, quam de temporali, quamque felicia tum tempora fuerunt inter omnes Angliae populos, quemadmodumque reges, qui tunc gubernationem habebant plebis, Deo et ejus voluntati scriptae obsecundarint, utque in sua pace, et bellicis suis expeditionibus, atque regimine domestico, domi se semper tutati fuerint, atque etiam foris nobilitatem suam dilataverint, quomodoque tunc temporis tam sapientia, quam prudentia floruerint. Praeterea de gradu spirituali homines quam diligentes fuerint tam docendo, quam discendo, omnibusque officiis exequendis, quae Deo praestare debebant. Insuper quemadmodum extranei sapientiam et doctrinam hic in hac nostra terra quondam quaesierint: nosque jam (versa vice) peregrinari oportet ad eam adipiscendam, adeo funditus concidit apud gentem Anglicanam, ut paucissimi fuerint cis Humbrum, qui vel preces suas communes in sermone Anglico intelligere potuerant, vel scriptum aliquod e Latino in Anglicum transferre. Tam sane pauci fuerunt, ut ne unum quidem recordari possim ex australi parte Thamesis, tum cum ego regnare occoeperam. Gratiae Deo omnipotenti sint, quod nunc tandem aliqui in sede sint, qui docere queunt. Quamobrem te jubeo ut facias, quemadmodum te facturum credo, nimirum ut tu, qui mundana haec illis profundis quam potes saepe, eam sapientiam, quam tibi Deus largitus est, illis ubicunque poteris, vicissim impertias. Cogita, quales poenae super nos tandem venturae sunt propter hunc mundum, cum neque nosmetipsi sapientiam adamaverimus, neque eam aliis reliquerimus. Nomina tantum diligimus, quia christiani nuncupamur, paucissimi vero officiis christi-stianorum defungimur. Haec omnia, quoties in memoriam revoco, subit etiam cogitatio, quemadmodum cuncta hic in Anglia viderim, priusquam deleta fuissent omnia et incensa, utpote templa per omnem Anglicanam gentem steterint ornamenti et libris instructa, magnaue insuper multitudine fervorum Dei repleta. Quamvis certe fructum perexiguum ex libris suis perceperint, quandoquidem intelligere illos nequibant, eo quod patrio sermone neutiquam conscriberentur. Qui quidem hac oratione usi sunt.

Majores nostri, qui haec quondam loca obtinuerunt, sapientiam adamaverunt, et per illam opes sibi confluxerunt, nobisque reliquerunt. Quorum sapientiae impressam nos veluti orbitam vidimus, sed eam adipisci non potuimus. Nam et opes et sapientiam plane perdidimus, quoniam ingenii nervos omnes ad ejus contemplationem contendere nolimus. Cum igitur haec omnia cogitatione complecterer, magnopere admirabar praeclaros illos sapientes, qui diu abhinc per universam gentem Anglicanam flourerant, atque illos libros penitus omnes perdidicerunt, quamobrem noluerunt horum partem aliquam in patrium sermonem transferre. Veruntamen protinus mihimetipsi respondebam, videlicet, quod majores illi nostri neutiquam opinati sunt, homines unquam adeo socordes futuros, aut rem literariam in tantum unquam prolapsuram: ideoque consulto id omisisse, existimantes eo uberiores hac in terra sapientiam futuram, quo plures a nostris linguae pernoscerentur. Tum vero venit mihi in mentem, legem Dei primum in Hebraeo sermone fuisse inventam, atque postea Graecos, cum eandem didicissent, eam universam, et alios insuper omnes libros in suam linguam vertisse, necnon Latinos etiam, quamprimum ipsi eam intelligentia comprehendissent, per prudentes interpretes suo sermone eandem expressisse: eodemque modo omnem undique christianam plebem partem ejus aliquam in linguam domesticam transtulisse. Quapropter optimum cenſeo (ſi tu quoque ſic exiſtimas) ut nos libros aliquos, quos maxime neceſſarios arbitramur, qui ab omnibus intelligantur, eoſdem in linguam, quam omnes intelligunt, convertamus: efficiamusque (quod certe ope divina per facile poterimus, ſi pace perfruamur) ut omnis juvenus, quae nunc eſt gentis Anglicae (eorum praefertim hominum, qui liberi nati ſunt, opesque habent, quibus eos ad id alere poſſunt) literis addiſcendis addicatur: utque prius artem nullam imbibant, quam Anglica potuerint ſcripta perlegere. Poſtea autem homines in Latinis literis eos inſtituant, quos volunt amplius erudire, atque ad altiorem gradum provehere. Cum itaque mecum conſiderabam, quomodo iſthaec doctrina ſermonis Latini, per omnem gentem Anglicanam antehac obſoleviſſet, quamvis plurimi poſſent Anglica ſcripta legere, tum inter alia varia ac multiplicia negotia hujus regni, coepi librum hunc vertere in ſermonem Anglicanum: qui Latine Paſtoralis nuncupatur, Anglice vero "the Heardmans book," aliquando verbum de verbo exprimens, interdum autem ſenſum ex ſenſu, ſicuti egomet ſea didiceram a Pleimundo archiepiſcopo meo, et Aſſero antiſtite meo, necnon Grimbaldo, et Johanne mihi a ſacris. A quibus poſteaquam librum ita didiciſſem, ut penitus perciperem, quemadmodum facillime ad ejus intelligentiam pervenire poſſem, in Anglicum ſermonem eum converti, et ad unamquamque epiſcopi ſedem in regno unum miſi, ſuperque ſingulos libros ſtilum, qui eſt quinquaginta mancuſſae. Et ego praecipio in Dei nomine, ne quis de libris hunc ſtilum tollat, neque librum de templo, incertum cum ſit, quamdiu futuri ſunt tales eruditi praefules, quales nunc (honor Deo) ubique ſint. Quapropter volo, ut libri ſuis ſemper in locis remaneant, niſi illos pontifex habere voluerit, aut commodatos alicui dederit, donec alii ex illis deſcribantur.

Liber loquitur.

Hoc ſcriptum Auguſtinus trans ſalsum mare ab auctro ad incolas hujus regni pertulit: ſicut illud antea praeparaverat ſervus Domini papa Romanus, rectus vicarius gubernans, Gregorius, conſideratae vir fortitudinis abſque furore, ſummo ſenſu, ſapientia, conſilio praeditus, immenſus theſaurus, quoniam is generis humani partem maximam caelo lucrificat: Romanorum vir optimus, mentis magnitudine abundantiffimus, majeſtate liberrimus. Poſtquam me in Anglicum ſermonem Aelfredus rex convertiſſet ad verbum, me per auctrum et aquilonem ſuis ſcriptoribus delegavit, mandans illis, uti ſecundum exemplar plures tales deſcriberent, eum nimirum in finem, quo epiſcopis ſuis illos mittere poſſet. Quandoquidem quibuſdam ex ſuis antiſtitibus perneceſſarii eſſent futuri, qui linguam Latinam minus intelligerent.

Legum eccleſiaſticarum Aethelſtani regis priſca verſio juxta codices MSS. regium et Fornalenſem, multa, quae in Saxonico deſiderantur exemplari, proferentes, ac ſeorſim alias diſcrepantes. [Circa ann. Dom. DCCCCXXVIII. Ex Spelm. vol. I. p. 401. ſeqq.]

Nos autem Fornalenſem praefertim ſecuti, variationes regii codicis, in imo paginae annotavimus. Primis etiam tribus capitulis quae in omni exemplari ſatis referuntur indiſcreta et ſine titulis, nos, ut vides, titulos poſuimus.

CAP. I. De decimis ſolicite reddendis tam ex animalibus, quam e fructibus terrae.

EGO Aethelſtanus rex conſilio Wlſelmi archiepiſcopi mei, et aliorum epiſcoporum meorum mando praepoſitis meis omnibus in toto regno meo, et praecipio in nomine Domini et ſanctorum omnium, et ſuper amicitiam meam, ut inprimis de meo proprio reddant Deo decimas, tam in viventi capitali, quam mortuis frugibus terrae. Et epiſcopi mei ſimiliter faciant de ſuo proprio, et aldermanni mei, et praepoſiti mei. Et volo ut epiſcopi et praepoſiti mei hoc indicent omnibus qui eis parere debent: et haec ad terminum expleant quem eis ponimus, id eſt, decollatio S. Johannis Baптиſtae.

Cogitemus quid Jacobus pater dixit Deo: "Decimas et hoſtias pacificas offeram tibi." Et Dominus [ipſe] dicit in Evangelio: "Omni habenti dabitur et abundabit." Recolendum quoque nobis eſt, quam terribiliter in libris poſitum eſt: "Si decimam dare nolumus, ut auferantur nobis" [novem partes] et decima ſola relinquatur.

CAP. II. De cenſu eccleſiae quem ciricsceattum vocabant Saxones, noſtrates primitias ſeminum.

Et volo ut ciricsceatta reddantur ad illum locum cui recte pertinent, et inde gaudeant in ipſis locis qui haec dignius erga Deum et nos volunt deſervire. Hortatur nos ſermo divinus: "Aeterna cum terrenis, caeleſtia cum caducis promereri." Nunc auditis quid in Deo praecipiam, et quid complere debeatis. Facite etiam ut mihi mea propria cupiatis, quae mihi recte poteritis acquirere. Nolo aliquid injuſte mihi conquiratis. Sed omnia veſtra concedo vobis eo tenore quo mihi mea ſimiliter exoptetis. Cavete ſimul et vobis et eis quos admonere debetis, ab ira Dei et transgreſſione mea.

CAP. III. Ut singuli regis praepositi singulos alant pauperes, et servum manumittant. MS. Jorn.

Ego Adelstanus rex notifico praepositis meis omnibus in regno meo, quod consilio Wulfelmi archiepiscopi mei, et omnium episcoporum meorum et Dei ministrorum, ad remissionem peccatorum meorum, et acquisitionem vitae aeternae, volo ut pascatis omni via pauperem unum Anglicum indigentem, si sit ibi, vel alium inveniatis. De duabus^a niht firmis detur eis singulis mensibus ambra plena farinae, et una perna, vel unus aries qui valeat quatuor denarios, et casei quatuor: et in tertia die Paschae triginta denarii ad vestitum duodecim mensium unoquoque anno: et liberetis^b unum^c pite^d ðeopne, id est, forisfactum servum. Et hoc totum peragatur in misericordia Dei, et amicitia mea sub testimonio episcopi in cujus episcopatu sit. Et si praepositus hoc superteneat, emendet 30. sol.^d et dividatur haec pecunia per testimonium episcopi pauperioribus qui in ipsa villa erunt ubi hoc non fuit executum.

CAP. IV. De infracturis ecclesiarum. Ll. Sax. CA. V. Jorn. CA. X.

Et de infracturis ecclesiarum, si quis reus appareat in triplici ordalio, emendetur sicut judicialis liber dicit.

CAP. V. De sagis, veneficis, etc. Ll. Sax. CA. VI. Jorn. CA. XI.

Decrevimus etiam de fortilegis, et liblakis, et^e sortem dantibus, si hominem occidant et negare non possint, vitae suae culpa judicentur. Si pernegare velint, et in triplici ordalio culpabiles inveniantur, sint centum viginti noctibus in carcere, et cognatio earum educat eas, et emendetur regi centum viginti sol. et occisum hominem reddant parentibus suis, et eant eis in plegium quod super his abstineant in aeternum.

CAP. VI. De monetariis et cuforibus. Ll. Sax. CA. XIV. Jorn. CA. XX.

Placuit nobis ut una moneta sit in toto regni imperio, et nullus^f monetet extra portam. Si monetarius reus fuerit, amputetur ei manus, et ponatur sub^g monetae fabricam, si inculpatio sit, et se purgare velit, eat ad ferrum calidum, et adlegiet manum ad^h caniferam quod non falsum fecit. Si in ordalio reus fuerit, fiat ei quod supradictum est. In Cantuaria sunt octo monetarii regis, quatuor episcopi, tres abbatis: et in Roucestria tres regis, duo episcopi; in London. octo, in Winton. sex, in Lewes duo, in Hastingecestria unus, in Scheastbury duo, in Oxonia duo, et in aliis burgis.

CAP. VII. De praeparatione aggredientis ordalium. Ll. Sax. XXIII. Jor. CA. XXXI.

Si quis iudicium ferri vel aquae vadiaverit, accedat ante tribus noctibus ad presbyterum qui sanctificare debet eum, et pascat se pane, et sale, et aqua, et herbis, et audiat missas ipsorum singulorum trium dierum et offerat, et eat ad sacrosanctam communionem ipsa die qua ordalium examinari debet: et juret quod jure publico sit innocens illius accusationis antequam ad ordalium veniat. Et si iudicium aquae frigidae sit, tunc mergatur una ulna et dimidia in fune. Si ferrum calidum sit, tres noctes transeant antequam inquiratur, et videatur manus ejus, et prosequatur omnis homo compellationem suam prae juramento, sicut supradictum est, et sint uterque jejuni ex praecepto Dei et archiepiscopi; et non sint in alterutra parte amplius quam in alia: et hoc sit utrobique duodecim homines. Si autem accusatus homo majorem defensionem habeat, quam duodecim hominum: sit ipsum ordalium fractum in eo, nisi recedere velint ab illo.

CAP. VIII. De forma ordalii celebrandi. E. MS. reg. Vid. Antiq. Britan. p. 101.

De ordalio praecipimus in nomine Dei, et praecepto archiepiscopi, et omnium episcoporum meorum, ne aliquis intret ecclesiam postquam ignis infertur unde iudicium calefacere debet, praeter presbyterum et eum qui ad iudicium iturus est. Et sint mensurati novem pedes a staca usque ad mercam, ad mensuram pedum ejus qui ad iudicium ire debet. Et si aquae iudicium sit, calefaciat donec excitetur ad bullitum, et sit alterum ferreum, vel aereum, vel plumbeum, vel de argilla, et si anŷealtⁱ tȳhla sit, immergatur manus post lapidem [V. Marculf. Form. pag. 1307.] vel examen usque ad pnyrte, et si triplex accusatio sit, usque ad cubitum. Et quando iudicium paratum erit, ingrediantur ex utraque parte duo homines, et certi sint, ut ita calidum sit, sicut praediximus, et introeant totidem ex amba parte, et consistant ex utraque parte iudicii de longo ecclesiae, et sint omnes jejuni, et ab uxoribus suis se continuerint ipsa nocte, et aspergat presbyter aquam benedictam super eos omnes, et humili-ent se singuli ad aquam benedictam, et det eis omnibus osculari textum sancti evangelii, et signum sanctae crucis. Et nemo faciat ignem diutius quam benedictio incipiat, sed jaceat ferrum super carbones usque ad ultimam collectam, postea mittatur super staplas, et non sit illic alia locutio quam ut precentur sedulo Deum Patrem omnipotentem, ut veritatem suam in eo manifestare dignetur: et bibat accusatus aquam benedictam, et inde conspergatur manus

CAP. IX. Ut negotiatio non fiat die dominica.
Ll. Sax. CA. XXIV. Jorn. CA. XXXII.

Qui aliquid emit, emat cum testibus, et si appellandum inde sit, recipiat hoc venditor suus a quo emit, sit liber, sit servus, sit quod sit: et non fiat aliqua negotiatio vel forensis actio die dominica. Si quis hoc praesumat, perdat ipsum capitale, et emendet overhirnesam meam.

CAP. X. De pejerantibus. Ll. Sax. CA. XXV.
Jorn. CA. XXXIV.

Qui falsum juramentum jurabit, et convictus inde fuerit, nunquam [postea] juramento dignus sit, nec in sanctificato atrio aliquo jaceat, si moriatur, si non habeat episcopi testimonium in cujus dioecesi sit, quod poenitentiam exceperit: et presbyter hoc referat episcopo infra triginta noctes, utrum ad emendationem et satisfactionem venerit. Si non faciat hoc, componat sicut episcopus ei concedet.

Totum hoc institutum et confirmatum est in magna synodo apud Greateleyam, cui archiepiscopus Wulfelmus interfuit, et omnes optimates et sapientes quos Aethelstanus rex congregare potuit.

CAP. XI. De officio episcopi, et quid pertinet ad officium ejus. Vid. Fox Act. et Monum. tom. I. pag. 193.

Episcopo jure pertinet omnem rectitudinem promovere, Dei videlicet ac seculi. Inprimis debet omnem ordinatum Dei instruere, quid ei jure sit agendum, et quid secularibus judicare debeant. Debet etiam sedulo pacem et concordiam operari cum seculi iudicibus qui rectum velle diligunt, et compellationum allegiationem docere, ne quis alii perperam agat in jurejurando vel in Ordalio.

Nec pati debet aliquam circumventionem injustae mensurae, vel injusti ponderis: sed convenit ut per consilium et testimonium ejus, omne legis scitum, et burgi mensura, et omne pondus sit secundum dictionem ejus institutum, valde rectum.

Ne quis proximum suum seducat pro quo decidat in peccatum. Et semper debet christianus providere contra omnia quae praedicta sunt; et ideo debet se magis de pluribus intromittere: ut sciat quomodo grex agat quem ad Dei ma-num custodire suscepit, ne diabolus eum laniet nec malum aliquid superfeminet.

Nunquam enim erit populo bene consultum, nec digne Deo conservabitur, ubi lucrum impium et magis falsum diligitur. Ideo debent omnes amici Dei quod iniquum est, enervare: quod justum est, elevare: non pati ut propter falsum et pecuniae quaestum se forisfaciant homines erga vere sapientem Deum, cui displicet omnis injustitia.

Christianis autem omnibus necessarium est, ut rectum diligant, et iniqua condemnent, et saltem sacris ordinibus evecti, justum semper erigant, et prava deponant. Hinc debent episcopi cum seculi iudicibus interesse judiciis ne permittant si possint ut illius aliqua pravitate germina pullulaverint.

Et sacerdotibus pertinet in sua dioecesi, ut ad rectum sedulo quemcunque juvent, nec patiantur si possint ut christianus aliquis alii noceat, non potens impotenti, non summus infimo, non praelatus subditis, non dominus hominibus suis, vel servis aut liberis molestus existat. Et secundum episcopi dictionem, et per suam mensuram convenit, ut servi testamentales operentur super omnem sciram cui praeest.

Et rectum est, ut non sit aliqua mensurabilis virga longior quam alia sed per episcopi mensuram omnes institutae sint, et exaequatae per suam dioecesim. Et omne pondus constet secundum dictionem ejus: et si aliquid controversiarum intersit, discernat episcopus.

Et uniuscujusque domini necesse proprium est, ut compatiatur, et condescendat servis suis, sicut indulgentius poterit, qui a Domino Deo empti sunt, aequae chari servus et liber, et omnes eodem pretio redemit: et omnes sumus Dei necessario servi, et sic judicabit nobis sicut ante judicavimus eis quibus iudicium super habuimus in terris.

CAP. XII. Quod omni die Veneris pro rege et populo cantandi sunt l. psalmi. Concil. Exon. in Ll. Sax. CAP. III. Jor. CAP. VI.

Singulis quoque diebus Veneris decantent omnes Dei ministri in omnibus coenobiis seu majoribus ecclesiis quinquaginta psalmos pro ipso rege, et omnibus ei audientibus, necnon aliis quibuscunque promerentibus.

Unicuique etiam qui voluerit, fas esto, si quid criminis ei imponatur jam compensare, ni in lustrationis diebus, quas Gang-dayes vocant, sit commissum: et deinceps res se habeat sicut prius.

CAP. XIII. De weris seu weregildis, i. capitulum aestimationibus. CAP. ult. sic MS. Reg. pag. 143.

Regis weregildum est cum Anglis in jure publico, triginta milliaⁱ thrimsa, id est, trium. Quindecim millia thrimsa sunt de wera. Et quindecim millia cynedomas, id est, regiae^k censurae. ^lIpsum natale ejus pretium pertinet cognitioni: et cynebot ipsius terrae nationi.

Sax. re þæra, LAET.

Archiepiscopi et comitis weregildum est quindecim millia thrimsa.

Episcopi et aldermanni octo millia thrimsa.

Messetheines et woruldtheines, id est, presbyteri et secularis thani duo millia thrimsa.

Haec immediate sequuntur praecedens capitulum de weregildis, in regio codice. fol. 143. col. 4. [Haec Anglofaxonice edita sunt ab eruditissimo viro D. Tho. Milles, in libro de nobilitate politica et civili: e quibus haec versio in multis emendari potest; licet et Saxonica illa corrupte sint edita. LAET.]

Aliquando fuit in Anglorum laga quod populus et leges consilio regebantur, et tunc erant sapientes populi, magni prorsus nominis et pretii: comes et villanus, tainus, et alius, singuli pro modo suo.

Et si villanus excrevisset ut haberet plenarie quinque hidas terrae suae propriae, ecclesiam et coquinam, timpanariam, et januam et sedem, et sunder notam in aula regis, deinceps erat taini lege dignus.

Et si tainus ascendisset ut serviret regi et equitatus sui vice fungeretur in familia sua, si tunc habeat tainum qui ad ut waram regis quinque hidas haberet, et in aula regis domino suo serviret, qui tertio venisset in nuncium ejus ad regem, iste poterat deinceps jurare pro domino suo in magna necessitate, et accusatorem ejus recte admallare ubicunque opus esset. Et qui sic promotum hominem non habet, ipse causam suam superjuret vel amittat.

Et si tainus provehatur ad consulatum, sit postea dignus rectitudine comitis et honore: et si massere ascenderet ut ter magnum mare transfretaret, per proprium negotium suum fuit deinde taini dignus rectitudine.

Et si scholaris profecisset in doctrina, cur ad sacros ordines pertransiret, et Christo Domino ministraret, erat denique dignitatis et pacis dignus, quanta pertinebat super illud, nisi forisfaceret cur ipsius ordinis officio non utatur.

Et si eveniret ut ordinatus vel alienigena disturbaretur alicubi verbis vel operibus, tunc pertinebat regi et episcopo hoc emendare quam citius possent.

Ceorles weregildum est in Mircenorum laga 200. fol.

Taini weregildum est sexies tantum, id est, duodecies 100. solidi.

Regis simplum weregildum est sex tainorum, weregildum in Mircenorum laga hoc est, triginta millia sceatta, id est, totaliter centum viginti librae tantum est de weregildo, sed pro regni dignitate debet addi tantundem in Kene-gildo. Ipsam weram debent habere parentes ejus, et ejus emendationem ipsius terrae populus.

Twelfhindes hominis jusjurandum contra valet jusjurandum sex villanorum, quia si twelfhindus homo vindicari debet, plene vindicaretur in sex ceorlis, et ejus weregildum est sex ceorlorum weregildum.

Missae presbyteri et secularis taini jusjurandum in Anglorum lege reputatur aequae carum, et pro septem ordinibus ecclesiae quo sacerdos per Dei donum ascendit ut haberet, taini rectitudine dignus est.

I. Septem sunt dona Sancti Spiritus, et septem gradus ecclesiae et sanctorum ordinum, et septies in die laudes Deo canendae sunt ab omni ecclesia. Et omnibus amicis Dei recte pertinet ut sanctam ecclesiam diligant et honorent, et Dei ministros pacificate custodire gaudeant, et qui eis nocebit verbo vel opere, septies emendat secundum quod factum sit, et secundum ordinem si Dei misericordiam habere velit, quia sanctificationes et ordines, et Deo dicatas domos semper debent pro timore Dei diligenter venerari.

II. Et ad ordinis emendationem, si ordinatus occidatur, supra rectam weram, primus gradus emendetur una libra, et digna poenitentia sedulo perquiratur.

III. Et ad emendationem ordinis si vitae sit amissio super rectam weram in secundo gradu duae librae reddantur cum Deo digna poenitentia.

IV.

V. Et ad emendationem ordinis si plena infractio fiat super rectam weram in quarto gradu quatuor librae reddantur cum poenitentia.

VI. Et ad emendationem ordinis super rectam weram in quinto gradu quinque librae componantur cum idonea poenitentia.

VII. In sexto gradu sex librae reddantur cum poenitentia.

VIII. Et ad emendationem ordinis, septimo gradu infracto septem libris super rectam weram emendetur cum injuncta poenitentia.

IX. Et ad ordinis emendationem, de pace semifracta componatur secundum factum. Semper enim debet judicium factum, et moderatio secundum mensuram pro Deo et seculo fieri, et de emendatione ordinis una pars episcopi, secunda fit altari, tertia societati.

Et in concilio episcoporum London. CAP. XII. sic habetur de congildonibus.

Et diximus etiam omnibus illis qui in nostram gildscyram vadium dederunt, si contingat eum mori, omnis congildo det unum panem et companagium pro anima ejus, et cantet unum quinquagenarium psalmorum, vel perquirat cantandum infra triginta noctes. Jorn. fol. 44. b.

Nota. Multis habitis conciliis, multas condidit Aethelstanus leges, e quibus nos ad ecclesiam istas pertinentes delibavimus. E concilio scilicet Grateleano, Exoniensi, Feureshamensi, Thunderfeldensi, et Londinensi: incertis autem omnium temporibus, et (quod hic non morabimur) confusis saepe capitulis. Prae caeteris claruit Grateleanum, et a succedentibus igitur passim recognoscitur et confirmatur. Habita vero sunt omnia sexdecim annorum spatio, diutius enim non regnavit Aethelstanus, et cum Wulfhelmus, archiepiscopus Cantuariæ (qui Grateleano concilio interfuit) mortem obiit anno regni Aethelstani decimo, hoc est, gratiae DCCCXXXIII. nos eorum synchronismi medium retinentes, utpote qui regimina sua simul inierunt an. Dom. DCCCCXXIV. Grateleanum hoc concilium celebratum arbitramur circa an. Dom. DCCCCXXVIII. et quatuor caetera sub decennio insequenti proximo.

Liceat hic, ne alias non appareat, subingere, quod ad rem ecclesiae pertinens, de seipso retulit Aethelstanus in charta quadam donationis suae, coenobio factae Malmesburiensi, et ab ejusdem coenobii monacho prout sequitur repetitae. In qua Elfredus quidam nobilis conjurationis reus in Aethelstanum regem, Romam mittitur expurgandus, et ante altare corruit perjuratus. Ex Will. Malmesb. De gest. reg. lib. II. cap. vi.

Sciant sapientes regionis nostrae non has praefatas terras me injuste rapuisse; rapinamque Deo dedisse, sed sic eas accepi quemadmodum indicaverunt omnes optimates regni Anglorum, insuper et apostolicus papa Romanae ecclesiae Johannes. Elfredo defuncto, qui nostrae felicitati, et vitae aemulus extitit, nequitiae inimicorum nostrorum consentiens, qui me voluerunt, patre meo defuncto, caecare in urbe Wintonia, si non me Deus sua pietate eripuisset; sed denudatis eorum machinamentis, remissus est ad Romanam ecclesiam, ut ibi se coram apostolico Johanne jurejurando defenderet. Et hoc fecit coram altari sancti Petri, sed facto juramento cecidit coram altari, et manibus famulorum suorum portatus est ad scholam Anglorum, et ibi tertia nocte vitam finivit. Et tunc apostolicus ad nos remisit, et quid de eo ageretur a nobis consuluit: an cum caeteris christianis corpus ejus poneretur.

His peractis et nobis renunciatis, optimates regionis nostrae, cum propinquorum illius turma efflagitabant omni humilitate, ut corpus illius per nostram licentiam cum corporibus poneretur christianorum; nosque illorum efflagitationi consentientes Romam remisimus, et consentiente papa positus est ad caeteros christianos, quamvis indignus. Et sic judicata est mihi tota possessio ejus in magnis et modicis. Sed et haec apicibus praenotavimus literarum, ne quamdiu christianitas regnat, aboleantur. Unde mihi praefata possessio, quam Deo et sancto Petro dedi, donatur, nec justius novi, quin Deo et sancto Petro hanc possessionem dare, qui aemulum meum in conspectu omnium cadere fecerunt, et mihi prosperitatem regni largiti sunt.

Leges ecclesiasticae Hoeli Dda (i. Boni) regis seu principis totius Walliae, e secularibus suis MSS. decerptae. [An. Dom. DCCCCXLIII. Spelm. vol. I. p. 408. seqq.]

Prooemium.

DE I providentia Howell Dda filius Cadell, rex totius Cambriae videns suos Wallenses insolenter legibus abuti, accivit de quolibet ^a Kemut totius regni sui sex laicos viros auctoritate et scientia pollentes et omnes ecclesiasticos dignitate baculosos; vel archiepiscopos vel episcopos, abbates, vel priores de regno suo ad locum qui dicitur Gvin super Taff yn deued, quam domum voluit aedificari virgis albis in hospitium sibi ad venandum quando ad partes Demeetiae veniret; et ideo vocatur Ty Gvyn.

Rex autem et congregati morati sunt ibid. per totam Quadragesimam orantes altissimum per jejunium perfectum petendo gratiam ad bona facienda secundum regis propositum, et de congregatis elegit rex xii. laicos doctissimos, et unum clericum doctissimum qui vocabatur Blangoridus ad instruend. sibi leges et usus, ut propinquius possent ad veritatem et justitiam intendi, et in tres partes scribi praecepit, quarum prima lex curiae suae quotidianae. Secunda lex patriae. Tertia usus utriusque. Tres autem libros legis praecepit fieri confimiles, unum ad curiam suam quotidianam sequi semper. Et alium ad curiam de Dinewr. Et tertium ad curiam de Aberfrau, vel qualibet de tribus partibus Kambriae, scilicet Guenet, et Powys, et Deheubarth haberet in se auctoritatem legis ad opus paratam.

Sequuntur leges ecclesiasticae.

I. Ex quo ^b Distein in aula steterit post prandium in tribus festis principalibus ponens, in ea pacem Dei, et regis, reginae, et optimatum curiae, pacem illam transgredienti nusquam erit refugium et navt. ^c n' omnium refugium. Si quis ergo refugium regis et omnium violaverit, nec usquam, nec ab unius refugio, vel a reliquis sanctorum defendi potest nisi ab ecclesia.

II. Qui sacerdoti ^e sarhaed fecerit, vel eum occiderit, judicio synodi puniatur praeter gueli tanavd.

III. Hospitium sacerdotis et clericorum erit domus capellani villae. Hospitium sacerdotis reginae est insimul.

IV. ^d Offeirad euleu contra Pascha regis indumenta habebit quibus usus est in Quadragesima.

V. Simili modo sacerdos reginae ipsius habebit indumenta in quibus regina agat poenitentiam. Sacerdos reginae a regina aequum debet habere, sacerdoti, et accipitrario, et penkynynt, et judici curiae, et gwastravd afvyn: equi a rege restaurantur cum opus fuerit. Terram suam tenebit liberam.

VI. Triplex est officium sacerdotis curiae in placitis, scilicet lites discretas de scripto delere, lites indiscretas ad iudicium in scripto servare, et ad opus regis quantum ad literas missas et mittendas paratum esse et nunquam ebriatum.

^a i. Centuria.

^b Praefectus, oeconomus, Dishtchein, forte Dapifer.

^c i. injuriam.

VII. Tria sunt iudici pertinentia, scilicet quaestiones solvere, lites discernere, et quod per iudicium discreverit, per vadimonium confirmare, si tunc litigans ei contradicit per aliud. Sic agat per annum. Anno autem elapso capellanus adeat ecclesiam, et cum eo duodecim officiales curiae digniores, et missa celebrata, et oblatione ad missam ab omnibus facta, capellanus faciat eum jurare per sacrum incelebratum, et per altare, et reliquias superpositas, quod in tota vita sua nec prece, nec pretio, nec amore, nec odio falsum scienter faciet iudicium. Quo facto ad regem venient, indicantes ei quae circa eum acta sunt. Si regi gratum sit officium suum illi praeſtabit, et locabitur in sede sibi debita. Tunc dabuntur ei ouer clyſſeu, a rege taulbord, a regina annulus aureus, quae dona nec vendet, nec unquam donabit. Non debet iudex esse nisi in tali ſolempnitate approbatur.

VIII. Et si aliquis de gentibus homicidae vel occisi sit ecclesiasticus ſacris ordinibus, vel religioni obligatus, vel leproſus, vel mutus, vel ſtultus nihil reddet vel recipiet pro e galanas. Nulla autem vindicta ſuper eos vel ab eis propter occiſum debet fieri, nec tales poſſint per legem iſtam ad reddendum vel recipiendum aliquo modo compelli.

IX. Si fur coram preſbytero ſocios ſuos nominando manifeſtet et aſſirmet hoc jurando in oſtio coemeterii, in oſtio chori; quicquid de illo poſtea contingat verbo preſbyteri abinde, de dicto illius abſque contentione credendum eſt. Simili modo ſit quando quis pro mercede dicat furem qui rem furatus eſt, et hoc faciat coram ſacerdote modo praeſnotato. Si quis alicui depraedari dicitur, et ille negaverit, i. hominum iuramento habet negare. Hic eſt unus homo eorum cui ſoli creditur, ſcilicet managvr, dictator continens cum teſtimonio ſacerdotis, ſi ipſe cum illo qui rem perdiderit, venerit coram ſacerdote ad eccleſiam, et dicat ei ſacerdos prohibendo ſimiliter, ne pro Deo ducat eum in falſitatem, hoc faciat in oſtio eccleſiae, ſi ibi iuraverit ſe verum dicere, et non falſum, ſimiliter faciat in introitu cancelli, deinde ſuper altare idem faciat, et ille qui reus dicitur adhuc negaverit. Sacerdos aſſirmet verbo ſuo ter quod et vidit, audivit, et ſemel jurando confirmet illud, hoc facto, qui prius negaverit pro confidente habetur, nec poterit contradicere. Mercedem quidem ſtatim habebit ille qui dictavit et verbo ſacerdotis teſtificantis dictatoris ſacramentis non contradicetur, et ſinꝝ pro confidente habetur, et dicitur hoc dogynuariac.

X. Tria ſunt genera^f dirvy, unum de pugna, alterum de treis, i. raptu, tertium de furto. Duplex autem ſit dirvy, et duplex camlurv, in curia et in eccleſia. Quae eccleſia ſi ſumma fuerit, de pugna quae in coemeterio agitur xiv. librae ſunt reddendae. Si vero extra, i. in^e nodva, vii. librae, quarum librarum abbati medietas cedit, ſi legalis ſit, i. eccleſiaſtica doctrina inſtructus et literatus. Altera medietas preſbytero et canonicis ibi Deo ſervientibus. Talis diviſio ſit inter abbatem et preſbyteros de pugna illorum, ſcilicet^h navtur, qui ab abbate et preſbytero refugium acceperint: ſicque dividitur omne quod tantummodo ſancto, non alteri nec alii abbatum erogatur. De pugna inⁱ nodva ſanguis et cleis ſtabunt pro teſtibus abbati et preſbyteris per dignitatem eccleſiaſticam abbatiae.

XI. Lingua quantum omnia membra valet. Summa valentiae omnium membrorum eſt octoginta viii. lib. Sanguinis cujuſlibet hominum pretium eſt xxiv. d. Sanguinis Chriſti pretium eſt xxx. d. ſcil. indignum videtur ut Dei ſanguis hominis minoris pretii ſit.

XII. Tribus de cauſis poterit uxor a viro divertere, et ſuum^k egveti habere, ſcilicet, ſi lepra vir inficitur, et ſi foetidum habeat anhelitum, et ſi cum ipſa coire non valeat. Ter a viro ſuo ſi aliam cognoverit^l vynebwerth uxor habitura eſt, primo dimid. librae, ſecundo libram, tertio cum toto jure ſuo libera^m diliis poterit ab illo diſcedere. At ſi ultra tertiam vicem patienter ſuſtineat de caetero vynebwerth non habebit. Redwit dicit quod tertio xxx. ſol. quarto libera cum toto jure ſuo abiit, ſi patienter ſuſtineat de caetero vynebwerth non habebit.

XIII. Cum puellae ſuo temporeⁿ cowyll comparetur, niſi mane de illo antequam a viro conſurgat a lecto voluntatem ſuam declaret, inter virum et mulierem commune erit. Si viro detur puella aetatem habens, dicatque vir illam ab alio deſloratam percepiſſe, puella ſi poſſit quinque hominum iuramento, ſcilicet patris, et matris, fratris, et ſororis, et ſuo proprio, hoc falſum eſſe aſtruat, et ſe ad illum adveniſſe incorruptam, ſcilicet, ſit matura in pilis et uberibus, et ſi venerint muliebria ejus, i. teithi aetatis^o gvreic. Si primo tacuerit, et ſecundo eam agnoverit, et ſic uſque ad mane cum illa dormierit, licet illam corruptam invenerit, primo de jure puellae nihil poteſt auferre. Si vero ſtatim hoc noverit, ad viros ſurrexit nuptiales, alia non contradicente, hoc eis teſtificaverit, nihil ei jure reddere debebit.

XIV. Si cujus uxor de alio infametur, et hoc tamen ſit incertum, ſeptima manu mulierum expurget. Si ſecundo infametur cum quatuordecim. Si tertio cum quadam certitudine hoc dicatur, iuramento i. mulierum ſe expurgabit.

XV. Si qua mulier datores habuerit, ſit vir ſub dote ſua uſque ad vii. annos, et ſi habuerit tres noctes de ſeptimo anno, totius ſubſtantiae ejus medietatem in divortio eorum mulier habebit. Subſtantia autem hoc modo dividitur. Vir ſues habebit, mulier oves. Poſtea mulier dividat, vir eligat, et primo ſupellex ſic dividatur, omnia vaſa lactis praeter unum ſinum, i. baeol, mulieris erunt, et diſcos omnes habebit praeter unum, et illa duo viri erunt, currum vero cum uno jugo, et omnia vaſa, potus et dolia viri erunt, quae deſuper vero, mulieris.

Si vir incontinenti aliam duxerit uxorem, vestimenta primi lecti, scilicet repudiatae mittere debet. Vir habebit caldarium et tapetum, i. brycan et pulvinar, et cultrum et securim lignorum et terebrum, etc.

XVI. Si uxorem suam quis sine lege repudiavit, et aliam superduxerit, repudiata debet de jure domui redire, et in ea permanere per novem dies, et in nono die, si a viro omnino dimittatur, omnia quae illius sunt de domo prius exeant, et ultima rerum suarum ipsa de domo exeat, et postea vir repudiatam quietem, i. dilys clamabit, superducta alia, quia de jure duas uxores infimul nullus debet habere. Si quis uxorem suam dimiserit, et postea ipsum operis sui poenituerit, et illa viro alteri data fuerit, si prior vir eam poterit attingere unum pedem cum viro altero in lecto habentem, et alterum extra, prior de jure debet eam recuperare.

XVII. Si mulier negat adulterium, det juramentum l. mulierum, similiter adulter negans, juramentum l. virorum. Et tribus de causis datur tale juramentum. Si videantur mulier veniens de luco ex una parte, et vir veniens ex altera parte ejusdem luci in eadem hora, vel si videantur infimul jacentes sub uno pallio, vel si videatur vir inter femora mulieris.

XVIII. Si qua mulier rem turpem, cum alio viro, vel osculo, vel manu vel stupro egerit, de jure potest repudiari a viro suo, et omnia jura sua debet amittere, etiam pro solo osculo, nedum pro aliis. Adulter pro stupro reddet injuriam cum una elevatione illi cujus uxorem violaverit, quia de genere hostilitatis est. Pro palatione manuum in  quae dicitur govys, reddet injuriam sine elevatione. Pro osculo tantum adulter injuriam reddet, sed de injuria tertia pars cadet, quia non habuit rem cum ea ex toto, et hoc causa decipiendi eam, sic dicunt quidam, alii vero, ut nisi consequantur, declaratur, qualitercunque facta fuerit.

XIX. Qui uxorem alicujus osculatur, quartam partem injuriae ei reddet, similiter de govys nisi in ludo qui dicitur guare raffau, vel in convivio, vel quando quis de longe venerit.

XX. Goronvy ab moridyc dicebat quod vir alterius uxore ipsa volente abutens, nihil debet reddere dum mulier sui facti laudat auctorem, sed si factum notum fuerit, mulier habet viro suo ^p faraed reddere, vel vir eam libere repudiet, et ab ea divertat.

XXI. Nemo foeminam det viro antequam de mercede domino reddenda fidejussorem accipiat. Puella dicitur esse desertum regis, et ob hoc regis est de ea ^q amvabyr habere. Si aliquam quis in ^r llathrud abducatur, et ad domum alicujus optimatis cum illa vadit, fidejussorem a viro de toto jure abductae antequam infimul dormiant optimas accipiat.

XXII. Tres autem sunt homines quorum nullus potest per legem impignorare contra aliquod judicium. Primus est rex ubi non poterit secundum legem in lite stare coram iudice suo agendo, vel respondendo per dignitatem natura-lem, vel per dignitatem terrae, ut optimas vel alius. Secundus est ecclesiasticus sacris ordinibus obligatus. Tertius est ecclesiasticus religiosus obligatus. Nemo enim secundum legem potest dare pignus contra judicium, nisi sub periculo pretii suae linguae, sed nullum pretium constitutum est in lege Howel super membrum et sanguinem, vel faraed ecclesiastici, ut sunt praedicti, et ideo nullus eorum potest dare vadium de jure contra judicium vel cum judicio. Omnia autem nocumenta sacrilega quae fiunt ecclesiasticis debent in synodo secundum legem ecclesiasticam emendari.

XXIII. Tres sunt homines quorum nullus potest esse per legem iudex dignus, primus est mendosus i. anavus, vel caecus, vel furdus, vel leprosus, vel stultus, qui sit semel ligatus propter stultitiam suam i. gorffvyllyave, vel qui nesciat recte loqui, vel cryc aneanvl. secundus est ecclesiasticus sacris ordinibus vel religioni obligatus. Tertius est laicus sine potestate iudicandi per dignitatem terrae vel servitoriae.

XXIV. Tres sunt rei conquestores, a rege propter querelas suas puniendi. Primus est qui det pignus contra judicium quod per aliud, i. gvrthvystyl et auctoritatem scriptam de legibus contra ipsum poterit confirmare, ille pretio linguae suae debet puniri. Secundus qui det pignus contra judicium quod super aliquem alium quam seipsum detur, ille suo ^s camlvre debet puniri. Tertius est si quis careat dignitate impignorandi, videlicet sacerdos vel alius, licitum est ei contradicere iudicio per auctoritatem de legibus, et si sic contradicat, et auctoritas ei fallat, camlvrv amittat. Nemo autem per judicium litigiosum amittet plus quam camlvrv nisi vera sit impignoratio vadio contra vadium.

XXV. In lege Romana reperitur ubi numerus testium non definitur, ibi duo sufficiunt. Dicit quoque lex, unius testimonium non est admittendum. Hoc vero dicitur quod ix. homines sunt, quorum unicuique et soli inferendo testimonio credendum est. Sed tamen jurejurando. Primus est dominus inter duos homines, ita tamen quod non sit particeps litis et rei ex lite consequendae, et confiteantur contentionem suam prius coram domino suo fuisse, et non fuerit ^t undull, at si alter eorum negaverit, cum juramento negabit. In alio casu ix. dies dantur domino ad connumerandum qualiter juramentum praestiterit, sacerdoti vero ad idem dantur induciae usque ad tempus quo possit missam celebrare. Secundus est patronus sacerdos inter duos parochianos inter duos monachos suos. Tertius est pater inter duos ipsius filios ponendo manum super caput illius contra quod testificatur, sic dicendo per Dominum qui me creavit de patre, et te de me, verum inter vos dico. Quartus est iudex de iudicio suo, scilicet, si quidam de iudicio quod inter eos iudex dederit dubitantes certaverint. Quintus est fidejussor de fidejussione sua, si partim negat, et partim confitetur. Sextus est sacerdos de testimonio sibi attestato inter duos parochianos suos. Septimus est puella de virginitate sua, si vir cui data est, dixerit eam invenisse corruptam, ut jus suum ei tollat, jus ei tamen illa est, et ei tamen credendum est antequam fuerit matura. Item de puella, si vi oppressa fuerit, et violator dixerit eam invenisse defloratam, contra eum testimonio puellae credendum est. Octavus est communis pastor villae de animali ab alio inter animalia suae custodiae mortificato. Nonus est latro ad patibulum ductus, et de morte sua certus, illius verbis sine sacramento, i. creir, de socio vel de sociis credendum est, vel de re quam ipse furatus est: iste, scilicet socius ejus propter dictum alterius, non debet vita seu membris condemnari. De verbis tamen illius qui suspendatur, manifestatur eum esse latronem cui credendum est, sicut lege ista cautum est. Est ergo ipse condemnandus non ad vitam seu membra perdenda, sed ad redemptionem sui faciendam. De illo latrone qui constituto juramento in patria, latrocinio non poterit se purgare. Eritque dirvyus et n' lleidyr gwerth.

XXVI. Fidejussor negans fidejussionem suam de septimo proximorum sibi redemptionem negabit, vel solus jurans super septem altaria dedicata osbri duv a diwad, si partim negat et partim profitetur, solus semel jurabit, et sic kynnogyn si fidejussionem negaverit, scilicet, de septimo.

XXVII. Si quis nomine emptionis rem aliquam ab aliquo acceperit: deinde ab hac vita ereptus, res suas cum amicis reliquerit, cum ipse pro se de pretio rei acceptae reddendo fidejussor extiterit, i. yn uach kynnogyn, ab amicis praefatis licet factum ignorantibus et obdormientibus de rebus mortui pretium rei suae venditor consequatur. Juret tamen de septimo proximorum sibi in redemptione super sepulchrum debitoris, si possit invenire, sin autem super altare dedicatum quod illi rem suam vendidit, et quod ipse pro fidejussore fuit.

XXVIII. Non debet fidejussor dari, qui exul est, neque qui fortior est, neque monachus, nisi consentiente abbate, neque scholaris, nisi magistro consentiente, neque foemina, nisi domina fuerit principalis debitoris, neque filius, nisi patre consentiente, dum pater debet esse pro filio, quamvis autem fidejubeant, alicujus eorum fidejussio non est compellenda.

XXIX. Tria sunt sine quibus rex esse non potest, scilicet sacerdos ad missam celebrandam, et ad escas regis et potus benedicend. et judex curiae ad causas discernendas, et ad danda consilia; et familia quoque ad negotia regis parata.

XXX. Tribus hominibus vulnus linguae redditur: regi semper, judici, quando quis conatur ire contra judicium: sacerdoti quando fuerit in ecclesia, sive in tribus festis principalibus.

XXXI. Ubicunque sacerdos familiae et ^v distein, et judex curiae infimul fuerint, ibi erit dignitas curiae, i. ^x breint llys, licet rex absens est.

XXXII. Nullus autem rex habet potestatem constituendi pretium super aliquem ecclesiasti-cum sacris ordinibus obligatum, vel super membra, vel sanguinem, vel saraed ejus, vel super aliquem de suis, quia quisque ecclesiasticus, ut praedictus, habet potestatem per legem ecclesiasticam probandi in synodo quodlibet nocumentum vel damnum quod ei laicus faciat; aut rex aut alius. Item nullatenus talis ecclesiasticus potest compelli ad respondendum alicui extra synodum de delictis sibi oppositis.

XXXIII. Si autem talis ecclesiasticus tenent terram sub rege per debitum, de qua servitium regi pertineat fieri, in curia regis debet respondere de terra cum pertinentiis, quia regis est tota terra regni sui, et nisi inde respondeat humiliter idem, regis erit terra illa totaliter. Quamvis autem talis ecclesiasticus possit per dignitatem terrae in judicio cum laicis esse usque ad tempus narrandi illud, nullum judicium debet referre inter litigantes, quia non est pretium super linguam ejus in lege constitutum per quod quisque judex si injuste judicet punietur, si confirmet judicium injustum per vadimonium.

XXXIV. Cum de villarum sive agrorum terminis quae curia contingat, contentionem curia terminabit: si ecclesia et non curia contingat, ecclesia terminabit. Postea brent demum kygwarchadv, i. ar diffeith, ty ac olyn ac ysgubavr. Verum cum terminabit maer et kyghellavr, debent pro ea terminos assignare, pro ecclesia vero baculus, et evangelium. Sin autem terra litigiosa inter litigantes in duo dividatur.

XXXV. Si regia dante licentia in rusticana villa ecclesia construatur, et in ea missae celebrentur, et in atrio illius corpora sepeliantur, extunc libera erit villa illa.

XXXVI. Si quis nomine quo matrix fuerit ecclesiae, judicio terram ad illam pertinentem petierit, novem dies mensium non est expectandus.

XXXVII. Si regis villanus rege annuente optimatis filium nutriendum susceperit, defuncto villano cum filiis aequali portione alumni ille succedet.

XXXVIII. Si in terra regis cum homine ipsius homines episcopi vel abbatis inter se conflictum fecerint, ^v dirvy eorum regi.

XXXIX. Septem domus episcopales sunt in Dyued, Menevia quae est sedes principalis in Cambria, ecclesia Ismael, ecclesia Degenian, ecclesia Yffyl, ecclesia Teylav, ecclesia Teulidavc, ecclesia Keneu. Abbates Teilav, et Teulidavc, et Ismael, et Degenian tenentur clerici esse et ordinati. Ebediv cujuslibet istorum domino Dyued erunt, scilicet, xii. librae, vel qui illis successerint reddant. Menevia ab omni debito libera manet et soluta. Ecclesia Keneu et ecclesia Yffyl ab illo debito liberae erunt, quia terris carent.

XL. De furto redemptionis non fit contentio super aliquid, nisi prius fuerit manac cum juramento in tribus locis, in ostio coemeterii, in ostio ecclesiae, in ostio chori coram presbytero ipsius ecclesiae, et hoc presbyter ille in placito domini testatus sit cujus verbo credendum est tunc. De furto ²kyffvyn non fit contentio iuramenti, i. reith, super aliquid nisi prius fuerit manac in curia.

Nota. Hoc concilium locat Camdenus in an. Dom. dccccxiv. codex quidam veterrimus MS. circa an. dccccxxvi. historia Cambriae post an. Dom. dccccxl. vel sub eodem. Magna auctorum discrepantia, et quae videatur tria concilia denotasse, si toto hoc tempore Hoeli florisset dominatio. Sed perspicuum est eum non salutatum esse principem ante an. Dom. dccccxl. vel hunc circiter: nec potitum gubernaculo ultra an. Dom. dccccxlviii. si historiae antedictae (quam a doctissimis illius patriae auctoribus recognitam videmus et approbatam) fidem habeamus.

Ei igitur adhaerentes, concilium istud sub an. Dom. dccccxl. celebratum opinamur, praesidentibus Walliae rege five principe Hoelo Dda (i. bono.) et archiepiscopo Menevensi, incerti sane nominis, sed qui pro more praedecessorum suorum, non solum archiepiscopi titulum, sed et in multis iurisdictionem tenuit, pallium licet a Romana sede non sit affectus. Affuisse etiam perhibentur 140. praelati ecclesiae, cum magnatibus totius Walliae. Finito concilio, dictus archiepiscopus anathema promulgavit in conditarum jam legum violatores: et ut firmiorem illis reverentiam rex pararet, assumptis sibi archiepiscopo Menevensi, et episcopis Bangorensi et Assavensi, tredecimque aliis prudentia et eruditione viris spectatissimis, Romam peregrinatur, et legum suarum confirmationem, a papa ipso, tanta his auctoritas, reportavit. Notatur autem in calce istius concilii Blangoridum (virum doctum cuius fit mentio in proemio) leges istas collegisse, et eundem claruisse ann. Dom. dccccxiv. Fuisse hoc, opinor, in occasione, quod eidem anno concilium istud a Camdeno sit ascriptum, anno scilicet quasi vicesimo sexto ante Hoeli principatum.

Sed non taceam Landavensem codicem a praedictis omnibus dissentire. Afferit enim Hoelum Dda recentiorem adhuc fuisse, et Edgari regis Angliae, qui non regnum iniit ante an. Dom. dcccclix. coetaneum. Liceat locum ipsum oculis dare, ut et plenius hoc intelligas, et una etiam reges seu toparchas Walliae sub antiquis istis seculis non solum Anglo paruisse: sed, ut caeteri Angliae magnates, iudiciis curiae regis Angliae coercitos esse.

“Insuper autem scitote, quod in uno tempore fuerunt Edgar rex totius Britanniae, et Huwell Dda, et Morgan Hen, et isti duo tamen erant subditi regi Edgardo. Morgan Hen obtinuit quoque tunc temporis totum Morgannie in pace et quiete, sed Huwell Dda voluit auferre huic Istradm et Euwias tunc temporis, si posset. Quo audito, rex Edgarus admonuit Huwell Dda et Morgan Hen, et filium ejus Hewheym ad curiam suam, et ibi in pleno concilio rex Edgarus tractavit de litigatione amborum, et repertum est iusto iudicio curiae regis Edgari, quod Huwell Dda nequiter egisset extra Morgan Hen et filium suum Hewheym, et depulsus est Huwell Dda ab his duabus terris, scil. Istradm et Euwias in perpetuum sine recuperatione. Et postea rex Edgarus dedit et concessit Hueno Morgan Hen illas duas terras, viz. Istradm et Euwias nominatim in episcopatu Landav. constitutas, sicuti suam propriam haereditatem, et illas easdem duas terras sibi et haeredibus suis per chartam suam sine calumnia alicujus terreni hominis confirmavit communi nostro assensu et testimonio omnium archiepiscoporum, episcoporum, abbatum, comitum, et baronum totius Angliae et Walliae factum est. Et quod maledictus est a domino patre, qui illas duas terras a dominio Morganuc, et parochia Landaviae unquam separet. Et quod iterum benedictus foret a Domino Ihesu Christo qui hoc observaret, et a cuncto populo christiano amodo, et usque in sempiternum, Amen. Insuper scitote quod charta illa quae illo die facta fuit et scripta coram rege Edgardo in pleno concilio suo in ecclesiam Landavensem deposita est. Valete.” Sic codex Landavensis fol. 103.

Variato aliquantulum nominis vocabulo, dici hic videtur Huwell Dda, qui superius Hoel Dda, Latine Hoelus et Haelus, alias Huual, quem Malmesburiensis unum fuisse refert e [1. Dufual, 2. Grifeth, 3. Huual, 4. Jacob, 5. Judethil. V. M. Westm. in an. dccccclxxiv.] quinque Wallensium regibus, quos cum Kunadio rege Scotorum, Malcolmo rege Cumbriorum, et Maccusio archipirata (seu principe nautarum vel marium praefecto) ad civitatem Legionum sibi occurrentes, rex Anglorum Edgarus in triumpho pompam deducebat. Una enim navi impositos, remigare illos hanc coegit, dum in prora ipse sedens, navis tenuit gubernaculum: ut se hoc spectaculo, soli et soli orbis Britannici dominum praedicaret et monarcham. Vide Malmesburiensem de regib. lib. II. cap. viii. Sunt qui ferunt Hoeli leges a typographo quodam Wallensi nomine Salisberio, quadraginta plus minus abhinc annos editas esse, et inter patriotas suos dispersas: sed mihi non competit vidisse.

Prooemium.

EDMUNDUS rex congregavit magnam synodum Dei ordinis et seculi apud London. civitatem in sancto Paschae solenni, cui interfuerunt Odo et Wulstanus archiepiscopi, et alii plures episcopi perquirentes de consilio animarum nostrarum, et eorum qui subditi sunt illis.

CAP. I. De castitate ordinatorum.

Inprimis est ut sanctis ordinibus evecti qui plebem Dei docere debent lumen vitae, castitatem teneant secundum ordinem suum, sit p̃p̃haber, sit p̃p̃haber, sit alterum. Alioquin sint ejus digni quod in canone dictum est, hoc est, ut perdant secularem pecuniam, et sanctificatum leȝeȝr̃topa, i. positionis locum, si non convertantur et emendentur.

CAP. II. De decimis et aliis debitis ecclesiae.

Decimas praecipimus omni christiano super christianitatem suam dare, et emendent: cȝp̃p̃ceatum, i. ecclesiae censum, et elmeȝp̃ceoh, i. eleemosynae pecuniam; si quis hoc dare noluerit, excommunicatus sit.

II. pars, quae leges continet Culintonae habitas, huc nihil confert.

Capita III. partis eadem sunt quoad numeros quae in Saxonico.

Prooemium.

Ego Edmundus rex mando et praecipio omni populo seniorum ac juniorum qui in regione mea sunt, ea quae investigans investigavi cum sapientibus clericis et laicis.

CAP. I. De homicidio.

Inprimis quomodo possem christianitatem magis erigere, et magnum nobis necesse visum est, ut amicitiam vestram et benevolentiam teneamus inter vos in toto regno meo, et mihi valde displicent, et vobis omnibus multiplices et injustae pugnae quae inter vosipfos fiunt, unde diximus, si quis post haec hominem occidat, ipse sibi portet inimicitiae factionem, nisi amicorum suorum auxilio intra annum persolveret eum plenum weregildo, sit natus sicut sit. Si eum cognatio sua deserat, et pro eo gildare noluerit, tunc volo ut omnis tribus vel cognatio illa sit extra factionem, praeter solum malefactorem, sed deinceps ei nec victum det nec pacem. Si quisquam cognationis suae firmet eum postea, reus sit omnium quae habebit erga regem, et portet ferdam erga contubernales, quia primitus reprobaverat eum. Si ex mortui cognatione quis vindictam perpetret in aliquem alium praeter ipsum malefactorem, sit inimicus regis, et perdat totum quicquid habet.

CAP. III. De homicidio.

Si quis sceleratis manibus effundat sanguinem christianum, non appareat in conspectu regis priusquam emendationem ineat, sicut episcopus docebit et poenitentiam consulat.

CAP. IV. De fornicatione cum nunna vel sanctimoniali, et de adulterio.

Qui cum nunna vel sanctimoniali fornicabitur, sanctificato atrio sit indignus, nisi emendet, sicut ut homicida; sic idem diximus de eȝp̃p̃ice, i. de adulterio vel infraeto conjugio.

CAP. V. De apparatione ecclesiarum.

Amplius dixi ut omnis episcopus reficiat Dei domos in suo proprio, et regem admoneat, ut omnes ecclesiae Dei sint bene paratae, sicut magnum nobis opus est.

CAP. VI. De perjurio et liblaco.

Qui falsum jurabunt, et liblacum facient, sint in aeternum a Dei consortio segregati, nisi ad dignam satisfactionem per omnia revertantur.

CAP. II. De assultu in itinere versus ecclesiam vel burgum regis.

Si quis ecclesiam requirat vel burgum meum, et ibi assaliatur vel affligatur, qui hoc fecerit ejusdem culpabilis quod supradictum est.

CAP. III. De ȝihtep̃ta et manbota.

Et nolo ut aliqua ȝihtep̃ta vel manbota condonetur.

CAP. IV. De fundentibus sanguinem humanum.

Amplius indico quod qui sanguinem fundat humanum nolo focnam habere in familia mea antequam divinam emendationem suscepit, et ad omne rectum inclinetur, sicut episcopus docebit in cujus scyra fuerit.

Sequitur in Jornalenfi libro hoc capitulum.

De sponsalibus contrahendis tempore regis Edmundi.

Si quis virginem vel viduam ducere velit, et hoc illi placeat et amicis suis, tunc rectum est ut bridguinum per Dei justitiam et seculi jus competens, inprimis promittat et vadiet eis qui paranympi sunt, quod eo modo quaerat eam, ut secundum Dei rectum pertinere velit sicut sponsus debet legitimam sponsam, et plegient hoc amici sui. Postea sciendum est, cui^a fosterleanum pertineat. Vadiet hoc bridguina, i. sponsus, quid ei dare disponat cur ejus eligat voluntatem et quid ei destinet si supervixerit ipsum. Si sic quoque conveniat, rectum est, ut dimidiam pecuniam habeat, et totam si simul puerum habuerint, nisi deinceps virum capiat. Totum hoc vadio confirmetur, et amici sui plegient. Si tunc omni re concordent, adeat cognatio, et despondeat eam eo pīe 7 eo pīhtlīe, i. in uxorem et rectam vitam, et excipiat inde plegium qui jus habet in vadio. Sed si de ipsa terra velit ipsam ducere in terram alterius thaini, consilium est, ut amici habeant pactionem, ne quis ei faciat injuriam. Et si illa forisfaciat ut possint esse propinquiore emendationi, si non habeat unde componat. Huic dationi debet interesse presbyter, qui cum Dei benedictione debet eorum consortium adjuvare in omnem sanctitatem. Bonum est praevidere ne ex aliqua consanguinitate sibi pertineant, ne juste postmodum separentur, qui sceleratis nuptiis consenserunt.

Odo archiepiscopus Cantuariensis Edwium regem occiduorum Saxonum adulterii et incestus causa a christianitate suspendit. [Ann. Dom. DCCCCLVIII. Spelm. vol. I. p. 430. seq.]

EDWIUS alias Edwinus rex totius Angliae, in die coronationis suae proceres reliquisse dicitur convivantes, et libidine accensus Elfginam, al. Alguiam, propinquam suam et alterius uxorem constuprasse. Mittitur interea a proceribus Dunstanus abbas, ut regis ad convivium exoraret reditum. Is ex improvise thalamum ingrediens, offendit regem stupro deditum inter duas foeminas. Commovetur rex, flagrantemque incitat Elfgina pellex. Dunstanus mittitur in exilium. Haec et alia aegre ferentes Merciae populus et Northumbriae, instar decem Israelis tribuum, deficiunt a rege, et Edgarum fratrem ejus, sibi creant regem. Dividentes igitur regnum Angliae in Cisthamesinum (quod est, Merciorum) et Transthamesinum (id est occidentalium Saxonum) Edwio tantum Saxoniam occidentalem reliquerunt. Sed nec istis cohibetur libido Edwii. Permanentibus igitur ipso et Elfgina in adulterio, Odo archiepiscopus Cantuariensis illum a christianitatis suspendit solamine: istam excommunicatam primo eliminat, redeuntemque denuo, succisura poplitis enervatam reddit. Audi Malmesburium De gest. Pontif. l. I.

Edwinus filius Edmundi et regni post Edredum patrum successor praecipitis temeritatis et corporei luxus infamis, pontificis, Odonis, animos irritavit, ut ipsum a christianitate suspenderet, et ganeae pellicatum primo expulsione post succisura poplitis interromperet. Et Hovedenus: "Anno, inquit [Annal. Par. I.] DCCCCLVIII. Odo Doroberniae archiepiscopus regem Westsaxonum Edwium et Elfginam, vel quia (ut fertur) propinqua illius extiterit, vel quia ipsam sub propria uxore adamavit, abinvicem separavit." Latius haec Florilegus in an. gra. DCCCCLV. et DCCCCLVIII.

Nota. Ut in annalibus computationibus discrepare solent auctores frequentissime, ita nec hic bene convenit de praesenti. Odonem enim archiepiscopum Cantuariensis mortem obiisse ferunt in an. Christi DCCCCLVII. et Edgarum non creari regem, nec regnum dividi ante an. Christi DCCCCLIX. sic ut annus medius DCCCCLVIII. neutri competat. Id praeterea serio hic notandum est: archiepiscopum succidisse Elfginae poplitem, ne rediret propere ad amasium, cum membrum ferro tangere praeter morem esset ecclesiasticae censurae.

Privilegium quo rex Edgarus confirmat Dorobernensem ecclesiam (i. Cantuariensem) matrem esse et dominam aliarum ecclesiarum regni sui, etc. Ex MS. Cod. eccl. Cantuar. [Ann. Dom. DCCCCLIX. Ibidem p. 432.]

ANNO dominicae Incarnationis DCCCCLVIII. Ego nempe Edgarus rex Anglorum, divinaque concedente clementia monarchus, regum antiquorum Aethelberti, et successorum illius, ac archiepiscoporum Brythwaldi et Athelardi statuta et privilegia monasteriorum Kancegenum cum venerabilis archipontificis Dunstani consultu atque consilio, ad maledictionem impiorum raptorum, immo magis Deo favente ad benevolentiam justorumque benedictionem, aeterna conclusione renovamus, et in Domino summo roboramus, statuentes:

Ut ecclesia Christi in Dorobernia aliarum ecclesiarum regni nostri mater sit et domina, [et] cum suis omnibus perpetualiter sit ubique libera praeter expeditionem, pontis et arcis constructionem.

Nota. In MS. codice annus dationis seu confirmationis istius privilegii, non figuris exaratur arithmetice, sed literis (ut plerumque solet) numeralibus, scil. DCCCCLVIII. et desiderari videtur unitatis aliud elementum, ut lectu fiat DCCCCLVIII. ante annum enim Christi DCCCCLIX. neque Edgarus ab auctoribus salutatur rex Anglorum, nec divisa nuper inter ipsum et Edwium, coaluerunt regna: nec Dunstanus factus est archiepiscopus Doroberniae. Imitari autem hic videtur rex Edgarus, in imperii orbe sui, Phocam imperatorem qui Sylvestro papae concessit, ut ecclesia S. Petri Romae caput omnium ecclesiarum diceretur. Vid. Godwin. Hoved. Annal. par. I. p. 425.

Legum ecclesiasticarum Edgari regis prisca versio. [Circa an. Dom. DCCCCLXVII. Spelm. vol. I. p. 446. seq.]

Hoc est institutum quod Edgarus rex consilio sapientum suorum instituit Deo ad gloriam, et sibi ad regiam dignitatem et genti suae ad commodum.

CAP. I. De debitis ecclesiae reddendis.

Primum est ut ecclesiae Dei, recti sui dignae sint, et reddatur omnis decimatio ad matrem ecclesiam cui parochia adjacet de terra thainorum et villanorum sicut aratrum peragrabit.

CAP. II. De ecclesiis ubi est coemeterium.

Si quis thainorum sit qui feodo suo ecclesiam habeat ubi coemeterium sit, det ei tertiam partem decimae suae. Si non sit ibi atrium, det ex suis ix. partibus presbytero quod vult, et etiam omne cyricseattum ad matrem ecclesiam de omni libera domo.

CAP. III. De terminis decimandi.

Et omnis decimatio juventutis reddita sit ad Pent. et terrae frugum ad aequinoctium, et omne cyricseattum ad festum sancti Martini per plenam forisfacturam, quam judicialis liber dicit.

CAP. IV. De nolente decimas dare.

Si quis decimam dare noluerit, sicut diximus, adest praepositus regis et episcopi et sacerdos illius ecclesiae, et reddat ecclesiae cui pertinebit decimam suam, et nonam partem dimittant ei qui decimam suam detinuit, et octo partes in duo dividantur, dimidium domino, dimidium episcopo, sit homo regis, sit homo thaini.

CAP. V. De non solventibus Denarium sancti Petri.

Et omnis * heordhen reddat ad festum sancti Petri, et qui non solvit ad terminum illum deferat eum Romam, et etiam xxx. denar. et afferat inde significationem quod tantum ibi reddidit. Et cum redierit domum emendet cxx s. Et si iterum reddere nolit, deferat eum Romam et emendationem eandem. Et cum redierit, emendet cxx. s. regi. Ad tertiam vicem si adhuc non reddiderit, perdat totum quod habebit.

* Hodie hearthen or heartbing.

CAP. VI. De solennitatibus et terminis observandis.

Et solenne diei dominicae conservetur ab hora nona Sabbati usque ad lucidum diei Lunae super forisfactura quam liber judiciorum dicit et docet. Et alia festivitas, sicut a sacerdote nunciabitur. Et omne indictum jejunium cum omni devotione fervetur.

Nota. Mihi non constat quonam anno editae sint leges istae Edgari regis. Regnare autem coepit anno DCCCCLIX. et desiit anno DCCCCLXXV. id est, anno regni sui XVI. cujus medio tempore, cum non extensus porrigatur, nos, ut alias soliti sumus, istas etiam collocamus, id est, circa annum Christi DCCCCLXVII. Praeter has autem plures, ille sparsim edidit constitutiones ad rem ecclesiae, praesertim monachatum, promovendam, ut e praecedentibus liquet, et aliis pluribus diplomatibus: maxime vero in eximio quodam Wintonensi codice aureis vetuste exarato literis: ubi inter plurima memoratu digna, rex semetipsum monachis, et reginam suam praeficit monialibus. Librum olim aliquando vidimus, cum haec nobis non essent curae: desideratur autem in praesenti cum foret usui. Haec SPELMAN.

De libro aureo Wintonensi hic et alibi a Spelm. memorato, sequentia tradit clar. USSE-RIUS in MSS. notis ad locum. The golden booke of Winchester was written A. D. DCCCCLXVI. and is yet to be seen in bibliotheca Cottoniana, whence Mr. Selden hath transcribed it into his notes upon Eadmerus a pag. 154. ad 160. and is the same verbatim with the Charta regis Edgari, but that Mr. Selden hath passed over the first six chapters, as an impertinent preamble. Yet in that booke is not to be had that which you speake off [quod rex semetipsum monachis, et reginam suam praefecit monialibus] but in another, which is still kept in the same librarye, intituled [Regularis concordia Anglicae nationis monachorum sanctimonialiumque] and contayning king Edgar's monasticall constitutions agreed upon in synodali concilio Wintoniae. Haec ille.

Prisca

Prisca versio legum Canuti regis ut habetur in MS. regio, in minutiis pluries dispar a Fornalensi; aliquoties etiam in majoribus. Deprehenditur autem capitulum series e tabulis superius paulo datis; sed qui hic sequuntur tituli habentur in ipso MS. regis. [Circa ann. Dom. MXXXII. Spelm. vol. I. p. 560. seqq.]

Leges ejus ecclesiasticae seorsim conditae a secularibus.

Prooemium.

HAEC sunt instituta Cnudi, regis Anglorum, Danorum, Norwegarum, venerando sapientum concilio ejus ad laudem et gloriam Dei, et suam regalitatem, et commune commodum habita, in sancto natali Domini apud Wintoniam [sequentia non habentur in Saxon.] diligenter ac fideliter in Latinum translata, compendiosa brevitate cum simplicitate lucida, velut suis asteriscis illustrata. Unde quarundam rerum et verborum affinitatem paucorum adjunctione, vel omissione, curaverim facile sobrius lector agnoscat. [Nec ista in Fornalensi] Sequuntur et aliorum jura regum plurimorum de quibus teneri liceat quicquid ista contemplatione non discrepat.

CAP. I. MS. Jor. CA. I. De dilectione Dei et proximi.

Inprimis est ut Deum et Dominum nostrum tota mente diligamus, et unam christianitatis sanctae fidem catholicam orthodoxe teneamus, et sanctam Dei ecclesiam pacificare, custodire, frequentare, ad nostram semper utilitatem gaudeamus.

CAP. II. MS. Jor. CA. II. De pace ecclesiarum.

Omnis ecclesia sub propria Dei omnipotentis protectione consistet, et christianis omnibus magnam super his reverentiam exhibere convenit: quia Dei pax super omnem pacis actionem specialius exoptanda, propensius est observanda et postea regis.

Et valde rectum est, ut ecclesiae pax intra parietes suos: et pax christiani regis, quam manu sua dederit, semper inconvulsa permaneat. Quicumque alterutram perfregerit, de vita et omnibus in misericordia regis sit.

CAP. III. MS. Jor. CA. II. De infractione pacis ecclesiarum.

Si quis amodo pacem ecclesiae Dei violabit, ut intra parietes ejus homicidium faciat; hoc inemendabile fit, et prosequatur eum omnis qui Deum diligit: nisi contingat, ut per aliquod pacis confugium, rex ei vitam concedat, plenius emendationibus erga Deum et homines.

Et hoc tunc inprimis fit; ut pretium natalis sui Christo persolvat et regi, et per hoc se inlegiet ad emendandum. Si tunc ad emendationem veniat, et rex ita patiatur, emendet ecclesiae pacem in ipsam ecclesiam plena regis mun-brice: et reconciliationem ecclesiae quaerat, sicut ad eam pertinebit: et magbotam et manbotam plene reddat, et saltem apud Deum sedulo componat. Si vero aliter sine interfectione

pax ecclesiae fracta sit, emendetur secundum quod acciderit; sit per pugnam, sit per robariam, sit per id quod sit, emendetur primitus infractione pacis in ipsam ecclesiam juxta quod culpa fuerit, et ipsius ecclesiae dignitas: quia non omnes ecclesiae parem emendationis dignitatem habent, licet eandem sanctificationis benedictionem consequantur.

Capitalis ecclesiae pacis fractio in rebus emendabilibus est, sicut infractione regiae pacis, id est [Jorn. X. lib.] quinque libris in Anglorum lege.

Mediocris ecclesiae, centum viginti solidos, id est, wita regis.

Et adhuc minoris ubi parva parochia sit, et atrium tamen sit, lx. solid. Et campestris ecclesiae ubi non sit atrium, xxx. solidos.

Christianis omnibus sincere convenit, sanctuaria et ordines, et Deo dicata loca summa discretionem, tota devotione pacificare, custodire, venerari, juxta modum singulorum, et qui scit intelligat.

CAP. IV. MS. Jor. CA. III. De dignitate sacerdotum.

Magnum est et mire praecipuum, quod ad velle Dei pro salute populi faciendum creditur sacerdoti; et magna conjuratio multaque benedictio est quae propellit diabolum, et in fugam redigit, quoties divina cooperante potentia, beatorum spirituum prosequente custodia, per manus temporalium sacerdotum sacri baptismatis, vel eucharistiae sacrosancta mysteria celebrantur.

CAP. V. MS. Jor. CA. III. De accusatione sacerdotum.

Si contingat sacerdotem regulariter viventem aliqua criminum compellatione [pulsari] se purget solus solum, si compellatio simplex sit, in triplici calumnia, cum duobus sui ordinis.

CAP. VI. MS. Jor. CA. IV. De diaconibus et caeteris gradibus.

Diaconus regularis in simplici compellatione cum duobus, in triplici cum sex diaconibus se adlegiet.

CAP. VII. MS. Jor. CA. V. De vulgaribus sacerdotibus.

Plebeius sacerdos qui regularem vitam non habet, purget se sicut regularis diaconus.

CAP. VIII. MS. Jor. CA. VI. De altari servientibus.

Si quis altari ministrantium accusetur, et amicis destitutus, sacramentales non habeat: vadat ad iudicium quod Anglice dicitur Corfned, ned, et fiat sicut Deus velit, nisi super sanctum corpus Domini permittatur ut se purget.

CAP. IX. MS. Jor. CA. VII. De accusatis sacerdotibus homicidio.

Si quis ordinatus homicidii particeps consilio vel auxilio fuisse compelletur, purget se cum parentibus suis, quorum interest occisionis factionem tolerare vel emendare. Si parentes non habeat, cum sociis se purget, vel jejunium ineat si opus sit, et applicent ad Corshed, et fiat inde voluntas Dei.

CAP. X. MS. Jor. CA. VIII. De monachis.

Monachus ecclesiasticus non debet aliquam de homine occiso persolutionem exigere vel emendare, quia cognationis suae legem exiit, cum se regularis conversationis disciplinae mancipavit.

CAP. XI. MS. Jor. CA. IX. De perjuriis sacerdotum.

Si sacerdos aliquando falsus testis vel in aliquo consenserit, deponatur, et omnium bonorum societate, dilectione careat et honore, si non erga Deum et homines dignis poenitentiae fructibus secundum sui episcopi iussione praeparetur ad veniam, et emendationis et legalitatis plegios deinceps inveniatur. Si se purgare velit, secundum facti mensuram sit, vel per triplicem negationem, vel per singularem.

CAP. XII. MS. Jor. CA. X. Exhortatio singulorum, et maxime praelatorum.

Et volumus ut quicumque sunt in ordine clericatus constituti, puris mentibus inclinentur singulariter ad eam rectitudinem quae ipsis pertinet: et saltem ministri domini pontifices, abbates, monachi, monachae, canonici, nunnae, regulariter vivant. Diebus et noctibus saepius et assidue clament ad Deum pro christiani necesse populi, et ei digne serviant, et castitatem diligant. Quia perfecte sciunt non est rectum ut causa cohabitandi cum mulieribus habitent: et qui super his abstinebit, et castitatem servabit, ad perfectum sempiternam Dei misericordiam habeat, et ad honorem seculi, taini lege dignus sit.

CAP. XIII. MS. Jor. CA. XI. De timore poenarum.

Et omnis christianus pro timore sui creatoris, injustum concubitum vitet, et legem Dei teneat.

CAP. XIV. MS. Jor. CA. XI. De ducendis uxoribus.

Unde commonemus, petimus, et in nomine Dei praecipimus, ut nemo in parentela sua intra sextam generationem uxoretur: nec in dimissa cognati sui qui intra sextum geniculum pertineat ei; nec in cognatione uxoris suae; nec commatrem vel filiolum suam, nec sanctimonialem, nec repudiatam aliquis ducat uxorem; nec cum meretricibus circumeundo fornicetur, sed unam legitimam habeat quamdiu vixerit, qui Dei legem iuste servare desiderat, et a gehennae ignibus animam suam liberare. Et reddantur Deo debitae rectitudines annis singulis, hoc est eleemosyna carucarum xv. diebus post Pascha.

CAP. XV. MS. Jor. CA. XI. De decimis.

Decimae de novellis gregibus in Pentecosten, terrenorum fructuum in festo Omnium Sanctorum. Si quis autem decimam dare nolit, sicut omnium nostrorum commune est institutum: hoc est, decima acra, sicut aratrum peragrabit: eat praepositus regis et episcopi, et ipsius terrae domini cum sacerdote, et ingratis auferant, et ecclesiae cui pertinebit reddant. Nonam vero partem relinquant ei, qui decimam dare noluit. Octo partes reliquas in duo dividant, et sit una medietas episcopi, alia terrae domini siue regis homo sit siue taini.

CAP. XVI. MS. Jor. CA. XII. De Romefeoh.

Et Romefeoh, id est, Romae census, quem beato Petro singulis annis reddendum ad laudem et gloriam Dei, regis nostri larga benignitas semper instituit, in festo sancti Petri reddatur. Qui supertenuerit, reddat episcopo denarium illum, ac triginta denarios addat, et regi det centum [Jorn. triginta sol.] viginti solidos.

CAP. XVII. MS. Jor. CA. XIII. De ciricsceat.

Ciricsceat, id est, ecclesiae census in festo sancti Martini. Qui sine licentia supertenebit, eum reddat episcopo, et xl. persolvat, et regi cxx. solidos.

CAP. XVIII. MS. Jor. CA. XIV. De tainis qui ecclesias habent ubi atrium est, vel non.

Si quis tainus in haereditate sua ecclesiam habeat in qua coemeterium sit, det ibi tertiam partem decimae suae. Si quis habeat ecclesiam ubi positionis locus non sit, det ex suis novem partibus presbytero suo quod velit, et eat omnis ciricsceat ad matrem ecclesiam per omnes liberas domos.

CAP. XIX. MS. Jor. ibid. De luminaribus ecclesiarum.

Fiat ter in anno symbolum luminis: primum in vigilia Paschae, oblatae cerae de omni hida, in festo Omnium Sanctorum, tantundem in festo sanctae Mariae candelarum.

CAP. XX. MS. Jor. CA. XV. De sepultura.

Pecunia sepulturae iustum est ut aperta terra reddatur.

CAP. XXI. MS. Jor. CA. XVI. De corporibus translatis de parochia sua.

Si corpus aliquod a sua parochia deferatur in aliam, solvatur tamen pecunia sepulturae ejus in eam cui jure pertinebit ecclesiam, et omnes rectitudines et sanctae Dei ceremoniae, sicut omnibus opus est totis desideriis observentur. [Haec rite pertinent ad seq. caput.] In festivitibus, in jejuniis.

CAP.

CAP. XXII. MS. Jor. CA. XVII. De feriatio-ne diei dominicae, et solennitatibus sancto-rum.

In feriatioe diei dominicae ab hora nona Sabbati ad usque diluculum secundae feriae, et in sanctorum omnium solennitatibus, sicut a sacerdote fuerint nuntiatae. Ipsa vero die dominica publica mercimonia, vel placitorum conventicula, venationes, et hujusmodi secularium actiones exerceri modis omnibus prohibemus, nisi pro magna necessitate sit.

CAP. XXIII. MS. Jor. CA. XVIII. De je-juniis.

Omne indictum jejunium devote conservetur: five Quatuor temporum, five Quadragesimale, vel deinceps aliud quodcunque sit: et ad omnes beatae Mariae festivitates, et sanctorum apostolorum omnium, jejunia votiva praeveni-ant, praeter Philippi et Jacobi pro solennitate paschali. Non sunt secundum legem indicta jejunia a Pascha usque ad Pentecosten: nec a natali Domini usque ad octavas Epiphaniae, nisi qui per poenitentiam vel sponte jejunet.

CAP. XXIV. MS. Jor. CA. XIX. De tempori-bus leges faciendi et non faciendi.

Et in festis diebus juramenta, et ferri, vel aquae, vel hujusmodi legis examina fieri prohibemus, et Quatuor temporum, et diebus Quadragesimae, et aliis legitimis jejuniiis, et ab adventu Domini usque in octavum diem post duodecimum diem a Natali, et a Septuagesima usque ad xv. dies post Pascha, et S. regis Edwardi gloriosum passionis diem per totam Angliam volumus celebrari 15. cal. Aprilis, et sancti Dunstani 14. cal. Junii; et sit in his sanctis observationibus, sicut vere justum est, christianis omnibus pax et concordia, et omnis ira tollatur, et si quis alteri debitor est de plegiatione, vel aliqua contingentium secularium emendatione, reddat ei sedulo prius aut postea:
et in Dei dilectione petimus, ut quicumque christianus suam ipsius benefaciendi necessitatem in-telligat, quia singulos nos tempus expectat quo nobis esset carius, quam quicquid in orbe terrarum mundus obtinuit, Dei nostri voluntatem fecisse dum licuit. Tunc sane recipiemus uni-forme stipendium secundum opera nostra. Vae qui promeruerit sempiterna supplicia.

CAP. XXV. MS. Jor. CA. XXI. De confessione et poenitentia.

Renunciemus sedulo peccatis nostris, et con-fessionibus et abstinentiis expiemus, et quod nobis fieri volumus aliis faciamus. Hoc iudicium nostrum est, et sane beatus et Deo gratus est, qui iudicium hoc sincere tenuerit ad gloriam omnipotentis Dei, cujus sumus miseratione conditi, pretio magno redempti.

Quicumque christianus, sicut vere necessarium est, dignam christianitati suae curam impendat, et ad perceptionem communionis dominicae ter saltem in anno se praeparet, ut non hoc ad iudicium, sed ad remedium salutare manducet: et quisquis amicus Dei est, verbis et operibus rectitudinem flagitet, fidem et sa-cramenta caute custodiat.

Omnis injustitia de finibus nostris quantum possumus expellatur: et Dei iustitiam dictis et factis deinceps amplectamur. Tunc ejus mise-ricordiam propitiatus impetrabimus. Item faciamus sicut adhuc persuaderi volumus.

CA. XXVI. MS. Jor. CA. XXII. *De fidelitate
dominis exhibenda.*

Simus dominis nostris per omnia fideles et credibiles, et eorum gloriam totis viribus exal-temus, et velle faciamus: quia quicquid pro recta dominorum fidelitate facimus, et magnam nobis utilitatem facimus, et scienter Deus illi fidelis est, qui domino suo fidelis est: et uni-cuique domino magnum opus est, ut hominem suum recte deducat.

CAP. XXVII. MS. Jor. CA. XXIII. De do-ctrina christiana.

Omnes christianos sedulo commonemus, ut puro corde semper Deum diligant, et catholi-cae christianitatis fidei digne serviant: sanctis ecclesiae doctoribus devote pareant: Dei leges et doctrinam fideliter investigent semper et assidue sibimet ad utilitatem. Et omnis christianus addiscat ut saltem sanae fidei rectam intelligentiam habeat: et sciat Pater noster, et Credo in Deum, quia per illud Deum exoramus, per aliud rectam fidem declaramus. Christus ipse primus hanc orationem protulit, et discipulos suos docuit; in qua septem petitiones sunt, et quisquis eam intimo corde cantabit, cum ipso Deo agit de quacunque necessitate vitae praesentis et futurae. Sed quomodo potest aliquis devotas ad Deum preces effundere qui non ha-bet intime rectam fidem in eo? Non habet sane post transitum ejus portionem aliquam cum christianis in requie sanctorum, nec sancta communionem dignus, nec vere christianus habendus est, qui non vult eam discere: nec ad eum ju-ste pertinent aliquem in sancto baptismo suscipere, nec a manibus episcopi in confirmatione, et datione Spiritus Sancti, antequam bene sciat eam. Et docemus ut a summis criminibus to-tis viribus caveamus in omni tempore, et qui impulsu diaboli in peccatum inciderit, propen-sus emendet consilio poenitentiae suae. Et ab immundis gaudiis et injusto concubitu, vel ad-ulterio caveatur. Et omnes Dei timorem et amorem in mente habeant: diebus ac noctibus a peccatis fugiant: diem iudicii metuant, et in-ferni cruciatus; et semper ultimum vitae suae terminum cogitent advenisse. Christi sunt praecones et doctores legis Dei, qui praedicationibus et exemplis Dei debent mysteria declarare. Cu-ret qui velit. Quia supervacue pastor est qui commisso sibi gregi non vult saltem clamore succurrere si quid ei noceat.

Non est aliquis tam nocens adversarius sicut accusator humani generis inimicus, qui totis semper visceribus inhiat, totis aestuat desideriis quomodo plures animas pertrahat in supplicium.
Sit itaque pastorum solertia pervigil, et attente proclamans, qui contra spirituales nequitias de-bent populo providere. Qui sane sunt episcopi sacer-sacerdotes qui gregem Domini doctrina debent sapienter custodire, et defendere ne diabolica vesania vulneret vel occidat. Ei qui Dei prae-ceptis obedire neglexerit, hoc cum ipso Deo commune habeat.

Leges ejus ecclesiasticae e secularibus suis collectae.

Edictum regis in opprimendis vitiis et augendis virtutibus. MS. Jorn. CA. XIV. et hic jure primum esset.

HAEC est institutio legum secularium, quam communi sapientum meorum consilio per totam Angliam teneri praecipio. Inprimis volo ut justae leges erigantur, et injustae subvertantur, et omnis injustitia quanta possumus observantia de finibus nostris sarculetur, et explanetur, et Dei justitia modis omnibus exaltetur: et amodo reputetur omnis homo publica dignus rectitudine, pauper, [et] quicumque dives sit, et eis justa judicia judicentur.

CAP. I. MS. Jor. CAP. XV. De misericordia in judicio habenda. Ll. Sax. II.

Si quis peccaverit, et seipsum profunde forisfaciat, temperetur in eo justitia, sicut erga Deum sit clementius, et in seculo tolerabilius: et multa sedulitate cogitet qui jus habet in judicio, quid sibi postulet a Domino dicens, "Dimitte nobis debita nostra, sicut et nos dimittimus: et non intres in judicium cum servo tuo Domine, quia non justificabitur in conspectu tuo omnis vivens."

Prohibemus ne christianus aliquis penitus pro parva re saltem ad mortem seducatur: sed exquiratur pro necessitate populi justitia pacificans, ne pro levi re dispereat opus manuum Dei, et suum ipsius pretium quod profunde redemit.

CAP. II. Ne christiani vendantur. Ll. Sax. III. MS. Jorn. CA. XVI.

Praecipimus ne christiani passim in exilium vendantur, vel in gentilitatem, ne forte pereant animae quas propria voluntate mercatus est Dominus noster Jesus Christus; et totis viribus semper mundare patriam studeamus in finibus ejus, et ab immundis operibus circumquaque cessemus.

CAP. III. De sortilegis et veneficis. Ll. Sax. IV. et V. MS. Jorn. CA. XVII.

Et si sagae vel incantatrices, veneficae vel meretrices alicubi compareant, expellantur a finibus nostris, vel in eis pereant, nisi cessaverint et profundius emendent.

Praecipimus ut ^a withersacan et utlagae Dei et hominum patria exeant, si non resipuerint, et digne poeniteant.

Fures, et ejusmodi damna populi propediem pereant, si non conquiescant.

Omnem quoque gentilitatem modis omnibus interdicimus. Gentilitas est si quis idola colat, id est Gentilium deos, solem aut lunam, ignem vel fructus, aquas fontium vel lapides, vel alicujus generis ligna, vel ^b wiccencrest diligat, vel mortificia quoquo modo suscipiat, aut in forte aut in ^c firhte, vel in similibus phantasiis, vel praestigiaturis aliquid agat.

CAP. IV. Si quis ministrum altaris occidat. Ll. Sax. XXXVI. MS. Jorn. CA. LIX.

Si quis ministrum altaris occidat, utlaga sit erga Deum et homines, nisi dignis satisfactionibus veros poenitentiae fructus ostendat, et erga parentes ejus emendet vel ^d werelada se adlegiet, et infra triginta noctes hoc incipiat apud Deum et homines super omne quod habet.

CAP. V. Qui ordinatum vel alienigenam malignabit. Ll. Sax. XXXVII. MS. Jorn. CA. LX.

Si quis ordinatus vel alienigena seducatur in aliquo de pecunia vel vita, sit ei rex pro cognitione et advocato, si penitus alium non habeat, et emendetur regi sicut justum est, vel illud factum nimis profunde vindicet. Christiano regi jure pertinet, ut Deo factas vindicet injurias secundum quod acciderit.

CAP. VI. Si quis ordinatus hominem occidat. Ll. Sax. XXXVIII. MS. Jorn. CA. LXII.

Si quis minister altaris hominem occidat, vel malis actibus supra modum differatur, ordine simul et dignitate privetur, et peregrinetur sicut ei papa suus injunget, et opus emendet sedulo. Si se purgare velit, tripliciter hoc faciat, et si non infra triginta noctes hoc incipiat erga Deum et homines, extra legem habeatur.

CAP. VII. Si quis clericus ligetur vel verberetur. Ll. Sax. XXXIX. MS. Jorn. CA. LXIII.

Si quis ordinatum aliquem verberibus, aut vinculis, vel aliquatenus affliget, emendet ei sicut rectum sit, et episcopo emendationem altaris secundum dignitatem ordinis, regi vel domino plenam infractionem pacis, aut plena lada neget.

CAP. VIII. Si clericus se forisfaciat. Ll. Sax. XL. MS. Jorn. CA. LXIV.

Si ordinatus se forisfaciat in morte plectendis actibus, capiatur et servetur episcopi judicio discutiendus secundum quod factum sit.

CAP. IX. Si quis confiteri velit et negetur ei. Ll. Sax. XLI. MS. Jorn. CA. LXV.

Si qui morti damnatus confessionem habere desideret, nunquam defendatur ei. Et si quis ei perneget, emendet regi cxx. sol. vel se allegiat, sumat quinque, et idem sit sextus.

^b i. e. veneficium.

^d i. e. capitis sui redemptione.

CAP. X. Ne quis occidatur in die dominica. Ll. Sax. XLII. MS. Jorn. CA. LXVI.

Et si vitari possit, nunquam occidatur aliquis die dominica morte forisfactus, nisi fugiat vel repugnet: sed capiat et servetur donec festum tranfierit.

CAP. XI. Si liber festis diebus operetur. Ll. Sax. XLII.

Si liber festis diebus operetur, emendet hoc secundum suum ^e Healsfang, et saltem erga Deum emendet sedulo, sicut edocebitur.

CAP. XII. Si servus operetur. Ll. Sax. XLII. MS. Jorn. CA. LXVIII.

Si servus operetur, ^f corium suum perdat, vel triginta denariis redimat secundum quod factum erit.

CAP. XIII. Si dominus suus cogat eum. Ll. Sax. XLII. MS. Jorn. CA. LXIX.

Si dominus cogat servum suum festis diebus operari, ipsum servum perdat, et deinceps sit liber, et solvat dominus ^g lahsit cum Dacis, ^h witam cum Anglis secundum facti meritum, aut neget.

CAP. XIV. Si liber legitimum jejunium infringat. Ll. Sax. XLIII. MS. Jor. CA. LXX.

Si liber legitimum jejunium infringat, reddat lahsit cum Dacis, witam cum Anglis, secundum quod acciderit. Malum est, ut tempore jejuniorum ante horam comedat, et adhuc deterius ut carnis cibo quis seipsum inquinet.

CAP. XV. Si servus hoc agat. Ll. Sax. XLIII. MS. Jorn. CA. LXXI.

Si servus hoc efficiat, corium suum amittat, sicut factum est.

CAP. XVI. Si Quadragesimale jejunium infringatur. Ll. Sax. XLIV. MS. Jorn. CA. LXXII.

Si quis aperte quadragesimale jejunium frangat per pugnam, vel concubitum, vel per aliquod summorum criminum: sit hoc duplo corrigendum, sicut in summis festivitibus secundum quod factum erit. Si negetur, triplici lada fiat.

CAP. XVII. Si quis Dei recta per vim super-teneat. Ll. Sax. XLV. MS. Jorn. CA. LXXIII.

Si quis Dei rectitudines prohibeat, solvat lahsit cum Dacis, plenam witam cum Anglis, vel se adlegiet. Assumat xv. et idem sit xvi. Si aliquem vulneret, hoc emendet, et reddat plenam witam domino, et ab episcopo manum suam redimat, vel amittat eam. Si aliquem occidat, sit utlaga, et capiat eum cum clamore omnis qui rectum velit. Si efficiat ut occidatur, per hoc quod contra rectum resistat, si hoc ⁱ invenitur, inultus jaceat.

CAP. XVIII. De conjugis infraetis. Ll. Sax. XLVII. MS. Jorn. CA. LXXIV.

Si quis adulterium faciat, emendet secundum quod factum sit. Malum adulterium est; si sponsus cum vacua fornicetur, et multo pejus, cum sponsa alterius, vel cum ordinata.

CAP. XIX. De stupris. Ll. Sax. XLVIII. MS. Jorn. ibid.

Si quis cum ^k pertinente sua jaceat, emendet hoc secundum cognationis modum, sic wera, sic wita, sic omni pecunia. Non est aequale si quis cum sorore sua concumbat, et fuerit de longe pertinens.

CAP. XX. De virgine oppressa. MS. Jorn. CA. LXXVII.

Si quis violenter virginem opprimat, wera componat.

CAP. XXI. De vidua similiter oppressa. Ll. Sax. XLIX.

Si quis viduam per vim capiat, wera emendet.

CAP. XXII. De adultera. Ll. Sax. L. MS. Jorn. CA. LXXIX.

Si mulier, vivente marito suo, faciat adulterium, et manifestetur: sit ad dedecus seculi sibiipfi, et habeat legalis maritus ejus omne quod ipsa habebat, et ipsa perdat nasum et aures. Et si compellatio sit, et in emundando miseveniat, sit in episcopi potestate. Si quis uxoratus fornicetur cum ancilla sua, perdat eam, et pro seipso poeniteat erga Deum et homines. Et qui sponsam et concubinam simul habebit, non faciat ei presbyter aliquid rectitudinum quae christiano fieri debent, priusquam poeniteat, et ita emendet sicut episcopus injunget, et semper deinceps super his abstineat.

Alienigenae si concubitus suos dirigere nolint, extra patriam cum peccatis et pecunia recedant.

CAP. XXIII. Qui plegium regis vel archiepiscopi [vel] aldermanni infregerit. MS. Jorn. CA. LXXXIV.

Si quis plegium regis frangat, emendet quinque libras. Si quis archiepiscopi vel comitis, tres libras emendet.

CAP. XXIV. Si quis excommunicatum vel utlagatum habet. Ll. Sax. LXIV. MS. Jorn. CA. XCIV.

Si quis excommunicatum vel utlagatum habeat et manuteneat, desperatio sibi est et omni veniae suae. Et si quis ab injustitia velit reverti ad rectum, remittatur ei pro timore Dei sicut melius poterit, et faciamus sicut nobis expedit. Succurramus semper ei primitus qui magis indiget: tunc metemus inde mercedem nostram ubi nobis carius erit. Quia semper debet impotenti pro Dei timore et amore clementius judicari quam forti. Sane possumus scire, non potest debilis cum strenuo pariter. Unde me-ditari debemus, et distincte discernere, senium et juventutem, felicem et infelicem, sanitatem et infirmitatem, et utrobique debet hoc diligenter adverti, tam in divinis legibus, quam in secularibus judiciis. Item in multis quando aliquis coactus peccat, magis veniale est si necessitate fecit quod fecit. Et si quisquam agit aliquid impossibiliter, non est omnino simile, si voluntarie faciat.

Nota. Refert princeps optimus Canutus rex in epistola sua, leges istas praecedente, quam Roma dedit ad Angliae proceres, tria se vovisse: "Vitam propriam in omnibus justificare: regna populosque sibi subditos iuste et pie regere: aequum iudicium per omnia observare." Voti memor, per eandem epistolam, non solum praecipit, sed interminatur etiam, ante reditum suum exequenda. Reversus denuo caetera curat perimpleri. Hinc Malmesb. [Gest. reg. lib. II. ca. xi.] "Nec dicto," inquit, "deterius fuit factum. Omnes enim leges ab antiquis regibus, et maxime ab antecessore suo Aethelredo latas, sub interminatione regiae mulctae, perpetuis temporibus observari praecepit; in quarum custodia etiam nunc tempore bonorum, sub nomine regis Edwardi jurant, non quod ille statuerit, sed quod observaverit." In voti igitur consecratione suas has leges pietatis et iustitiae plenas edidisse sub hoc tempore videtur rex Canutus: et (quod recte animadvertit Malmesburius) plurimas his intexuit imo pene omnes Aethelredi reges, praesertim celebres illas Aenhamiae conditas.

Nec transeundum quidem est, quod etiam suggerit Malmesburius; praedicatissimas in historiis nostris Edwardi confessoris leges, quae nusquam nobis textu proprio innotuerint, pauca si excipias ab Hovedeno olim, a Lambardo nuper in lucem datas, hic praecipue exhiberi, utpote ab Edwardo Confessore observatas, sed a Canuto rege ex antiquioribus concinnatas et statutas. Auctor igitur codicis regii MS. Saxonorum regum leges exhibiturus, a Canuti istis licet ultimis exorditur velut caeteras omnes complectentibus. Subjungit tamen praecedentium regum institutiones; ut si quid defecerit in Canuti istis, ad illas denuo recurrendum foret. "Sequuntur," inquit, "et aliorum regum jura plurimorum, de quibus teneri liceat quicquid ista contemplatione non discrepat."

Augustino abbates, decreta christianitatis quae ibi a sanctis patribus statuébantur, relaturi. Sect. civ. Nec silentio praetereundum, quod memoratus abbas Alfwinus in memorato concilio Remensi tantam in oculis domini papae Leonis gratiam invenit, ut ad preces ipsius et instantiam, Ramesensem ecclesiam liberali protectionis apostolicae dono privilegiatam, et jura ejus, et possessiones, tam habitas tunc, quam in posterum justae acquisitionis titulo habendas, auctoritate

EX SECUNDO HENRICI SPELMANNI, EQUITIS, CONCILIORUM VOLUMINE.

EPISTOLA DEDICATORIA.

Reverendissimo in Christo patri ac domino, dom. Gilberto Sheldono, providentia divina Cantuariensi archiepiscopo, totius Angliae primate et metropolitano, sacrae majestati regiae a secretioribus consiliis, etc.

Εὐδαμονεῖν.

SISTO paternitati tuae, reverendissime archipraesul, dom. Henrici Spelmanni, avi mei, prolem posthumam, quae, parente in caelum recepto, pedibus tuis advoluta, clientelam illustrem ea, qua par est, humilitate modeste ambit, ut sub magni et sacri nominis tui patrocinio auspicius lucem videat et securius. Sub alterius, utut magni, cujuscunque auspiciis in publicum prodire non debuit, nec certe decuit. Cum enim Dei optimi maximi, et Caroli augusti gratia in sublimi et summa Britanniae specula constitutus sis; cum in statione illa edita non per intervalla, curisque intermittentibus, sed perdius et pernox pro salute publica excubias utiliter agas, et constanter invigiles; cum pro munere, etiam et merito tuo ecclesiae Britannicae primas audias; cum sacerdotes, templa, aras, adyta, sacraque omnia moderatione et prudentia summa solícite procures; cum summus sis et infulatus sacrorum arbiter; amplitudinem tuam adeat necesse est, ex ordine et solenni ritu litaturus. Qui enim victimam ad aras deorum, pontifice inconsulto, mactat, sacrilegium potius quam sacrificium perpetrat.

Tibi igitur, reverendissime archipraesul, summo synodorum Britannicarum praesidi, sacram hanc conciliorum Συνοδὸν lubens dico, dedico, consecroque; quam ab auctore, operisque genio et indole paternitati tuae commendatiorem fore, non vanus auguror. Dom. Henricum Spelmannum, fidissimum regiae majestatis subditum, et, absit verbo invidia, obsequentissimum ecclesiae Anglicanae filium, auctorem habuit; qui olim, cum ecclesiam Anglicanam non solum ab externo hoste, sed a filiis suis, utut spuris et schismaticis, indigne impetitam, et moerore afflictam viderat, dum alii ritus ejus decoros, ordinesque sacros, auctoritate apostolica institutos, oppugnant, alii sacrum ejus patrimonium ausu nefario et sacrilego invadunt, his malis obviam ivit, fidentius nescio an fortius: matri innocentissimae, afflictæ licet, suppetias tulit, nec injurias ipsi contra jus fasque illatas, ire inultas patiebatur; sed ^a scriptis in lucem editis ecclesiam, justus innocentiae maternae vindex, tutabatur. Secundo, opus ipsum si spectes, synodos, decreta, et constitutiones ecclesiae Anglicanae, jam inde a ^b Gulielmo I. ad Henricum VIII. continet; eoque nomine paternitati tuae non ingratum fore auguror. Nihil enim absolum, aut a ratione recta alienum agit, qui concilia summo conciliorum praesidi incorrupta et illibata fideliter exhibet. Avus meus (quod norunt omnes, qui illum norunt) codicum antiquorum fidem summa cum religione infecutus est. Manuscriptis nil additum aut detractum, immutatum nihil. Conciliorum canones, tam haeterodoxos, quam orthodoxos, prout in autographis, membranisque manu exaratis invenit, edidit. Pias pontificiorum fraudes in expurgandis, quod aiunt, antiquorum scriptis impias semper credidit.

Non ^c tali auxilio, nec defensoribus istis
Christus eget.

Qui veteris ecclesiae monumenta, quae ipsi non sapiunt, mutat, mutilatve, non edit antiqua, sed condit nova; synodorum decreta juris publici non facit, sed proprii cerebelli somnia. Majorum errores naevosque, juxta ac virtutes scire, posteritatis interest; ut ex his pios et intelligentes, ex illis homines fuisse sciat. Ut nautis convenit, non solum oceani et maris loca navigationi opportuna, sed Scyllas etiam, et Syrtes, Charybdes, et scopulos scire, quo tutius navigent et securius; ita reipublicae ecclesiasticae Palinuri, qui ecclesiae clavum a Deo sibi demandatum moderantur, si errorum scopulos et haeresium syrtes ex historiis antiquis et synodorum actis probe intelligant, illas cautius vitabunt, et ecclesiae navem ad optatum salutis portum facilius deducunt et felicius. Fatendum ideo, in hac synodorum Συνοδὸν nonnulla esse a veritate forsitan et pietate aliena, nec

Modus tenendi synodos in Anglia primaevis temporibus. Ex MS. Cotton. Cleop. C. viii. f. 35. V. Ord. Rom. in Bibl. Patr. tom. XIII. [Spelm. vol. II. p. 1. seqq.]

SANCTA synodus bis in anno decrevit habere concilia; unum aestate, aliud tempore autumnii. Quisquis autem clericorum ad haec non venerit, absque necessitatis causa, anno integro non praesumat missam celebrare. Prima die, et secunda, et tertia, hora convenienti, quando episcopo vel ejus vicario visum fuerit, omnes sequentur cruces cum letania, et ingrediuntur synodum, ejectis omnibus ab ecclesia, obseratisque foribus cunctis. Tunc ad unam januam, per quam sacerdotes ingrediantur, ostiarii stent, et sella ponatur in medio, et super eam sacrae reliquiae, et plenarium cum stola ponantur. Deinde convenientes omnes presbyteri intersint, et secundum ordinationis suae tempus resideant. Post hos ingrediantur diaconi probabiles, quos ordo poposcerit interesse. Exinde introducantur laici bonae conversationis, vel qui electione conjugali interesse meruerint. Tunc ingrediatur episcopus, si voluerit, vel necessitas exegerit; et si non aderit episcopus, ejus vicarius eadem faciat. Tunc dicat diaconus, “Orate;” deinde, “Erigite vos;” tunc episcopus versus ad orientem, mediocri voce dicat, “Deus vobiscum.”

“Deus

“Deus humilium visitator, qui nos fraterna dilectione consolatoris, praetendē societati nostrae gratiam tuam, ut per eos in quibus habitas, tuum in nobis sentiamus adventum.” Tunc procedens diaconus, cum subdiacono, thuribulo, et ceroferariis duobus, episcopo benedicente, legat evangelium secundum Lucam, “Designavit Dominus et alios septuaginta duos,” usque “Dignus est enim operarius mercede sua.” Hymn. “Veni Creator.”

“Assumus S. Spiritus assumus peccati quidem immanitate detenti, et in nomine tuo specialiter congregati; veni ad nos, dignare illabi cordibus nostris; doce nos quid agamus, quo gradiamur; ostende qualiter tibi in omnibus placeamus, quidque efficere valeamus: esto solus et suggestor et effector iudiciorum nostrorum, qui solus cum Deo Patre et ejus Filio nomen possides gloriosum. Non nos patiaris perturbatores esse justitiae, qui summae veritatis diligis aequitatem, ut in sinistram nos non ignorantia trahat, non favor inflectat, nec acceptio muneris vel personae corrumpat; et junge nos tibi, solius gratiae tuae dono, ut simus in te unum, et in nullo deviemus a vero; quatenus in nomine tuo collecti, sic in cunctis teneamus cum moderatione pietatis justitiam, ut hic in nullo a te nostra dissentiat sententia, et infuturo pro bene gestis consequamur praemia sempiterna, praestante te, qui solus cum Deo Patre ejusque Filio vivis et regnas et dominaris Deus per omnia secula seculorum.” Deinde, cunctis in ordine cum silentio sedentibus, episcopus, vel, si noluerit, diaconus, alloquitur concilium cum exhortatione hujusmodi.

“Ecce sanctissimi sacerdotes et fratres praemissis Deo precibus, fraternitatem vestram cum pia exhortatione convenio, et per divinum nomen obtestor, ut ea quae a nobis de Deo et facris ordinibus, aut sanctis moribus vobis fuerint dicta, cum summa reverentia suscipiatis, et cum omni pietate intendatis; quodsi forsitan aliquis nostrum aliter quam dicta fuerint senserit, sine aliquo scrupulo contentionis in nostrorum omnium collatione ea, de quibus ipse dubitaverit, conferenda deducat, qualiter, Domino mediente, aut doceri possit aut doceat. Deinde, simili vos obtestatione conjuro, ut nullus vestrum in judicando aut personam accipiat; aut quolibet favore vel munere pulsatus a veritate discedat; sed cum tanta pietate quicquid coetui nostro se judicandum intulerit retractare, ut nec discordans contentio ad subversionem justitiae inter nos locum inveniatur, nec item in requirenda aequitate, vigor nostri ordinis, vel sollicitudo tepescat.” Post hanc exhortationem, quisquis clericorum velit, conferat querelam; et admonendi sunt, ut nullus ad synodum veniat nisi jejunos; vel inde secedat antequam generaliter secessio adveniat; et sic synodus primae diei solvatur.

“Qui dispersos Israel congregat, ipse vos hic et ubique custodiat, Amen: et non solum vos custodiat, sed ovium suarum custodes idoneos efficiat, Amen. Ut cum summo pastore Christo, de gregum suorum pastione gaudeatis in caelo, Amen. Quod ipse praestare dignetur.”

Secunda die, similiter ut prima, ingrediantur synodum cum plena processione; et dum steterit in loco suo episcopus, vel ejus vicarius, dicat diaconus, “Orate.” Deinde, “Erigite vos.” Tunc episcopus versus ad orientem, mediocri voce dicat, “Dominus vobiscum. Et cum Spiritu tuo.”

“Deus, qui nobis famulis tuis, praesentiae tuae signa manifestas, mitte super nos spiritum charitatis, ut in adventu fratrum conservorumque nostrorum gratia nobis tuae largitatis augeatur per Dominum.” Postea legatur evangelium “Convocatis ille duodecim apostolis,” usque “Evangelizantes et curantes ubique.” Tunc omnes laici egrediantur, et legatur a diacono Homilia S. Gregorii, a versu, “Messis quidem multa,” usque “Patres minime esse recognoscunt.” Deinde, si clerici non habeant querelam, laici intromittantur; illis etiam audientibus, lectio recitetur Nicaeni concilii. “Judices non nisi jejuni leges et judicia discernant.” Quisquis ex laicis habet querelam, iudicibus proferat; et synodus secundae diei sic solvatur.

“Dominus mentis et linguae corporalis, et spiritualis, det vobis incrementa gratiae sacerdotalis, Amen; atque vobis ad dexteram constitutis, participium tribuat regni caelestis, Amen. Quod ipse praestare dignetur, qui nos ante constitutionem mundi praedestinos, et ante finem seculi justificados praescivit, per infinita secula seculorum, Amen.”

De tertia die.

Tertia die, ut prima, ingrediantur synodum cum plena processione. Et dum steterit in loco suo episcopus vel vicarius ejus, dicat diaconus, “Orate.” Deinde, “Erigite vos.” Tunc episcopus versus ad orientem, mediocri voce dicat, “Dominus vobiscum. Et cum Spiritu tuo.”

“Protege, Domine, quaesumus nos famulos tuos subsidiis mentis et corporis, et spiritualibus enutrients alimentis, propitius redde securos ab hostibus universis, per Dominum.” Postea legatur evangelium, “Misit ille xii. discipulos, praecipiens eis, et dicens, In viam gentium ne abieritis,” usque “Et simplices sicut columbae.” Deinde, si quae sint quaestiones et querelae, conferantur. Postea vero, episcopus moneat clerum, et doceat populum; atque in fine praedicationis remissionem peccatorum faciat. Deinde diaconus alta voce imponat, “Te Deum laudamus,” interim canente populo “Kyrieleyson:” finita ea laude, dicat diaconus hanc antiphonam, “In viam pacis;” cum Psalmo, “Benedictus Dominus Deus Israelis:” finita autem, dicat diaconus alta voce; “Humiliate vos ad benedictionem.

“Omnipotens Dei Filius, qui et initium et finis, complementum vobis tribuat charitatis, Gulielmus I. rex spoliat monasteria, episcopatus et abbatias (pro baroniarum more) sub militari statuit servitute, etc. Ex Matt. Paris. in anno. [Ann. Dom. MLXX. Spelm. vol. II. p. 4.]

ANNO Domini MLXX. Willielmus pessimo usus consilio, omnia Anglorum monasteria auro spolians et argento, insatiabiliter appropriavit, et ad majora sanctae ecclesiae opprobria, calicibus et feretris non pepercit.

Episcopatus quoque et abbatias omnes quae baronias tenebant, et eatenus ab omni servitute seculari libertatem habuerant, sub servitute statuit militari, inrotulans singulos episcopatus et abbatias pro voluntate sua, quot milites sibi et successoribus suis, hostilitatis tempore, voluit a singulis exhiberi. Et rotulos hujus ecclesiasticae servitutis ponens in thesauris, multos viros ecclesiasticos huic constitutioni pessimae reluctantes, a regno fugavit.

Sub hac tempestate Stigandus, Cantuariensis archiepiscopus, et Alexander Lincolnensis, facto ad Scotos diffugio, moram ad tempus fecerunt ibidem. Solus inter omnes Angliae praelatos Egelwinus Dunelmensis episcopus exul et proscriptus, velum Dei habens excommunicavit universos ecclesiae invasores et rerum ecclesiasticarum raptos.

Concilium Windleshorae, praecepto Alexandri papae, nutuque regis Willielmi Conquestoris habitum, in causa primatus Cantuariensis ecclesiae super Eboracensem. Ex W. Malmesb. De gestis pontif. Angl. lib. I. [Ann. Dom. MLXXII. Ibidem p. 5.]

ANNO ab incarnatione Domini Jesu Christi millesimo septuagesimo secundo, regni vero Willielmi, gloriosi regis Anglorum et ducis Normannorum sexto, pontificatus autem domini Alexandri papae undecimo, in praesentia regis et episcoporum atque abbatum ventilata est causa de primatu, quem Laufrancus Dorobernensis archiepiscopus super Eboracensem ecclesiam, jure suae ecclesiae proclamabat; et de ordinationibus quorundam episcoporum, de quibus ad quem specialiter pertinerent, certum minime constabat. Et tandem aliquando diversis diversarum causarum auctoritatibus probatum atque ostensum est; quod Eboracensis ecclesia Cantuariensi ecclesiae debeat subiacere, ejusque archiepiscopi, ut primatis totius Britanniae dispositionibus, in iis quae ad christianam religionem pertinent, in omnibus obedire. Subjectionem vero Dunelmensis, hoc est Lindisfarnensis episcopi, et omnium regionum a terminis Licefeldensis episcopi, et Humbrae magni fluvii, usque ad extremos fines Scotiae; et quicquid ex hac parte praedicti fluminis ad parochiam Eboracensis ecclesiae jure competit, Cantuariensis metropolitanus Eboracensi archiepiscopo, ejusque successoribus in perpetuum ob-tinere concessit; ita ut si Cantuariensis archiepiscopus concilium cogere voluerit, ubicunque ei visum fuerit; Eboracensis archiepiscopus sui praesentiam, cum omnibus sibi subjectis episcopis, ad nutum ejus exhibeat, et ejus canonicis dispositionibus obediens existat. Quod autem Eboracensis archiepiscopus professionem archiepiscopo Cantuariensi facere etiam cum sacramento debeat Lanfrancus, Dorobernensis archiepiscopus, ex antiqua antecessorum consuetudine ostendit, sed ob amorem regis, Thomae, archiepiscopo Eboracensi sacramentum relaxavit, scriptamque tantum professionem recepit, non praejudicans successoribus suis, qui sacramentum cum professione a successoribus Thomae exigere voluerint. Si archiepiscopus Cantuariensis vitam finierit, Eboracensis archiepiscopus Doroberniam veniet, et eum qui electus fuerit, cum caeteris praefatae ecclesiae episcopis ut primatem proprium jure consecrabit. Quod si archiepiscopus Eboracensis obierit, is qui ei successurus eligitur accepto a rege archiepiscopatus dono, Cantuariam, vel ubi Cantuariensi archiepiscopo visum fuerit, accedet, et ab ipso ordinationem canonico more suscipiet.

Concilium Anglicanum in quo S. Wulfstanus, Wigornens. episcopus deponitur anno Dom. MLXXIV. tempore Gregorii papae VIII. Ex Binio Concil. tom. III. [Spelm. vol. II. p. 7.]

IN rebus gestis a S. Wulfstano, apud Surium 19. die Januarii, legitur; quod hoc anno MLXXIV. habita fuerit in Anglia synodus, qua injusto iudicio synodali depositus est S. Wulfstanus, quem magno miraculo ipse Deus paulo post sedi suae restituit.

Aliud exemplar concilii Londoniensis an. Dom. MLXXV. praesidente Lanfranco archiepiscopo Doroberniae, et Thoma Eborac. archiepiscopo, et caeteris episc. cum synodorum usus diu jam ante obsoleverat. Ex Malmsh. De gest. pontif. Cant. p. 213. et Binio tom. III. col. 1208. [Ibidem p. 9. seq.]

ANNO Domini millesimo septuagesimo quinto, regnante Willielmo anno nono, congregatum est concilium in Londonia, praesidente Lanfranco archiepiscopo Doroberniensi, confidentibus secum Thoma archiepiscopo Eboracensi, et caeteris episcopis. Roffensis ecclesia per id tempus pastore carebat. Lindisfarnensis (qui et Dunelmensis episcopus) canonicam excusationem habens, concilio interesse non potuit. Et quod multis retro annis in Anglico regno usus conciliorum obsoleverat; renovata sunt nonnulla, quae antiquis etiam fuerant canonibus definita. Ex concilio igitur Toletano quarto, Milevitano, atque Bracarenfi statutum est, ut singuli, secundum ordinationis suae tempora sedent, praeter eos qui ex antiqua consuetudine, siue suarum ecclesiarum privilegiis, digniores sedes habent. De qua re interrogati sunt senes et aetate proveci, quid vel ipsi vidissent, vel a maioribus aut antiquioribus veraciter ac probabiliter ipsi audissent: super quo responso petita sunt induciae ac concessae usque in crastinum.

Crastina autem die concorditer perhibuere, quod Eboracensis archiepiscopus ad dextram Dorobernensis sedere debeat; Londoniensis episcopus ad sinistram; Wentanus juxta Eboracensem; si vero Eboracensis desit, Londinensis ad dextram, Wentanus ad sinistram. Ex regula beati Benedicti, et ex antiqua regularium locorum consuetudine, ut monachi proprium ordinem tenerent, et proprietate careant: si quis verum cum proprietate inconfessus obierit, in coemeterio non sepeliatur. Ex decretis summorum pontificum Damasi et Leonis, necnon ex conciliis Sardicensi et Laodicensi, in quibus prohibetur episcopales sedes in villis existere, concessum est regia munificentia, et synodali auctoritate, episcopis transire ad civitates, Hermano de Schireburne ad Salesberiam, Stigando de Selesia ad Cicestriam, Petro de Lichfield ad Cestriam. Ex multis Romanorum praefulum decretis, diversisque sacrorum canonum auctoritatibus, ne quis alienum clericum, vel monachum, sine commendatoriis literis ordinet, vel retineat. Ad comprimendum quorundam indiscretorum insolentiam ex communi decreto sancitum est, ne quis in concilio loquatur praeter licentiam a metropolitano concessam, exceptis episcopis et abbatibus. Ex decretis Gregorii Majoris, et Minoris, ut nullus de propria cognatione, vel uxoris defunctae, seu quam cognatus habuit, uxorem accipiat, quoadusque parentela ex alterutra parte ad septimum gradum perveniat. Ut nullus sacros ordines seu officium ecclesiasticum emat, vel vendat. Ne sortes seu divinationes ab aliquo exercentur. Ex conciliis Helibertano et Toletano decimo, ut nullus episcopus vel abbas seu quilibet ex clero hominem truncandum membris vel occidendum iudicet, vel iudicantibus faveat.

Forma professionis castitatis ab ordinandis suscipiendae. [Ibidem p. 11.]

EGO frater N. promitto Deo omnibusque sanctis ejus castitatem corporis mei secundum canonum decreta, et secundum ordinem mihi imponendum servare, domino praesule N. praesente.

In principio libri epistolarum Aelfrici antiqui. MS. et ecclesiae Wigornensi spectante, extat haec eadem formula, ut ab ipso Wulfstano, qui huic interfuit concilio [Wintoniensi sc. A. C.

MLXXVI] est exhibita; viz. ego frater N. promitto Deo, etc. etc. ut supra: et in fine domino praesule Wulfstano praesente.

Hujus canonis observatio, vel ex eo apparet; quod Gerardus archiep. Eboracensis, Anselmo archiepisc. Cantuariæ postea scribit. Cum ad ordines aliquos invito, dura cervice renituntur, ne in ordinando castitatem profiteantur.

Rex Henricus I. praesulem confert episcopatu S. Andreae in Scotia ann. Dom. MCVII. Ex Rog. Hoved. in. MLXXIV. [Spelm. vol. II. p. 29.]

ALWINUS prior Dunelmensis, Turgotum Anglum de genere non infimo, a Walchero episcopo Dunelmensi ad ipsum missum suscepit, et susceptum ille regulariter probavit, et probato monachicum quandoque habitum tradidit, atque ita verbo informavit et exemplo, ut eidem defuncto, jubente Willielmo episcopo, successore Walcheri, in Dunelmensis ecclesiae succederet prioratum, quod per viginti annos strenue administravit, duodecim diebus minus. Anno enim episcopatus Ranulfi (qui Willielmo successit) octavo, imperante Alexandro rege Scottorum, ab Henrico rege Anglorum assumitur ad episcopatum ecclesiae S. Andreae. Haec ille. Annus autem octavus Ranulfi episcopi anno convenit Domini MCVII. et hic VII. vel VIII. Henrici I.

Archiepisc. Ebor. professionem facit archiepisc. Cant. [A. D. MCIX. Ibid. p. 33.]

ANSELMUS archiepiscopus Cantuar. moritur [Eadm. p. 102.] 11. Maii ultimi: gravi jam tum pendente lite inter ipsum, et Thomam electum Eboracensem archiepiscopum: quem sub perpetuo anathemate, consecrari Anselmus prohibuerat, donec subjectionis professionem ecclesiae Cantuar. debitam spondidisset. Renuit hoc enim Eboracensis, longisque domi et foris res ambagibus agitur: papa ab Anselmi partibus se habente. Cogit igitur rex concilium, professusque nolle semet vel ad horam, excommunicationi Anselmi subiacere aliquatenus: episcoporum atque procerum assensu (juxta antiqua pontificum Romanorum privilegia, et decretum patris sui, tempore Lanfranci archiepiscopi latum) statuit; Thomam hanc professionem, sigillo regio declaratam, exhibiturum in consecratione, quod statim fecit.

Ego Thomas Eboracensis ecclesiae consecrandus metropolitanus, profiteor subjectionem et canonicam obedientiam sanctae Dorobernensi ecclesiae, et ejusdem ecclesiae primati canonice electo et consecrato, et successoribus suis canonice inthronizatis: salva fidelitate domini mei regis Henrici Anglorum, et salva obedientia ex parte mei tenenda, quam Thomas antecessor meus S. Romanae ecclesiae ex parte sua professus est.

Concilium Normanniae apud Abrincam civitatem, quo rex Henricus II. qui per legatos prius a nece Thomae, Cantuariensis archiepiscopi absolutus fuit, secundo jam absoluitur, juratusque spondet quae promiserat adimplere. Adduntur et concilii canones celebrati an. Dom. MCLXXIX. [Ibidem p. 99. seqq.]

Transmarinum hoc concilium nostratibus appono, quod ad nostrae ecclesiae historiam pertineat.

HENRICUS rex Angliae pater, et Henricus rex filius ejus, et Rotrodus Rothomagensis archiepiscopus, et omnes episcopi et abbates Normanniae convenerunt apud Abrincam civitatem, in praesentia Theodini et Alberti cardinalium: in quorum audientia rex Angliae pater, quinto calendarum Octob. feria quarta, festo sanctorum Cosmae et Damiani martyrum, in ecclesia S. Andreae apostoli purgavit innocentiam suam coram praedictis cardinalibus, et omni clero et populo, praestito sacramento super sanctorum reliquias, et super sacrosancta evangelia, quod ipse nec praecepit, nec voluit, quod archiepiscopus Cantuariensis occideretur: et quando audivit vehementer inde doluit. Sed quia malefactores illos, qui (sanctae memoriae) Thomam Cantuariensem archiepiscopum occiderunt, habere non poterat; et quia timebat ipsos illud profanum opus perpetrasse, causa animi motus eturbationis, quam in eo viderant, de satisfactione, tale praestitit sacramentum. Juravit itaque inprimis, quod ab Alexandro summo pontifice, et catholicis successoribus ejus non recederet, quamdiu ipsum sicut regem catholicum habuerint. Juravit etiam, quod neque appellationes impediret, neque impedire permetteret;

quin libere fierent in regno suo ad Romanum pontificem, in ecclesiasticis causis; ita tamen, ut si ei suspecti fuerint aliqui, securitatem faciant, quod malum suum vel regni sui non quaerant. Juravit etiam, quod ab instanti nativitate Domini usque in triennium crucem accipiet, in proxima sequente aestate, in propria persona Jerosolymam iturus, nisi remanserit per Alexandrum summum pontificem, vel per catholicos successores ejus: sed si interim pro urgente necessitate in Hispaniam super Saracenos profectus fuisset, quantum temporis in illo itinere consumeret, tantundem Jerosolymitanae spatium profectionis posset prolongare. Praeterea juravit, quod interim tantum pecuniae dabit Templariis, quantum ad arbitrium fratrum Templi possit sufficere ad retinendum ducentos milites, ad defensionem terrae Jerosolymitanae per spatium unius anni. Praeterea perdonavit iram et malevolentiam suam omnibus tam clericis quam laicis, qui pro sancto Thoma erant in exilio: et concessit eis libere et in pace ad propria redire. Juravit etiam quod possessiones Cantuariensis ecclesiae, si quae ablatae sunt, in integrum restituet, sicut habuit uno anno antequam ab Anglia egrederetur beatus Thomas Cantuariensis sis archiepiscopus. Juravit etiam quod consuetudines, quae inductae sunt contra ecclesias terrae suae in tempore suo, penitus dimittet. Et haec omnia juravit se observaturum bona fide, et sine malo ingenio.

Fecit etiam Henricum regem filium suum haec omnia capitula jurare tenenda: praeter illa quae propriam ejus personam contingebant. Et ut haec in memoria Romanae ecclesiae haberentur, rex pater fecit apponi sigillum suum scripto illi, in quo supradicta capitula continebantur, una cum sigillis praedictorum cardinalium.

Charta absolutionis domini regis.

Henrico, Dei gratia illustri regi Anglorum Albertus, tituli S. Laurentii in Lucina, et Theodinus, tituli S. Vitalis presbyteri cardinales, apostolicae sedis legati, salutem in eo qui dat salutem regibus. Ne in dubium veniant, quae geruntur, et usus habet, et communis consideratio utilitatis exposcit, ut scripturae serie debeant annotari. Inde quidem est, quod nos mandatum illud in scriptum duximus redigendum, quod vobis pro eo facimus, quia malefactores illos, qui sanctae memoriae Thomam, quondam Cantuariensem archiepiscopum occiderunt, occasione motus et turbationis, quam viderant in vobis, ad illud facinus processisse timetis. Super quo tamen facto purgationem in praesentia nostra de voluntate propria praestitistis, quod videlicet nec praecepistis nec voluistis ut occideretur; et quando pervenit ad vos, plurimum condoluistis. Ab instanti festo Pentecostes usque ad annum, tantam dabitur pecuniam, unde ad arbitrium fratrum Templi, ducenti milites valeant ad defensionem terrae Hierosolymitanae, per spatium unius anni teneri. Vos autem a sequenti natalis Domini usque ad triennium accipietis crucem, proxima tunc aestate illuc in propria persona, ducente Domino, profecturi, nisi remanseritis per dominum papam, vel catholicos successores ejus. Sane si contra Saracenos pro urgente necessitate in Hispaniam profecti fueritis, quantum temporis fuerit, ex quo arripueritis iter, tantundem supradictum spatium Hierosolymitanae profectionis poteritis prolongare. Appellationes nec impedietis, nec impediri permittetis; quin libere fiant in ecclesiasticis causis ad Romanum pontificem bona fide et absque fraude, et malo ingenio, ut per Romanum pontificem causae tractentur, et consequantur effectum suum: sic tamen, ut si vobis suspecti fuerint aliqui, securitatem faciant, quod malum vestrum, vel regni vestri non quaerunt. Consuetudines, quae inductae sunt contra ecclesias terrae vestrae in tempore vestro penitus dimittetis. Possessiones Cantuariensis ecclesiae, si quae ablatae sunt, in plenum restituetis, sicut habuit uno anno, antequam archiepiscopus de Anglia egrederetur. Clericis praeterea et laicis utriusque sexus, pacem vestram in gratiam, et possessiones suas restituetis: qui occasione praenominati archiepiscopi destituti fuerunt. Haec autem vobis, auctoritate domini papae, in remissionem peccatorum vestrorum injungimus et praecipimus observare, absque fraude et malo ingenio. Hoc sane coram multitudine personarum juravistis vos pro divinae reverentia majestatis. Juravit et filius vester, excepto eo, quod personam vestram specialiter contingebat. Et jurastis ambo, quod a papa domino Alexandro, et catholicis successoribus ejus, quamdiu vos sicut antecessores vestros, et catholicos reges habuerint, minime recedatis. Atque ut in memoria Romanae ecclesiae firmiter habeatur, sigillum vestrum praecepistis apponi.

Venerabili in Christo et dilecto fratri Gilberto, Dei gratia Ravennensi archiepiscopo, Albertus, dignatione divina tituli S. Laurentii in Lucina, et Theodinus, tituli S. Vitalis presbyteri cardinales, apostolicae sedis legati, quod promisit Deus diligentibus se. Quoniam desiderare vos credimus, ut de statu nostro, et de injuncti nobis promotione negotii aliquid audiat, idcirco qualiter nobiscum, et per ministerium mediocritatis nostrae Deus egerit his diebus fraternitati vestrae praesenti scripto duximus indicandum. Noveritis itaque quod postquam illustris rex Angliae venisse nos in regnum suum in veritate cognoverit, totius amoto tarditatis obstaculo, de Hibernia in Angliam, incumbentibus sibi negotiis praetermissis, de Anglia vero ad Normanniae partes accessit, atque incontinenti plures ad nos nuncios, et honorabiles destinavit; inquirens a nobis in quo loco potius convenire cum eo, et loqui vellemus. Placuit tandem ad Savinium monasterium pro colloquio habendo concurrere, ubi religiosorum virorum possemus orationibus adjuvari. Convenimus illuc, convenerunt et multae personae utriusque ordinis de regno suo, et tractavimus diligentia, qua potuimus, quod ad salutem ipsius, et injunctam nobis obedientiam pertinebat. Cum autem non possemus in omnibus convenire, recessit a nobis velut in Angliam profecturus, et nos expectavimus sequenti die ad Abrincam civitatem ituri. Postera autem die venerunt ad nos Lexoviensis episcopus, et duo archidiaconi; et concessio quod petebamus, ad praedictam processimus civitatem: ad quam Dominica, qua cantatur Vocem jucunditatis, convenimus, cum personis plurimis, et ipsi nobiscum. Et cum tanta humilitate quod fuerat conditum explevit, ut illius extitisse opus sine dubitatione credatur, qui respicit terram, et facit eam tremere. Sane quam timoratum Deo, quam obedientem ecclesiae se curaverat exhibere, non est opus praesenti abbreviatione referre: satis enim opera illius manifestant, et manifestabunt adhuc plenius, sicut et nobis spes data est in futurum. Primum itaque super morte (sanctae memoriae) Thomae, quondam Cantuariensis archiepiscopi, non de nostra exactione, sed de propria voluntate, tactis sacrosanctis evangeliiis, suam conscientiam expurgavit; jurans scilicet, quod nec praecepit, nec voluit, quod idem archiepiscopus occideretur; et quando audivit, vehementer doluit. Quia vero quod factum fuerat, ex sua occasione factum esse timebat, de satisfactione paranda, tale praestitit juramentum. Primo quippe juravit, quod a domino papa nostro Alexandro, et ejus catholicis successoribus non recedet, quamdiu sicut catholicum regem habuerint eum et christianum: et hoc ipsum jurare fecit filium suum majorem in charta absolutionis pro morte beati Thomae. Juravit etiam et alia clero et populo valde necessaria, quae omnia diligenter et per ordinem sicut ea juraverat in absolutionis ejus charta pernotavimus. Promisit etiam et alia de libera voluntate gerenda, quae non oportet scripturae serie denotare. Haec autem scripsimus, ut cognoscatis ipsum obedientem Deo, atque ad divinum obsequium multo amplius quam adhuc fuerit animatum. Noveritis ad hoc filium suum de praedictis consuetudinibus pariter cum eo jurasse. Sane, quod ibi factum est, iterato adhuc, ne dubitationis locus alicui remaneret, apud Cadomum in majori frequentia personarum publice statuit se acturum. Relaxavit praeterea episcopos de promissione, quam ei fecerant de consuetudinibus conservandis; et promisit, quod non exiget infuturum. In crastino autem praedicti cardinales ibidem celebraverunt magnum concilium cum archiepiscopo, et episcopis, et clero Normanniae, et ibi haec decreta subscripta statuerunt, et universis firmiter et inviolabiliter observanda injunxerunt.

Decreta per Theodinum et Albertum cardinales apud Abrincas promulgata an. MCLXXIII.

I. Pueri ad regimen illarum ecclesiarum et ad illa administranda, in quibus cura est animarum, minime admittantur.

II. Item filii sacerdotum non ponantur in ecclesiis patrum suorum.

Richardus archiep. Cantuar. fit legatus.

[Ann. Dom. MCLXXIV. Spelm. vol. II. p. 102.]

EODEM vero die quo rex apud Barbeffet applicuit (i. ut supra ibidem patet sexto idus Augusti feria quinta) habuit sibi obvios in ipso litore maris Richardum, Cantuariensem archiepiscopum, redeuntem ab Alexandro summo pontifice, cum pallio, et legatia, et primatia totius Angliae, et Reginaldum, Bathoniensem episcopum cum eo, quem idem archiepiscopus consecraverat apud S. Johannem de Mauriana, cum a Roma redissent. Et noluit rex eos secum tenere, sed misit eos in Angliam.

III. Item laici partem oblationum in ecclesia non percipiant.

IV. Item ecclesiae vicariis annuis non committantur.

V. Item sacerdotes majorum ecclesiarum, quibus ad hoc suppetunt facultates, alium sub se presbyterum cogantur habere.

VI. Item sacerdotes non ordinentur sine certo titulo.

VII. Item ecclesiae ad firmam annuam non tradantur.

VIII. Item de tertia parte decimarum nihil presbytero, qui servit ecclesiae, auferatur.

IX. Item his, qui decimas haereditario jure tenent, licentia sit cui voluerint idoneo clerico dare, eo quidem tenore, ut post eum, ad ecclesiam, cui de jure competunt, revertantur.

X. Vir ad religionem non transeat, uxore in seculo remanente, vel e converso, nisi ambo vacandi operibus carnis tempus excefferint.

XI. Item in adventu Domini omnibus, qui poterunt, maxime autem clericis et militibus, jejunium et abstinentia carniū indicatur.

XII. Item clerici Judaei non ponantur ad jurisdictiones secularium potestatum administrandas: qui autem hoc praesumpserint, a beneficiis ecclesiasticis arceantur.

XIII. Item de novis libris excommunicatorum, et rebus morientium quas auferunt sacerdotes, et benedictionibus sponfarum, et baptismo, et de quadraginta et octo libris, quae pro absolutione excommunicatorum exiguntur, nihil perfectum est, quia episcopi Normanniae illud decretum recipere noluerunt. In eodem vero concilio archiepiscopus Turonensis calumniatus est, archiepiscopatum Doli debere subiacere archiepiscopatu suo; affirmans sedem archiepiscopalem ibi esse non debere: sed clerici de Dolo constanter contradicebant.

Concilia

Concilia Scotica habita regnante Malcolm III. circa A. D. MLXXXVI. Ex vita B. Margaretæ reginae conjugis ipsius; quam vir. clar. Thomas Innesius descripsit ex codice membraneo Bibliothecae Cottonianae Tiberius D. III. num. 45. Eadem omnino est cum edita per PP. Bollandian. sub nomine Theodorici ad 10. Jun. Act. SS. Jun. To. II. p. 330. Numeri Roman. I, II, III. designant capita MS. Cotton. sectiones edit. Bolland. notant.

CAP. VIII. Sect. xiii.

RELIGIOSA, et Deo digna regina cum mente, verbo et factis ad caelestem patriam tenderet, etiam alios secum in via immaculata invitabat ire, quo secum possent ad veram beatitudinem pervenire. Malum cum videret, admonuit ut bonus fieret; bonum, ut melior existeret; meliorem, ut optimus esse studeret. ^aQuam fide apostolica ferventem zelus domus Dei, quae est ecclesia, comedit, unde quaeque illicita, quae in illa pullulaverant, eradicare penitus laboravit. Cum enim contra rectae fidei regulam, et sanctam universalis ecclesiae consuetudinem multa in gente illa fieri perspexisset, crebra concilia statuit, ut, quoquo modo valeret, ad veritatis viam errantes, Christo donante, reduceret. Quorum conciliorum illud caeteris principalius esse constat, in quo sola cum paucissimis suorum contra perversae consuetudinis assertores gladio Spiritus, quod est verbum Dei, triduo dimicabat: crederes alteram Helenam ibi residere, quia sicut illa quondam scripturarum sententiis Judaeos, similiter nunc et haec regina convicerat erroneos. Sed in hoc conflictu rex ipse ^badjutor ei praecipuus residebat, quodcumque in hac causa illa jussisset dicere paratissimus et facere. Qui quoniam perfecte Anglorum linguam aequae ac propriam noverat, vigilantissimus in hoc concilio utriusque partis interpres extiterat.

Igitur regina praefatione praemissa, ut, qui cum catholica ecclesia in una fide uni Deo servirent, ab eadem ecclesia novis quibusdam et peregrinis institutionibus discrepare non deberent; primum proposuit quadragesimale jejunium eos legitime non observare, quia hoc non cum sancta ubique ecclesia a feria quarta in capite jejunii, sed sequenti septimana ^cferia secunda consueverant inchoare. Contra illi jejunium, inquiunt, quod agimus evangelica auctoritate, quae Christi narrat jejunium, per sex hebdomadas observamus. At illa, longe, ait, in hoc evangelio discordatis: legitur enim ibi Dominum quadraginta diebus jejunasse, quod manifestum est vos non facere. Nam cum per sex hebdomadas sex dominici dies a jejunio abstrahuntur, triginta tantum et sex dies ad jejunandum remanere noscuntur. Non ergo evangelica Christi, sed triginta et sex dierum constat vos observare jejunium. Restat igitur, ut quatuor diebus ante Quadragesimae initium jejunare nobiscum incipiat, si dominico exemplo quadraginta dierum numero abstinentiam observare volueritis; alioquin contra ipsius Domini auctoritatem, et totius sanctae ecclesiae vos soli repugnabitis traditionem. Hac illi perspicua veritatis oratione convicti, deinceps, sicut sancta ubique solet ecclesia, sacrorum jejuniorum coeperunt inchoare solennia.

CAP. IX. Sect. xv.

Aliud quoque proponens regina jussit, ut ostenderent, qua ratione die sanctae Paschae secundum morem sanctae et apostolicae ecclesiae sacramenta corporis et sanguinis Christi sumere negligerent. Respondentes illi, Apostolus, inquit, de his loquens ait, "Qui manducat et bibit indigne, judicium sibi manducat et bibit." Unde quia nos peccatores recognoscimus, ne judicium nobis manducemus et bibamus, ad illud mysterium accedere formidamus. Quibus regina, Quid igitur, inquit, omnes qui peccatores sunt, sacrosanctum mysterium non gustabunt? Nemo ergo illud sumere debet, quia nemo sine sorde peccati, nec infans, cujus est unius diei vita super terram. Si autem nemo illud percipere debet, cur Domino dicente clamat evangelium "Nisi manducaveritis carnem filii hominis, et biberitis ejus sanguinem, non habebitis vitam in vobis." Sed plane sententiam, quam de apostolo profertis, secundum patrum intellectum aliter necesse est intelligatis. Non enim omnes peccatores sacramenta salutis indigne sumere deputat. Cum enim dixisset, judicium sibi manducat et bibit, addidit, non dijudicans corpus Domini; hoc est, non separans illud in fide ab escis corporalibus, judicium sibi manducat et bibit. Sed et ille, qui absque confessione et poenitentia cum suorum inquinamenti scelerum ad sacra mysteria accedere praesumpserit, ille, inquam, judicium sibi manducat et bibit. At nos, qui, multis ante diebus facta peccatorum confessione, poenitentia castigamur, jejuniiis attenuamur, eleemosynis et lachrymis a peccatorum sordibus abluimur, in die Resurrectionis dominicae ad ejus mensam in catholica fide accedentes, carnem et sanguinem agni immaculati Jesu Christi, non ad judicium, sed ad peccatorum sumimus remissionem, et salutarem percipiendae beatitudinis aeternae praeparationem. His ab ea perceptis, respondere nihil potuerunt, atque agnita deinceps ecclesiae instituta in mysterii salutaris perceptione observaverunt.

^a Quoniam. Bolland. ^b Malcolm III. ^c Mos idem hactenus durat in provincia Mediolan. ubi non nisi feria secunda post dominicam 1. Quad. inchoatur jejunium quadragesimale.

CAP. X. Sect. xvi.

Praeterea in aliquibus locis Scotorum quidam fuerunt, qui contra totius ecclesiae consuetudinem, nescio quo ritu barbaro, missas celebrare consueverant; quod regina zelo Dei accensa, ita destruere atque annihilare studuit, ut deinceps qui tale quid praesumeret, nemo in tota Scotorum gente appareret.

Solebant quoque neglecta dominicorum dierum reverentia ita illis, sicut aliis diebus quibusque terreni operis insistere laboribus; quod non licere ratione pariter et auctoritate ipsa ostendebat: Dominicum inquit, diem, propter dominicam, quae in eo facta est, resurrectionem, in veneratione habeamus, ut in eo servilia opera jam non faciamus, in quo nos a servitute diaboli redemptos novimus. Hoc et B. pater Gregorius affirmans dicit: "Dominico die a labore terreno cessandum est, atque omnimodo orationibus insistendum, ut, si quid negligentiae per sex dies agitur, per diem Resurrectionis dominicae precibus expiatur." Idem quoque pater Gregorius quendam propter opus terrenum, quod die dominico fecerat, districta increpatione feriens, eos, quorum hoc consiliis egerat, duobus mensibus excommunicatos esse decrevit. His sapientis reginae rationibus contraire non valentes, ita postmodum reverentiam dominicorum dierum ejus instantia observarunt, ut nec onera quaelibet his diebus quisquam portare, nec alius alium ad hoc aude- ret compellere.

Illicita etiam^d novercarum conjugia similiter et uxorem fratris defuncti fratrem superstitem ducere, quae ibi antea fiebant, nimis ostendit execranda, et a fidelibus velut ipsam mortem devi- tanda.

Multa quoque alia, quae contra fidei regu- lam, et ecclesiasticarum observationum instituta inoleverant, ipsa in eodem concilio damnare, et de regni sui finibus curavit proturbare. Univer- sa enim, quae praeposuerat, ita sanctae scriptu- rae testimoniis atque sanctorum patrum corro- boravit sententiis, ut contra haec nihil omnino respondere valerent, quin potius deposita perti- nacia rationi acquiescentes, universa libenter implenda susciperent.

Notatione dignum est quod inter pravas illas consuetudines, quas apud Scotos viguisse et a S. hujus reginae monitis et aucto- ritate sublatis sigillatim, et quasi de industria exponit hujus vitae scriptor Anglus, nusquam meminerit execrabilis illius de marcketis mulierum consuetudinis, quam ab Evino quodam tertio, uno ex quadraginta Veremundianis regibus introductam fabulatur Boethius, et a S. Margareta regina abolitam. Unde manifestum est hanc cum tot aliis a Boethio mutuatis fabulis e Veremundo suo, non modo ex historiis Scotorum, sed ex omni hominum memoria, si fieri posset, expungi debere. Vide Boeth. hist. Scotor. Edit. MDLXXIV. fol. 35. num. x. xx. et fol. 260. num. x.

Reformatio Angliae, ex decretis Reginaldi Poli cardinalis, sedis apostolicae legati
A. D. MDLVI *.

REGINALDUS, miseratione divina sanctae Ma- riae in Cosmedin sanctae Romanae ecclesiae diaconus cardinalis, Polus nuncupatus, ad fere- nissimos Philippum et Mariam, Angliae reges, fidei defensores, et ad universum Angliae re- gnum sanctissimi domini nostri papae, et sedis apostolicae de latere legatus, ad perpetuam rei memoriam. Cum felicis recordationis, Julius papa III. post allatum ei nuncium, serenissi- mam Mariam, Henrici VIII. regis filiam, tum Angliae principem, quae semper in recta fide, religioneque firmam sese atque constantem prae- stitisset, summo consensu, atque una omnium voce reginam declaratam fuisse, in magnam spem adductus esset, fore, ut hoc regnum ad sanctae catholicae ecclesiae unionem, a qua com- plures annos separatum fuerat, revocaretur; ut id quamprimum fieret, nos, pro pastoralis suo officio et paterna charitate, suum, et apostoli- cae sedis legatum de latere ad ipsam Mariam re- ginam, et universum hoc regnum misit: quod onus, licet humeris nostris impar, tamen, ut e- jus mandatis obediremus, divino favore et gra- tia freti, suscepimus; atque eo promptius, quod etiam debita erga patriam charitas ad id nos im- pellebat. Ac Dei quidem inprimis benignitate, spicere dignatus est, tum serenissimorum Mariae reginae, et Philippi regis, quem illi matrimo- nio conjunctum, Deus in hac praeclara et san- cta actione adiutorem esse voluit, et ad quem etiam idem Julius nos legatum postea declaravit, studio et opera, summaque erga ipsum Deum pietate effectum est, ut hoc regnum ad unitatem sanctae catholicae ecclesiae, et Romani pontificis obedientiam rediret. Cumque postmodum, eo- dem Julio primum, deinde Marcello II. felicitis recordationis, hac vita defunctis, reverendissimus dominus Johannes Petrus Carafa, episcopus O- stiensis, ad summum apostolatus apicem assum- ptus fuisset, Paulus IV. nuncupatus (quem De- us ecclesiae suae diu fervet incolumem) sancti- tati ejus placuit, ut in hoc legationis munere perseveremus, ut ea, quae jam in ejusdem uni- tatis negotio confecta erant, magis stabilirentur, utque ecclesia haec Anglicana, quae ob praete- riti schismatis calamitatem in doctrina et mori- bus valde deformata esset, ad veterum patrum et sacrorum canonum normam reformaretur. Nos igitur tam pia sanctitatis ejus voluntati o- bedire cupientes, pro legationis nostrae munere ad ipsum reformationis opus nobis incumben- qui populum hunc misericordiae suae oculis redum esse statuimus. Cumque nostro hac in re consilio cum nonnullis episcopis communicato, cum ipsis contulissimus, qua ratione id facilius et commodius effici posset; visum est, universos hujus regni episcopos convocari oportere, qui et de abusibus nos admonerent, et de eorum remediis nobiscum simul consultarent. Itaque tum ob hanc causam, tum ut eorum bonorum, quae superiorum temporum injuria ab ecclesiis ablata, ipsorum serenissimorum regum pietate nunc eis restituta sunt, ratio quaedam et dispositio ad Dei gloriam, et cleri ac populi utilitatem constitueretur, hoc potissimum tempore, quo in hac regia Londini urbe ad parlamentum episcopi totius regni, et universus clerus provinciae Cantuariensis congregati essent, serenissimis rege et regina pro sua pietate id valde probantibus, synodum episcoporum, et reliqui hujus regni cleri, qui provincialibus synodis de jure vel de consuetudine interesse consuevit, bonae memoriae Othonis et Othoboni, aliorumque sanctae sedis apostolicae in hoc regno legatorum, praedecessorum nostrorum, exempla secuti, auctoritate apostolica nobis in hac legatione, qua fungimur, concessa, convocavimus et celebravimus. In qua synodo postquam omnia fere, quae ad ipsorum bonorum ecclesiasticorum dispensationem pertinerent, constituissimus, ad ea in reformationis causa constituenda, quae magis necessaria videbantur, nos convertimus, eo quidem majore cura et studio, quod ejus sanctitas literis et ad nos, et ad universos episcopos scriptis, ad id vehementer hortata est; et ad sanctorum patrum instituta, quantum ratio et infirmitas praesentis temporis pateretur, proxime accedentes, cum totius synodi consilio et assensu ea, quae in sequentibus decretis continentur, Deo adjuvante, statuimus atque decrevimus. Universos igitur et singulos hujus regni archiepiscopos, episcopos, et caeteras ecclesiasticas personas in Domino magnopere hortamur, eisque eadem auctoritate apostolica injungimus, ut has constitutiones, quatenus ad eorum quemlibet respective pertinent, diligenter observent; eisdemque archiepiscopis et episcopis, reliquisque ecclesiarum praelatis mandamus, ut eas a quibuscumque, qui suae jurisdictioni subsunt, observandas curent, inobedientes et contumaces per censuras ecclesiasticas, et alia juris remedia, invocato etiam, si opus fuerit, auxilio brachii secularis, compescendo; irritumque et inane decernimus, quidquid secus super his a quoquam fuerit attentatum. Verum, quia difficile esset praesentes literas ad singula loca deferri, ad quae mitti oportet; volumus, et auctoritate apostolica decernimus, ut transumptis earum, sigillo alicujus personae in ecclesiastica dignitate constitutae munitis, ea fides adhibeatur, quae ipsis originalibus, si essent exhibitae vel ostensae, adhiberetur. Atque, ut haec decreta et constitutiones ad singulorum notitiam deducantur; universis locorum ordinariis eadem auctoritate apostolica praecipimus, ut ea per se, vel per alios in suis ecclesiis publicent, seu publicari faciant; quae post publicationem ipsam eos, ad quos pertinent, perinde arceant, ac si eis personaliter intimatae fuissent.

VOL. IV.

Decretum I. De gratiis Deo pro reditu hujus regni ad ecclesiae unitatem in missarum celebratione quotidie agendis, deque ejus rei memoria quotannis celebranda.

Cum totius deformationis ecclesiae in hoc regno, et omnium malorum, quae plurima superioribus temporibus acciderunt, causam merito agnoscamus hinc ortam esse, quod ab unitate et doctrina fidei ecclesiae catholicae recedentes, auctoritatem et obedientiam pontificis Romani, Christi vicarii, et successoris Petri, pro cujus fide, ne deficeret, ipse Christus oravit, reliquimus, ad quam nunc immensa Dei misericordia post multos opinionum errores, et diuturnam vexationem reversi sumus; ne tanti beneficii immemores et ingrati videamur, et ut initium faciamus a divino auxilio implorando, ut hoc ipsum beneficium indies magis confirmet, et hanc in nobis fidem servet et adaugeat, hoc primum cum praesentis synodi approbatione statuimus et decernimus, ut per universum hoc regnum in omnibus dierum dominicorum et festivorum, praeterquam de festo duplici majiori, missarum celebrationibus post alias collectas infra scripta etiam dicatur, quae in missalibus hic posthac imprimendis inferi curabitur.

Cum autem bonae memoriae Othobonus, sanctae Romanae ecclesiae cardinalis, et in his partibus apostolicae sedis legatus, cum universis regni praelatis, prout in ejus constitutionibus legitur, pie sanciverit, ut pro pace huic regno post varias dissensiones et intestina bella, quibus vexatum fuerat, restituta, quotannis per universum regnum solennes fierent processiones, in quibus populus Deo de beneficio pacis accepto gratias ageret, et pro ejusdem conservatione preces effunderet; nos praedicti cardinalis et legati tam piaae constitutionis exemplum secuti, statuimus, ut singulis annis in omnibus hujus regni civitatibus, oppidis, et vicis in festo sancti Andreae apostoli, quo die hujus regni cum Deo atque ejus ecclesia pax et reconciliatio facta est, processio solennis celebretur; in qua universi cujusque loci tam ecclesiastici, quam secularis ordinis Christi fideles convenientes, tam insignis a Deo accepti beneficii memoriam renouent, seque elemosynis, et aliis piis operibus gratos ostendant: utque eo ipso die in ecclesia, unde processio ducetur, inter missarum solennia concio ad populum habeatur, qua hujus solennitatis causa exponatur; vel, ubi deerit, qui concionetur, homilia, quae de hac re edenda curabitur, per parochum plebi recitetur. Singuli autem locorum ordinarii operam dabunt, ut hoc decretum in omnibus suae jurisdictionis locis, sub poenis eorum arbitrio irrogandis, servetur.

Quia vero post ejectam Romani pontificis et apostolicae sedis obedientiam, ecclesiasticarum etiam legum auctoritas sublata est; atque ex eo

falsi doctores admitti et audiri, ac libri corruptae doctrinae passim legi coeperunt, quibus populus variis erroribus in doctrina fidei, et maxime sacramentorum, quae praecipua sunt christianae religionis fundamenta, infectus est; simulque honestas vitae et cleri et populi, et reliqua omnia, quae ad rectam ecclesiae disciplinam spectant, plane depravata sunt; cum ejusdem synodi approbatione omnia sacrorum, tum generalium, tum provincialium, a sede apostolica receptorum conciliorum decreta, et Romanorum pontificum constitutiones, item ecclesiasticas leges in hoc regno canonice editas, quatenus per praesentis synodi decreta immutatae non sint, in pristinum atque eundem, in quo ante schisma vigeant, locum, vim, et usum reponimus ac restituimus; et, ut haec ab omnibus, ad quos pertinent, religiose sancteque observentur, transgressoresque secundum canones ipsos, praedictasque constitutiones puniantur, atque, ut ipsum jus canonicum, uti antea, publice doceatur, statuimus et mandamus.

Cum vero per eas constitutiones, quas bonae memoriae Otho et Othobonus, olim in hoc regno sedis apostolicae legati, itemque Cantuarienses archiepiscopi, in provincialibus synodis pro tempore edidere, iis, quae ad clerum et populum hujus regni in doctrina et moribus recte instituendum et conservandum pertinent, specialiter provisum sit; ideo, ne quis possit in his minus observandis ignorantiae excusationem praetendere, statuimus, ut non solum archiepiscopi, episcopi, decani, archidiaconi, officiales, et caeteri omnes, ecclesiasticam jurisdictionem exercentes, dictas constitutiones, et eas item, quae hac synodo latae fuerint, habeant; sed etiam reliqui, quibus animarum cura commissa est, praeter sacrorum Bibliorum volumen veteris editionis in Latinum versum, et alios libros ad munus suum fungendum necessarios, easdem constitutiones habere, et diligenter legere, et, si quid dubii in iis, quae ad earum intelligentiam pertinent, occurrerit, peritiores consulere, et ex iis, quae populum nosse oportet, declarare et exponere teneantur, sub poena ordinariarum arbitrio iis, qui aliter fecerint, irroganda.

Ne autem pravae doctrinae librorum lectione populus posthac corrumpatur; juxta literas apostolicas, quae quotannis in die coenae Domini Romae publice recitari consueverunt; omnes, qui haereticorum libros, seu alias quomodolibet de fide suspectos, non impetrata a sede apostolica licentia, legant, aut habeant, aut imprimant, aut in hoc regnum importent, aut vendant, aut publice vel occulte defendant ac laudent, quocunque nomine et praetextu id fecerint, damnamus et anathematizamus, atque, ut omnibus poenis contra eos latis puniantur, mandamus: statuentes etiam juxta generale ultimi Lateranensis concilii decretum, ne quis posthac in hoc regno librum aliquem, seu aliud quodvis scriptum, sub poenis in eo decreto contentis, et aliis, prout delicti ratio exegerit, gravioribus, imprimere, seu imprimendum curare audeat, nisi prius per loci ordinarium, vel per alium, seu alios ab ipso ordinario ad eam rem deputandos, diligenter lectum et examina-

Omnes vero libros, five traditiones, ad fidem et ecclesiasticam disciplinam spectantes, quas sancta Romana ecclesia ad hanc diem probavit ac recepit, seu posthac probabit et recipiet, cum omni pietatis affectu et reverentia suscipimus et amplectimur; utque ab omnibus aliis simili obedientia et veneratione suscipiantur, sub canonicis censuris et poenis statuimus.

Ut autem, omni superiorum temporum errore sublato, populus sciat, quam doctrinam sequi, quam fugere debeat; cum eadem hac synodo juxta regulas et dogmata sanctorum patrum, omnem eam fidem, quam sancta Romana et apostolica ecclesia, omnium ecclesiarum mater et magistra, tenet et docet, reverenter suscipimus et amplectimur; idemque omnibus faciendum, et aperte profitendum esse decernimus: ac secundum generalis concilii sub felicitis recordationis Innocentio papa III. celebrati, et aliorum conciliorum, et Romanorum pontificum decreta et traditiones, ipsasque literas apostolicas, quae in die coenae Domini legi solent, omnem haeresim adversus hanc sanctam, orthodoxam, et catholicam fidem se extollentem, et quicquid ab ea alienum est, damnamus et omnino rejicimus; omne dogma, quod cum eadem fide pugnat, seu non consentit, credi, practitari, doceri prohibemus ac vetamus: universos cujuscunque nominis ac generis haereticos, qui aliter credunt, tenent, ac docent, quam eadem Romana ecclesia credit, tenet, ac docet, damnamus et anathematizamus; omnes item censuras et poenas contra haereticos, et eorum fautores latas, necnon contra ordinarios, et caeteros omnes, ad quorum munus hoc spectat, in extirpandis haeresibus negligentes, innovamus, atque omnino exequi praecipimus. Hortamur autem, et per viscera misericordiae Domini nostri Jesu Christi obtestamur omnes, qui superiori tempore in errores aliquos lapsi sunt, nec dum resipuerunt, ut ab eis recedere, et veritatem agnoscere atque amplecti velint; qui vero Dei gratia catholicam fidem retinuerunt, vel ad eam reversi sunt, ut perpetuo in eadem perseverent. Verum, quia in iis, quae ad doctrinam capitis ecclesiae et sacramentorum pertinent, hic maxime erratum est; veram hujus doctrinae traditionem, quae in octava generali synodo Florentiae sub felicitis recordationis Eugenio papa IV. celebrata, breviter et dilucide explicata est, hic adscribendam censuimus.

Definimus, sanctam apostolicam sedem, et Romanum pontificem in universum orbem tenere primatum; et ipsum pontificem Romanum successorem esse beati Petri, principis apostolorum, et verum Christi vicarium, totiusque ecclesiae caput, et omnium Christianorum patrem ac doctorem existere; et ipsi in beato Petro pascendi, regendi, et gubernandi universalem ecclesiam a Domino nostro Jesu Christo plenam potestatem traditam esse, quemadmodum etiam in gestis oecumenicorum conciliorum, et in sacris canonibus continetur.

quàm futurorum, faciliori doctrina, sub hac brevissima redigimus formula.

Novae legis septem sunt sacramenta; videlicet baptismus, confirmatio, eucharistia, poenitentia, extrema unctio, ordo, et matrimonium; quae multum a sacramentis differunt antiquae legis: illa enim non causabant gratiam, sed eam solum per passionem Christi dandam esse figurabant; haec vero nostra et continent gratiam, et ipsam digne suscipientibus conferunt. Horum quinque prima ad spiritualem uniuscujusque hominis in seipso perfectionem, duo ultima ad totius ecclesiae regimen multiplicationemque ordinata sunt. Per baptismum enim spiritualiter renascimur; per confirmationem augemur in gratia, et roboramur in fide; renati autem, et roborati, nutrimur divina eucharistiae alimonia: quodsi per peccatum aegritudinem incurrimus animae, per poenitentiam spiritualiter sanamur; spiritualiter etiam et corporaliter, prout animae expedit, per extremam unctionem: per ordinem vero ecclesia gubernatur, et multiplicatur spiritualiter; per matrimonium corporaliter augetur. Haec omnia sacramenta tribus perficiuntur; videlicet rebus, tanquam materia, verbis, tanquam forma, et persona ministri conferentis sacramentum cum intentione faciendi, quod facit ecclesia; quorum si aliquod desit, non perficitur sacramentum. Inter haec sacramenta, tria sunt (baptismus, confirmatio, et ordo) quae characterem, id est, spirituale quoddam signum a caeteris distinctivum, imprimunt in anima indelibile, unde in eadem persona non reiterantur; reliqua vero quatuor characterem non imprimunt, et reiterationem admittunt.

Primum omnium sacramentorum locum tenet sanctum baptisma, quod vitae spiritualis janua est: per ipsum enim membra Christi, ac de corpore efficimur ecclesiae: et cum per primum hominem mors introierit in universos; nisi ex aqua et spiritu renascimur, non possumus, ut inquit veritas, in regnum caelorum introire. Materia hujus sacramenti est aqua vera et naturalis; nec refert, frigida sit, an calida. Forma autem est: "Ego te baptizo in nomine Patris, et Filii, et Spiritus Sancti." Non tamen negamus, quin et per illa verba, "Baptizetur talis servus Christi in nomine Patris, et Filii, et Spiritus Sancti;" vel, "Baptizetur manibus meis talis in nomine Patris, et Filii, et Spiritus Sancti," verum perficiatur baptisma; quoniam, cum principalis causa, ex qua baptismus virtutem habet, sit sancta Trinitas, instrumentalis autem sit minister, qui tradit exterius sacramentum, si exprimitur actus, qui per ipsum exercetur ministerium, cum sanctae Trinitatis invocatione perficitur sacramentum. Minister hujus sacramenti est sacerdos, cui ex officio competit baptizare. In causa autem necessitatis non solum sacerdos, vel diaconus, sed etiam laicus, vel mulier, imo etiam paganus, et haereticus baptizare potest, dummodo formam servet ecclesiae, et facere intendat, quod facit ecclesia. Hujus sacramenti effectus est remissio omnis culpae originalis et actualis, omnis quoque poenae, quae pro ipsa culpa debetur; propterea baptizatis nulla pro peccatis praeteritis injungenda est satisfactio; sed morientes antequam culpam aliquam committant, statim ad regnum caelorum, et Dei visionem perveniunt.

Secundum sacramentum est confirmatio; cuius materia est chrisma confectum ex oleo, quod nitorem significat conscientiae, et balsamo, qui odorem significat bonae famae, per episcopum benedicto. Forma autem est: "Signo te signo crucis, et confirmo te chrismate salutis in nomine Patris, et Filii, et Spiritus Sancti." Ordinarius minister est episcopus. Et cum caeteras unctiones simplex sacerdos valeat exhibere, hanc non nisi episcopus debet conferre; quia de solis apostolis legitur, quorum vicem tenent episcopi, quod per manus impositionem Spiritum Sanctum dabant, quemadmodum Actuum apostolorum lectio manifestat: "Cum enim," inquit, "audissent apostoli, qui erant Hierosolymis, quia recepisset Samaria verbum Dei, miserunt ad eos Petrum et Johannem; qui cum venissent, oraverunt pro eis, ut acciperent Spiritum Sanctum: nondum enim in quenquam illorum venerat; sed baptizati tantum erant in nomine Domini Jesu. Tunc imponebant manus super illos, et accipiebant Spiritum Sanctum." Loco autem illius manus impositionis detur in ecclesia confirmatio. Legitur tamen aliquando, per apostolicae sedis dispensationem ex rationabili et urgente admodum causa, simplicem sacerdotem, chrismate per episcopum confecto, hoc administrasse confirmationis sacramentum. Effectus autem hujus sacramenti est, quia in eo datur Spiritus Sanctus ad robur, sicut datus est apostolis in die Pentecostes, ut videlicet christianus audacter Christi confiteatur nomen; ideoque in fronte, ubi verecundiae sedes est, confirmandus inungitur, ne Christi nomen confiteri erubescat, et praecipue crucem ejus, qui Judaeis est scandalum, gentibus autem stultitia, secundum apostolum, propter quod signo crucis signatur.

Tertium est eucharistiae sacramentum; cuius materia est panis triticeus, et vinum de vite, cui ante consecrationem aqua modicissima admisceri debet. Aqua autem ideo admiscetur, quoniam, juxta testimonia sanctorum patrum ac doctorum ecclesiae pridem in disputatione exhibita, creditur ipsum Dominum in vino aqua permisto hoc instituisse sacramentum; deinde, quia hoc convenit dominicae Passionis repraesentationi. Inquit enim beatus Alexander papa V. a beato Petro: "In sacramentorum oblationibus, quae intra missarum solennia Domino offeruntur, panis tantum, et vinum aqua permistum in sacrificium offerantur. Non enim debet in calicem Domini aut vinum solum, aut aqua sola offerri, sed utrumque permistum; quia utrumque, id est sanguis et aqua, ex latere Christi profluxisse legitur; tum etiam, quod convenit ad significandum hujus sacramenti effectum, qui est unio populi christiani ad Christum. Aqua enim populum significat, secundum illud Apocalypsis; "Aquae multae, populi multi." Et Julius papa primus post beatum Silvestrum ait: "Calix dominicus, juxta canonum praeceptum, vino et aqua permistus debet offerri; quia videmus in aqua populum intelligi, in vino vero ostendi sanguinem Christi; ergo, cum in calice vinum et aqua miscetur, Christo populus adunatur, et fidelium plebs ei, in quem credit, copulatur et jungitur." Cum ergo tam sancta Romana ecclesia, a beatissimis apostolis Petro et Paulo edocta, quam reliquae omnes Latinorum Graecorumque ecclesiae, in quibus omnis sanctitatis et doctrinae lumina claruerunt, ab initio nascentis ecclesiae sic servaverint, et modo servant; inconueniens admodum videtur, ut alia quaevis regio ab hac universalis et rationabili discrepet observantia. Decernimus igitur, ut etiam ipsi Armeni se cum universo orbe christiano conforment, eorumque sacerdotes in calicis oblatione paululum aquae, prout dictum est, admisceant vino. Forma hujus Sacramenti sunt verba Salvatoris, quibus hoc confecit sacramentum. Sacerdos enim in persona Christi loquens, hoc conficit sacramentum: nam ipsorum verborum virtute substantia panis in corpus Christi, et substantia vini in sanguinem convertuntur; ita tamen, quod totus Christus continetur sub specie panis, et totus sub specie vini; sub qualibet quoque parte hostiae consecratae, et vini consecrati, separatione facta, totus est Christus. Hujus sacramenti effectus, quem in anima operatur digne sumentis, est adunatio hominis ad Christum. Et quia per gratiam homo Christo incorporatur, et membris ejus unitur; consequens est, quod per hoc sacramentum in sumentibus digne gratia augeatur: omnemque effectum, quem materialis cibus et potus quoad vitam agunt corporalem, sustentando, augendo, reparando, et delectando, sacramentum hoc quoad vitam operatur spiritualement; in quo, ut inquit Urbanus papa, gratiam Salvatoris nostri recensemus memoriam, a malo retrahimur, confortamur in bono, et ad virtutum et gratiarum proficimus incrementum.

Quartum sacramentum est poenitentia; cujus quasi materia sunt actus poenitentis, qui in tres distinguuntur partes: quarum prima est cordis contritio; ad quam pertinet, ut doleat de peccato commisso, cum proposito non peccandi de caetero; secunda oris confessio; ad quam pertinet, ut peccator omnia peccata, quorum memoriam habet, suo sacerdoti confiteatur integraliter; tertia satisfactio pro peccatis secundum arbitrium sacerdotis; quae quidem praecipue fit per orationem, jejunium, et eleemosynam. Forma hujus sacramenti sunt verba absolutionis, quae sacerdos profert cum dicit: "Ego te absolvo," etc. Minister hujus sacramenti est sacerdos, habens auctoritatem absolvendi vel ordinariam, vel ex commissione superioris. Effectus hujus sacramenti est absolutio a peccatis.

Quintum sacramentum est extrema unctio, cujus materia est oleum olivae per episcopum benedictum. Hoc sacramentum nisi infirmo, de cujus morte timetur, dari non debet, qui in his locis unguendus est; in oculis propter visum, in auribus propter auditum, in naribus propter odoratum, in ore propter gustum, vel locutionem, in manibus propter tactum, in pedibus propter gressum, in renibus propter delectationem ibidem vigentem. Forma hujus sacramenti est haec: "Per istam unctionem, et suam piissimam misericordiam indulgeat tibi Dominus, quicquid per visum," etc. et similiter in aliis membris. Minister hujus sacramenti est sacerdos. Effectus vero est mentis sanatio, et, in quantum autem expedit, ipsius etiam corporis. De hoc sacramento inquit B. Jacobus apostolus: "Infirmatur quis in vobis? inducat presbyteros ecclesiae, ut orent super eum, ungentes eum oleo in nomine Domini; et oratio fidei salvabit infirmum, et alleviabit eum Dominus; et, si in peccatis sit, dimittentur ei."

Sextum sacramentum est ordinis; cujus materia est illud, per cujus traditionem confertur ordo; sicut presbyteratus traditur per calicis cum vino, et patinae cum pane porrectionem; diaconatus vero per libri evangeliorum dationem; subdiaconatus vero per calicis vacui cum patina vacua superposita traditionem; et similiter de aliis, per rerum, ad ministeria sua pertinentium, assignationem. Forma sacerdotii talis est: "Accipe potestatem offerendi sacrificium in ecclesia pro vivis et mortuis in nomine Patris, et Filii, et Spiritus Sancti:" et sic de aliorum ordinum formis, prout in Pontificali Romano late continetur. Ordinarius minister hujus sacramenti est episcopus. Effectus augmentum gratiae, ut quis sit idoneus minister.

Septimum est sacramentum matrimonii, quod est signum conjunctionis Christi et ecclesiae, secundum apostolum dicentem: "Sacramentum hoc magnum est: ego autem dico in Christo et in ecclesia." Causa efficiens matrimonii regulariter est mutuus consensus per verba de praesenti expressus. Assignatur autem triplex bonum matrimonii: primum est proles suscipienda, et educanda ad cultum Dei; secundum fides, quam unus conjugum alteri servare debet; tertium indivisibilitas matrimonii propter hoc, quod significat indivisibilem conjunctionem Christi et ecclesiae. Quamvis autem ex causa fornicationis liceat tori separationem facere; non tamen aliud matrimonium contrahere fas est, cum matrimonii vinculum legitime contracti perpetuum sit.

Constitutionem bonae memoriae Johannis, archiepiscopi Cantuariensis, in concilio provinciali editam, qua pie et provide statutum est, ut in qualibet parochiali ecclesia tabernaculum fiat cum sera et clavi, decens et honestum, pro curae magnitudine et ecclesiae facultatibus, ubi sanctissimum eucharistiae sacramentum custodiatur, non in bursa vel loculo, sed in panno lineo mundissimo in pixide decenti incluso, ita ut sine ullo diminutionis periculo facile reponi et eximi possit; atque ut ipsum venerabile sacramentum singulis hebdomadis renovetur, poenam etiam contra sacerdotes in eucharistiae custodia negligentes statutam, hujus auctoritate concilii innovandam censuimus, eaque ut omnino servetur, decernimus; adjicientes, ut hoc tabernaculum in medio altaris majoris ita eminenter, ut ab omnibus conspici possit, collocetur, et ita affi-affigatur, ne facile a quoquam amoveri possit: si vero in eo loco commode poni non potest; tum in alio altari, majori proximo, ac maxime decenti, ponatur. Locorum autem ordinarii in suis ecclesiis initium hujus observationis facientes, ut in aliis idem fiat, providebunt, negligentes in hoc per ejus fructuum ecclesiae portionis, quae ad hujus rei confectionem sufficiat, subtractionem, et alia juris remedia ad hoc decretum observandum compellendo: nec alios propterea, quicunque praeter rectores ad hujus rei contributionem tenerentur, exoneramus. Huic etiam constitutioni ob honorem corporis Domini nostri Jesu Christi, qui est candor lucis aeternae, hoc addimus atque decernimus, ut, juxta antiquam et laudabilem ecclesiae Anglicanae, et aliarum provinciarum consuetudinem, lampas, vel cereus coram eo continue ardeat; ubi vero facultates ecclesiae non suppetant, current locorum ordinarii, quantum in eis est, ut facultas aliunde paretur, qua tam honesta et pia consuetudo, quae fere jam in omnibus hujus regni ecclesiis superiorum temporum injuria est sublata, renovetur. Praeterea omnes constitutiones ecclesiasticas, tam generales, quam hujus regni particulares, de custodia fontis baptismatis, chrismatis, et olei sancti, et de sacramentis ipsis rite et recte, ac cum ea, qua decet, reverentia administrandis latas et promulgatas, innovamus, easque ab omnibus, ad quos ea res pertinet, sub poenis, quae in eis continentur, et aliis etiam gravioribus, arbitrio ordinariorum pro modo culpa irrogandis, inviolabiliter observari decernimus.

De ecclesiarum dedicationibus certo die, ipsisque et aliis festis devote celebrandis.

Ut in solennitatibus dedicationum ecclesiarum, quas juxta antiquum hujus regni morem ubique primo die dominico mensis Octobris celebrari volumus, profana et irreligiosa vulgi consuetudo vana spectacula edendi, commessationes, tripudia, et alia id genus faciendi tollatur, statuimus, ut episcopi diligenter provideant, ne quid tale posthac eo die, aliisve festis diebus fiat, sed ut populus audiendis divinis officiis devotus intendat; inobedientes autem per ecclesiasticas censuras, et alia juris remedia, invocato etiam, si opus fuerit, brachii secularis auxilio, compescant.

Decretum III. De residentia episcoporum, et aliorum inferioris ordinis clericorum et scholarium, collegiorum praefectorum.

Cum ecclesiae reformationis initium ab iis fieri debeat, qui aliorum curam gerunt; in iis autem magnus hic vigeat abusus, quod multi eorum in ecclesiis sibi commissis non residentes, eas mercenariis relinquunt, quae res omnium fere malorum in ecclesia causam attulit; idcirco, ut hic abusus, quoad ejus fieri potest, tollatur, primum omnes, qui cathedralibus etiam metropolitanis, aliisve inferioribus ecclesiis, curam animarum habentibus, praesunt, magnopere hortamur in Domino, et per viscera misericordiae Jesu Christi obtestamur, ut atten-dentes sibi et universo gregi, in quo Spiritus Sanctus posuit eos, regere ecclesiam Dei, quam acquisivit sanguine suo, ad commissi sibi gregis salutem, cujus sanguis de eorum manibus est requirendus, debitam ei praesentiam exhibeant, et ab omni negotiorum secularium sollicitudine vacui, super ejus custodiam vigilent, atque ex apostoli praecepto in omnibus laborent, et ministerium suum impleant. Deinde, quia saepe fieri videmus, ut, quos Dei timor ad munus suum exequendum non movet, poenarum metus impellat; omnes ecclesiasticas, tam generales, quam hujus regni particulares, constitutiones contra eos, qui non resident, editas, innovamus; quos etiam usque ad ipsorum beneficiorum privationem inclusive ad residendum compelli volumus et decernimus: licebit tamen ordinariis, juxta canonem felicitis recordationis Gregorii papae X. in generali concilio Lugdunensi editum, gratiam dispensationis ad tempus concedere, prout causa rationabilis, et juri consona id exposcet.

Praeterea, cum dignitates, personatus, et alia hujusmodi ecclesiastica officia, et ministeria in Dei ecclesiis ideo sint instituta, ut essent, qui disciplinam ecclesiasticam, tanquam inspectores et moderatores, conservarent et augerent; quia videmus multos esse, qui harum dignitatum et officiorum emolumenta capientes, a propriis ecclesiis absint, nullamque eis operam impendant, non sine magno ipsarum ecclesiarum detrimento; idcirco, ut hi etiam ad suum officium praestandum compellantur, arctioribus ecclesiarum et collegiorum statutis et consuetudinibus in suo robore permanentibus, statuimus, ut posthac omnes decani, praepositi, et alii quascunque tam cathedralium etiam metropolitanae, quam collegiatarum ecclesiarum dignitates, personatus, officia, et administrationes, quocunque nomine nuncupentur, obtinentes, necnon scholarium collegiorum praefecti adsint in suis ecclesiis et collegiis: archidiaconi vero in archidiaconatibus, vel in ecclesiis cathedralibus, prout magis episcopo loci expediens visum fuerit, commorentur, ut debitam illis operam praestent. Si quis vero ultra vacationem statutis ecclesiae sibi concessam, ab ecclesia, archidiaconatu, aut collegio suo abfuerit; tum, pro rata temporis absentiae, in fructibus, quomodocunque sibi ratione officii, dignitatis, vel praefecturae obvenientibus, per ejus superiorem puniatur; atque hi in utilitatem mensae ecclesiae cathedralis, quae pro scholaribus alendis jam erecta est, erigeturve, convertantur; et, si longioris absentiae ratio ita postulaverit, aliis juris remediis, etiam usque ad dignitatis, officii, vel praefecturae privationem inclusive, juxta canonicas sanctiones, ad residentiam compellatur: liceat tamen iis, qui hujusmodi dignitates et officia obtinent, ex causa rationabili, et juri consona, etiam per majorem partem capituli seu collegii probata, de licentia superiorum ad tempus abesse.

Cum vero canonicatus et praebendas in ecclesiis instituendi ratio et causa haec fuerit, ut, qui ad eos assumuntur, episcopo assistant, eumque in muneris sui functione consilio et opera adjuvent, et in divinis officiis celebrandis ecclesiae, ex qua fructus percipiunt, inserviant; cumque pauci admodum sint, qui haec praestant, ut prope jam ecclesiae ipsae ad solitudinem sint redactae; statuimus et mandamus, ut posthac omnes canonici tam cathedralium etiam metropolitanarum, quam collegiatarum ecclesiarum, qui ex fundatione, statuto, vel consuetudine in ecclesiis residere tenentur, ad personalem in eis residentiam per subtractionem fructuum ex canonicatibus et praebendis provenientes, pro rata temporis, quo ultra vacationem sibi statutis ecclesiae concessam, sine licentia superioris ex causa legitima, et quam major pars capituli approbaverit, abfuerint, ab eis auferendorum, et in utilitatem mensae praefatae convertendorum, et per alia quaecunque juris remedia compellantur. Qui vero ex fundatione, statuto, vel consuetudine ad residentiam non tenentur; si praebendam, ad decem librarum annum valorem ascendente, obtineant, nisi in ecclesia, ad quam praebenda spectat, unum mensem, vel eo plus, prout eorum superioribus visum fuerit, quotannis praesentes fuerint, et in habitu per residentiarios ejusdem ecclesiae canonicos geri solito, divinis officiis intersint; sextam partem proventus annui praebendae suae, in utilitatem scholae praedictae convertendam, quoties secus fecerint, amittant. Qui vero praebendam, quae ad annum viginti librarum valorem ascendit, obtinent, nisi et ipsi in ecclesia, ad quam praebenda pertinet, mensibus saltem duobus continuis vel interpolatis, aut etiam pluribus, ejusdem superioris arbitrio, quotannis praesentes fuerint, et in habitu praedicto inservierint; ii sexta parte proventus annui praebendae suae, ad usum praedictum deputandae, priventur, nisi hujusmodi fructus iis, qui divinis intersint, seu aliis piis usibus per ecclesiae statuta, consuetudinesve, seu alias legitime sint jam applicati, quod et in aliis praecedentibus capitulis, ubi hac de re agitur, placuit observari: hoc insuper adjicientes, ut distributiones quotidianae appellatae, quae ab interessentibus tantum percipiuntur, nemini, qui eisdem divinis non intersit, ex quantumvis justa causa, nisi ea talis sit, quae expresse a jure vel a statutis ecclesiae probetur, concedantur. Eorum autem, quibus studiorum gratia, ad certum tempus indultum est, ne ad eos ordines promoveri teneantur, ad quos ratione beneficiorum, quae obtinent, promovendi essent, et ut absentes nihilominus fructus percipiant, quia plerique in nulla ex universitatibus, in quibus generale studium viget, sed in locis, ubi nullus est studiorum usus atque exercitatio, commorantur, et non pauci etiam in studiis generalibus degentes, quidvis potius aliud agunt, quam ut literis operam dent; idcirco, ne dolus et fraus hac in re cuiquam patrocinetur, omnibus locorum ordinariis mandamus, ut posthac, antequam ulli suae jurisdictionis hujusmodi indulta concedant, diligenter inquirent, an is ad literarum studia sit aptus, et an eae disciplinae, quibus operam se daturum profiteatur, tales sint, quae ei convenient, et ecclesiae futurae sint utiles, et an temere, vel in fraudem hanc licentiam petat: quam si, omnibus mature perspectis, illi concedendam duxerint; tum curent, ut sciant, quibus in locis is degat, et quam vitam ducat, et quem in literis progressum faciat; quodsi otiose eum vivere aut nihil in literis proficere cognoverint; et indultum revocent, et ad ordines suscipiendos, ad quos tenetur, et ad residentiam per subtractionem fructuum, et alia juris remedia compellant.

Quoniam vero beneficiorum pluralitas residentiam maxime impedit, et clericis materiam vagandi praestat; statuimus, ut quicumque plura incompatibilia beneficia ecclesiastica de facto obtinet, unico, quod maluerit, retento (ad quod retinendum, in eventum dimissionis aliorum seu alterius, ut sequitur, auctoritate apostolica nobis concessa, sine alieni juris praepjudicio eum habilitamus) aliud, seu alia, quae de jure tenere non potest, intra duorum mensium spatium, a praesentis decreti publicatione computandorum, in manibus sui ordinarii publice coram testibus resignet, et reipsa dimittat; alioquin omnibus sit privatus, quae ipso jure vacare, et ad ea obtinenda eum omnino inhabilem esse decernimus: hanc autem per hoc breve spatium incompatibilium hujusmodi beneficiorum retentionem ex quibusdam rationabilibus causis, eadem auctoritate apostolica nobis concessa, duximus indulgendam.

Qui vero in posterum plura beneficia, curam animarum habentia, seu aliter incompatibilia, sine ejusdem sedis apostolicae dispensatione vel auctoritate, per modum unionis ad vitam, vel commendae, vel custodiae, praeter eum modum, quem constitutio Gregoriana in concilio Lugdunensi edita permittit, aut alio quocunque nomine et titulo recipere, ac simul retinere praesumpserit; non solum secundo et pluribus, quae de facto obtinuit, sed etiam primo, quod canonice possidebat, sit ipso jure privatus. Omnes item alias sententias, censuras, et poenas in constitutione felicitis recordationis Johannis XXII. quae incipit, "Audistis," et quibuscunque aliis, tam apostolicis, quam provincialibus et synodalibus, et apostolicae sedis in hoc regno legatorum constitutionibus contra eos, qui hujusmodi incompatibilia beneficia obtinent, seu de illis provident, quoquomodo editas, innovamus, et debitae executioni mandari praecipimus.

Ordinarii autem locorum eis, quicumque plura curata, aut aliter incompatibilia beneficia ecclesiastica obtinent, dispensationes suas exhibere omnino compellant, et alias agant, juxta constitutionem Gregorii XI. in concilio Lugdunensi editam, quae incipit, "Ordinarii," quam plane observari decernimus: addentes, ut ipsi ordinarii etiam per idoneorum vicariorum deputationem, et congruae portionis fructuum assignationem provideant, ut animarum cura nullo modo negligatur, et beneficia ipsa debitis ministeriis non fraudentur.

Decretum IV. Ut episcopi, reliquique curam animarum exercentes, populo praedicent, parochique pueros prima fidei rudimenta doceant.

Sed quoniam nihil aut parum utilitatis allatura est episcoporum, et aliorum inferioris ordinis, dinis, curam animarum habentium, in ecclesiis suis residentia, nisi iidem pastoris officio fungantur, quod potissimum in divini verbi praedicatione consistit; inolevit autem alicubi hic abusus, ut episcopi, munere praedicandi ad alios translato, in alia ipsi officia incumbant, contra apostolorum exemplum, qui dixerunt: "Non est aequum nos relinquere verbum, et ministrare mensis:" quod munus tamen, cum in pauperibus alendis versaretur, maxime pium erat; idcirco cum hujus synodi approbatione statuimus, ut archiepiscopi et episcopi omnes praedicationis verbi Dei munus per seipsos obire, juxta Christi et apostolorum mandatum, et sacrorum canonum normam, teneantur; et si quando legitimum aliquod impedimentum inciderit, quominus id facere possint, tum, secundum statutum felicitis recordationis Innocentii papae III. in generali concilio editum, quod incipit, "Inter caetera," viros idoneos deligant ad hujusmodi praedicationis officium recte exequendum; rectores item, vicarii, et quicunque alii, curam animarum habentes, per se, vel per alios idoneos viros; si legitime ipsi impediti fuerint, saltem dominicis et aliis festis diebus plebem sibi commissam salutari praedicationis cibo pascant; quodsi quis hoc necessarium praedicandi officium praetermiserit, postquam per superiorem monitus, per unius mensis spatium muneri suo defuerit; per censuras ecclesiasticas, et alia juris remedia ad id ipse superior eum compellat, etiam aliquam honestam mercedem de fructibus ipsius ecclesiae alteri, qui id praestet, assignando, donec principalis quandoque resipiscens, officium suum impleat.

Huic autem praedicationis officio ita plane satisfactum erit, si non solum publice concio habeatur, sed privatim etiam pastor, quos ex grege sibi commissio a recta fide, vel a bonis moribus aberrare cognoverit, eos ad se vocatos paterne, et cum omni charitatis affectu docendo, monendo, hortando, ac, si opus fuerit, deterrendo, ad catholicam fidem, et rectam vivendi normam reducere conetur; qui vero et in fide et in moribus recte vivunt, in sancto eorum instituto confirmet.

Quia vero sunt, qui non vocati ad praedicandum, ipsi se ingerunt, cum tamen apostolus dicat: "Quomodo praedicabunt, nisi mittantur?" quos etiam Deus per prophetam reprehendit, dicens: "Ipsi currebant, et ego non mittebam illos:" statutum felicitis recordationis Innocentii papae III. in generali concilio editum, quo sub anathematis, et aliis poenis ei, qui in contumacia perseveraverit, infligendis, prohibetur, ne quis, praeter auctoritatem ab apostolica sede, vel a catholico loci episcopo concessam, publice vel privatim, extra quam regit ecclesiam, praedicationis officium usurpare audeat, observandum censemus.

Quos autem episcopus ad praedicandum mittet, eos de materia et modo praedicandi (multi enim in hoc officium abusus irrepservunt) cum omni pietate et studio instruat. Hoc autem potissimum erit eis injungendum, ut inprimis populum ad poenitentiam adhortentur; quae qui-dem eo magis necessaria est, quo gravius Deum offendimus et majoribus ab eo beneficiis affecti sumus, hoc regno a perniciosissimo schismate liberato; deinde contra ea vitia et abusus, qui tum in doctrina, tum in moribus tempore ipsius schismatis viguerunt, quibus etiam nunc plerique sunt infecti, diligenter erudiat moneaturque.

Quia vero in multis ecclesiis concionatores defunt, ne populus propter rectorum, vicariorum, aliorumve, qui curam animarum habent, imperitiam necessario sanae doctrinae cibo fraudetur; quaedam homiliae a piis et doctis viris ex hujus synodi mandato de iis praecipue, in quibus hic magis peccatum est, conscriptae edentur, quas curati, qui ad concionandum idonei non erunt, loco sermonis plebi sibi commissae plane et distincte legent.

Cum autem hic messis multa sit, operarii autem pauci; rogandus est inprimis Dominus messis, ut in vineam suam operarios mittat; interim vero episcoporum erit certos praedicatores deligere, qui omnia dioecesum suarum loca sic obeant, ut ne qua pars gregis salutari verbi Dei pabulo omnino fraudetur.

Hoc etiam eisdem agendum erit, ut, quicunque curae animarum sunt praefecti, pueros parochiae suae singulis saltem dominicis, et aliis festivis diebus, certa hora, qua divinis officiis non erunt impediti, ad ecclesiam vocatos, inprimis fidei rudimentis, ac pietate et obedientia erga Deum et parentes diligenter instruant; qui vero id praetermiserint, per ea juris remedia, quae opportuna videbuntur, ad id compellantur.

Decretum V. De vita et honestate clericorum.

Quia vero exemplum vitae magnam auctoritatem verbo affert, eisque velut quoddam praedicandi genus; ob id curandum est eis, qui aliis praesunt, ut caeteris cum morum probitate, vitaeque sanctitate, tum ea propriam domum recte gubernandi laude, quam in episcopis apostolus requirit, antecellant. Quapropter hujus regni archiepiscopos, episcopos, et reliquos omnes ecclesiarum praelatos per viscera misericordiae Jesu Christi monemus, atque obtestamur, ut, juxta doctrinam apostoli, ita sobrie, caste, ac pie vivant, ut caeteris eorum vita et conversatio ad pietatem et morum disciplinam exemplo esse possint. Nullo ipsi fastu, nulla pompa utantur, non vestibus sericis, non pretiosa suppellectile; sit eorum mensa frugalis et parca; non plus, quam tria, aut ad summum quatuor (quod etiam magis pro hujus temporis ratione indulgendo, quam probando concedimus) ciborum genera, praeter fructus et bellaria, qualescunque hospites aut convivas habeant, apponantur: reliqua mensae condimenta sint charitas, sanctorum librorum lectio, et pii sermones. Domesticorum et equorum numerosa et superflua multitudine abstineant, ac tot ministris contenti sint, quot ad curae sibi commissae administrationem, ac domus regimen, et ad quotidianos vitae usus erant necessarii. Sint etiam de eorum moribus et vita solliciti, ne ex alienis vitiis turpem contrahant infamiae notam; curentque curentque ut laici sibi inservientes, vestitu, quod ad genera et colores vestium attinet, modesto ac decenti utantur. Ac, ne haec sumptuum moderatio avaritiae tribuatur, quicquid ex fructibus ecclesiarum, deductis iis, quae earum oneribus sustinendis, et ipsis, atque ipsorum familiaribus necessaria sunt, supererit, id omne, juxta illa, quae beatus Gregorius papa Augustino episcopo de fructibus ecclesiae dispensandis rescripsit, ad pauperes Christi suscipiendos et alendos, ad pueros et adolescentes in scholis et studiis educandos, atque in alia pia opera ad Dei gloriam, et proximi utilitatem, et aliorum exemplum distribuant. Sint patres pauperum, sint orphanorum, viduarum, et oppressorum refugium et tutela. In sacrarum scripturarum lectione, et in iis, quae ad curae sibi commissae regimen spectant, assidue versentur; a secularibus autem negotiis, et omnibus iis, quae ordini clericali, juxta sacrorum canonum instituta, minime conveniunt, abstineant, ita ut in omnibus forma gregis vere facti agnoscantur.

Haec eadem reliquis etiam inferioris ordinis clericis sequenda proponuntur (aequum est enim, ut membra cum capite congruant) atque ut ii tales omnino sint, statuimus, ut locorum ordinarii curent, ut ea, quae tam per sacros canones generales, quam per sedis apostolicae legatorum, et provinciales hujus regni leges de vita et honestate clericorum sancte et pie instituta sunt, sub poenis in eis expressis, et aliis etiam ipsorum arbitrio irrogandis, ab omnibus suae jurisdictionis clericis integre observentur. Ac, ne quis harum rerum ignorantiam praetendat, iidem ordinarii, ut ea omnia, quae magis necessaria videbuntur, in breve compendium redigantur, et cum adjectione poenarum, et monitionibus debitis per publicas denunciationes, seu aliter ad omnium notitiam deducantur, curabunt. Ut autem quidam abusus, qui in mores et vitam clericorum superioris temporis vitio hic passim irreperunt, quoad ejus fieri potest, tollantur; de his quaedam specialiter, prout infra sequitur, statuenda censuimus.

Cum igitur personis regularibus professis, itemque secularibus in sacris ordinibus constitutis, juxta sacrorum conciliorum et canonum statuta, per antiquam et laudabilem ecclesiae consuetudinem uxores habere non liceat; quia nihilominus plerique post professionem emissam, et sacrorum ordinum susceptionem, omni Dei et legum timore posthabito, matrimonia, quae potius impudica contubernia sunt appellanda, de facto contrahere non sunt veriti, in maximum religiosorum et ordinis clericalis dedecus, et scandalum populi, et animarum suarum perditionem; ut tam pro praeteritis, quam futuris casibus hujusmodi abusui provideatur, eadem hac synodo approbante, nos omnia hujusmodi matrimonia tam a religiosis utriusque sexus professis, quam clericis secularibus, qui usque ad sacrum subdiaconatus ordinem inclusive pervenerunt, ut praemittitur, de facto contracta, damnamus et reprobamus, ac minime de jure fieri potuisse quinimo illicita ac nefaria esse pronunciamus et declaramus: mandamusque universis hujus regni ordinariis, ut hujusmodi personas de facto ita conjunctas, per censuras ecclesiasticas, et alia juris remedia separent ac disjungant, neque ullo modo simul habitare permittant; ac contra omnes, quicunque hujusmodi matrimonia defendere, seu in eis obstinate perseverare voluerint, juxta sacrorum canonum normam severe procedant: ac, ne in posterum quidquam tale committatur, omnes constitutiones canonicas, tam generales, quam hujus regni particulares, contra hujusmodi excessus latas, cum omnibus sententiis, censuris, et poenis in eis contentis, omnino exequendas statuimus.

Praeterea, cum pleraeque hujus regni ecclesiasticae personae, etiam ecclesiastica beneficia obtinentes, atque in sacris ordinibus constitutae, suae conditionis immemores, non solum habitum et tonsuram ordini suo convenientem non gerant, sed negotiis quoque secularibus, atque exercitiis etiam vilibus ac turpibus se implicant, nec horas canonicas persolvant, nec in studia literarum incumbant, aliudve omnino quidquam, quod ordini suo conveniat, agant, in sacrarum legum contemptum et clericalis ordinis dedecus; statuimus et decernimus, ut, quicunque in aliqua ecclesia praebendam, seu cujuscunque generis vel appellationis beneficium ecclesiasticum obtinet, habitum et tonsuram clericales secundum canonicas sanctiones gerere, et ab omnibus negotiis atque exercitiis ordini clericali non convenientibus, seu aliter de jure prohibitis omnino abstinere, horasque canonicas persolvere, ac in studia literarum incumbere, et alia, quae personae suae, et ordini, ac beneficio, quod obtinet, conveniunt, agere teneatur: quod si quis ab ordinario monitus, in hujusmodi abusibus perseveraverit; is per quaecunque juris remedia, etiam usque ad beneficiorum privationem inclusive, se corrigere atque emendare cogatur: et si in sacris ordinibus constitutus fuerit, etiam si beneficium non obtineat, per eadem juris remedia ad praedictorum observationem nihilominus compellatur; qui vero in minoribus tantum ordinibus constituti sunt, ab illicitis, et sibi prohibitis exercitiis abstineant; alioqui privilegiis clericalibus, juxta canonicas sanctiones, priventur.

Decretum VI. De ecclesiasticorum ordinum collatione, et examinatione ordinandorum.

Et si post divini verbi praedicationem nihil magis episcopo injunctum est, quam diligens et accurata in manuum impositione animadversio, praecipiente apostolo: "Nemini cito manum imposueris:" tamen, quia non ea diligentia, quae tantae rei convenit, adhiberi solet, ex quo ordinis ecclesiastici contemptus, et magna divini cultus diminutio oritur; eadem hac synodo approbante, statuimus, ut omnes et singuli locorum ordinarii nullum laborem in ordinum ecclesiasticorum collatione recusent; sed per se ipsos, si legitime impediti non fuerint, alioqui per alios catholicos episcopos, cum omni studio et charitate hoc munus exercentes, statutis a jure temporibus, qui ex suis dioecesanis voluerint, et idonei cogniti fuerint, eos ordinibus initient; neminem vero ad alterius dioecesis episcopum, nisi ex causa necessitatis bene per eos explo-explorata, ordinandum dimittant, idque postquam eum diligenter examinaverint, atque idoneum esse cognoverint. Non putent autem episcopi se muneri suo satisfecisse, si eorum, qui ordinandi sunt, examinatione ad alios rejecta, manus tantum ipsi imposuerint; ita enim plerumque fit, ut qui inutiles et indigni sunt, eos ab aliis temere, quos ea cura non admodum tangit, dignos judicatos, sacris ordinibus praeter conscientiam insigniant: quapropter omnes et singulos episcopos in Domino hortamur, ac moneamus, eisque mandamus, ut ipsimet hoc munus examinandi omni studio et diligentia exerceant. Si vero, quia multi ob dioecesium amplitudinem ordinandi sint, aliorum auxilio indigeant; tum eorum opera utantur, quos pios et doctos noverint, et quorum diligentiae confidant. Neque vero ob id archidiaconos, aliosve, ad quos hoc munus pertinet, excludimus; imo vero eos assistere episcopis, eisque adjutores esse volumus.

In examinatione autem eorum, qui ordinandi sint, hoc praecipue attendi debet; ne qua ii sint haeresi infecti; ut sint legitimis natalibus orti, et in aetate a sacris canonibus requisita constituti; omnique defectu careant, propter quem jure ab ordinibus repellantur; sintque vitae ac morum honestate et probitate commendabiles, ac literarum scientia pro cuiusque ordinis ratione praediti. Est etiam diligenter animadvertendum, ne simulato, aut minus sufficienti quisque titulo promoveatur, qui postea, in ordinis clericalis dedecus, aut mendicare, aut, quod maxime nefarium est, sacrosanctum missae sacrificium quasi venale facere cogatur. Admonendi autem omnes et hortandi inprimis erunt, ne ad ordines suscipiendos accedant proprii commodi gratia, nec quaerentes, quae sua sunt, sed tantum, quae Jesu Christi.

Ut autem haec omnia accuratius fiant, qui promovendi erunt, maxime ad sacros ordines, multo ante ordinationis tempus suum desiderium episcopo significabunt, ut is de eorum statu et conditione commode inquirere et cognoscere possit; ac demum feria quinta, diem ordinationis proxime praecedente, se praesentent, ac dent nomina; eodemque et sequentibus diebus hora statuta diligenter examinentur. Afferant autem omnes de iis, quae dicta sunt, certa, ac fide digna testimonia non modo suorum parochorum, sed etiam praeceptorum, aliorumque proborum hominum, qui ipsos bene noverint. Et, ut ab omni peccatorum labe purgati, et ea, qua convenit, devotione ad sacros ordines suscipiendos accedant; peccata sua idoneo sacerdoti ante confiteantur, qui eorum vitae conditionem sedulo scrutatus, intelligat, an forte aliqua irregularitate, aut alio quopiam impedimento teneantur, ut expediat eos ab ordinibus vel omnino abstinere, vel quoad hujusmodi impedimentum tollatur: sumantque etiam die ordinationis sanctissimum eucharistiae sacramentum.

Licet autem in minoribus ordinibus tam exacta cura non requiratur; nihilominus et in his, pro gradu et ratione ordinis suscipiendi, eorum omnium, quae superius dicta sunt, habenda est.

VOL. IV.

Decretum VII. De ecclesiasticorum beneficiorum provisione.

Cum ecclesiastica beneficia dignis tantum et idoneis personis conferenda sint, quae et velint et possint officium, propter quod beneficium datur, exequi; id quod docet exemplum apostolorum, qui cum diaconos septem electuri essent, convocata discipulorum multitudine, dixerunt: "Considerate, fratres, ex vobis viros boni testimonii septem, plenos Spiritu Sancto, et sapientia, quos constituamus super hoc opus:" idcirco omnes episcopos, ad quos id spectat, admonitos etiam atque etiam volumus, ut, omni humano affectu rationeque posthabita, eis, quos maxime idoneos, atque optimos invenire poterint, ecclesiastica munera, ea inprimis, quae aliorum curam habent annexam, conferant atque committant, quaerentes, non quae sua sunt, aut consanguineorum, caeterorumve ad ipsos secundum carnem quovismodo pertinentium, sed quae Jesu Christi.

Cumque illud apostoli, "Nemini cito manum imposueris," non tam ecclesiasticorum ordinum collationem, quam ministrorum institutionem respiciat; episcopi nemini ecclesiastica beneficia, maxime curam animarum habentia, nisi prius diligenti inquisitione et examinatione habita, committant: in qua eadem et multo quidem magis spectari debent, quae in ordinibus conferendis spectanda esse diximus; sana doctrina, aetas matura, item morum gravitas, et literarum scientia: praeterea, an, qui praeficiendus est, in iis saltem ordinibus, qui beneficii sibi committendi muneri conveniunt, juxta canonicas sanctiones, vel ecclesiarum statuta, seu beneficiorum foundationem sit constitutus; et an ambitione, avaritiave, aut alio humano affectu ad divina ministeria suscipienda accedat. Habeat autem unusquisque bonum testimonium hominum fide dignorum, cum quibus diutius versatus fuerit; et ab episcopo officii, et oneris sibi impositi diligenter admo- neatur.

Cum vero ad beneficium, quod personalem residentiam postulet, aliquis assumendus est; perquirat episcopus, an is talis sit, qui velit et possit in eo residere: nam si aliud beneficium incompatible jam obtineat, sive quid aliud sit, quod ejus residentiam impediatur; eum ne admittat: quodsi nihil tale obstat; tamen, antequam eum beneficio praeficiat, promissionem ab eo de personaliter residendo, etiam jurejurando recipiat, apposita poena amissionis beneficii, si secus fecerit, incurrenda; quam promissionem et juramentum in vicariorum provisionibus tantum recipi debere, juxta provinciales constitutiones declaramus.

Episcopis etiam curandum erit, ut a praefectis universitatum et collegiorum scripta habeant nomina eorum, qui moribus et doctrina ad beneficia obtinenda idonei sint; ut, si quod beneficium vacaverit, sciant, quibus id statim conferre possint. Eos etiam omnem diligentiam adhibere oportebit pervestigandis hominibus doctis et piis, qui sibi in ecclesiarum suarum regimine adjumento futuri sint.

Quoniam

Quoniam autem valde periculosa est diutina ecclesiarum vacatio; omnes episcopos in Domino hortamur ac monemus, ut beneficiis vacantibus, quorum collatio ad eos pertineat, etiam non expectato tempore a sacris canonibus praefinito, quam citissime possint, de idoneis rectoribus et pastoribus provideant; durante vero earum vacatione, procurent, ut ita gubernentur, ne quid detrimenti ipsae, et plebes, si quas habent sibi commissas, patiantur.

Quae vero de episcopis supra diximus, eadem ad alios omnes, quicumque non solum conferendi libere, sed eligendi, instituendi, seu quomodolibet de beneficiis ecclesiasticis disponendi jus habent, dicenda erunt; poenis canonicis contra eos, qui indignos ad beneficia promoverint, innovatis.

Decretum VIII. Ne concessionem juris praesentandi, seu advocationum fiant, neve in quempiam facultates disponendi de beneficiis vacaturis contra sacrorum canonum dispositionem transferantur.

Cum in fraudem statuti Lateranensis concilii de beneficiorum non vacantium dispositionibus, seu promissionibus nemini faciendis, multi in alios jus praesentandi, seu de hujusmodi beneficiis disponendi potestatem transferant; ut hic abusus, qui hic frequens est, et ex quo multa mala oriri comperimus, tollatur, cum praesentis synodi approbatione omnes juris praesentandi seu eligendi donationes, seu advocationum concessionem ad beneficia vacatura, vel ea conferendi, seu quomodolibet de illis disponendi facultates per quoscunque, quavis auctoritate vel dignitate fungentes, in posterum contra sacrorum canonum instituta fieri prohibemus; et si quae fiant, eas irritas et inanes esse decernimus. Et si quis ecclesiastici ordinis jura et facultates ejusmodi, ut praefertur, in alium transfulerit; tum jure de hujusmodi beneficiis disponendi pro ea et altera vice sit eo ipso privatus, eorumque dispositio et ordinatio ad superiorem, qui in hoc non deliquerit, devolvatur. Quicumque vero ad aliquod beneficium vigore praedictarum concessionum, seu facultatum se per quemcunque praesentari, vel alio modo sibi provideri permiserit, seu consenserit, vel quomodolibet id obtinuerit; non solum eo sic obtento sit ipso jure privatus, sed ad omnia beneficia ecclesiastica obtinenda per quinquennium inhabilis fiat. Praeterea omnibus locorum ordinariis inhibemus, ne quem vigore hujusmodi concessionum sibi praesentatum vel electum in dictis beneficiis instituunt seu confirment, sed eum, tanquam ambitiosum, et sacrarum legum contemptorem, repellant; volentes omnino, ut praedictum Lateranensis concilii statutum ab omnibus observetur; nec ei, sub poenis tam quoad actus nullitatem, quam quoad personas contra id delinquentes, superius annotatis, directe vel indirecte, ullo modo vel praetextu contraveniatur.

Decretum IX. De simonia.

Cum detestabile simoniace pravitate scelus, quod ex avaritia, quae est idolorum servitus, et omnium malorum radix, oritur, tam divinae scripturae, quam sacrorum canonum auctoritas vehementer execretur et damnet; ut pestiferum hoc vitium, quod proximis temporibus maxime hic viguit, tollatur, praesenti hoc decreto omnem pecuniae dationem, fructuum etiam minimae partis donationem, praediorum ad firmam seu affictum concessionem, omnem denique pactionem, promissionem, et conventionem in cujuslibet beneficii ecclesiastici adeptione, vel circa eam quovismodo interpositam, rejicimus atque damnamus; cum ecclesiastica beneficia gratis, libere, et sine ulla conditione vel sorde dari et recipi debeant. Praesentationes vero, electiones, postulationes, institutiones, confirmationes, collationes, et cujuslibet generis beneficiorum ecclesiasticorum dispositiones, in quibus praedicta, vel unum aliquod ex praedictis directe, seu indirecte, non solum per eos, ad quos de ipsis beneficiis disponere pertineat, sed etiam per eorum familiares, et quosvis alios intercessores et mediatores interposita fuerint, nullam prorsus vim habere decernimus; ita ut non modo in ejusmodi adeptionibus nullum jus quisquam acquirat, verum etiam, si quos inde fructus perceperit, eos omnes restituere teneatur; sitque eo facto ad omnia ecclesiastica beneficia in perpetuum inhabilis.

Personae autem ecclesiasticae, quae aliquo modo ex praedictis in disponendo de beneficiis ecclesiasticis deliquerint, quacunque dignitate fungantur, sint eo ipso infames, et omni juris patronatus, seu qualibet alia de beneficiis hujusmodi disponendi facultate privati; atque haec ipsa immediate ad superiorem, quae in praedictis non peccaverit, libere devolvantur. Laici vero patroni, qui propter aliquod commodum seu emolumentum ex iis, quae infra scripta juramenti forma exprimuntur, quenquam praesentaverint, in sententiam excommunicationis, et in alias ecclesiasticas poenas incurrant. Qui autem in his quocunque modo intercessores seu mediatores fuerint, ii sint eo ipso ad omnes actus canonicos inhabiles; et, si quid acceperint, ad restitutionem ejus alicui loco pio applicandi per sententias ecclesiasticas et alia juris remedia compellantur.

Praeterea omnibus locorum ordinariis mandamus, ut etiam, juxta provincialis concilii statutum, ab eo, qui praesentatus fuerit, juramentum secundum formam infra scriptam recipiant. Itemque felix recordationis Pauli papae II. constitutionem, quae incipit, "Cum detestabile," et quascunque alias, tam generales, quam hujus regni speciales, ecclesiasticas leges contra simoniacos, non solum quoad beneficiorum provisiones, ut praefertur, sed etiam quoad ordinem, et aliorum sacramentorum administrationem pure et sine aliqua labe faciendam, latas, innovamus, atque, ut hae inviolabiliter observentur, praecipimus. Juramenti autem per praesentatum praestandi forma talis est: "Ego N. praesentatus ad beneficium de N. juro ad haec sacrosancta Dei evangelia, per me corporaliter tacta, quod propter praedictum beneficium obtinendum, aut praesentationem ad idem habendum aut acquirendum, neque ego, neque alia alia persona vice et nomine meo, nec de consensu aut scientia mea, patrono, seu alii cuiusque aliquid praemissorum nomine aut intuitu promissimus, aut dedimus, nec quidquam ejus rei gratia permutavimus, compensavimus, aut prius datum confirmavimus, apudve quendam deposuimus; seu quidquam mutuavimus, seu elocavimus, priusve mutuatum, commodatum, depositum, aut elocatum, aut quocunque modo debitum remisimus, seu relaxavimus; nec de sanctuario, gleba, domibus, terris, praediis, tenementis, redditibus praedictae ecclesiae, fructibusve, decimis, aut oblationibus ejusdem praeteritis, praesentibus, aut futuris, donationem, remissionem, locationemve promissimus, fecimus, aut inivimus, seu aliquis nostrum de mandato, scientia, aut consensu meo promissit, fecit, aut inivit: ita me Deus adjuvet, et haec sancta Dei evangelia.

Decretum X. De rebus ecclesiae non alienandis, et bonorum inventario consiciendo, et officiis ecclesiasticis non locandis.

Ecclesiarum indemnitatibus in posterum omnino prospicere cupientes, hac eadem synodo approbante statuimus, constitutionem felicis recordationis Pauli papae II. de rebus ecclesiae non alienandis, quae incipit, "Ambitiose," sub poenis in ea contentis observari debere; quibuscunque aliis, tam generalibus, quam hujus regni particularibus, ecclesiasticis provisionibus super eadem re in suo nihilominus robore permanfuris.

Itemque archiepiscopis, episcopis, et omnibus piorum locorum gubernatoribus, seu administratoribus, et aliis quibuscunque personis ecclesiasticis, ecclesiastica beneficia, quocunque nomine nuncupentur, obtinentibus, mandamus, ut infra sex mensium spatium, a praesentium publicatione computandorum, inventarium omnium bonorum mobilium et immobilium, jurium, actionum, ac nominum, seu debitorum ad ecclesias vel pia loca, quae obtinent aut regunt, quovismodo pertinentium, cum eorum qualitatibus et confinibus, coram pluribus honestis et fide dignis testibus in forma probante conficiant; quod quidem inventarium tertio quoque anno, et quoties in eadem ecclesia, seu pio loco alius quis succedit, renovetur. Hujus autem inventarii duo fiant publica instrumenta; quorum unum in propria ecclesia, seu pio loco, alterum, si sit ecclesia metropolitana, apud capitulum; si cathedralis, apud metropolitanum; si vero aliarum inferiorum ecclesiarum, vel beneficiorum vel piorum locorum, apud episcopum perpetuo custodiatur. Metropolitanus vero, et alii locorum ordinarii in provinciarum et dioecesium suarum visitationibus, sive qui alii eorum vice visitabunt, dicta inventaria apud se habeant, et diligenter inquirant, an eorum, quae in inventario descripta sunt, aliquid desit; quod si quid deesse compererint, id recuperare, seu ad jus pristinum ecclesiarum revocare studeant, culpam, seu negligentiam cujuslibet hac in re juxta canonicas sanctiones severe puniendo; exceptis tamen semper iis, quae circa bona ecclesiastica, ante ab ecclesiis ablata, jam auctoritate apostolica statuta sunt, quibus per hoc nullo modo derogari volumus.

Praeterea constitutiones bonae memoriae Othonis et Othoboni, in hoc regno sedis apostolicae legatorum, editas, ut dignitates, vel officia, decanatus, vel archidiaconatus, sive proventus ex jurisdictionis spiritualis exercitio provenientes, nullo modo locentur, seu dentur ad firmam, innovamus, utque ab omnibus sub poenis in eis contentis observentur, praecipimus. Addimus etiam, ut reliqua beneficia ultra anni spatium sine ulla innovationis spe ad locationem, seu firmam concedere nemini liceat, praeter ordinarii consensum; quem is non ante praestabit, quam quibus personis, et ob quam causam hujusmodi concessionem fiant, diligenter cognoverit.

Decretum XI. Ut in cathedralibus certus initiatorum numerus educetur, ex quo, tanquam ex seminario, eligi possint, qui digne ecclesiis praeficiantur.

Cum magna sit hoc tempore ecclesiasticarum personarum penuria, praesertim idonearum, quae ecclesiis, seu ecclesiasticis muneribus vel praeficiantur, vel inserviant; atque huic incommodo nulla ratione magis occurri possit, quam si soboles quaedam, et tanquam seminarium ministrorum, saltem in cathedralibus ecclesiis, instituatur et conservetur; hac eadem synodo approbante statuimus et decernimus, ut singulae metropolitanae et cathedrales hujus regni ecclesiae, pro cujusque censu et facultatibus, proque dioecesis amplitudine, certum numerum puerorum alere teneantur.

In huac vero qui cooptandi erunt, annos sint minimum undecim vel duodecim nati; qui et legere sciant et scribere; et quorum indoles ac voluntas certiore spem afferat, eos sacerdotes futuros, et ecclesiasticis muneribus perpetuo inservituros.

Pauperum autem filios praecipue eligi volumus; neque tamen ditiorum excludimus, modo studium prae se ferant Deo et ecclesiae inserviendi. Hi primum grammaticam discant; post, in ipsam metropolitanam sive cathedralem ecclesiam asciti, sub cancellario ecclesiae, aut alio docto et gravi viro, qui ad hoc munus delectus sit, in ecclesiastica doctrina et disciplina erudiantur. Horum classes instituentur duae; altera provectorum aetate et literis, quos acolytos esse volumus, quibus, praeter victum et togam, quam liberalem vocant, mercedis etiam aliquid in singulos annos attribuetur; altera juniorum, quibus toga et mensa tantum dabitur. Universi autem tam prioris classis, quam posterioris tonsura et habitu clericali, eademque vivendi ratione utentur, et divinis in ecclesia officiis opportune inservient. Porro ex acolytorum classe quicumque ad aetatem legitimam pervenerint, et in moribus atque in literis profecerint, sacris ordinibus initiabuntur, et ipsi cathedrali seu metropolitanae ecclesiae, in quocunque ministerio episcopo et capitulo commodum videbitur, operam suam navabunt; atque his ut pro cujusque jusque merito beneficium aliquod ecclesiasticum deferatur, ipse episcopus et capitulum curabit. In eorum autem locum, qui ex acolytorum classe ad ordines sacros, et majora ecclesiae munera adsciscuntur, substituendi erunt, qui ex classe inferiori moribus, aetate, ac literis proxime accedant. Ad scholam grammaticae, et alia commoda, discendi causa, admittantur alii etiam civitatis et dioecesis pueri; qui tamen sint honeste educati, et bonis moribus praediti; quibus eodem vestitu, quo caeteris, qui ab ecclesia alentur, utendum erit, atque eodem modo vivendum. Ex his autem, qui maxime idoneus erit, et ecclesiae inserviendi voluntatem praeseferet, in ejus locum sufficietur, qui ex clericorum numero desiderabitur. Et quia, ad hanc puerorum sobolem alendam, necesse est, ut quoad certa dos ex redditibus beneficiorum, quae deinceps vacaverint, huic tam pio operi in perpetuum assignandorum, seu quo alio modo erit constituta, quod brevi factum iri speramus, census aliquis annuus ad tempus provideatur, qui tam puerorum victui, quam praeceptorum stipendiis sufficere possit; statuimus, ut archiepiscopi et episcopi omnes fructuum annuorum, quos ex proventibus episcopatuum suorum percipiunt, deductis decimis, subsidiis, et feudis, quadragesimam partem cum ad ipsos pueros alendos, tum etiam ad mercedem solvendam magistris, qui eos in grammatica, et ecclesiastica doctrina et disciplina erudiant, in singulos annos pendant: quod item ab omnibus, qui praebendas, vel beneficia quaecunque ecclesiastica aut jam obtinent, aut posthac obtinebunt, fieri volumus ac jubemus; ut scilicet ex fructibus beneficiorum suorum, quae vel singula, vel plura simul, decimis, subsidiis, et feudis, ut praefertur, deductis, ad annum censum viginti librarum ascendunt, partem quadragesimam ad hos ipsos usus in ea dioecesi, in qua beneficia obtinent, quotannis persolvant: id quod eos, licet aliis multis oneribus gravatos, pro sua tamen erga Deum pietate, et in ejus ecclesiam, quae nunc ministrorum idoneorum penuria magnopere deformatur, officio et studio haud gravatim facturos esse confidimus. Praeterea statuimus, ut episcopus simul cum decano et capitulo cathedralis ecclesiae hujus puerorum scholae curam gerant; certisque hominibus negotium dent, ut hunc censum ab omnibus iis, qui solvere tenebuntur, in terminis et locis, ac sub censuris et poenis, eorundem episcopi et capituli arbitrio statuendis, exigant. Reliqua vero, quae ad hanc scholam bene ac feliciter administrandam tuendamque erunt statuenda, quae multa adhuc restant, in proxima convocatione, Deo favente, providebuntur.

Cum autem ad sanam doctrinam, et bonos mores conservandos maxime conducat, ut erudiendae juventuti magistri rectitudine fidei, honestate vitae, et eruditione commendabiles praeficiantur; idcirco statuimus, ut ne quis ulli scholae in quocunque loco magister praeficiatur, aut quomodolibet munus docendi suscipiat, nisi prius a loci ordinario diligenter examinatus ac probatus fuerit, deque iis libris admonitus, qui in scholis tam ad eruditionem, quam ad excolendos juventutis mores legendi sunt. Qui vero huic decreto non paruerit, sententiam excommunicationis incurrat, et munere docendi ad triennium prohibeatur. Eorum autem, qui jam scholis praefecti sunt, fides, mores, et doctrina sedulo examinentur; et si tales reperti fuerint, quales in praesenti constitutione requiramus, confirmantur, et de omnibus supradictis admoneantur; sin aliter, eos amoveri, et in eorum locum alios idoneos suffici mandamus.

Decretum XII. De visitatione ecclesiarum.

Cum ecclesiarum visitatio ad vitia et abusus tollendos, ac rursus ad bonos mores inducendos, ac legum ecclesiasticarum vim et usum retinendum non solum utilis, verum etiam necessaria sit; cum praesentis synodi approbatione statuiamus, ut episcopi, et alii locorum ordinarii dioeceses, et loca sibi commissa, juxta antiquam hujus regni consuetudinem, singulis trienniis per seipso, si legitime impediti non fuerint, sin minus, per idoneos substitutos cum omni pietatis et charitatis zelo visitare non omittant.

Inprimis autem monemus omnes visitatores, ut in visitationibus ipsis secum eos tantum ducant, quorum opera necessario indigeant; et illos quidem tales, qui caeteris honestatis et probitatis exemplo esse possint; utque ad victum mediocri sumptu sint contenti, atque visitationem, quam celerrime fieri possit, expediant, nec frustra alienis expensis tempus conterant.

Hoc autem ordine visitatio instituenda erit, ut primum civitas, deinde dioecesis, nisi forte aliter aliqua exigat necessitas, visitetur. In civitate vero a cathedrali ecclesia inchoandum; deinde ad singulas collegiatas, postremo ad parochiales transeundum est; ubi non solum parochi, sed caeteri etiam, si qui in parochiis commorantur, sacerdotes et clerici evocentur. Visitandae etiam sunt scholae et bibliothecae, ac demum hospitalia diligenter perlustranda.

In visitatione episcopi verbum Dei proponent; sacramentum chrismatis, seu confirmationem conferent. Item vel ipsi per se, vel alios per eos ad eam rem delectos, in casibus sibi reservatis, poenitentia salutari imposita, beneficium absolutionis iis, qui eo indiguerint, et illud humiliter petierint, impendent; ad idque omnes paterno charitatis affectu invitabunt, atque hortabuntur.

In locis visitandis deligantur inprimis viri probi, bonae existimationis, et graves quatuor, aut quinque, pluresve, pro cleri et plebis multitudine, qui vitam ac mores tam laicorum, quam clericorum probe noverint; iique etiam jurejurando astringantur, ut libere, omnique humano affectu remoto, ea indicent; et nisi probent ea, quae deferunt, rejiciantur.

In singularum autem parochialium ecclesiarum visitatione infra scripta omnia sedulo investiganda sunt atque inspicienda; an sacramenta munde ac tuto custodiantur, suoque tempore renoventur; an rite recteque administrantur; an sanctissimum Christi corpus ad aegrotos honorifice ac devote cum luminibus, tintinnabulo, et caeteris caeteris, quae mos est adhiberi, deferatur; an matrimonia licite et in ecclesia reverenter, proclamationibus praecedentibus, et tempore non interdicto contrahantur; an ipsi parochi habeant libros, in quibus nomina eorum, qui baptizantur, cum compatribus, itemque defunctorum, et matrimonia contrahentium describantur. Ecclesiae autem et altaria, si non sint consecrata, consecrentur; si polluta, reconcilientur: omnia in ecclesia munda, ac decentia, ac tuta sint. Coemeterium claudatur, ne bestiae ingredi possint, neve quo alio modo foedetur. Si ecclesia, chorus, campanile, sacristia, vel domus reparatione indigeat; iis mandetur, ad quos ea res pertinet, ut, quae reparanda sint, pro facultatibus ecclesiae, seu parochiae reparent atque refarciant. Praeterea inspiciendum est, an omnia suppetant, quae ad altaris ministerium, et ad officia divina sunt necessaria; calices, patinae, corporalia, vestes, libri, et reliqua; an missae, et alia divina officia non solum rite, et recte, sed etiam pie ac devote celebrentur; an sit unus saltem clericus, qui missae cum mundo ac decenti superpellicio inserviat; an libri, et scripturae antiquae, aliaque instrumenta et privilegia ecclesiae diligenter asserventur.

His omnibus accurate inspectis, quae ad ecclesiam pertinent, proximum erit, ut de ministris ecclesiae, et aliorum clericorum quaeratur. Ac primum, an rite et recte sint ordinati; an in ordinibus muneri suo convenientibus constituti. Tum de ecclesiarum, seu beneficiorum titulis cognoscendum; an aliqui se intruserint; an incompatibilia sine sufficienti dispensatione teneant; an resideant, et officio sibi commissio, tam quoad sacramenta administranda, quam quoad missas, et alia divina officia celebranda, et anniversariis persolvendis, aliisque oneribus sibi impositis satisfaciant; an ecclesias proprias, ut alienis inserviant, maxime festis diebus derelinquant; an populum salutari divini verbi cibo diligenter pascant, et pueros prima fidei rudimenta doceant; an libros ad haec, et alia, quae ad officium curati spectant, necessarios habeant. De eorum vita, moribus, habitu, conversatione, familia inquirendum; an opera vilia, et ipsis non permissa exerceant; an in tabernis, aliisve locis non convenientibus versentur; an bona ecclesiae et jura tueantur; an egentibus subveniant; an sint pacifici, et ad tollendas inimicitias atque odia diligentes.

Postremo ad disciplinam populi erit veniendum; advertendumque an in populo haeretici sint, an inconfessi, an usurarii, an concubinari, aliive, qui in peccatis vivant et inforDESCANT; an inter aliquos odia et inimicitiae intercedant; an sint, qui Quadragesimam, aliave jejunia, festa, et reliquos laudabiles ecclesiae ritus non observent. Atque in licentiis apostolica, aliave legitima auctoritate concessis comedendi carnes, ova, et lactinia tempore prohibito, sive quid aliud agendi praeter constitutiones et morem ecclesiae, inspiciendum erit, an causae expressae, et alia narrata sint vera, et an ipsius concessionis forma servata. Praeterea quaerendum, an legata pia sint, quae executioni non mandentur; an populus devote in ecclesia versetur, et integrum missam attente reverenterque audiat; an inter divina officia fiant deambulationes; an patresfamilias liberos et domum honeste et pie instituant et gubernent.

Si sint hospitalia, quomodo regantur; an eorum bona in pauperum usus fideliter dispensentur; an sancte et pie in eis vivatur.

Si scholae, de magistris quaerendum; quos libros interpretentur; an recte officio suo fungantur. Simulque providendum erit, ne quis, ut praesenti synodo constitutum est, ad docendum admittatur, nisi prius ab episcopo probatus fuerit; et si quis idoneus non sit, amoveatur.

De bibliothecis inquirendum, an sint in eis, vendanturve libri haeretici, aut aliter de jure prohibiti.

Si ecclesiae habeant capitula, seu collegia, animadvertatur, an, qui dignitates, et praebendas in eis obtinent, tam in divinis horis debite et devote celebrandis, quam caeteris in rebus, quae ipsis incumbunt, praestandis, muneri suo satisfaciant.

His ita perspectis et cognitis, visitator, quae recte se habebunt, laudabit; quae secus, reprehendet; eaque uti corrigantur, atque emendentur, per censuras, et alia juris remedia, si opus fuerit, curabit: monebit autem omnes, ut officium sibi commissum diligenter exequantur.

Metropolitani in suarum visitatione provinciarum ordinem a felicitis recordationis Innocentii papae IV. in constitutione, quae incipit, "Romana ecclesia," servabunt; et inter alia, de his diligenter inquirent, an episcopi resideant in suis dioecesibus; an praedicent verbum Dei; an ita vivant, ut eos deceat; quemadmodum se gerant in ordinibus, et beneficiis conferendis, deputandis confessoribus, excessibus eorum, qui suae sunt jurisdictionis, puniendis, in visitatione dioecesum, caeterisque ad officium episcopale, ac jurisdictionem, et administrationem in spiritualibus et temporalibus quomodolibet spectantibus; denique, an generales canones, et ecclesiastica hujus regni instituta observent: et si quae corrigenda erunt, quae corrigi tum possint, corrigant; sin minus, ad synodum provincialem referant; verum si quid hujusmodi erit, ad quod corrigendum ac reformandum majori auctoritate opus esse videatur, tum ad sedem apostolicam recurat.

Archidiaconi partem dioecesis, curae ac fidei suae creditam, in iis, quae ad eos pertinent, secundum praescriptam formam visitent; graviora, et quae per eos emendari non possint, ad episcopos referant: operam autem dabunt, ut ea, quae in visitatione per episcopum statuta ac mandata sint, perficiantur; ac de iis, quae perfecta fuerint, aut non perfecta, simulque de causis, quae eorum executionem impediunt, episcopum statim admonebunt. Atque, ut iidem archidiaconi, qui episcoporum oculi appellantur, quod officii sui et muneris est, tam in visitationibus, quam caeteris in rebus diligenter praestent; constitutiones provinciales, ac bonae memoriae Othonis et Othoboni, sedis apostolicae in hoc regno legatorum, hac de re pie et provide editas, cum praesentis synodi approbatione innovamus, easque omnino observari praecipimus. Praeterea constitutioni praefati Othoboni, qua praeter caetera cavetur, ne archidiaconi ob crimen manifestum a subditis pecunias accipiant, sed illud digna animadversione puniant; hoc amplius addimus, atque statuimus, ut si quis contra id facere audeat, poena dupli ejus, quod acceperit, per dioecesanum episcopum multetur; eaque pecunia in utilitatem mensae scholarium, in ecclesia cathedrali erectae vel erigendae, convertatur.

Ut autem ecclesiarum praelati officium correctionis et reformationis eorum, qui suae jurisdictioni subsunt, libere exercere possint; constitutionem felicitis recordationis Innocentii papae III. in concilio generali editam, qua statuit, ut iidem praelati suae jurisdictioni subditorum excessus, appellatione remota, vel consuetudine non obstante, corrigant et reforment, innovamus, et ab omnibus hic observari praecipimus.
